ST. LOUIS — (ANP) — Members of the Bar association of St. Louis, white, decided here last week to carry on balloting through the mails on the question of whether to support the admission of Negroes to the University of Missouri law school or back the development of a separate institution. The decision came at a stormy meeting of the association, in which both vigorous support and strong opposition were registered on a resolution adopted recently by the group's executive committee, proposing that mail balloting be used to determine the attitude which the association should adopt.

The resolution, passed by a vote of 144 to 98, specifically urged that Gov. Phil M. Donnely veto an appropriation of $400,000 for the erection of a new building to house the Lincoln University Law school. The institution currently occupies leased quarters which are considered inadequate. The lease expires next year, and the general assembly approved the appropriation for a new building.

Opponents of the resolution used every parliamentary trick they could to prevent the passage of the resolution. Some said they were not against the resolution itself, but opposed it because it was brought up to vote with no advance notice to the membership.

One member thought it "ill advised" for the association to take a stand on "a matter wholly political." Another, George C. Wilson, who was a member of the board of curators at the university when Lloyd Gaines sought and was denied admission, said he had voted against Gaines' entry because he felt it was against "the public policy of the state, which was for separate but equal educational facilities.

"I don't think the state has changed its policy. The bill this resolution asks the governor to veto is an effort on the part of the state to do its duty in providing equal facilities for Negroes. If we are to pass on this question, I think we should do it deliberately and with recognition of all it implies."

He reminded the membership that the association does not admit Negroes to membership, and moved to have the resolution tabled. This move was defeated.

For the affirmative side, Benjamin Roth declared that "nothing is more vital to the association than the training of lawyers. I object to the idea of this association washing its hands of legal education."

ST. LOUIS U. ACCEPTS NON-DISCRIMINATION SCHOLARSHIP GIFT

Three fulltime scholarships to the St. Louis U. School of Law, made possible by funds refused Washington University because of the latter institution's Jim-Crow policy, were announced last week by the Dean of the St. Louis U. Law School.

St. Louis University is conducted under Catholic auspices by the Jesuit Fathers.

The announcement stated that awards would be made without discrimination in selection of students to be assisted nor in granting of assistance because of race, religion, color, place of origin, nationality or sex.

The scholarships were established by the Emil S. Strauss Fund of the Flora S. Frank estate and the Mary F. Culnana Scholarship Fund. Washington University could not accept the fund last year because of the non-discriminatory clause.

Lawyers Vote Jimcrow Law School Issue

Mail ballots on the question of approval or disapproval of the appropriation of $400,000 to construct a Lincoln Law School Building sent out by the Bar Association of St. Louis were declined for this Thursday. The time was advanced in order that a request for Governor Donnelly to veto the bill, which has been lying on his desk since the adjournment of the legislation, might be sent in time.

The association's executive committee adopted a resolution disapproving the appropriation and submitted it to the body for vote creating sharp debate. Opponents argue that it would violate the state segregated education provision. Proponents argue that the bill creates inappropriate burden and taxation in state finances and the Negroes should be admitted in the state provided school for education in law at the U. of Missouri.

St. Louis Debates Over $400,000 For Law School

Number Opposing Development of Separate Institution Growing; White Attorneys in Fight

By SAM LACY

ST. LOUIS—Whether or not a $400,000 appropriation for erection of a new law school building at Lincoln University of Missouri is the desirable thing, remains a moot question here.

Dean Scovel Richardson, head of the school, clings to the belief it is. And he is supported in no small measure by State Representative Josiah C. Thomas, a graduate of the school, together with other colored members of the Missouri State Legislature.

On the other hand, however, there is a strong alliance which is fighting desperately to block the appropriation on the grounds it will not furnish the "equal educational privileges" which the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled colored law students are entitled to in this State.

White Bar Support Seen

This faction, headed by the NAACP, this week, appears on the verge of winning the backing of the powerful all-white St. Louis Bar Association.

That body, only after a stormy meeting, Monday night, agreed to put off until this week, the forwarding of a resolution to Gov. Phil M. Donnelly urging him to veto the measure.

Postponement of the action was a sort of appeasement for dyed-in-the-wool anti - racists, the AFRO suspected, since it was the consensus of opinion among association leaders that the governor would be petitioned.

Poll of Members Planned

Lon O. Hocker Jr., white, secretary of the association, told the AFRO that the membership would be polled by mail, and there was every indication that the majority would favor blocking the appropriation, if possible.

"We feel," Hocker explained, "that it would be virtually impossible for such a school to provide adequate legal education or education equal to that provided by the University of Missouri. The public interest demands that lawyers, white or colored, be adequately trained.

"We also feel that this money could be used to greater advantage and to the greater benefit of white and colored students alike, if it were placed at the disposal of the University of Missouri, rather than to a makeshift separate school."

Against Court Ruling

Further, Hocker said, the establishment on a permanent basis of any more separate schools in any State is contrary to the spirit of the decisions of the United States Supreme Court in the Gaines and Sipuel cases.

"The blocking of his appropriation," Hocker pointed out, "will by no means open the doors of the University of Missouri to colored law students. But it is a step in that direction."

It was disclosed that opponents to the resolution sought to use several political tricks as well as the old familiar argument to defeat it. But theirs was a losing battle.

Unable to reach a decision in the Monday meeting, the association was asked to approve the mail vote. A motion to table the proposal was lost, 111 to 108.

Then a motion to adjourn was made. This was defeated 139 to 86, a standing count becoming necessary when the confusion drowned out the voice poll. Finally, the mail vote was approved, 144 to 98.

May 13 Deadline Set

Asked when the ballots would be mailed, Hocker said that they would leave his office on Friday (May 7) and each would carry a deadline of Thursday, May 13.

Dean Richardson, when questioned, told the AFRO that he was "very definitely" in favor of the appropriation. He said that the present enrollment at the school is 47, but that the new appropriation would enable Lincoln University to provide an adequate building.

"The plans already have been drawn," he said, "and I know that what we would get would be satisfactory under the circumstances."

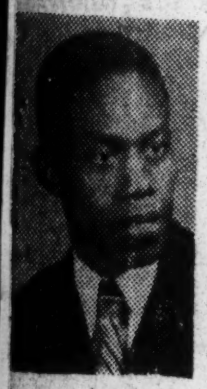
He opined that admission to the University of Missouri Law School "is a long way off."

New Test Case For Law School

The Courier Pittsburgh, Pa Sat. 4-10-48

By A. M. RIVERA JR.
(Courier Staff Correspondent)

DURHAM, N. C.—Harold Epps, a law student at North Carolina College, here, last week became the second Negro to apply for admission to the University of North Carolina School of Law.



Mr. Epps

Mr. Epps, a native of Asheville, N. C., filed his application just a few days after his classmate, James R. Walker asked for admittance to the white State-supported law school..

Epps and Walker both gave as their reason for seeking admission to the University of North Carolina, the fact that the school at Durham, maintained by the State for Negro students, is not accredited by the American Bar Association, which precludes them from taking any bar examination except in the State of North Carolina. The library and study facilities at the Negro school are inadequate, they said. 4-10-48

Seek to Enter Law School at Chapel Hill

The Carolina Times

These two first year students in the law school of North Carolina State College at Durham have sought admission to the law school of the white University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where their applications are now being considered. They are Harold Thomas Epps and James Walker, pictured above between classes at Durham.

N.C. State Law Students Ask to Enter University

Afro American Sat 4-17-48

Brand Facilities at Durham 'Inadequate' for Equal Education in the Professions

Baltimore Md

By DOUGLASS HALL

DURHAM, N.C. — "I am only exercising my right as an American citizen. There is nothing to get excited about. It is my intention to improve my condition by attending a law school that is accredited by the American Bar Association."

That is the way that James Walker of Statesville, a student at North Carolina State College, feels about the fuss that is being made over the fact that he and several other persons have applied for admission into the (white) University of North Carolina Law and Medical Schools at Chapel Hill.

"Been Waiting Eight Years"

"They cannot say that we have not been patient. We have been waiting for eight years for them to improve this school so that it will come up to the standard required by the Association of American Law Schools.

Sat 4-17-48

"We cannot hope to practice law in many States, or be accepted in schools outside of this State, because our school is not on the approved list.

"In fact, the only law school that will accept our credits is the University of North Carolina because our Law School is approved only by the North Carolina Board of Law Examiners."

No Hasty Decision

Declaring that he had not acted hastily, Walker said he had studied the situation for several years.

"The first thing that I did," he explained, "was to make up my mind as to what career I wanted to pursue. I decided on law; then I enrolled here.

"But I find that a lot of time can be wasted by attending an unapproved law school. As a citizen, I am entitled to as good legal training as any other citizen in the State; and I am going to try to get it."

Two Apply to Med School

Harold Thomas Epps, law student at State, also applied for admission to the Law School at Chapel Hill. "I believe that I am going to be accepted" he told the AFRO. He had a straight "A" average last semester.

A third person, Dewey M. Clayton, Timberlake, applied for admission into the School of Medicine. None of the applicants have heard from their applications.

Late Friday afternoon, a fourth person, James E. Thomas, instructor at Shaw University, revealed that he was making application to enter the Medical School at the white university.

May Have Asked Too Late

Mr. Thomas held a straight "A" average all through high school and was on the dean's list all during his time at Shaw University.

He served three years in the Navy, took the V-12 training at Cornell University and was graduated as an ensign. He served on the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

However, it is believed that Mr. Thomas's application will not be considered for the fall semester, as the deadline date for new applications at the school was April 1, the AFRO was told.

N.C. Faculty Members "Mum"

Most of the faculty members at North Carolina State were "mum" on the situation, but, as we talked, several students passed Walker tapped him on the arm with the comment, "Good work."

President A. Elder was over at Chapel Hill and could not be reached for comment. Dean Albert L. Turner, refused to permit his picture to be taken "under such circumstances."

Unlike those of inadequate law schools in Oklahoma and Texas, N. C. State officials refused to permit AFRO photographer to take pictures of the interior of the law school.

Sat 4-17-48

William Tuck, public relation official, stated that he would have to get President Elder's approval, as did Dean Turner, who stated that he himself, saw "no objection of taking the pictures."

Physical Setup Deplorable

However, I did see the setup for training law students. The library is scattered in at least four buildings—the regular library building, the administration building, the laundry building and a garage.

The dean is the only one of the four instructors who has an office. Students and teachers usually use spaces between book stacks in the library for office or study.

Action of the students has merely brought to a head, a topic that has been studied and talked about for several years.

Says State Responsible

According to Assistant State Budget Director R. G. Deyton, no request has been made by officials for money to build a law library.

The college's board of trustees has requested money for classroom building, an infirmary, a dormitory, an apartment house for teachers, a gymnasium and athletic field and a storage building.

The 1947 General Assembly approved $2,065,000 for permanent buildings at N.C. State College, including a $550,000 library building.

One of the aims of the building program was to improve the law facilities to meet the standard of the American Bar Association. The lack of library space is one of the reasons that the law school is not approved.

Out-of-State Aid Given

North Carolina provides no medical facilities for colored students but pays a tuition differential if they wish to study at a medical college outside of the State. Several persons are now studying under this plan.

The law school was established at N.C. College in 1939, but did not begin functioning until 1940.

Since 1943, when Robert R. Bond of Lewiston became the first graduate of the school to pass the bar examination, 10 graduates have taken the bar test and 9 have passed, according to Edward L. Cannon, executive secretary of the examining board. Last year, four took the test and all passed.

Dean Turner stated that some States permit the students to take the bar examination but "most States deny them the right because our school is not recognized by the American Bar Association."

Most ABA Requirement Met

The school measures up to most ABA requirements, according to Dean Turner, except for the physical plant. Now 26 students are enrolled in the Law School, yet the school has only two classrooms.

"We might also have to get another teacher in order to meet requirements," Turner stated.

At present the faculty consists of the dean, who does some teaching, and three professors. There is also a law librarian, William Harris, who has sent in his resignation, effective at the close of this school year.

The school's budget for the year is about $22,000.

Jacksonville, over a 12-month period, the report indicated.

The jewelry bill was charged to the bishop's personal account.

A bill of complaint was issued against the bishop and the board following these revelations. The bill charged that monies had been wrongfully disbursed and illegally used from the school's fund.

According to an affidavit submitted to the court by a member of the board in 1947, ministers and members of the board were often threatened and intimidated if they opposed the bishop's methods of spending school funds.

Another affidavit charged that Bishop Tookes and the board disbursed over $26,000 between May 15, 1946 and May 15, 1947. It was disclosed that this amount listed as donations, loans, grams, legal expenses, transportation, salaries for speakers and rent.

No Income Receipts

In the auditor's report, no receipts of money paid by students due to the bishop's reckless spend- at Edward Waters College were ing, in order for the school to co- priate, allegedly. with school According to testimony Bishop Tookes, E. J. White, a lay-

Property in Wife's Name

Six individual lots and one block ty were purchased by the

Other Suits Cited

Spearheading the suits against recorded under "income." Actual operation necessary. Edward Waters College was mortgaged for $35,000. It was disclosed that the trustee was the property was titled to mrs. Col-Maggie P. Tookes, the bishop's wife, and the mortgage was converted a $6,000 loan to has extensive real property and ncellor, Bishop Tookes, that he transacted all of his real the receipt of money estate affairs over the telephone mortgage, and the school and by telegram. Expenses for nothing. these personal transactions were charged to the school, according to laymen.

Laymen further charged that following the bishop's reckless spending, in order for the school to comply.

men of the South Florida Conference and plaintiff for same, charged Bishop Tookes with intent to embezzle and fraudulanty conceal for the personal has $814.50. This affidavit was filed by Mr. White in St. Lucie County, Fla.

In Palm Beach County, L. L. Roundtree no behalf of the laymen's alliance, filed a suit against the prelate charging that he withdrew $3,500 from the South Florida Conference. Bishop Tookes reportedly admitted the allegations and replaced the $3,500.

In connection with the suits and bill of complaint filed against the bishop, it was stated, he has replaced $19,000 of the over $22,000 reported illegally disbursed from the school's funds under his jurisdiction.

Bishop Warned

In a letter to the Chancellor, from the law office of McGill and McGriff, counsel for the laymen at that time, warning was given that if a more accurate accounting of funds wouldn't take place that:

1. An accounting of personal funds would be ordered.
2. An accurate accounting of schools funds would be made.
3. An accountant would be sought to take charge of the school's affairs during the period of auditing.

To this letter, the bishop and the board never made a direct reply, testimony revealed .

At present, Bishop Tookes is presiding over the 16th Episcopal District which comprises, the West Indies and South America. He requested a change with Bishop A. J. Allen, the former bishop of this district, due to poor health, Bishop Allen stated.

[EDITOR'S NOTE: An ANP wire dispatch filed Monday indicated that Bishop Tookes was exonerated on all charges of wrong-doing.]

Negroes Refuse to Enroll In Special Law School

14e(2) Atlanta Constitution Atlanta, Ga

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 5—(INS)—In a former courtroom in the Oklahoma State Capital Building, a law school professor sits looking out the window waiting for his first student to appear.

While other colleges are turning away students, the institution presided over by Prof. Jerome Hemry virtually has been begging for enrollees—but to no avail.

So it has been since Jan. 24, 1948, when Hemry was put in charge of Oklahoma's new Law School for Negroes.

Establishment of the law school was Oklahoma's attempt to comply with a far-reaching decision of the U. S. Supreme Court, ordering the State of Oklahoma to admit Ada Sipuel Fisher to the University of Oklahoma Law School or to provide equal "higher educational" facilities for Negroes at once.

Central figure in the case is a 23-year-old Negress from Chickasha, Okla., an honor graduate of Langston University, Oklahoma's only institution of higher learning for Negroes. Sun. 3-7-48

To date, she and other Negroes have refused to attend the new school and are continuing their fight to enroll with white students in the State's University at Norman.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, meanwhile, has promised litigation to determine whether the new school meets the court's mandate.

The plaintiff, with the aid of the NAACP, seemingly won a clear cut victory on Jan. 11 when the U. S. Supreme Court ruled that Oklahoma must admit her to its State University or immediately provide "equal" facilities for Negroes.

Atty. Gen. Mac Q. Williamson recently recommended that the regents refuse to enroll the six students and the whole case went back to the U. S. Supreme Court.

NAACP Atty. Thurgood Marshall, of New York, and Amos Hall, of Tulsa, then petitioned the court to ssue an order "forcing" the University to enroll the Negress, on the grounds that "equal facilities" were not being offered by the new university.

The Supreme Court refused to issue a "forcing" order, and apparently placed the case back in the hands of the Cleveland County, Oklahoma, District Court.

As matters stand now, the NAACP is mapping new legal action so the battle will be brought before the nation's highest tribunal once more. Sun. 3-7-48

On the other hand, a committee of six deans from Oklahoma A. and M. College and the University of Oklahoma has begun the task of setting up graduate school courses for Negro students.

JAILER'S FACE RED, CRIPPLE ESCAPES

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 6—(AP)—Life has nothing but its downs for Jailer Guy Mitchell of Oklahoma City.

A 56-year-old one-armed prisoner, crippled with arthritis and rheumatism and on crutches—is the subject of a diligent one-man search Saturday.

The man stepped on an elevator on the third floor of the city's "escape proof" jail. Friday and disappeared.

He was among a group of prisoners Mitchell was leading to the Judge's chamber.

OKLAHOMA SETS UP NEGRO LAW SCHOOL

The Times, New York, N.Y.

Acts After Mrs. Fisher Asks for Admission to University as Sequel to High Court Ruling

14e(2) June 1-20-48

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 19 (AP)—The Oklahoma State Regents for Higher Education today established a Negro School of Law in Oklahoma City as a branch of Langston Negro University, but a Negro leader said immediately that there would be "no acceptance of a Jim Crow law school."

The school was established after the Supreme Court of the United States ordered Oklahoma to provide equal law school facilities for Negroes as soon as for white persons. Oklahoma's constitution requires separate schools.

Mrs. Ada Lois Sipuel Fisher, 23-year-old Negro woman who sought for two years in the courts a decision to permit her to enter the University of Oklahoma Law School, filed application to enroll at the university this morning. She would make no comment on the Regents' action.

Roscoe Dunjee, a national director for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the Regents decision was a surprise. He made the statement that there would be no acceptance of the Jim Crow school.

The new law school must be established by next Monday to meet the needs of Mrs. Fisher, honor student from Langston, the only Negro University in Oklahoma.

Thurgood Marshall, New York attorney for NAACP who went with Mrs. Fisher to enroll this morning, left immediately for Washington for conferences tomorrow on what further legal action would be taken. The Times

Mr. Dunjee said:

"I can't see how the regents can give us a school next Monday which is equal in faculty and facilities and the 40-year-old tradition of the Oklahoma school."

Details for securing classroom facilities and use of the State Law Library for the school were left by the regents to a committee of five members of the Board of Regents and the dean of the university of Oklahoma School of Law.

The University of Oklahoma schedule of study will be used along with recommendations for instructional, secretarial and other personnel, a spokesman for the regents said. New York, N.Y.

The governing body of the new law school will be the Board of Regents for Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical Colleges which now governs Langston. The school will not be a branch of the University of Oklahoma, in order to comply with state segregation statutes. Tues. 1-20-48

It was indicated classrooms will be established at the Oklahoma State Capitol. Faculty members will be provided following recommendations of Dr. W. Page Keeton, Dean of the University School of Law. The Times

The resolution establishing the new school specified "the course of study and the standards for said School of Law shall be substantially equal to the course of study and standards now in existence at the University of Oklahoma.

"The course of study of said school shall be prescribed and made available for any Negro citizen of the State of Oklahoma qualified to enter the school at registration time, which shall be identical with the registration period for the enrollment of law students at the University of Oklahoma School of Law." Tues. 1-20-48

A week ago the Supreme Court of the United States ordered Oklahoma to provide equal and immediate education for Mrs. Fisher but did not rule on the constitutionality of Oklahoma's segregation laws. Mrs. Fisher had appealed from adverse decisions in state courts. New York, N.Y.

Last Saturday, the Oklahoma Supreme Court directed the regents to set up a separate law school, but directed the regents to act in conformity "with the provisions of the Constitution and statutes of this state requiring segregation of the races in the schools."

Negro School Gets Student

PM New York, N.Y. Wed. 6-7-48

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 8 (UP)—An Oklahoma City waiter today became the first enrolled student in Oklahoma's Langston Law School for Negroes. 14e(2)

The Langston faculty and classrooms were set up by the state in answer to a U. S. Supreme Court order that Oklahoma must offer Negroes law training equal to that given white students. The school is housed in three rooms of the State Capitol. Negro leaders have attacked it as inferior to the University of Oklahoma Law School.

Pressure Bars Negro From School

The Record Columbia, S.C.

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 14.—(AP)—A 34-year-old Negro waiter said he had decided against entering the Langston University school of law for Negroes today because of "pressure." Mon. 6-14-48

His entrance would have given the school its first student since its organization last January. The state opened the school when the United States Supreme Court ruled Oklahoma had to provide equal educational facilities for Negroes.

The waiter, T. M. Roberts of Oklahoma City, said last Tuesday he would enroll. His application was approved by Dean Jerome Hemry the school's summer classes were scheduled to start today. The Record

Roberts said he made his decision against entering after a four-hour meeting with an unnamed group yesterday.

"The pressure was more than I could take," he said. "I've bucked the church, the fraternal organizations and the man in the street since I said I was going. And I know the pressure wouldn't let up when I got started." Columbia

The supreme court ruling came as a result of efforts of Mrs. Ada Lois Fisher, 24-year-old Langston graduate, who sought to enter the all-white University of Oklahoma law school at Norman. J. C.

She twice was denied entrance.

She filed a second suit in district court protesting the Langston school was not equal to the University of Oklahoma school. A ruling is now pending. Mon. 6-14-48

Negro Gains Support In Law School Test

The News

NORMAN, Okla., May 27—(AP)—The dean of the Harvard law school and three other educators agree with Ada Fisher that Oklahoma's law school for Negroes is inadequate and unequal.

They took the witness stand in District Court one after another yesterday to support the 24-year-old Negro woman. She is renewing her two-year fight to enter the all-white University of Oklahoma law school here.

She claims Oklahoma has not obeyed a U. S. Supreme Court order to give her equal facilities for a law education. Thurs.

The state set up a small law school for Negroes in the state capitol building in January, and named it a branch of the State University for Negroes at Langston. Birmingham, Ala.

"The two schools are so unequal there is no basis for comparison," said the Harvard dean, Dr. Erwin N. Griswold. 5-27-48

The other three educators are Dr. Earl G. Harrison, dean of the University of Pennsylvania law school; Dr. Max Radin, law professor at the University of California at Berkeley, and Charles Bunn, chairman of the University of Wisconsin curriculum committee.

Negro Law School Equal, Says South Carolina Judge

CHARLESTON, S. C.—Federal Judge J. Waties Waring ruled last week that a new segregated school of law at State Agricultural and Mechanics College at Orangeburg was acceptable as equal facilities to that offered to white students in the state.

His decision closed the case of John W. Wrighten, who was seeking entrance into the law school of the University of South Carolina at Columbia.

On July 12, 1947, Judge Waring had ordered the state to admit Wrighten to the university or set up a substantially equal school separate from that one.

Jim-Crow S. C. Law School Held Equal

CHARLESTON, S. C.—(ANP)—Federal Judge J. Waties Waring ruled last week that a new segregated school of law at State Agricultural and Mechanical College at Orangeburg was acceptable as equal facilities to that offered to white students in the State.

His decision closed the case of John H. Wrighten who was seeking entrance into the law school of the University of South Carolina at Columbia.

On July 12, 1947, Judge Waring had ordered the State to admit Wrighten to the university or set up a substantially equal school separate from that one.

Federal Judge Dismisses Suit Of John Wrighten

ORANGEBURG, S. C. — (ANP) — Federal District Judge J. Waites Waring is of the opinion that the law school of State A and M College here is "adequate" for the instruction of Negroes pursuing a career in law. Last week he dismissed a suit brought by John W. Wrighten, Charleston, last fall, seeking admittance to the University of South Carolina law school.

In his decision, the judge pointed out that racial segregation is a "luxury" for southern states, and that South Carolina "apparently feels it can afford the luxury of $200,000 for a law school building for Negro students," separate from the university school.

"There is no question of the legality or illegality of segregation in this case. In my opinion, the state has provided law educational opportunities equal to those at the university, in spirit as well as in letter," he said.

Dismiss Previous Order

He promised a written order dismissing his previous order that the university would have to admit Negroes unless the state made available equal provisions for Negroes, he made it clear that his decision in this case need not apply in all cases, but "is for the time being." The latter statement was clarified when the judge said a materially different situation would apply if a student from an accredited law school applied for transfer to the A and M school before it established third-year courses.

At present the biased set-up provides first-year law work. It is planned to add second year work in the fall, with the full three-year course to go into effect when the new building is completed next year.

The judge also granted Wrighten's motion to withdraw his request for $5,000 in damages from the university for refusing to admit him on the basis of a state law barring Negroes from its school.

Better Opportunities

The university law school dean, S. L. Prince, declared that Negro students now have "better opportunities to get a law education than do those at the university." He claimed figures showed a 340 enrollment handled by a full and part time faculty of 14 at the university, as compared with the Negro school's three instructors and eight freshmen students."

"For effectiveness, the faculties are equal," he asserted.

Dean Benner C. Turner of A and M law school predicted that the set-up would attain American Bar association accrediting and membership in the Association of American Law schools when its full three-year course is installed in September, 1949. Prince added a reminder that classroom facilities, law library and other items of the Negro school would then surpass those of the university, although the latter is planning a new building at a later date.

Atty. Thurgood Marshall, general NAACP counsel, represented Wrighten. The university was represented by Atty. D. W. Robinson, Columbia.

Dixie Law School To Cost $200,000

COLUMBIA, S. C.—(ANP)—Contracts have been let and construction of the new law school building for State A. and M. College begun, it was disclosed here last week. The new building will cost, fully equipped, about $200,000.

Medics Oppose Regional Schools

Daily World

NEW YORK — (NNPA) — Opposiiton to regional medical schools support for President Truman's Civil Rights program, and a reaffirmation of its stand against segregation in Veterans Administration hospitals was expresesd here last Monday by the board of directors of the National Medical Association. Atlanta, Ga.

The organization also went on record as supporting Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Administrator, in his efforts to have colored internes and doctors of Howard University make use of facilities at Gallinger Hospital in Washington, D. C. Sun. 2-29-48

Other resolutions passed by the directors urged admission for colored people to all tax-supported hospitals.

The association directors selected New York City as the site of their annual convention to be held August 16-20. The organization is a sustaining member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Bias in Medicine Seen on Increase

The Courier 14e(2) Pittsburgh, Pa.

NEW YORK—Criticising increasing prejudices in certain business and professional fields, Dr. Oscar Handlin, Harvard social scientist, stated last week that for the Jew, Italian and the Negro attempting to enter American medical schools, "grades are tossed out of the window," and it is becoming increasingly difficult for them to enter recognized schools.

Better Trained Youth Needed To Use Medical College Openings

The Memphis World Memphis, Tennessee

Almost Impossible To Find Youth Interested, Able

Tues. 5-18-48

CHICAGO —(ANP)—There is a distinct shortage of qualified young Negroes going into the field of medicine and particularly of candidates seeking entrance into the leading medical schools of the country. Now that doors have been opened and opportunities made available principally through the efforts of Provident Association here in Chicago, it has proven almost impossible to find young men interested in pursuing medical careers and whose basic undergraduate training has been good enough to enable them to meet the stiff admittance requirements of thes first class medical colleges.

Some few students who have shown exceptional ability in the sciences have turned from medicine for other fields because they wanted to get into jobs which would produce money faster or else did not care to face the long and arduous grind which medical school, interneship and residency impose. This was especially true if the student was ambitious to go really to the top and qualify as a specialist.

ADMIT NEGROES 5-16-48

It is only during the past two or three years that many of the top ranking medical institutions have agreed to admit Negro students. A score of years ago their doors started closing as standards set up by the American Medical association for medical education mounted. Among these were clinical clerkships which required during the last two years of medical training, hospital ward service in teaching hospitals. Many of these hospitals preferred not to accept Negro students.

Drs. Franklin MacLean of the University of Chicago and the late Midian Bousfield spearheaded the efforts of the Provident associates which proved so fruitful that 20 or more high grade northern medical schools agreed to accept Negro candidates who met their entrance requirements. When the group set out to find the students they discovered that despite the wailing which had been going on for years regarding discrimination in medical education, they could not find applicants for the places which had been opened up.

The Courier

PIONEER—Edith M. Irby, 20, is attending classes this week in the Arkansas University School of Medicine, the only Negro in a class of nine-hundred. Miss Irby will study in non-segregated classes.

LEGAL HINTS

By Atty. S. R. Redmond

WE NEED MEDICAL SCHOOLS

The Winston-Salem Journal

THERE were about 5,000 Negro doctors in the U. S. in 1910 though today there are only about 3,500. The number of white doctors has increased over 50 per cent since 1910, whereas the number of Negro doctors has decreased 30 per cent. This is due primarily to the need of more medical schools we can attend. Meharry and Howard cannot accommodate all Negroes seeking a medical education and too many white schools limit the number of Negroes who can attend or exclude us altogether. Jan. 11-26-48

Even though three-fourths of the Negroes live in the southern and border states, not a single one of those states offers medical education to our group. It looks like Texas will do so soon. Arkansas now has one Negro in its medical school. Most of those states have a medical school for whites. This situation prevails even though the number of colored doctors is woefully inadequate to take care of the population. As a result, hundreds of thousands of Negroes in that section are without medical attention. In many rural areas of the South you can go from county to county without even hearing of a colored doctor.

What is the remedy? The United States Supreme Court in the Gaines case held that the state must offer Negroes all courses offered white people and that the school must be within the state. We have made several states open law schools. Now is the time to make them open medical schools as well as all other schools.

The more schools we force the states to open, the sooner we will eliminated segregated schools. The dual system of education is expensive. It is our duty to make it more expensive, for only by doing so will we get oportunities that approximate those given white citizens. Jan. 11-26-48

The NAACP should get busy in Missouri. What explains the inactivity in this regard? Why doesn't some Negro seek to enter the University of Missouri Medical School?

Racism in Medical Schools Scored by Harvard Professor

Daily Worker 3-5-48

NEWARK, N.J.

America will be short of 15,000 to 55,000 more doctors by 1960, and selection of medical students should not be based on any artificial consideration like race, religion or social status, Dr. James Howard Means, professor of clinical medicine at Harvard University, said here last Thursday night.

Speaking before the Academy of Medicine of Northern New Jersey, Dr. Means stated that the present net gain in practitioners is about 2,000 that there must be no quotas of any kind, and that medical schools must accept the best students regardless of race, creed or color.

The speaker said that Harvard has no quota system; but that the university has few colored medical students (about four a year) because it is difficult for many of them to get the proper premedical training in colleges.

NEW FUTURE LOOMS FOR ABOLITIONIST'S DREAM

The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Negro's Kindness Gave Meharry College Start

BY WATSON S. SIMS.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 3—(AP)—Meharry Medical College, which may be the first regional school for Southern Negroes, was born of a Negro's kindness to a white man.

Meharry trustees offered in January to turn the $8,000,000 institution over to the Southern States if they adopted a compact for joint operation of regional schools.

The compact was approved at a subsequent meeting of the Southern Governors Conference at Tallahassee. The 15-member Conference already has moved to gain Congressional approval of the venture.

Hugh Meharry, one of five abolitionist brothers from Indiana Territory, founded the school in 1876. The story, however, dates back several years before that to when Meharry, a devout Methodist, was driving a trade wagon across the then-wild Midwest.

A storm overtook him one night and his wagon became hopelessly mired in a soggy road. Meharry was interrupted, in his prayers for deliverance, by an ancient Negro freedman.

The Negro fed Meharry and his mules, put him up for the night and dug his wagon free on the following morning. Meharry went on his way with a solemn vow to some day do something for the Negro race.

Meharry saw an opportunity to fulfill his pledge when he was asked to supply financial support for a Negro medical college at Nashville. The idea was conceived by William Sneed, a Confederate Army surgeon, and George Hubbard, a New Hampshire chaplain and wound dresser with the Union troops. They had discussed it during friendly meetings on battlefields in the War Between the States.

Meharry scraped together $10,000, touched his farmer-Methodist preacher brothers for an additional $30,000, and the school was launched.

Known as the Medical Department of Central Tennessee College for Negroes, its original plant consisted of one bare room in a gloomy basement. Thirteen students were enrolled.

The faculty was headed by Hubbard, as Dean, and Sneed. Hubbard qualified himself for the position by taking a one-year course in medicine at Central College. He became President of the Independent School of Medicine when Central College closed in 1915.

For the 45 years that the pious Hubbard directed the school, a degree from Meharry held little medical significance. The school's graduates, as one writer commented, were "able to sing well and had fine ratings in Bible studies," but were possessed of dubious medical distinction.

When Dr. J. J. Mullowney succeeded Hubbard in 1921, however, the college embarked on a trail of medical accomplishment that brought national recognition. Under Dr. Mullowney and his successor, Dr. E. L. Turner, incompetent faculty members were weeded out and a vigorous campaign carried on to raise funds for expanding the college.

Meharry received grants from the Harkness Memorial and Rockefeller Foundations. Construction of an up-to-date plant was started and in 1923 the American Medical Association awarded the college an "A" classification.

The dream of Abolitionist Hugh Meharry has been largely realized in the only medical college in the United States devoted exclusively to Negroes. Located on a 12-acre plot in North Nashville, it is a modern institution.

Its facilities include a complete teaching hospital, grade "A" medical and dental schools, a school of nursing and training equipment in all other technologies related to the patient.

It is fully accredited by the Association of American Colleges. It annually turns out more than 50 percent of all Negro medical graduates and its alumni total more than 5,000 practitioners of medicine and dentistry.

Consulting physicians include some of the finest medical talent in the South. Several of America's foremost medical leaders serve on the Meharry Board of Trust. At present it is the only agency in Tennessee carrying on cancer research with isotopes on humans.

Of Meharry's present enrollment of 485, some 63 percent come from Southern States. Administrative personnel, headed by Pres. M. Don Clawson, is largely white. All schools are headed by Negro deans, however, and all full-time teachers are Negroes.

Although a comparatively small endowment ($5,000,000) and greatly increased costs of providing medical training have threatened to close the college, it operates in conjunction with Negro hospitals in Kentucky, Mississippi and Alabama, and maintains a DC-3 transport plane to switch its medical talent to the point where there is greatest need.

Meharry is actively campaigning for an $8,000,000 Negro veterans hospital to be operated in conjunction with the college. Dr. Murray C. Brown, Director of Medical Education, has enlisted the support of Gov. Jim McCord and several Congressmen in this campaign.

The college also seeks inclusion in a plan whereby city and county funds would subsidize care of indigent patients. An increased number of Negro patients who cannot pay for medical care would be admitted to Hubbard Hospital under this program.

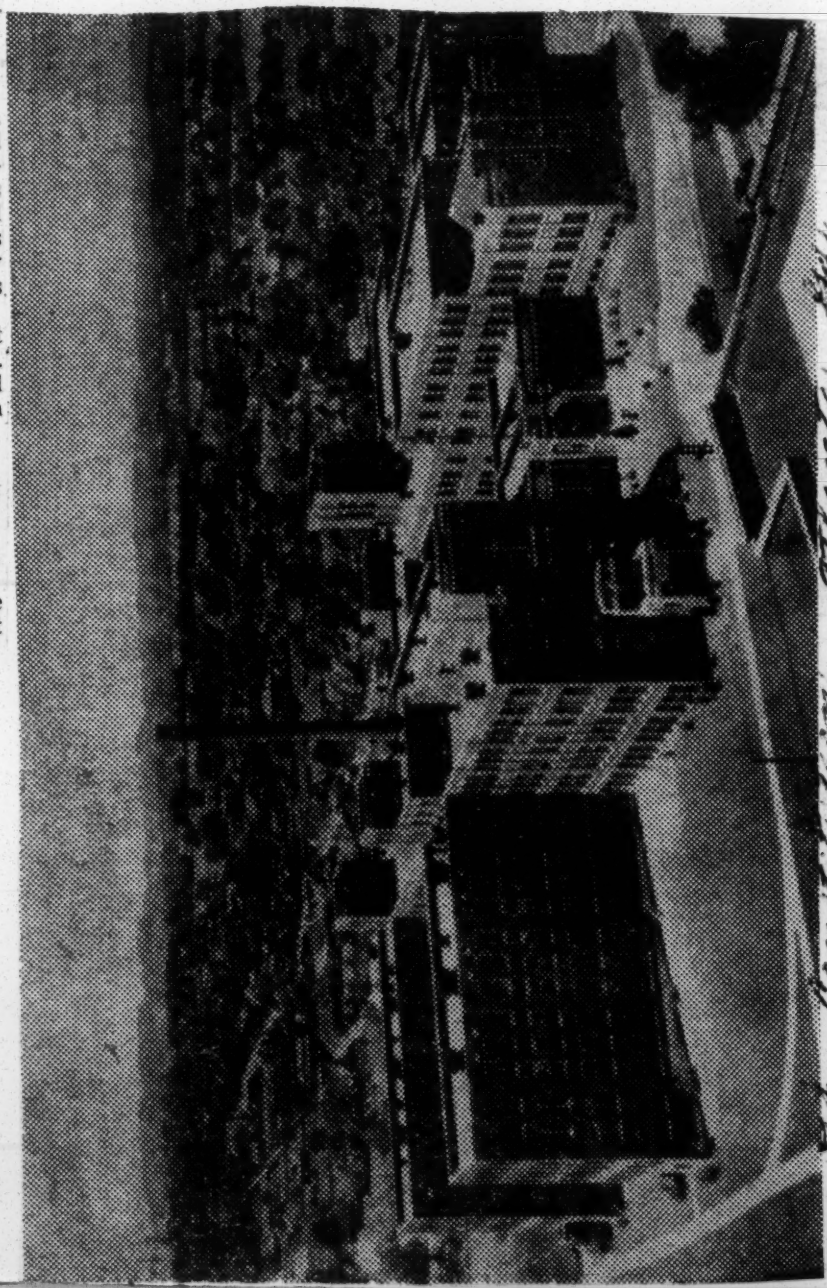
Of paramount importance, however, is the school's campaign for inclusion in the regional education plan.

Recent decisions by the U. S. Supreme Court have ordered Southern States to provide training to Negro and white students on an equal basis. As a regional institution supported by funds from the several States, Meharry could continue and expand its work.

Arguments have been brought for and against the regional plan. Its opponents hold that it would do nothing to halt the Southern tradition of segregation.

The Meharry Board of Trust, however, has made its position clear. It is convinced that through the program, Meharry can bring greater benefits to a larger number of Negroes.

Meharry College is pretty sure that was what its abolitionist namesake had in mind.



NEGRO MEDICAL COLLEGE—View of Meharry Medical College, the only medical college in the United States devoted exclusively to Negroes, at North Nashville, Tenn. Located on a 12-acre plot, its facilities include a complete teaching hospital, grade "A" medical and dental schools, a school of nursing. Its alumni total more than 5,000 practitioners of medicine and dentistry.

Meharry Beds Offered For Rent To 4 Southern States

Daily World Atlanta, Ga.
Tues. 6-1-48

Hubbard To Ask $4,000 For One Bed, One Patient

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — (NNPA) — Beds in Hubbard Hospital will be offered for rent to four southern states for use by colored indigent patients after July 1, Meharry Medical College announced last Mon- director of the Hospital said 126 day.

Tues. 6-1-48

Dr. Murray C. Brown, medical beds will be offered for rent to Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, and Alabama. The hospital will ask $4,000 for the reservatio nof one bed and care of one pattient for a year, Dr. Brown said.

Meharry announced earlier last Monday that the hospital will be closed July 1 unless additional funds are found for its operation. Hubbard Hospital has been operated by the medical college in the past but Brown said Meharry is losing $382,000 a year on its investment.

Sat. Herald

He said the plan to offer beds to other states was made necessary by the recent action of Congress in refusing to give Congressional consent to the compact of fourteen southern states to set up and maintain regional school.

Tues. 6-1-48

Blast Meharry Deal As Aid To Segregation

Chicago, Ill. Defender
Sat. 1-31-48

NASHVILLE--Meharry Medical college Sunday gave Jim Crow a transfusion that may prolong its life indefinitely in the south's higher educational system for Negroes.

New hope for continuing segregated university training and circumventing several Supreme court rulings making equal education mandatory came as trustees of the 72-year-old school offered it as an outright gift to 15 southern states. The states would send Negro students there to avoid admitting them to regular state universities or building separate schools.

Should the governor's conference accept at its Atlanta meeting six weeks from now each state will contribute a share of the expenses.

Chicago Defender 1-31-48

Dr. M. Don Clawson, president of the school, insists that the academic and administrative policies will not change under the new program. He admits that the present trustees will be in a minority, however.

In New York, Walter White, secretary of the NAACP said "I think it is tragic that Meharry should join in sabotaging the fight for full educational equality.

Chicago Defender

"The thing is almost unbelievable," said Philip Weightman of Chicago, International vice-president of the Packinghouse Workers who have contributed heavily to the school. "They have given the south a blueprint to defeat the aspirations of the Negro People."

1-31-48

Regional Plan for Meharry Rapped Before Senate Unit

Sat. Star-Times, Washington
Jan. 30-48

WASHINGTON

Attacking a Senate Joint Resolution which would give Congressional consent to Meharry Medical School, being taken over by Southern States as a regional school, representatives of 12 national organizations held that the move is aimed to perpetuate education segregation and circumvent Supreme Court decisions.

Leading the attack during a hearing before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee on Saturday, Thurgood Marshall, NAACP counsel, argued that the resolution would not only continue race segregation in education, but would crystallize it and give it the sanction of the Federal Government.

To Safeguard Interests

Sen. Alexander Wiley (Rep., Wis.), chairman, and Sen. J. Howard McGrath, (Dem., R.I.), indicated that they favored the resolution. Sen. Wiley asked Mr. Marshall how the interests of colored people could be safeguarded in the resolution.

"The only way to protect their rights would be to amend the compact so as to guarantee that there will be no distinction as to race, creed, color, or sex of students, faculty and administrative officers," Marshall replied.

Withdraws Sponsorship

At the beginning of the hearing, Sen. John S. Cooper (Rep., Ky.), asked that his name be withdrawn from the sponsors of the resolution giving Congressional consent to the compact as he wanted time to study its legal implications.

Speaking for the Negro Newspaper Publishers Association, Dr. Martin Jenkins of Howard University, declared, "A vote for the resolution is a vote for racial segregation in education. It is our profound hope that Congress will not give its endorsement to this proposed legislation."

Only One Equality

Marshall said the proposed regional school system would give the white student a choice of going to a State school or the regional school, while the colored student would have to go to the regional school with no assurance that he could get equal training.

"Neither Congress nor anyone else can say you get equality of education in a segregated school," he declared. "The Fourteenth Amendment requires equality. The only way to get equality, is for two people to get the same thing, at the same place and at the same time."

Altruistic Claim

Southern backers on Friday said it is not their intention to circumvent recent Supreme Court rulings. They also conveyed the idea that it was their motive to establish regional colleges for the purpose of giving better educational facilities without regard to the President's Committee on Civil Rights.

Other spokesmen for the opposition were George H. Johnson and James Nabrit Jr., of Howard University Law School; Miss Marion W. Perry, white, executive secretary, National Lawyers' Guild, and Mrs. Alma Vessells, executive secretary, National Association of Colored Graduate Nurses.

Plan to Transfer Meharry Opposed

Methodists Against Use by Southern Bloc

CHICAGO—(ANP) —The board of education of the Methodist Church, holding its eighth annual meeting in Chicago, last week voted against the proposal to turn Meharry Medical College over to a group of Southern States to make it a separate institution for the education of Negro students.

The matter was first considered by the committee of the division of educational institutions.

There the resolution, as finally passed, was sponsored by Daniel J. Marsh, president of Boston University; Chancellor Herbert Burgstahler of Ohio Wesleyan University; Bishop Robert N. Brooks of a public institution regional or

A number of board members, though a minority representing principally white institutions operating in the South, opposed the resolution because it did not fit in with the pattern of education in the South.

Costs of medical education have mounted with terrific speed during the past few years, he told

Urge That Status Be Kept

The resolution read:

"In view of the long historical connection between the Methodist tion, which is valued at $10,000, down to close its doors, helping it to raise its endowment to $5,000,000, it was unless some way can be found to develop additional income.

Need for Income Cited

Dr. Matthew S. Davage of Nashville, a trustee of Meharry College, presented the institutions from the viewpoint of the trustees of the school.

He pointed out that the institution was originally founded by the Methodist Episcopal Church and Meharry College was changing its status from a private institution to that of a public institution, regional or secretary of the division of educa

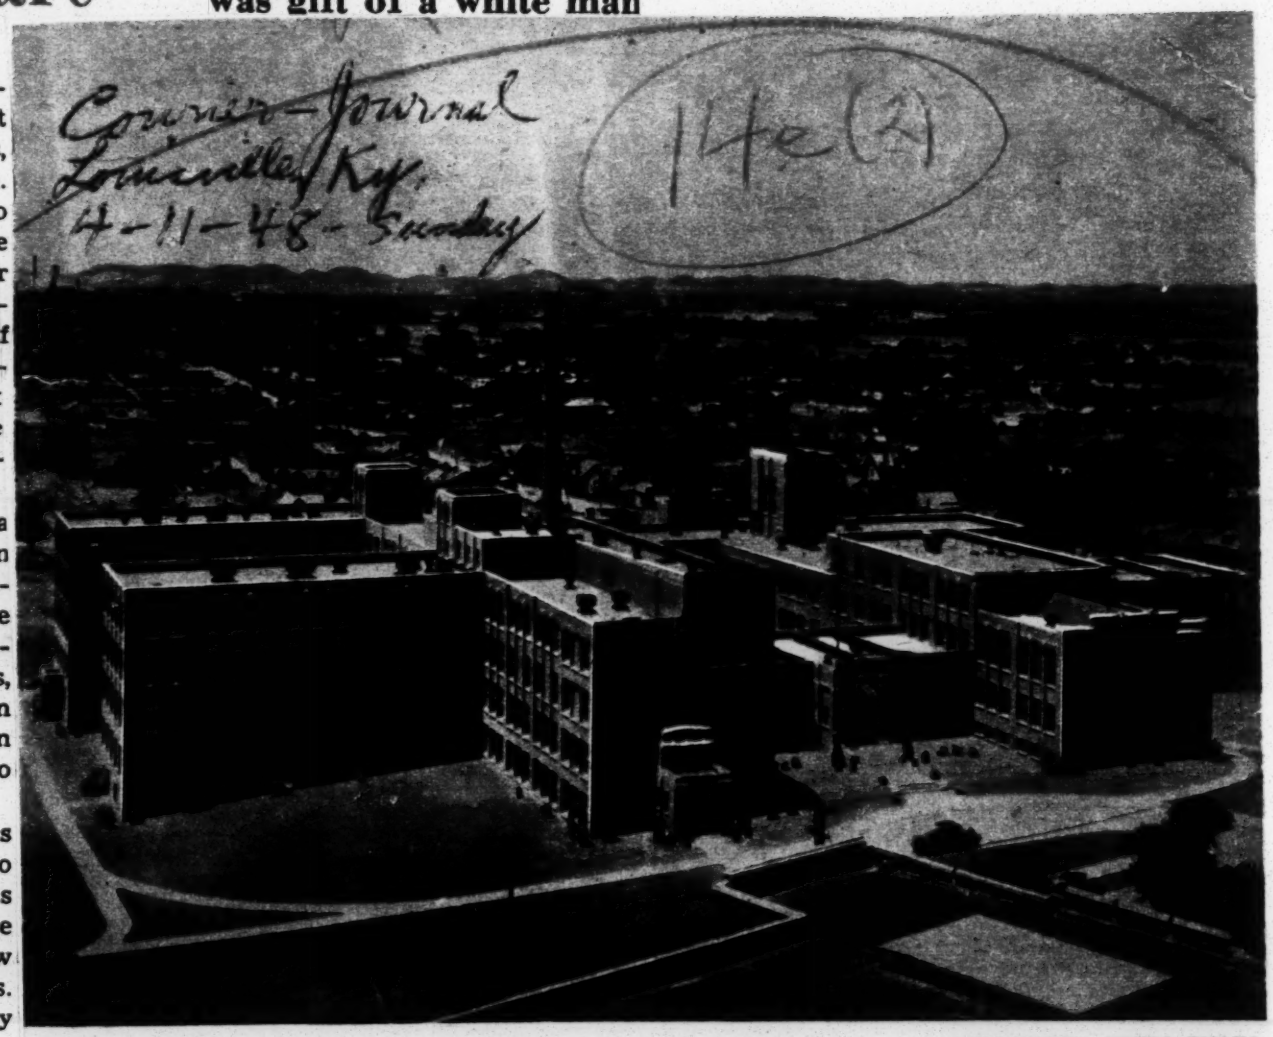
14e(2) 1948

Medical (Meharry)

Medical School Plans For Negro Welfare

Courier-Journal 4-11-48 Sunday

Meharry College, which Louisville, Ky. trains half the Negro doctors in the nation, was gift of a white man



Courier-Journal Louisville, Ky. 4-11-48 Sunday

14e(2)

ASSOCIATED PRESS PHOTO

THE ONLY medical school devoted exclusively to Negroes is situated in North Nashville, Tenn. It has a complete hospital, medical and dental schools and a school for nurses.

MEHARRY MEDICAL COLLEGE, in Nashville, Tenn., which may be the first regional school for southern Negroes, was born of a Negro's kindness to a white man.

Meharry trustees offered in January to turn the $8,000,000 institution over to the Southern states if they adopted a compact for joint operation of regional schools. The compact was approved at a subsequent meeting of the Southern Governors conference at Tallahassee, and the conference already has moved to gain congressional approval of the venture.

Hugh Meharry, an Abolitionist from Indiana, founded the school in 1876.

Several years before that, Meharry, a devout Methodist, was driving a trade wagon across the then-wild Midwest. A storm overtook him one night and his wagon became hopelessly mired. Luckily, an old Negro freedman came along, fed Meharry and his mules, put him up for the night and dug his wagon free on the next morning. Meharry went on his way with a solemn vow some day to do something for the Negro race.

Meharry got his opportunity when he was asked to supply financial support for a Negro medical college at Nashville. The idea was conceived by William Sneed, a Confederate Army surgeon, and George Hubbard, a New Hampshire chaplain with the Union troops. The two had discussed it during friendly meetings on battlefields in the Civil War.

MEHARRY scraped together $10,000, touched his farmer-Methodist preacher brothers for an additional $30,000, and the school was launched. Called at first the medical department of Central Tennessee College for Negroes, its original plant consisted of one room in a basement. Thirteen students were enrolled.

Hubbard, as dean, and Sneed headed the school. Hubbard qualified himself for the position by taking a one-year course in medicine at Central College. He became president of the Independent School of Medicine when Central College closed in 1915.

For the 45 years that the pious Hubbard directed the school, a degree from Meharry held little medical significance. The school's graduates, as one writer commented, were "able to sing well and had fine ratings in Bible studies" but were possessed of dubious medical distinction. Courier-Journal

When Dr. J. J. Mullowney succeeded Hubbard in 1921, however, the college embarked on a trail of medical accomplishment that brought national recognition. Incompetent faculty members were weeded out. A vigorous campaign carried on to raise funds. Meharry received grants from the Harkness Memorial and Rockefeller Foundations. Construction of an up-to-date plant was started and in 1923 the American Medical Association awarded the college an "A" classification.

Louisville Ky.

IT IS located on a 12-acre plot in North Nashville. Its facilities include a complete teaching hospital, Grade "A" medical and dental schools, a school of nursing, and training equipment in all other technologies related to the patient.

It is fully accredited by the Association of American Colleges. It annually turns out more than 50 per cent of all Negro medical graduates and its alumni total more than 5,000 practitioners of medicine and dentistry in the United States. Sun 4-11-48

Of Meharry's present enrollment of 485, some 63 per cent come from Southern states. Administrative personnel, headed by President M. Don Clawson, is largely white. All schools are headed by Negro deans, however, and all full-time teachers are Negroes.

Despite a comparatively small endowment ($5,000,000) and greatly increased costs of providing medical training, the college has continued an aggressive campaign to bring its benefits to an ever greater number of Negroes. The college operates in conjunction with Negro hospitals in Kentucky, Mississippi and Alabama, and maintains a DC-3 transport plane to switch its medical talent to the point where there is greatest need.

OF PARAMOUNT importance, however, is the school's campaign for inclusion in the regional education plan. 4-11-48

In attempting to meet the needs of its growing enrollment, Meharry has drawn more and more heavily on the large foundations. The financial burden became so great that in 1938 the college was notified that it must find other means of support by July 1. Sun

Recent decisions by the United States Supreme Court have ordered Southern states to provide training to Negro and white students on an equal basis. As a regional institution supported by funds from the several states, Meharry could continue and expand its work.

Meharry Alumni Blast Trustees' Jim Crow Plan

Defender Chicago, Ill.

Plans to have Congress approve Meharry College as a Jim Crow Regional school are not dead, according to Dr. L. A. Haywood, president of the Chicago Meharry Alumni Association. Sat.

Dr. Haywood said that alumni groups attending their association meeting last week in Nashville were surprised to learn that the Meharry administration and Board of Trustees are planning to raise the issue of Congressional approval again despite a Senate defeat of the measure by the 80th Congress. 7-10-48

"Although they failed in their first attempt to tunr the school over to the Southern governors to run as they see fit, the administration and Trustee Board are still hopeful that their deal will materialize when the 81st Congress convenes next January," Dr. Haywood declared.

Both Dr. Haywood and Dr. S. W. Smith, secretary in charge of alumni committee raising funds for the Meharry dormitory, expressed the opinion that a cross-section of all alumni chapters attending their school's recent commencement exercises, was unalterably opposed to the plan advanced by the administration and Trustee Board. Defender

Dr. Haywood said that this continued threat that the school would be turned over to Southern governors means that the general alumni association must now put forth added effort to raise funds necessary to assume the school's financial obligations.

Meharry's Hubbard Hospital To Operate Under Own Steam

The Lighthouse and Informer Sat.

NASHVILLE — (ANP) — The scheduled closing of Meharry Medical college's Hubbard hospital on July 1, did not come off as was feared for a plan was approved here last week whereby the hospital can continue to operate under its own steam, with an assist from the city. Columbus, O.

At a meeting of representatives of all sides involved, it was agreed to follow a plan whereby the city board of hospital commissioners will route indigent Negro patients to Hubbard first, utilizing its 100 standard beds and sending the overflow to substandard beds at General hospital. Jour. 7-11-48

By this means, Hubbard can be kept open by financing its own operation, and the city will pay $8.50 a patient day. Earlier, the hospital had sought a $225,000 guarantee from the city to cover 12 months operation. Since the city refused, an alternate agreement was presented to guarantee the hospital a minimum hospital census.

The plan finally agreed was a modification of the city's plan and provides for the city to underwrite the care of patients, not handled at General hospital, at $8.50 a day. Hubbard now handles an average of 70 patients daily.

CAN BE KEPT OPEN

Dr. Walter M. Morgan, vice-chairman of Meharry's board of trustees had written Sam Davis Bell, vice chairman of the city board of hospital commissioners, that the city's offer should read: "If the routing of indigent colored patients by the board is made first to Hubbard hospital, utilizing first the 100 standard beds available there and using the substandard beds at General hospital for the overflow, Hubbard hospital can be kept open, and we can finance iats operation"

The board estimated that between $215,000 and $225,000 would be earned by Hubbard if the overflow from General provided a daily average of 70 patients. The city is ready to draw up a formal contract, but awaits the disposition of other matters by the college. One of these things includes the liquidation of a $165,000 indebtedness. The trustees have already approved the release of $170,000 in Carnegie endowment funds, but are awaiting the approval of the Carnegie foundation. 7-11-48

Meharry Alumni Blast Trustees' Jim Crow Plan

Defender Chicago, Ill. Sat. 7-10-48

Plans to have Congress approve Meharry College as a Jim Crow Regional school are not dead, according to Dr. L. A. Haywood, president of the Chicago Meharry Alumni Association.

Dr. Haywood said that alumni groups attending their association meeting last week in Nashville were surprised to learn that the Meharry administration and Board of Trustees are planning to raise the issue of Congressional approval again despite a Senate defeat of the measure by the 80th Congress.

"Although they failed in their first attempt to tunr the school over to the Southern governors to run as they see fit, the administration and Trustee Board are still hopeful that their deal will materialize when the 81st Congress convenes next January," Dr. Haywood declared.

Both Dr. Haywood and Dr. S. W. Smith, secretary in charge of alumni committee raising funds for the Meharry dormitory, expressed the opinion that a cross-section of all alumni chapters attending their school's recent commencement exercises, was unalterably opposed to the plan advanced by the administration and Trustee Board. Defender

Dr. Haywood said that this continued threat that the school would be turned over to Southern governors means that the general alumni association must now put forth added effort to raise funds necessary to assume the school's financial obligations. Chicago, Ill.

Meharry Alumni Blast Trustees' Jim Crow Plan Clawson Must Quit, Nation's Leaders Say

Jet. 7-10-48 The Courier Atlanta Ga. Sat. 5-22-48

By STANLEY ROBERTS

(Fourth in a Series)

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The fast moving events in the last few days surrounding the fate of Meharry Medical College led at least to one logical and inescapable conclusion: "Meharry's president, Dr. M. Don Clawson, should immediately resign." This demand comes from an ever increasing number of representative citizens. 5-22-48

Dr. Clawson's almost fanatical desire to make a gift of Meharry to Southern politicians has been repudiated by the U. S. Senate.

LEADERS CRITICAL

"The plan was his," contend organizational leaders.

They say:

"Responsibility for involving Meharry in a national political controversy is on his shoulders.

"He has misled Meharry's staff, alumni and friends.

"He has misinterpreted the Negro mentality and the Negro's desire for first class citizenship.

"His continued presence at Meharry while her problems of existence are being worked out will only lead to more confusion.

"With the courage of his wrong convictions he has fought a good fight . . . and lost.

"His work is finished.

"Now he should leave Meharry."

Nashville NAACP president Charles Dinkins and his associates are now insisting that Meharry should go forward unemcumbered by the personality which almost succeeded in launching a program which would have been used by desperate race segregationists to deliberately avoid the U. S. Supreme Court's Gaines' decision whereby the South ordered each State to grant equal educational facilities to white and Negro citizens.

THE REASONS

Let's examine the reasons set forth as to why Dr. Clawson's future tenure at Meharry will be untenable:

1. Dr. Clawson, for a period of months, has loudly proclaimed to his staff and to alumni, press and Congressmen that Meharry would close her doors on July 1 if his regional aid plan was not approved by Congress.

(Last Thursday when his plan was defeated he immediately reversed himself and announced "the school will not close.")

"Is he now in a position to muster all the arguments necessary to justify his misleading the public's mind?" — says Dinkins.

2. Dr. Clawson has insisted all along that he wanted to keep Meharry out of politics.

Through his own manuverings and recommendations Meharry, presently, is unfortunately, and innocently involved up to the hilt, in the forthcoming, explosive, Civil Rights debate in Congress.

"No well wisher of Meharry ever wanted that," say his opponents.

3. Dr. Clawson, with great intensity, dislikes the Negro press and the NAACP. The former he accuses of misinforming Negroes; the latter he accuses of misleading Negroes. This he told the writer of these series in his office here.

Inherently he has the right to "dislike," says Dinkins, but it so happens that he "dislikes" the Negro Press and NAACP because they opposed his setting up Meharry as a jim-crow regional ghetto. However, the following organizations also opposed Dr. Clawson on the issue and his "dislike" list grows extensive:

National Alliance of Postal Employes, National Dental Association, National Medical Association, Negro Newspaper Publishers Association, National Fraternal Council of Negro Churches, Conference of Land Grant College Presidents, National Negro Insurance Association, American Federation of Labor, the UAW-CIO, and others.

These powerful segments of American life opposed Dr. Clawson and his jim-crow plan. Will they now support him? It's doubtful. Will Meharry need support of these groups in future and necessary fund raising? Of necessity, they will.

There is a delicate balance of good public relations in the balance. One appeals for funds by making friends, not insulting friends.

4. Meharry remains one of the last major Southern schools educating Negroes which retains a white president. There are a dozen qualified Negro medical regional plan last week adopted strong resolutions unanimously rejecting the measure and promising legal action against the plan if passed.

Key leaders from all over the South attended. There were representatives from sixty organizations in attendance.

would favor Dr. Clawson resigning from Meharry.

DURHAM, N. C.—The University of North Carolina Law School should admit Negro students, in the opinion of seventy-one out of 119 of its students. This conclusion is the result of a poll conducted by the Durham Morning Herald here recently.

ATLANTA, Ga.—Conferees at this one-day, South-wide Conference on the proposed Southern administrators who through temperament and training deserve an opportunity to guide Meharry during the sensitive days ahead.

Negro Land Grant College presidents, it is contended, have proven their ability to administer Southern tax-supported institutions with great success. Chances are Meharry will now be supported mainly by the State of Tennessee.

the case of those who

Meharry's Financial Plight

Daily World 1-21-48

Meharry Medical College at Nashville is facing a financial crisis, according to reports published in connection with the Southern Governors' deliberations on ways and means of meeting the exigency created by the United States Supreme Court decision on equal educational opportunities for Negroes. The famed Medical school needs the money which the Southern states want to offer her in order to keep her doors open. And we too, want Meharry to get money sufficient to keep her among the best medical schools of the country. Nevertheless, we are convinced that the Southern governor's proposal is not the solution Atlanta, Ga.

In the past, we think Americans, educators included, have placed too much emphasis upon the old wornout slogan that "self-preservation" is the first law, of life. It may still be the first law, but it ought to be different, since it is in most cases harmful to the greater interest of the people. It is also Un-Christain to take that position in the face of the interest of the great masses of society.

We mean by that it would be better for Meharry to curtail her services to the race, as badly as they are needed, rather than defeat the Negro's efforts to secure educational opportunities all down the line. Between the narrow welfare of Meharry and the broad interests of Negro education in all other fields, we would greatly prefer seeing Meharry be the sufferer. We can see no reason why anyone at this late hour should wish to work at cross purposes with the Negro leaders and organizations spearheading the fight for educational opportunities. The very fact that Meharry is receiving the offer itself from the Governors is due to the fight which has already been waged at great odds and enormous sums of money. Wed. 1-21-48 Atlanta, Ga.

No, regional college, we repeat are not the answer to equal education between Negroes and whites in the South. Daily World It is the plainest type of folly to indulge Southerners in the thought that Negroes will be satisfied with this arrangement as the answer to the Supreme Court's order. Equality all down the line, even in the elementary grades, is the answer to that decision. And it is not too much to expect Negro parents to come forth first, with requests, followed by litigation, if necessary, to equalize the opportunities for their children. In a democratic society they should expect no less. But this can be indifinitely delayed with heads of Negro institutions holding forth phony mediums of escape to those southerners who are grappling with the problem.

$8,000,000 School Seen as First Unit In Joint Negro College for Dixie

The Constitution Atlanta, Ga. Mon 1-19-48

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 18 — Thirteen Southern States will shortly undertake a far-reaching program of regional education, with $8,000,000 Meharry Medical College for Negroes the first actual unit of operation, if the recommendations of a committee of five Governors who met here Sunday are followed.

"It is perfectly apparent that no single state in the South is financially able to supply the best in education for its citizens," said Florida's Gov. Millard Caldwell, Chairman of the Regional Education Committee of the Southern Governors Conference, in summing up the Committee's conclusions. "Moreover, it is obvious that in many fields there is not sufficient demand to warrant any state setting up individual institutions in a number of specialized fields. It is equally apparent that, by cooperation to establish and maintain regional schools, the Southern States can furnish educational opportunities, equal to any. The Constitution

"We have reached general Atlanta, Ga. agreement on a program jointly to provide improved educational facilities for all our citizens, regardless of race or economic status," Caldwell added. "The mechanical details have yet to be evolved, but I am confident that this can be worked out without difficulty." Mon. 1-19-48

A full meeting of the Southern Governors Conference will be called within a month or six weeks, probably in Atlanta, to formulate and adopt the necessary agreements, he said. Constitution

Following a morning devoted to discussion of the over-all problem of regional education, the five Governors present—Thompson of Georgia, McCord of Tennessee, Lane of Maryland, Tuck of Virginia and Caldwell of Florida—were taken on an inspection tour of Meharry College, only all-Negro medical school in the country.

"It is an incident in the over-all picture that the trustees of Meharry College have regretfully reached the conclusion that unless the South can take over operation of that institution, it will be forced to close its doors," Caldwell explained. Atlanta, Ga.

Meharry with a modern plant and a student body of 489 students, presently trains over half the Negro doctors in the nation including—at present—24 from Georgia.

It has an endowment of approximately $4,000,000 but this is proving inadequate because of increased operation expenses and lowered return on investments. As a consequence, it is having to dip into its capital for the current year's operation. Its trustees have agreed to turn it over to the Southern States if assured the present standards—it is a grade-A institution approved by the American Medical Association — are maintained. The Constitution

"We must find a way to take the school over and keep it open on an expanded basis to meet all our needs," Caldwell said. "If we do, it will not only be a service to the Negroes of the South, but also to the South at large."

"Meharry is a topnotch institution," said Chancellor Raymond R. Paty, of the University System of Georgia, after inspecting the school's plant. "They have not allowed its financial difficulties to lower its standards one whit. Any Southern State would be proud to have such an institution."

Meharry offers courses, in addition to medicine, in dentistry, dental hygiene, medical technology and nursing. Atlanta, Ga.

None of these subjects is currently available in any southern school for Negroes. Mon.

The result is that the various states have to pay the tuition of its Negro citizens applying for training therein. 1-19-48

Georgia at present is paying a portion of the expenses of 50 of its Negro citizens attending out-of-state institutions as well as of 107 who are taking their graduate work at Atlanta University, Thompson said. The State has an arrangement with Atlanta University whereby it pays $4 of the $6 charged students for each semester hour of graduate work.

Most of the graduate work done at Atlanta is in the field of education. During the Summer semester, when teachers traditionally work on their Masters or Doctors Degrees, between three and four hundred Negroes receive state funds to study at Atlanta University. The Constitution

"The amount of scholarship aid is the net differential between the expenses of attending the institution at which the applicant wishes to study and the expense at the unit of the university system at which the same work is offered," Thompson explained. "The Board of Regents has allocated $35,000 for out-of-state scholarship aid to Negro citizens of Georgia for the school year 1947-48. From July 1, 1947, to Jan. 15, 1948, $24,575.39 has been spent." Atlanta, Ga.

There is every likelihood that, even if the operation could be continued on the current basis, the money needed for Negro graduate training would be doubled or trebled in the years immediately ahead, Thompson added, pointing to the hundreds currently receiving college educations under the GI Bill of Rights.

Medical School Originally Church Unit

Daily World Atlanta Ga. Sun 2-29-48

Davage Presents Viewpoint Of The Trustees

CHICAGO — (ANP) — The board of education of the Methodist church, holding its eighth annual meeting in Chicago Wednesday and Thursday, voted against the proposal to turn Meharry Medical college over to a group of southern states to run as a separate institution for Negro medical students.

The matter was first considered by the committee of the division of educational institutions. There the resolution as finally passed was sponsored by President Daniel L. Marsh of Boston university, Chancellor Herbert J. Burgstahler of Ohio Weslyan university; Bishop Robert N. Brooks of New Orleans and President David D. Jones of Bennett college, Greensboro, N. C. The resolution read:

"In view of the long historical connection between the Methodist church and Meharry college in its founding and continuing support, we do not look with favor on Meharry college changing its status from a private institution to that of a public institution, regional or

School Pact Is Given Approval

The Atlanta, Ga. Tues 1-20-48

The first positive move by the General Assembly toward proposed participation in establishment of a regional college for Negroes in Tennessee, was made today. Wed.

A joint resolution, originating in

Negro Regional

have mounted with terrific cation have uring the past few years.
mber of board members
a minority, ally while institutions oper-
the south opposed the re-because it did not fit in e pattern of education in th.

Sun 2-29-48
ORIGINALLY METHODIST
otherwise."

the Senate education committee, approved the compact entered into by South Carolina with other Southern states to take over the Meharry Medical college of Nashville, Tenn., and operate the institution as a school of higher learning for Negroes of the contributing Southern states. 3-10-48

The resolution calls for the appropriation of $35,000 from the general fund of the state as South Carolina's proportionate share for the first year of operation.

The compact, which the resolution would approve, was formulated at a Florida conference of Southern governors who assembled to study the problem of a regional school.

Before the compact could become effective, it would have to receive approval of the United States House of Representatives and Senate. The measure presently is under consideration by Congress.

Columbia, S. C.

Meharry College

Meharry, which has been maintained as a medical college for Negroes for a number of years, has been operating at a deficit, and notice was served that the institution would have to close its doors in June, 1948, unless a new administration was established. As a result, the college was offered as a regional school for Southern states. The Record

The offer came in the wake of supreme court rulings that South Carolina and Oklahoma would be required to establish equal higher education facilities for whites and Negroes, or Negroes would be free to enter the state universities.

Wed. 3-10-48

Provisions Of Compact

The compact would provide a board of control for Southern regional education, composed of the governor of each participating state and two additional citizens from each state appointed by the governor of the state. Governors would serve ex-officio during their tenures of office and the citizen members of the board would serve an initial term of three years and five-year terms thereafter.

Financial commitments by the states would be based on a population ratio. Wednesday

Each state retains the right to withdraw from the compact at any time and any default by a state in not living up to its obligations contained in the compact would remove the state from the regional control. Wed. 3-10-48

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, accompanied by Senators J. B. Pruitt and George Warren and Rep. Charles N. Plowden, attended the conference in Florida and was instrumental in the creation of the plan for the college. 3-10-48

Negro Medical School May Be Established By Southern States

Birmingham, Ala.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Jan. 14—(AP)—A group of southrn governors will discuss establishment of a regional medical school for Negroes at a conference this week-end in Nashville, Tenn. Wed. 1-14-48

The governors will inspect Meharry Medical College of Nashville. If it is found to be acceptable they will discuss its acquisiton for the Southern states.

The school is one of the largest Negro medical, dental, pharmaceutical and nursing institutions in the United States.

Establishment of the interstate school would be the first step toward a regional plan for educating both white and Negro students in subjects which draw too few enrollees, to make it economically practical for each state to provide individual facilities. 1-14-48

Trustees Offer Medical School For Negro Use

The Advertiser
Montgomery, Ala.

14c(2)

Southern States Can Get Meharry; Endowment Is Included

Nash. 1-19-48

By WATSON S. SIMS

NASHVILLE, TENN., Jan. 18.—(AP)—The trustees of Meharry Medical College for Negroes Sunday offered to turn the $8,000,000 institution over to 15 southern states to operate in the event they put into effect a program, now under consideration for separate regional schools for white and Negro students.

The offer was made at a meeting here of a five-member committee on regional education from the Southern Governors Conference. The meeting reported complete agreement on the necessity of the regional educational plan and said it would so report to a full meeting of the governor's conference within the next six weeks at a meeting place to be selected.

At the conclusion of today's closed meeting, Gov. Millard T. Caldwell of Florida, committee chairman, in presenting newsmen a summary of the day's discussion, stressed that the regional program antedated recent decisions by the U. S. Supreme Court.

14c(2) Wed.

In those decisions the high court has ordered southern states to provide Negro and white students with equal educational opportunities to be made available in the same length of time.

The Advertiser

5 Governors Attend

The regional program, proposed by Gov. Jim McCord of Tennessee at a meeting of southern governors last October in Asheville, N. C., was discussed today by Governors McCord, Caldwell, M. E. Thompson of Georgia, William Tuck of Virginia and William Preston Lane of Maryland. Lane is chairman of the Southern Governors Conference. Montgomery, Ala.

In his statement today Gov. Caldwell said: Mon. 1-19-48

"It is apparent that no single southern state is financially able to supply the best educational facilities for all of its citizens. In certain specialized fields there are not enough students to justify establishment of separate schools in each state.

"It is apparent that if the southern states work together they can establish and maintain the very best in educational opportunities in all fields for all of their citizens, regardless of race.

"Purely incidentally to this meeting, the trustees of Meharry College have reached the conclusion that it must close unless the southern states can take over its operation.

Endowment Included

The Advertiser

"Therefore they have offered to turn over this institution, including an endowment of $5,000,000, to the several southern states if the states will take over its operation and maintain its present high standards." Mon.

Meharry Medical College is the only such institution in the U. S. which accepts only Negro students. Last year, 52 per cent of all Negro medical students in the country were enrolled here. The school at present has an enrollment of 490. Montgomery, Ala.

It includes 190-bed Hubbard Hospital, a medical college approved by the American Medical Association, a class "A" dental school and a nursing school.

Caldwell said the Meharry offer would be given first consideration if plans for the program proceed satisfactorily. 1-19-48

He said that while technical details are still to be worked out, the committee believed it would be necessary to ask congressional approval before the states entered into the joint educational compact. Action by the various state legislatures also will be required, he said.

14c(2) Wed.

Several States Willing

In stressing that today's discussions were not related to racial education problems, Gov. Caldwell said several states who are willing to support regional medical colleges for Negroes already have such institutions.

Besides the governors, the meeting was attended by Dr. Raymond R. Paty, chancellor of the Georgia University System; Dr. J. Hillis Miller, president of the University of Florida; and Dr. Doak S. Campbell, president of Florida State University. Mon.

The chief executives and their advisers toured Meharry College following the closed session. Nashville, Tenn.

Member states of the Southern Governors Conference are Virginia, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas, Maryland, Kentucky, West Virginia and Oklahoma. 1-1948

Meharry May Become Regional Institution

Tennessee Government
Knoxville, Tenn

The Regional Education Committee of the Southern Governors' Conference met in Nashville on January 18 to discuss the possibilities of launching a regional education program by assuming the major responsibility for the operation of Meharry Medical College, located in Nashville.

Committee members attending were Governor Millard E. Caldwell of Florida, Chairman, and Governors Jim McCord of Tennessee, William Tuck of Virginia, M. E. Thompson of Georgia, and William Preston Lane of Maryland. Jan. Feb. 1948

Participating with the governors in the conference were: Cecil Sims, Nashville lawyer and legal adviser to Governor McCord; Dr. Raymond R. Paty, Chancellor of the University of Georgia; Dr. J. H. Miller, President of the University of Florida; and Dr. Doak S. Campbell, President of Florida State University.

The committee was named by Governor Lane, Chairman of the Southern Governors' Conference, at the meeting of the Conference in Asheville, North Carolina, several weeks ago, at the request of Governor McCord.

Tennessee Government

The committee received the offer of Meharry officials to turn over the $8,000,000 plant, including the college's $5,000,000 endowment, to the southern states.

After the committee received the offer, Governor Lane announced that he would call a meeting of the Southern Governor's Conference shortly to present the matter to all the governors.

The conference will probably accept the offer as the first step in an over-all plan for the establishment of regional institutions for all students regardless of race.

The committee members agree that a compact of the states is the only possible means of providing the highest standards for such schools and colleges because the individual states cannot afford the cost.

Meharry Medical College was established in 1876 and has accredited schools of medicine, dentistry, pharmacy, and nursing. Meharry alone has furnished about half of the estimated 5,000 Negro physicians in the United States. Tennessee Government

In 1938 several foundations aunched an intensified ten-year Class "A" program. The trial program ends on July 1 of this year. Now the donors and trustees have appealed for tax support to continue the program.

The proposal of the Regional Education Committee is for regional tax support rather than outright purchase of the college. The regional plan would not affect the academic or administrative policy. Knoxville, Tenn

Under the present setup, 15 per cent of Meharry's annual budget of some $1,000,000 is derived from tuition, 15 per cent from endowment income, and 70 per cent from foundation grants and individual gifts from alumni and friends. Jan. Feb.

Meharry administrative officials are attempting to obtain this 70 per cent from a regional tax fund. Failure to do so will result in closing the school on July 1, and in returning the plant and program to the donors. For example, the General Education Board alone has $10,000,000 invested in Meharry. 1945

If the southern states take over 70 per cent of the financial responsibility for Meharry, they will become the majority stockholders. The Meharry trustees, as minority stockholders, only want the assurance that the current program will be maintained and improved.

Congressional action is necessary to allow the southern states to make appropriations for regional schools. Such action must be taken before any of the states is permitted to enter a compact to participate in a program which calls for the expenditure of funds in another state. 1948

Tennessee Government
Knoxville, Tenn.

However, it is probable that little difficulty will be encountered here, for in recent years other states have been successful in obtaining Congressional approval for projects of navigation, conservation, and other subjects which are of interest to more than one state. Feb.

14e (2) 1948

Medical (South Carolina)

S. C. medical school will admit "superior" Negro

Negroes who want to attend the University of Southern California's School of Medicine must be "superior" candidates, the school admitted this week in a statement of policy by Dr. James N. Delamater, school head.

Questioned by the local branch of the NAACP, Dr. Delamater said the school has no policy of discrimination against Negroes on racial grounds, merely on scholastic ones.

"Negro students are admitted to this Medical School when their aptitude and academic standing recommend that they are competent to compete with other individuals elected.

"Secondly," Dr. Delamater's statement continued, "qualified Negro students may be admitted for graduate study — provided their prior training permits them to this level of education.

" We would be delighted to be able to select a competent Negro student of medicine and indeed look forward to this when an appropriately qualified and superior candidate presents himself," Dr. Delamater said in closing.

The statement did not say whether white prospective students must be "superior" or not.

Commenting on the statement, G. William McKinney, executive secretary of the local NAACP, said the qualifications established for Negro applicants "make it mandatory that they be Einsteins, quiz kids, or child prodigies."

McKinney said two local citizens, newspaper publisher Leon Washington and L. G. Robinson, had established a $100 fund to be given the first Negro passing the school's entrance examination.

Dr. M. D. Clawson And Attorney Looby Exchange Letters

Nashville Tenn.
Nashville Globe
Fri. 4-9-48

President and Faculty Member of Meharry Medical College in Disagreement Over Issue Of Making Institution Southern Regional School

National interest in the hot controversy over converting Meharry Medical College into a Southern Regional school was increased this week when it became known that President M. Don Clawson and Attorney Z. Alexander Looby of this city were at odds over the wisdom of the president's decision favoring the proposal. Attorney Looby, it was revealed, had disagreed with the president, although a member of the Meharry faculty.

President Clawson's views and those of Attorney Looby are set forth in letters in which they debated the matter. The letters are as follows:

PRES. CLAWSON WRITES

4-9-48

March 10, 1948.

Attorney Z. Alexander Looby.
419 4th Avenue, North.
Nashville, Tennessee.
Dear Mr. Looby:

I am sorry that I was unable to attend the Forum on February 29th. However, since reading the report of the "Debate" in the Nashville Globe I am rather pleased that I was in Oak Ridge, which Conference by the way resulted in a $50,000 grant to Meharry for Cancer research with Radio-active Isotopes.

I stand quite ready to explain the Regional Plan to any one or any group, but I am only willing to debate it with a person or a group who has a plan to offer that will insure future financing and development of Meharry, and a plan, by the way, that has at least as good a chance as my own of being realized. Therefore, I do not believe the plan was debatable with your group. About the only outcome would have been racial friction which I sincerely try to avoid.

I am rather surprised to read a statement in the Globe to the effect that Meharry was keeping its financial crisis a secret. It has certainly been broadcast since the first month I assumed the presidency and I do not believe it is possible to have lived in Nashville, and certainly not in our academic world, without being aware of Meharry's acute financial situation. It was shouted from every house top and spread across headlines from coast to coast. As far back as 1942 I attended a conference of Southern Educators at Meharry to study Meharry's plight and the recommendation of this conference was tax support. When I took the presidency in 1944 I was instructed by the trustees and our supporting foundations to seek the tax support at any level from national to state.

As a member of the Meharry faculty all the information in my files is at your disposal and can be seen in my office by the simple method of paying your President a call. I am surprised that you did not give me at least the courtesy of a telephone inquiry, rather than depending upon other sources of information. Someone has said that "a lawyer believes only one thing, and that a proven law." Possibly that accounts for your avoiding a personal discussion and a preference for a public debate more in keeping with the custom of a court room.

Be that as it may, I find it hard to find a valid reason for your approving of Howard taking tax support from 48 states when they have no justification for existence except services to the same 15 states that we have asked to support Meharry. To say that Howard is not a segregated school is ridiculous. Please note the facts of the case as illustrated by the applicants to Howard Medical School appearing in my Statement of Facts attached, and vouched for by Dr. Charles Drew, a most reliable member of the Howard Medical School faculty.

Fri. 4-9-48

My files show efforts by the Meharry Trustees to obtain regional tax support previous to the Gaines Decision, so rest assured there has never been an attempt by Meharry to get around a court decision. We have always felt that the south has benefited more than any other region from the Meharry program, and it was our contention that this being true, that both the white and Negro citizens should pay their rightful share of the cost of operation. I know, and you know, they will never support it on a voluntary basis. So we feel that support must be assured by law.

I noticed that there was a suggestion made that we could solve our problem by combining with Fisk. This is also ridiculous. Fisk's annual budget is just half of Meharry's, and their endowment about a million dollars less than ours. By combining our operation we would insure bankruptcy for both.

It was also suggested that the State of Tennessee alone take over the financing of Meharry. Did you know that the Meharry Dental Department was the only fully approved in the south; and did you know that our Medical School is equal in every way to the State School at Memphis and that the combined budget for Medicine, Dentistry and Nursing at Memphis is $200,000.00 less annually than the Meharry budget? These are some facts that I would like for you, a member of the Meharry faculty, to know. Rest assured I am not holding out anything on my faculty. If they have the interest to inquire, they shall receive.

Through our Alumni Bulletin we have made an honest attempt to explain the Regional Plan. Only three groups of our Alumni have officially protested. I have answered each group and several from each group have written giving their full approval to the plan. In the case of Chicago, the whole group gave their support and tore up the copy of the letter they had written.

4-9-48

Mind you, I am not trying to change your mind, Mr. Looby, but I do want you to have the facts.

We are going to have regional support after July 1, 1949, and Congress will approve it and the State Legislature will appropriate to the budget taking over the load that the foundations have carried since 1938. They will do this because it is urgent and unwise to let any political or racial group stop or even slow down the great progress and the great contribution Meharry is making to the Negro, to the South and to the nation.

With kindest regards, and with the hopes that our different views on the Regional Plan will not interfere with our friendship which I prize, I am

4-9-48

Sincerely yours,
M. Don Clawson, President

ONE ANSWER FOR MEHARRY

Meharry Medical College (Nashville) trustees, unable to meet their million-dollar-a-year budget, have offered to turn their 8-million-dollar institution over to the Southern Governors for regional purposes.

The institution had its beginning in a common place incident. Hugh Meharry (white), an abolitionist, was stranded in the wild Indiana territory in 1860 and stuck in the mud. His prayer for deliverance was answered by a colored man who freed his wagon and mules, gave him food and shelter and started him on his way.

Meharry resolved to do something for men and gave the first $10,000 together with $30,000 which he begged from his brother to start off what was then known as the Medical Department of Central Tennessee College.

The first president was George Hubbard, a New Hampshire chaplain and wound dresser with the Union troops in the war.

For 45 years, the school's graduates knew more about singing and the Bible than about medicine.

Under Dr. J. J. Mullowney, who became president in 1921, and Dr. E. L. Turner, the present president, the incomptent faculty has given away to competent instructors and a fully accredited medical, dental, and nurses training school.

In recent years it has been aided by the great educational foundations which, in 1938, gave Meharry 10 years to raise an 8-million dollar endownment or ask for no further appropriations. Meharry hasn't raised the money and this accounts for its willingness to approach the Southern Governors.

Despite the progress made by the institution, it seems to have made two mistakes.

The first: while its teachers are colored, the Meharry Medical College administration is white. We haven't had any notable examples of failures of our schools and colleges which are headed by colored administrators.

Secondly, turning the institution over to Southern Governors isn't the only alternative to going out of business. The State of Tennessee needs a place to train its colored doctors, dentists, pharmacists, and nurses, unless it is going to open the University of Tennessee to all citizen alike.

If Meharry administration works with the colored people of the State of Tennessee, there is no need for looking for help outside of the State boundaries.

ATTY. LOOBY REPLIES

April 7, 1948.

Dr. M. Don Clawson, President
Meharry Medical College,
Nashville 8, Tennessee.

Dear Dr. Clawson:

This is to acknowledge receipt of and to reply to your letter of March 10, 1948, relative to my position with respect to the efforts being made to make Meharry a Regional School supported by the Southern States.

At the outset you say that you are "only willing to debate it with a person or a group who has a plan to offer that will insure future financing in the development of Meharry. . . ." It seems to me that in that statement you are begging the question. I am not a musician but I love good music and I feel free to criticize anyone who holds himself out as a singer and who cannot sing even though that person may be a better singer than I am.

If you had been present at the discussion and had heard Dr. Rolfe make the statement that only two or three persons know all of the facts connected with the efforts to make Meharry a Southern Regional Institution you would not have been surprised "to read a statement in the Globe to the effect that Meharry was keeping its financial crisis a secret." It seems, therefore, that you are guilty of the very offense with which you charge others, that of criticizing without knowledge of all of the facts.

I shall not make any effort to answer the paragraph beginning "As a member of the Meharry Faculty" as I do not care to recriminate. I am not interested in personalities whether represented by lawyers, dentists or what have you. I am primarily interested in principles, and being so interested I absolutely refuse to sacrifice fundamental principles upon the altar of economic expediency and that holds true whether it be to save a job or to save an institution. Nor can I agree with you that a "personal discussion" would have been preferable to a "public debate." I cannot concede that this is a matter between the president and a part time instructor of the institution. I think it is a matter of the greatest concern, not only to my race but to the entire nation and to the world.

I am surprised, Doctor, at your effort to compare the conditions connected with the support of Howard University with the effort now being made to establish another citadel of segregation by government. Howard University was established by the Freedmen's Bureau during Reconstruction period. It is now a fait accompli. There is no analogy between its existence and the establishment of an institution for the primary purpose of evading the Gaines decision. In other words if there should be a movement to establish another Howard University today, I would be as strongly opposed to such a retrogressive movement as I am to the Meharry Project.

Leaving your letter addressed to me I am turning to one date February 21, 1948, beginning "Dear Doctor," you say "I deal with racial problems by disregarding them." That statement, Doctor Clawson, states more clearly than anything that I can say the fundamental difference between us, between your attitude and mine. You can disregard racial problems, I cannot. You can disregard discrimination, I cannot. You can disregard Jim Crow, I cannot. Your only interest is in preserving Meharry and in building it up as a first-class institution for the training of medical and dental students. I am primarily interested in eradicating segregation. I see in your efforts what will of necessity constitute one of the bulwarks in the perpetuation of segregation. I am opposed to it and will always remain opposed to it.

In closing you said "We are going to have regional support after July 1, 1949, and Congress will approve it and the State Legislature will appropriate to the budget taking over the load of foundations carried since 1938." Recent events seem to indicate that you are right and that your efforts will be successful. I am, however, of the opinion that your success is merely temporary; I believe that eventually righteousness and democracy will prevail. I am not at all discouraged because we are going to have regional support after July 1, 1949 for I sincerely believe that "Truth crushed to earth arise again:

The eternal years of God are heard:
But error, wounded, rides in pain and dies
Among his worshippers."

Very truly yours,

Z. Alexander Looby.

P. S.: I have been informed by the Editor of the Globe that you sent him a copy of your letter to me, although nothing in the letter indicated it was for publication. Acting on that information I am sending the Editor a copy of my answer.

Z. A. L.

Won't Let Southern Leaders Take Over

CHICAGO—(ANP) — The Board of Education of the Methodist Church, holding its eighth annual meeting in Chicago Wednesday and Thursday, voted against the proposal to turn Meharry Medical College over to a group of Southern States to run as a separate institution for Negro medical students.

The matter was first considered by the committee of the division of educational institutions. There the resolution as finally passed was sponsored by President Daniel L. Marsh, Boston University; Chancellor Herbert J. Burgstahler, Ohio Wesleyan University; Bishop Robert N. Brooks of New Orleans and President David D. Jones of Bennett College, Greensboro, N. C. The resolution reads:

"In view of the long historical connection between the Methodist Church and Meharry College in its founding and continuing support, we do not look with favor on Meharry College changing its status from a private institution to that of a public institution, regional or otherwise."

Meharry College was originally a Methodist school. In later years, and particularly after the General Education Board came to the support of the institution helping it to raise its endowment to $5,000,000, it was no longer within church control.

Dr. Matthew S. Davage of Nashville, a trustee of Meharry and secretary of the division of educational institutions for Negroes, presented the viewpoint of the trustees of the school.

He pointed out that the institution, which is valued at $10,000,000, would have to close its doors before the next term rolls around unless some way can be found to develop additional income. Costs of medical education have mounted with terrific speed during the past few years.

A number of board members, though a minority, representing principally white institutions operating in the South, opposed the resolution because it did not fit in with the pattern of education in the South.

Act Of Kindness By Negro Gave Birth To Meharry College

By WATSON S. SIMS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — (AP) — Meharry Medical College which may be the first regional school for Southern Negroes, was born of a Negro's kindness to a white man.

Meharry trustees offered in January to turn the $8,000,000 institution over to the Southern states if they adopted a compact for joint operation of regional schools.

The compact was approved at a subsequent meeting of the Southern Governors Conference at Tallahassee. The 15-member conference already has moved to gain congressional approval of the venture.

Hugh Meharry, one of five abolitionist brothers from Indiana territory, founded the school in 1876. The story, however, dates back several years before that to when Meharry, a devout Methodist, was driving a trade wagon across the then-wild Midwest.

A storm overtook him one night and his wagon became hopelessly mired in a soggy road. Meharry was interrupted, in his prayers for deliverance, by an ancient Negro freedman.

The Negro fed Meharry and for a night and dug his wagon free on the following morning. Meharry saw an opportunity to go on his way with a solemn vow to someday do something for the Negro race.

Saw Opportunity

Meharry saw an opportunity to fulfill his pledge when he was asked to supply financial support for a Negro Medical college at Nashville. The idea was conceived by William Sneed, a Confederate Army surgeon, and launched.

The faculty was headed by Dr. George Hubbard, a New Hampshire chaplain and wound dresser with the Union troops. They had Hubbard qualified himself for discussed it during friendly meetings on battlefields in the War between the States.

Meharry scraped together $10,000 and the school was launched.

The faculty was headed by Hubbard, as dean, and Sneed, College. He became president of the Independent School of Medicine when Central College closed in 1915.

For the 45 years that the pious Hubbard directed the school, a degree from Meharry held little medical significance. The school's graduates, as one writer commented, were "able to sing well and had fine ratings in Bible studies" but were possessed of dubious medical distinction.

Nationally Recognized

When Dr. J. J. Mullowney succeeded Hubbard in 1921, however, the college embarked on a trail of medical accomplishment that brought national recognition. Under Dr. Mullowney and his successor, Dr. E. L. Turner, incompetent faculty members were weeded out and a vigorous campaign carried on to raise funds for expanding the college.

Meharry received grants from the Harkness Memorial and Rockefeller Foundations. Construction of an up-to-date plant was started and in 1923 the American Medical Association awarded the college an "A" classification.

Its facilities include a complete teaching hospital, grade "A" medical and dental schools, a school of nursing and training equipment in all other technologies related to the patient.

It is fully accredited by the Association of American Colleges. It annually turns out more than 50 per cent of all Negro medical graduates and its alumni total more than 5,000 practitioners of medicine and dentistry.

Some of Best Talent

Consulting physicians include some of the finest medical talent in the South. Several of America's foremost medical leaders serve on the Meharry Board of Trust. At present it is the only agency in Tennessee carrying on cancer research with isotopes on humans. 4-11-48

Of Meharry's present enrollment of 485, some 63 per cent come from Southern states. Administrative personnel, headed by President M. Don Clawson, is largely white. All schools are headed by Negro deans, however, and all full time teachers are Negroes.

Despite a comparatively small endowment ($5,000,000) and greatly increased costs of providing medical training, the college has continued an aggressive campaign to bring its benefits to an ever greater number of Negroes. The college operates in conjunction with Negro hospitals in Kentucky, Mississippi and Alabama, and maintains a DC-3 transport plane to switch its medical talent to the point where there is greatest need.

Meharry is actively campaigning for an $8,000,000 Negro veterans hospital to be operated in conjunction with the college. Dr. Murray C. Brown, director of medical education, has enlisted the support of Gov. Jim McCord and several congressmen in this campaign.

Of paramount importance, however, is the school's campaign for inclusion in the regional education plan.

Recent decisions of the U. S Supreme Court have ordered Southern states to provide training to Negro and white students on an equal basis. As a regional institution supported by funds from the several states, Meharry could continue to expand its work.

Arguments have been brought for and against the regional plan. Its opponents hold that it would do nothing to halt the Southern tradition of segregation.

The Meharry Board of Trust, however, has made its position clear. It is convinced that through the program, Meharry can bring greater benefits to a larger number of Negroes. 4-11-48

Meharry College is pretty sure that was what its abolitionist namesake had in mind.

FATE OF MEHARRY DISCUSSED AT INTER-RACIAL MEETING

Cross Section Of Men From Both Races Ponder The Matter; Weighed The Facts, Appoint Committee For Further Study

Attorney Simms of Meharry Board of Trustees, Dr. Morgan of Vanderbilt, Brought Facts And Figures To Conference Lasted Half of Monday Night array of facts and figures showing that about forty per cent of the student body at Meharry come from states north of the Mason and Dixon Line and from west of the Mississippi River. He, along with Dr. Morgan, then gave an estimated cost of the education of each student. The cost of tuitions along with the room or woman in Meharry who is not studying medicine, dentistry or nurse training. It was pointed out sufficient to carry the school on and agreed that it is in the neighborhood of from four thousand to four thousand five hundred dollars per year for Meharry to carry these students through school year. The discussion pointed up many major angles, and every one found the table expressed himself freely on the matter before him. In exploring these facts and figures, and in facing these actual conditions every one seems to be of the opinion that the solution to offer, as each one present expressed themselves as saddened over the plight that faces this medical school, which is regarded throughout the United States as the leading institution, from which have gone out men and women who have been a credit to the profession and are practicing in almost every state. It was shown that few people finishing from Meharry had failed to pass any State Board regardless to how rigid, exacting and technical was the examination and the examining Board.

It was also brought out that Howard University in Washington, D. C., and Meharry Medical College with Meharry in Nashville are the two major schools in America where Negro men and women may be trained. It was pointed out that both schools, like many other Will Meharry Medical School close on July 1, 1949 for lack of operating funds?

Will plans be evolved to meet the deficit which is accumulating at the rate of forty thousand or more dollars every month, that will guarantee the continuation of this, one of the greatest Medical Institutions in the United States?

Will the State of Tennessee in its next legislature be persuaded to take over the College, thus staving off the impending catastrophe?

Or will the Southern States Regional School Planning prove a panacea for these ills?

These four major interrogations were discussed at length, along with other problems at a conference that was held Monday night in the rereation center of the Andrew Jackson Courts.

Seated around the big table was a cross section of men representing both races here in this city, the Athens of the South. The principal speaker before this group was Attorney Simms, a member of the Tennessee Bar Association and a practitioner-at-law here in Nashville. Accompanying him to the meeting was Dr. Morgan, who is on the staff of Vanderbilt University, medial department. Invited to meet these two distinguished professional men, one in law and the other in medicine, were college presidents, a banker, several religious publishers, accountants, lo- attorneys, director of the Housecolleges, members of the Faculty of Meharry and Fisk, along with several others who faced the problems of chaos, which seems impending, and some recommendations brought back, even before the Southern Governors could gather down in Savannah, Ga., on the twelfth of December where the Regional School matter will be put right back into their laps.

Attorney Simms had corresponded and gotten the facts from the various Medical Schools throughout the nation, in which he showed the attendance of race men in northern universities of medicine where no discrimination is practiced. He then brought another

The meeting was opened with prayer led by Dr. Faulkner of Fisk University. The committee of three appointed was not announced, so it is said.

Meharry

In our issue of January 31 last we stated our position with respect to what has now become a national question—the controversy of converting Meharry Medical College of Nashville, Tenn., into a Southern regional school. Our editorial at that time set forth the fact that this idea of conversion of this nationally known and honored institution was a scheme of the Southern Governors to evade the cost of segregation.

The recent decisions of the United States Supreme Court directed the States having separate educational systems to provide either equal opportunities, instruction and facilities for Negro students of these States, or to permit Negroes to enroll at the so-called white schools for higher and technical education. This issue has not only become warm and a national issue, but has become a challenging proposition, a challenge to the Negroes of America. Anyone with a grain of sense would readily see through this nefarious scheme of the Southern Governors. It has been said: "Beware of the Greeks bearing gifts." Now, if the Southern Governors want to provide something in the way of higher education and technical education for Negroes outside of the confines of their own States, we say that the very idea itself smacks of deception and trickery.

This idea, we repeat, is nothing more than a bold scheme to evade the responsibility and the cost of segregation. The Congress of the United States should not allow this thing to be done to the loyal Negro citizens of the Southland. We urge every loyal and every thinking Negro to write to his Congressman and to his Senator to be on the look out for this legislation and to be against it. It is plainly a plan to evade the Supreme Court.

It is not enough to denounce the Southern Regional Educational Plan and to pillory colored educators who favor it, because something must be done in the matter, and be done at once. If we do not have enough red blood and courage, to say nothing of vision, within our own race, to put up the necessary money to save Meharry Medical College, this institution will have to close its doors. The situation, therefore, draws a very clear issue, whether to accept this scheme of regional segregation or put up the money to save the school. It costs $1,000,000 per year to maintain Meharry and only $650,000 of that amount is in sight. It looks very much as though the school, its alumni and its friends, as well as the general public must either raise $350,000 and save the school or accept the Regional Plan and the loss of the principle which goes with it. It seems strange in comparison that six million people of another minority group in this country can raise $250,000,000 to help their brethren acquire a homeland, and fourteen million Negroes in the United States of America are unwilling to put up $350,000 to save an honored institution rendering great service to the race and to keep from sacrificing a principle that means as much as life itself.

Unfortunately, Meharry is not a member of the United Negro College Fund setup. Wo do not know the reason why the college did not join. But we think this is a great time for the officers of the other colleges of the United Negro College Fund to not only take Meharry in, but to do everything that is possible, even if it means loss of some of the fund money this year for their own schools, to save Meharry Medical College and the high principle involved. Let's get the Southern Governors out of our educational plans except in their own respective States. The United Negro College Fund drive this year can have a great incentive; it can attract drama as well as appeal to its work if it will first earmark the necessary money to save Meharry from the Southern Governors. Who knows, perhaps in this way the United Negro College Fund drive can light the spark of enthusiasm and sense of responsibility that the drive has been lacking by going out for a principle as well as for dollars.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which is already on record as opposing the Regional Plan; the Elks, the Masons, the K. of P.'s, the Odd Fellows, the churches and other national organizations should make every possible effort in this particular instance to show that we are not only willing to work, but to put our money in the place where it will gain for us a measure of respect, where it will show that we are willing to go all out for a principle.

Each Negro newspaper should take up this fight at once and bring home to the people the real meaning of the danger involved in this scheme of the Southern Governors. If we do not meet this challenge to colored America today there is no point in whining about the Regional Plan. We must learn, and today, that the time has come for action, that we must pay for what we need and stop begging so much.

If Meharry becomes a regional school it will be the opening wedge in the regionalization of all higher education for Negroes in the South. If the Southern Governors are permitted to take over this school they will control its faculty, they will control the thinking within the institution, all of its policies, even to the extent of where the students come from. The time for action is now.

Fight Over Meharry Now Out in the Open

By STANLEY ROBERTS

(Third in a Series)

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—From here on in the Meharry Medical School battle will be out in the open! The revealing spotlight of publicity pointed up by The Pittsburgh Courier is taking effect.

There are those who would have had it otherwise . . . would have done their work quietly, including Fourteen Southern Governors . . . Southern politicians who are trying desperately to slip a resolution through the United States Congress before public opinion can crystallize against its viciousness . . . and expose it as a deliberate effort to circumvent the U. S. Supreme Court's Gaines decision . . . Dr. M. Don Clawson, Meharry's president, a shrewd politician-dentist, who would make a gift of a distinguished, private, medical education center to grasping Southern politicians who for seventy-five years have been willing to stand by and let Northern money support the institution.

SUPPORTERS ARE CALLED ILL-ADVISED

And last but by no means least . . . ill-advised Negroes who for one reason or another are willing to forget the principle involved and are lending their names to what many are calling "a sell out."

However, arrayed right straight up against the Jim Crow proponents is a formidable, phalanx of freedom-loving Americans, Negro and white, ready to do battle!

They have taken the fight to the House . . . to the Senate . . . will put it in the lap of President Truman . . . and if all else fail . . . are prepared to go to the Courts of Justice.

These citizens feel the issue is no longer whether Meharry Medical College will close. No one wants that.

The issue now at stake is whether Dr. Clawson and his Southern political henchmen will be allowed to turn Meharry's lands, buildings, equipment and endowment income over to the Southern States in a frantic effort to avoid complying with the law of the land.

POWERFUL OPPOSITION AGAINST RESOLUTION

When Dr. Clawson and his cohorts appeared before a Senate committee they found powerful opposition to testify against Joint Resolution 191:

MISS ALMA VESSELLS, executive secretary, National Association of Colored Graduate Nurses, representing 110 local and State organizations and 1,800 members operating in thirty-two States:

"On behalf of my organization I want to voice our unqualified opposition to SJR 191 which would authorize interstate compacts establishing segregated regional universities.

"The association feels that such compacts would entirely negate the recommendations of the President's Committee on Civil Rights, and the recommendations of the President's Committee on Higher Education."

THURGOOD MARSHALL, special counsel, NAACP, representing almost 1,000,000 members:

"It is clear from the decisions of the United States Supreme Court that the States covered by the proposed compact cannot escape their responsibilities under the Fourteenth Amendment by sending their Negro students to Meharry and paying their tuition and expenses in lieu of admitting them to their State medical schools.

"This proposed compact is merely an effort to circumvent the effect of these decisions.

"It is an effort to have one arm of the Federal Government, the Congress, give 'legal' sanction to a practice declared invalid by another arm of the Federal Government, the Supreme Court."

DR. MILLARD DEAN, chairman, publicity committee, National Dental Asociation:

"The National Dental Association at its mid-winter executive committee meeting . . . voiced its opposition to any form of segregated regional education . . . That opposition continues in effect against Senate Joint Resolution 191."

DR. J. G. GATHINGS, chairman, board of trustees, National Medical Association, an organization of 4,000 doctors in medicine, dentistry and pharmacy:

"We passed a resolution . . . condemning the sanction of the Southern governors to the taking over of Meharry Medical College, as put forth in the compact."

DELIBERATE EVASION OF HIGH COURT RULING

M. C. CLARKE, president, National Negro Insurance Association, a federation of fifty life insurance companies, with assets in excess of $100,000,000:

". . . the association is unalterably opposed to the proposal . . . designed to give congressional blessing to the reprehensible com-

. . . Congress, if it approves this compact—which is based on segregation, because the laws of the States which are participating in compact require segregation—will have the effect, repudiating the findings, both, of the President's Committee on Civil Rights, which said that segregation could not result in equality, and the President's Commission on Higher Education, which made exactly the same findings."

MISS MARVIN PERRY, National Lawyers Guild:

Meharry Plan Is Blasted

Leading Doctors Denounce Regional Set-up for School

(Convention Pictures Inside)

By THEODORE STANFORD
(Courier New York Bureau)

NEW YORK — The National Medical Association, closing its fifty-third and most widely attended annual convention at Wadleigh High School here last Friday, turned thumbs down flatly on the bitterly fought so-called "Regional Plan" for Meharry Medical College.

A high point in the proceedings of the convention was reached early last week when Dr. J. A. C. Lattimore, retiring NMA president and practicing physician of Louisville, Ky., urged the organization to refuse to accept the jim-crow regional plan which the chief executives of certain Dixie States have advocated for the school of medicine.

"I would rather see Meharry close its doors than to see it reinforce the vicious pattern of Southern discrimination," Dr. Lattimore asserted bluntly. "I would rather see Meharry stand as a silent condemnation to Southern racial attitudes than to see it serve as a tool to perpetuate jim crow."

CLOSING SEEN UNLIKELY

He predicted, however, that the "responsible people" of the State of Tennessee would not permit the institution to close.

Declaring that it was his earnest hope that each member of the organization "will earnestly endeavor to secure for the Negro doctor a place of complete integration in American medicine," and warning that "we must not support or condone any evasion of our supreme laws" in this democracy, Dr. Lattimore placed the following recommendations before the convention:

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. That the NMA re-petition the American Medical Association for the admittance of Southern Negro doctors.
2. That the NMA go on record as opposing the plan of the fourteen Southern Governors for the Meharry Medical College because the plan was considered an evasion of the Federal Supreme Court ruling that each State provide within its bounds equal educational facilities for Negroes.
3. That the NMA continue its affiliation with the NAACP.
4. That the organization employ a full-time secretary and obtain permanent headquarters.
5. That the organization petition colleges offering pre-medical courses with the request that they require more thoroughness on the part of the science departments and the pre-medical students.
6. That the NMA change its meeting date to take place either in the spring of fall of any year.
7. That there be only one social affair held and that this affair should be in the form of a banquet for the president.

SPEECH DEBATED

The fiery denunciations of racial discrimination contained in Dr. Lattimore's "President's Address" caused wide discussion among the delegates to the convention.

Discussion also centered around issues pointed up in his recommendations to the assembled body.

Division of opinion on the points at issue in his recommendations, the inevitable confusion associated with the breaking up of the closing sessions of the confab, together with cordial but hazy press relations, left this reporter with a divided picture of official action on some of the proposals set forward by the retiring president.

Dr. John F. Taylor, Mobile, Ala., re-elected speaker of the house of delegates, informed the press that the convention had placed its stamp of approval upon each of Dr. Lattimore's seven recommendations. However, Dr. H. H. Walker, Nashville, Tenn., a member of the board of trustees, gave a somewhat different version.

Dr. Walker told reporters that the convention had rejected the recommendation concerning a change of meeting date and the holding of the proposed social banquet for the organization's president.

The proposal looking toward the establishment of a permanent headquarters and the employment of a full-time secretary, he said, had been referred to a committee composed of members of the house of delegates and the board of trustees.

The committee would report on its deliberation in February, he stated.

DR. WHITTIER ELECTED

Dr. C. Austin Whittier of San Antonio, Tex., was inaugurated NMA president during the final session of the organization's fifty-third annual convention.

Dr. Herbert Marshall of Washington, D. C., was appointed president-elect. Dr. Marshall will be inducted into office in August, 1949.

In his inaugural address Dr. Whittier laid down the broad outlines of a program which he proposed as a goal toward which he would prefer to devote his services during his current term of office.

He pleaded that no officer or group of officers should make commitments in the name of the NMA on controversial questions until authorized to do so by the organization's house of delegates.

OTHER OFFICERS

The closing session of the convention also marked the election of other important NMA officers. Among these were Dr. G. W. Ish of Arkansas, first vice president; Dr. R. W. Hixon, Ohio, second vice president, and Dr. A. D. Adamson, Illinois, third vice president.

Dr. John Givens of Norfolk, Va., was re-elected to the position of secretary, and Dr. E. T. Taylor of St. Louis, Mo., was returned to his post as treasurer.

Negro College Improvements To Be Studied

Advertiser, Montgomery Ala.

Meadows Says Training Elsewhere Best Now Under Aid Plan

Sat. 1-17-48

Alabama's grant-in-aid program to finance out-of-state professional training for Negroes is superior to anything "we could give them in the state," Education Superintendent A. R. Meadows said Friday.

Dr. Meadows said the State Education Department has been doing research in the field of Negro education for several years, but that the program would be stepped up to comply with instructions from the State Board of Education. He said in an interview:

"To follow up the board's action Wednesday, the State Education Department will put greater emphasis on this program and make progress reports back to the board from time to time."

The board directed Meadows to survey possibilities of providing additional professional training through the state's present higher education system for Negroes.

The survey was suggested by former Congressman Joe Starnes of Guntersville. Starnes said Monday's U. S. Supreme Court decision that Oklahoma Negro students were entitled to educational facilities equal to those of white students made it mandatory that Alabama begin immediately to face the problem.

Facilities Improved

"The state has been gradually increasing the scope of offerings at the various Negro institutions," Meadows said. "Graduate courses in education and pre-law are available at the State Teachers College for Negroes here. Each year, as we have been able to provide funds and additions to teaching staffs, the offerings have been broadened."

In support of his statement that the grant-in-aid program was Alabama's best means of furnishing professional training, Meadows said:

"Alabama could not possibly give grant-in-aid students the high quality of training they can receive outside the state because of difficulties which must be faced at all institutions of higher learning now."

He mentioned the scarcity of qualified teaching personnel and the heavy student loads at all state colleges and universities.

"The Negro education problem is not one that can be solved overnight," the educator continued. "It is something that will take years and a lot of hard work to solve."

Meadows said he hoped the Southern Governor's Conference plan of creating regional institutions for Negro professional training can be perfected. It seems, he said, a practical solution to the problem since the demand for such training is limited in individual southern states.

Benefits Of Outstate Training For Negroes Cited By Meadows

The News, Birmingham, Ala.

Sat. 1-17-48

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 17—Alabama's grant-in-aid program to finance out-of-state professional training for Negroes was described by Education Superintendent A. R. Meadows as "superior to anything we could give them in the state."

In an interview yesterday, Dr. Meadows said that research in the field of Negro education would be stepped up to comply with instructions from the State Board of Education. The department has been doing research in that field for several years. The News

"To follow up the board's action Wednesday," he said "the State Education Department will put greater emphasis on this program and make progress reports to the board from time to time." Ed.

The board instructed Dr. Meadows to investigate the expansion of the present higher education system for Negroes. 1-17-48

Former Rep. Joe Starnes, Guntersville, suggested the survey. He said the Supreme Court decision that Oklahoma Negro students were entitled to equal educational facilities made it mandatory that Alabama begin to face the problem.

"The state has gradually increased the scope of offerings at the various Negro institutions," Meadows said. "Graduate courses in education and pre-law are available here." Birmingham, Ala.

He concluded: "Alabama could not possibly give grant-in-aid students the high quality of training they can receive outside the state because of differences which must be faced at all institutions of higher learning now."

Regional Colleges

The News 1/18

To the Editor of The News:

There are already regional education institutions for Negro students who live in Alabama and attend out-of-state colleges because of the insufficient facilities in state colleges.

I make that statement and here is the proof: Negro high school graduates of Alabama, nine times out of 10, attend out-of-state colleges in order to equip themselves as men and women of tomorrow in the various professions. Some go at the state's expense. Going at the state's expense is in some way equivalent to establishing regional schools. Why waste money yearly to send medical and law students to regional schools when a permanent college offering law and medicine can be erected in Alabama at a lower cost? In the long run sending students out of the state will cost twice as much, considering the number engaged in these professions. On the other hand, when one is accustomed to his environment from an educational standpoint, he is anxious to let his ideas be used in that environment where opportunities are plentiful. Birmingham, Ala

As a present high school student, anticipating my graduation, my greatest ambition is to advance my education in my home state, to the degree of the best that is offered. But unless the scene changes, I too will be a useful tool going to help perfect the conditions of another state, simply because my state didn't give me a chance. I hope the scene changes, so that I will "cast down my bucket where I am" and take a leading role in the future development of Alabama. Wed.

This problem remains to be settled, and it is entirely up to Mr. and Mrs. Alabama of today to prepare for Mr. and Mrs. Alabama of tomorrow.

ANDREW L. THOMAS,
1218 North Sipsey Street. 3-17-48

La. Increases Aid To Race Education

BATON ROUGE, La. — Louisiana's State Legislature has just passed two educational aid bills aimed at helping Negro students. One sets aside $185,000 for student aid scholarships to all State-operated institutions; the other increases the out-of-State scholarship fund allocation from $50,000 to $100,000. Aid for children of vets killed in the war is also provided. Observers believe the measures were inspired by recent court suits and civil rights threats.

Teachers Get $2,800 Grants

JACKSON, Miss. — (ANP) — Grants of $2,800 were given twenty-four Negro teachers for advanced study in out-of-State institutions, E. R. Jobe, executive secretary, board of trustees, State Institutions of Higher Learning, announced this week.

These awards were made as provided in house bill 459, laws of 1948, providing a fund of $25,000 for 1948-50 to assist Negroes in professional, specialized and graduate study.

Those who received grants for their schools were:

Porah Crosby, Prentiss Jack and Betty Mae Jack, Forest, University of Chicago; Nathaniel Burger, Hattiesburg, and Ozella Robinson, Meridian, Cornell; George Jones, Tougaloo, and Ruby Coleman, Columbia, Iowa State; Willie Alford, Jackson, and Thelma Johnson, University of Southern California;

Clymathes King, Port Gibson, and Clara Alexander, Hampton; Charles H. Wilson, Ivory Michael and Noelle Michael, Jackson, and Earline Miles, Laurel, Atlanta University; Monteal Pendleton, Lula, and Pearl Cook, Liberty, Tuskegee; Eva Harris, Brookhaven, Northwestern University; Ivory Manning, Jackson, Northwestern; Lottie Williams, Grenado, Ohio State; Gladys Bush, Columbus, Wayne Colbert, Enterprise, Columbia; Albertine Mason, Jackson, Cincinnati, and Jewel Merchant, Kokomo, Fisk.

VIRGINIA SPENDS $81,040.23 TO SEND NEGROES OUT OF STATE TO UNIVERSITIES

RICHMOND, Va. — The state of Virginia spent $81,040.23 during the 1947-48 school year to send 503 Negroes out of the state to universities and colleges according to a report by the administrator of the graduate fund. Grants, ranging from $54 to $683, sent students to such schools as Columbia university, which trained 181; Howard, 81; and New York university, 49.

MARYLAND PAYING NEGROES' TUITION

$60,000 Is Allotted for Study at Private White Colleges— Ban at State University

By GEORGE STREATOR

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The State of Maryland is paying the tuition of Negro students in the undergraduate and graduate schools of Johns Hopkins University and St. John's College at Annapolis, records revealed yesterday. Because of their race these students are barred from the University of Maryland.

The state of Maryland is in the position of refusing to admit Negroes to state-owned institutions yet of paying their fees at "white" colleges in the same area. The students are being provided for through the grants administered by the Maryland State Commission on Scholarships for Negroes. The amount alloted for 1947-1948 was nearly $60,000. The grants were made chiefly for graduate work, but also for undergraduate work not offered at the Morgan State College.

The enrollment of Negro students in Johns Hopkins University was called "epoch-making" by members of the commission, who made known the acceptance of Negroes by several Maryland private schools. These included Johns Hopkins and St. John's College at Annapolis and Loyola College, a Catholic institution in Baltimore.

The committee members are Ivan E. McDougle, chairman; Carl J. Murphy, Josiah F. Henry Jr., Dr. Martin D. Jenkins, president-elect of Morgan State College, and Edward N. Wilson, college secretary and secretary of the commission.

Students Sent to Columbia

The State of Maryland is now providing for four graduate students and one undergraduate at ohns Hopkins, amounts ranging from $75 to $200 each semester. The students are Amos E. Chase, Alonza C. Johnson, Norvell W. Hunter, Miss Agnes W. Patterson and Miss Mildred J. Seaborne, who are enrolled for classes in engineering (undergraduate), biochemistry, geology, French and education(all graduate). Jesse Harris, an undergraduate student in fine arts, is enrolled at St. John's. He received $200 for the first semester, plus $11 for transportation.

During the first semester the State of Maryland paid $2,630 for tuition and $1,590 for travel to twenty men and women who attended two undergraduate and eighteen graduate courses at Columbia University. Eleven of these scholarship grants were renewed from last year. Twelve students took graduate courses in education.

Medical students supported by the state received as much as $250 each semester, plus transportation. The State of Maryland provided $900 in tuition fees and $200 in travel for five students enrolled in the first semester at Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tenn. Five Maryland Negro students will take courses in medicine, two in dentistry and nine in pharmacy at Howard University. The state does not pay travel to Washington.

Miss Veernice D. Ferguson received $80 for tuition and $1 for travel to the Bellevue School of Nursing in New York. Wendell B. Harris, M. D., received $250 for tuition and $59 for travel at the Des Moines (Iowa) College of Surgery. Miss Gloria R. Hines received $200 in tuition and $112 in travel toward her training in psychiatry at the University of Denver.

Told to Apply Elsewhere

Linwood H. Jordan applied for admission to the University of Maryland "at state expense," but his application was denied. He was told to apply for tuition to some Grade A college "outside the state."

These grants are being made under an authorization of the Maryland General Assembly of 1937, and by subsequent legislation which provided also in 1939 for the purchase from the Methodist Church of Morgan College, the first state-owned Negro college for liberal arts.

The disposition of Negro colleges if the southern states move to admit Negro students to white colleges is called "hypothetical" by Dr. Frederick D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute. Dr. Patterson said over the telephone yesterday that some white students from the North and Middle West had applied for admission to the proposed Tuskegee Institute School of Veterinary Surgery.

An Associated Press dispatch Sunday quoted Dr. Patterson as saying that the elimination of barriers against Negroes would in no way lessen the need for Tuskegee Institute. The dispatch quoted Dr. Patterson as saying that Tuskegee had refused applications from white students for enrollment. It added that he pointed to the Alabama law requiring segregation.

Va. Must Aid 600 Negro Graduates

RICHMOND, Va.—According to Dr. Luther H. Foster, president of Virginia State College and administrator of the State's graduate aid fund, Virginia during the coming academic year will pay for out-of-state scholarships for approximately 600 colored graduate students.

MORE FUNDS NECESSARY FOR NEGRO EDUCATION

Out Of State Training Fund Already Depleted

From The Commercial Appeal Little Rock Bureau

LITTLE ROCK, Aug. 31.—The 1949 General Assembly will be asked to provide a $15,000 increase in the annual appropriation used to pay out-of-state tuition for negro graduate students, Ed F. McCuistion, supervisor of Negro Education for the Education Department, said Tuesday.

Revealing that the $20,000 which the 1947 Legislature appropriated for a two-year period already had been expended, Mr. McCuistion said the department planned to ask for a $25,000 annual appropriation, instead of $10,000 a year.

He pointed out the number of graduate negro students desiring to enter out-of-state schools of higher learning was increasing yearly, adding that the "money appropriated by the 1947 Legislature was quickly used up due to the large number of applicants."

Mr. McCuistion said approximately $3500 was needed immediately to meet the bills of graduate students who have been promised state assistance. The University of Arkansas and the State A. M. & N. college for negroes at Pine Bluff will be asked to make up the deficit, he said.

Mr. McCuistion said approximately 130 negro students were participating in the state subsidy program, inaugurated in 1941.

Out-of-State Aid to Arkansas Students In Hole For $3,435

LITTLE ROCK Ark. — (ANP) —The "Out of State" aid to Negro students pursuing graduate work for 1948-1849, is shy $3,435 and the University of Arkansas and Arkansas A. M. & N. college are being asked to make up the deficit.

According to Ed McCuistion, white. supervisor of Negro education for the state department of education, the legislature had tentatively promised $13,435, but only $10,000 was appropriatetd. The fund pays the tuition for Negro students who take graduate studies in colleges and universities outside the state. Last year, the two Arkansas institutions contributed $6,000 to the fund.

McCuistion pointed out that this was the second year the appropriation 'ran short" and said the legislature would be asked to increase the amount to $25,000 annually next year. He also disclosed that it was preferable to use money from the state's emergency fund to make up the deficit, but that this method would need thte approval of the state fiscal GRANTS OF $2,800 were given to 24 Mississippi Negro teachers for advanced study in out-of-state institutions.

These awards were made as provided in House bill 459, laws of 1948, providing a fund of $25,000 for 1949-50 to assist Negroes in professional, specialized and graduate study.

Kentucky Attaches Rider to Out-of-State Aid Setup

Must Renounce All Rights to Attend Institutions Within State or No Funds

LOUISVILLE (ANP) — James A. Crumlin, attorney and first vice president of the local NAACP, urged students to resist the State's newest attempt to bar them from white colleges by having them sign waivers to attend the institutions before they can obtain out-of-State educational aid.

Declaring the waiver deal was "just another desperate move" by the State to perpetuate racial segregation, Crumlin advised the students to reject the waivers, and if out-of-State aid was not forthcoming to Negroes attending the institution, with the college to enforce segregation. Another violation. Under the plan we grants-in-aid for students to attend schools the waiver form, "it is apparent that the someone is trying to create a plan whereby disturbance. Under the plan we could receive have drawn, anyone who wants State College education can get at Kentucky were taught only State College what white persons which formerly were at the university." The plan provides that university faculty members

All Kind of Laws

Under the Kentucky Day law, courses at Kentucky fines for any educational institution, establishes graduate colored students to State announced a colleges out-colored students

Dr. Atwood said he was acting in accordance with the law as interpreted by the attorney general. He said:

"I am being severely censured in my effort to make it work. My general feeling is that an overwhelming number of colored people think the plan is subterfuge. More money than the $45,000 granted is needed to cause the colored people to think that the plan is anything but subterfuge."

The NAACP's position, as advanced by Crumlin, was that it objected both to admitting "ample provisions" had been made for colored college students and to the signing away of "their educational rights in Kentucky." He pointed out that the college lacked a law library and had no engineering or pharmaceutical schools.

Makes Them Renounce Rights

"Students are permitted to use the university library, 26 miles away, but only at prescribed times. This is unfair."

The waiver in question reads in part: "I, the undersigned, desiring to pursue a course of education and fully realizing that the commonwealth of Kentucky has made ample provisions for me to obtain the prescribed course of study outside of Kentucky.

"In consideration of the out-of-State aid, I hereby waive any and all rights that I may have to obtain an education along the lines and in the course of study desired by me at any institution provided by Kentucky within its borders and elect to pursue this course of study outside Kentucky.

Kentucky Pays Fees In Other States For Negroes Barred In Schools Here

Louisville, Ky.

Commonwealth Policy In Clear

Wed. 1-14-48

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 13 (AP)—Kentucky pays tuition in other states for its Negro citizens who are unable to get higher education they desire at the Kentucky State College for Negroes here.

It was pointed out today at the State Education Department, following the United States Supreme Court's latest ruling on Negro education in an Oklahoma case, that 272 Negroes are availing themselves of the funds.

State Superintendent of Education Boswell B. Hodgkin declined to discuss the Oklahoma case in which immediate admission of a Negro girl to the law school of that State's university within three days, or providing of separate and equal facilities for her within that time, was ordered.

Hodgkin said a "sizable proportion" of Kentucky's Negro citizens who took advantage of the tuition fund were teachers, taking summer courses in working for post-graduate degrees.

Lack Graduate Courses.

The Courier-Journal

R. B. Atwood, president of Kentucky State College here, said the Negro school has no graduate courses and no professional courses except a "general engineering course at the undergraduate level."

The institution, he added, has an undergraduate course to train teachers, but has no courses in law, medicine, dentistry, or pharmacy.

Louisville, Ky.

"We have been trying to get our undergraduate courses strong enough to build up to graduate courses," he explained.

Wed.

President Atwood added that he requested the 1946 Legislature to grant $1,000,000 for capital outlay. That would be expended first, he said, for a new classroom, second for a library building and third, for a building for the general engineering class.

1-14-48

Commission Would Decide.

Under the general fund budget bill now pending in the Legislature, a Kentucky building commission would be created to determine how a $10,000,000 fund would be allocated to new structures and improvement of present ones at various State institutions of which Kentucky State is one.

Kentucky's tuition program was inaugurated in 1936. The appropriation has been increased annually until it reaches $30,000 for the 1946-48 school years. Hodgkin said about $22,000 of that was expended last year.

The general fund budget bill introduced in the General Assembly last night would raise the fund to $40,000 a year. In recommending its passage, Governor Earle Clements told his Democratic Administration leaders that funds for various other phases of Negro education also had been increased. He said the raises "are justified" and added, "I have no hesitancy in urging them upon you."

Failed to Prosecute It.

The Courier-Journal

In 1941, Charles Lamont Eubanks, a Louisville Negro, then 17 years old, sued in Federal Court to force the University of Kentucky to admit him to its civil engineering course. The suit declared such instruction was unavailable to members of his race at any Negro college in the state. The suit was dismissed in 1945 after Eubanks failed to prosecute it.

Kentucky's Constitution prohibits whites and Negroes from attending the same schools. In 1904 the General Assembly enacted a statute declaring the provision covered private as well as public schools. Berea College, founded prior to the Civil War by Ohioans, and which had admitted Negro students, challenged constitutionality of the legislative act as applied to private institutions. The Court of Appeals upheld the act and the United States Supreme Court affirmed that by refusing to review the case.

Wed. 1-14-48

Ky. Out-Of-State School Policy Seen As Hindrance

Memphis World

LOUISVILLE — (A N P) — James A. Crumlin president of the local NAACP branch, charged here last week that the state of Kentucky is hindering not promoting education for Negroes when it pays part of their tuition in out-of-state profession and graduate schools.

1-23-48

Basing his statement on the fact that the state grants only $175 a year as a tuition aid Crumlin said, "Not only is this les than actual tuition in most schools, but it fails to take into consideration a number of other fees and expenses.

1-23-48

"As a result, it costs Negroes more to attend out-of-state schools even with state help, than it would to attend schools in Kentucky. Many Negroes who desire higher education simply can't afford it."

The local group is currently launching a campaign to secure admission to the state graduate and professional school for Negroes.

Negro Girl Told to Sign Waiver Or Lose Funds

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 11 (AP)—Anna Louise Harris was informed today her $500-a-year educational allowance will be stopped unless she signs the waiver Kentucky requires of Negroes attending college in other states.

Courier-Journal

Louisville, Ky.

Dec. 12-12-48

The girl, a sophomore at Indiana University, scratched out a clause in the document which specified that similar educational opportunities are afforded Negroes in Kentucky.

She recently wrote President R. B. Atwood of Kentucky State College for Negroes who supervises the grants that she had not received her allowance. She added she supposed it was due to her having eliminated the educational-opportunity clause, and asked him to take up the matter.

The waiver of rights to attend school in Kentucky, containing the clause the girl scratched out, was prepared by Attorney General A. E. Funk after Kentucky arranged special classes to teach its Negro citizens subjects available to whites, but not hitherto given for Negroes.

President Atwood referred the girl's letter to Samuel B. Taylor, assistant director of supervision in the State Education Department and he sent it to the Attorney General's office.

Assistant Attorney General M. B. Holifield said in his letter the waiver is worded to protect the State and also to protect pupils who have commenced courses outside the state "from losing their credits there gained in pursuing the educational course to secure a particular degree."

In inclosing another copy of the waiver to be signed, Holifield wrote:

"If you consider that your knowledge is superior to the knowledge of the attorney general in dealing with educational and legal problems, you will have to assume responsibility for your decision, because unless you sign this waiver without modification, you will not be granted any allowance from the treasurer of Kentucky under the provisions" of the law.

"We are anxious to aid you in preserving your educational credits, but we are anxious also to protect the treasurer of Kentucky from any future action on your part, or the part of any other person seeking to obtain funds," Holifield said.

Try to Enter U. K., Negroes Advised

The Courier-Journal

Louisville, Ky.

Prospective Students Urged Not to Sign State's Waivers

Attorney James A. Crumlin, first vice-president of the branch to plan further action.

National Association for the Advancement of Colored People

Directors Take Action.

said here yesterday Negro students should seek to enroll at Crumlin said, he advised Negroes ington, the board of directors of the University of Kentucky. not to sign the waivers and to the N.A.A.C.P. passed a resolu-

Crumlin said the office of Attorney General A. E. Funk had present themselves instead at U. of K. on registration day. caused "waivers" to be sent to Negro students receiving "out-of-state aid" which made them give up their rights to attend white Kentucky colleges or forfeit the aid.

A group of about 50 students adopted a resolution here last night against signing the waivers. William J. Price, chairman of the group, said the students would meet again at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Chestnut Street Y.M.C.A.

by Dr. R. B. Atwood, president of Kentucky State College for Negroes, who also is administrator of out-of-state aid for Negroes, Crumlin said. He added that Atwood informed the students he was sending the waivers at the request of the Attorney General. The waivers, Dr. Atwood said, had to be signed before the aid could be given.

Fees Are Provided. 9-7-48

The State's Day Law prohibits

ers were sent to stu- ving out-of-state aid attendance of white and Negro students at the same educational institution. It provides fines for violations. Another State law provides for State grants-in-aid to Negro students to attend colleges outside Kentucky.

State officials recently announced a plan for Negroes to receive at Kentucky State College for Negroes courses which formerly hadn't been available there but were available at the university.

Donovan Won't Comment.

At Frankfort, Dr. Atwood, who is the administrator of Negro out-of-state aid, said last night he is sending out waiver blanks in accordance with the law as interpreted by the attorney general.

Funk, who prepared the waiver form, also said in Frankfort, "It is apparent someone is trying to create a disturbance. Under the plan we have drawn, anyone who wants education can get at K.S.C. What white persons can get at the university."

Dr. Atwood told a reporter:

"I am being severely censured in my effort to make it work. My general feeling is that an overwhelming number of colored people think the plan is subterfuge. More money than the $45,000 granted is needed to cause Negroes to think that the plan is anything but a subterfuge."

At Lexington, Dr. H. L. Donovan, president of the University of Kentucky, said he did not care to comment .

Crumlin said the N.A.A.C.P. objected both to admitting "ample provisions" had been made for Negro college students and to signing away what he described as their educational rights in Kentucky.

Library Facilities Inadequate.

He said the college for Negroes in Frankfort "lacks a law library, and has no engineering or pharmaceutical schools. Students are permitted to use the U. of K. library, 26 miles away, but only at prescribed times. This is unfair."

9-7-48

Crumlin said the waivers Dr. Atwood sent out read, in part:

"I, the undersigned, desiring to pursue a course of education and fully realizing that the Commonwealth of Kentucky has made ample provisions for me to obtain the prescribed course of study desired by me within the boundaries of Kentucky . . . desire to pursue my course of study outside of Kentucky. . . . In consideration of such grant (the out-of-state aid), I hereby waive any and all rights that I may have to obtain an education along the lines and in the course of study desired by me at any institutions provided by the Commonwealth of Kentucky within the borders of the Commonwealth of Kentucky and elect to pursue this course of study outside of the borders of the Commonwealth of Kentucky as provided by Section 166.160 of the Kentucky Revised Statutes."

Represents Teacher.

Crumlin represents Lyman T. Johnson, 40, of 2627 W. Madison, Negro teacher here, who last spring sought admission to U. of K. to complete a doctor's degree in history and political science. Johnson was turned down by Registrar Maurice Seay, who cited the Day Law.

Crumlin said U. of K. has filed an answer to his petition in the case and that his reply will be filed in a few days at which time a hearing date will be set in Lexington.

Regional Council Set-up Considers Medicine, Health, Graduate Studies

Atlanta Daily World

With Tuskegee Institute giving impetus to the efforts of Southern States to get up regional schools on a segregated basis, the Regional Council for Education is developing recommendations for legislative action in those fields in which there already exist demands for educational services deemed desirable to meet through regional action.

In addition to the veterinary medical training program, under which Tuskegee Institute would be the regional school for all colored persons in the South who desired such training, two other problems— human medicine and health services, and graduate studies— are receiving attention.

Commissions have been appointed to study and analyze these problems. Dr. W. T. Sanger of the Medical College of Virginia is the chairman of the Commission on Human Medicine and Health Services, and Dr. Harold Stokes, president of Louisiana State University, is the chairman of the Commission on Graduate Studies.

LATEST MEETING

These commissions met here on November 22 and 23. Their reports, analyzing the problems and presenting alternatives solutions, are expected to be completed very soon and will be reviewed by the presidents and appropriate deans of a number of institution of higher learning in the South.

A meeting under the auspices of the Regional Council for Education is planned for December 12, the day before the Southern Governors' Conference convenes. Recommendations agreed upon at this meeting will be submitted to the Governors' Conference.

In the matter of human medicine, the council is still considering the possibility of conversion of Meharry Medical College into a regional school for colored students medicine, dentistry and nursing.

At a recent meeting, at th request of Governor Millard Caldwell of Florida and Governor Jim McCord of Tennessee, Cecil Sims made a report on the financial status of Meharry. He stated that funds were available for the operation of the college to June 30, next, and after that date the school will have to close unless other arrangements were made for financing it.

VETERINARY AGREEMENT

While Tuskegee Institute, Alabama Polytechnic Institute and the University of Georgia have tentatively agreed to serve as regional schools for veterinary medical training, there appears to be a number of obstacles to the consummation of the plan.

Sun-11-28-48

First, the fourteen states, which are parties to the compact to establish regional schools on a segregated basis, must through their state legislatures approve of the plan and authorize appropriations to be paid to out-of-state institutions for the training of their citizens.

Even if this is done, it is doubtful whether the program will meet the requirement of equal protection of the laws, as guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment, on which the United States Supreme Court based its decisions that a state must provide equal educational facilities for colored and white students or admit colored students to the white state-supported university, if the corresponding colored institution does not offer a course desired by a colored student but which is offered at the white university.

SOUTH IS PLANNING SEGREGATED STUDY

Gov. Caldwell of Florida Tells States' Assembly of Move for Series of Schools

By WALTER W. RUCH

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DETROIT, Dec. 3—Plans for the establishment of a series of interstate professional schools in the South, with racial segregation a cardinal principle, were outlined today by Gov. Millard F. Caldwell of Florida at the ninth biennial general assembly of the State Council of Governments.

As a means of obviating Federal assistance which might make non-segregation mandatory, Governor Caldwell said that states interested in the various projects would build and maintain the schools on a pro-rata basis.

This was a more honest way, he asserted, to meet interracial problems than that practiced in the North, where colleges admit one Negro and then say they practice non-segregation."

Governor Caldwell said that the over-all plan for the system of universities included the provision of similar institutions for Negroes "because we recognize the need of Negro physicians and nurses" and Negroes in the other professions.

Sat-12-4-48

The initiation of non-segregation now, he argued further, also would bring about the swift collapse of numerous highly rated colleges and universities already located in the South.

Veterinary School Needed

Governor Caldwell said there were five or six states in the South in need of a school of veterinary medicine. Plans were being studied, he said, for these sovereignties to join hands in erecting a school for their joint use in Florida.

He asserted that there was not a "top flight" school of mining or forestry in the South, although mining and lumbering were two of the principal industries.

"They [the schools] will be the finest in the country, I can tell you that," Governor Caldwell said. The plan would work in the South, he added, where "we never have things like you had in this city a few years ago." This apparently was a reference to the 1943 race riots.

Col. John Manning, Director of Finance in Kentucky, discussing the organization and operation of State Governments, suggested that there was a great need for "reorganizing to provide for modern atomic age Government which is now operating under a horse-and-buggy system."

Colonel Manning said the Governor should be the center of Government gravity and "therefore Government service of the type we expect is possible only when there is concentration of authority in the hands of the Governor."

"His authority must be implemented by managerial control. He must have adequate funds at his disposal," he said. "And the states must have both merit and retirement systems. They are lagging far behind in the security parade."

"Hidden Taxes" Approved

Colonel Manning urged the states to adopt the Federal system of "hidden taxes," as in the case of cigarettes, where the Federal Government imposes a tax on the manufacturer, who passes it on to the retailer, who simply adds it to the retail price.

"No one seems to notice it," he said, "but people are always complaining when you put a state sales tax on merchandise."

Colonel Manning said all states should have a four-year term for Governor, who should be elected in off years to make certain that he shall be judged on state issues and not allowed to go into office on the coattails of a President-elect.

State Senator Jesse M. Mayo of California deplored what he said was a tendency on the part of the states to run to Washington for help in work they could do themselves.

Sat-12-4-48

"We have the tools and we can do the job if we will accept our responsibilities. We cannot expect the Federal Government to continue these services without having enough strings to kill our autonomy as sovoreign states," Senator Mayo said.

Another bit of self-criticism came from State Senator Floyd R. Gibson of Missouri, who said the states, "of which my own is one of the worst offenders, "had only themselves to blame for two pending Congressional inquiries into the insurance business.

"The states have not been effectively discharging their duties in that field," Senator Gibson said.

Passage Would Have Legalized Jim Crow Schools

The Black Dispatch
Oklahoma City, Okla.

WASHINGTON.—(ANP) For a whole week while the regional education bill was being kicked around on the senate floor in football fashion, reporters, like interested spectators, were tensely perched on the edge of their seats waiting for the final touchdown.

This decision did not come until late Thursday afternoon when the senate voted 38 to 37 to return the bill to the judiciary committee for further discussion.

This bill, which was seeking congressional endorsement of a plan for 15 southern states to set up jointly supported regional schools for Negroes, was passed in the house last Tuesday and immediately sent to the senate where the debate began which lasted for more than a week.

Despite the strong arguments in opposition to such a plan, presented to congress by Rep. Adam C. Powell and Rep. Vito Marcantonio, the bill pased the house 236 to 45, after an amendment regarding segregation was denied.

Powell pointed out that such a compact would crystalize the pattern of segregation and furnish the economic underpinning for the support of segregated education in the south which is staggering under the recent supreme court decision and the aroused demands of Negro American for equality in education.

He said that such a compact would weaken the supreme court opinions in the Gaines and Sipuel cases and that is why the south requested congressional approval. Since congress knows that the laws of the contracting states require segregation, congressional approval of this compact would constitute a complete repudiation by congress of the findings and recommendations of the President's Committee on Civil rights and the President's Commission on Higher education.

Marcantonio pointed out that the passage of such a resolution would place congressional stamp of approval on segregation in education. In light of the decision which the supreme court has just made on the convenant cases, the congress cannot permit itself to place its stamp of approval thereon.

The labor representative's reference to the disapproval of such a compact by the NAACP, brought Mr. Rankin to his feet. Demanding the floor, the Mississippi congressman charged the NAACP as being a "Communist front" organization, and declared that "it does not represent the better element of the Negroes in this country." He accused the association of doing the Negroes of this country, and especially of the south, infinitely more harm than good. Neither the NAACP nor Mr. Marcantonio is interested in the Negroes of the south, he said, but the passage of such a resolution would do something for the Negroes of the south and at the same time maintain peace between the two races.

The chief opponent of a regional compact in the senate was Wayne Morse (R., Ore.). When the bill reached the senate floor, Sen. Morse offered an amendment dent Truman's whole civil rights program one amendment at a time if his amendment to the regional educational bill was defeated. This would give his own Republican party an opportunity to express its views on the anti-lynching, F. E. P. C. and poll tax bills.

Regional School Plan Hit

(Special to The Courier)

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Tension hangs in the air at Meharry Medical College this week.

Friction between President M. Don Clawson, faculty members and the local NAACP rose to the boiling point as the conflict over using Meharry for a regional school for Negroes continued. Elsewhere, the battle against regional schools raged on several fronts.

Bitter controversy flared here in Nashville where Atty. Z. Alexander Looby, a member of the Meharry faculty, took issue with Dr. Clawson, who vigorously re-affirmed his intention to continue to fight for the use of Meharry as a regional school.

CLAWSON ADAMANT

Openly defiant in his attitude, Dr. Clawson disregarded the implications of racial segregation in a letter published in a local newspaper, in which he told Attorney Looby:

"We are going to have regional support after July 1, 1949, and Congress will approve it and the State Legislature will appropriate to the budget taking over the load that the foundations have carried since 1938."

Embattled governors of fifteen Southern States, fighting viciously to circumvent rulings of the U. S. Supreme Court providing equal education for Negroes or opening the doors of their "white" institutions, gained ground in Washington when the Senate Judiciary Committee approved by a 6 to 2 vote the compact signed at Wakulla Springs, Fla. early this year.

Congressional approval was necessary before the compact could become legal under the U. S. Constitution. A House committee had earlier given its approval.

OUSTERS PLANNED

The Nashville Branch of the NAACP, expressing grave concern over the situation and claiming to possess evidence that the school will be open to "political featherbedding," with white heads for each department under the regional set-up, has asked an unbiased investigation of the situation.

Rumors continued to circulate that part of Meharry buildings will be used for white patients and that the administration, now predominantly white, will become all white under the regional program.

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS

Other developments this week included:

1. A bill favoring regional schools and presented by Duke University was voted down on the floor of the annual interracial N. C. Student Legislature at Raleigh, N. C.

2. Walter White, NAACP secretary, wrote seventy-five Senators that he was "shocked" by committee approval of the regional plan in the face of Negro opposition by all groups and asked them to oppose the measure when it reaches the Senate floor.

3. Georgia took steps to provide its share of funds for the cooperative operation of Meharry.

4. Unqualified support of the principle of full educational opportunities for everyone everywhere, was expressed by the Southern University Conference of forty-six white institutions in the South.

SOUTHERN EDUCATORS VOICE THEIR SUPPORT OF REGIONAL SCHOOLS

Governor Caldwell Of Florida Tells Conference Plan Will Be In Operation Soon

SEGREGATION NOT ISSUE

Meridian Superintendent Says Negro Teachres Trained In South Would Be Big Asset—Election Is Today

(Pictures on Page 12)

By EMORY GRINNELL

Educators attending the meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools voiced widespread support yesterday of the proposal of the Southern Governors' Conference to establish regional schools over the South.

The plan to establish the schools at existing institutions was outlined earlier to the Association by Gov. Millard F. Caldwell of Florida, who declared:

"I believe I am safe in saying that before another school year starts, we will have regional schools in operation."

Williams Favors Plan

Chancellor J. D. Williams of the University of Mississippi said he first approached the whole plan with some degree of suspicion but now thinks that it is deserving of the support of every one who is interested in the development of our region.

"Those people who are opposed to this program are those who are opposed to education in general," the chancellor said. Chancellor Williams outlined his views bith other educators at a panel discussion of the proposal following the Governor's talk.

The chancellor said that one of the misconceptions about the program is that it is a device for the perpetuation of segregation. But he declared the plan has nothing to do with segregation.

Dr. T. S. Painter, president of the University of Texas, declared that if members of the association help to work out the difficulties involved in the plan, "we will be aiding in the fundamental aims of the Southern Association."

H. M. Ivy, superintendent of schools at Meridian, Miss., and chairman of the Association's Commission on Approval of Negro Schools and Colleges, declared:

"The biggest bug in the whole problem is what is to be done about facilities for negro graduate work."

Negroes Trained In North

Mr. Ivy said it has been necessary through the years for negroes to obtain graduate instruction at institutions in the North. This means, he said, that the best trained negro teachers in the South have received their training in areas not practicing segregation.

The fact, he said, that there is no opportunity for advanced negro education in the South has forced nonsegregation ideas on negroes. The South can ignore the problem of negro education on a segregated basis, which will result in the National Society for the Advancement of Colored People sooner or later having negro students in white schools, he asserted.

Governor Caldwell urged that regional schools be set up on a segregated basis to provide better facilities for whites and negroes alike.

The Governor, who is chairman of the Governors' Committee on Regional Education, siad he wasn't primarily interested in the segregation part of the committee's plans to establish regional schools.

"What is important," he said, "is for the South to pool its resources and intelligence and set up a great system of schools."

Caldwell Offers Choices

Under the proposal, the Southern states would get together and decide on what schools are needed. Then they would organize the schools and share the expense.

The Governor said the South has three choices in education. It can continue to neglect what he called essentials; it can look to the Federal Government for a system; or it can pool the South's resources and intelligence and do the job better than it is done anywhere in the world.

The meeting will close this morning with an election of officers and reports on schools dropped or admitted to membership.

TUSKEGEE DOES IT AGAIN

This is evident in the "deal" when one notes that the University of Georgia and Alabama Polytechnic Institute —two white schools to be used in the program—submitted budgets of $750,000 and $600,000, respectively, these amounts to be augmented by appropriations for an additional staff with increases in salaries.

Under the "sell-out plan," Tuskegee would provide veterinary medicine for ALL colored students in such training while the University of Georgia and Florida only and Alabama Poly would take white students from North Carolina, Louisiana and Tennessee.

Should the plan, which yet does not have Congressional sanction, go through it would set back for an incalculable number of years the fight against segregation in education which has been waged by the newspapers, presidents of colored land grant colleges, the NAACP and various teacher organizations.

Calling the proposal "not only bad but unconstitutional," Thurgood Marshall, NAACP special counsel, said: "We are in every way possible to the same extent fighting against segregation in public education in the several States."

Back in 1943, when Tuskegee proposed to swap six trustees for $100,000, the AFRO said:

"Slavery has left its mark so deeply on some areas that it is difficult for some colored people, after 80 years of freedom, to realize that they are free men who need not cringe before any master. Money isn't everything . . ."

Those words are just as true today as they were then. The Tuskegee pitcher has gone to the well once too often.

In other words, he is putting money above principle. Those who have followed the fortunes of Tuskegee know that this is an old story which follows a set pattern.

Back in 1943, the institution came up with a plan whereby it proposed to sell out for even less—$100,000. Under this plan, the State of Alabama would appropriate $100,000 a year for graduate work at Tuskegee in exchange for the right to add six new members to Tuskegee's trustee board which, at that time, had but three colored members out of 16.

This is the same Tuskegee which, for $161,000, accepted a jim crow infantile paralysis unit.

It is the same Tuskegee which persuaded the Federal government to erect a veterans' hospital there and also permitted the construction of a separate training school for Army airmen, the only jim crow officers' school in the entire U.S. during World War II.

It is apparent from the foregoing that Tuskegee is an old hand at selling out and, except in the case of the air training school ($1,800,000) it has always sold out for a mere pittance.

Regional Education Benefits Both Races

Atlanta Constitution
Atlanta, Ga.
Tuesday-12-14-48

Despite the urgency of insuring the continued operation of Meharry Medical College for Negroes at Nashville, it is perhaps just as well that the Southern Governors Conference should undertake the provision of veterinary schools as the first project of its regional education program.

Too many uninformed persons in Congress and elsewhere still regard regional education merely as a Southern medium to by-pass Supreme Court rulings on the necessity of providing graduate and professional training for Negroes equal to that furnished whites.

This is not true, although the vast majority of Southerners admittedly are determined that the traditional patterns of educational segregation will be maintained, whatever the cost.

The South needs regional education better to educate its white students as well as its black, and the situation as applies to veterinary medicine is a good example of it. Tuesday-12-14-48

There is, in a Southland turning increasingly to livestock, a considerable demand for veterinary training. Yet that demand is not sufficient to warrant the individual States each establishing their own veterinary schools. If they attempted it, the faculties and laboratory facilities would, of necessity, be inadequate and yet the per pupil cost would be inordinately large.

14e(2)

Consider how much more sense it makes for twelve or fifteen Southeastern States co-operatively to support three or four good veterinary schools, adequately equipped and well staffed, as the consequently increased enrollment would justify. Under the regional education plan, students from all participating States would pay uniform tuition, the various States supplementing the amount necessary to make up the difference. Thus, the University of Georgia, for instance, would no longer charge one amount for Georgians and a much higher one for Floridians. And Florida would be saved the unjustified expense of building and operating a veterinary school of its own.

Tues-12-14-48

Regional education provides a feasible, common-sense way for the South to save time and money in the furnishing of education in specialized fields to its citizens, white as well as Negro. We trust there will be no additional delay in taking advantage of the benefits it offers.

Loopholes In 'Regional' Hit

The Lighthouse
Columbia S.C.

WASHINGTON, D. C.— (SNS)— —March 13, 1948: Led by the N. A. C. P., representatives of 12 national organizations declared their bitter opposition to the establishment of segregated regional colleges in one of the most impressive public hearings ever held in Congress.

Under attack is Senate Joint Resolution 191, which asks congressional consent to a compact entered into by 14 southern governors whereby Meharry Medical School in Nashville, Tenn., would be taken over by the southern states as a regional school. Negro organizations hold that this is a plain attempt on the part of Southern states to (1) circumvent decisions of the United States Supreme Court requiring states to give within their own boundaries equal education opportunity to Negro students, and (2) perpuate educational segregation and discrimination with the express approval of Congress.

Appearing as witnesses against the Southern scheme were: Thurgood Marsnall, Special Counsel of the N. A. A. C. P.; Dr. J. G. Gathings, chairman of the Board of Trustees, National Medical Association; Dr. Millard R. Dean representing the National Dental Association; M. C. Clarke, President of the National Negro Insurance Association; Alma Vessels, Executive Secretary of the National Association of Colored Graduate Nurses; Professors George M. Johnson and James Nabrit representing the Conference of Presidents of Land Grant Colleges; Dr. Martin D. Jenkins, Educational Consultant for the National Negro Publishers Association; Rev. W A. Jernagin, Director of the Fraternal Council of Negro Churches; George L. P. Weaver, Director of CIO Committee Against Discrimination; James B. Cobb, Secretary sition.

The sole Negro to appear in favor of the Education Committee, National Alliance of Postal Employess; M. W. Perry of the National Lawyers Guild. Dr Howard H Long of the American Teachers Association and Dr. E. W. Taggart, President of the National Dental Association, field statements in oppo- of segregated regional education was Dr. Daniel Thomas Rolfe, faculty member of Meharry Medical School and executiv. secretary of Meharry Alumni Association.

In a blistering attack on the southern proposal, Thurgood Marshall, NAACP Special Counsel, told members of the Senate Judiciary subcommittee: "The responsibility of the southern states to educate their Negro citizens cannot constitutionally be met by any plan which would force a Negro medical student from Texas to attend a regional medical school in Tennessee, while his white compatriot attends the University of Texas Medical School. The compact appears to be based on the twisted reasoning that what each southern state is forbidden to do individually can be lawfully accomplished if some of them act together. But the reality remans that so long as a state provides education to white students within its borders there is no legal way for it to deny such education to its Negro citizens. We do not assume that the southern governors propose to close down existing facilities and send all their students elsewhere in order to overcome this initial legal hazard."

"The truth is that in order to increase educational opportunities for its citizens, the south must give up segregation," Mr. Marshall insisted. "The southern states can neither jointly nor severally provide equality in a segregated set-up.'

The NAACP attorney said that Congress shoull not give its consent but that if it did the only way that the rights of Negro citizens would be protected would be for Congress to amend the compact so as to "guarantee that there will be no distinction as to race, creed, color or sex as to students, faculty or administrative officers' in regional schools.

Speaking for the 50 life insurance companies that make up The National Negro Insurance Association, President M. C. Clarke told the senators that his group was "unqualifiedly oposed to giving congressional blessings to the reprehensible compact."

The Senate Resolution was introduced by twenty-eight senators some of whom come from states as far north as Maryland and West Virginia. Washington observers believe that the compact will be speedily approved by Congress unless Negroes and enlightened whites thruout the country are thoroughly aroused.

Commenting on the legislative situation, Walter White, Executive Sec retary of the NAACP said: "Our only hope of defeating this brazen scheme to extend and entrench educational segregation is for Negroes all over the country to swamp their senators and congressmen with letters, telegrams, telephone calls and personal visits. Congress must be made to know that we lo not intend to take this 'laying down' '.

In a joint statement, Mr. Johnson and Mr. Nabrit took the prewar school year 1939-40 to illustrate the observance of the theory of separate but equal facilities in education. They pointed out:

"In that year, $136,500,000 was spent for higher education in that area for all citizens, both public and private funds. Of this sum, $126,000,000 was spent for the education of whites only. Of the total sum, Negroes received $10,000,000. If Negroes had received their proportional share of this money, they would have received $31,500,000."

The first witness to testify against the compact was Mrs. Alma assells, executive secretary of the National Association of Colored Nurses, Inc., New York City.

Governor Caldwell has stressed in his testimony that a conference of 400 educators at Gainesville, Florida, had endorsed the regional educational scheme. Mrs. Vessels asked what colored educators had been consulted. Governor Caldwell named as present at the Gainesville conference Dr. Frederick D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute; Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University; President W. H. Gray of Florida A. and M. College, and President Trenholm of Alabama State Teachers College.

Governor Caldwell also said the Gainesville conference had recommended that one colored representative from each of the fourteen states be added to the Regional Council created by the compact. This council will consist of two members from each state, in addition to the governor. One of these members must be an educator.

NAACP Will Fight Tuskegee Sell Out

New York Amsterdam
NEW YORK — (NNPA) —

Branding the tentative arrangement under which the Tuskegee Institute would provide veterinary medical training to colored youths in the South as "a little regional school plan," Thurgood Marshall, special NAACP counsel said last week the association opposes the unconstitutional plan and intends to fight it.

The proposed plan calls for the admission of qualified colored students to so-called white universities.

Plan Unconstitutional

Speaking for himself and as representative of the association, Mr. Marshall opined that the arrangement "is not only bad but is into by Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, at a meeting on regional services in veterinary medicine held in Atlanta last Oct. 6, attended also by: Ralph B. Draughon, president, Alabama Polytechnic Institute; R. S. Sugg, dean, School of Veterinary Medicine, Alabama Polytechnic Institute, T. S. Williams, dean, School of Veterinary Medicine, Tuskegee; Harmon Caldwell, president, University of Georgia; T. J. Jones, dean, School of Veterinary Medicine. University of

Conferees Listed

The arrangement was entered

SEEK BETTER SCHOOLS—Governor Caldwell (left) of Florida was joined by two educators yesterday in urging establishment of regional institutions of learning over the South. They are Dr. Raymond R. Paty (center) of the Rich Foundation at Atlanta and Dr. Doak Campbell, of Florida State University.

Regional College Dangers

Were South Carolina and allied southern states to succeed in establishing a regional medical college as they now propose to do, they would have circumvented the Supreme Court's ruling in the Gaines case of ten years ago, in which the high court bound each State to furnish equal facilities and opportunities to learn to all races, though the court did not then rule against racial segregation.

But more important a danger to southern Negroes is a general license the Southern States would then hold. They could by the same argument and law or devise, abolish the colleges, high schools and even elementary schools in their respective States and establish, in lieu, a single, common institution, supported jointly, to which Negroes would be directed. In plain words, if congress or southern Negroes permit southern governors to take over Meharry Medical College and operate it as the alternate to providing within their separate States the medical colleges for Negroes the law requires, congress and Negroes will lend support to scrapping the present system entirely, as inadequate as it is. A State could then, if it elected to do so, tell Negro students entering college to go to the regional college or get no degrees. At the same time, the State would operate white colleges in much the present fashion. For example, South Carolina now spends around $400,000 a year on the white medical college at Charleston. Its share under the regional college plan is but $35,000.

Tuskegee "Sells Out"

Would Accept All Southern Students

Final Agreement to Be Reached Later

BUDGET ESTIMATE

Two Colleges Named for Whites in Section

ATLANTA (NNPA) — Under the regional education program, which is being pursued without Congressional approval, Tuskegee Institute has tentatively agreed to provide veterinary medical training for colored students in Southern States, it was learned last Wednesday.

The proposal, worked out at a meeting held in the offices of the Regional Council for Education on Oct. 6, provides for similar training being furnished white students from Southern States at Alabama Polytechnic Institute and the University of Georgia.

The meeting was called after the Regional Education Council had explored practical ways for meeting urgent needs for veterinary medical training in the Southeast. Alabama Polytechnic, the one State-supported school having a veterinary medical school, has been unable to accommodate the number of students applying for admission.

One Colored Person at Meeting

Present at the meeting were: Ralph B. Draughon, president, Alabama Polytechnic; R. S. Sugg, dean of the School of Veterinary Medicine at Alabama Polytechnic; Frederick D. Patterson, president, Tuskegee Institute; Harmon Caldwell, president, University of Georgia; John E. Ivey Jr., director Regional Education Council; W. J. McClothin, associate director of the council, and Mrs. Margaret C. James, program assistant.

Estimates of land-grant college presidents in Southeastern States of the annual number of students wanting veterinary training were Florida — 12 white, 1 colored; Georgia—10 colored; Mississippi—20 white, 10 colored; North Carolina—30 white, 5 colored; South Carolina—20 white, 2 colored.

The School of Veterinary Medicine at Tuskegee has an enrollment of 49 students. A number of these are from other states, but no other state contributes to its support. The current operating budget is $65,000, appropriated by the State of Alabama, plus amounts collected from tuition and fees.

New Budget Estimate

It was estimated that within the next two years the capacity can be increased to 20 students, with 48 from Alabama and 152 from other Southern States. To expand, Tuskegee would need $50,000 for additional equipment; $50,000 to complete the physical plant, and an operating budget of from $175,000 to $250,000.

Under the proposal each co-operating State will pay to the Regional Council for Education $1000 for each student enrolled in the regional schools.

Another meeting of representatives of land-grant colleges in the 15 Southern States is to be held to reach a final agreement for meeting the immediate demands for veterinary training.

TUCK FAVORS SEGREGATION

RICHMOND (NNPA) — Gov. William M. Tuck last Wednesday told the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation here he would continue to work against abolition of race segregation in any form in the State, "regardless of sentiment in Washington."

Sunday's column regarding the American Vegetarian Party included this party's platform, which, among other things, indorsed chiropracty. Dr. A. C. Sowers, of Marietta, President of the Georgia Chiropractic Association, telephoned to emphasize the fact that the Georgia Chiropractic Association has no affiliation whatsoever with the Vegetarian Party. As a matter of fact, the Georgia Chiropractic President said he had never heard of the Vegetarian Party.

The 1947 Legislature, which holds its final session in November to inaugurate the new Governor, has two members who have been elected prosecuting attorneys and one who has been

A Fast Start for Regional Education

The regional education plan for the South is getting off to a much better start than even its sponsors, the Southern Governors, anticipated. A program for immediately inaugurating regional professional and graduate schools, financed cooperatively by the Southern States, will be submitted to the Legislatures in many States in January. Actual enrollment of students in these new institutions of higher learning will be under way by the Fall quarter in 1949.

No obstruction is seen in any Legislature over the South, according to Florida's Gov. Millard Caldwell, chairman of the Regional Council for Education, which met here Monday. The Southern political leaders are ready to join the long campaign of Southern educators in pooling Southern resources to improve educational facilities for Southern young people.

In January, the Governor in each of several Southern States will go before his own Legislature and ask it to approve contracts for offering the finest type of education. He also will ask his General Assembly for funds to pay his State's share of the expenses in establishing these regional services. These services, paid for through the combined efforts of many States, will provide educational advantages that no Southern State thus far has been able to finance for its own young people.

It is probable that the Veterinary School now being built on the University of Georgia campus will become the first regional school under the new setup. Training for veterinarians in this rapidly developing livestock country is listed as the No. 1 project by the Regional Council. So it is likely that Florida, South Carolina and other States will be contributing funds to the Georgia school and sending students to Athens for training. On the other hand, Georgia will be putting up funds to help pay for its students' education in certain graduate courses in Florida or South Carolina which are not offered in this State. By this swapping method, the young people of Georgia, South Carolina, Florida and other Southern States all will receive the finest type of education in all fields.

This business of co-operation among the States has grown to a national scale since the Southern chosen as a judge. Jack Flynt, of Griffin, and Ben Garland, of Jackson, are the newly elected Solicitors General. Paul Etheridge, of Atlanta, was chosen Judge of the Civil Court of Fulton County. At the recent special session, Garland collected as a sourvenir of the "Two-Governor Session" the autograph of every House member.

Dixie Educators Express Support For a Regional Educational System

The Courier-Journal Louisville Ky.

Segregation Factor Denied

Thur 12-2-48

Memphis, Dec. 1 (AP)—Widespread support of the Southern Governors' plan for regional education was expressed by top-flight Dixie educators here today.

The educators met in a panel discussion of the problem after a general session of the 53d meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

The plan, as outlined by Governor Millard F. Caldwell of Florida, would have the South pool its resources and intelligence to set up a great system of schools.

Expense to Be Shared.

Caldwell is a member of the Southern Governors Conference and chairman of the Governors' Committee on Regional Education. The conference has set up a regional council of education.

The Florida Governor said the council proposes that Southern States decide what schools are needed and then organize them—sharing the expense.

At discussions following Caldwell's talk, Chancellor J. D. Williams of the University of Mississippi gave the plan unqualified approval. Thur 12-2-48

Chancellor Williams said he had approached the entire plan with some degree of suspicion. But, he added, he was now convinced "it is deserving of the support of everyone who is interested in the development of our region." He said the plan has "nothing to do with segregation."

Governor Caldwell, in outlining the regional education plan earlier today, told educators the South is failing to provide adequate education on the graduate level.

"We have schools in some fields which are schools in name only," he said. They are not worth what they are costing. They are not worth the time the students put in. And many fields we are not touching at all."

He added: "I believe I am safe in saying that before another school year starts we will have regional schools in operation."

Caldwell said separate regional schools should be set up for Negroes.

Dentists Again Condemn Regional Schools, to Continue Scholarships

Afro American Baltimore Md. 14c(2) Sat 8-21-48

Dr. Dixon, New NDA Head, Says Group Will Remain Potent Factor for Civil Rights

(See List of Delegates on Page 12, Section 1)

NEWARK—The National Dental Association went on record at its 35th annual convention here last week, as it did previously at Congressional hearings, as "unalterably opposed" to regional educational institutions as planned by a compact involving 14 Southern States.

Dr. Russell A. Dixon, the group's new president, pointed out that the NDA is liquid and will continue to sponsor scholarships for worthy students in dental schools, and research and post-graduate education in its annual programs.

Back 'Rights' Fight

He added that the association would continue as a "potent factor" in the fight for civil rights and social legislation—as is found in various bills before Congress—and for Federal aid to education.

The delegates voted to hold the 1949 convention in Kansas City, Mo., the second week in August.

Delegates Censured

Dr. Dixon, last Friday, admonished delegates at the 35th annual convention "to focus greater attention on the scientific aspects and basic responsibilities of the profession, and to minimize the social aspects of the convention program." Sat 8-21-48

He spoke at the closing session of the five-day meeting at Newark Arts High School following his installation, succeeding Dr. E. W. Taggart of Birmingham.

The veteran dean of Howard University's School of Dentistry called for an increased and specific budget for the eight scientific dental sections, and charges each with a competitive responsibility to develop the "finest scientific program possible."

The installation was conducted by Dr. Taggart, who was presented the past president's key by Dr. C. W. Dorsey, chairman of the awards committee.

Dr. Dixon also called attention to the emphasis and public play which has been considered important with relation to the vast shortages of professional personnel, particularly in the South.

However, he dismissed the appaling statistics of the shortages as more or less academic and pointed to the "trememdous psychological problem involved." He said:

"The great psychological problem is bound to lead to mass frustration among the youthful graduates all over the United States, unless the facilities for dental and other professional education are expanded tremendously."

Howard's Problem

He cited the situation at Howard, where he has been a professor for 19 years and dean for 17 years, stating that Howard had received more than 1000 applications for the dental school, although able to accept only 50.

Howard alone had to disappoint 950 students who, he said, "are already showing frustration in their conversation and approach because they simply are unable to find a place to prepare for life."

He recalled cases of 1944 graduates who have sought admission to Howard annually, but because of the huge number of applications, have been repeatedly disappointed.

Dr. Dixon pointed out that this condition will require the greatest patience and foresight on the part of parents, teachers and students themselves if they are to be helped over this period of frustration."

He praised the rapid growth of NDA. which started as a handful of interested men who gathered annually for conference on dental problems at Buckroe Beach, Va., with little hope that a national association would emerge from their efforts.

"It has emerged," he emphasized, "and today it has the highest percentage of membership attending its sessions of any professional organization—734 of the 1600 colored dentists in America came to Newark."

Censure Supported

Dr. Dixon's warning to delegates to devote more time to the scientific aspect of their profession had been discussed in the NDA's executive board sessions, and was called to the convention's attention by its program chairman, Dr. W. H. Hunter of Cleveland.

Dr. Hunter said he had been "embarrassed" by the low attendance at some of the scientific clinics which attracted as few as 10 and 12 doctors, although there were 734 registered at the convention, exclusive of 27 dental hygienists and 75 technicians on hand.

Dr. Roscoe Brown of Washington, D.C., elaborated on the program chairman's remarks, declaring that many of the dentists combined their vacations with the convention and came more "to frolic than for scientific help."

Dr. Dixon's Career

A graduate of Northwestern University, the Howard dental dean is also active in church work.

He is the first and only colored member of the five-member executive committee of the National Committee of the National Laymen's Fellowship of Congregational Christian Churches.

He is president-elect of the Pan-American Odontological Association, an international organization of dentists.

He will be installed as the president of this group, succeeding Dr. Walter A. Wright of New York University, the incumbent, at the annual meeting in New York in December.

Other Officers Named

Besides Dr. Dixon, new officers elected [illegible] 8-21-48

Drs. William D. Giles of Chicago, president-elect; M. L. Walton, Thomasville, Ga., elevated from the executive board to vice president; and Leroy Gates, Darby, Pa., and R. L. Jackson, Kansas City, Mo., former zone vice presidents, and W. W. Jones, Charleston, S.C., elevated to the executive board.

Drs. R. Anderson, Pittsburgh, and Edward L. Grant, St. Louis, Mo., were elected zone vice presidents, replacing the two named to the executive board.

Able Secretary Re-elected

Dr. John A. Jackson of Charlottesville, Va., was renamed secretary-treasurer for the 17th year, while Dr. H. C. Edwards of Washington, D.C., was re-elected assistant secretary.

Dr. C. E. Williams, Chicago, whose term expired this year, was re-elected to the executive board, and Dr. I. S. Toler of Mississippi was elected to replace Dr. Walton, new vice president, on the board.

Four other zone vice presidents were re-elected. They are Drs. R. A. Harris, Cleveland; John Chiles, Staunton, Va.; R. Q. Venson, Memphis, and O. L. Lattimore, Houston, Tex.

Sat 8-21-48

More Leaders

Other officers renamed include: Drs. S. L. Lewis, Manassas, Va., editor of the NDA Bulletin; H. W. Hunter, Cleveland, program chairman; Millard R. Dean, Washington, D.C., publicity; H. C. Edwards, Washington, D.C., scholarship stamp fund; W. L. Grady, Washington, D.C., veterans' service; R. H. Thompson, Westfield, N.J., international relations; and Haley W. Bell, Detroit, chairman of exhibits.

Other members of the executive board, whose terms do not expire until 1949 or 1950, include:

Drs. W. M. Springer, Cincinnati, chairman; J. E. Watts, Vaux Hall, N.J.; Charles W. Dorsey, Philadelphia; C. L. Barnes, Houston, Tex.; Alex S. Hunter, Durham, N.C.; A. M. Mackel, Natchez, Miss.; D. L. Claiborne, Chicago; J. E. Carter, Augusta, Ga.; H. M. Proffitt, Helena, Ark., and Waldo Howard, Houston, Tex.

Kentuckians Of Both Parties Withdraw Support Of Southern Regional Schools; Significant Editorial Published By Louisville Courier Journal

Louisville, Ky.—The drive to get congressional approval of Negro regional schools in the South is being coupled with the drive to punish President Truman for proposing his Civil Rights program by the friends of the president, with the result that the proposal for the regionals may get pigeonholed in congress.

In a recent issue of the Louisville Leader there was a notable editorial from the famed Louisville Courier Journal, Democratic newspaper made famous by the late Henry Watterson, a letter to that newspaper from a reader and a release from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, all of which, when taken together would indicate that the plan of regional schools, including the plan of reducing Meharry Medical College to the status of a Southern regional school, faces rough sledding such as the proponents of the regionals had little reason to expect.

The Courier Journal editorial denounces the Dixie revolters of its party in language that they had little reason to believe a Southern newspaper would use. The editorial calls attention to the fact that the Democrats of Kentucky already have gone on record in their official organization in opposition to joining the revolt. That is indicated as meaning that powerful Senator Alben W. Barkley, the Democratic leader in the Senate, will not likely aid the Southern governors in the passage of legislation that would be embarrassing to President Truman, the regional school idea being such legislation.

The Courier Journal editorial says that the revolters, from Gov. Tuck of Virginia to Gov. Wright of Mississippi, have only a negative program and have confessed themselves to be bereft of leadership when they try to drag in Gen. Eisenhower as their nominee for the presidency. The editorial says further:

"But of course there is more to the rebellion than an involvement of moral, social and constitutional questions. Or rather, we should say, that the real issue is far less than any of those lofty pretensions. It is plain effort to obtain a status of national political power which many a Southern politician fancies belongs uniquely to the South and has been somehow ravished from it. White supremacy is simply a tried and true call to battle. However, if the Southern politician feels himself disinherited by shifts of control in the Democratic Party, you may suggest that this is not the result of any machinations. It is the result of just such attitudes as the rebels are so furiously defending, attitudes, that do not belong to these times. The Bourbons have not been robbed of anything. They have simply been left behind."

Just recently the Kentucky officials announced that they were withdrawing their previous endorsement of the regional school plan and also Senator Cooper, Republican of Kentucky announced that he was against the regional segregated schools.

Mr. Emmett V. Mittlebeeler writing to the Courier Journal, urged Kentucky to remain aloof from the compact entered into by some Southern governors. Says he:

"If the plan is to provide equal educational opportunities for Negroes, the plan is bound to be a failure. As long as a Negro studen is obliged to travel outside the State, while white students may attend school within the State, there is no equality of educational opportunity no matter what fine-spun, legalistic sophistry is used to justify it.

"Would the academic standards of a regional school be as high as those of a white State college or university? There is no reason to believe that they would be. Southern States are notoriously parsimonious in their appropriations to colored schools now, and they would probably be even more so in their support of regional schools.

"The only solution in Kentucky, it seems to me, is to allow colored students to attend graduate and professional schools here, just as if they were whites. There is no reason why Negroes should not enjoy the same privileges as whites in pursuing graduate or professional studies of this State. We cannot evade it much longer. This is no time for 'halfway measures' that really solve nothing."

In connection with the publication of the Courier Journal editorial and the letter of Mr. Mittlebeeler, the Leader published the facts brought out by the NAACP showing that in South Carolina, according to a study made by Jewish Students of the University of S. C., that state is currently spending more than 32 million dollars annually to educate white people and only a little more than 7 million to educate colored people. For higher education, $8,235,500 is spent for whites and $523,000 for colored. For elementary schools, $22,278,658 is spent for whites and $7,349,749 for colored. For transportation of pupils, whites get $2,200,000 and colonly $64,000.

South Carolina operates five institutions of higher learning for wnites, including a military and a medical school. Only one is operated for colored students.

There are 9,655 white public school teachers in the state to 6,304 colored. The colored population of South Carolina is 43 per cent of the total. Thus it is shown that South Carolina is "short-changing" the colored children of at least 558 of the teachers they would be entitled to on a fair percentage of the number of teachers being employed in the public schools, not to mention the amount of short-changing that is taking place in the pay for colored teachers.

These revelations are made in connection with the fact that one of the Southern governors engaged in the effort to make Meharry Medical College a Southern regional school is Gov. Thurmon of South Carolina. He also is one of the bitterest foes of President Truman because of what the President has proposed in his Civil Rights program.

While President M. Don Clawson is informing the Meharry alumni that he is positive of passage of his proposal to get the Southern States to take over the medical school as a Southern Negro regional, Walter White, on behalf of the NAACP is calling upon all citizens opposed to letting the school come under the domination of the Southern governors to write, wire and otherwise contact senators and representatives, urging them to defeat the plan.

In his appeal, the secretary of the NAACP points out that only one colored person appeared before congress to urge the passage of the bill to make Meharry a Southern Regional School, saying:

"The sole Negro to appear in favor of segregated region education was Dr. Daniel Thomas Rolfe, faculty member of Meharry and executive secretary of the Meharry Alumni Association."

On the other hand, Mr. White points out that the following array of colored leaders appeared as fighters against the proposal:

Thurgood Marshall, Special Counsel for the NAACP; Dr. J. G. Gathings, National Medical Association; Dr Milard R. Dean, National Dental Association; M. C. Clark, President National Negro Insurance Association; Alma Vessells, Secretary National Association Colored Graduate Nurses; George M. Johnson, and James Nabrit, Land Grant Colleges; Dr. Martin D. Jenkins, National Negro Publishers Association; Rev. W. H. Jernagin, Fraternal Council of Negro Churches; George L. P. Weaver, CIO Committee Against Discrimination; James E. Cobb, National Alliance of Postal Employees; M. W. Perry, National Lawyers Guild, Dr. Howard H. Long, American Teachers Association, and Dr. E. W. Taggart, President National Dental Association, filed statements in opposition.

Approval of the regional school scheme by congress had its best chance, it appears, while it was being maneuvered in secrecy by the Southern senators and congressmen. But when it was submitted to committee hearings and the NAACP and other colored leaders were permitted to show that the scheme was a move in opposition to all that President Truman was saying and all that the Republican leadership was doing with respect to implementing the 14th Amendment with Civil Rights laws, the scheme was revealed as inifmical to the welfare of both political parties and calculated to drive thousands of voters into the camp of Henry A. Wallace.

It is believed by many that even should the regional school plan get through congress it would be vetoed by President Truman, and the opponents would not be able to muster enough votes to pass it over the President's veto.

...th To Open ... Area Schools In Sept., 1949

Technical Panels Named To Explore Demand For Services

ATLANTA, Oct. 11. — (AP) — Southern regional schools, operated through the cooperation of several states, will be ready to open by September, 1949, Gov. Millard Caldwell, of Florida, said today.

Contracts for the actual operation of regional professional and graduate schools will be submitted to the legislatures of Southern states in January, Caldwell said.

The regional council for education, of which Caldwell is chairman, held a closed meeting here today. Caldwell reported results in a press conference.

The council voted to name technical commissions to explore the immediate demand and need for regional education services, develop specific proposals regarding facilities needed to meet these demands and needs, and proposed methods for inaugurating a regional educational service program.

These proposals are to be ready for presentation to state legislatures by Jan. 15.

States in which regional contracts are involved will be asked to provide funds to finance the regional education of their students, the Florida Governor said.

The council concluded the most immediate needs are regional schools in veterinary medicine, medical and health services, social work, forestry, engineering, law and graduate studies, he added.

The council approved appointmnet of Dr. John Ivey, of Atlanta, as executive director. It set up a budget of $63,000 for the year.

NO NEGRO INVITED TO SIT IN ON SOUTHERN EDUCATION CONFAB

By Dr. Leonard F. Morse

JACKSONVILLE, FLA. — (G) — Because the Southern Governors have not yet invited a single Negro to sit in on their deliberations concerning Negro education, it is being doubted that their liberalism concerning Negro education is genuine. Not only are there no Negro educators who have been invited to take part in the sessions, but, with one exception, no white man serving as state director or supervisor of Negro work has been invited to these meetings.

When any group says that it is concerned about any matter, but refuses to its meetings the very people most capable of giving information and advice, it is difficult to feel that there is much sincerity or honesty, in a gathering.

Dixie Governors Pledge Fight On Guard Control, Oil Issue

SAVANNAH, GA., Dec. 14 — (AP)— Southern governors heard some harsh barrages against Washington today and then pledged to fight federal control of the national guard and tideland oil reserves.

Topping a two-day Southern Governors Conference, the Dixie executives also struck again at federal civil rights proposals. And they voted fresh action alleged freight rate discrimination.

They were in harmony with Uncle Sam on their familiar states right theme in only one field. Col. Barnet W. Beers, executive assistant in the U. S. Civil Defense Planning Office, gave assurance that the national civilian defense program in any new war would give states a top role.

Later, the governors created a Southern Foundation to tell the rest of the nation the South's story.

The Southern Governors Conference declared millions of Americans hold "an unfavorable attitude" toward the South "created and perpetuated by untruths and half-truths."

The Foundation will "correctly" inform the nation, a resolution declared, so that "no fair-minded person can be further misled concerning the South." The program would be financed jointly by 15 Southern states.

Federal control of the National Guard has been proposed to defense Secretary Forrestal by a committee headed by Gordon Gray, assistant secretary of the army.

A resolution branded the Gray report "un-American, unconstitutional and contrary to the basic principles of our American form of government."

The governors also turned down a proposal that the South establish a lobbying bureau in Washington to battle the fair employment practices act.

South Carolina's Gov. J. Strom Thurmond defeated States' Rights Presidential Candidate, told the governors that an unnamed friend suggested the South could benefit by having such a Washington bureau.

North Carolina's Gov. Gregg Cherry commented that each state has congressmen to represent them in Washington. The governors followed Cherry's recommendation that action on Thurmond's suggestion be deferred.

Earlier, Adj. Gen. Milton A. Reckford, of Maryland struck at "power-mad big boys in the Pentagon department of the Army "whom he said would destroy the Guard and American democracy.

Gov. Beauford Jester of Texas accused some federal agencies of spreading "false and misleading propaganda" on tideland oil reserve. The conference backed Jester's plea to Congress to hand specific control of submerged coastal lands to the states.

14 Southern States Adopt Regional Education Plan

SAVANNAH, GA., Dec. 13 — (AP)— Governors and educators from 14 Southern states late today adopted the nation's first program of regional education.

After more than a year of talk, a unique and intricate plan was approved in which the states would contribute to meet the entire South's top needs in college education.

The initial program will be restricted to medical, dental and veterinary training — with emphasis on more and better education for Negroes under the South's traditional pattern of racial segregation.

The complex formula now goes to state legislatures with the sanction of the Southern governors' conference, meeting here concurrently with the Southern Regional Council of Education.

If the lawmakers agree to put up a recommended $1,736,000 for the first two years, the revolutionary share-the-wealth scheme will begin operating next Fall.

$2,434,000 yearly cost

The cost would total $2,434,000 a year when regional operations hit full pace after four years.

Governor Millard Caldwell of Florida, chairman of the Southern Governors' Education Committee, and Governor Preston Lane of Maryland chairman of the Southern Governors' Conference, hailed today's action as an historical move to bring the South out of educational doldrums.

Approval was unanimous after governors and educators met for two hours behind closed doors. None of the discussion was made public.

Southern Negroes will get their first state-sponsored medical training under the program. A $600,000 biennial fund was approved for Meharry Medical College for Negroes in Nashville, Tenn. The governors had been warned the South's largest Negro medical school would close unless they came to the rescue.

In each phase of the program, states will be assigned a specific quota of students to send to regional schools. The sending state will pay $1,000 a year for veterinary students and $1,500 for medical and dental students.

Low Tuition Rates

All pupils get the advantage of the same low tuition rates charged residents of the state in which the regional schools are located.

The regional council approved in principle but recommended no immediate funds for other proposed fields.

Governor Caldwell was re-elected chairman of the regional council's educational committee. His term in Florida expires this year, but rules were changed to permit non-members of the council to serve as chairman.

Kentucky is the only Southern state not participating in the regional education program. A spokesman for the council said talks would be undertaken with Gov. Earle Clements in an effort to include Kentucky.

Each state would put up $14,000 in the first two-year budget to administer the regional program.

Eight states which have no dental schools agreed to try to chip in $45,000 each to send students to other states where dental schools are underway. The eight are Arkansas, Florida, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, and West Virginia.

Total budgets were:

Alabama — $54,600 for Negro medical education, total $68,600.

Florida—$33,000 for 11 veterinary students annually, $36,600 for Negro medical training, $112,500 for white medical training, $45,000 for dental studies, total $122,600.

Georgia—$9,000 for three Negro veterinary students annually, $60,600 for Negro medical training, total $83,600.

Southern Governors Seek Aid Of Congress For Regional Plan

WASHINGTON, D. C. — (ANP)—Presenting their signed plan for regional schols of higher education in the South, southern governors cornered congressmen from their states and asked them to seek congressional approval of their ideas.

The plan calls for 15 southern states to form a regional board of control to set up professional and technical education, for both Negroes and whites.

Of the 16 states 11 have signed. They are Maryland, South Carolina, Arkansas, Texas, Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, Tennessee, Florida, North Carolina and Virginia. West Virginia and Kentucy are expected to sign soon, and so are Louisiana and Oklahoma. Gov. Millard F. Caldwell of Florida said.

Gov. Caldwell, who presided over the meeting of southern governors and legislators here recently, called this plan "the most significant step forward in education within a century."

Meharry Medical College for Negroes would fold unless the regional plan is accepted, according to Tennessee's Gov. Jim Nance McCord. An operating deficit will cause this failure, he said.

Gov. Caldwell has asked for immediate approval of the governors' pact by Congress and by state legislatures.

Veterinary Training No. 1 on Region Plan

14e(2) The Atlanta Constitution

Atlanta, Ga By CHARLES BARRETT Mon-12-6-48
Associated Press Staff Writer

The South's share-the-wealth move in college education is slated to get out of the talking stage and into action next week.

Southern Governors, flanked by 150 college presidents and deans, meet in Savannah next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday to discuss the nation's pioneer plan for regional education.

They are expected to adopt their first specific program for regional operations, in at least one field—veterinary education.

And they will outline more research and spadework toward extending their scheme into almost all branches of higher education.

The idea is that by regional planning and financing, the South can provide far more and better education that the single State could work out individually.

Not all States, for example, can afford an expensive veterinary school. Demand wouldn't justify a separate school in each State, either. But, by establishing several regional schools, each State has almost all the advantages of its own veterinary college.

A research committee of educators is ready to recommend that veterinary schools at Oklahoma A&M, Auburn, Tuskegee Institute for Negroes and the University of Georgia be the first to embark on the regional program. 14e(2) Mon-12-6-48

It should work like this:

A student from North Carolina, for example, could attend the Georgia school at the same low tuition rate charged for Georgia students. Otherwise, he would have to pay higher out-of-state rates, and might not be able to afford veterinary education unless his own State established a school.

The State of North Carolina however, would draw from a regional education fund to pay a certain amount for each student it sends to Georgia. Thus the regional school would get top financial support, with low rates for all students.

Southern Governors have been talking about such a system since they approved the general idea in Asheville, N. C., in October, 1947. They have created a Regional Education Council to work out details. The Council meets in Savannah with the Southern Governors' Conference.

The specific operating plan for veterinary education will be submitted to State legislatures this Winter and Spring. If as many as six States approve, regional education will begin at the Fall term in 1949.

Committees, meanwhile, will continue studies in other fields—to determine the South's top needs in education and how to meet them. Tagged for action next are medical schools—including dentistry, pharmacy and nursing—and graduate schools.

In the background is the problem of higher education for Negroes. Southerners hope to give a rapid boost to Negro education through the regional plan. And thus they hope to preserve, in large part, their tradition of segregation of races.

Dr. Clement Assails Critics Of 'Prexies' Stand On Regional Plan

The Lighthouse - June 4-4-48

14e(2) Atlanta Ga

RALEIGH, N.C.—(SNS)—"South-ern Governors have started a revolt, based not on states' rights, but dealing with human rights," declared Dr. Rufus E. Clement, President, Atlanta University, Atlanta, Georgia in an address delivered before the convocation of Negro teachers of North Carolina at their annual meeting in Raleigh last Friday.

June 4-4-48

The Atlanta University President, speaking on the subject, "Democracy in the South," said that the Southern Governors are making more difficult the state department's job in advancing the "American foreign policy." The speaker said this revolt was precipitated by The Truman's civil rights' report, especially the section dealing with education.

Because so many Negroes are criticising some Negro college presidents for the part they are taking in the matter of regional schools," declared the educator, "I think it important that this statement of my position be made," The critical Negroes named by Dr. Clement included Mrs. Mojeska Simpkins, writer for the Norfolk Journal and Guide, Norfolk, Virginia, and Walter White, Executive Secretary, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

June 4-4-48

SOUND PLAN, HE SAYS

"The planning of regional schools is sound." assured the educator, "if it does not attempt to circumvent the recent Supreme Court decision on providing equal education for Negroes." Further, he said, to me there is nothing in the proposed plan that makes the system racial if it attempts to improve the quality of education in the South for all of the people." He pointed out that the "southern educators who are working on this plan are way ahead of the southern politicians."

PLAN NOT NEW

Referring more specifically to Mrs. Simpkins criticism, Dr. Clement said, "To call Negro college presidents who attended the Gainesville, Florida meeting on regional planning, 'fifth columnists' is false. I would call her a liar" said Dr. Clement, "if she was not a lady. As for Mr. White, he should know better, because just before he went to Tuskegee for the regional meeting of the NAACP, I told him of the position of the Negro college presidents on regional schools."

The regional school idea is nothing new, he said, "as late as 1945 the southern graduate deans issued a report on the value of such a system and the plans discussed at a conference when the president of the University of Florida was inaugurated. At the inaugural exercises several other Negroes attended because they thought it best for them to have their 'two-cent-piece' to say before the plans were made than afterwards."

He also pointed to certain liberals in the New South. And concluding, he pointed out the dangers of following the leadership of Henry A. Wallace, since Wallace is now apparently following a program of appeasement for Russia.

Condemn Regional School Plan As 'Another Jim Crow Device'

mittee on Southern Regional Studies and Education of the American Council on Education. During the past two years he has been also Professor of Sociology and Director of the Division of Research Interpretation at the University of North Carolina.

NEW YORK — The NAACP this week condemned the proposed regional school plan proposed by the 14 governors of southern states at their meeting in Savannah as "just another device to perpetuate Jim Crow education." It is designed to circumvent the clear intent of the U.S. Supreme court decisions involving the rights of Negro citizens to attend tax-supported colleges a spokesman said.

The plan proposed by the governors, whereby each state would

DR. JOHN E. IVEY
Heads Education Program

Ivey Chosen To Draft Dixie Educational Plan

The Atlanta Daily World

Dr. John E. Ivey, of the University of North Carolina was chosen yesterday to prepare a detailed plan on which the South can build its regional education system.

The 30-year-old specialist in Southern resources was named by a committee of educators meeting in Tallahassee, Fla. He will direct an 18-month study of the region's needs and opportunities for interstate cooperation in training of youth in technical and professional fields.

Dr. Ivey will have headquarters in Atlanta. He has resigned from the University of North Carolina faculty and will begin his new duties immediately.

Gov. Millard Caldwell, of Florida, Chairman of the 14-State Regional Council for Education, said Dr. Ivey will have two major jobs:

(1) To draft plans for setting up regional courses and research facilities, initially in fields where there is an immediate need;

(2) To prepare a long-range study on which the South can build a system of co-operative institutions designed to give Southern youths the technical training they need "without their leaving the South for educations and never bringing their talents home."

Dr. Ivey and a research staff to be set up under a $100,000 budget will also prepare factual information on regional education which may be made available to State Legislatures when they are asked to ratify the 14-State pact next year.

Dr. Ivey is a native of North Carolina, but lived most of his life in Auburn, Ala., where his father was a professor at Alabama Polytechnic Institute. Dr. Ivey received his bachelor of science degrees there and his doctor of philosophy degree at the University of North Carolina. For six years he has been a member of the faculty of the University of North Carolina.

be taxed by the regional group for contributions to finance the education of white and Negro students in subsidized schools of higher education, maintaining the racial segregation pattern, was hit by the NAACP as being in itself illegal.

It was charged that as under the present state segregated schools, Negroes would be discriminated against in that most of the state funds would go to finance the education of whites, and only a fraction of the total amounts allocated for Negro education just as it is now in the public schools of the south.

Plan Foundation

As part of the regional program the governors have set up a "regional foundation" designed to do public relations work in "selling the South to the nation", which is interpreted by some persons as a plan for selling the southern idea of racial discrimination and segregation to the nation.

The board of governors are also making provisions for the inclusion of two educators, one white and one Negro, from each state to serve on the advisory board of the regional school idea.

Now that the 14 southern governors have agreed on a plan for jointly sponsoring a program of regional colleges and professional schools, they will return to their various states and seek enabling legislation from their state legislatures, along with appropriations to finance the plan.

The basic amount to be contributed by each of the 14 states is set at $14,000 for the first years budget, with additional funds for those states which have no professional dental or medical or veteranty schools. As a sop to Negroes, the plan proposed to bail out Meharry medical college, which is reported to be near closing for want of financial support, and financial aid to the veteranary school of Tuskegee institute, where Dr. Frederick D. Patterson is the only outstanding Negro educator so far to speak favorably of the plan.

Three other Negro educators, heads of schools in the south, have condemned the plan as offered with the express purpose of "perpetuating discrimination and segregation in higher education in the south."

Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard university, declared the plan "no where approximates a fair approach to equality in opportunity for Negro youth."

Dr. Benjamin Mays, president of Morehouse College, says the regional plan's main and primary purpose is "to maintain and perpetuate racial segregation in education at the graduate level".

Dr. Rufus Clement, president of Atlanta university predicted earlier that the governors conference would fail to produce a program which would equalize the opportunities for higher education between whites and Negroes in the south.

Dr. Jenkins Sets High Goals For Morgan; Scores Regional Schools

BALTIMORE, Md. — (NNPA) —The time has come when colored student can be freely admitten without "restrictive qualifications," to every public institution of higher learning in Maryland, Dr. Martin David Jenkins declared last Friday night in his inaugural address as the seventh president of Morgan State College.

In accepting the symbols of authority from Carrington L. Davis, a member of the school's board of trustees, Dr. Jenkins declared that he proposed to operate the kind of institution the people of Maryland want, although he personally is opposed to racial segregation.

Dr. Jenkins said he very well knew at the time he accepted the presidency of Morgan that it is a segregated institution and his discussion of the future program of the college "was based on the promise that it will serve directly a minority group."

Expressing the hope that no one will interpret this view as a defense of racial segregation in education, Dr. Jenkins said he was opposed to segregation because:

ASSUMPTION NOT SUPPORTED

1. He rejects "the basic assumption underlying all phases of racial segregation, namely, that Negroes are inherently and inescapably inferior." This assumption he declared, "has surely been destroyed by scientific findings in psychology, sociology and anthropology during the past quarter century, as well as by the record of outstanding achievements of individual Negroes."

2. Its "practices deprives Negroes of occupational, education and other civic benefits and has served both to depress the general level of accomplishment of the group and to deprive our society of the value of the accomplishment which might have been."

3. "Its practices have beaked our nation's position of world leadership."

4. "It is contrary to Christian ethics and inconsistent with the democratic principles on which our society is based."

MORGAN'S OBJECTIVES

Discussing the objectives and program of Morgan, Dr. Jenkins said the college must adapt its program to the needs of the colored people. "I believe," he said, "the only justification for the existence of an institution with a minority group clientele lies in its ability to meet the special needs of that clientele."

He outlined the obligations of the college to be, first, to its students, next that of the conservation and enhancement of knowledge, and the third to the community.

During the inauguration ceremonies, Governor William P. Lane, Jr., pledged his administration to the maintenance of the "integrity of the faculty and the existing board of trustees" of Morgan.

Obviously, the governor was referring to recent suggestions that the college be brought under the administration of the University of Maryland.

Judge Morris A. Soper, of the Fourth United State Circuit Court of Appeals, and chairman of the trustee board of the college, presided at the ceremonies.

INVOCATION OFFERED

The invocation was offered by the Rev. Joshua O. Williams, pastor of Sharp Street Memorial Methodist Church.

Dr. Johnson W. Davis, president of West Virginia State College, condemned the proposal to establish regional schools on a segregated basis in the South as "wrong and unconstitutional" in his address. Dr. John Dale Russell, of the U. S. Office of Education, also spoke.

Dr. Dwight O. W. Holmes, president emeritus, was given an ovation when he spoke to the audience which filled the Douglass High School. Morgan has no auditorium.

Educators, Governors To Work On Regional Schools

Dr. John E. Ivey, Jr., director of the Regional Council for Education, told this representative Thursday that "for the first time in history fourteen state governors and two hundred educators will meet together to work out specific proposals for interstate cooperation in higher education on a regional basis."

Speaking to newsmen in the conference room of the Regional Council for Education, 101 Building, Marietta Street, Dr. Ivey described a meeting to be held in Savannah Sunday, December 12, in conjunction with the Southern Governors' Conference.

Atlanta University's President Rufus Clement and Dr. S. M. Nabrit, dean of Atlanta University, were listed among representatives of 55 southern colleges and universities who will work on the action phases of a program for regional education at this meeting. The group will participate in a work-conference, sponsored by the Regional Council for Education and held in conjunction with the Southern Governors Conference. The membership of the council includes the governors of and two additional members from each of the 14 southern states.

Approximately 150 to 200 presidents and deans of the 55 institutions are expected to spend Sunday considering the findings of three commissions which have been working on problems of regional education. On Monday, December 13, the work-conference participants will submit recommendations on these problems to the Regional Council for Education. The participants have been invited to attend the council's meeting on that day as advisors.

The three commissions, whose findings will be studied by the work-conference participants, have been studying training needs in the fields of veterinary medicine, medical and related training, and graduate studies. In addition to reviewing the commission findings, the conferees will prepare recommendations regarding further study in these and other fields.

Emphasizing that the council's method of work is based on collaboration, Dr. Ivey stated that the organization expects 'to involve large numbers of educational and lay leaders in the studies it will guide, so that understanding will increase and sound conclusions will be drawn." This collaboration involves such methods as that illustrated b ythe Savannah work-conference, the consideration of the council's program by various educational organizations, and the employment of experts in various fields to work on specific phases of the council's program. The Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and the Conference of Southern Graduate Deans have agreed to cooperate in developing a program of regional education. The program of regional education. The program is one of the considerations on the agenda of the Association of Colleges and Secondary schools for egroes; meeting at present in Wilmington, N. C.

WIDE REPRESENTATION

Thirty-five white colleges and universities and 14 Negro land-grant colleges in the region, also other southern Negro institutions have been invited to send representatives to the work-conference.

Dr. Ivey listed the following educators from Georgia who will attend the Savannah meetings:

Chancellor Harmon Caldwell, University of Georgia; Dr. Raymond R. Paty, director of Rich's Foundation; Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president, and Dr. S. M. Nabrit, dean, of Atlanta University; J. C. Dixon, director Southern Education Foundation; Dr. G. H. Boyd, dean, University of Georgia; Dr. Goodrich White, president, Emory University; Boisfeuillet Jones, dean of Administration, Emory University; Dr. O. C. Aderhold, dean of education, University of Georgia; Dr. Houston Stallworth, acting director of Agriculture; Fort Valley State College; Dr. James A. Colston, president, Georgia State College; Dr. Thomas J. Jones, dean, School of Veterinary Medicine, University of Georgia; and Dr. R. C. Wilson, dean emeritus, School of Pharmacy, University of Georgia.

Alternatives To The Regional College Plan

The Columbia Record

Governor Millard Caldwell of Florida promises that the South will go ahead with its plan for regional schools to provide professional and technical training for its students that can not be provided on a state-by-state basis, this despite the rejection by the Senate of the resolution to grant congressional approval to the compact between the Southern states to establish these schools.

The compact resolution was not rejected. Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon, who told the Senators that congressional approval of the compact was unnecessary, threatened however to amend the resolution to require that any school set up under the compact should bar segregation of the races. And rather than face this explosive issue the Senate recommitted the bill.

If Senator Morse's interpretation of the supreme court decisions is right—and it may be that he is right—the Southern states can go ahead with their regional schools as planned, without congressional approval. Already Virginia and West Virginia, without congressional approval, are operating a joint medical school.

The chief immediate purpose of the compact is the establishment of regional schools for Negroes in the South to provide professional and graduate training for qualified Negro students, of whom no Southern state has enough to warrant the expenditures necessary to set up segregated schools in each of the states.

The council on regional education will begin a $100,000 survey of educational facilities in the South to determine what the South has and needs for both white and Negro students.

"It is important to the South that the education facilities for the Negro be improved," Governor Caldwell said, "and that the members of that race be given the best there is in education under the circumstances inherent in this section of the country.

"The South is proceeding in accordance with our original plans."

There is, however, one possible legal defect in the regional college idea. The supreme court of the United States has held in the Gaines decision that the states must provide equal educational facilities within the state for both races. To set up a state-supported college in another state might not meet the conditions of this decision, unless all higher education and professional training were set up on a regional basis. Logic suggests that the regional schools should be used for those subjects in which each of the states has only a small number of students.

The Columbia Record

The two alternatives, consistent with Southern constitutions which require segregation of the races, are either to set up separate schools duplicating the higher educational institutions provided for whites—a suggestion that would reduce the level of instruction for both races since most of the Southern states do not have the money to finance such a duplication of educational facilities—or to set up in the existing universities and colleges segregated colleges and schools for Negroes, taught by the same professors and instructors that teach the white students. This would not require separate administration and the faculty and other facilities could be used more economically. The objection to this plan—and it is the only other feasible plan if segregation be maintained as it must under the constitutions—is that it does not allow for Negro professors, as the segregated regional schools would allow. And if the Negroes are to make the advances in education that they should they need to develop for themselves their own leadership and they need the outlet of faculty jobs for the graduates of the post-graduate schools.

New Regional School Storm Brews in Dixie

The Courier

ATLANTA, Ga.—A new storm is brewing on the educational horizon again as white Dixie educators prepare to steamroller regional schools into existence by next September by merely designating certain already existing institutions as such schools. But Negro leaders are preparing to go to court to prove such schools are not "equal."

Predicated upon the original efforts of Southern Governors to set up such institutions and the subsequent losing fight in the U. S. Senate, these Governors made an agreement whereby schools designated as "regional" schools will be used by all States, with the pro rata cost of operation being paid from out-of-State education budgets already created.

The executive committee of the Educational Council of the Southern Governor's Conference has plans for the program now under study at its headquarters here in Atlanta.

It is understood that the plans call for the designation of Atlanta University as such a regional school. The plan also embraces similar institutions for white students.

Is The South To Proceed With Regional Schools?

Journal and Guide, Norfolk Va.

REMARKABLE news comes out of Atlanta by way of the New York Times for Sunday, June 20, to the effect that "Leaders in government and education in the South are going ahead with plans to establish separate regional schools for Negroes in fields of higher education; and they expect to have them in operation this fall." Congress has refused to approve the regional school compact.

We do not know by what magic southern leaders in government and education in the South can establish and put into operation of separate regional schools for Negroes in the fields aforesaid and have them in operation by the fall of 1948

The only "magic" which the southern political and educational statesmen may be able to work is to assume, by invitation, sponsorship for Meharry Medical College in Tennessee, including its hospital, which is a ten-million-dollar institution for the training of doctors, dentists, and pharmacists, and which was privately established and has been privately maintained for 60 years or more.

Meharry has grown to the point where, without substantial endowment—which it does not have—it cannot annually balance its budget with normal income. In recent years annual deficits have been met from private sources. Meharry is now reported as finding itself in the predicament of having to arrange with a group of the southern states for financial support or face the possibility of closing temporarily.

We can only hope that if this well equipped medical college is finally included in the proposed regional school plan it will not become a political football for the group of southern states which is purported to be ready to join in underwriting a part of its maintenance and operation. We should regret to see the competent scientists and medical professors, white and colored, now serving the institution, who have been specially trained over a period of years, replaced by political hacks in the medical profession in the South. as has been so often true of municipal, county, and state medical services.

We also express the hope that it will not be restaffed with a view to trying to indoctrinate the minds of the students with the slave psychology of the old South, which still dominates the minds of most of the ruling educational and political leaders of the southern states.

UNFORTUNATELY, the regional school plan is not an educational plan. Not being an educational plan it is merely a subterfuge, an evasion, a fraud, and a deception.

It was not evolved with the idea of affording southern Negroes better educational opportunity, but with the idea of permanently fastening upon the Negroes of the South a system of caste; in simpler terms, a system of perpetual discrimination and lack of opportunity. It was planned to perpetuate the inferior, scandalously inequitable system of state-controlled education for Negroes in the southern states. It was planned for a political purpose and not for an educational purpose.

What the southern leaders in government and education propose to do—or hope to do—is to take over some fifty million dollars worth of educational plants which have been accumulated over the years by the "sweat, toil, blood, and tears" of Negroes in the South and by northern friends, and use these properties, or rather prostitute these properties, to the use of a damnable system of racial discrimination.

If the southern states wanted to do so, each one could first show its good faith by equalizing the facilities of the one or, occasionally, the two institutions which they now pretend to support in their own borders. There is nothing in experience to inspire confidence that regional schools would not be run on a shoe-string just like the state schools are now run.

For example, there is nothing in the governmental situation of Virginia to justify the discrimination that is obvious in the appropriation of more than thirty millions of dollars for the higher education of whites and less than two million dollars biennially for the higher education of its colored citizens, who constitute one-fourth of the state's population.

If Virginia wanted to do so, it could dentistry, but Virginia does not want to do this.

Virginia only needs the will to do it. a greater disgrace to the individual southern states, but instead collectively.

Virginia has the money, but this state, except in medicine. law and the most suspect forms of political immorality to make what is now a disgrace to the several states

GINIA STATE COLLEGE a first class institution for higher education in almost every field essential to the continued advancement of the Negro citizens of within the next five years make of VIR-

of spending some of it at home. Virginia joins in a movement conceived in

$76,400 For Negro Institution, $17,450,000 For Whites Proposed

GAINESVILLE, Fla. —(ANP)— Two phases of the drive of the south to set up "separate but equal" educational opportunity for Negroes and whites were announced here March 5.

Dr. J. Hillis Miller, new president of the University of Florida, proposed a budget of $17,450,000 for a building program to "supply a rich program of lectureships and artistic offerings."

The Southern Regional Education council, on the same day, proposed a budget, too—$76,400 to get the ball 'rolling" in its plan for regional schools for the whole south.

FORMED BY SOUTHERNERS

The regional council was recently formed by southern leaders, supposedly to establish colleges to equalize the education of Negroes and whites in the south.

Fifteen member states of the council are asking help from philanthropic educational groups to raise a sum that is a mere pittance or "chicken feed" in today's high state budgets, while one state, Florida, will be asked to appropriate $17 million for one college only.

The schools to be set up by the regional council on its thousands of dollars are expected to provide educational facilities for Negroes as good as those supported by millions of dollars like the University of Florida for whites.

tional and institutional-care facilities.

Alabama Turns Down Regional School Plan

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—(ANP)—The proposal by the southern states to establish regional schools in the south to give Negroes "adequate educational facilities." is not liked by Negroes throughout the state. In the words of E. D. Nixon president of the state NAACP branch, "the plan would not give Negroes adequate educational facilities.

"This makeshift in education will not guarantee Negro citizens the same opportunities as whites within their own states and Negroes in Alabama are highly opposed to a regional set up.

A recent statewide meeting of Negro leaders voted to demand admission to the University of Auburn and Alabama. Nixon said that should this be denied, the association would bring court action to force the state to open their doors to any and all applicants

In addition, he said a state board of education's suggestion that specialized education be made available at the State Teachers college "would be acceptable only if the extended facilities will be comparable to these at the two state universities."

Governors Favor Regional School Plan

By Associated Negro Press

PORTSMOUTH, N .H. — Winding up their activities at the 40th annual National Governors conference over the weekend, governors voted in favor of congressional approval of the regional college pact for Negroes.

Governors from 37 states and three territories attended the meetings. They went on record as approving of compacts among groups of states. In line with this resolution the conference voted that Congress should vote for the two compacts now before it.

One of these pacts is the 14 state southern regional school scheme, and the other is among

REGIONAL SCHOOL'S FEUD:

White Insists Clement, 3 More Aid J. C. Plan

NEW YORK (NNPA)—Walter White, NAACP executive secretary, met the charge that he is a "liar," hurled by Dr. Rufus Clement of Atlanta University, head on here March 30, in a statement to the NNPA's News Service.

He hinted broadly that not only Dr. Clement, but three other Southern college presidents were involved in a deal to set up regional schools in line with the wishes of Southern governors.

Mr. White did not name the other three presidents, but it has already been alleged that Dr. Frederick D. Patterson of Tuskegee Institute, and Dr. William H. Gray of Florida A. and M. College, attended the governors' meeting in Florida, at which the formula for regional schools was agreed upon.

Emotionalism Revealing

The text of Mr. White's statement to the NNPA News Service follows:

"President Clement's emotionalism, as reported in the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers on April 3 is somewhat surprising and possibly revealing. Speaking of accuracy, I did not talk with Mr. Clement for 'about an hour' as he states.

"He made his statement to approximately 30 or 35 persons at the Butler Street YMCA in Atlanta on the evening of March 19. Attending this meeting were the executive committee of the Atlanta Branch of the NAACP, members of the Pan-Hellenic Council, and other citizens.

Clement Evaded Issue

"At no time have I stated that President Clement approved the Southern regional plan, although several others at the meeting attempted unsuccessfully to elicit from him a definite statement of whether he had approved or disapproved the plan in part or in toto.

"The only statement I made and on which I stand was as follows: 'That four Southern colored college presidents have been reported in the press to have met recently with the Southern governors in Florida.'

"I stated that the public is entitled to an explanation from these four college presidents as to why they went to this meeting, what they said about the regional college plan, what they did, and what they did not do or say.

"I then stated that a reasonable time would be given to permit these four men to give an accounting to the public. That is the only statement I made.

Must Affirm or Deny

"But now I would like to add this statement:

"Will the four college presidents, one of whom is Dr. Clement, affirm or deny that one Southern university was scheduled to have a regional law school, racially segregated?

"Another, a segregated medical school, and others to have segregated professional and graduate schools on other subjects, as a means of assisting the South to evade the clear-cut mandate of the U.S. Supreme Court in the Gaines and Sipuel cases?

"Bolstering the finances of the colored colleges; and fastening segregation at the regional level on the Southern colored people for the next half century?

6 Congressmen Pledge Fight Against Regional Colleges

NEW YORK—Six Congressmen, Republicans and Democrats, have given specific assurances to the NAACP that the Southern plan for segregated regional colleges will meet bi-partisan opposition in Congress, in letters to the association last week. They were: Reps. Claude I. Bakewell (Rep., Mo.); Melvin Price (Dem., Ill.); A. J. Sabath (Dem., Ill.); Walter B. Huber (Dem., Ohio); T. Millet Hand (Rep., Me.), and John S. Rooney (Dem., N.Y.). A dozen other Congressmen expressed a "sympathetic" interest in the NAACP's position.

FOR SEGREGATED SCHOOLS

Governor Caldwell of Florida Asks Aid for Negro Students

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 1 (ANP)—Gov. Millard F. Caldwell of Florida said today that "Negro education in dental and medical fields can be had in this country only on a segregated basis."

And, he said, "if segregation were abolished today you'd have about 900 Negro medical and dental students thrown out of school."

Mr. Caldwell told the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, however, that the South was not doing its part in providing facilities for Negro Medical and dental students.

He urged that regional schools be set up, on a segregated basis, to provide better facilities for whites and Negroes alike.

Mr. Caldwell is chairman of the Southern Governors Conference and of the Governors' committee on regional education.

14e(2) 1948

New System To Be Established By September

State Legislatures Will Be Asked To Approve The Plan

ATLANTA, Ga. (NNPA) — Despite refusal of Congress to ratify the compact of sixteen Southern states to establish regional schools, plans are being pushed to see such schools opened by next September.

After a meeting of the Southern Regional Council for Education on Monday, October 11, attended by four governors and seven presidents of colored state colleges, Governor Millard Caldwell, of Florida, chairman of the council, said contracts for the actual operation of regional graduate and professional schools will be submitted to the legislatures of southern states in January.

Opponents of the plan have charged that the purpose of its proponents is to perpetuate segregation in the field of higher education and that Congressional approval was sought to strengthen the position of southern states if more cases involving the question of racial segregation in education are carried to the United States Supreme Court.

TO OPEN IN SEPTEMBER

Regional schools operated through the cooperation of several states will be ready to open by September, 1949, Governor Caldwell told a press conference.

The council voted to name technical commissions to explore the immediate demand and need for regional educational services, develop specific proposals regarding facilities needed to meet these demands and needs, and to propose methods for inaugurating a regional school program.

Governor Caldwell said the state legislatures will be asked in January to approve contracts for the operation of regional schools and to appropriate funds to finance the regional education of their students.

The council approved the appointment of Dr. John Ivey as executive director, with headquarters in Atlanta, and W. J. McGlothin as associate director, and set up a budget of $63,000 for the year.

OTHERS ATTENDING

In addition to Governor Caldwell, Governor-elect Fuller Warren of Florida, Governor Jim McCord of Tennessee and Governor William Tuck of Virginia attended the council meeting.

Presidents of colored state colleges who were in attendance included William H. Gray, president of Florida Agricuture and Mechanical College; Lawrence A. Davis, president Arkansas A. and M. College; C. V. Troup, president of Fort Valley (Georgia) State College; William E. Henry, president of Maryland State College; Alonzo Elder, president of North Carolina State College; George L. Harrison, president of Langston University, and W. H. Banks, president emeritus of Prairie View (Texas) State College.

Some Phases Of Regional Plan Held Desirable

Dr. Dent Elected Head Of High School And College Association

WILMINGTON, N. C.—The Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools at its annual meeting held here Dec. 8-10 urged passage of a bill providing for federal aid to education. The group also pledged its full support toward implementing President Truman's civil rights program.

In another resolution, the association endorsed the report of the President's Commission on Higher Education, but went on record as recommending that further study be given to the importance of federal aid to private colleges.

The recommendations were a part of six major resolutions adopted by the body during three days of sessions held at Williston Industrial School of which Fred J. Rogers is principal. The meeting opened Wednesday night with a welcome program featuring greetings from Mayor E. L. White of Wilmington and Superintendent of Schools H. M. Roland and music by the Williston Choral Club.

DR. LANIER SPEAKS

The main address at the opening session was delivered by Dr. R. O'Hara Lanier, president of Texas University, Austin, Texas. President Lanier, who urged that "Education should be for democracy," warned that there is a danger of people becoming so race conscious that they become bitter. He urged the development of "a culture of excellence," and declared that no minority group can be satisfied with "just getting by."

Dr. Lanier averred that education today faces five basic issues. Its first and major concern, he said, "is whether education can do anything to preserve democracy. Democracy as an objective of education must be retained, he stated, in the face of "opposing philosophies which take advantage of hunger, disgruntled people, and underprivileged groups."

DR. DENT ELECTED

Dr. Albert W. Dent, president of Dillard University, New Orleans, La., was elected to head the 15-year-old organization during 1949. Mr. Dent, who succeeds S. E. Duncan, Raleigh, supervisor of Negro high schools in North Carolina, moves up to the new post from that of first vice president which he held during the past year.

I. B. Bryant, principal of Booker T. Washington High School, Houston, Texas, was elected first vice president, advancing from the office of second vice president, which he held last year and to which George A. Gore, dean of A. and I. College, Nashville, Tenn., was chosen at this session.

Other officers elected at the meeting were, L. S. Cozart, president of Barber Scotia College, Concord, N. C., secretary-treasurer; Frand DeCosta, S. C. State College, and Fred Rogers, Williston High School, Wilmington, members of the executive committee.

REGIONAL SCHOOLS

The association reaffirmed its belief that the principle of regional cooperation and regional schools in some graduate and professional areas is sound, provided such schools are not established on the basis of racial segregation.

The association voted to hold its next annual meeting at Bethune-Cookman College, Daytona Beach, Fla., Dec. 7, 8 and 9, 1949. The invitation to the body was extended by President R. V. Moore of Bethune-Cookman.

Regional Education

The Southern Governors' plan for regional professional education embodies undeniable advances in educational opportunities for white and Negro post-graduate students in that education-poor area. Men and women of the Southern States who would otherwise probably have to forgo medical, dental and veterinary education will be enabled under the regional program, to attend accredited schools within the Southern States on tuition scholarships. These opportunities will be severely limited, to be sure, both in number of students and in types of education. But the advantages are certainly worth careful assaying.

Furthermore, the composition of the regional educational council which will administer the plan shows another and probably even more significant step forward. Negro educators of the South have already participated in some degree in formulating the plan. At the Savannah meeting the council and the Southern Conference of Governors approved an expansion of the council's membership. An additional member from each of the 14 States was authorized, with the understanding that the added appointees would be Negro educators. When leading Southern whites show themselves willing, as they have here, to remove the racial barrier in administering this program there is reason to hope for a similar progress in due course further down the line.

That the barrier has not been so removed all through the operation of this program is a tragedy. White students will go to white medical schools, Negroes to Negro medical schools, and so on for the other professional schools. The plan obviously attempts to accomplish the impossible of "separate but equal" education. It is the most expensive way of going about the solution of one of the South's most pressing problems—and therefore the most foolish way since the South—less than any other region—can afford the luxury of dual educational systems. And finally, it is a deep wrong against America's aspirations. As Justice Harlan said in Plessy v. Ferguson in 1896, "Our Constitution is color blind." Our educational system, if it is to impart real devotion to the spirit of the Constitution, ought to be equally color blind.

Regional Education

The proposal of the Southern Governors' Conference to establish regional schools in the South at existing institutions was forcefully presented to the meeting here of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. It was encouraging to find it given both vigorous and enlightened support by many of the educators present.

It is realistic, too, that the point should be made that segregation of the races is not the point of the plan. The program would, however, afford a realistic approach to the problem of providing adequate advanced training to the most capable negro students without upset and delay.

While the South is moving up in the economic scale, the fact remains that most of the states in the South cannot provide special opportunities for all technical and professional training on a satisfactory level. The taxable wealth is just not present so far, even if it were impossible to offer facilities on anything but a state basis.

What is proposed is to take advantage of the speed and ease of present-day transportation, pool the South's resources and intelligence and do an important job far better than it can be done in any other way now open. Otherwise it is unavoidable that many of the more ambitious and capable students of the South will go elsewhere for advanced training and never return here.

It would be unrealistic to assume that the plan for regional schools can be worked out and put into operation easily. On the contrary, there are plainly difficulties to be met and problems to be solved. As far as that goes, things worth doing, especially when tried for the first time, always call for great effort and involve some trouble.

Right now the South's main problem is to get the most for its students out of the funds available, and we believe the regional school offers the best solution. The South is faced by a condition, let it be remembered, and it should not be deterred by the outcries, complaints and criticisms of those who apparently prefer to block everything, if they can, so that they may then charge that nothing is being done.

Departments, Not Schools, Regional Plan

SAVANNAH, Ga. — "We have made no plans and are not making any in regards to Florida A. and M. being offered to the Regional Council for Education as a regional school of nursing," President W. H. Gray Jr. said Monday.

Florida A. and M. is set up to serve the youth of Florida, "and we promise to do just that," he added.

President Rufus Clements of Atlanta University said today that the graduate committee proposed to set up regional departments—not regional schools. This would mean, he said, that the best school

Caldwell Asks Regional Pacts Between States

Florida Governor Backs Dixie School Plan; Pokes Little Fun

Montgomery Advertiser

DETROIT, Dec. 3—(AP)—Governor Millard F. Caldwell, of Florida, urged more regional agreements between states today as a solution to the problem of growing federal power.

The Southern governor spoke at the General Assembly of the States, a three-day meeting of state officials here.

Poking fun at his predominantly northern audience, Caldwell declared that the South planned regional educational institutions which would be the envy of the whole world.

"Our young men have been going north for professional training," he said, "and they've been staying up there. When we build out interstate universities, your young men from the north will start trooping south.

To Whites First

Caldwell said first attention would go to schools for whites, but Negroes would be provided for, too.

Caldwell spoke with assurance of the question of segregation. It was controversy over Negro admission to Southern schools that brought wide publicity to plans for regional schools operated jointly by several states. Single states together can easily build them, the governor said.

Caldwell, a leader in the interstate education movement, asserted that segregation actually provided better opportunities for Negroes to get schooling than if they were required to compete with whites for school admission.

Want To Help Negroes

"We want to train the Negroes," he said. "We want them in our society. I can't say as much for some other sections of the country.

"But if we abolished segregation, we would abolish many splendid institutions such as Tuskegee Institute," he added.

Passing on to other fields of regional agreement between states, Caldwell said important work was being done in regulation of petroleum, stream pollution control, care of delinquents and insane, interstate fisheries on three coasts, migratory labor, airports and judicial affairs.

"There is a vast no man's land between state and federal governments," Caldwell said. "It will be taken over by the federal government if the states don't do something cooperatively about it.

Dr. Patterson Says Policy Follows Line Of AVMA Program

Pittsburgh Courier
Sat 12-4-48
Pittsburgh, Pa.

(Special to The Courier)

TUSKEGEE, Ala.—President F. D. Patterson of Tuskegee Institute told The Courier this week that his institution was "currently considering" the possibility of regional cooperation in the field of veterinary medicine. He said this was "in keeping with recommendations of the American Veterinary Medical Association"—national accrediting body.

Dr. Patterson told The Courier also that the veterinary school at Tuskegee, which was begun five years ago, was started "with full understanding that its enrollment would be regional."

He said that its students now come from Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Florida, Virginia, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Washington, D. C., the British West Indies and seven non-Southern States.

ALABAMA FOOTS BILL

Dr. Patterson told The Courier that the State of Alabama provides current operating funds for the school of medicine.

He said: "Since Alabama Polytechnic Institute and Tuskegee Institute are in Alabama and the only Southern States having veterinary schools for whites and not for Negroes are Georgia and Texas, the remaining Southern States may contract with existing veternary schools for education of both Negro and white students without violating the Supreme Court decision."

Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn, Ala., and the University of Georgia both were mentioned in connection with the idea of regional cooperation with Tuskegee.

REGIONAL POLICY

Dr. Patterson said that veterinary medicine, restricted to from twelve to fourteen institutions in the forty-eight States, has always been regional, pointing out that this policy was in keeping with the American Veterinary Medical Association.

Sat 12-4-48

Information that Tuskegee was considering the regional plan developed from a meeting held Oct. 5 in the offices of the Regional Council for Education, and which was attended by Dr. Patterson. A proposal was offered at that time which embraced facilities of Tuskegee, Alabama Polytechnic Institute and the University of Georgia.

There are forty-nine students in the Tuskegee veterinary school. Representatives of land grant colleges in fifteen Southern States will meet soon to reach final agreement.

New Regional School Storm Brews in Dixie

The Courier
Sat 1-3-48
Pittsburgh Courier

ATLANTA, Ga.—A new storm is brewing on the educational horizon again as white Dixie educators prepare to steamroller regional schools into existence by next September by merely designating certain already existing institutions as such schools. But Negro leaders are preparing to go to court to prove such schools are not "equal."

Predicated upon the original efforts of Southern Governors to set up such institutions and the subsequent losing fight in the U. S. Senate, these Governors made an agreement whereby schools designated as "regional" schools will be used by all States, with the pro rata cost of operation being paid from out-of-State education budgets already created.

The executive committee of the Educational Council of the Southern Governor's Conference has plans for the program now under study at its headquarters here in Atlanta.

Sat 1-3-48

It is understood that the plans call for the designation of Atlanta University as such a regional school. The plan also embraces similar institutions for white students.

MAYS

Pittsburgh Courier
Says Regional School Proposal Should Be Designated by Right Name—Segregation
Sat 1-24-48

By BENJAMIN E. MAYS

(The views expressed in this column are those of the writer and do not necessarily express the editorial opinion of the Pittsburgh Courier. — The Editors)

Pittsburgh, Pa.

I PLEAD for integrity in our concern for regional education. Let us call it by its right name. We want regionalism not for economic reasons. We want it because we are not willing to have Negroes registered in the "white" graduate and professional schools of the South. We want it because we want to extend and perpetuate segregation.

Dr. Mays

The fact that each Southern State can not economically establish two professional schools — one for whites and one for Negroes — is not the point at issue. If the problem were an economic one, the solution would be simple. For example, instead of establishing a new law school at the State College in Orangeburg, S. C., we would simply admit the handful of Negro law students in South Carolina to the law school of the University of South Carolina. If it were economics, no law school would have been founded at the North Carolina College at Durham.

The Negro law students would have been enrolled in the University of North Carolina. The same is true with respect to Missouri. If it were economics, there would be no separate law school in the State of Missouri. Negroes would be enrolled in the University of Missouri.

• • •

IF THIS HAD been done, there would be no need of additional buildings and no need of additional books. The present buildings and library would be ample because the number of Negroes in law in each State would be relatively small. My guess is if Negroes had been admitted to the universities in the States named, no new professors would have needed to be employed. And if so, the need could have been supplied by hiring one or two new teachers in each State. Certainly to admit Negroes to the existing law schools would be much cheaper than building separate ones. So it is not economics. It is to maintain segregation.

The same holds true when it comes to regional schools. It would be cheaper to add a professor and admit Negroes to the State universities than to contribute to a regional professional plan. Evidently, the State of Arkansas understands this. I am only pleading for the honest facing of the facts. If the Southern Governors want to defend segregation by establishing regional schools, for God's sake let them come out and say that and not try to defend it by saying the South is too poor to build two professional schools of each profession in every State. We must be clear on this point. It is not economics. It is segregation.

Sat 12-4-48

WE MUST BE clear at another point. The object of the regional plan is not to provide equal professional education for Negroes and whites. If the Southern States should combine and build one law school for Negroes, I do not believe that all the States combined would appropriate as much money for the one regional Negro law school as North Carolina or Texas will appropriate for their respective law schools. If they should combine and purchase Meharry, I do not believe that the six or eight States combined would appropriate much for Meharry as the State of Tennessee is now appropriating or will appropriate for the medical education of the white youths of Tennessee.

Why do I say this? I say it because all the Southern States believe in inequality. They believe in giving to the white students more money and better facilities than they believe in giving to Negro students. Since they believe in inequality and since they have practiced it so long, I do not believe they will cease to believe in it and cease to practice it because they pool their resources. They are the same people. The States that are unjust in dealing with Negroes within their States will be equally unjust on the regional plan. I oppose the regional plan because I believe it extends and perpetuates both segregation and inequality.

• • •

BUT IT SEEMS strange to me that many who oppose the regional plan seem to accept and welcome extending and perpetuating segregation in the tax-supported institutions. Frankly, I see no difference, except the Federal courts might declare regionalism unconstitutional which it can not do if the State decides to extend segregation within its own borders.

Southerners Told North May Turn To Regional School Plan

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — (ANP) — A group of southern college presidents and deans heard two speakers from the north, Owen D. Young, New York educator and industrialist, and Oliver G. Carmichael, president of the Carnegie —As a result of a meeting here to discuss the setup of regional schools in the foundation, say that state cooperation in operation of schools may come to the north too.

The educators were gathered for a meeting here to discuss the setup of regional schools in the foundation, say that state cooperation in operation of schools may come to the north too.

The educators were gathered for a meeting here to discuss the setup of regional schools planned for the conference was to discuss the taking over of Meharry college as a regional school for Negroes.

Several presidents of southern Negro colleges attended the meeting, and three met with the council in a closed session.

14e(2) 1948

Regional

Tuskegee Goes Regional

AN EDITORIAL

Atlanta Daily World

The decision of Dr. Frederick D. Patterson, President of Tuskegee Institute, to permit the use of his institution as a regional education center, will in all probability, be disappointing to the thousands of graduates and to the host of friends of the institution. From our own standpoint the decision is as unsound as is the idea of the Regional Plan itself. Nevertheless, to us it is perfectly clear how Dr. Patterson arrived at his decision.

Tuskegee, like all other privately operated Negro schools today, is finding it increasingly more difficult to muster up the monies so necessary to finance the far-flung services it has and continues to render to the Negro people of this Nation. Indeed, the question of greatest import among these educators is how to secure the funds necessary to employ the best teachers and to extend the services of the institution to more and more people. Money in capital letters is the compelling motive underlying the decision of Dr. Patterson to accept a regional status for his school. And when he suggests that 100 colored persons, (ostensibly meant for those who are critical of his decision) guarantee the institution $1,000 a year each, or 1,000 persons guarantee the institution $100 a year each, he is saying in the plainest words that he must have money upon which to operate.

With this situation we have the greatest sympathy. But we must not forget that one institution or a number of institutions cannot and should not be placed above the interest of the Negro people, for whom the institutions are established to serve. Regional education is unsound, because it extends discrimination and inequalities ever wider than the present inequalities now being practised by the individual states. It came into being to avoid meeting the challenge of educational equality within the state, under the Supreme Court ruling in the Lloyd Gaines decision. Temporarily, Tuskegee may profit from the few added dollars which will come to her from such an arrangement. But in the long run, the only safe standard by which to judge an institution, Negroes will turn to the institutions which had the courage to take a stand in their own best interest.

SELLING US DOWN THE RIVER

The Chicago Defender

Newest education feud is that presently engaged in by presidents of private colleges and those of State-owned institutions of higher learning.

For years, these private schools have been the pets of churches and private philanthropy.

Tuskegee, Hampton and Atlanta University have 25 millions in endowments. Their campuses and buildings were purchased with money of the Carnegies, Rockefellers, Rosenwalds and other big gift-givers.

For years, these schools had the best teachers and, in general, the best of everything.

But that was 20 years ago. This is the blossom time of the State school.

Philanthropy has shriveled. The Carnegies, Rockefellers and Rosenwalds are no more. Endowment funds yield only 3 or 4 per cent interest, sometimes less.

The once great private schools are now outranked by State schools in the District of Columbia, Tennessee, Virginia, North Carolina and Texas.

The Supreme Court's requirement for equality in education is compelling the States to appropriate new millions for colored colleges in the South.

The problem with Atlanta and Tuskegee (not Hampton or Fisk) is how to get some of these public funds.

The Southern Governors' regional plan, rejected almost unanimously by every State college president, has been seized upon by Tuskegee Institute, Atlanta University and Meharry Medical School as a life-saver.

Atlanta wants the Southern Governors' jim-crow regional graduate school.

Meharry wants the jim-crow regional medical funds.

Tuskegee wants veterinary medicine and anything else not nailed down.

The regional school plan is unconstitutional. The Supreme Court has already ruled that each State must provide equal education for all "within the State."

The Southern Governors plan regional graduate and medical schools for colored students only.

Tuskegee, Atlanta and Meharry know all this. Nevertheless, they propose to trade with the enemy.

We do not think the people, once they have the facts will approve this sell-out by the presidents of private schools.

For a private college or a medical school to compromise on principles for a few thousand dollars is too great a handicap for any educational institution to overcome.

Many a white college operates efficiently on an endowment not as large as that of Tuskegee or Atlanta.

It would be far better for these three schools to limit their students, raise their fees, and to live within their incomes, rather than attempt to sell us down the river educationally.

2 Groups Study Regional School Plan; Seek Action

The Chicago Defender

ATLANTA—(NNPA)—With Tuskegee Institute giving impetus to the efforts of Southern states to set up regional schools on a segregated basis, the Regional Council for Education is developing recommendations for legislative action in the fields in which already exist demands for educational services deemed desirable to meet thorough regional action.

In addition to the veterinary medical training program, under which Tuskegee would be the regional school for all colored persons in the South who desired such training, two other problems, human medicine and health services, and graduate studies, are receiving attention.

Commissions have been appointed to study and analyze these graduate studies.

Meeting Set Dec. 12

A meeting under the auspices of the Regional Council for Education is planned for Dec. 12, the day before the Southern Governors' Conference convenes. Recommendations agreed upon at this meeting will be submitted to the Governors' Conference.

In the matter of human medicine, the Council is still considering the possiblity of conversion of Meharry Medical College into a regional school for colored students in medicine, dentistry and nursing.

At a recent meeting, at the request of Gov. Mallard Caldwell of Florida and Gov. Jim McCord of Tennessee, Cecil Sims made a report on the financial status of Meharry. He stated that funds were available for the operation of the college to June 30, next, and after that date the school will have to close unless other arrangements were made for financing it.

States Must Approve

While Tuskegee, Alabama Polytechnic Institute and the University of Georgia have tentatively agreed to serve as regional schools for veterinary-medical training, there appears to be a number of obstacles to the consummation of the plan.

First, the fourteen states, which are parties to the compact to establish regional schools on a segregated basis, must through their State Legislatures approve of the plan and authorize appropriations to be paid to out-of-state institutions for the training of their citizens.

Patterson Criticized

In the meantime, Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee, is being severly criticized in educational circles for entering into the problems. Dr. W. T. Sanger of the Medical College of Virginia is the chairman of the Commission on Human Medicine and Health Services, and Dr. Harold Stokes, president of Louisiana State University, chairman of the Commission on regional veterinary-medical training program.

One educator, who did not wish his name used said he certainly felt that Dr. Patterson "is harming the educational interests of colored people in America and our democratic pattern of government by subscribing to a plan of racial segregation in education on a wider jurisdictional basis."

Tuskegee Prexy Says School Will Stand If Segregation Ends

Birmingham News

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 6—(AP)—The President of Tuskegee Institute declared yesterday that the abolition of segregation would abolish such schools as Tuskegee Institute. Millard F. Caldwell, governor of Florida, had claimed that it would.

Addressing a general assembly of the states in Detroit Friday, Gov. Caldwell said, "We want to train the Negroes . . . but if we abolish segregation, we would abolish many splendid institutions such as Tuskegee Institute."

F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, was of a different opinion. In an interview yesterday, he said:

"The elimination of racial barriers in education will in no way lessen the need for such institutions as Tuskegee Institute."

PRESIDENT Patterson's comment was that Tuskegee Institute has always had applications from white students for admittance to the Negro school. He said most of the applications come from outside the country has to be educated and if recognized colleges are inadequate to do the job, I don't see how we can build new institutions outright cheaper than we can expand and use institutions of recognized standing.

"The abolition of segregation will start trooping South."

There have been no white students admitted to Tuskegee Institute, Patterson said. "I believe Tuskegee Institute has a mission to perform in higher education for the indefinite future."

We have to turn down a number of such applications each school quarter, he said.

Gov. Caldwell said in Detroit that "when we build our interstate universities, your young men from the North will start trooping South."

would not change the total number of people who require higher education. Those facilities must be provided somewhere.

"Even with the abolition of segregation, a large number of Negro youths will continue to use the institutions that have been serving them." For this reason, Patterson explained, Tuskegee Institute would continue to have an important educational function even if segregation were abolished.

THE PUBLICITY given the racial problem in the South is far ahead of any real understanding of the problem, he said. White and Negro educators should get together and quietly consider the wisest next steps.

Southern governors have an opportunity to bring educators of both races together for discussions of this sort, he said.

Dr. Patterson declined to express his personal feelings about the possibility of white students being admitted to Tuskegee Institute. "It is up to the Tuskegee Institute board of trustees to determine the complexion of students admitted to this school," he said.

CAYTON

Sees Regional Pact As Artful Dodge to Maintain Color Bar In Dixie Schools

By HORACE CAYTON

(The views expressed in this column are those of the writer and do not necessarily express the editorial opinion of The Pittsburgh Courier. — The Editors.)

IT'S the same old South, honey, shut my mouth. I was riding along in the subway doing a little research in the New York Times. On page thirty-three I came across an article describing the recent meeting of Southern governors and educators in Savannah, Ga.

Mr. Cayton

It seems like the governors or their representatives from about fourteen States got together to talk about the problem of Negro education. The Supreme Court's decision that Negroes should have equal educational facilities has embarrassed the gentlemen quite a bit. A rash of institutions for graduate work to accommodate Negro students spread all over the South.

Then the President's Civil Rights program whipped the fire into a flame. It became obvious even to Governer Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi that something had to be done. Wright, incidentally, had prepared the way by his revolt over Truman's civil rights proposal by formation of the Dixiecrats last February. Now with the election of Mr. Truman to the Presidency and the fear of what the new Congress might do, the Southern governors were spurred to an unusual and spurious interest in the education of their Negro citizens.

* * *

AS I SAY, the thing of providing separate and equal facilities was expensive. There was one instance where a Negro decided that he wanted to take law and they had to construct a whole law college for him. Then the man decided that he didn't want to study in a jim-crow college and the State was out the salaries of the instructors, the rent on the building and the cost of a second-hand set of law books.

As Thurgood Marshall's corps of NAACP lawyers seemed to show no signs of "ceasing and desisting" their struggle for the complete integration of the Negro into the educational system of the country, some stopgap measure had to be taken. This was what the Savannah meeting was all about.

Under the plan any student who wished to do graduate work where facilities were not available in their State would be sent to the regional school. The first phase of the program is to be restricted to veterinary training, medicine and dentistry. Thus far, four regional schools for veterinary studies have been set up—the University of Georgia, Auburn, and Oklahoma A. and M. College for whites, and Tuskegee Institute for Negroes. No regional school was set up for white medical and dental students but Meharry Medical School was designated for the Negro regional institution.

Each State participating was to be allowed a quota of students to attend the regional training institution. From the common fund gathered from the participating States there institutions would be paid $1,000 for each student in veterinary medicine and $1,500 for those in medicine or dentistry. That in short is an outline of the plan which was adopted unanimously after two hours of discussion behind closed doors.

* * *

IT'S NOT HARD to figure why the governors came up with this idea. It is a neat device whereby the Southern States will not have to go to the expense of building a new school for Negro graduates and can, at the same time, maintain the color line. Of course, it may tempt some Negro Southern educators who have had a hard time raising money and I regret to say have not always been supported by their own alumni (God knows the Negro doctors have been making a killing this past year.) But to mix a couple of metaphors, any time I see a Greek giving away horses I always like to look them in the mouth. The first reason I would be against the plan would be that Gov. J. Strom Thurmond and Governor Wright are for it. Anything that these gentlemen want to give me is not good medicine. Then I am a little amused at the sudden interest in veterinary science. By the time they get their program under way, if things go on as they are going now, we will have so many light tractors, cotton picking machines, and flame throwing weeders that about the only State which will have a great interest in horses will be Kentucky and that will be only for the Derby.

With the Dixiecrats group in the dog house—where they themselves might need some veterinary service—with the past decision of the United States Supreme Court; with Truman's determination to force through action on both education and civil rights and with the NAACP hammering away at any legal support of segregation, Negroes have an opportunity to win a tremendous victory. The great majority of them will certainly not be hoodwinked by the Savannah conference and its regional plan. At the same time let's keep our eyes on those Southern Senators and a few Negro educators who might be too tempted.

Afro American
Baltimore Md
Sat-11-27-48

NAACP Hits New Regional Education Plan

Atlanta Constitution
Atlanta Georgia
11-13-48

NEW YORK—(AP)—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has condemned a new program of regional education worked out in 14 Southern States as "a device to circumvent the clear intent of the Supreme Court decisions" in cases involving the rights of Negroes to attend Southern schools.

The program, adopted at Savannah, places emphasis on professional and graduate training for Negroes but under the traditional racial segregation pattern. States will control funds on the basis of ability, not race, the NAACP said.

In the South, some Negro leaders agreed with the NAACP's stand on the regional plan but others disagreed in part.

Dr. Mozell Hill, head of the Sociology Department of Atlanta University, admitted his emotions on the subject were "mixed."

Practically, he said, he agreed with the plan and that he believed the idea of regionalism is sound. if it could be divested of the segregation, not be-Cochran, Secretary of Butler Street branch of in Atlanta, said: "Idealct to the plan. Practi-solution. We progress slowly.
perpetuate segregation."

Dr. Benjamin Mays, President of Morehouse College in Atlanta, with segregation
A. T. Walden, Atlanta Negro attorney, said the principle of re-
"Our people have to make progress slowly. I object to calling it segregation. I do not believe the cause of economics."
Warren
the Negro the YMCA in fact that the Southern Governors better is entirely a matter of what should be done for Negroes," are to conform with our democratic ideals, we must do away
"but we must be honest and say that any step forward is much eventually, of course, if we an effort to get around good. Eventua to this extent is encouraging," he added.

14e(2) 1948

Regional College Compact Passes House 235 To 45

Atlanta Daily World
Atlanta, Ga.

Members of the House of Representatives Tuesday approved by a thumping majority, the Southern Governors' proposal to establish jimcro regional colleges for Negroes in answer to the United States Supreme Court decision ordering them to provide equal educational opportunities within the states.

Tuesday's vote, numbering 235 in favor of the governors' compact and 45 opposed, was given in a joint resolution of the House, placing the stamp of approval upon segregation and racial discrimination.

Wed. 5-5-48

The compact will be presented in the Senate tomorrow for approval there also. It is more than an even guess that a similarly large vote will uphold the governors' plea for regional education for Negroes.

Representative Marcantonio said the action "meant that Congress is putting the stamp of approval on segregation." While Representative Reed, a Republican of Illinois and Walters of Penn., spoke in behalf of the resolution saying:

"It is simply an advancement of a plan that has been used by other states for many years. It is a fair and logical way for the southern states to improve their institutions of higher learning."

DISCREDITED PLAN

With the exception of a few isolated college presidents who are seeking funds to keep their school doors open, the regional college plan is extremely unpopular among Negroes, especially in the 15 southern states, where the plan will become operative, if as seem likely, the Senate gives its O. K. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which has spearheaded the fight against discrimination in educational opportunities, has been assured by several senators that they will oppose the plan when it comes up for a vote. But if it is passed by both houses the NAACP will be expected to take the fight back to the United States Supreme court.

Meanwhile, Atlanta Negroes are going forward with plans for a southwide meeting here Saturday, at which educators, white and Negro, will share views and opinions on the plan with a view of drafting up resolutions embodying their findings. Leslie Perry, Administrative Assistant, Washington Bureau of the NAACP, will also be present and speak, giving the latest developments along the NAACP front.

Wed 5-5-48

Regional School Start

The approval by Southern governors of a concrete plan for initiation of specialized regional education, for approval in turn by the legislatures of 14 states involved, marks, of course, a signal advance toward the ideal of co-operative, quota-basis fulfillment of comparatively limited needs.

Atlanta Constitution
Wed 12-15-48

The plan begins wisely with the preservation or expansion of existing Southern facilities in medical, dental and veterinary training. As other fields are added, the need for new institutions may develop. No attempt at an overnight transformation of the particular educational situation involved is contemplated; but there is every prospect for a slow, steady, trial-and-error solution of the whole problem.

This is not a "free tuition" or scholarship plan, though one such project was submitted which may be revived. Contributions sought from the states go to overall maintenance and support of the institutions selected, which institutions supply tuition to individuals at regular rates. The size of the contribution governs, however, the maximum number of admissions per state under the plan. It is conceivable that the contribution formula can be revised downward per pupil as expansion develops in these institutions.

The $600,000 per biennium set aside for Meharry Medical college at Nashville guarantees the continuance of this institution for Negroes, and makes it in a sense the first of the regional schools, since it has been on the point of closing its doors. Other Negro institutions also are designated for participation.

No mention was made at the governors' conference of the dilatory treatment of the plan, presented in the shape of an interstate compact, at the last session of Congress—or whether the pact will again be submitted.

Wed 12-15-48

Memo to the Southern Governors

You have been gathered at historic Savannah for the past three days, discussing ways and means of providing better educational facilities for the youth of your respective States.

Atlanta Georgia
Wed-12-15-48

The Constitution, which was one of the earliest and most enthusiastic supporters of the regional approach to education in graduate, professional and highly specialized fields, rejoices in the progress you have made. We are certain that the working agreement into which you entered at Savannah will be of tremendous benefit to the citizens of the 14 Southern States involved. And we pledge our efforts to making sure that the people and the legislative bodies of this section fully understand and appreciate the necessity of supporting the program.

Wed 12-15-48

Elsewhere in this issue of The Constitution is a news item to which we respectfully call the attention of you Southern Governors who have thus substantially evidenced your determination to offer students in your respective States the best educational opportunities possible under our always limited revenues. It reports that on yesterday Georgia's State Board of Education unanimously adopted as a textbook in the schools of this commonwealth a little book called "The Business of Farming."

Wed-12-15-48

"The Business of Farming" was written by three recognized authorities in the field of practical farming. It is published, as a public service, by the Ida Cason Callaway Foundation and is a nonprofit venture. It was conceived and made possible by one of Georgia's and the South's finest citizens, who, out of his own experiences, has become convinced of the need for such a volume.

We believe that this book, properly utilized, will do as much to improve the prosperity of Georgia agriculture, over a 15 or 20-year period, as any project the State could feasibly undertake.

We could want no better assurance that the State's farmlands will be in capable hands in the years to come than the knowledge that our future farmers are not only being taught progressive agricultural practices, but also being given a practical insight into sound business methods, involving planned operations and budgetary controls.

Wed-12-15-48

If Southern Governors want to further the benefits of education in their States on a high-school as well as university level, we recommend that you return home and urge your respective State systems to follow Georgia's example in making "The Business of Farming" available to every student with a desire to know something about profitable farming.

Emory Eyed In Regional School Plan

Atlanta Constitution
Atlanta, Georgia

Constitution Staff Writer

SAVANNAH — Emory University may be used as a regional school for medical and dental students from some Southern States, regional educators said last night. educators said last night.

Florida and Mississippi — the two States without white medical schools—would like to send medical students to Emory, educators said. Under the regional school plan to be recommended to the Legislatures of the South, these two States would put up $18,500 each every two years to pay for sending 25 medical students each to a regional school.

Eight Southern States would put up $45,000 each biennially to finance regional schools of dentistry. It is probable that Emory may become one of these regional dental schools.

There have been conversations among officials of Florida, Mississippi, the Regional Council and Emory University, it was learned.

Boisfeuillet Jones, Dean of Admissions of Emory, said that any plan to use Emory facilities for regional schools would have to be approved first by Emory's Board of Directors.

The regional plan for State to help pay operating expenses of schools in order to get to send students to them would offer financial relief for a few medical schools in the South whose funds are off, some governors commented.

Wed-12-15-48

DR. MURRAY C. BROWN of Meharry Medical College, and Dean E. L. Carnegie of Florida A. and M. College, are serving on the Commission on Human Medicine and Health Services of the Regional Council for Education, which the Southern Governors' Conference set up to get regional education on a segregated basis established.

Journal Const.
Wed 12-15-48

Dr. George N. Redd of Fisk University, Dean S. M. Nabrit of the Graduate School at Atlanta University, and William H. Gray, jr., Florida A. and M. prexy, are serving on the Commission on Graduate Study.

They were appointed by Governor J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, chairman of the Regional Council for Education and late

Dixiecrat candidate for President

Unanimous Opposition To Segregation Plan Voted By Association Of Colleges, Schools

Wilmington, N. C.—The advocates of regional education, on a plan that will weaken the Negro land grant colleges and at the same time promote racial segregation on an expanded plan, received a severe setback here last week, when the Association of College and Secondary Schools at its annual session rescended its tentative action of favoring regional education.

The action, taken by the association at the Prairie View, Texas session last year. But this year, after finding out what the regional plan is, the association announced in resolutions that it was unanimous opposition to the establishment of such regional schools of

The previous action giving an endorsement regional education was taken by the association at the Prairie View, Texas session last year. But this year, after finding out what the regional plan is, the association announced in resolutions that it was expressing unanimous opposition to the establishment of such regional schools of Schools at its annual session principle and practice of racial segregation as these leaders will have much to say regarding where their graduates will go for professional education. The pledge taken to refuse to cooperate with the Savannah another group of colored plan as it has been promulgated. that "went along" with can mean that few of the states that have been given quotas of students to send to Tuskegee and Meharry will be able to fill these quotas are not filled. If the quotas neither Tuskegee nor Meharry can count on the sums of money from the several states they have been promised.

The delegates to the meeting here

The action, taken by the association at the Prairie View, Texas session last year. But this year, after finding out what the regional plan is, the association announced in resolutions that it was expressing unanimous opposition to the establishment of such regional schools of

The previous action giving an endorsement regional education was taken by the association at the Prairie View, Texas session last year. But this year, after finding out what the regional plan is, the association announced in resolutions that it was expressing unanimous opposition to the establishment of such regional schools of

The action, taken by the association at the Prairie View, Texas session last year. But this year, after finding out what the regional plan is, the association announced in resolutions that it was expressing unanimous opposition to the establishment of such regional schools of

The previous action giving an endorsement regional education was taken by the association at the Prairie View, Texas session last year. But this year, after finding out what the regional plan is, the association announced in resolutions that it was expressing unanimous opposition to the establishment of such regional schools of abandoned a proposed sightseeing trip by bus in order to hear the regional school plan aired out. As if fearing that such an airing out would put cold water on the plan Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University tried hard to get the association to adjourn. However, following a plea by Dr. Bertram W. Doyle, dean of the Louisville Municipal College, the association refused to adjourn. It voted to hear a plea for the regional school plan from William J. McClothin, associate director of the Regional Council for Education who represented the governor of North Carolina. Although every intelligent person in the United States believes that racial segregation is the primary objective of the Regional Council and that it never would have rallied the support of such governors as Wright of Mississippi; Talmadge of Georgia and Thurmond of South Carolina without segregation, Dr. Rufus Clement tried to make a big point out of getting Mr. McClothin to state that "race" was not mentioned in by the council in its deliberation. This use fooled nobody. They listened to Mr. McClothin and grilled him afterward. He failed to convince the educators that they should support the segregated plan for regional education.

Mr. McClothin was frank to admit that the Regional Council for Education which has won the support of a few colored educators, would make no fight to end segregation in education as a means of getting bigger and better schools for the South.

Mr. McClothin was rebuffed in his plea for endorsement of the regional plan when he stated that it was the one and only way to "save Meharry." One educator very significantly retorted that, "If Meharry is not performing service that merits its living, let it die!"

When queried regarding the possible refusal of a majority of the states to give financial support to the regional plan, Mr. McClothin admitted that if this happens it would make planning for regional schools "very difficult."

A virtual admission that the regional plan will run into a lawsuit when attempt is made to put it into operation was made by Mr. McClothin, when he conceded that the plan as drafted does not comply with the law as laid down by U. S. Supreme Court in the Gaines case. "But if we work together, the speaker said, "we soon will have the plan working in compliance with the court's decision."

The Association elected Dr. Albert W. Dent of Dillard University as its president; Prof. I. B. Bryant, principal of Booker T. Washington High School, Houstin, Texas, 1st vice president; Dr. George W. Gore, Jr., dean A. and I. State College, Nashville, Tenn., 2nd vice president; L. S. Cozart, president Barber Scotia College, Concord, N. C., secretary-treasurer.

Regional Colleges

Black Dispatch

Southern governors, disregarding the admonition of the attorney general of Tennessee, when he talked to them earlier in the year, when this honest and forthright public official told the chief executive of southern states assembled that regional colleges will not meet the requirements of the United States Supreme Court, rushed pell mell last week, despite this warning, to set up a regional education plan for Negroes.

Of course we understand and know that in their superficial mouthing the governors, to make it sound legal, talked of regional education for both white and black, but as Oklahoma readers of the Black Dispatch understand and know, Oklahoma has no intention of abandoning graduate training for whites at Norman, and so long as the state educates whites within the state and blacks without, it fails in compliance with the supreme court edict. The court in the Lloyd Gaines case said educational equality must occur within the state.

Suppose, for instance, the State of Oklahoma were to appropriate $94,000 next year for regional schools, just as it has foolishly appropriated $50,000 the current year for a law school, and suppose Negroes refuse to attend the regional school just as they have refused to attend the Langston law school? Do you assume citizens the next biennium would be willing for the legislature to appropriate another $94,000 that goes to educate out-state students outside of his state? Jus do a little reasoning on this subject yourself.

Governor Turner is on record himself in saying the state will not consent to continue the Langston law school if no students attend. The same reaction would follow respecting the regional school. Now let's reverse the picture. Suppose we put up our money and yet the legislatures in one or two of the other states fail to appropriate their apportionment. Suppose they have the same difficulty suggested in Oklahoma, in that none of their Negro students attend. Would Oklahoma be willing to go ahead carrying the load if other states in the region reniged on the job These are important questions for states where hitherto no attention has been given to graduate training for Negroes, are not going to go hog-wild about the idea overnight.

The fact that the Southern Governors are unwilling to spend in the aggregate more than one and one-half million dollars for this effort, shows how abortive is their gesture. It is a sham on its face. To think that deans of Oklahoma colleges would when called upon to make a fair estimate of the cost of graduate training for Negroes in Oklahoma, set the minimum figure at from ten to twelve millions, while southern governors in contemplating upon regional graduate training would stall on one-tenth of this amount is appalling. We are not going to say they do not know the cost, for everyone of them must each year sit in judgment upon expenditures for their state universities. They know the basic costs for graduate facilities. It means they are attempting a hollow sham for Negroes. There is nothing genuine and sincere in this movement. Sat. 12-25-48

We do hope that the Associated Press report which we read in a Galveston newspaper, stating that Governor Turner of Oklahoma is vice president of this newest association dedicated to going around and setting aside the directive of the United States Supreme Court, is incorrect. The report did not say Governor Turner attended the meeting, but named him as being elected the vice president. We do hope the governor will renounce this designation and keep Oklahoma upon the high level it has held itself during this controversial discussion.

We like the forthright manner in which President Benjamin F. Mays, of Morehouse college, responded, when queried regarding his reaction to the regional program of the southern governors. Said Mays:

"We ought to be honest and say it's being done to perpetuate segregation and not say we are doing it because of economics."

Only An Opinion

Georgia Attorney General Eugene Cook, speaking before the National Association of Attorney Generals at Houston Texas Tuesday, said that the so-called Regional school plan is both legal and justified. But in the next breath, he doubts that such a proposal would pass the Congress of the United States. And he might have added, that even if it should be passed by Congress, it would still be a problem of its passage by the United States Supreme Court.

14(2) Atlanta Daily World

Of course, it is not necessary for us to say that Mr. Cook's opinion is quite at variance with legal minds, both in Washington and elsewhere, who think that there is danger in extending the differentials, rather than lessening them, between white and Negro school appropriations.

He also suggests that the regional schools are not only justified and reasonable but have ample precedent. That too, is an opinion which is subject to sharp question and doubt.

Fri-12-3-48

At any rate, until Regional schools are established by law, it would be unsafe to risk an opinion as to their legality. The proposition was turned down in the United States Congress, and should it come up again it will be turned down, we believe.

Qualified People Urged To Test State Schools

Atlanta Daily World
Atlanta Ga. 14(2)

NEW YORK—Preparing to test the legality of the segregated regional college plan, approved by southern governors and educators, the NAACP is urging qualified young Negro men and women to apply for admission to publicly-supported graduate and professional colleges within their respective states. Sun-12-19-48

"We maintain that the plan to ship colored students from one southern state to another for graduate training is in violation of the U. S. Supreme Court decisions in the Gaines and Sipuel cases," Thurgood Marshall, NAACP special counsel said here today. "Accordingly, we urge all qualified Negroes desiring a medical education to apply to the existing publicly-supported medical school in their respective states rather than submit to this unlawful plan."

Mr. Marshall's announcement followed adoption, on December 13, of a resolution by the NAACP Board of Directors condemning the Dixiecrat plan as "false economy contrived to make the public believe that equality is attainable within the framework of segregation. Long and bitter experience has demonstrated the fallacy of the so-called separate but equal provision of facilities."

INEVITABLE BIAS

Inequalities of educational opportunities, the resolution continued, "are inevitable in a segregated system. It vote of 38 to 37 in the Senate after having been the House by an overwhelming vote. Rejection of as the result of the organized protest of the NAA-her educational, labor, civic, church, business and al organizations. Any attempt to obtain ratifithe plan in the 81st Congress will be similarly op-

NAACP announced.

is clear that Negroes cannot trust their rights guaranteed by the Constitution to the 'protection' of the southern states which now seek to extend the segregated pattern to the regional level. Equality is attainable only through unrestricted access to identical facilities."

Vote Virtually Kills Plan Of Southern Governors to Set Up Segregated School

Washington—By the narrow margin of a 38-37 vote, the Senate May 13 sent back to the judiciary committee the resolution ratifying the plan of the southern governors to establish segregated regional professional and graduate colleges. This vote virtually kills the plan for this session of Congress, according to Leslie Perry, Washington representative of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The fight against the extension of segregation to the regional level was spearheaded by the NAACP which rallied the support of a dozen national organizations to testify against approval of this plan at hearings held by the sub-committee of the Senate Judiciary Committee. The plan was rushed through the House of Representatives with an overwhelming vote . The southerners had anticipated a similar victory in the Senate.

Renew Efforts

The Washington office renewed its efforts with Mr. Perry button-holing various senators and particularly senators from northern states with heavy Negro populations and supplying them with information with which to refute the arguments of senators from the south.

Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon threatened to propose an amendment forbidding the establishment of separate institutions for white and Negro students. This was inacceptable to the southerners. He further threatened to amend the resolution by adding civil rights measures such as the anti-poll tax, anti-lynching and fair employment bills.

Supporting the NAACP drive were church groups, fraternal organizations, labor groups, business, professional and educational associations and other organizations. The NAACP and these groups opposed the regional plan as a "scheme to circumvent the Supreme Court decisions in the Gaines and Sipuel cases."

Florida White Students Rap Uprising Of Rebel Governors

MIAMI—In riotous protest over the March 4 meeting of the Southern Governors Regional council at Gainesville, Fla., a group of 35 white students of the University of Florida have labeled the caucus "undemocratic" in that its sponsors "advocate nn unjust and inequitable system of education in the south."

The students were motivated in their action primarily as a result of the Wakulla Springs meeting two weeks ago at which time nine southern governors met and severly criticized President Truman for his request of a civil rights program. These executives meeting at Wakulla Springs last month endorsed a nine-state pact calling for the joint financing and operation of regional education such as no one southern state could presently afford for Negroes.

Rap Governors

The student resolution in part protesting the governors meet reads: "This meeting can only further hatred and prejudice, and our university will inevitably be stigmaby the protest group, but to no avail. The University of Florida student body numbers more than 8,500.

Gov. Millard F. Caldwell, who had just returned to Florida from Washington, is confident that the rebel students will lend their support to the regional movement once they know the facts. Said Gov. Caldwell: "The regional educational plan provides for both white and Negro schools on an interstate basis."

Voters Puzzled

The proposed Jackson Day dinner, March 30 elicited the following tized by the meeting of this group."

Student leaders attempted to forestall the adoption of the resolution remarks from Mrs. J. Reid Ramsey, state committeewoman, at a recent meeting in Jacksonville:

"I am in favor of doing everything possible to make Truman rescind the civil rights bill. Wallace has split the party in the south and I do not feel that the southerners should secede but that they should make Truman rescind the parts of the bill that are objectional. Someone may rise on whom the south could unite and swing the election.

"We would be hopeless if lost if we did secede. We can't go Wallace or to the Republic—

Foundation Is Created to Tell About the South

Governors Plan To Correctly Inform Rest of the Nation

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 14 (AP).—Southern Governors tonight created a Southern Foundation to tell the rest of the Nation the South's story.

The Southern Governors Conference declared millions of Americans hold "an unfavorable attitude" toward the South "created and perpetuated by untruths and half-truths."

The foundation will "correctly" inform the Nation, a resolution declared, so that "no fair-minded person can be further misled concerning the South." The program would be financed joinly by 15 Southern States.

Oppose U. S. Power Extension

Topping a two-day meeting, the Dixie State executives loudly retrumpeted their favorite theme of States rights. After hearing some fiery barrages against Washington, the conference voted against extension of Federal power in three fields.

The Governors pledged to fight proposed control of the National Guard and United States supervision of tideland oil reserves. They again assailed proposed Federal civil rights legislation.

And they approved new action in their long war over alleged freight rate discrimination against the South and West in favor of the North and East.

Gov. William Tuck of Virginia was elected chairman of the conference to succeed Gov. Preston Lane of Maryland.

The Southern Foundation will be directed by the Governors and two citizens to be appointed by executives in each States within 90 days. The board of control will prepare a budget. No specific sum was mentioned today. The foundation was directed to publish an industrial encyclopedia to speed the flow of new industries to the South.

Proposes Bureau in D. C.

Earlier, Gov. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina had proposed a Southern Governors bureau in Washington to fight civil rights legislation in Congress. It was not clear immediately whether the foundation would undertake thi task. The Governors took no specific action on Thurmond's proposal, which he said he relayed from an unnamed party.

The Governors were in harmony with Uncle Sam on their familiar States Right theme in only one field. Col. Barnet W. Beers, executive assistant in the United States civil defense planning office, gave assurance that the national civilian defense program in any new war would give States a top role.

Federal control of the National Guard has been proposed to Secretary of Defense Forrestal by a committee heade dby Gordon Gray, Assistant Secretary of the Army.

A resolution branded the Gray report "Un-American, unconstitutional and contrary to the basic principles of our American form of government."

Earlier, Adj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord of Maryland struck at "power-mad big boys in the Pentagon" (Department of the Army) who, he said, would destroy the Guard and American democracy.

Gov. Beauford Jester of Texas cacused some Federal agencies of spreading "false and misleading propaganda" on Tideland oil reserve. The- conference backed Jester's plea to Congress to hand specific control of submerged coastal lands to the States.

Gov. Herman Talmadge of Georgia presented the resolution again urging Congress to defeat proposals for a Federal fair employment practices commission and Federal laws against lynching, poll taxes and racial segregation.

The Governors decided to employrate experts and attorneys to help get action on their long war against freight rates which they say favor the North and East. The Interstate Commerce Commerce Commission has approved an adjustment in favor of the South but the Governors said there has been too much delay in putting the changes into effect.

Asked to Reconsider Order

The ICC has been asked to reconsider its order. Governor Thurmond said, "we are on the brink of victory. But we must defeat this proposal to reconsider. That would accomplish nothing and delay our goal for many years."

Governor Jester said a recent court decision in a California case has been interpreted as giving the Federal government power over tideland oil. Unless Congress gives the states control, Jester charged, "this is the kick-off to nationalization of many vital natural resources."

He warned that Federal control would be extended to minerals, fishing and other fields along inland waterways as well as the coast.

General Reckord declared complete Federal supervision of the National Guard would destroy the spirit of state militia. He said federalization would be "building a military monster at the expense of the civil population.

Dixie Educators Select Regional School Planner

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—A committee of educators on Aug. 2 selected Dr. John E. Ivey, 30-year-old specialist on Southern resources, now a faculty member at the University of North Carolina, to prepare a detailed plan on which the South can build a regional education system.

Gov. Millard Caldwell of Florida, chairman of the 14-State Regional Council of Education, said Dr. Ivey will direct an 18-month study of the region's needs and opportunities for interstate co-operation in the training of youth in technical and professional fields.

He will have headquarters in Atlanta and has resigned from the University of North Carolina faculty to begin his duties immediately. The Florida governor added that a $100,000 budget will be available to Dr. Ivey and his research staff.

3 Goals Stipulated

His major tasks will be threefold: (1) to draft plans for regional courses and research facilities quickly in fields where there is an immediate need; (2) to prepare a long range study on which the South can build a system of co-operative institutions; and

(3) To prepare factual information on regional education which may be made available to State legislatures when they are asked to ratify the 14-State pact next year. The Senate recently refused to approve the pact.

Issue Drawn On Regional Plan

In The Nation's Capital

By LOUIS LAUTIER

WHAT IS THE answer to the irreconcilable positions of the Southern Governors Conference and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the other organized colored groups concerning education in the South?

Southern governors at a meeting at Tallahassee, Fla., on February 6 and 7 approved a compact providing for the establishment and maintenance of regional schools for graduate, professional, technological, scientific and literary training.

* * * * *

THE REGIONAL COUNCIL for Education, consisting of the governor and two designees from each state, was created.

The council was instructed to make a thorough survey of higher education in the southern states and direct immediate attention to the necessity for the early establishment of regional schools or institutions, including Meharry Medical College.

The council and some 350 educators met at Gainesville, Fla., March 4 and unanimously approved regional education at the higher levels as a necessary objective. A charter was obtained on March 8.

Congressional consent to the compact is being sought. The compact is signed by the Governors of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia.

The compact recites that Meharry "has proposed that its lands, buildings, equipment, and the net income from its endowment be turned over to the southern states, or to an agency acting in their behalf, to be operated as a regional institution for medical, dental and nursing education upon terms and conditions to be hereafter agreed upon between the southern states and Meharry Medical College, which proposal, because of the present financial condition of the institution, has been approved by the said states who are parties hereto."

SPEAKING FOR THE southern governors, Governor Millard F. Caldwell, of Florida, said:

"Many of us feel that education, especially at the higher levels, is a state responsibility and that it is our duty to provide it. We ask no financial help from the federal government. All we ask is that the Congress do in this instance what it has done more than a hundred times in the past, and that is to approve the compact between the interested states and allow us to help ourselves by pooling our resources and coordinating our efforts."

* * * * *

THURGOOD MARSHALL, special counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, described the compact as an effort to have "the Congress sanction an unequal educational practice which has heretofore been declared unconstitutional by another arm of the federal government, namely, the United States Supreme Court." Mr. Marshall added:

"Although the proposed compact on its face makes no mention of either race and color or segregation of the races, Congress cannot be blind to its underlying purpose of perpetuating segregation of the races in public education.

"Each one of the southern states involved has provision in either their Constitution or statutes requiring segregation of the races in public schools and equality of opportunity in these segregated systems. While every one of these states has meticulously followed the requirement as to segregation of the races, not one of them has made any effort to provid actual equality in either quality or quantity of education offered. There is no logical reason for anyone to doubt that the proposed compact will follow the same pattern.

"Inequalities in educational facilities, inevitable in a segregated system, make it clear that we cannot trust our rights guaranteed by the United States Consttiution to the 'protection' of the southern states involved. The only possible way for Negroes to get any assurance of protection of their rights would be for the proposed compact to be so amended as to guarantee that there will be no distinction as to race, creed, color or sex as to students, faculty and administrative officers."

Thus, the issue is squarely drawn on the question of race segregation in higher education.

Academic Voodoo

Chicago Defender

The Atlanta Constitution said last week: "Too many uninformed persons in Congress and elsewhere still regard regional educational merely as a Southern medium to by-pass Supreme Court rulings on the necessity of providing graduate and professional training for Negroes equal to that furnished whites."

Well, the regional plan was first broached by the Southern governors after the high court made it clear that Dixie had to provide equal education or else. Further, every advocate of the regional plan in the South has been careful to point out before Southern audiences that segregation will be preserved under the new plan.

In short, while the regional plan may not "merely" be a "Southern medium to by-pass Supreme Court rulings," it was created for that purpose. Bandy words as you will, there is no way to disguise the fact that the Southern white-supremacists consider almost any course of action preferable to opening the doors of the schools of the South to all citizens regardless of color.

No matter what plan or plans the Southern governors make, we are still going to demand the abolition of segregation. We regard Jim-Crowism as the arch enemy of our democratic system and the prime cause of interracial strife. Under Jim-Crowism we can never achieve full citizenship in America and the white-supremacists know it. If regional schools are created we shall demand that they be opened to students of all races and colors. No political legerdemain nor academic voodoo can obscure the issue. Jim Crow has got to go.

President Mays Criticizes Regional Educational Plan

In a chapel talk to the students of Morehouse College recently Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, president of the college, characterized the regional education plan of the Southern Governors as a scheme to perpetuate segregation and inadequate facilities in educational facilities in the South.

It is not in the minds of the South they cannot be serious in professed (Southern) institution with limited facilities clientele and with even more limited standards and prestige. In such schools, which is further proof that the architects of the plan are concerned only with maintaining the status quo.

DUCKING EQUALITY ISSUE

We think that it's about time that the Regional Council for Education, set up by the Southern Governors' Conference, stop beating around the bush.

A pamphlet, "Regional Co-opeartion in High Education," which has had rather wide circulation, tries to make it appear that this co-operative plan aims to benefit both colored and white people.

Yet, only a few weeks ago, during a "secret" meeting in Atlanta to which 13 colored educators had been invited (but only 7 attended) the Attorney-General of Florida let the cat out of the bag by stating categorically that the entire purpose of this plan is to establish colored regional schools and that no white regional schools are contemplated.

Governors of 13 Southern States, in hope of circumventing the U. S. Supreme Court's ruling that equal educational opportunities be provided white and colored citizens at one and the same time within the borders of the several States, have named colored presidents of State colleges to a committee which they would like to pull their chestnuts out of the fire.

Fortunately for us, only three or four of them can be expected to essay an "Uncle Tom" role of approving this separate and inferior setup. We can depend upon the others to fight to the last ditch any proposition to extend the segregated educational pattern, no matter how it may be disguised.

The South in Struggle

Dual School System Would Throw Road-Block in Path of South

By Sam Hall

Chairman, Communist Party of Alabama

LAST week we wrote in this column about the growing support in the South for ending the dual system—for admitting Negro students into graduate and professional schools on a non-segregated basis. Action of Southern Governors and certain educational leaders in Savannah since last week's column was written makes it necessary to discuss this matter again this week.

The United States Supreme Court has ruled that graduate and professional instruction offered by a state to white students must at the same time be offered to Negro students. This decision of the United States Supreme Court is actually a maneuver by that tribunal to avoid speaking directly on segregation. It amounts to hiding behind the false slogan of "equal but separate."

It is obvious to all who will look that there can be no equality on a segregated basis.

However Southern governors and the above-mentioned Southern educators evidently believe that people won't look. They have adopted a "regional program" as a pretense to providing equal education for Negroes on a segregated basis. This maneuver to defend segregated education in the South is sugar coated by pious phrases of a "new day" in Southern education. It is just the opposite. It is a tactic to defend and preserve the "old day" in Southern education.

This new tactic is a desperate road block thrown across the path of the Negro people and their growing number of white allies in the driver toward smashing segregation in education.

REACTION from the people has been quick, but not yet as strong as it must become. The NAACP denounced the plan in strong language. The statement declared that it is "false economy contrived to make the public believe that equality is attainable within the framework of segregation."

The 15th annual convention of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools for Negroes, meeting in Washington a few days before the Southern governors meeting, opposed the plan as "undemocratic and pedagogically unsound" and said it will refuse to cooperate in this endeavor as long as segregation is a part of it.

Yet already two Negro schools in the South are cooperating with this regional plan. The Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tenn., is to be the regional medical school for Negroes and each state is expected to finance a few Negro students to this college to get around the Supreme Court decision. And in Alabama the Tuskegee Institute will serve the same purpose in veterinary training.

These Negro institutions are selling out the birthright of the Negro people for a mess of pottage in the form of a few thousand dollars from the several Southern states.

The Savannah meeting which adopted the regional plan was very revealing. This was a meeting which claimed it aimed at bettering education in the South. Yet in the face of the fact that there are only two Negro medical schools in the country, the meeting accepted a report which insisted that there was no need for any new medical schools for Negroes.

AND let us hasten to point out that the regional plan likewise smashes at education for white Southerners. For example, Florida and Mississippi have no state financed medical schools—for either white or Negro. The regional plan allows these states to put up a few thousand dollars, send white medical students to medical colleges in other states, as well as Negroes to Meharry Medical College, and thereby avoid building any medical colleges in their own states.

Now, without doubt, a campaign will be launched to get federal aid to Southern education on the basis of the "regional formula" to maintain segregated schools in the South.

In spite of the desperate financial situation of schools in the South, this drive for federal funds on such a basis must be opposed and defeated. Both Negro and white Southerners, as well as progressives throughout the nation, must oppose such "aid."

Even if the limited Southern funds for education are tremendously augmented by federal grants, it still couldn't possibly be enough to build two school systems on an adequate level. The beginning of a sound financial approach to education in the South is the ending of the dual school system.

The "regional plan" must be understood for what it is—a desperate maneuver to hang on to the dual school system on behalf of the white supremacy misrulers of the South. That plan must be defeated. Federal aid to southern education must be forthcoming, but ONLY to non-segregated schools. Federal funds must be used, not to continue the dual educational system, but to help end it!

Dr. Gray Reverses Stand

"No self-respecting Negro can afford to support the regional college plan," Dr. W. H. Gray, Jr., presidetn of the Fla. A. and M. College, told some 3,500 teachers in Columbia Friday night.

In making the statement and others in objecting to the regional college plan," Dr. W. H. Gray, Jr., president of the ing a position on the issue attributed to him by Governor Caldwell of Florida. He agreed with other opponents that such a college would lend aid to perpetuation of segregation in education and destroy most of the educational gains Negroes have made through courts in recent years.

But Dr. Gray's about-face may or may not be a fact. Before he had come to South Carolina to deliver the keynote messsage to the state's teachers, he had been questioned by toms rigidly held together by segregation and discrimination primarily based on race, color and creed.

Students Divided On Regional Plan

BY ROBERT E. JOHNSON

on among students leaders ges and universities in the divided in regard to their s on the debated subject ial education which pro-nterstate cooperation in education on a regional ugh most of them admit ngent need for improved al facilities in the fields sional and graduate studies view the recommendations
ecent Southern Governors ce with skepticism. They ne prposals are designed t the status quo of the d make it more difficult
the cake of southern cus-

forming an opinion. In all fairness to myself, I would have to say that anything which helps and advances education is okay by me. Whether or not the particular measure contemplated at the recent governors' conference is worthy of support would call for some deliberation. As student opinion is divided, for we're too busy with exams to read the papers."

TED SPIVEY, SENIOR, EMORY UNIVERSITY (EDITOR OF THE EMORY WHEEL)—"I would have to investigate the matter before forming an opinion.

city is divided in this of regional poses higher basis."

of colleges a opinion a
Pat-

Conference and may have learned on his arrival that he would have been thoroughly embarrassed had he gone through with declarations supporting the regional college. It is believed that the danger in such a course was pointed out to him by leaders in the profession on his arrival. And to clinch the case the teachers themselves had beforehand voted unanimous opposition to the regional plan.

Of course, we are told, that Dr. Gray has never backed the college plan; that Governor Caldwell listed him in this category knowing that he could not expediently take issue because of his position. Then, we are told, Dr. Gray felt there would be no organization resistance to the scheme and while he opposed it, did nothing to halt it since he felt Negroes would allow its establishment.

Whatever the real reasons behind his puzzling position of several days ago, Dr. Gray is now on record as opposing the regional college. It well may be that South Carolina pun him around. Left out on a limb are Presidents Person of Tuskegee, Clement of Atlanta University and Tren- Colm of Alabama State.

to support the south and ma to break the c

CIO DENOUNCES REGIONAL COLLEGE PLAN

WHILE some segments of the Nation's Capital were drawing themselves up to their full dignity and protesting an unflattering report by the Natl. Committee on Segregation in the Nation's Capital, a group of Southern governors and educators got together to cook up a way to out fox the U. S. Supreme Court.

The High Court has been annoying Southern states for some years with its insistence that a state must furnish equal educational facilities for both white and Negro residents.

This was the 14 Dixie states' problem: If, under their present system of segregation, they provided duplicate facilities of equal caliber, then obviously the state would go broke. It was financially possible to provide equal facilities only by permitting students of both races to share the same facilities.

Rather than part with Jim Crow, the Southern governors hit on a plan, whose constitutionality is questioned by many observers:

A PROGRAM of regional education was devised, whereby the 14 states would pool their resources to create segregated regional colleges. The initial expenditure—to amount to $2,434,000 annually after four years in operation—would finance medical, dental and veterinary training.

A (two-year fund) of $600,000 was approved for Meharry Medical College for Negroes in Nashville, Tenn., which the governors were warned would fold up without their financial aid. Three white and one Negro college will receive money for regional veterinary schools.

Two CIO representatives were quick to denounce the regional pact.

Said James B. Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer, secretary of the President's Committee on Civil Rights and chairman of the CIO Committee to Abolish Discrimination:

"The southern governors' regional educational plan is a device to sidestep Supreme Court rulings that the states must provide equal educational facilities for both Negroes and whites. Such equality is impossible on a segregated basis, which results in the expense of duplicate facilities and inferior educational facilities for both groups. If put into effect, the plan will definitely result in inferior facilities for both Negroes and whites."

"The plan," said George Weaver, director, CIO Committee to Abolish Discrimination, "is designed, in our opinion, to establish segregated regional universities in an attempt to evade the mandate of the U. S. Supreme Court in the Gaines and Sipuel decisions."

LAST spring a group of southern Congressmen and Senators sponsored a Congressional resolution to authorize interstate compacts establishing segregated regional universities. The resolution was apparently inspired by the Southerners' fear that such an interstate agreement would be unconstitutional without Congressional approval.

The resolution passed the House and just missed passage in the Senate by a one-vote margin. Vigorous opposition to the move was expressed by the CIO, represented by Weaver, when he testified before a sub-committee of the Senate Judiciary Committee last March.

At that time Weaver cited the Supreme Court's Gaines Decision, which stated that "if a state furnishes higher education to white residents, it is bound to furnish (within the state) substantially equal advantages to Negro students."

"Clearly," Weaver said, "the purpose of S. J. 191 is to substitute segregated regional schools for Negroes in the hope of avoiding the Constitutional responsibilities of the states to provide equal educational opportunities to all of its citizens.

"Study after study has conclusively demonstrated that educational facilities for Negroes in segregated areas are inferior to those provided for whites. . . ."

Another report was cited by Weaver to support the CIO's stand against segregation.

The President's Commission on Higher Education had concluded: " . . . there will be no fundamental correction of the total condition until segregation legislation is repealed."

Union Will Offer Reward For Slayer

Local 2606, CIO Steelworkers, Columbus, Ohio, will offer a reward for information leading to the arrest of the slayer of one of its members. Three hundred members have already contributed to the reward fund.

Edward Coleman, 50, was slain under mysterious circumstances on Dec. 6 as he sat in his living room talking with his wife. The assailant fired through a window and the .32 caliber bullet entered Coleman's head. He died immediately.

CIO Pamphlet In Chinese Planned

Got any friends in China?

If so, you can tell them they'll soon be able to read CIO pamphlets translated into Chinese.

"The Bible and the Working Man" is being translated by the Christian Literature Society, which is reported "intrigued" with the CIO publication.

Plans are under way to translate the "Joe Worker" comic strip and run it in many Chinese papers.

News of the enthusiastic reception accorded to CIO pamphlets was sent to Intl. Affairs Director Michael Ross by Henry D. Jones of the Natl. Christian Council of China. The Council maintains offices in Shanghai.

Regional Council Recommends "Self-Survey" In South's Cities

Special to Journal and Guide

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — The Southern Regional Council recommended on last Saturday that all southern cities adopt the "self-survey" pattern which proved so successful in Jacksonville, Fla., that it resulted in 65 "concrete improvements" in that city.

The council supplied technical advice to the Jacksonville survey committee and offered this project as a regional example of what can be accomplished from a non-professional study of the community needs which was mainly "simply a southern city taking a frank look at itself."

According to the council's report, less than two years ago leaders of both races in Jacksonville formed the survey committee and recently reported the results of the first hand investigation of the health, housing, transportation, law enforcement, recreation and welfare services available to the Negro population of the city.

PAID OFF AT ONCE

Commenting on the report the council pointed out that "this approach paid off from the start. Not only the people participating in the survey, but everyone it touched grew interested in the problems of the community and what could be done about them.

"People and groups began to find out more about each other and started working out new patterns of cooperation. Highly significant was the fact that city officials taking part developed a new understanding of the nee of the colored population.

"So, by the time the survey was completed and the facts published, public and private agencies, responsible white and Negro citizens, were ready to start a cooperative effort to find the remedies."

BI-RACIAL COMMITTEE

The report resulted in the organization of a bi-racial committee to follow up the work needed to be done to provide some of the improvements which the survey indicated should be provided for the colored population of the city which is one of the largest in any southern community.

This committee was able to report worthwhile achievements to the council. All improvements listed were either directly or indirectly the outgrowth of the survey. These included equal dental care for Negro Children provided through the facilities of the City Health Department with a dental trailer on regular visits to schools to care for the emergency cases in low income families, Negro and white.

A Negro hospital, the committee reported, has reorganized a staff of forty members, drawn from both races, and the resident Negro physician is invited to attend weekly staff conferences at the Duval County Hospital.

SAFETY, SANITATION STARTED

In the area of sanitation and safety the committee reports that since May, 1946, 120 blocks in Negro residential sections have been hard-surfaced. Badly needed garbage collection service on twenty-five streets was started during February, 1948. Putting up of a number of traffic lights and street lights has led to a reduction in the number of accidents and homicides, the committee said.

Low-cost housing remains a problem in Jacksonville as in most other cities, it was said, but no subdivisions have provided private housing for several hundred Negro families of substantial income.

The survey recommended improved bus and taxi service for Negros and now bus service has increased 35 per cent and the two Negro taxi companies have twice replaced their vehicles with new ones, it was said.

The most important step in education, the council reported, has been the complete equalization of pay of Negro teachers with that of whites, beginning with the fall term of 1947. The salary schedule committee now includes three Negroes.

SWIMMING POOL

The City Council, the report said, last year appropriated $40,000, recently supplemented by private funds, for the construction of a public swimming pool for Negroes and the follow-up committee is now trying to secure a beach front and additional park facilities.

The committee cites the establishment of the Jacksonville Urban League as the "most significant and far-reaching single step." All but two standing committees of the Council of Social Agencies have representatives of both races.

"More and more, the Negroes of Jacksonville are assuming their regular place as full citizens work-

Last Winter Meharry — which regional plan and Meharry be- turns out about half the graduate came the center of a political Negro physicians in the United storm.

States—was mentioned as the Opponents of separate educa- initial institution in a proposed tional facilities for Negroes Southern regional system of high- fought the plan and Sen. Morse er education. (R), Oregon, threatened to tie

The Southern States agreed to Despite Critical Lack Of Funds President Truman's whole civil compact by which they would rights program to it. The regional gets on a firm footing of tax- support the privately endowed plan was recommitted to the judi- ciary committee by a vote of 38 to 37.

NASHVILLE —(AP)— Meharry The compact went to support still hangs over one of the Congress for approval and there, leading Negro schools of the swing this Fall but the threat of nation.

Medical College is operating full on the floor of the Senate, the faced with the possibility of a huge deficit as its private means of support were withdrawn, had said the college would have to close unless the regional aid was forthcoming.

Hustling And Luck

Dr. M. Don Clawson, president of the 72-year-old college, said Saturday that hustling and "a lot of good luck" enabled the college to get commitments for the necessary funds by July 26, nearly a month after the beginning of the fiscal year.

Nashville and Davidson County agreed to help support Meharry's Hubbard Hospital by sending it indigent patients at $8.50 a day. Private contributions added additional funds.

Carnegie Foundation promised $170,000, Rockefeller Foundation $185,000 and Kellogg Foundation $100,000. Several other commitments came through, including $50,000 from the Atomic Energy Commission for research.

"These foundations gave us the money this year in the firm belief that tax money will be forthcoming from regional, state or federal agencies by next July 1," Dr. Clawson said. "We are of that firm belief also.

Backs Regional Plan

"Unless this tax support is forthcoming we'll just have to close."

Dr. Clawson has long advocated the regional education plan. When the political issue arose in Congress, he said, it took Meharry advocates by surprise. "We thought of this as an academic issue," he said. But the Meharry president still believes the regional plan is alive.

"I don't know whether they'll take it off the shelf after election or not," he said. "But it will either be that, or support by the state of Tennessee or by the Southern states without a compact, or else we'll have to close."

He sees Meharry's problem as one of the entire South. Sixty per cent of its students come from the South. There is only one other institution comparable with it in the nation.

Speakers Oppose, Uphold Regional College Proposal

BY MARION E. JACKSON

The highly-controversial question of regional colleges in the South was favored and opposed by two widely-divergen tspeakers Saturday in the Savage Auditorium, Clark College, as educators and civic leaders gathered here for a one-day conference on the proposed Southern Regional College Plan.

Dr. D. T. Rolfe, Department of Physiology, Meharry Medcial College, speaking in the absence of Dr. Doak S. Campbell, President, Florida State University, Tallahassee, was unable to attend because of travel difficulties, hailed the plan "because very few states can provide equal education for its citizens even where segregation does not exists."

Dr. E. W. Taggart, Birmingham. Alabama and president of the National Dental Association, speaking in the absence of Leslie Perry, Washington Bureau, NAACP assailed the Plan because "300 years of living and all of our experiences teach us that we can not depend upon the Princes of Economic Power and Southern demagogues to deal with us as equal human beings before our Maker."

CALDWELL VIEWS READ

Dr. Rolfe read into the record of conference the view of Gov. Millard Caldwell of Florida, which expressed the principles of regional education as adopted at a recent meeting of Southern Governors at Wakulla Springs, Fla.

Expressing his personal views Dr. Rolfe stated that the "principles of regional education is not confined to this area. The government has taken little or no steps in providing education even in the New England States. New England schools are running huge deficits with Harvard University being one of the biggest."

"But our problem is not regional education in New England or Nevada, but what the Southern Governors are trying to do here in the South."

"The principles," he declared "of regional education is not confined to the South."

Dr. Taggart in a blistering attack upon the legislation insisted that there was a "uninversal distubrance among Negroes on the question of the Regionall Education Compact and the point of disturbance is the perpetuation of an inferior system of education, of which we are already victims."

CUSTODIAN

Continuing his attack upon the plan, Dr. Taggart stated "The white man is the Custodian of Justice and it is important that we the Black People see that he measures up to God's expectatoins of him."

He stated "The only worthwide institution referred to in the plan is Meharry. There is nothing that promises enlargement and development of it to the highest standards of medical institutions in this country."

Insisting he "was afraid it is predicated upon the proposition that it will perpetuate segregation, freeze us in a cast system and that we will never become intelligent."

"The plan provides for poor and less education of the qualitative type."

Pledging a last ditch fight against its adoption Dr. Taggart promised court action.

"I do not want Meharry to close. It can survive if it opens its doors to everybody, welcome all comers, which means that Tennessee appeals its segregation laws."

"The same crowd hollering for the regional compact before Congress are the same people who cry for state rights. They ask Congress to sanction and perpetuate this type of compact....the aproval of which would give the states sufficient power to override the Constitution."

"There is much good in the proposition of regeional education. It fits in admirably with a good many facts of the South, but if such a plan is to be inaugurated, it ought to be done for the people, without reference to race, creed or color."

FACILITIES OUTLINED

Dr. George S. Mitchell, Director Southern Regional Council, Atlanta, said "Private Philantrophy has built a system of regional education among Negroes." He outlined such facilities as a boom to white education and insisted that the South was not opposed to unsegregated education by citing the "Kentucky Plan."

It would be a great tragedy for Congress to give sanction for such a plan without authority for a definite time of expiration."

Rev. H. C. McEwen delivered the invocation. Dean McPheeters, greeted the Conference in the absence of Dr. James P. Brawley.

Proving the Need for Regional Education

Virtually unnoticed in the report of last Friday's news-packed meeting of the Board of Regents of the University System was an item of more than passing significance.

It was to the effect that the Board allotted "an additional $25,000 to help pay tuition and transportation of Georgia Negroes to schools in other States so as to provide them with equal educational opportunities while maintaining the segregation pattern in this State."

This is noteworthy because the State had already allocated $50,000 for the purpose since the beginning of the fiscal year July 1.

Last year, only $35,000 was needed for Negro education outside State institutions.

In the first four months of this year, we have already found it necessary to spend $75,000.

Already, in short, the growing demand for higher education for Negroes has doubled in the past year. And the trend will undoubtedly continue.

It is for this reason that the Southern Regional Education program is of such fast-increasing importance. It will be many years before the demand for graduate and professional education among Negroes is sufficient to justify Georgia or any other Southern State establishing and maintaining individual institutions for the purpose.

But the demand already exists in such quantity as to necessitate spending $75,000 annually. And all indications are, with the rising level of education among Negroes, that it will be but a few years until such expenditures must be multiplied tenfold.

Under the regional program, the various Southern States will join together to provide, co-operatively and collectively, education in those fields which, individually, they could not feasibly enter.

It is not set up entirely to meet the problem of higher education for Negroes. There are certain types of instruction which similarly can most economically be provided whites on such a regional basis.

But it is probably because the need is being brought home to it in dollars and cents by the increasing appropriations for Negroes to study elsewhere that the Legislature will doubtless move to continue Georgia's participation in the regional setup.

MIAMI (ANP)— Protesting the March 4 meeting of the Southern Regional Council at Gainesville, Fla., 35 white students of the University of Florida, last week, labeled the caucus "undemocratic," because its sponsors "advocate an unjust and inequitable system of education in the South."

The students were motivated in part, The student resolution in part, as a result protesting the Governors meetings meetinging reads:

"This meeting can only further which time nine hatred and prejudice among our fellow met and se... will be ... by the meeting of this sident Truman ... a civil rights group."

Student leaders attempted to last month enforestall the adoption of the resolution by the protest group, but pact calling to no avail. The University of ng and opera- Florida student body numbers cation such as more than 8,500. tes could pres-

White Fla. Students Eschew Regional Plan

Educational System in South Pathetically Ill

by Criterion Staff Reporter

Governors of six Southern states have approved a tentative plan to establish for their states several jointly financed "regional" colleges and universities. Their purpose is to relieve the burden on separate states of providing higher education for their citizens. If the plan is put into effect a total of 15 states might pool their finances to establish these fully equipped schools.

With its back to the financial wall Meharry Medical College in Nashville has offered itself as the nucleus of the first of the regional colleges. Meharry is a privately owned Negro school, which with Howard University, turns out four-fifths of the Negro doctors in the United States.

The regional project, together with the Meharry angle, has impressed Negro educators with both good and bad points. All agree that the South has so saddled itself with inefficient dual systems of education, for Negro and whites, that what education it is actually receiving is costing far too much. Negro schools, and white, need drastic treatments to lift them to the minimum standards adopted by the Association of American Colleges.

IF ANY FINANCIAL SHUFFLING CAN ACCOMPLISH THIS, THEN THE PROPOSED PLAN FOR REGIONAL SCHOOLS MIGHT WIN WIDE APPROVAL. The South is determined, however, to maintain its separate racial schools. Experience has taught the Negro that he will receive his benefits only after the rest of the populace has taken its lion share of everything. There is no assurance that Meharry, or any other Negro college, would receive the millions of dollars needed to maintain it at present inadequate levels, much less to establish it as a fully accredited institution of higher learning.

A legal angle is pointed out by an educator:

A regional college would become at once an interstate affair, perhaps subject to many rules and regulations which govern businesses affecting two or more states. The government of the United States has certain jurisdiction over interstate affairs; how would a regional college fare under such regulation? Interstate business is conducted without the hinderance of racial discrimination in general practice; would the government wink at certain violations inherent in a segregated regional college?

It would be too much to hope that such colleges in the South would be interracial. The South has made advances but hardly to the point of voluntarily establishing mixed schools.

THE ENTIRE PLAN NEEDS FURTHER CONSIDERATION. The educational system of the South is pathetically ill; this may be the drastic medicine needed to start its recovery.

Program Calls for Meharry Aid

Atlanta Constitution
Atlanta, Ga.

By M. L. ST. JOHN
Constitution Staff Writer

SAVANNAH—The nation's first program of regional education was adopted here late yesterday by Governors and educators from 14 Southern States. Tues.-12-14-48

The group plans to help finance Meharry Medical School for Negroes at Nashville, Tenn., as a regional school, thereby saving the school from closing its doors for lack of finances.

Georgia and other Southern States will appropriate funds and send students to this Negro medical school under provisions of the program indorsed by the governors and heads of colleges throughout the South.

Georgia, which today is spending $75,000 a year sending Negroes to out-of-state higher educational institutions would pay $60,000 over a two-year period to send 14 Negroes to Meharry—or other medical and dental schools. Georgia would spend $9,000 to send nine Negroes to a veterinary school at Tuskegee. Georgia and all other Southern states, would put up $14,000 for the operation of the Regional Council for Education to carry on the program and do research in the fields of establishing gradaute schools.

The governors took their action while sitting as the Regional Council for Education. The Council is composed of governors and two educators from each state.

Governor Talmadge approved the plan and said that as it is presently outlined it looks as if Georgia will gain vast benefits from the regional educational program. Tues-12-14-48

The Regional Council amended its constitution so as to continue Gov. Millard Caldwell as chairman. Caldwell's term as governor expires this month.

The Council also voted to increase its membership to include three educators, instead of only two, from each State. This would make possible the addition of more Negro educators to the policy forming board.

The biennial budget which the Council will ask the State Legislatures to finance would provide a total of $355,000 for veterinary medical schools; $600,000 for Negro medical and dental schools; $360,000 for dental schools and $196,000 for administrative services and operations. Florida and Mississippi, the only States not having white medical schools, would contribute $112,500 each to educate their students in schools in other States.

Here's the total allotments each State would be asked to make.

Alabama, $68,600; Arkansas, $112,600; Florida, $241,100; Georgia, $81,600; Louisiana, $95,600; Maryland, $120,000; Mississippi, $250,100; North Carolina, $158,000; Oklahoma, $108,800; South Carolina, $131,000; Tennessee, $105,200; Texas, $32,000; Virginia, $98,600 and West Virginia, $112,600.

No additional medical and dental school charges are planned for Georgia.

The Only Course Remains

Atlanta Daily World

It is good to know that The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is making plans to institute suit to test the legality of the segregated regional college plan, approved recently by the southern governors and educators. As a first step, the Association is urging qualified young Negro men and women to apply for admission to publicly-supported graduate and professional colleges within their respective states.

Tues-12-28-48

"We maintain that the plan to ship colored students from one southern state to another for graduate training is in violation of the U. S. Supreme Court decisions in the Sipuel cases," declared Thurgood Marshall, special NAACP Counsel, in New York last Saturday. "Accordingly," Marshall continues, "we urge all qualified Negroes desiring medical education to apply to the existing publicly-supported medical school in their respective states rather than submit to this unlawful plan."

Anything the respective states do to furnish education for Negroes equal to that for whites within their boundaries meets the requirements of the Gaines and Sipuel decisions by the U. S. Supreme Court. Anything done to furnish education to Negroes across state borders is in conflict with that clear mandate. That is why we share fully the opinion of the NAACP and endorse wholeheartedly its action in urging a test of the legality against the procedure.

Now is the tiime to stem the tide against these so-called regional colleges before they are permitted to have official sanction. Once they are started it will probably be 25 or 35 years before they can be uprooted. Bootlegged regional colleges have no more right to operate in the American system than quack doctors. Both are undermining the sure foundations upon which individual achievement and initiative are built. It is more than an even guess, It is almost a certainty, that the courts will invalidate such colleges. Sun-12-26-48

Area Proposal For Veterinary Medicine Censured By NAACP

Journal & Guide
Norfolk, Va.
Sat-12-25-48

Thurgood Marshall Declares Policy Would Violate Ruling Set Down In Gaines Case

NEW YORK—(NNPA)—Branding the tentative arrangement under which Tuskegee Institute would provide veterinary medical training to colored youths in the South as "a little regional school plan," Thurgood Marshall, special counsel for the NAACP, last Wednesday declared that his organization is opposed to the plan.

While Tuskegee Institute would establish regional services in veterinary medicine for all colored youth in the South, the University of Georgia would provide such services for white students from North Carolina, South Carolina, and Flordia, and Alabama Polytechnic Institute would do so for Mississippi, Louisiana and Tennessee.

Speaking for himself as a representative of the association, Mr. Marshall, who has been active in litigation in State and Federal courts to compel the admission of qualified colored students to so-called white state-supported universities, said he belived the arrangement "is not only bad but unconstitutional."

He added that "We propose to fight it in every way possible to the same extent that we are fighting against segregation in public education in the several states."

ARRANGEMENTS MADE

The arrangement was entered into by Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, at a meeting on regional services in the school of veterinary medicine, held in Atlanta on Oct. 11-12-48 at Tuskegee Institute; Harmon Caldwell, president of the University of Georgia; T. J. Jones, dean of the school of veterinary medicine at Alabama Polytechnic Institute; R. S. Sugg, director of the regional service institution through which the land-grant college of that state.

Present at the meeting, in addition to Dr. Patterson, were Ralph W. Draughon, president of Alabama Polytechnic Institute; R. S. Sugg, John E. Ivey Jr., director of the school of veterinary medicine at the University of Georgia; T. J. Jones, dean of the school of veterinary medicine at Alabama Polytechnic Institute; T. S. Williams, dean of the school of veterinary medicine at Alabama Polytechnic Institute; Harmon Caldwell, president of the University of Georgia; R. S. Sugg, director of the regional service institution through which the land-grant college of that state.

In an exclusive statement to the NNPA, Mr. Marshall used the celebrated Lloyd . Gaines case , in which the United States Supreme Court ruled that the State of Missouri could not provide legal training for Gaines at an out-of-state institution while providing such training for white students within the state, but it had to provide either separate but equal facilities within the state or admit him to the law school of the University of Missouri.

TEXT OF STATEMENT

The text of Mr. Marshall's statement follows:

"The plan which is reported, under which Tuskegee Institute would provide veterinary training for Negroes resident in any of the southern states while similar training for whites would be offered at the University of Georgia and Alabama Polytechnic Institute, is, in essence a little Regional School plan.

"As such, it is subject to the same legal pitfalls that faced the regional school plan.

"In deciding Missouri ex. rel. Gaines vs. Canada, the United States Supreme Court was dealing with a similar situation under which the State of Missouri attempted to meet the requirements of equal protection of the laws by relying upon the facilities for the education of Negroes offered in other states. Of such situation, the Supreme Court said:

"Manifestly, the obligation of the State to give the protection of equal laws can be performed only where its laws operate, that is, within its own jurisdiction. It is there that the equality of legal right must be maintained.

"That obligation imposed by the Constitution upon the States severally as governmental entities—each responsible for its own laws establishing the rights and duties of persons within its borders. It is an obligation the burden of which can not be cast by one State upon another, and no State can be excused from performance by what another State may do or fail to do. That separate responsibility of each State within its own sphere is of the essence of statehood maintained under our dual system.

SEEKING "WAY OUT"

"Applied to the situation presented by the proposal to use Tuskegee Institute for the training of all southern Negroes in veterinary education while using two other institutions in Georgia and Alabama, respectively, for the training of whites, what the Supreme Court has said is that if South Carolina sends its whites to Georgia and its Negroes to Alabama to secure veterinary education, South Carolina has absolutely no way of assuring that the educational opportunities offered to Whites and Negroes as the result of this system will be equal.

"South Carolina has no way of compelling Tuskegee to add courses to its curriculum which might be given at the University of Georgia and vice versa. Hence, the southern states, desperately seeking for a way to avoid furnishing equal education in unsegregated institutions are today going back to 1936 and presenting the same kind of educational opportunities which were found unconstitutional in the Gaines case. This is more valid today than it was 12 years ago."

Says Davis Erred In Quoting Educator

Editor, Journal and Guide:—The column "With A Grain of Salt" in the Journal and Guide on Dec. 4 by Arthur P. Davis offers suggestions for much consideration and thought on the part of the reader, but seems to have failed to get much from its writer, in regard to the position taken by Tuskegee Institute and its president on the regional school plan and to the reason for the development for such an attitude. We agree with Dr. Davis in his point of view against the formation of regional schools. It seems to me that such a plan reduced to its lowest terms is an attempt to keep Negro education segregated and inferior. I do not believe such a plan is to the interest of the Negro people nor to the interest of the white South.

No condemnati n can be too severe on the president of Tuskegee Institute for his stand on the matter, nor to any other would-be Negro leaders who advocate the plan. On the other hand, Dr. Davis seems to be completely off balance in his thinking and without information or understanding in his effort at historical interpretation in his effort to connect Booker T. Washington as an unsound predecessor to the present day thought and action of the president of Tuskegee Institute.

First of all, Dr. Davis fails to understand the setting in which Booker T. Washington found himself and its comparison to the one in which the race is today and his further failure of understanding is that of Booker T. Washington's Atlanta Exposition speech of 1895 which he claims for the basis of his conclusions. Dr. Davis says, "In that speech the educator (Booker Washington) assured the South that the Negro did not want equality, that the Negro was content to be a second-class citizen."

I have just read again the Atlanta speech (which it appears that Dr. Davis has not read) to see what it was that the educator said that could have given the columnist his idea. The closest statement to such idea to be found was this: "The wisest among my race understand that the agitation of questions of social equality is the extreme folly, and that progress in the enjoyment of all the privileges that will come to us must be the result of severe and constant struggle rather than of artificial forcing. No race that has anything to contribute to the markets of the world is long in any degree ostracized. It is important and right that all privileges of the law be ours, but it is vastly more important that we be prepared for the exercise of these privileges."

Misquoting, and even the lack of knowledge of the facts, is often forgivable for the often uninformed columnist, but it seems mysterious that such an effort would be made to bring the name of Booker T. Washington into the live question of regional schools for a smear in a design to justify the judgment of President Patterson at Tuskegee Institute today.

AUSTIN W. CURTIS Sr.
Professor Emeritus, Agriculture
West Virginia State College
Institute, West Virginia

Regional Education

Racial Integration Urged as Basis For School Plan for South

The writer of the following letter has taught in Negro universities in the South. He has been associated with national studies of the Negro sponsored by the American Council on Education and the Carnegie Corporation and with regional studies conducted by Fisk and Atlanta Universities.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On Feb. 8 the Governors of eleven Southern states met in conference in Tallahassee, Fla., and drew up what has become known as the Compact of Southern Governors. This was a proposition to establish a geographical district embracing fifteen Southern states with cooperatively owned and operated regional schools to provide higher education for whites and Negroes on a segregated basis. There was immediate opposition to the plan by Negroes, with the attack being spearheaded by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The opposition advanced several reasons to support their stand. This is merely a device of the South to circumvent the decision of the United States Supreme Court and other federal court mandates that Negroes must be given educational opportunity in schools equal to those afforded whites in the same states. It was further evidence that the schools were to be set up with every intention of perpetuating segregation in education, a policy which is objectionable to Negroes as undemocratic, un-American and unworkable, as demonstrated by historical fact.

Aid for All Schools

The South is obligated now, as the Supreme Court made clear in the Sipuel and Gaines cases, legally to accept Negro students for training afforded white students. Under segregation the Negro never receives his just share of funds expended for education and, even if he did, a practice of racially designating funds is in contradiction to our national democratic ideal of the equality of man. The states maintaining the luxury of segregation are least able financially to break down differentials, and they only end up in depriving all of their citizens of their right to a first-rate education.

The improvement of Negro schools means the improvement of white schools and the gap already existing between the two instead of lessening is continuing and, in some cases, widening.

Racial integration in education in the South has already taken place in some states without any harmful incidents. Being located outside the borders of some states, travel funds would have to be provided if Negro students are not to be at a serious disadvantage. It would be extremely difficult to man these regional schools with qualified persons if faculties are to follow the Southern tradition of segregation, since in many fields the few trained Negroes would hardly be available to serve as instructors. Therefore, it would be impossible to offer equal education unless the policy of Jim Crow is abandoned, at least so far as the faculty is concerned.

Congressional Action

Finally, in order to provide education for Negroes equal to that already afforded whites, under this plan it becomes necessary to establish two sets of schools, one for whites and one for Negroes. Both of these must be superior to any school in the region, since they must afford facilities equal to the combined facilities of all schools in the region or they will defeat the purpose of providing education for Negroes which satisfies equality of opportunities.

Notwithstanding this opposition, the Governors of Alabama, Arkansas, South Carolina, Florida, Georgia, Maryland, Mississippi, Tennessee and Texas requested the Eighteenth Congress to give its consent to the compact. By a close vote the compact was shelved in the Senate in May, 1948, and sent back to the Judiciary Committee for further study.

In spite of this set-back, on Dec. 13, the Governors met in conference and unanimously approved an "action program" for establishing the nation's first regional school compact with the principle of racial segregation remaining intact. The program will be presented to the Legislatures of the respective states for approval, and since ratification is expected, plans are being made to secure the necessary funds from each state so that the program can begin functioning in September, 1949.

Possible Solution

Because of its significance and the fundamental purpose of the regional school plan to create better higher educational facilities in a region which is destitute of such and in no way financially able to raise its standards without outside help, the problem is one that affects the nation at large. The whole regional plan cannot operate effectively unless the Southern states receive aid from the Federal Government to which we all pay taxes in some form, since the Governors of these states have declared that no single Southern state was able financially to provide many forms of expensive higher education within its own borders.

The evidence would seem to warrant a belief that much of the intelligent South is for the removal of educational segregation, although there is a mixture of attitudes. The problem involves satisfying the request of the Governors for regional institutions to meet the lack of adequate facilities for both white and Negro students, and complying with the demands of Negro leaders that there be no segregation if such a plan is adopted. A possible solution is offered here which would seem to satisfy the parties concerned.

A feasible plan is to establish the regional schools with federal support but with the guarantee that the schools are for all eligible citizens without regard to race, color, creed, or national origin. Thus those white and Negro students who wanted a first-class education and would be willing to pursue it in a democratic manner in keeping with the American ideal of equality of opportunity for all, could attend these schools on a non-segregated basis. Those students who continue to retain

HUGH H. SMYTHE.
New York, Dec. 17, 1948.

A fundamental of American education is to teach real democracy, and going to school is for the purpose of learning to live in society. This is being realized more and more in the drive for real democracy that is prejudice in preference to first-rate training could continue to remain away from these schools. This plan, of course, would apply on all levels of operation, as regards faculty, administrators, and other staff members.

Doctor Clement's Defense

Atlanta Daily World 11-27-48

Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University has come to his own defense against what he describes as popular misconceptions and presuppositions of the Negro press with respect to his position on the so-called regional college plan. The speech, intended as a discussion of that plan, was more of a patchwork of complaints against Negro leaders and the Negro press than it was a forthright discussion of the plan and what it means to Negroes.

The president does not like our conclusion that Atlanta University, along with Tuskegee Institute and Meharry Medical college, will be one of the regional centers. From the known facts, the conclusion is inescapable. For proof we quote first, from the President himself. In his annual report to the Trustees of Atlanta University in April, 1948, The report reads in part: "In contemplating the future of Atlanta University one must take into consideration its role as a regional institution." Then to make the logic complete, the report says:

14e(2)

Sat 11-27-48

"The time has come when the state of Georgia should recognize the value and worth of the institution (Atlanta University) and should attempt to insure its usefulness through underwriting certain specific programs . . . . With the consent of the Board of Trustees, the president will delight in seeking to effect such recognition of our worth as may be mutually acceptable."

Finally, we have no less authority than Dr. Raymond B. Paty, then Chancellor of the University System of Georgia, who last Summer announced through the columns of The Constitution that the regional schools would get into operation by September 1948. Of Atlanta University as a regional school, he says: "A major number of such specialized regional schools for Negroes likely would be developed at Atlanta University since it has the facilities already on hand." Does it appear reasonable that, in view of the widespread suspicion Dr. Clement has created by his evasive stand on this heated subject that he would seek to correct the impression created by Dr. Paty if that is not the case? He has had more than six months in which to do so.

Sat 11-27-48

We are not surprised that we are at cross purposes with Dr. Clement on the so-called regional plan. For the life of us we could not in honor, lend our influence to such a fraud and farce. But we are not alone. He has called Walter White a "liar". He thinks Mojeska Simpkins of The Norfolk Journal and Guide is a wicked sinner because she dares to express her disagreement with his views. And the whole group of Negro newspapers are a bunch of sensation mongers for not sharing his untenable position. Even the presidents in the Atlanta University affiliation are diametrically opposed to his position.

We think we owe it to Dr. Clement to state here and now that we have no intention of retreating from our position on the regional scheme as set forth by the Southern Governors. Even if we didn't have enough logic and reason to see its faults and failings, we would still have enough sense to believe that something must be wrong about it if men Like J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, Feilding Wright of Mississippi and Herman Talmadge of Georgia give their okey to it. We would be direlect in our plain duty as public servants to sit idly by and permit the Supreme Court decision in the Gaines case to go by default, merely to appease those who want to build their little schools at the larger expense of the race.

Atlanta Daily World 11-27-48

NAACP And Tuskegee Feud Over Regional School Plan

Amanya Shinn

THURGOOD Marshall, nationall known legal counsel for the NAACP, and Dr. Frederick D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, this week took diametrically opposed stands on the subject of regional schools for the South.

Sparked by Tuskegee's regional school of veterinary medicine, the debate waxed hot as Marshall declared the regional system unconstitutional and Dr. Patterson retorted that the system is "entirely sound."

Sat 11-27-48

Marshall says establishment of regional schools in Dixie is a step backward into 1936 before the Supreme Court ruled in the case of Missouri ex. rel. Gaines vs. Canada that a state might not provide equal educational facilities for Negroes outside its borders but must equalize white and Negro education within the state in question.

Patterson's Retort

Dr. Patterson replies that he does not believe in a Jim Crow regional set-up, but that he does firmly believe that regional schools are both sound and, in view of the poverty-stricken economy of the South, necessary and desirable. As an alternative to the present regional veterinary school he suggests that perhaps 100 Negroes would like to contribute $1000 each or 1000 Negroes $100 each to make Tuskegee's acceptance of regional financial aid unnecessary.

MARSHALL CITES LEGAL FAULT

Marshall retorts that it is obvious that the state under the regional plan cannot guarantee its students equal protection under the law as it must under the Constitution of the United States since by sending its students into another state it has removed them from its jurisdiction and protection. This fact alone, he points out, would make the regional pattern unconstitutional.

Sat-11-27-48

Dr. Patterson, in turn, says that veterinary medicine has always been taught on a regional plan because there are not enough students in any one state to require a separate school or university department for the subject.

He points out that Tuskegee's school of veterinary medicine has been in operation more than three years and has only 49 pupils. Under the new plan it will accept Negro students from 16 southern states while the University of Georgia and Alabama Polytechnic furnish similar regional veterinary education for whites. In order to increase its enrollment to the necessary 200, Tuskegee will need $50,000 in additional equipment, $50,000 to complete its plant and an annual operating budget of from $175,000 to $250,000 Dr. Patterson said, and he could think of no way in which to raise such sums except by the regional plan. Under the regional system, Tukegee will receive $1,000 for each student sent to school from outside Alabama.

He calls the Tuskegee veterinary school the first effort on the part of racists to foist the regional system on the South, and Dr. Patterson says if this is true it is "most unfortunate," but that he sees no need to expand the regional system beyond the one subject of veterinary medicine in which case he believes it the only possible plan.

Sat-11-27-48

Senate Action, In Effects, Kills Measure

Atlanta Daily World 14e(2)

Atlanta, Ga

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—By a vote of 38 to 37 the Senate Thursday afternoon voted to recommit to the Judiciary Committee the joint resolution giving congressional consent to the compact of southern states to set up and maintain regional schools.

Sat 11-27-48

The action of the senate, in effect, kills the resolution. If not the compact. During the five-day debate on the issue, southern senators indicated that southern states were reluctant to spend taxpayers' money for regional schools if the project did not have congressional approval.

Pic. 5-14-48

MORSE LEADS DEBATE

Leading the debate for recommitting the resolution Senator Wayne Morse, Republican of Oregon, contended that congressional approval was unnecessary but if such approval were given congress should impose as a condition of its assent a ban on race or religious discrimination in the admission of students to schools set up under the compact.

Senator Morse, who offered the motion to recommit, threatened to offer an amendment covering President Truman's Civil Rights program if the resolution was not sent back to committee.

Southern senators opposed the motion to send the resolution back to the committee.

GEORGIA EDITORS SAY

Forward Step In Education

(Marietta Journal)

There seems little doubt that the regional education plan adopted by the Southern Governors Conference at Savannah will prove of great benefit to Georgia, and to the South.

Georgia's share in the co-operative program to provide regional professional schools will amount to $81,600 over a two-year period. The State already was spending $75,000 a year to send Negroes to out-of-state higher institutions.

The program will benefit both whites and Negroes. It will enable the South as a region to provide adequate professional schools in the fields of study where the cost of maintaining individual schools in each state make them prohibitive.

Under the program, 14 Southern states will help finance Meharry Medical School for Negroes at Nashville as a regional school. Negroes would gain veterinary education at Tuskegee.

The plan is a progressive step to the cause of education in the whole South.

TAKE ONE STEP AT A TIME

It seems strange that Governors of nine Southern States who oppose a Federal anti-lynching bill because it would interfere with State rights, now propose to go to Congress and ask to be permitted to set up regional universities.

The boys want jim-crow and segregation in schools but they don't want to pay for it.

They, being not only poor but also stingy, see themselves spending millions of dollars for engineering schools, medical schools, and graduate schools. They want to find some way to get this burden of a dual system of education off their necks.

Don't let us blame them too much for trying even though they won't succeed.

Suppose they begin with one regional school and the U.S. Supreme Court knocks it out because it has already said that if these States provide higher education for whites within State boundaries, they will have to give equal education for colored at the same time and within the State.

Nothing would be lost. The State in which the regional institution is located will simply find itself with buildings which can be used for other purposes.

Fair-minded white people and some colored people think that the system of regional schools is the next practical step.

We don't agree with them because we are as much interested in our liberties.

The President's Civil Rights Commission is for ending segregation now and we see no reason why we should advocate less.

The Oklahoma School case has cost us $40,000 already. That's a mere bagatelle if, by winning it, we compel the States properly to educate all citizens within their borders.

Governor Roy J. Turner of Oklahoma has gotten out a crying towel. Last week he wept profusely. He told the colored people that they must be patient.

"Didn't I give you $405,000 for new buildings for the university?" he wailed. ($400,000 doesn't build much more than a dormitory in these days). "Didn't I give $455,000 for current expenses for colored universities?"

It isn't a question of how much he may have given to the colored schools. The only question is: Are colored and white schools equal?

"Why do you want to enter our State universities anyhow?" asks the Governor. "If you would have a colored university, you would be entitled to more colored teachers."

In California, he says, they do not have separate schools and in the whole State there are only 25 colored teachers.

The Governor is crafty. He appeals to our sense of cupidity.

Colored teachers are not now the issue. We are talking about graduate and professional education for colored students.

Once we get colored children admitted to the State colleges, we will get colored teachers. That is step number two.

We take one step at a time.

Southern Compromise

The Southern governors, after some days of solemn deliberation at Savannah on the future of the South and its people, took the first steps to put regional education into actual practice. This is, in theory, a pool of educational facilities. Where one state is unable to furnish a specialized course of training, the entire region collaborates to make good the deficiency and proportionally pays the bill. Actually the beginnings are quite modest, a two-year budget of $1,736,000 to be shared among fourteen states and directed only at medical, dental and veterinary training. Furthermore, as projected, the plan mostly amounts to a form of joint state aid for the professional education of Negroes at the two chief Negro schools in the South, namely Meharry Medical College and Tuskegee Institute. It is not much. Segregation is, of course, preserved. In the all-or-nothing scheme of Negro advancement, the regional plan is a backhanded piece of evasion. Undoubtedly it will be severely tested in the courts on the measure of equal educational opportunity afforded in actual fact.

The unfavorable view is easy enough. How much simpler, for instance, if the Southern graduate and professional schools all at once forgot about color and admitted the earnest Negro seeking to become a doctor, dentist or veterinary. (This, in time, seems likely enough). The South's motives are not wholly pure, but we see at least some good. Regardless of the amount of calculated circumvention, and it would be naive to assume that there is none, the South has taken at least a small step on its own toward raising the level of all Southerners of all races. The general direction is correct. Any improvement is better than none. Who can deny that a hundred additional Negro doctors, each a leader among his people, are not worth having? Small as this advance may seem, it is an advance of sorts. The regional grants should be accepted in friendly grace and candid recognition of the facts. To all concerned, whether in or out of the South, it is only fair to consider if in the so-called practical or realistic approach there is not at least a fair possibility of ultimately attaining the ideal. The road is long, but so is the problem.

Senators Tell NAACP Why They Voted For Regional School Plan

NEW YORK—Responding to a letter of inquiry from Walter White, NAACP secretary, three usually liberal United States Senators have set forth their reasons for voting to consider the southern proposal for segregated regional educational institutions.

Each of the three—William F. Knowland of California, Harley M. Kilgore of West Virginia, and Elbert D. Thomas of Utah—has a record of supporting civil rights legislation.

Senator Knowland in a letter, the content of which was released here this week by Mr. White, explained that he "felt that the issue could be better met by facing the situation rather than by recommitting the bill to committee for further study and indecisive action."

REASON FOR SPONSORSHIP

Upon request of Governor Meadows of West Virginia, Senator Kilgore acted as a sponsor of the resolution because, as he pointed out in his letter, he "was convinced that this resolution would do nothing more than to permit states to establish regional schools. In my opinion, the legislation would not set aside any Supreme Court decision and would not in any way deter the fight for equal educational opportunity for all Americans."

In reply to the Senator's letter, Mr. White asserted that "it has been demonstrated over and over again that there is no possible equality within a segregated pattern."

Senator Thomas referred to his remarks on the Senate floor during debate on the measure, on May 12, in the course of which he said:

SEGREGATION UNJUST

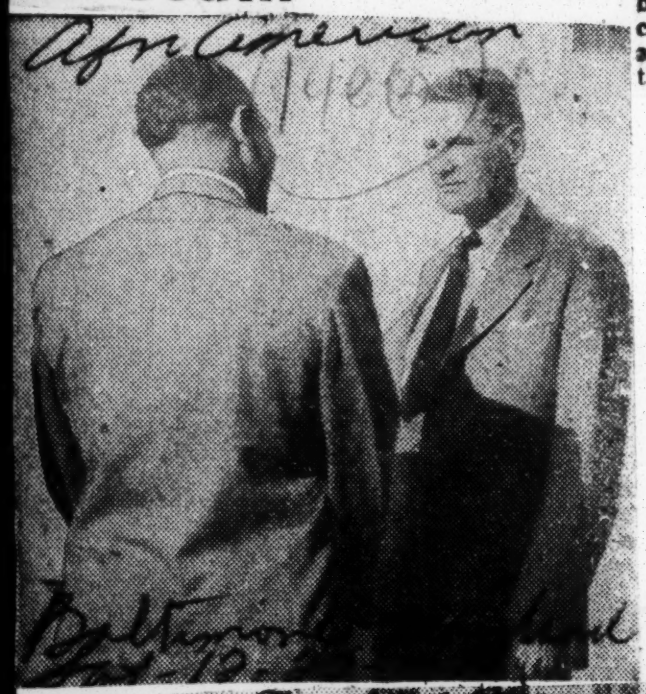
"There are those who think the principle of non-segregation is just and right, as I do; but everything cannot be done overnight. The way to solve these questions," he continued, "is not to stand absolutely on a principle which cannot successfully be made dominant in our generation, but to go forward as we have gone forward since the Civil War, doing the best possible under the circumstances."

In addition to communications to these three, Mr. White wrote letters of commendation to those Senators who voted to discard the southern plan.

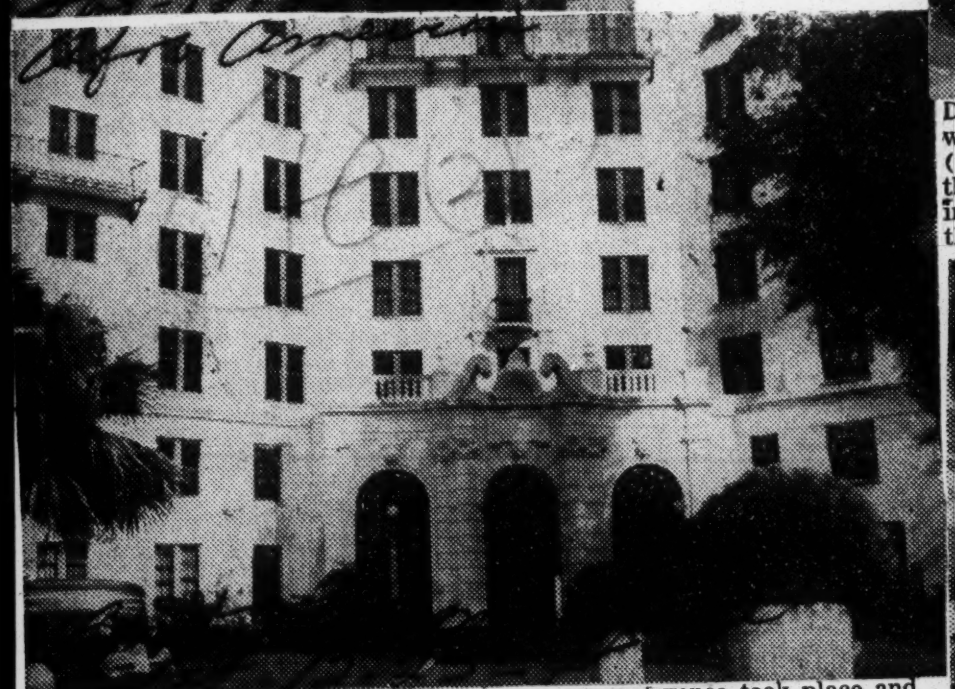
Replying, Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas said "it would have been a disgrace to the Congress, if we had considered that bill. I feel that it was disgraceful that the bill got some votes."

14e(2) 1948 Regional

Educators Jim-Crowed at Savannah Meeting on Segregated Regional Schools for the South



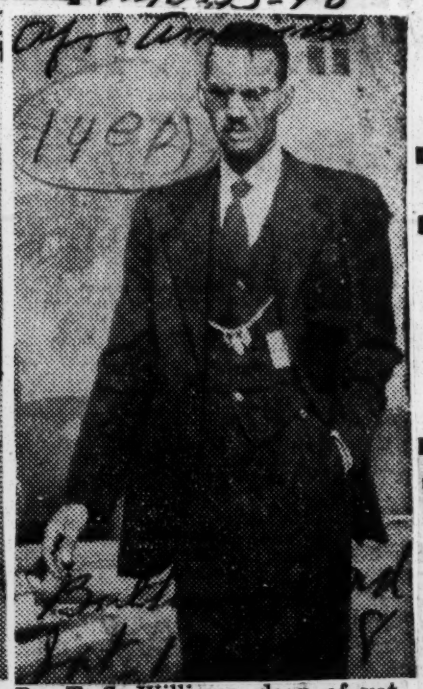
"President Gray will understand," said Gov. Millard Caldwell (right) of Florida as he refused to be photographed with Dr. William Gray (back to camera), president of Florida A. and M. College, at the conference in Savannah, Ga., last week on the Southern Governors'



This is Hotel Oglethorpe in Savannah where the conference took place and where colored educators were jim-crowed in Room 120. Although they were not segregated in the sessions which they were allowed to attend, they were not admitted to the room where the policy-making council was at work, nor were they consulted by the council. They ate, lounged and relaxed in Room 120, being barred from the other facilities of the hotel.

Douglass Hall, (second from left), special writer for the AFRO, is shown with other newsmen in a press conference with Governor Caldwell (right), who is president of the Reginal Council. Mr. Hall also covered the recent meeting of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools in Wilmington, N.C., where colored educators unanimously denounced the segregation aims of the Regional Council.

Dr. Rufus Clement (right), president of Atlanta University, and Dr. S. M. Nabritt, dean of the graduate school at Atlanta, were among those who attended the conference.



Dr. T. S. Williams, dean of veterinary medicine at Tuskegee Institute, leaves Hotel Oglethorpe after the conference. Dr. F. D. Patterson, head of Tuskegee was also on hand.

Segregation Idea Meets Opposition of Big Majority

Washington, D. C. — Just how many of the Negro educators who were in attendance at the Savannah, Ga. Georgia meeting of Southern Governors, last week, favored the proposal to put the Jim Crow system of education into effect, is not known. But all are in a ticklish position. Failure to endorse the plan with the enthusiasm that it is alleged Dr. F. D. Patterson of Tuskegee and Dr. Rufus E. Clement of Atlanta University have been showing for it will likely render the colored educators ineligible" for election to the regional commission, which is to be

The above list is conspicuous by the number of heads of Southern colored colleges who failed to put in their appearance. It is noted that the Savannah meeting was published in its issue of December 18. The AFRO listed the following states that have land grant colleges:

Arkansas, Delaware, Kentucky,

Louisiana, Maryland, Missouri, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia.

Thus it is shown that only five of the States with colored land-grant colleges sent representatives to the meeting, and apparently a total of eleven states refused to do so. Also of the five states that did send representatives, the principal spokesmen were presidents of private colleges. Tuskegee and Atlanta University. Dr. Redd, representing Fisk University at Nashville, Tenn., was from a private college.

The failure of the large majority of colored state colleges to attend the meeting is attributed to the fact that the organization of land grant college presidents is on record as opposing regional education on a segregated basis, and logically contend that the states should take care of the educational needs of all their people. These presidents have been waging a fight for the expansion of the state colleges they head and are said to feel that any graduate courses that are not made available at the colored colleges should be open to colored students at the regular state universities.

The presidents of the colored land grant colleges have welcomed students to their institutions from every part of the United States. They feel that this is proper for colored colleges as for white colleges and therefore they do not subscribe to arrangements, such as the regional plan, which are largely inspired by a desire to keep Northern students out of colored colleges of the South. The regional plan adopted at Savannah specifies quotas of students from the various states and leaves no opening for colored students who live in states outside the South. The arrangement shows the ridiculous extremes to which the advocates of regionalism go in their desire to promote expanded racial segregation in the educational system of the South.

Even though the Savannah planners worked out on paper a beautiful arrangement of quotas for students whom they are going to order to Tuskegee to learn the veterinary science and to Meharry to study medicine, the plan is subject to attack from the standpoint that it does not guarantee the sums of money which the designated colleges so frantically contend that they must have, or else. The unpopularity of the regional school arrangement makes it certain that it will be a handicap to getting the students to fill the necessary quotas from each state. It is pointed out, for instance, that Texas, which long has furnished Meharry Medical College large quota of its students does not intend to send any under the regional arrangement, but will educate its colored medical students in the newly-established Texas State University for colored students.

Many are saying the example being set by Texas may become popular with other states. Colored citizens of the other states may be able to bring such pressure on their officials as to induce them to find a way to educate all of their citizens at home. On the other hand, it is held, state officials whose prime reason for supporting regional education is to keep colored students out of the "white" universities, easily could be induced to make available to colored students of their states the same amount of money promised Tuskegee and Meharry and let these students go to Northern states and study medicine or veterinary science.

And then there is the case at the University of Arkansas. The young colored woman who applied for admission to the "white" university to study medicine was admitted without any objection. That sort of example of taking care of the comparitively few colored students seeking professional training in the South is so sensible that it is bound to gain in favor in other states. Arkansas, probably did not have to spend a single extra cent to provide a medical education for one additional student and the state certainly can educate any quota of colored medical students it is asked to send to Meharry much cheaper than by sending them to Meharry.

The more study that is being given to the regional educational plan the more it is shown up as a weak and impractical solution of the South's problem of educating all of its citizens in compliance with the law which says it must be done on a basis of racial equality.

DR. CLEMENT DEFENDS REGIONAL EDUCATION

BY MARION E. JACKSON

President Rufus Clement of Atlanta University defended "regionalism" Wednesday in a speech before the Atlanta Lunchy Club at the Butler Street YMCA, but insisted that "it doesn't meet the requirements of the Gaines Decision."

He told a large luncheon group that if the Regional Education Plan is unsatisfactory "throw it back in to the courts."

The Atlanta University president devoted the major portion of his address to a scathing attack upon Negro newspapers who had criticized him for his role in connection with the regional education plan.

GRADUATE STUDIES

He quoted liberally from editorials which had condemned the plan to utilize the institution as the hub of graduate studies in the setup. He said these editorials were without "fact or foundation."

Taking a broadside at the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Dr. Clement said "If the NAACP is the strategic bombing squadron and can blast out all inequality then more power to them."

He accused the editors of the Atlanta Daily World of having editorially encouraged and applauded efforts of Texas and Maryland to re-enforce segregation by setting up highly-financed institutions for Negro education.

He said that "No proposal has ever been agreed upon that Atlanta University be a regional education institution." Neither has any been submitted to the Trustees. He said the Atlanta World had ignored a letter re-affirming this fact by placing it in the Letter to the Editor Column. Dr. Clement disclosed "I have been a long time supporter of the regional plan."

"Some people feel that the Southern Governors Conference organized for the purpose of regional education. Actually, that is untrue. In 1939 a quiet conference was held at Howard University, which did not get into the newspapers. Twenty educators from Georgia, North Carolina, Maryland and other states looked into possibility of higher education at Howard, Fisk and Tuskegee. We spent a day and a half planning for graduate professional education for Negroes. It was eight years later that Southern Governors put it on their agenda."

"We did not get to far, but we did get to know each other."

FIVE CONFERENCES

He said the Southern Governors did not probe the subject until 1945. Five conferences were held during this year between July 31 and August 1 on the question of graduate and professional studies. Centers proposed for these institutions were at Durham, Atlanta, Jackson and Prairie View A and M. It was 1948 before they worked on a concrete proposal.

Dr. Clement questioned the legality of the plan. He said that he had told a conference "That they could not plan a regional college unless it provided 'open opportunities' for all the people."

INVITATION REJECTED

Dr. Clement said he rejected an opportunity to attend the Southern Governors' conference at Wakulla Springs "because I did not like the way the invitation came." He attended a later meeting in Gainesville, Fla. On Meharry Medical College, Dr. Clement said the regional planners had three alternatives:

1. Southern States take over an operate on a pro rata basis.
2. Keep the doors open by operating on a "contractual basis" and appropriate $1,500 per student.
3. Close its doors.

He said after careful investigation, he was convinced that the second alternative was best.

He stated this plan "was not satisfactory, but for the time being Meharry will not have to close."

Under this plan "Private control has not taken it over and Meharry's board today or tomorrow can be done with it entirely."

"The only thing that can determine the future of Meharry is the integrity of the board."

Citing the need for more medical facilities, Dr. Clement said "More than 21,000 applied for medical study who were eligible and qualified, but were not admitted into America's medical schools.'

On the issue of segregation the speaker questioned "If you are going to be logical about segregation, let us close Atlanta University, Fisk and Howard, because they conform to the pattern of segregation."

Angered by criticism by Negro newspapers on his reported advocacy of regional education, Dr. Clement said his comments were for the benefit of "All Negro newspapers who want to be sensational and all the orators who wanted to call him 'Uncle Tom,."

NOT ADVISORY

The Savannah Conference on regional education "had Negro representation officially and not advisory." He said the group amended its charter for official Negro representation on the Council."

The speaker warned that "the Southern pattern of racial segregation is the legal setup in 17 states and the District of Columbia but extends in certain patterns to Indiana, New York, New Jersey, Indiana and other areas.

"The Supreme Court decision as handed down in the Gaines Case by Chief Justice Hughes said the states "must provide similar or like opportunities for all citizens within their boundaries.'

"Some people feel that Southern Governors talk about nothing but the race question. Actually at Savannah, they talked about federalization of the National Guard, freight rates, tideland oils, etc.

The AU President devoted quite a bit of time to articles and editorials which have appeared in the Atlanta Daily World. He lashed the World for giving front page publicity to an article in the Morehouse College Maroon Tiger student publication which credited him with having told the AU Board of Trustees that the utilization of the university as a regional school was a "fait accompli."

He said the article written by James W. Mack of Memphis, Tenn., has quoted his report only in part.

The Baltimore Afro American was condemned at the same time for articles, editorials, and statements published which linked him with the regional plan.

A heated question period followed with C. A. Scott, Editor General Manager of the Atlanta Wo... orously affirming the paper's opposition to the plan. V. W. Hodges, Associate Editor, answered Dr. Clement charges by reading excerpts from published articles linking Dr. Clement with the plan. Rev. M. L. King attacked the proposal at the same time, Jesse O. Thomas bombarded the speaker with questions as did a host of other luncheon guests.

Dr. Patterson Elaborates Defense Of Regional Plan For Tuskegee

By NNPA News Service

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala. Defending the tentative arrangement under which Tuskegee Institute would become a regional school for veterinary medical training, Dr. Frederick D. Patterson, its president, said regional education in veterinary medicine is "entirely sound."

Admitting that governors of southern states were probably using the regional education program as a means of defeating the fight to abolish racial segregation in education, Dr. Patterson said Tuskegee would prefer not to enter into the arrangement.

As an alternative, he suggested that 100 colored persons guarantee the institution $1,000 a year each, or 1,000 colored persons guarantee it $100 a year each. The school of veterinary medicine at Tuskegee Institute is in its fourth year of operation. It has a total enrollment of forty-nine students. A number of these are students from states other than Alabama, but no other state contributes to the school. The current operating budget is $65,000, appropriated by Alabama, plus amounts collected from tuition and fees.

In order to carry out expansion the school, it was estimated, will need $50,000 for additional equipment, $50,000 to complete the physical plant, an annual operating budget of $175,000 to $250,000 with additional funds for research, an increase in the number of staff and an increase in staff salaries, and additional clinical material.

The school is not yet accredited. Accreditation cannot be made until the middle of the fourth year of operation. Dean T. S. Williams expects to request examination of the school by the American Veterinary Medical Association in January, 1949.

DR. PATTERSON'S STATEMENT

Dr. Patterson's statement defending his entering the arrangement appearing here is an elaboration upon his original statement published exclusively in the Journal and Guide of Nov. 20. The elaborated statement follows in part:

"I regard regionalism not only as sound but recognize its existence as a fact of long standing.

"The trouble is that we are confusing it with the racial policies of the South. I realize it is probable that the southern governors are using a perfectly sound approach of meeting educational need to defeat the aspirations of Negroes to do away with segregation in education.

"This I regard as extremely unfortunate and it implies that those of us who are working in Negro education must be exceedingly careful not to become instruments to assist the governors in the achievement of that objective.

"On the other hand, there is nothing that we can do in the case of certain offerings where the demand is limited and the costs are high except acknowledge the fact that making these offerings available on a regional basis is entirely sound. It just so happens that veterinary medicine is one such instance.

"Veterinary medicine has always been 'regional' throughout the United States, for there are not more than 12 to 14 colleges of veterinary medicine in the entire forty-eight states, nor are many more than this number required.

"Tuskegee Institute has been approached along with Alabama Polytechnic Institute and the Veterinary School of the University of Georgia to open its doors on a regional basis to Negro and white students of other states in the South. More than this, the regional idea is endorsed by the American Veterinary Medical Association, the accrediting body for veterinary schools, because they, like the medical profession, do not wish to see too many schools established.

"I feel that under these circumstances if this particular plan is carried through to conclusion and Tuskegee Institute is given complete equality of participation that we have no practical alternative to cooperation.

"An additional fact is that Tuskegee Institute undertook the development of the school of veterinary medicine five years ago with the full understanding that the limited demand in Alabama would require that it be regional. Our enrollment supports this position. Students now are registered as follows: Texas, 6; Louisiana, 3; Mississippi, 3; South Carolina, 2; North Carolina, 2; Florida, 1; Virginia, 1; Tennessee, 1; Oklahoma, 2; Washington, D. C. 1; Kansas, 2, Iowa, 1; New York, 4; Massachusetts, 1; Illinois, 2; Ohio, 1; Michigan, 1; British West Indies, 1.

"Of course, Tuskegee Institute would prefer not to enter into this arrangement if resources were available other wise. If, for example, 100 Negroes will guarantee us $1,000 apiece on an annual basis, this will take care of the situation, or if 1,000 will guarantee us $100 apiece annually our operations would go fairly smooth. You and I both know no such possibility is in the offing.

"I see no reason why this cooperation need be extended to other fields. I am of the opinion that regionalism is not going to meet the issue so far as the higher education of Negroes is concerned and that the expense and confusion of setting up regional institutions will soon prove prohibitive.

"The fact that offerings must be identical in each state for both Negroes and white students leaves the way open for legal action in so many cases that I am sure most institutions in terms of fields of limited demand will take the course of Oklahoma and Arkansas.

"I think, however, we must face the fact that for a long time to come the bulk of Negro youth in the South are going to be educated in colleges serving them exclusively or at least where they will greatly predominate."

The Regional Education Plan

THE Southern Governors Conference has announced a regional educational plan. It proposes to enable the states having segregated school systems to do collectively what they are not doing individually in providing equal facilities.

Governors and educators representing fourteen southern states planned at their Savannah meeting to start the regional system by—

1. Asking the legislatures of the group of states to provide appropriations amounting to $1,736,000 for medical, dental and veterinary education for the first two years;

2. To increase this amount by 1952 to $2,234,000.

The conference took no action at Savannah on other phases of higher education. Such action, it was indicated, must await the development of the medical, dental, veterinary plan.

In a move, apparently intended to remove the question of race as a legal obstacle, the planners announced that three regional veterinary schools would be set up for whites and one for Negroes. As to medical-dental education the plan provided only for aid to Meharry Medical College for Negroes in Nashville. Meharry would get about $600,000 of the first biennium budget. It is the only medical college in the southern states other than Howard, in the District of Columbia, open to Negro students.

OTHER than for training in veterinary science, the plan does not hold out any improvement or expansion of facilities for affording Negroes opportunities for higher education. All the money, when obtained, is to be spent at existing institutions. Meharry will not be able to accept any more students next year, under the plan, than it accepted this year under its present auspices. The need for veterinary surgeons exists, but it is limited. The plan, as announced, makes no provisions for post-graduate work for teachers in the arts and sciences, in chemical, electrical, mechanical, architectural, civil and other branches of engineering.

At the present time there are twenty-eight engineering schools in the southern states—none admitting Negroes.

THE two medical schools now open to Negroes—Meharry, at Nashville, and Howard, at Washington—can take in between them approximately one hundred and forty medical freshmen each year. These simmer down to about half that number by the end of the fourth year. There is a crying need for doctors. Meharry and Howard had more than two thousand applicants last year. Of this number it will be seen that only a trickle were admitted. The regional plan, so far promises no increase or improvement in facilities. It opens no new opportunities for men ready for a career in medicine or dentistry.

THERE is a crying need for qualified instructors in the private and state colleges of the South. At the present time no institution in the southern states can afford a post-graduate course to a Negro leading to a doctorate in education or any other field. There are two or three offering the master of arts or science degree in education and social service, but the margin of efficiency in these instances is so narrow (due to lack of funds) that most persons seeking these degrees go to northern universities. At present the regional plan offers no improvement in this field.

THE regional plan is admittedly intended by its sponsors to provide a way out for the southern states, which under recent Supreme Court decisions, are under pressure to provide equal educational facilities for their Negro citizens within their own borders. The quickest, and the easiest way for the states to comply would be to open their institutions for higher education to both races. But this poses a problem which the white South is not yet willing to solve in the Christian, democratic way—and in the most economical way. Laws, customs, mores and what not dictate that a method of circumvention must be found. Such a method necessarily comes within the framework of segregation and perpetuates the present system of denial of opportunity and of simple justice.

THE South's cry of financial inability to meet the requirements of the situation will not hold water. Let us admit, for the sake of discussion that the southern states are not as well situated financially as those of the North and West. It still remains true that the southern states find the money to do whatever they want to do for their white schools.

For the current biennium Virginia's recent General Assembly appropriated the generous sum of $68,793,649 for maintenance and capital outlays for the university, and six state supported colleges for white students.

Other southern states participating in the regional plan have comparable budgets for their white colleges and universities. But the sums they appropriate for their separate Negro schools are mere tokens of support.

The regional plan promises nothing more than a continuation of this discrimination on a collective basis. There will be a spread of financial contributions to cover professional and general education that will be so thin as to hold, in the ultimate, less justification for existence than the present segregated plan of discrimination now practiced by the states individually.

A Historic Educatior

Atlanta Constitution — 4

SAVANNAH—The South has taken a historic r bootstraps. Southern Governors and college leaders and financial resources here, have voted to ask their nance a unique educational "share-the-wealth" progr in these co-operative regional schools will be less th total of $1,000,000, not $1,000,000 for each State.

Since each Governor will ask his own General Assembly to appropriate its share of the money needed, the success of the plan is more or less assured. Legislatures customarily are co-operative with Governors. At any rate, the program will have a powerful spokesman in each State.

The plan calls for the South to designate certain of its present schools as reional schools to train its youths in medicine, dentistry and veterinary medicine. All students, both in the State with the institution and outside the State, would be admitted for the same tuition fee. All of the States would send students to these regional schools and all of the States would help pay the operation costs of these schools.

Gov. Talmadge thinks the program can be of vast benefit to Georgia. Former Chancellor Paty says it is of historic significance in improving the South's educational level, and Chancellor Caldwell says the many States co-operatively can do much more than any State could individually. Wed-12-13-48

Under the proposed starting program, Georgia will receive more benefits than most other States from the regional program. The University of Georgia Veterinary Medicine School will become a regional school for white students. Thirty students from other States will come to Athens, under the plan, and their States will contribute a total of $30,000 a year to help Georgia's school operate. On the other hand, Georgia will spend $9,000 every two years to send Negroes to the proposed regional veterinary school at Tuskegee, and $60,600 to send Negro students to Meharry Medical School and other medical schools. This, together with operating costs of the Regional Council, means Georgia would spend $81,600 on the plan each two years, while receiving $60,000 during this same time for educating nonresident students at Athens. That would mean that Georgia would pay out $21,600 more than it would take in each two years.

But actually Georgia would be making money. This State today is spending $75,000 sending Negroes to out-of-State schools, chiefly medical schools. Most of this would be saved when Meharry becomes a regional school. Wed-12-15-48

The action of Governors and educators here this week is a start toward providing graduate and professional schools for white students and also for Negro students. Through this method, the South can do much to eliminate criticism of not providing equal facilities for Negroes.

Regional Education Plan

Atlanta Constitution — 4

Wed-12-15-48

The Southern Governors' Conference in Savannah seems to have hit on a plan for regional education that can be put to work in the near future and without reference to any outside agency. In brief, 14 Southern states would subsidize existing institutions to provide for advanced training for negroes and whites in technical and professional subjects.

State contributions to existing Southern colleges and universities would permit admission of students on a quota basis. The payments would be made to the Southern Regional Council for Education, and it would attend to individual cases, and take care of the necessary details.

As the program now stands, Southern negroes would receive training in medicine and dentistry at Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tenn. Howard University and a proposed college at the University of Texas would also be eligible for aid. Veterinary training for white students would become available at Auburn in Alabama, the University of Georgia and Oklahoma A. & M. Similar training for negroes would be open at Tuskegee Institute in Alabama.

The medical and dental schools to be part of the program for white students have not been designated, but that is a detail that is being studied. The amounts to be contributed have been determined tentatively, and many other matters have been set up. The plan's operation appears to depend now on the willingness of state legislative bodies to make the funds available. Wed-12-15-48

It should be emphasized that this program of regional education has nothing to do with race segregation as such. It does, of course, recognize the state of affairs that is in effect, but its aim is to provide the highest type of instruction for worthy students on the most economical and sensible basis possible. It is also aimed at keeping the most capable young people of the South in this section to do their needed work after graduation.

It is out of the question for each of the Southern states to provide adequate opportunity, let alone extraordinary facilities, for all its oncoming students. In any event, the regional plan shows that tremendous expenditures by the individual states are not required to solve the problem. The regional program will also certainly lead to wider understanding and better co-operation among the students who work under it. All in all, the plan would mean long strides forward.

Regional Plan Ignores Gaines, Sipuel Decrees

Afro American
Baltimore Maryland
Sat-12-25-48

Dixie Governors Push Program and Name Meharry, Tuskegee as Experimental Units

SAVANNAH, Ga.—(NNPA)—The question of equal education-ruling in the Gaines case. students in the States of the Deep South appeared last week to be headed back toward Congress and the Supreme Court after Governors and educators from 14 Southern States approved a program of regional education.

Despite the statement of several governors that they had kept in mind the decisions of the Supreme tend that the regional education Court, opponents of the plan con- program is in conflict with the ruling in the Gaiens case.

The Supreme Court held in that historic case that a State must duplicate its courses of study in the colored State-supported institutions or admit a colored applicant to the White state university for any course not offered in the colored school.

Back to Congress

As a means of strengthening their position in the case of further litigation, the govrenors have indicated that they will again seek Congressional consent to the compact entered into by 14 of them to set up regional schools.

In New York City, the NAACP on Dec. 14, reiterated its opposition to the Southern regional program, the board of directors adopt- plan "otltsjiaso- cmfw vbgk ing a resolution calling the plan "a devise to circumvent the clear intention of the Supreme Court decisions in the Gaines and Sipuel cases."

Called "False Economy"

The board's resolution termed segregated regional schools "false economy contrived to make the public believe that equality is attainable within the framework of segregation," and added:

"Long and bitter experience had demonstrated to the fallacy of the so-called separate but equal provision of facilities."

The proposal to which the association objected was adopted here on Dec. 13 by the Governors of 11 Southern States. The initial program will be restricted to medical, dental and veterinary training.

2 Experimental Units

Meharry Medical College at Nashville, Tenn., would provide the medical and dental training for all colored students in the South, while Tuskegee Institute would provide the veterinary training. Sat-12-25-48

White regional veterinary schools would be established at Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn, Ala.; the University of Georgia at Athens, Ga., and Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College at Stillwater, Okla.

Minority Report Made

An annual fund of $300,000 for Meharry College was approved, while $355,000 was voted for the four regional veterinary schools.

Dr. Clifton O. Dummett, dean of Meharry's Medical School who was a member of the Commission on Human Medicine and Health Services of the Regional Council on Education, operating agency of the Southern Governors Conference, submitted a minority report expressing disagreement with "certain fundamentals of the plan."

14e(2) 1948

Thought Meharry Was Going to Close?

Meharry's white administrators seem to have been in connivance with southern congressional leaders during the recent attempt to establish regional universities. It will be recalled that prominent Southerners pleaded on the floor of congress that Meharry would have to close for lack of funds and that the only way to keep its doors open was to pass the proposed law establishing regional universities.

At that time this writer assumed there was integrity in the position taken by officials at Meharry and the public statements of Southerners interested in this legislation. Along with others we shed a few tears, and even wrote an article giving reasons why Negroes should annually contribute sufficient funds to keep this famous medical school alive.

But congress turned down the regional college plan. At least they referred it for further study, and Meharry blythly proceeds with its plans for the fall and winter terms. We are reliably advised that ample funds are on hand and were safely in sight at the time Meharry officials were shedding crocodile tears along with a group of Dixiecrats who felt they were sacking segregation for use for some time to come.

There were a few Negroes who went along with the idea of regional universities, but we want to feel that they were not in the inner circle and did not know the actual truth respecting the finances of Meharry Medical college.

We are going to repeat what we heard several years ago when the United Negro College Fund was established. It was whispered then that the secret motive behind this plan was to get a certain group of Negro educators off on a limb behind this plan and then later refuse to contribute to this fund unless these Negro educators agreed to confine all of their graduate training program to a few designated schools in the South. When we first elevated this rumor to our columns it was heatedly denied, and for a time we felt perhaps we had been given the wrong slant at the United Negro College Fund. But since the regional plan began to take form in the past 24 months, we have noticed some suspicious moves on the part of certain educators. It makes us believe they have secretly endorsed the idea of regional universities.

Out-state scholarships have been outlawed by the United States Supreme Court, but state government adds insult to injury when it first refuses to educate Negroes within the state ,while exercising the right to tell Negro youth where it can or cannot go to secure education outside the state. The whole sorry mess has its inception in the desire of southern whites to prohibit Negroes of the section to secure education in northern schools. The sentiment is that northern schools develop "biggity" Negroes, and teach them courses for which there is no occupational opportunity for blacks below the Mason and Dixon line.

Some of our most distinguished leaders over the nation are graduates of Meharry Medical college. Some sort of protest should eminate from this group, advising authorities at Meharry that Negroes are through with segregation, jim crow and second-class citizenship, and that they do not want their alma mater made a breastwork for southern reaction.

Congress Frowns On Regional Colleges

When Senator Spessard L. Holland, of Florida, presented the regional college plan of the southern governors to the senate the other day he ran into a veritable hornets' nest in which he found cuddled Senators Ferguson, of Michigan, and Ives, of New York.

Regional

The Florida solon had his educational package nicely wrapped and proceeded to tell the wary senate regional colleges were planned for both white and black. He pointed out that education in petroleum, engineering, textile engineering, mining, metallurgy and ceramics "are exceedingly vital to the South," but the South has "no educational opportunity or educational facility available in the whole region" to teach these subjects.

The Floridan admitted that Emory college, a private institution, was supplying medical, dental and pharmaceutical knowledge to white youth in the state of Florida, but that this non-tax supported institution could not take care of more than nine or ten per cent of the applications for enrollment. "We want this compact to establish and support schools in this field, or to take over and improve greatly facilities which already exist," said Holland.

Senator Holland then went on to tell of plans already laid to take over Meharry Medical college and to convince his auditors of the wisdom in congressional approval of this compact between the southern states he read two letters from native Africans praying for the new arrangement and several from American Negro students now attending Meharry.

But Senators Ferguson and Ives immediately challenged the proposal. Senator Ferguson said if the South in good faith wanted to establish regional colleges it could do so without congressional sanction, and that secondly, the plan was nothing more than a covert scheme to perpetuate segregation.

"I know of no legal impediments to their setting up regional schools. I know of no legal requirements that makes it necessary for them first to secure the approval of congress," said Senator Ferguson.

Senator Ives took the position that if federal approval was going to be obtained and is necessary, that congress should immediately explore this new idea to determine whether or not a uniform standard of education was going to be taught—the same for the blacks as for the whites.

"I feel strongly, Mr. President, that if the Negroes in the South were to be favored over a period of years, with a standard of education equivalent in all respects to that which the white students living in the South are favored, many of the difficulties with which the South is confronted would be thereby eliminated," Ives said.

Senator Ives feels if congress gives approval to a program which includes the principle of segregation, it throws wide discussion of the entire area of civil rights, and that before sanction is given to the southern proposal full discussion should be had of whether or not congress does not disapprove any program that makes differences because of race, creed or color.

"At least we should not even indirectly give congressional sanction to the establishment of a public policy of segregation," continued Senator Ives.

The Black Dispatch believes as Senator Wayne Morse, who added his bit to the discussion by suggestion that under the constitution "there has been some distinction drawn by the courts between what a state can do and what the federal government can do," and Senator Morse fears that unless some qualifying amendments are placed in the regional proposal the federal structure might unwittingly be drawn into collusion with much that is objectionable to minority groups within the jurisdiction of the states.

It seems strange that a Florida senator would have to go all the way to Africa to locate endorsement of regional colleges, and that the only persons in this country willing to swallow segregation, along with violation of sacred constitutional guarantees are two students at Meharry Medical college who seek to serve only their own selfish interests. Africans, natives of Nigeria, are aliens, and yet to prove our point we rush over to the Gold Coast of West Africa to secure alien sanction.

It appears to the Black Dispatch that in its regional proposal the South meets itself coming back. State rights imposes the thought of self-sufficiency. It is open admission of the South that it cannot independently solve its educational problems, which it has always insisted is a sectional matter. But the moment it brings this question to the federal structure for attention it is left-hand admission it desires federal counsel, and incidentally, federal cash. The South desires to eat its cake and have it too. All of the argument made against federal aid to education was based upon the philosophy and theory that the federal government has no constitutional right to interfere with educational programs in the states, but when it admits, as in the regional plan, that the federal government does have an interest, what is the extent and breadth of that interest?

The whole subtle scheme is the cunning of those who would upset the decision of the Supreme Court in the Ada Lois Sipuel case. With their backs to the wall, southern states seek overnight congressional sanction of the status quo order to halt a progressive society. The recent decision of Supreme Court on restrictive covenants was a body blow segregation in housing, and the same identical constitutional principle applies to education, and to all other fields ving freedom of thought and action.

One other thought and then we are through. The South ways opposing outside interference. We are just wong what protection the Negro would have in congress now against the wolves of prejudice if it were not for sition to regional universities that comes from sections de the South? The truth is, all of the Negroes in the d States would be slaves today but for the righteous inrence of the North into the affairs of the South. Hats Senators Ives, Ferguson and Morse! We can use quite of their carpet-bagging philosophy.

Regional School Bill in Offing

MIAMI (ANP) — In an informal interview with newsmen here last week, Rep. Brook Hays of Arkansas (Dem.), said that he intends introducing in Congress a bill that will pave the way for regional educational institutions.

He referred to regional schools as a "very good idea," since few states can establish top ranking graduate colleges in every professional field.

By joint action, however, he added each state might concentrate on one or two fields.

Florida, it was estimated, would contribute funds toward the building of a pharmacy and forestry graduate schools to which students from other Southern States would come, while Louisiana could contribute its funds to medical and dental schools.

Mr. Hays stated that a bill is being prepared for Congress that will give the States "the right to enter into contracts with each other—to establish regional facilities for both white and colored students.

The Federal Constitution, however, does not permit contracts between States without the permission of Congress.

South Acts To Build New School System

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Aug. 2 (ANP)—Dr. John E. Ivey of the University of North Carolina today was chosen to prepare a detailed plan on which the South can build its regional educational system.

The 30-year-old specialist on southern resources was named by a committee of educators to direct an 18-month study of the region's needs and opportunities for interstate cooperation in training of youth in technical and professional fields.

He will have headquarters in Atlanta. He has resigned from the University of North Carolina faculty and will begin his new duties immediately.

Gov. Millard Caldwell of Florida, chairman of the 14-state regional council for education, said Dr. Ivey will have two major jobs:

1. To draft plans for setting up regional courses and research facilities quickly in fields where there is an immediate need.

2. To prepare a long-range study on which the South can build a system of cooperative institutions designed to give southern youths the technical training they need without leaving the South for educations and never bringing their talents home again.

The governor said Dr. Ivey and a research staff he will set up under a $100,000 budget also will prepare factual information on regional education which may be made available to state legislatures when they are asked to ratify the 14-state pact next year.

For six years, Dr. Ivey has been executive secretary of the committee on southern regional studies and education of the American Council on Education.

FIRST CLASS COURAGE:

State College Chiefs War on Separation

WASHINGTON

Seventeen presidents of land-grant colleges resolved at their 26th annual 3-day conference here last week that legal action is necessary to block regional schools being fostered by Southern governors, discrimniatory allocation of public funds for education by Federal agencies, and educational discrimination by State Universities.

They adopted a resolution reaffirming a resolution passed last February in Atlantic City asserting that "we do not approve regionalism" in the South on a racially separate basis "as a method of equalizing educational opportunities for colored people."

To Push ROTC Claims

Committees were appointed to approach several Federal departments for funds which, it is believed, are being diverted from colored colleges in the South.

The presidents agreed to take up again with the Army the question of more Reserve Officers Training Corps units for their institutions.

Regional "Deals" Aired

Charges that some individual presidents were making "under the table" deals with advocates of the regional school plan led to bitter and heated debate at the session.

G. L. Harrison, president of Langston University, Okla., and L. A. Davis, president of Arkansas State College, made it clear that they definitely opposed the plan but attended a recent conference called by its proponents in Atlanta upon the invitation of their governors.

They opined that colored leaders should be present at any meeting where plans were being formulated which directly affected the race, but emphasized that their presence in Atlanta does not mean that they agree with the plans discussed there by the governors.

Drive in Congress Set

W. H. Banks, public relations director, Prairie View A. and M. College, Texas, said there is a definite move on to push the regional plan in the 81st Congress, and that it is on the agenda of the American Education Association, and the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, both of which will meet soon.

A statement was read from the report of a previous governors' conference held in Florida which quoted President Rufus Clement of Atlanta University, President F. D. Patterson of Tuskegee Institute, and President W. T. Trenholm of Alabama State College as having said they approved "any" plan that stood for higher education for all people.

Dr. Clement Tells Views

President Clement, who was scheduled to lead the discussions on regional schools, was absent, and neither President Patterson nor President Trenholm attended the conference.

Rushing in before the afternoon meeting closed, Oct. 20, however, President Clements defended himself of the charge brought to the floor in the morning session.

He declared that he had always opposed segregation whether it be regional or local, and had constantly contended that the present pattern of segregated schools in the South was uneconomical, unjust and un-Christian.

He admitted saying that the regional planning was sound but said he did not approve of segregation. He emphasized his willingness to discuss this question of segregation anywhere, either openly or privately.

Dr. Holmes Inspires Group

The theme of the fight against segregation in education was sounded by the group's "spiritual spokesman," Dr. Dwight O. W. Holmes, president-emeritus of Morgan College, Baltimore, Md., who told his younger colleagues:

"You can stand up today with your backbone stiff and get by with more respect than if you soft soap. No colored person with good sense agrees with segregation.

"We have been cowed through two and a half centuries of slavery and another century of partial slavery, but this is the day of our salvation."

No Time for Pussy-footing

Dr. John W. Davis, president of West Virginia State College, announced that, in order that the public know where the land-grant educators stood, the group had invited Thurgood Marshall, special NAACP counsel, and three members of the faculty of Howard University Law School to the conference.

The West Virginia educator declared: "This is no time for pussy-footing—we are going to put our cards on the table, and they all read the same thing, no segregation."

Lawyers Suggest Formula

The lawyers — Mr. Marshall, Dean George M. Johnson, James M. Nabrit Jr., and Herbert O. Reid, of Howard, presented evidence of wide-spread discrimination in education, and Dean Johnson interpreted the regional school plan.

They outlined for the educators a course of legal action against the Federal Security Agency, the Department of Agriculture, the U.S. Office of Education, and other Federal agencies that might be found biased in allocating public funds.

Mr. Nabrit suggested that the educators make their needs known directly to government administrators and not depend upon the race relations advisors to bring it to the attention of the agencies involved.

Must Lose Jobs

Warning that the fight to abolish segregation in institutions of higher learning must be continued, Mr. Marshall told the educators that if this meant the "loss of their jobs" then they would have to lose them.

He admonished them to begin to prepare lists showing what facilities and equipment they have and have not so when the time comes discrimination can be proved.

'Honey of a Case'

Mr. Marshall announced that the NAACP is planning "a honey of a case."

"You know," he said, "the technique is to admit a colored student and put him off all by himself.

"Well, one Southern state has built a $6,000,000 laboratory for nuclear physics. We are going to get a colored student to apply for instruction and sit back and watch them build for him a $6,000,000 laboratory so he can smash his atoms privately."

Farm Bureau Scored

The presidents charged the Department of Agriculture as being the most prejudiced of all Federal agencies, pointing out that funds intended to further agricultural research in the South had been spent wholly for white schools.

President Davis declared that "the attitude of the Department of Agriculture has harmed the interest of education in this country," adding that this must be stopped in the interest of national unity.

Farmers Poorly Trained

George S. Mitchell of the Southern Regional Council attributed the plight of colored farmers in the South to poor training in agriculture. He pointed out that the best race relations are found in communities where the races are on par in education and land ownership.

Walter H. Aiken, Atlanta contractor and president of the National Builders Association, outlined plans for setting up a lobby in Washington to advance the cause of better housing for colored families.

List of Presidents

Some top-flight government officials also participated.

College presidents in attendance were:

J. F. Drake, Alabama A. and M.; L. A. Davis, Arkansas State; H. D. Gregg, Delaware State; W. H. Gray Jr., Florida A. and M.; C. V. Troup, Fort Valley State; R. B. Atwood, Kentucky State; F. G. Clark, Southern U.; J. T. Williams, Maryland State; W. H. Pipes, Mississippi A. and M.; S. D. Scruggs, Lincoln, Mo.; F. D. Bluford, A. and T., Greensboro, N.C.;

G. L. Harrison, Langston; M. F. Whittaker, South Carolina State; J. W. Davis, West Virginia; R. E. Clement, Atlanta U., and James A. Colston, Georgia State. Dean G. W. Gore represented Tennessee A. and I. State; and W. R. Banks, director of public relations, Prairie View, was present.

Regional Education's Start Predicted By Next Fall

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA., Nov. [illegible] Regional Education Council meet—(AP)—Regional education will [illegible] when it considers any e in action "by next Septem- [illegible] the Taft-Hartley Act. ers of Governor Caldwell [illegible] Arnold told the SN florida, said today. [illegible] of the could not disclose what those re Caldwell gave this forecast be- [illegible] recommendations would be. ure the Southern Newspaper [illegible] The governor told the pub- ublishers Association. [illegible] lishers that regional education He explained the Southern [illegible] would help provide the best grad- uate schools in the world and keep [illegible] President Tru- [illegible] "costs are gaining" much faster [illegible] forced into a [illegible] than returns." [illegible] is control to de-

14e(2) 1948

Regional College Plan

SOUTHERN EDUCATORS OPPOSE
REGIONAL COLLEGE PLAN May 27, 1948

14e(2)

RALEIGH, N.C., May 27.--A majority of educators in southern Negro colleges look with disfavor on the segregated regional college plan, it was disclosed in a poll taken by William N. Smith of Shaw University in Raleigh. The survey, which constituted an effort to obtain factual information on nine questions pertaining to regional colleges for Negroes, was made in preparation for a conference of the Atlanta All Citizens Committee on the Southern Regional Education Plan.

Nineteen of the twenty-seven educators polled declared that they were not in favor of all-Negro institutions, even though they might be well-run and well-planned. The high percentage of educators disapproving the plan refutes the claims of southern governors and congressmen that southern Negroes are anxious to see the establishment of segregated regional colleges. The resolution introduced in Congress to approve establishment of such regional institutions was passed by the House of Representatives but was recommitted to the Senate Judiciary Committee on May 13, which killed ratification of the proposal in this session of Congress.

Debate Regional Plan At Fisk U. Race Institute

NASHVILLE—The topic of the southern plan for regional colleges was discussed both pro and con last week at the race relations institute at Fisk University.

Dr. Melvin O. Alston, educational research director of Florida A. & M. College, spoke in favor of the plan. He said that the governors had not planned this idea to avoid segregation.

But Dr. Martin Jenkins, president of Morgan State College, felt that regional schools as planned by the southern governors are "primarily to avoid the issue of segregation." He called this a violation of the principles of democracy.

Although not favoring the southern scheme, Dr. Jenkins said that regional schools were the only "logical and reasonable" approach to solving the educational problems.

Dr. Edwin R. Embree, president of the Julius Rosenwald fund, said the question was one of state against inter-state policy. He said that backers of the southern regional plan were "conniving to establish an interstate principle of segregation' in education.

Educators Hit "Regional"

RALEIGH, N. C.—A majority of educators in southern Negro colleges look with disfavor on the segregated regional college plan, it was disclosed in a poll taken by William N. Smith of Shaw University in Raleign. The survey which constituted an effort to obtain factual information on 9 questions pertaining to regional colleges for Negroes, was made in preparation for a conference of the Atlanta All Citizens Committee on the Southern Regional Education Plan.

Nineteen of the twenty-seven educators polled declared that they were not in favor of all-Negro institutions, even though they might be well-run and well-planned. The high percentage of educators disapproving the plan refutes the claims of southern governors and congressmen that southern Negroes are anxious to see the establishment of segregated regional colleges. The resolution introduced in Congress to approve establishment of such regional institutions was passed by the house of Representatives but was recommitted to the Senate Judiciary Committee on May 13, which killed ratification of the proposal in this session of Congress.

Southern Educators Nix Regional Schools Plan

By STETSON KENNEDY
For ANP

The proffer of deluxe regional jim crow colleges, held out by 15 southern states in the hope of avoiding opening their white colleges to Negroes, was flatly and unanimously rejected by a conference of 100 southern educators, mostly Negroes, in Atlanta May 8.

"There is a great amount of distrust of the sincerity of the people who proposed this plan," resolved the conferees, representing 37 organizations from eight states. "We feel it is undemocratic for a state to maintain within its borders institutions for one certain group and require the other group to go outside the state to secure training."

The regional college compact, subscribed to by 15 former Confederate states, was sanctioned by the house, 235 to 45, on May 4. The house turned down an amendment which would have banned segregation in the projected colleges; but the Atlanta conference objected to the colleges as a scheme to "deport" Negro students, whether from non-segregation causes are inserted or not.

The conference urged instead that "all private, church, and public colleges and universities open their doors to all citizens without regard to race, creed, or sex, and that the necessary action, legal and otherwise, be initiated to achieve this end."

Only advocate of jim crow regional colleges at the conference was Dr. D. T. Rolfe, secretary of the Meharry Medical college (Nashville) alumni, who abstained from unanimous vote against the plan. Rolfe was also the only Negro to endorse the plan before the house committee last month, where it was vigorously denounced by leaders of 13 national Negro organizations.

Turning Meharry into a regional jim crow ghetto was specifically opposed by the Atlanta conference, which went on to "deplore the fact that any educational leader would offer to cooperate with the proposed plan in any way."

The Atlanta action might also precipitate a southern revolt in the educational field, alongside the political revolt now raging against Truman's civil rights program.

Already the Richmond News-Leader has suggested that the southern states discontinue specialized training, rather than open their white colleges to Negroes.

Earlier, in 1945, the Charleston News-Courier, with a view to avoiding equalization of teachers salaries, seriously proposed the abolition of all public education above the 5th grade.

Compact Killed By Senate

Votes 38 to 37 To Refer Plan To Committee

By LOUIS LAUTIER

WASHINGTON, D. C. — (NNPA) — The compact entered into by fourteen governors of southern states was effectively killed Thursday afternoon, May 13, when the Senate voted 38 to 37, to refer to the Judiciary Committee the resolution giving congressional consent to it.

Without congressional approval, it appeared Friday that the idea of regional schools as a means of solving the problem of equal educational opportunities for white and colored students will be abandoned.

Whether any state has the power to spend money outside of its own boundaries for the establishment of a university in another state is doubtful.

Cases to High Court

More bothersome to the states, whose governors signed the compact, however, is the question of segregation in education which is under attack in at least two cases headed for the United States Supreme Court.

As the roll-call vote neared completion last Thursday afternoon, it appeared that the motion to send the issue back to the Judiciary committee would be defeated by a vote of 37 to 36. But on the recount, Senator Arthur Capper, Republican, of Kansas, reached the chamber, and Senator Edwin C. Johnson, Democrat, of Colorado, arrived a minute or so later. Both voted "aye" to make the final result, 38 to 37, and the House joint resolution was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

The action of the Senate was a signal victory for Senator Wayne Morse, Republican, of Oregon, author of the motion to recommit the resolution to the Judiciary Committee for further study of the legal issues raised by him and Senator John C. Cooper, Republican, of Kentucky.

No Federal Encroachment

Both Senator Morse and Senator Cooper contended that congressional approval of the compact was not necessary because there was no encroachment upon Federal authority in the establishment of regional schools.

But Senator Morse went further, insisting that if Congress approved the compact, it had the right to impose conditions under which it would do so. He, therefore, proposed an amendment which would have prohibited race discrimination or segregation in the establishment and operation of regional schools.

Senator Cooper contended that the establishment of regional schools under the compact would not violate the decisions of the Supreme Court in the Gaines and Sipuel cases, but that the compact should be approved and all amendments to the resolution should be defeated because they were not in accord with the law.

As the five-day debate over the resolution developed, some inconsistencies came into focus. The Senate resolution was introduced by twenty-nine Southern Senators, one of whom was Senator Cooper. He later withdrew as a sponsor.

When the Senate began consideration of its resolution, Senator Spessard L. Holland, Democrat, of Florida, who with Senator Alexander Wiley, Republican, of Wisconsin, led the fight for approval, asked for substitution of the House resolution, which had been introduced by Representative Sam Hobbs, Democrat of Alabama.

Senator Wiley, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, joined Senator Holland in fighting for Senate approval of the resolution.

Senator Wiley and Senator J. Howard McGrath, Democrat, of Rhode Island, constituted the subcommittee which favorably reported the resolution to the full committee.

Thus, Senator McGrath, chairman of the Democrat national committee, who is seeking the nomination of President Truman, was put into the position of opposing President Truman's civil rights program which calls for the complete elimination of segregation from American life.

Both Senators William Langer, of North Dakota, and Homer Ferguson, of Michigan, both Republicans, as well as Senator Cooper, all three of whom are members of the Judiciary Committee, supported Senator Morse' motion to send the resolution back to committee.

Senator Morse threatened to offer amendments covering President Truman's civic rights program if the resolution was not sent back to committee.

Twenty-nine Republicans were joined by nine Democrats in voting to recommit. Voting against the motion were twenty-seven Democrats and ten Republicans.

Regional College Critics

Negro Americans, as well as a surprising number of whites, are almost unanimous in their resentment against the four Negro college presidents who placed the weight of their influence behind the Southern Governors by their presence at the Gainesville meeting. In itself, however, the mere presence of these presidents at the conference is not bad. But the fact that the Governors got the impression that the Negro presidents approved in principle, their proposed regional college plan, is bad enough.

Hence, Negroes throughout America have been keenly critical, both from platform and in news accounts, of action of four of the Nation's leading college heads. That is but a natural reaction by a people who have to pay in sweat and blood and tears for every advance it makes in the American society. In such a situation they may be expected to resent those whose acts are destructive of the ends they legitimately pursue.

Of course, name-calling can get us nowhere. We are far more concerned with attainment of educational equality for the black masses in the South than we are in taking pot shots at these presidents. For that reason, we shall steer clear of the very error some of them are making, even now, of castigating those who may disagree with their views.

In fairness however to President William H. Gray of the Florida A. &M. College it should be said that notwithstanding the fact that he was one of the four who attended, his position, both in writing and in public utterances, is diametrically opposed to the regional plan by the Governors. He said as much last Friday before the Palmetto Teachers Association at Columbia, South Carolina. And he placed it in black and white, so that even the fool can understand his position.

What the other presidents who attended the conference believe, is still a mystery to Negroes. Some write and speak so evasively that what they say can mean all things to all people. Or it can mean nothing, as many Negroes are saying and charging. Nevertheless, as Walter White has so adequately phrased it, this is too serious a thing for us to take lightly. The Supreme Court decision is too definite and specific for anyone, not to mention a college president, to fail to grasp its meaning.

Meeting at Tuskegee last Week, the Association of Collegiate Deans and Registrars said: "It is unjust and undemocratic for a state to support institutions within its borders for one racial group and maintain at the same time that lack of funds requires Negro citizens to pursue higher education outside its borders." That is a sound position. That is where the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has taken its stand. And that is where all honest Americans must stand. It is mere foolishness to contend that the Governors proposal for regional colleges is sound "if" they mean this or "if" they mean that. They mean nothing more than what they always meant; extending the pattern of educational segregation for the purpose of discriminating .' 'The very air out of which the Southern Governors' proposal grew is enough to convince any reasonable mind that they are seeking ways to get around providing equal educational advantages for Negroes.

So that fight to secure educational equality has been too hard and too long for Negroes to be persuaded by the muddled thinking which these presidents are doing with respect to regional colleges.

14e(2) 1948

ASKS NEGRO ADVICE ON SOUTH'S SCHOOLS

14e-2 N.Y. Times

New Regional Council Lets Three of Race Sit With It— Owen Young Hails Plan

Fri-3-5-48

By JOHN N. POPHAM

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., March 4— In a surprise move, the newly formed Regional Council on Education opened the south's educational doors today to increased negro participation by recommending that each governor of fifteen southern states name an "outstanding" negro educator to work with the council.

The unprecedented action that dealt avirtual coup de grace to the traditional segregation pattern, as far as top-level educational policy deliberations were concerned, was taken by twenty-two leading southern educators who gave practical support to their recommendation by admitting three negro college presidents to a closed executive session this afternoon.

The council, which was formed under a recent proposal of the southern governors conference for a fifteen-state compact establishing regional schools to provide graduate, technical and professional training for white and negro students in the south, held its first meeting at the University of Florida here. Fri-3-5-48

The council members in a roundtable discussion thrashed out the complex situations they expected to encounter in setting up the regional schools and heard Owen D. Young reliver an impromptu talk from a spectator's seat in which he said that the regional school idea was "inevitable" in the North owin gto financial difficulties.

Carmichael Hails Move

They also heard Dr. Oliver C. Carmichael, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, declare that regional planning in higher education was a step in "social invention" that called for "a high degree of initiative and courage."

If the cooperative endeavor succeeded, "the outlook for higher education would bbe brighter than ever before in our history," Dr. Carmichael asserted. He added, "It is worthy of note that no other region has ever undertaken so bold an enterprise nor one that has so much promise for the future."

Governor Millard F. Caldwell of Florida, presided at the meeting and sounded the keynote when he asserted that the regional school idea was projected because 'it is now accepted that Southern states, individually, cannot support the schools in advanced training, but together they can have great schools and their promising youth can be trained and remain in the region." Fri-3-5-48

No Political Connection

Governor Caldwell also touched on the racial and segregation proble mwhen he said that "the absence of governors from this meeting is in harmony with what we have in mind and properly points out that our work is not in any way connected with the political situation that prevails nationally and the racial problem."

He was obviously referring to the meeting at Wakulla Springs, Fla., on Feb. 9, when the Southern governors used the regional school conference to initiate the Southern political "revolt" against President Truman and left an impression that the school issue was affected by the civil rights and racial problems in the political dispute.

Govenor Caldwell was named chairman of a five-member executive committee of the Regional Council. The other members are Clyde A. Erwin, State Superintendent of Education for North Carolina, vice chairman; H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, secretary; Dr. Henry G. Bennett, president of Oklahoma A. & M. College, and Dr. Burgin Dossett, Commissioner of Education of Tennessee.

Thus far, Mr. Caldwell reported, the Governors of thirteen states had signed the regional compact, which was now before the House of Representatives and the Senate in Washington for approval. Under the terms of the compact, six legislatures of member states must also approve the compact to make it operative.

Tomorrow the University of Florida is to inaugurate Dr. J. Hillis Miller as president and bestow honorary degrees on Dr. Carmichael and Mr. Young.

REGIONAL SCHOOL UNIT SETS $76,400 BUDGET

The Times

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., March 5— The Regional Council for Education, which is negotiating for regional schools to provide advanced training in professional, technical and graduate fields for white and Negro students in the South, announced today that its budget had been set at $76,400 for the ensuing year.

Gov. Millard F. Caldwell of Florida, chairman of the executive committee, said the money would be used principally for immediate and long-range studies in creating the framework of the system and for the salaries of a director and consultants, who have not yet been designated. Sat. 3-6-48

Governor Caldwell also said that the executive committee and the study committee had agreed to incorporate the council under Florida laws so that it could legally accept donations.

WASHINGTON, March 5 (UP)— A House Judiciary subcommittee today approved legislation giving sanction to the Southern states' plan for regional colleges for Negroes. The proposal, sponsored by Representative Sam Hobbs, Democrat, of Alabama, would endorse the education compact entered into by Southern Governors at Tallahassee, Fla., Feb. 8. 3-6-48

To Aid Regional Education

The Constitution

The Southern States' plan to co-operate to provide regional education in fields of study which cannot be provided by the individual commonwealths is a step nearer realization. 8-4-48

An outstanding North Carolina educator, Dr. John E. Ivey, has been named to the all-important job of co-ordinating the preliminary surveys and presenting the program to the Legislatures in the various States. Atlanta, Ga.

Fourteen States are co-operating in the program. The Governors of these States, plus two leading educators from each, form the Executive Council, of which Dr. Raymond Paty, Chancellor of the University of Georgia, has been named Chairman. It is with this Executive Committee headed by Dr. Paty, that Dr. Ivey will work. His headquarters, naturally, will be here. Wed. 8-4-48

The basic idea of regional institutions, as we have declared many times here before, is a good one. And they are indicated not alone to meet the needs of providing graduate and professional training to Negro students. There are numerous categories of instruction for white students which the various States do not find it feasible to provide but which, cooperatively, the Southern States can maintain.

Thu

Regional Council for Education (Regional Education)

Regional Education Council Sets Meeting Here Oct. 11

The Constitution

Dr. John Ivey, Director of the Regional Council for Education, has announced there will be a meeting of the members of that body here on Oct. 11 to adopt final plans for organization. Offices of the council have been opened at 101 Marietta Street Building.

The purpose of this Council is to present to participate in the formestablish regional schools in the ulation of plans.
South under the auspices of the "In addition," said Dr. Ivey, States. At the forthcoming meet- "the Presidents of the State Uning Dr. Ivey said the Governors of versities of the South will be here, he 15 Southern States will be as well as a group of specialis
We expect 67 people in all."

Southern Governors Here To Attend Regional Education Meeting Today

The Constitution

By HOWELL JONES

Governors of at least four Southern States will be present today when the Regional Council for Education holds its first meeting since establishing headquarters in Atlanta. The meeting will begin at 9 a. m. in the Board of Regents Room at the Atlanta Division of the University of Georgia.

Gov. Millard Caldwell, of Florida, Chairman of the Regional Council, who called today's meeting, said educators and representatives of 14 Southern States will attend.

Other governors present are: Jim N. McCord, of Tennesse; William M. Tuck, of Virginia, and Acting Gov. Thompson.

Gov. Caldwell said the Council today will be asked to approve administrative policy of the Council, and to act on a group of recommendations of the Research Committee of the Council. The meeting, he said, will be a closed session.

Since the Atlanta headquarters were established only a few weeks ago, the Council also is expected to approve staff appointments and others.

Dr. Paty said the studies would employment of other personnel. or eight fields and The office, located at 101 Marietta to both races. cover seven or eight St., N. W., is directed by Dr. John Ivey, Jr., Executive Director of the Council.

g on the Council's the resources of all tes to improve gradu- ssional schools of the aty said, "there is a anding all of our re- to make our money possible."

Commenting on plan to pool the Southern States to consid- ate and professional region, Dr. Paty said need for husbanding sources so as to make go as far as possible in regional studies in which the Council.

Gov. Tuck, first to arrive for the Council session, landed yesterday afternoon at the Marietta Airbase in an Air National Guard C-47 plane. He was accompanied by Carter Lowance, his Executive Secretary; Justice A. P. Staples, of the Virginia Supreme Court; G. Virginia Superintendent of Public Instruction, and J. H. Bradford, Director of the Budget for Virginia.

Governor Tuck was accompanied by Col. W. F. Barry, Solicitor General of Tennessee.

In addition to Acting Gov. Thompson, Georgia's representatives on the Council are: Dr. M. D. Collins, State Superintendent of Schools, and Dr. Paty.

14e(2) 1948 Regional General Education

Washington Perspective

'Separate and Non-Existent'

PM New York NY Mon. 1-26-48

By I. F. Stone

WASHINGTON

I don't know what the state of Oklahoma is going to do about the case of Mrs. Ada Lois Sipuel Fisher. I don't know whether it will decide to try the farce of improvising a one-woman law school overnight or whether it will prefer to deny first semester students admittance to its law school rather than take one Negro among them.

Stone

I do know that the doctrine of "equal but separate" facilities as applied in the South, and tolerated by the Federal courts, is a sham.

I want to call attention to some figures put before the U. S. Supreme Court in the brief submitted by Thurgood Marshall for the NAACP in the Fisher case. They show the need for a re-examination of this doctrine in that court. They indicate the utter inadequacy of the brisk, brief and equivocal per curiam opinion with which the Fisher case was sent back to Oklahoma.

Cold Figures

PM New York, N.Y. Mon. 1-26-48

There is no doubt about the "separate" part of the doctrine. It is the "equal" half which is an illusion. "Separate but non-existent" would be a better description of the public facilities provided below the Mason-Dixon line for Negroes desiring professional training. The brief contained a table showing the provisions in 1939-40 for public professional education of whites and Negroes in the 17 Southern states and our Jim Crow capital, the District of Columbia:

Profession	White	Negro
Medicine	15	0
Dentistry	4	0
Law	16	1
Engineering	17	0
Social Service	9	0
Library Science	13	1
Pharmacy	14	0

Disproportion In Professions

PM New York, N.Y. Mon. 1-26-48

The result is that the proportion of professional people among Negroes is far less than for any other part of our population. For the U. S. A. as a whole there is one white doctor for every 735 whites but only one Negro doctor for every 3651 Negroes. The proportion in the South, where there is one white doctor for every 859 whites, is one Negro doctor to every 5300 Negroes.

Negroes are, of course, discriminated against everywhere in the U. S. A. The "equal but separate" doctrine legalizes and intensifies this discrimination in the South. This is of especial significance in the case of the law, for this is a country largely run by lawyers and Negroes need lawyers of their own to champion their aspirations.

The doctrine of "equal but separate" facilities is as big a swindle in elementary as in professional education. Reports to the U. S. Office of Education showed that Southern States spent more than twice as much on each white child as on each Negro. White children averaged 171 days of schooling a year; Negroes, 156 days.

White teachers averaged $1046 a year in salary; Negro teachers, only $601.

Twilight Status

PM New York, N. Y. Mon. 1-26-48

This is all part of a larger pattern designed to keep the Negro in a twilight status somewhere between slavery and full freedom, to restrict him to cheap menial labor, and to prevent him from developing articulate and effective leadership. This is the reality behind the "equal but separate" facilities doctrine. This is the true state of affairs covered by that glib and smug phrase.

I am not arguing for better facilities for Negroes in Jim Crow institutions. The Negro will never get "equal" facilities so long as there are "separate" facilities. For to countenance segregation is to accept by implication the myth of his racial inferiority. The whole system of Jim Crow is without basis in the Constitution, and it is time the U. S. Supreme Court scraped together enough courage to say so. 1-26-48

Southern Handicap

The Record Columbia S. C. Sat. 1-31-48

When an Southern state decides to set up a separate law or medical school for Negroes the decision costs the white taxpayers of that state money to establish and to maintain the school.

Taxes are, of course, imposed without regard for race or previous condition of servitude and Negroes pay taxes on the same base and at the same rate as do whites.

But in most of the Southern states the whites own most of the property taxed, earn most of the income upon which the income tax is levied, buy more of the commodities taxed.

Most of the taxes paid to support the state government and to supply Negro as well as white education as a result is paid by the whites.

It would have been easy to solve the problem created by the South's segregation system if the South had been a rich area with more tax revenues than it knew what to do with, as is the case of some of the eastern and western states.

The Record Columbia S. C.

But the South isn't a rich section; its per capita income is the lowest in the country. It has had to struggle to meet its obligations and it has increased the obligations and reduced its offerings to both races by trying to maintain two separate and equal educational systems. Sat. 1-31-48

Problems Of Negro Education

The Times Baton Rouge, La. Sun. 1-25-48

Tomorrow a new term of instruction begins in Oklahoma's tax-supported law school. Less than two weeks ago a decision of the United States Supreme Court ordered Oklahoma to provide a Negro petitioner—qualified by preparation for entrance—a place in the state's law school or in a school of equal quality to be provided at once. The university's board of regents went into special session. The Negro plaintiff, Mrs. Ada Lois Sipuel Fisher, applied for enrollment in the University of Oklahoma law school, and her application was accepted.

Only a few hours later the state regents announced at a special meeting the establishment of a separate Negro school of law. It is to be in Oklahoma City, but instead of being affiliated with the university, it is to be a part of the state's only tax-supported Negro college at Langston, of which the applicant is an honor graduate.

In announcing the new school, the regents apparently believe they are complying with the U. S. Supreme Court's order. They also point out that their action is in line with an order of the State Supreme Court directing the establishment "with the provisions of the constitution and statutes of this state requiring segregation of the races in the schools."

* * *

Mrs. Fisher says she will not enroll in the new school; she will stand on her application for enrollment in the state university. Her contention is that the new school, still without announced faculty or classroom space, cannot possibly be equal in quality to the one long established and approved by accrediting bodies. Further court action is indicated. The Times

Thus the problem remains unsolved. It is unlikely that there will be general agreement in the South on what constitutes compliance with such a court order until there is further elucidation of terms.

For example, there is likely to be dispute over terminology: Is the term "equal facilities" to be interpreted as "identical facilities"? The distinction seems to be important. Even though Negro students of law may have available to their use the same law library as do white students, there may be some question as to their use of the facilities on an absolutely equivalent basis. But it is obvious to all that a special library cannot be established in a week. Birmingham, Ala.

It is also obvious that the state cannot afford to set up for use of Negro students a separate library that is "equal" to the one provided for white students. Nor can a separate faculty be provided in a week's notice which would be in all respects equal to the one developed over the 40 years of the school's history. Sun. 1-25-48

Thus it is evidently impossible to establish a law school in one week. If the applicant is to have equal instruction beginning tomorrow morning, she must have use of the "identical" library facilities and the "identical" faculty for her instruction. She may be segregated from other students by being put into a separate classroom—one student with one teacher at a time—but she will have to be admitted to the school's library, for the library cannot be moved to her. 1-25-48

Oklahoma may satisfy the letter of the law, but nevertheless will meet continued opposition to segregation in professional education in the state. Negro leaders brand the new school as a "Jim Crow" institution.

* * *

It is necessary to take note of the problem at home in Alabama. Already suits are planned to obtain admission of qualified Negro students into Alabama's professional and graduate schools. The state has been meeting its problem by providing funds to send out of the state Negroes who wish to do special or advanced study. This practice has not locally been subject to legal testing, but a decision of the Supreme Court in a Missouri case raises doubt about it.

There is still another possibility. It has been suggested that university centers for a whole region might be set up for Negroes, supported by legislative appropriations from several Southern states. There is already a well-established medical school for Negroes in Nashville.

The Southern Governors Conference, long aware of the difficult situation, has a plan to provide funds by which Meharry Medical College, one of the two Negro medical schools in the United States, would be strengthened into a great regional school. Last week the college's trustees offered to turn this $8,000,000 institution over to 15 Southern states to operate, in the event such a program be put into effect. The Times

But such a plan, involving expenditure of many more millions of dollars, would seem to await a favorable Supreme Court ruling that the interstate school would fulfill each state's obligation to provide its Negroes with equal of those provided for white students. They do not believe that white Legislatures and white boards will ever provide sufficient funds, or that states can afford to maintain high standards of dual education. They also say frankly that until Negro educators themselves can be developed and trained with facilities equal to those provided white persons, the facilities of Negro colleges cannot be equal to those of white schools. Birmingham, Ala.

Some Negro leaders insist that segregation in the minority race can never be less of what might be done in the matter of higher education for Negroes in Alabama," said Nixon, "all Negroes are aware of the fact that equal opportunities cannot be made possible overnight and it puzzles us why those in authority will create a double tax burden on the citizens of Alabama just to maintain a dual Jim Crow educational system." Sun. 4-25-48

Regional College Idea N

The Southern plan for regional colleges has for one of its purposes the setting up of graduate and professional schools for Negroes, supported by a group of states and attended by students from those states.

Columbia Record

It is a sensible plan, from the Negroes' point of view, if segregation is to be maintained. Few of the states have enough Negro students capable now of meeting entrance requirements and desiring to take graduate or professional courses to make the establishment and maintenance of separate schools in each of the states for these purposes either economically or educationally sound.

Columbia, S.C.

To pool both the money and students of several states is to provide the Negro students with better educational facilities than any one of the states could provide.

Mon. 3-29-48

But there is also a need for regional colleges for whites and the Southern states, participating in the regional college plan also have this in mind. The South needs, for example, a good forestry school.

The regional college idea is nothing new. The first Columbia Record editorial, advocating the establishment of regional colleges for both Negroes and whites, was published more than 15 years ago, before the supreme court handed down its decision in the Gaines case. But then, of course, the legislature of South Carolina wasn't interested in the subject.

Mon. 3-29-48

Then in 1936 Howard W. Odom published his monumental "Southern Regions Of The United States," in which he advocated the establishment of regional educational institutions, jointly supported by the various Southern states.

"Such regional (educational) centers," Odom said, "must provide for agricultural and technical research and for technical and professional training, as well as the more formal university training and departmental researches."

Mon. 3-29-48

With such regional "institutions, science and technology" the South, Dr. Odom said, "can go forward; without them it cannot."

Spokesmen for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People who see in the regional college idea nothing more than an attempt to perpetuate segregation are either short-sighted or deliberately sacrificing Negro education for other purposes. They are hindering the education of Negroes. Segregation will be given no new lease on life by the regional colleges, even though segregation be maintained in them. Segregation in education is, so far, a state affair and the states, which have adopted the policy, will continue to hold to it, for the time being at least, on a regional basis or on a state basis.

But the association's objection to the plan cannot be ignored. It is notice to the states intending to participate in the compact that they will have to defend the idea in the courts. And the only way to defend it would be to set up at least one of the regional colleges and find a Negro student who prefers to attend a college at home rather than the regional college.

Regional College Critics

Atlanta Daily World, Atlanta, Ga.

Negro Americans, as well as a surprising number of whites, are almost unanimous in their resentment against the four Negro college presidents who placed the weight of their influence behind the Southern Governors by their presence at the Gainesville meeting. In itself, however, the mere presence of these presidents at the conference is not bad. But the fact that the Governors got the impression that the Negro presidents approved in principle, their proposed regional college plan, is bad enough.

Hence, Negroes throughout America have been keenly critical, both from platform and in news accounts, of action of four of the Nation's leading college heads. That is but a natural reaction by a people who have to pay in sweat and blood and tears for every advance it makes in the American society. In such a situation they may be expected to resent those whose acts are destructive of the ends they legitimately pursue.

Thurs. 4-1-48

Of course, name-calling can get us nowhere. We are far more concerned with attainment of educational equality for the black masses in the South than we are in taking pot shots at these presidents. For that reason, we shall steer clear of the very error some of them are making, even now, of castigating those who may disagree with their views.

In fairness however to President William H. Gray of the Florida A. &M. College it should be said that notwithstanding the fact that he was one of the four who attended, his position, both in writing and in public utterances, is diametrically opposed to the regional plan by the Governors. He said as much last Friday before the Palmetto Teachers Association at Columbia, South Carolina. And he placed it in black and white, so that even the fool can understand his position.

What the other presidents who attended the conference believe, is still a mystery to Negroes. Some write and speak so evasively that what they say can mean all things to all people. Or it can mean nothing, as many Negroes are saying and charging. Nevertheless, as Walter White has so adequately phrased it, this is too serious a thing for us to take lightly. The Supreme Court decision is too definite and specific for anyone, not to mention a college president, to fail to grasp its meaning.

Thurs. 4-1-48

Meeting at Tuskegee last Week, the Association of Collegiate Deans and Registrars said: "It is unjust and undemocratic for a state to support institutions within its borders for one racial group and maintain at the same time that lack of funds requires Negro citizens to pursue higher education outside its borders." That is a sound position. That is where the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has taken its stand. And that is where all honest Americans must stand. It is mere foolishness to contend that the Governors proposal for regional colleges is sound "if" they mean this or "if" they mean that. They mean nothing more than what they always meant; extending the pattern of educational segregation for the purpose of discriminating .' 'The very air out of which the Southern Governors' proposal grew is enough to convince any reasonable mind that they are seeking ways to get around providing equal educational advantages for Negroes.

So that fight to secure educational equality has been too hard and too long for Negroes to be persuaded by the muddled thinking which these presidents are doing with respect to regional colleges.

Negro Agitators

The Constitution

Editor Constitution: I am inclosing clipping of an editorial in The Constitution a few days ago, one of the finest things I have seen lately on the racial question.

Please note what I have marked in red in regard to that NAACP Negro, named White, and his all-or-nothing thinkers, your opinion, that they "had rather see one Negro student in Georgia Tech than 3,000 in an all-Negro institution of equal standing."

Atlanta, Ga.

My first exclamation was—"YOU SAID IT!"

I wish this statement of yours could be put in box-car letters and read all over the country. It would do much good.

Sun.

I am not against Negroes—far from it—but I am against social equality, social and educational mixing.

4-4-48

Negro agitators claim, many trying to demand just about everything—the world, and it fenced. Oh, yes, they must have at any cost (cost to the white man) fullest possible of "equal opportunities." Yet, give them these educational opportunities in schools, or even colleges, to themselves and they turn aside—don't want it. Just like you say—they had rather have one of their number enrolled in a white school than to have 3,000 in a school of their own.

If it were not for the white man's mind and management they would not have what they have today. If it were not for the white man's all-over taxpaying, where would all of their "opportunities" come from? Certainly not from the taxes they pay. The better class of Negroes know that and should steer clear of agitators all the time.

CLARA ROBBINS.

Atlanta.

Region Training For Negroes Hit By 'Association'

The Constitution

Atlanta, Ga.

4-4-48

COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 19—(AP) The South Carolina Conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said Thursday it opposed any regional education plan entered into by this State.

J. M. Hinton, Conference President, wrote Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, that, in the opinion of his organization, the regional education plan proposed by Southern Governors did not meet the requirements of U. S. Supreme Court decisions.

Thurmond submitted Wednesday to the Legislature a tentative compact entered into by Southern Governors. This compact called for regional operation of the Meharry Medical College for Negroes at Memphis, Tenn.

"The general plan has considerable merit," Thurmond told the Assembly.

The Constitution

Hinton's letter contended that, under Supreme Court decisions, States must provide equal educational facilities for both whites and Negroes within their borders.

"The South Carolina State Conference of NAACP takes notice of the regional plan as submitted by you." Hinton wrote the Governor, "and at the same time serves notice, if and when adopted by the State, to determine the legality of out-of-state educational facilities for Negroes.

Atlanta, Ga.

4-2-48

General Assembly of South Carolina, will contest this set-up and plan, to determine the legality of

"If South Carolina is not financially able to provide equal facilities for all of its people, this fact should be made known at this time.

Thurs. 4-8-48

"Segregation has denied to Negroes training in nearly all graduate and professional fields. The time has come for the ending of all segregation. . . ."

1943

Loop-Holes In Regional Plan Hit At Hearings

Daily World

Atlanta, Ga.

Walter White Urges Negroes To Wire Opposition To Bill

Tues. 3-16-48

WASHINGTON, D. C.— (SNS)—March 13, 1948: Led by the N. A. C. P., representatives of 12 national organizations declared their bitter opposition to the establishment of segregated regional colleges in one of the most impressive public hearings ever held in Congress.

Under attack is Senate Joint Resolution 191, which asks congressional consent to a compact entered into by 14 southern governors whereby Meharry Medical School in Nashville, Tenn., would be taken over by the southern states as a regional school. Negro organizations hold that this is a plain attempt on the part of Southern states to (1) circumvent decisions of the United States Supreme Court requiring states to give within their own boundaries equal education opportunity to Negro students, and (2) perpuate educational segregation and discrimination with the express approval of Congress.

Tues 3-16-48

Appearing as witnesses against the Southern scheme were: Thurgood Marshall, Special Counsel of the N. A. A. C. P.; Dr. J. G. Gathings, chairman of the Board of Trustees, National Medical Association; Dr. Millard R. Dean representing the National Dental Association; M. C. Clarke, President of the National Negro Insurance Association; Alma Vessels, Executive Secretary of the National Association of Colored Graduate Nurses; Professors George M. Johnson and James Nabrit representing the Conference of Presidents of Land Grant Colleges; Dr. Martin D. Jenkins, Educational Consultant for the National Negro Publishers Association; Rev. W A. Jernagin, Director of the Fraternal Council of Negro Churches; George L. P. Weaver, Director of CIO Committee Against Discrimination; James B. Cobb, Secretary sition.

Daily World

The sole Negro to appear in favor of the Education Committee, National Alliance of Postal Employess; M. W. Perry of the National Lawyers Guild. Dr Howard H Long of the American Teachers Association and Dr. E. W. Taggart, President of the National Dental Association, field statements in opposition of segregated regional education was Dr. Daniel Thomas Rolfe, faculty member of Meharry Medical School and executive secretary of Meharry Alumni Association.

Atlanta, Ga.

In a blistering attack on the southern proposal, Thurgood Marshall, NAACP Special Counsel told members of the Senate Judiciary subcommittee: "The responsibility of the southern states to educate their Negro citizens cannot constitutionally be met by any plan which would force a Negro medical student from Texas to attend a regional medical school in Tennessee, while his white compatriot attends the University of Texas Medical School. The compact appears to be based on the twisted reasoning that what each southern state is forbidden to do indivilually can be lawfully accomplished if some of them act together. But the reality remans that so long as a state provides education to white students within its borders there is no legal way for it to deny such education to its Negro citizens. We do not assume that the southern governors propose to close down existing facilities and send all their students elsewhere in order to overcome this initial legal hazard."

"The truth is that in order to increase educational opportunities for its citizens, the south must give up segregation," Mr. Marshall insisted. "The southern states can neither jointly nor severally provide equality in a segregated set-up."

Daily World

The NAACP attorney said that Congress shoull not give its consent but that if it did the only way that the rights of Negro citizens would be protected would be for Congress to amend the compact so as to "guarantee that there will be no distinction as to race, creed, color or sex as to students, faculty or administrative officers' in regional schools.

Atlanta, Ga.

Speaking for the 50 life insurance companies that make up The National Negro Insurance Association, President M. C. Clarke told the senators that his group was "unqualifiedly oposed to giving congressional blessings to the reprehensible compact."

Tues. 3-16-48

The Senate Resolution was introduced by twenty-eight senators some of whom come from states as far north as Maryland and West Virginia. Washington observers believe that the compact will be speedily approved by Congress unless Negroes and enlightened whites thruout the country are thoroughly aroused.

Commenting on the legislative situation, Walter White, Executive Secretary of the NAACP said: "Our only hope of defeating this brazen scheme to extend and entrench educational segregation is for Negroes all over the country to swamp their senators and congressmen with letters, telegrams, telephone calls and personal visits. Congress must be made to know that we lo not intend to take this 'laying down'."

Daily World

In a joint statement, Mr. Johnson and Mr. Nabrit took the pre-war school year 1939-40 to illustrate the observance of the theory of separate but equal facilities in education. They pointed out:

"In that year, $136,500,000 was spent for higher education in that area for all citizens, both public and private funds. Of this sum, $126,000,000 was spent for the education of whites only. Of the total sum, Negroes received $10,000,000. If Negroes had received their proportional share of this money, they would have received $31,500,000."

Atlanta Ga. 3-16

The first witness to testify against the compact was Mrs. Alma Vessells, executive secretary of the Na-

House Committee O.K.'s Regional College Bill

The Constitution

Washington, March 16 (AP)—A resolution giving Congressional consent to a Southern regional education agreement today cleared the House Judiciary Committee.

The resolution approves a compact among the states of Alabama, Florida, Arkansas, South Carolina, Georgia, Maryland, Mississippi, Tennessee and Texas whereby they may establish regional colleges.

Wed

If the resolution is adopted, its advocates have said, Meharry Medical College at Nashville will become an institution for the education of Negroes in the field of medicine, dentistry, and nursing.

3—17—48

Says Race Critics Already Had Chance For "Two-cents" Say

RALEIGH, N. C.—(SNS)—"Southern Governors have started a revolt, based not on states' rights, but dealing with human rights," declared Dr. Rufus E. Clement, President, Atlanta University, Atlanta, Georgia in an address delivered before the convocation of Negro teachers of North Carolina at their annual meeting in Raleigh last Friday.

Atlanta Daily World

The Atlanta University President, speaking on the subject, "Democracy in the South," said that the Southern Governors are making more difficult the state department's job in advancing the "American foreign policy." The speaker said this revolt was precipitated by The Truman's civil rights report, especially the section dealing with education.

Because so many Negroes are criticising some Negro college presidents for the part they are taking in the matter of regional colleges, declared the educator, I think it important that this statement of my position be made. The critical Negroes named by Dr. Clement included Mrs. Mojeska Simpkins, writer for the Norfolk Journal and Guide, Norfolk, Virginia, and Walter White, Executive Secretary, National Association for the advancement of Colored People.

Tues. 3-30-48

SOUND PLAN, HE SAYS

"The planning of regional schools is sound," assured the educator, "if it does not attempt to circumvent the recent Supreme Court decision on providing equal education for Negroes. Further, he said, "to me there is nothing in the proposed plan that makes the system racial if it attempts to improve the quality of education in the South for all of the people." He pointed out that the "southern educators who are working on this plan are way ahead of the southern politicians."

Tues - 3-30-48

PLAN NOT NEW

Referring more specifically to the tional Association of Colored Nurses, Inc., New York City.

Tues. 3-16-48

Governor Caldwell has stressed in his testimony that a conference of 400 educators at Gainesville, Florida, had endorsed the regional educational scheme. Mrs. Vessels asked what colored educators had been consulted. Governor Caldwell named as present at the Gainesville conference Dr. Frederick D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute; Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University; President W. H. Gray of Florida A. and M. College, and President Trenholm of Alabama State Teachers College.

Governor Caldwell also said the Gainesville conference had recommended that one colored representative from each of the fourteen states be added to the Regional Council created by the compact. This council will consis

Governor Caldwell of Florida, who heads the regional council provided under the plan, said he regretted reached the matter of the civil-rights question has been injected; that it in no way involves discrimination. The compact would be essential educational in- tial for the South if there was not for both colored and one Negro living there," he said. The resolution was introduced by Senator Holland (D., Fla.) and others. One coauthor, Senator Committee by Senator Holland (D., Fla.) and addressed his remarks Cooper (R., Ky.) asked that his to Miss Alma Vessels, secretary of the name be withdrawn. sociation of Colored In withdrawing his name from urses, who opposed the resolution, Cooper did not say Graduate Nurses, he would oppose it. He said he the idea. wanted to study it more fully and had rather not be a sponsor.

Segregation Charged.

She said she thought the plan "is merely to expand State segregation and perpetuate an evil."

Earlier Southern

the committee the no racial discrimi

Regional Colleges

Federal Aid

To Southern

Atlanta, Ga.

For the South

From Wire Dispatches

Washington, March 12.—A plan

University of Florida was in- regional universities was indorsed urated. At the inaugural exer- by Senator Wiley (R., Wis.) tos several other Negroes attend- day as one which might help

Wiley Backs School Pact

WASHINGTON — (ANP) — A warning from a Republican congressman from Oklahoma has led southern Democrats to the conclusion that they will not seek federal funds to help them run their proposed regional colleges.

Rep. Ross Riley told the Democrats to "keep their lips shut" about federal intervention in the south if they intend to ask for federal aid in the upkeep of their planned regional schools.

Gov. Millard Caldwell of Florida, chairman of the governors' educational committee of the recent Southern Governors' conference, said he was opposed to federal aid of any kind to this or any other form of southern higher education.

If Congress approves the regional plan the southern states expect to take over Meharry medical college in Nashville as their first move. The only federal opposition is expected to come from some other region which may object that the southern plan is based on the racial question.

Dixie Regional School Plan Seen As Boon To North, Too

GAINESVILLE, FLA., March 4. —(AP)—The Southern Regional College plan for joint state operation of top-grade schools in highly specialized fields, Thursday, was foreseen as the answer to Northern education problems, too.

Owen D. Young, New York industrialist and educator, and Oliver C. Carmichael, president of the Carnegie Foundation, both endorsed the scheme. They said it inevitably will be followed in other sections of the nation.

They spoke at a conference of Southern college presidents and deans on the proposal which, after years of discussion, seems to be near activation. Both Young and Carmichael will receive honorary degrees from the University of Florida, Friday, during ceremonies inaugurating Dr. J. Hillis Miller as university president.

A morning of open discussion was followed by a closed meeting of the newly-organized council on regional education to make detailed plans for putting the scheme into operation.

Presidents of several Southern Negro colleges sat with the educators. Three of them were invited to attend the closed council session.

One of the first specific items before the council will be a proposal to take over Meharry Medical College, at Nashville, Tenn., as a regional school for Negroes. The private institution has been offered to the states because it is in financial difficulties.

The Southern plan calls for establishment of white schools as well as Negro colleges on a cooperative basis for those fields in which no state alone could afford to finance a high ranking institution.

Young, who recently headed a special committee on New York State educational problems, told the conference "it is perfectly obvious" that tax money must be called on for adequate financing of expensive facilities for specialized education.

There won't be private funds enough to "do the kind of job with which we're faced," he said.

Although interstate education will come in the South earlier than the North, "we know it is inevitable there too," he added.

Dr. Carmichael told the educators "with the growing complexity of society and the consequent increasing demands for educational services the necessity for pooling resources for joint undertakings is becoming more and more apparent."

He cited several instances of cooperation between colleges at present to prevent duplication of efforts.

However, the compact signed by governors of 14 states recently would carry the plan much further. It provides for actual joint financing of colleges to be owned and operated by an interstate agency.

Gov. Millard Caldwell, of Florida, chairman of a Southern Governors Conference committee on education, said the interstate plan is the only alternative to federal assistance in college operations.

"No one state in the South is financially able to provide that degree of education the South must have," he said, "but, working together, we can have the finest system in America."

CONGRESSMEN OPPOSE DIXIE COLLEGE PLAN

April 2, 194

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 1, — Assurances that the southern plan for segregated regional colleges will meet bi-partisan opposition in Congress were received here this week in letters from members of Congress. Responding to a request by Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, six congressmen said they would oppose congressional ratification of the proposal of the Dixie governors to establish regional educational institutions on a segregated basis.

"I shall oppose this resolution," wrote Congressman Claude I. Bakewell, Republican of St. Louis, "when and if it is referred to the floor of the House." Melvin Price, Democrat of East St. Louis, Ill., gave assurance of support of the NAACP position. The veteran legislator, A. J. Sabath, Democrat of Chicago said: "I shall vigorously oppose" the southern plan. Others who expressed opposition to the new plan for Jim Crow regional colleges include Walter B. Huber, Democrat of Akron, Ohio; T. Millet Hand, Republican of New Jersey and John J. Rooney, Democrat of Brooklyn, N.Y. A dozen other congressmen expressed a sympathetic interest in the NAACP position on the segregated regional college proposal.

Dixie Students, Faculties Oppose Jim Crow Schools As Politicos Meet

Chicago Defender

Chicago Sunday Sun

ATLANTA—There is a revolt a-borning in Dixie! A revolt against the "Jim Crow" pattern in higher education. It is pitting the faculties and students of the colleges and universities of the southern states against the die-hard, white-supremacist politicians.

The point at issue is the higher education of the Negro.

The students, the faculties of the state tax-supported colleges, and the more enlightened and liberal white southerners generally say the time has come to dispense with the racial segregation laws which bar the entry of colored students.

But the politicians and mossback racists, as spokesmen for those elements of the population who have vested interests in separation of the races are struggling to keep the segregation pattern intact through the regional school plan.

Surprisingly, this plan has the endorsement of one Negro educator, Dr. Frederick W. Patterson, of Tuskegee Institute. When the governors of the 11 "deep South" states sat down at their conference in Savannah Sunday to work out details of their proposed regional education program, they will be haunted by the realization that a revolution is breathing down their backs.

Favor Regional Plan

The governors for more than a year have been preaching a doctrine of regional colleges and universities for graduate study, as opposed to the present state university systems. It is a frantic rear-guard action to protect the "Jim Crow" pattern in higher education in the South. The concern of the governors for a regional program, by which their states would jointly finance and support professional and specialized technical institutions, had its rise in the recent decisions of the state and U. S. Supreme courts that Negro citizens of a state must be given access to equal opportunities for higher education where such facilities are furnished for whites in tax-supported state universities.

A further factor in the rush for regional schools has been the increased expense to the states in financing the professional education of Negroes in northern universities, where they are barred from entering the universities of their own states by laws requiring the racial segregation of students in schools of whatever level.

Another "spectre" which rises to haunt the Dixie governors in their search for a prop for educational "Jim Crow" is the almost certain refusal of the federal government to make educational grants in aid to educational institutions of states which segregate and discriminate against Negro students.

See Federal Aid

Governors Tuck of Virginia and Caldwell of Florida have sought to persuade their fellow-governors that by combining their state resources for higher education the 17 states which maintain educational "Jim Crow" by law may still be able to indulge in the luxury of segregation without bending the knee to policy of integrated higher education in order to obtain federal government funds.

But while the governors are wrestling with this antiquated concept of racial segregation in education, the students and faculties of their own state universities, as well as many of the leading liberal citizens of their states, have gone on record as opposing "Jim Crow" education. In a recent poll of teachers at state universities of 11 "deep south" states, the faculty members voted in favor of abolishing racial segregation in the graduate schools by 69 per cent.

Of 371 college teachers polled by the Southern Conference Education Fund, 255 voted for the immediate and out-right elimination of the "Jim Crow" pattern.

An additional 11 voted for an alternative plan of admitting Negroes to the graduate schools of the state universities, but on a segregated plan at present, as a step toward the eventual elimination of the segregation plan.

Only 105 of those voting, most of them in the states of Georgia, Mississippi and South Carolina, voted in favor of regional professional colleges to maintain the existing pattern of racial segregation.

Another blow to the system which the southern governors are seeking to preserve was struck by the college students themselves. In a series of polls taken on the campuses of the leading colleges and universities in the states where the "Jim Crow" pattern is required by law, the students have voted to admit Negro students without segregation.

Sat-12-18-48

Open Doors: Students

The most recent poll, taken at the University of Missouri, showed more than half of the students favor a change in the state laws, which would admit Negro students on a basis of equality with white students at the university.

At the University of Oklahoma the white students have expressed their bitter disapproval of the segregation employed in the admission under court order of Professor McLauren to the school of education. In Arkansas, Maryland and North Carolina, student polls have shown the white students, as well as their teachers, are embarrassed and disgusted with the "Jim Crow" pattern in higher education.

Even in Texas a large segment of the white students at the state university registered their opposition to the segregation of Negro students, in the recent suit by Heman Sweatt for admission to the state university's law school.

So the southern governors are sweating out a program for segregated regional professional schools which do not have the support of either the faculties or students of their own state universities.

The regional idea itself is not new. It has been advocated for over 20 years by liberal southern educators as a means by which the poorer states of the south could by joint action finance higher education.

The governors, however, have only recently shown an interest in the idea, which they hit upon while searching for a means of preserving the status quo in their ritual worship of the Dixie hound-dawg god Jim Crow.

Sat-12-18-48

DEAN NABRIT POINTS TO REGIONAL EDUCATION ILLS

Atlanta Daily World
Dec 12-7-48

BY THE NNPA

While opposed to the regional education program of the Southern Governors' Conference, Dean S. M. Nabrit of the Graduate School of Atlanta University believes that the views of colored people on the the issues involved should be made known at the policymaking level.

For that reason, Dr. Nabrit asserts, service on the commissions appointed by the Regional Council for Education to explore the possibilities of regional education in the fields of human medicine and health services and of graduate studies.

Dean Nabrit is a member of the Commission on Graduate Studies. of which Dr. Harold Stokes, president of Louisiana State University, is the chairman.

The reports of both of these commissions are about complete, and they are expected to present an analysis of the problems together with alternative possibilities for solution.

The reports and recommendations of these commissions will be reviewed in some detail by the presidents and appropriate deans of a number of institutions of higher learning in the South at a meeting to be held on December 12 in conjunction with the Southern Governors' Conference.

According to plans, the whole day will be spent in reviewing, modifying and reaching agreement on the reports and recommendations of the commissions. The decisions reached at this meeting will be presented to the Regional Council for Education including the governors of the states concerned, on the afternoon of December 13.

Asked to state his views with respect to the regional ducation program, Dr. Nabrit said:

"In light of the statement of policy of the Regional Council for Education, namely that they would abide by laws and court decisions in regard to educational services, I am of the opinion that:

HANDICAPS CITED

"1. The South is morally and legally required to provide equal educational opportunities and facilities for all of its citizens without respect to race or religion.

"2. Southern fraternalism has led the South to provide equal education to a substantial degree in the segregated pattern.

"3. Economically the South does not have the resources to duplicate facilities for graduate education on an equal basis.

"4. There is not sufficient trained personnel available to provide graduate education which would be on a par with education provided at the doctoral level in the best southern university for whites.

"5 There is grave doubt whether regional education could be legally substituted for graduate services provided intra-state on a state basis.

"For these reasons it would be easier to repeal state laws requiring segregation in education than to attempt to build new substandard regional schools, or provide substand-

Regional School Plan Approved By 9 Governors

Atlanta Daily World
Dec 12-9-48

WAKULLA SPRINGS, Fla. — Hailed as the most far-reaching step ever taken in higher education was an agreement for interstate operation of colleges for specialized and professional training of the South's youth which was signed Sunday by governors of nine Southern States.

The regional education plan is based on the theory that while no single Southern state can afford to provide adequate training in highly specialized fields, the states working together can finance outstanding colleges. The plan contemplates both Negro and white regional schools, and will not become effective until it is ratified by legislatures of at least six states. In the meantime congressional approval also must be obtained.

Governors of Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia Florida, Texas, Maryland, Mississippi, Tennessee and South Carolina. discussed, approved and signed the plan during a two-day meeting held here Six other states--Louisiana, Kentucky, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Virginia, and West Virginia--may come in. Their governors were not present at the conference.

The conference revealed that an offer has been made by the trusteed Meharry Medical college at Nashville, Tenn., to turn the institution over to the states as a regional training school for Negro doctors, dentists, nurses and pharmacists. A control board is to consider the offer at its meeting in Gainesville, Fla. March 4-7-1949

Included in the regional education plan are six general fields of study: aeronautics mining, textiles, ceramics and petroleum engineering, forestry, game and wild life management, dentistry, nursing, medicine, public health, optometry, music and fine arts at the graduate level, and veterinary medicine.

An interim interstate board of control will be named to give further study to educational fields which will be brought under the plan.

The regional board of control would have authority to receive tax funds contributed by each of the states by legislative appropriations based on a population ratio. Property acquired cooperatively by the state would be held in the name of the board.

On Monday, word was received that Louisiana would, in all likelihood, participate in the plan and would hold a legislative session on the issue after the gubernatorial elections are over.

SCHOOL PLANNERS AIM TO BYPASS CONGRESS

Commercial Appeal
Memphis Tenn.
Mon 12-13-48

Regional Council Hopes To Set Up Clearing House For South's Facilities

By The United Press

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 12.—The Southern states Sunday considered setting up a clearing house for the interchange of their educational facilities without the necessity of an act of Congress.

Rebuffed last Winter by a civil rights—conscious Congress, governors of 14 states met here to look over and perhaps act on the plan drawn up by the Regional Council of Education, an instrument of the old Southern Governors' Conference.

Arguing Killed Plan

A year ago, the governors wanted to set up regional advanced schools for negroes to satisfy Federal court orders for equal educational facilities for all races.

They asked for congressional approval of their plan as an insurance precaution but the haranguing over civil rights eventually killed the program. Now, the governors seek to prorate their existing classroom facilities in a straight business arrangement.

These include going institutions for negroes. If new regional schools are needed, the governors plan to build them under the same pact and no mention is made at this time whether separate or segregated courses are planned for whites and negroes.

Four works groups of the educational council discussed four possible phases of the pogram for immediate action in conference Sunday. Mem. 12-13-48

150 Educators Present

They were veterinary medicine, medical and related services, graduate studies and comprehensive research. More than 150 Southern educators took part in the discussion including representatives of 14 negro schools.

The most advanced project is veterinary medicine. The council has drawn up a plan for four existing veterinary schools—Alabama Polytechnic Institute (Auburn), the University of Georgia, Oklahoma A. & M. and Tuskegee Institute, to train Vets for the entire South.

Auburn would handle students from Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina and Tennessee. Oklahoma A. & M. would take those from Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas; Tuskegee would take applications from any part of the South.

Integrated Colleges

The vote of a majority of Southern professors in favor of an end to segregation in professional and graduate schools indicates a decided trend toward liberalism. Ballots were mailed to the entire faculty in each of the 11 State-supported universities in the South. A total of 371 replies were received, of which 255, or 69 per cent, favored unrestricted entrance of Negroes into graduate schools. One hundred five, or 28 per cent, favored regional schools, and 11, or 3 per cent, favored entrance of Negroes on a segregated basis. The regional school adherents were largely from Mississippi, Georgia and South Carolina. Jun. 12-14-48

Few people realize the paucity of higher educational opportunities for Southern Negroes. There is not a single institution offering a doctorate which Negro students can attend in the South. Twelve State-supported schools offer this opportunity to whites. There is at least one State school in each Southern State offering the A.M. degree, whereas only eight such schools provide this degree for colored students. There are no State-supported schools offering professional education in dentistry, medicine, pharmacy and social work to Negroes.

The expenditure per person in State-supported higher and professional institutions is 56 cents for a Negro and $2.43 for a white student. In the 17 Southern States there is 1 white doctor for every 843 persons, but only 1 colored doctor to 4409 persons and 1 white dentist to every 2795 white persons but only 1 colored dentist to every 12,101 colored persons.

The majority of Southern educators in State institutions favor integration for the reasons given by them, that, it is most economical, most practical and reasonable, most democratic and constitutional, most ethical, and provides the best solution of the race problem. These facts have been highlighted by the survey conducted by the Southern Conference Educational Fund. They give evidence of a trend toward more liberal attitudes on the part of the intelligent white Southerner. Jan 12-14-48

E. B. HENDERSON.

Falls Church, Va.

House Body OKs Regional Dixie Schools

The Register
Chicago Ill
Dec 7-1948

WASHINGTON—The House Judiciary Committee has given approval to the Southern Governors regional education compact over the bitter opposition of principle Negro organizations in the country. An identical bill is under consideration in the Senate.

By approval the Judiciary Committee gave sanction to a measure which was rammed through a Judiciary Subcommittee without public notice or the opportunity for the opposition to be heard. The bill now awaits action of the full House.

In the Senate, a two-man Judiciary Subcommittee attempted to follow the House and steam-roll the measure through, but the plan was upset by the prompt action of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People which demands full hearings on the issue.

Assail Move

During the hearings, Negro spokesmen assailed the compact under which regional institutions of higher education would be established in the South. They termed the Governors' move to get Congressional approval for the compact an attempt to get Federal endorsement for a plan clearly aimed to circumvent the recent Supreme Court decision in the Oklahoma University case.

They told the Subcommittee that the compact would not improve educational opportunities for Negroes in the South and would only serve to perpetuate and extend race segregation in education.

The only specific provision in the compact is to take over Meharry Medical College for Negroes in Nashville, now faced with closing at the end of the current school term due to a lack of funds.

Memphis Tenn
Dec 12-13-48

Teachers Hit Regional Plan

Special to Journal and Guide

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 11.—Teachers of this state on the past week-end made known in no uncertain terms their opposition to the regional college plan proposed by southern governors.

Dr. Gray, one of four Negro Palmetto State Teachers Association's executive committee heads who accepted the invitation to sit in on discussions of the regional college tee sent a delegation to wait on Southern Governor's Conference's plan during a meeting some Dr. William H. Gray, president of Florida A. and M. College, to tell him the group's stand weeks ago in Georgia, was advise him of stony silence unproposed should he listened to the plan in his til—about midway through his address—he denounced the regional plan in no uncertain terms.

SILENT TREATMENT

In addition to Dr. Gray, the college executives attending the recent Governor's Conference, were Presidents Rufus E. Clement of Atlanta University, H. Council Trenholm of Alabama State College, and Frederick D. Patterson of Tuskegee Institute.

STATES HIS POSITION

Dr. Gray declared that any thoughtful and respectable Negro is absolutely opposed to the proposed regional school plan, and denounced the plan as an effort to by-pass the U. S. Supreme Court.

This statement was most significant in that associational officials had feared open revolt from the convention floor if Dr. Gray had sanctioned the regional plan. Many asosciation members and NAACP stalwarts, some of whom are also members of the teachers association, were prepared for a bitter fight if the speaker sanctioned the plan, and a detailed questioning of the speaker if he by-passed the matter in his address.

ASSAILS SO-CALLED TACT

Association members had learned that Dr. Gray was among four college presidents who attended a closed conference with southern governors at Tallahassee.

Resolutions against the regional school plan had been passed in both the executive committee and the house of delegates.

Dr. Gray declared that the treatment accorded minority peoples is the basis of world peace, and that Negroes must serve as the conscience of this nation. He called for aggressive initiative and urged his hearers to throw away some of their tact and ask for what they need in their schools. He denounced those who "would just sit back and be tactful."

Declaring that it was not his intention to give the impression that Florida, despite certain constructive changes in education, is anywhere near the equalization of educational opportunities, the speaker asserted that the only difference between Florida and South Carolina is that in Florida nothing is said and the equalities are not forthcoming, but in South Carolina, you are told you have no business with such opportunities.

LIST INEQUALITIES

Highlighting another flagrant inequality in education Dr. Gray said that 79 different majors are offered in Florida colleges for white students as compared with 27 for Negroes, while at the graduate level there are 44 curricula for whites as compared with two for Negroes.

"Such inequalities form the basis of the concern that two-thirds of the world's population has for America's 14 million Negroes," Dr. Gray continued. The various evidences of such undemocratic behavior caused "the designing Molotov to disbelieve South Carolina Jimmy Byrnes, for as Byrnes called for freedom of peoples abroad, he was faced by the ghosts of 155 Negroes and four white men who had been lynched in Byrnes' South Carolina."

"Before peace can come to the world," the speaker concluded, "It must come in the hearts of men in South Carolina, and Mississippi, and can be had only when it comes in the hearts of men everywhere."

SCHOLARSHIP PLAN

Speaking on "What one Southern State is doing About Higher Education," Dr. Gray declared: "The future of America is in the hands of our children, and the kind and amount of education people everywhere receive will determine the peace of the world."

He spoke of educational changes in Florida as a "mild educational renaissance." In this connection he discussed the recently instituted five-year Lewis scholarships awarded through merit examinations and in proportion to race to qualified high school graduates who intend to teach after finishing Florida colleges; the state study in education with the "conscious effort to integrate throughout the report the facts on Negro problems and Negro people"; and the publication of the study by radio and otherwise, through the assistance of the Florida Chamber of Commerce, which resulted in a 52 million dollar appropriation for education.

Colored Should Give Views On Reginal Plan

Dean Nabrit Contends Equal Dual System Too Costly For South

ATLANTA, Ga. — (NNPA) — While opposed to the regional education program of the Southern Governors' Conference, Dean S. M. Nabrit of the Graduate School of Atlanta University believes that the views of colored people on the issues involved should be made known at the policymaking level.

For that reason, Dr. Nabrit asserts, service on the commissions appointed by the Regional Council for Education to explore the possibilities of regional education in the fields of human medicine and health services and of graduate studies.

Dean Nabrit is a member of the Commission on Graduate Studies, of which Dr. Harold Stokes, president of Louisiana State University, is the chairman.

REPORTS COMPLETE

The reports of both of these commissions are about complete, and they are expected to present an analysis of the problems together with alternative possibilities for solution.

The reports and recommendations of these commissions will be reviewed in some detail by the presidents and appropriate deans of a number of institutions of higher learning in the South at a meeting to be held on Dec. 12 in conjunction with the Southern Governors' Conference.

According to plans, the whole day will be spent in reviewing, modifying and reaching agreements on the reports and recommendations of the commissions. The decisions reached at this meeting will be presented to the Regional Council for Education, including the governors of the states concerned, on the afternoon of Dec. 13.

NABRIT'S COMMENT

Asked to state his views with respect to the regional education program, Dr. Nabrit said:

"In light of the statement of policy of the Regional Council for Education; namely, that they would abide by laws and court decisions in regard to educational services, I am of the opinion that:

1. "The South is morally and legally required to provide equal educational opportunities and facilities for all of its citizens without respect to race or religion.

2. "Southern fraternalism has never led the South to provide equal education to a substantial degree in the segregated pattern.

3. "Economically the South does not have the resources to duplicate facilities for graduate education on an equal basis.

PERSONNEL NOT AVAILABLE

4. " There is not sufficient trained personnel available to provide graduate education which would be on a par with education provided at the doctoral level in the best southern university for whites.

5. "There is grave doubt whether regional education could be legally substituted for graduate services provided intra-state on a state basis.

"For these reasons it would be easier to repeal state laws requiring segregation in education than to attempt to build now substandard regional schools, or provide substandard graduate instruction in the now existing state schools.

"Finally, we cetainly feel that it is essential that our thinking on these issues is included at the policy making level and for that reason service on these commissions is mandatory."

GOP Opposes Area Schools

COLUMBIA, S. C. (ANP) — In recent letters to Republican National Chairman [illegible] and Sens. Alexander Wiley, chairman of the senate judiciary committee and Spessard L. Holland, South Carolina's Republican party opposed the approval of the southern regional college plans.

The letters, signed by Mrs. Andrew W. Simpkins, a South Carolina party official, exposed the plan as a scheme to circumvent recent U. S. Supreme court rulings requiring southern states to provide equal educational facilities for colored and white students.

In her communication she accused reactionary Republicans of cooperating with southern Democrats and bargaining with one another.

A NARROW ESCAPE

The Dixie compact for Jim Crow regional universities has been shelved by the U. S. Senate and the wicked designs of the racial hatemongers still do not have the sanction of the federal government. For this victory we are indebted to Senator Wayne Morse, who led the Senate fight against the establishment of super-Jim Crow universities.

However, temporary t his victory may prove, we applaud the courageous stand of Senator Morse and we are grateful to the 29 Republicans and 9 Democrats in the Senate who blocked the Dixie deal. We regret that not a single Democrat spoke out against the Jim Crow compact.

No responsible person in Washington can deny that the Southern proposal, which was first advanced by the conference of Southern governors, is nothing more than a subterfuge, a clever trick to duck the decisions of the U. S. Supreme Court on the issue of equal education.

For the federal government to endorse such an anti-democratic deal would be to put the government on record in support of segregation at the very moment when segregation is under fire from every responsible leader and group in the United States. Incidentally, we regard the segregationists in the Army as irresponsible and mentally incompetent besides.

"Don't Ask Aid For Regional Colleges" Republican Warns South

WASHINGTON — (ANP) — A warning from a Republican congressman from Oklahoma has led southern Democrats to the conclusion that they will not ask federal funds to help them run their proposed regional colleges.

Rep. Ross Rizley told the Democrats to "keep their lips shut" about federal intervention in the south if they intend to ask for federal aid in the upkeep of their planned regional schools.

Gov. Millard Caldwell of Florida, chairman of the governors' educational committee of the recent Southern Governors' conference, said he was opposed to federal aid of any kind to this or any other form of southern higher education.

If Congress approves the regional plan the southern states expect to take over Meharry medical college in Nashville as their first move. The only federal opposition is expected to come from other region which may object that the southern plan is based on the racial question.

14e(2) 1948

Dr. C. S. Johnson Blasts Regional Sum As Too Little

Nashville Globe
Nashville Tennessee

Regional Plan Has Long Way To Go Before It Can Be Put Into Effect; Handicapped By Refusal Of Negroes To Give Their Approval

Try as they did to make regional education palatable to Negroes the sponsors of the plan must be aware of the fact that they have signally failed in their attempt. The small group of educators who were induced to go to Savannah to "give color, to the proceedings" represent very little more than themselves. Repercussions from the Savannah agreement are being heard throughout the nation. It therefore become the duty of Southern legislatures which will be called upon to furnish the dollars to promote regional education, to ignore the wishes of a vast majority of the Negroes of their states. It is for this reason that there is a growing belief that the plan adopted at Savannah, "way down in Georgia", will fail to get anything like the amount of financial support that the eager beavers who hatched it expect.

The regional plan, according to a well-founded rumor was hatched right here in Nashville and its sponsors saw in it a chance to do two things as follows:

1. It would afford the South a cheap way to get around the Supreme Court decisions in the Gaines and Sipuel cases — decisions which say each state shall provide eequal educational opportunities for all of its citizens.

2. With regard to Meharry Medical College, the plan was expected to be a salvation for individuals with a "vested interest" in Meharry—jobs including stewardship over the large endowment fund Northern philanthropists have furnished Meharry.

Of course a by-product of perfected regional schools was to be medical education for Negro students of the South. The sponsors of the plan have not seen the possibility of Southern legislators being willing to settle for a plan of segregated education under state auspices, if such a plan meets with more favor with Negroes than the regional arrangements. The first setback they got to their program came in the announcement that the State of Texas will not send any money to Meharry to be used to educate any medical students. This despite the fact Texas has more money than any other state for educational purposes. Texas already has established a State University for Negroes and will educate its colored students at home. This means a big setback to Meharry because of the large number of students the state has furnished Meharry in the past.

Two eminent spokesmen for the Negro made statements last week that should disturb the sponsors of regionalism. One was Thurgood Marshall head of the legal department of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Mr. Marshall who has won more lawsuits on racial issues before the Supreme Court than any other lawyer in the United States, announced that he considers the Savannah plan wholly unconstitutional and that the NAACP will open an attack on the plan as soon as the attempt is made to put it into operation. This will be done by advising colored applicants for a medical education to apply for it in the state universities of their respective states. That will mean, for instance, that a citizen of South Carolina, instead of obeying the order to go to Nashville and take medicine at Meharry, will refuse to do so on the grounds that white citizens of South Carolina are not being required to go outside of the state to get medical training.

This question of compelling a colored student to leave his home state to take training that is provided within the state for white students, was decisively settled some ten years ago in the Gaines case. It will be remembered that it was Justice Hugo Black of Alabama who showed the attorney general of Missouri how ridiculous was the arrangement of his state that ordered colored students to accept scholarships and go North to take training that Missouri was giving white students in the State of Missouri. Thurgood Narshall is holding that the Savannah plan is equally as ridiculous as the Gaines Case in the Sipuel case from Oklahoma. That is the reason it is believed that Missouri educators and politicians did not agree to attend the party given down in Savannah.

The other distinguished Negro who has blasted the Savannah agreement is President Charles S. Johnson of Fisk University. Dr. Johnson, it is well known, has been looked upon as the colored educator who would endorse the regional arrangements and give it more weight than any colored educator in the United States. Gov. Jim McCord, who launchd the drive for regional education at last year's Governors' Conference was present and made a speech at the inauguration of President Johnson last year. Otheres interested in getting President Johnson on their side at one time were toying with the idea of giving Dr. Johnson a big testimonial banquet here in Nashville similiar to the one given him by eminent New Yorkers shortly after he was elected president of Fisk. But it seems that those who stick to the "time ain't ripe" theory about such matters won their point and Dr. Johnson did not get a banquet and reception similar to that given the newly-elected presidents of the other colleges here.

In a strong statement, carried in the Pittsburgh Courier last week Dr. Johnson greatly surprised those who have felt he met their specifications of a "safe, sane and conservative leader of the Negro race." Like all of the other Negroes North and South who believe Negroes have earned the right to full citizenship in the United States, Dr. Johnson dismissed the regional plan as limiting rather than expanding educational opportunities for the South. The $300,000 which it is stated will be given to Meharry annually to be used in educating all Negro medical students of the South. Dr. Johnson stated, would "scarcely cover the annual deficit of Meharry and could not possibly expand and improve its facilities."

Many of Dr. Johnson's friends hold that had Meharry authorities been willing to combine Meharry with Fisk a much better solution of Meharry's problem of existence could have been worked out. They believe that Dr. Johnson, as result of being in close touch with philanthropists and Federal officials, could have secured endowments and appropriations that would have greatly benefitetd both Meharry and Fisk. Under Dr. Johnson, Menarry, like Fisk, would retain its status of a national institution.

On the other hand, it is believed the Meharry authorities ought to have sought the advice and support of the Hon. Gordon Browning soon after he was elected. It is now known that Gov. Browning is interested in taking over Meharry and running it as a unit of A & I State College and that this arrangement is approved by President Walter S. Davis and others connected with State College.

Thus it appears that Dr. M. Don Clawson president of Meharry, who is white, is the only head of a Tennessee educational institution for Negroes who is backing the regional plan the white educators and Southern governors worked out at the Savannah meeting.

Regional Universities Plan Needs Thorough Study

ONE OF the strangest phenomenons, in view of the growing awareness and alertness concerning legal denials and the extreme steps to which the offending localities and states will go to continue them in fact under the guise of so-called non-discriminatory provisions, is the lack of concern which in general has been exhibited by the Negro group and liberal men and women in the majority group at the strong movement to put regional universities into the system of education.

An intelligent person need not without fuller information say now that they are good or bad, but any intelligent person needs to insist that they be thoroughly discussed and examined in minute detail in order for a sensible position to be taken with reference to them.

It will be tragic if regional universities become a fact without being subjected to the most rigorous study by educators, sociologists, lawyers, and laymen with a deep interest in the public good. Should they become a fait accompli before all that is possible to be known about them is brought into the open, and they then prove to be the same old thing in new dress or in anv other manner unacceptable, the setback may take generations to overcome and the whole campaign of pleadings, petitions, and legal redress now underway will have been wasted and the entire procedure would have to be launched again, with perhaps less prospects of success than now grace the present efforts.

Our organizations of educators ought, on every level, to begin comprehensive and prompt studies of the whole proposal for regional universities. They ought to be joined by the leading civic, professional, legal, and press groups.

A great deal of the story will be unfolded on the political plane, and our politicians and politically-minded folk cannot too soon start to show an interest in and be intelligently informed on the question.

Let's not know too little about this business too late; let's not have to rush madly to close the barn door after the horse has gone.

Washington Calling

Montgomery Advertiser

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON.

IN THE charming old city of Savannah Ga., the Southern governors have been been meeting. They stand embattled, in a state of siege, against the irresistible tide of change.

That is the real meaning of the concessions they have made to the shifting trend of opinion. If the step they took the other day had been made 10 years ago or even five years ago, and voluntarily, it would have been hailed as a major social advance.

That the Southern governors' conference agreed to was a regional compact under which the Southern States will finance higher education for Negroes. The largest item approved was $600,000 to be contributed to Meharry Medical School for Negroes at Nashville, Tenn. The conference also recommended $355,000 for regional veterinary schools at the University of Georgia, Oklahoma A. and M., and Tuskegee Institute for Negroes.

The United States Supreme Court has held that the states must offer equal educational opportunities to Negroes when they ask for such opportunity. Obviously, each state cannot afford to set up a separate Negro medical school or a separate Negro engineering school. The regional school to be attended by Negroes from all over the South is a workable compromise.

The Southern answer to Federal legislation is always: You must let us do these things in our own way since you cannot understand our problem. But change seems to come only when there is the kind of pressure the Supreme Court has applied.

FOR the South this matter of timing is crucial. Southern states are at present on a kind of divide between the past and future. Great changes have occurred and even greater changes are about to occur.

Most significant of all is the shift in population that is taking place. During the war the Southern states barely held their own, population wise, while other regions were showing extraordinary gains.

Reports indicate that the outward movement is continuing particularly among Negroes who are migrating to the North to join friends and relatives.

The mechanical cotton picker, which is beginning to come into its own since the war, will displace thousands of field hands. They are not likely to remain in the South. Or only those with the least initiative and ambition will stay behind.

A region cannot grow and develop without human resources. One of the reasons for the remarkable development on the West Coast, where population gains of 40 per cent and more have been recorded, is the high caliber of the new immigrants settling there.

Among them are many Negroes who have gone into areas where before the war they were scarcely represented at all. In general, this revolutionary population change seems to be working out satisfactorily in spite of the lack of housing and the resultant crowding.

So long as people can move about freely in this country they will go, no matter what their color or creed, where there is opportunity and a chance for decent treatment. The explanation of the shift of peoples that is taking place is as simple as that.

IT IS here that the matter of timing comes in. This is a late date to be complying with the Supreme Court ruling. The time now is to come forward with a broad proposal covering the whole civil-rights issue; a proposal that would be within the framework of the Southern way of life.

Failure to act will mean more Federal coercion. President Truman is reported to be determined to push the civil-rights program at the earliest opportunity. He is deeply conscious of the fact that the Negro vote in a half dozen states had a great deal to do with his reelection.

Perhaps a filibuster by Southern diehards in the Senate can block for a time at least the measures the South finds most noxious. That kind of deliberate obstructionism has worked before.

But there is no kind of filibuster that can prevent the draining off of what has been one of the South's chief assets in attracting industry—a generous labor reserve. If the war between the South and the Federal government grows hotter, that process may even be speeded up.

In the meeting at Savannah 15 Southern states also agreed to establish a Southern foundation to inform the nation "correctly" about the South. That could be very useful if the foundation were really to get beneath the charm of the magnolias and the moonlight to talk about the facts of life.

(C) 1948, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Congressmen Oppose Regional College Plan

New Yor, N. Y.—Assurances that the southern plan for segregated regional colleges will meet bi-partisan opposition in Congress were received heer this week in letters from members of Congress. Responding to a request by Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, six congressmen said they would oppose congressional ratification of the proposal of the Dixie governors to establish regional educational institutions on a segregated basis.

"I shall oppose this resolution," wrote Congressman Claude I. Bakewell, Republican of St. Louis, "when and if it is referred to the floor of the House." Melvin Price, Democrat of East St. Louis, Ill., gave assurance of support of the NAACP position. The veteran legislator, A. J. Sabath, Democrat of Chicago said: "I shall vigorously oppose" the southern plan. Others who expressed opposition to the new plan for Jim Crow regional colleges include Walter B. Huber, Democrat of Akron, Ohio; T. Millet Hand, Republican of New Jersey and John J. Rooney, Democrat of Brooklyn, N. Y. A dozen other congressmen expressed a sympathetic interest in the NAACP position on the segregated regional college proposal.

Governors Back Revolutionary Education Plan

Largest Item Tagged For Negro Medical School In Nashville

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 14—(AP)—Southern governors hauled out their familiar States Rights banner today after adopting a pioneer program for regional education.

Gov. Fielding L. Wright, of Mississippi, and Adj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, of Maryland, planned to outline a fight against a proposed federal control of the National Guard.

Gov. Beauford Jester was to argue for state control of tideland oil reserves. And Gov. Strom Thurmond, of South Carolina, States Rights candidate for president in the November election, was to brief the governors on the South's fight against alleged freight rate descrimination.

Walter R. McDonald, chairman of the Georgia Public Service Commission and chairman of the National Association of Utilities Commissioners, said he would ask for regional funds to pursue the South's rate scrap.

THE SOUTHERN GOVERNORS' CONFERENCE and its subsidiary, the Southern Regional Council for Education, yesterday approved with little public discussion a $1,736,000 initial budget for the first two years of regional education.

States Legislatures must approve the scheme and make appropriations before the nation's first regional educational plan will begin operating next Fall.

When regional operations move into full pace after four years, the budget will be $2,434,000 per year.

The revolutionary plan, drafted by educators in lengthy conferences and approved by the governors, would be restricted at first to medical, dental and veterinary training.

Dr. John Steelman, assistant to President Truman, told the governors last night that states and the federal government must cooperate to expand education and scientific research to strengthen American democracy and preserve 'the safety of not only America, but of the world."

THE LARGEST EDUCATIONAL ITEM was $600.000 to be contributed by 14 Southern states for Meharry Medical School for Negroes in Nashville, Tenn. The fund would be divided among the states at the rate of $1,500 for each Negro medical student they would send to Meharry.

It was the South's first state-sponsored medical education for Negroes. Governors were warned that the large Meharry School would close unless they provided funds. They faced a Supreme Court decision calling for equal education for Negroes.

The governors advocated $355,000 for regional veterinary schools at the University of Georgia, Oklahoma A. & M., Auburn and Tuskegee Institute for Negroes.

A $360,000 FUND for the first two years was approved for regional dental education for white students. Eight states without dental schools would pay $45.000 each to send students to other states under the cooperative plan. The eight are Arkansas, Florida, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina and Alabama.

Each state would be assigned a specific quota for veterinary, Negro medical and dental students to send to regional schools. The states would pay $1.500 for each medical student and $1,000 for veterinary students they send out of their borders.

Two states without medical schools for white students, Florida and Mississippi, were given a quota of 25 students annually and $112.500 each to send their pupils to other states.

Comments From The Press

Doubts About Regional Plan For Negro Education

From the Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch

THE UNANIMITY of the Southern Governors Conference in taking a further step in Savannah toward the long-debated program of regional education for Negroes is the plain evidence of the advance of this attempt to solve the immense and complex difficulties of higher education for Negroes in the South. The conference formally approved a plan for providing $1,736,000 for the first two years for medical, dental and veterinarian payments, starting next Fall if all works well; and it contemplates after four years an annual expenditure of $2,434,000. The conference is looking ahead to an expansion of this program so as to provide for graduate students, but has not put that expansion into the mill yet.

The money would have to come from individual state legislatures. That is something which Governors cannot guarantee, but in the present plight of the Southern States, as they struggle toward an equalization of educational opportunity for Negroes, there is a good chance that most of the legislatures, and perhaps all, will start off by adding their blessings and the specified money for a plan which seems on its face to relieve the states of part of the financial burden of providing equalized education within their own borders. As matters stand at the moment, the program seems likely to advance further.

Yet this whole program needs much more careful examination than the Governors or the Southern Regional Council of Education (created for the purpose of giving professional study to the plan) appears on the record to have made of this attempt at solving the basic problem. The basic problem is educational equalization. To provide it now in a hurry, out of the meager resources of Southern States and after a century and more of segregated education and obvious inequality, is a very large order indeed. No easy solution is in sight by this method or by any other method. Inevitably the South will be struggling with the problem for a long time.

As now announced, the plan is pitifully meager. A million and three-quarters of dollars for medical, dental and veterinarian education in 14 States would mean thin support everywhere. When the sum is raised to $2,434,000 after four years, the total would still be small for a vast region where educational demands are certain to increase. Since the financial source would be 14 legislatures, most of which would be providing money for education elsewhere, the assurance of steady appropriations in hard years is subject to doubts. It is by no means certain, therefore, that enough money is envisaged for first-class educational opportunity anywhere or that the annual flow of this money is strongly enough supported to provide permanence in any real sense.

For such reasons as these the most thoughtful Negro leaders look on the program with suspicion. Some support for it has come from presidents of state colleges for Negroes, partly because of pressure from state governments which see the program as a way out of admittedly difficult problems. But many Negro leaders regard the program as a short-cut to meet the goal of equalization in a nominal sense and perhaps in a constitutional sense without meeting it in any realistic sense. The history of segregated education has been a record of one-sided education. Experience shows, therefore, that only by an immense effort could a system of regional segregation in higher education be established without maintaining the one-sided character which the states have shown. Such an effort is not suggested by the figures now announced.

What is needed is a thoroughgoing examination of the program by the most capable educational leaders, white and black. To this point it stems largely from Governors who are under pressure on the one hand to provide educational opportunity and under pressure on the other hand from the budget problems in their own capitals. Their difficulties—and indeed the difficulties of the whole South—are as serious as they are apparent. They have now produced a device. But whether they have found a real solution is so doubtful that it should have the careful investigation of educational statesmanship.

House Unit Supports Southern States Regional School Bill

WASHINGTON

A judiciary sub-committee of the House last week approved a bill to permit 15 Southern States to create a joint system of regional schools; and full committee action on the measure was promised this week.

The bill would permit the States to form a compact to use State funds to finance and operate the schools. Under the plan, Meharry Medical College in Nashville, would be taken over by the States for education of colored doctors and nurses.

Deny Racial Basis of Move

States joining the plan, for which Congressional sanction is necessary, include Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia.

The program has been turned over to a group of leading Southern educators, who plan to ask educational foundations to finance a survey of the needs of the South. Its sponsors deny that it is a move to enable poor Southern States to continue jim-crow educational policies.

Proposal Worked Out In Atlanta

Idea Pushed Without Approval Of Congress

By NNPA News Service

Under the regional education program, which is being pushed without congressional approval, Tuskegee Institute has tentatively agreed to provide veterinary medical training for colored students in Southern States, it was learned last Wednesday.

The proposal, worked out at a meeting held in the Atlanta offices of the Regional Council for Education on October 6, provides for smiliar training being furnished white students from Southern States at Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn Alabama, and the University of Georgia at Athens, Georgia.

The meeting was called after the Regional Council for Education had explored practical ways for meeting urgent needs for veterinary medical training in the Southeast. Alabama Polytechnic Institute, the one state-supported school having a veterinary medical school, has been unable to accommodate the number of students applying for admission each year to its School of Veterinary Medicine.

Present at the meeting were Ralph B. Draughon, president of Alabama Polytechnic Institute; R. S. Sugg, dean of the School of Veterinary Medicine at Alabama Polytechnic Institute; Frederick D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute; Harmon Caldwell, president of the University of Georgia; John E. Ivey, Jr., director of the council, and Mrs. Margaret C. James, program assistant of the council.

At the meeting, representatives of Tuskegee Institute, Alabama Polytechnic Institute and the University of Georgia reviewed the facilities available for meeting the demands of Southern States for veterinary medical training.

TRAINEES ESTIMATED

Estimates of land-grant college presidents in Southeastern States of the annual number of students who will want veterinary medical training were as follows: Florida--12 white, 10 Negro; Georgia, 10 Negroes; Mississippi--20 white, 10 Negroes; North Carolina--30 white, 5 Negroes; South Carolina-20 white, 2 Negroes.

The School of Veterinary Medicine at Tuskegee, now in its fourth year of operation, has a total enrolment of forty- nine students. A number of those are students from states other than Alabama, but no other state contributes to the support of the school. The current operating budget is $65,000, appropriated by the State of Alabama, plus amounts collected from tuition and fees.

It was estimated that within the next two years the capacity of the School of Veterinary Medicine at Tuskegee Institute can be increased to a total enrolment of 200 students, with a possible distribution in total enrolment of forty-eight students from Alabama and 152 from other Southern States. This would mean an annual admission quota to the freshman class of twelve students from Alabama and thirty-eight from other Southern States.

NEEDS LISTED

In order to expand its capacity the Tuskegee school would need (1) $50,000 for additional equipment (2), $50,000 to complete the physical plant, and (3) and annual operating budget of from $175,000 to $250,000, with additional funds for research.

The school also would need an increase in number of staff and an increase in staff salaries as well as additional clinical material.

Both the University of Georgia and Alabama Polytechnic Institute submitted much larger budgets for expansion than did Tuskegee Institute.

The School of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Georgia, now in its third year of operation, has a total enrolment of 150 students with a current operating budget of $130,000. The capacity of the school is 200 students with a possible distribution of 100 students from Georgia, and 100 students from other Southern States.

For expansion it needs a capital outlay of $500,000, an annual operating budget of $250,000, and an additional staff with increases in staff salaries.

TENTATIVE PLAN

Under the tentative proposal while Tuskegee Institute would provide training in veterinary medicine for all colored students in the South wanting such training the University of Georgia would provide such training for white students from North Carolina, South Carolina and Florida, and Alabama Polytechnic Institute would provide such training for students from Mississippi, Louisiana and Tennessee.

A possible need was indicated for the establishment of a veterinary medical school to serve white students in Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky and West Virginia. There also was indicated a need for exploration of the possibility that Oklahoma A and M and Texas A and M. could serve white students from Arkansas and Louisiana.

Under the proposal each cooperating state will pay to the Regional Council for Education $1,000 for each student enrolled in the regional schools through submission by their land-grant colleges.

The annual minimum payment of each state, however, would be not less than three-fourths of the amount required of the State if it fills its quota. For example, a state with four colored students would be required to pay a minimum of $3,000, if its quota was not filled, and $4,000 if its quoto was filled.

If a state's quota of students, is not filled for a year, the proposal allows another cooperating state to pay the additional amount, supply the additional students over its quota and relieve the deficit state of its proportionate share of its minimum payment.

REGIONAL DEGREES

Degrees would be awarded by the regional schools, bearing the information that the course of study was pursued under a program of the Regional Council for Education, in which the land-grant college of the student's state is participating.

Another agreement reached was that each state should pay to the student an amount sufficient to cover the difference in travel and living costs occasioned by the necessity of attending a school located outside of his own state.

The Regional Council for Education was directed to revise the proposal and submit the revised draft to Tuskegee Institute, the University of Georgia, and Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Another meeting of representatives of land-grant colleges in the fifteen Southern States is to be held for the purpose of reaching a final agreement for meeting the immediate demand for veterinary medical training in the South and to develop procedures and material for securing needed legislation.

South Plans Three Regional Schools

Commission Suggests Tuskegee and Meharry

By STAFF CORRESPONDENT

SAVANNAH, Ga.—Holding the flaming torch of segregation in one hand and a "handful" of colored educators in the other, planners of southern regional education, Monday, proposed plans that they believe will allow them to hold on to separate education and still lift their schools to the "intellectual level of other regions."

Careful to avoid any mentioning of race in their reports, members of the commission recommended that Tuskegee Institute be used as a regional Veterinary Medical school for "all the States covered by the plan"; that Meharry Medicalcal College be used as a regional Medical College, that fellowships and grants be given to students interested and qualified to study for the Doctorate Degree" provided they return to the South to work."

Plan Nursing School

A recommendation was presented to the effect that all southern states build one school of nursing.

"Would that mean that all students that meet the requirements would be admitted?" asked Dr. A. E. Manley, North Carolina State College.

'Well. of course. we will have to build two schools in each State," stated Dr. Harold Stoke, Louisiana University, who was making the report.

Dr. Clifton Dummett, dean of dentistry, Meharry, asked the conference if there would be any compensation for "colored students who would have many inconveniences and added expenses by all having to attend one school while the whites have several?" Three medical and three veterinary regional schools are planned for whites.

"I do not think that these will be any added compensation," Dr. Stoke replied. However, someone suggested that each state take care of added expenses of colored students.

The meeting was held in the fashionable general Oglethorpe Hotel. Colored persons used freely the grounds and lobby. At dinner hour the colored educators were fed in Room 120, while white conference members used the dining room.

Officials at the hotel stated that several interracial conferences had met there—and that they usually rented a dining room and ate together.

On Sunday evening a conference banquet was held. The white members were at Hotel Oglthorpe while the colored used facilities at Georgia State College. The following personnel were billeted at Georgia State College:

W. H. Gray, president, Florida A. and M.; J. P. Drake, president, Alabama A. and M.; W. R. Banks regent, Texas State University; A. E. Manley, N.C. State College; S. M. Nabrit, Atlanta University; Clifton O. Dummett, dean of Dentistry, Meharry; George N. Reid, director of education, Fisk; R. E. Clement, Atlanta University; F. D. Patterson, president, Tuskegee Institute; W. H. Pipes, president, Alcorn College, Mississippi; N. E. L Carengie, dean of nursing education, Florida A. and M.; M. O Alston, Florida A. and M.; Huston Stallworth, Fort Valley; T. S Johnson, Tuskegee Institute, and Dr. Lula E. Johnson, Florida A and M.

Florida A. and M. Considered

There is a possibility that Florida A. and M. will be used for nursing education.

President R. E. Clement, Atlanta University, told the AFRO that there has been no discussion of using Atlanta University as a regional school.

"Sure I have attended the regional conferences. I feel that is my duty to attend all meetings that affect my people. I want to know what is going on.

"If there is a meeting where they plan to kill colored persons, I want to be in on the meeting. I want to know how and why they are going to kill them and who they are going to kill. I just want to know what is being done and the committee may act next week. A similar bill for approval for the plan is also in the senate.

The 15 states agreeing to the setup are Alabama, Arkansas, South Carolina, Florida, Georgia, Maryland, Mississippi, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

House Sub-Committee Okays Regional School Measure

WASHINGTON, — (ANP) — A judiciary sub-committee of the House last week approved a bill to permit 15 Southern States to create a joint system of regional schools; and full committee action on the measure was promised this week.

The bill would permit the States to form a compact to use State funds to finance and operate the schools. Under the plan, Meharry Medical College in Nashville, would be taken over by the States for education of colored doctors and nurses.

Deny Racial Basis of Move

States joining the plan, for which Congressional sanction is necessary, include Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia.

The program has been turned over to a group of leading Southern educators, who plan to ask educational foundations to finance a survey of the needs of the South. Its sponsors deny that it is a move to enable poor Southern States to continue jim-crow educational policies.

Colored Faculty Member Advocates Regional School

The Globe
Fri 3-5-48
Nashville Tennessee

Attorney Z. Alexander Looby And Editor Of Globe Say Regional Status For Meharry Has Little Merit And No Chance To Win Approval

Young Richard Harwood, a splendid objective reporter, who was sent by the NASHVILLE TENNESSEAN to cover the debate on the question of turning Meharry Medical College over to the Southern Governors for a regional school, dropped in a line of "past history" in his story which may afford another topic for discussion equally as lively as the one to which a capacity crowd at First Baptist Church, 6th Avenue, listened to last Sunday.

Mr. Harwood stated that a proposal to unite Meharry with Fisk University had been rejected several years ago by the officials of Meharry. He did not say why Meharry rejected the proposal, and his makes more puzzling than ever the whole matter regarding Meharry's future, so local citizens believe.

The Globe

Last Sunday's debate was also covered by Tom Flake, reporter for the Nashville Banner. His story stuck close to the "Banner Line."

Pres. Clawson was Absent

The large crowd of people who gathered to hear last Sunday's debate was greatly disappointed because the advertised defenders of the affirmative, which included Dr. A. Don Clawson, president of Meharry and another white member of the faculty, did not put in their appearance. It was felt that they would be in possession of the closely guarded "secret" agreement between Meharry officials and the Southern governors that would convert the famous medical school, which enjoys a national status, into a Southern regional institution, with some of the trustees coming from Georgia and Mississippi, in all probability.

Fri 3-5-48

Dr. Clawson, who reportedly had evinced great enthusiasm for taking part in the debate, had to remain over for a meeting up at Oak Ridge, Tenn., he stated in a telegram to the sponsors of the debate. The telegram was dated February 28. In it he stated that Dr. D. T. Rolfe, who is a colored member of the faculty, and the public secretary of the Meharry Alumni Association, would be the school's representative on the program. For some reason, nobody else from Meharry came to defend its president's views on the burning question and therefore, Dr. Rolfe had to speak twice, and to meet the arguments of L. D. Williams, editor of the Nashville Globe and Attorney Z. Alexander Looby, both of whom admitted that they were handicapped as a result of not being allowed to examine the closely guarded agreement for making a "regional" out of Meharry. It is rumored this is an agreement that only a very few persons connected with Meharry, outside of Dr. Clawson, know. Dr. Rolfe, however, is understood to be one of the pressure to avoid setting up any more Jim Crow institutions. Williams said the status of the proposal was about like that of the boy who was asked by a passerby how many fish he had caught. Said the boy, "When I get the one now nibbling and four more I will have five."

Chas. Harwood

In answer to a question regarding a definite alternative proposal to the one now being discussed for Meharry, Williams held that Meharry should be consolidated with Fisk University, as its financial backers proposed when they moved the medical school from South to North Nashville around 20 years ago. Then, without racial segregation, the "Fisk-Meharry University" could with reasonable assurance command millions of dollars support from the Federal government similar to what Howard University, Washington, D. C., is receiving.

Williams challenged a statement made by Dr. Rolfe who had said Howard is a segregated university. The Meharry teacher had to admit that Howard has white students, attending its Medical school, but said the number is very small.

Atty. Looby Disappointed

Attorney Z. Alexander Looby, who was expected to dissect the Meharry proposal from a legal standpoint, was deprived of this opportunity because of the failure of Dr. Clawson to show up with the contract and the failure of any of the celebrated lawyers who are said to have prepared the contract to put in their appearance. Under the circumstances, Mr. Looby stated that it would be as improper for him to debate the subject from a strictly legal standpoint as for Dr. Rolfe to debate it from a medical standpoint. However, Dr. Rolfe did make his biggest hit by reference to the high standing Meharry enjoys as a medical school and when he criticised those who would let the institution die in a legalistic battle over segregation.

Attorney Looby made much of the secrecy surrounding the maneuvers to get the Southern governors to take over Meharry. He wanted to know why the Meharry alumni were not being taken into the confidence of the Meharry administration and why the public must speculate regarding the intimate details of the contract that would consummate the deal. He confessed that he could trust Tennessee political leaders if they alone would have charge of Meharry, but wanted to know who could be sure of the kind of trustees who would be named by the Hon. Herman Talmadge if he is the next governor of Georgia or by Mr. Wright, the present governor of Mississippi.

The proposal was called a backward step by Mr. Looby, who pointed to the numerous recent decisions of the Supreme Court in implementing the 14th Amendment and making that part of the United States Constitution mean just what it was intended to mean when it became the law of the land.

Mr. Looby predicted that the enabling act, which must come before the Congress of the United States will be overwhelmingly defeated. He does not believe that congress will fly in the face of a large majority of the American people at a time when so many of them, without regard to party, and without regard to section, are supporters of the Civil Rights proposal of President Truman.

Attorney Looby also, in the few references he mad to the legal aspects of the Meharry proposal, said that the proposal for regional schools are unconstitutional; that they violated the letter and spirit of the law as laid down by the Supreme Court in the Gaines case. Each state, he holds, under law, must provide and pay for the education of its own citizens.

In closing his talk, Mr. Looby called upon his audience to get a newspaper which would show who among Southern governors and other friends of reaction are fighting the proposed Civil Rights laws and it will show that in most every case these same persons are the proponents of the plan to make Meharry a regional medical school for Negroes, only.

The debate was under the sponsorship of the local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored people. Rev. C. L. Dinkins, president of the branch, called the meeting to order. Prayer was offered by the Rev. H. L. B. Wilkins, pastor of the church.

Dr. George W. Harvey, editor-in-chief of the Sunday School Publishing Board presided and introduced the speakers. He suggested that the proposal be debated all over the United States.

"secret few" because he assured the audience at the beginning of his address that Dr. Clawson would approve the views that Dr. Rolfe would express.

Dr. Rolfe further proved that he was in possession of the "inside facts" by pointing to a handbag of considerable size which he brought to the meeting, saying he had brought these facts in his bag. During his address he announced that in the new dispensation, when Meharry becomes a regional, the present trustees would be "holding trustees." This suggested to some that Meharry trustees would probably be left "holding the bag."

The argument which Dr. Rolfe made in favor of accepting the offer of the Southern governors to make a regional out of Meharry was that Meharry faces a crisis; that it is destined to go out of business the coming July 1, unless it can get the aid promised by the Southern governors. He said every other possible source of revenue for keeping Meharry open had been explored and the offer of the Southern governors was the one last hope of keeping Meharry in business.

While the Nashville Banner which devoted most of its coverage of the debate to quotations from Dr. Rolfe's speech, did not do him justice regarding his views on segregation. Dr. Rolfe said that he considered acceptance of the offer of the Southern governors a temporary and necessary expedient; that he too would be glad if segregation in education were done away with. He said that he and other members of the Meharry faculty could do much better financially for themselves, if they left Meharry. Their chief interest he said, was to provide a place where the several hundred students could continue their medical and dental education.

In his address, Dr. Rolfe did violence to the fame Gov. McCord had achieved among those who glorify the ideology of the Southern governors. He stated that Gov. McCord did not originate the idea of making a "regional" out of Meharry. He merely carried to the governors' conference the plans and specifications that had been worked out by Meharry authorities. Gov. McCord, it had been believed, would be called "Father of the Meharry Regional" and words to that effect would be carved on a corner stone of one of nine buildings when the new dispensation was ushered in.

Dr. Rolfe was critical of the amount of financial support that Meharry had received from Nashville since its existence here. He did not, however, show that Meharry had been, comparatively as a great boon to Nashvillians seeking education as have been A. and I. State College and Fisk University. The amount of money Meharry has brought to town and put in circulation here has been tremendous, and it may have been that Dr. Rolfe was referring to the lack of reciprocity upon the part of those who have been blessed with the privilege of handling the big sums of philanthrophy and student fees.

Dr. Rolfe did well with his argument. He received geenrous applause from many in the audience, especially when he referred to the need for colored doctors and how critical it will be if Meharry goes out of business next July 1.

Editor Says Plan Reatcionary

Editor L. D. Williams of the Nashville Globe explored the political ramifications of the proposed "Meharry Regional." He quoted from a statement that recently appeared in the TENNESSEAN and which indicated Gov. McCord had rushed out to embrace the proposal because, as he said, something must be done or else colored students would have to be admitted to the state's professional schools and this would destroy the usefulness of these schools.

Williams said this view as expressed by Gov. McCord, showed that Meharry was to be used to pull chestnuts out of the fire for states that had disregarded the edict of the Supreme Court which nine years ago stated that all states must provide equality of educational opportunities for its citizens WITHIN their states, and more recently said this equality must be provided for colored citizens as PROMPTLY as it is provided for white citizens.

The editor emphasized several of his points against the plan with humorous anecdotes that caught the fancy of the large crowd. He stated that the subject for debate should have been "Gov. McCord's Strategy for Changing the Subject." The governor, he stated, was on a hot spot last October as a result of his sales tax and that it could be charged that he embraced the "Meharry Regional" as an issue that would permit him to get to talking about his efforts to give colored Tennesseans a big opportunity to get a fine medical education and at the same time keep them from "destroying the usefulness" of the state's professional schools now attended by white students, only.

In the end, Williams charged that the proposal had a long way to go if it ever became a reality. He pointed to the fact that the Meharry people had gotten a Louisiana congressman and a Florida senator to introduce in congress the bill that would sanction the establishment of regional schools

The Only Course Remains

Memphis Tenn

It is good to know that The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is making plans to institute suit to test the legality of the segregated regional college plan, approved recently by the southern governors and educators. As a first step, the Association is urging qualified young Negro men and women to apply for admission to publicly-supported graduate and professional colleges within their respective states.

Title 12-6-48 14e(2)

"We maintain that the plan to ship colored students from one southern state to another for graduate training is in violation of the U. S. Supreme Court decisions in the Sipuel cases," declared Thurgood Marshall, special NAACP Counsel, in New York last Saturday. "Accordingly," Marshall continues, "we urge all qualified Negroes desiring medical education to apply to the existing publicly-supported medical school in their respective states rather than submit to this unlawful plan."

Memphis Tenn.

Anything the respective states do to furnish education for Negroes equal to that for whites within their boundaries meets the requirements of the Gaines and Sipuel decisions by the U. S. Supreme Court. Anything done to furnish education to Negroes across state borders is in conflict with that clear mandate. That is why we share fully the opinion of the NAACP and endorse wholeheartedly its action in urging a test of the legality against the procedure.

Now is the tiime to stem the tide against these so-called regional colleges before they are permitted to have official sanction. Once they are started it will probably be 25 or 35 years before they can be uprooted. Bootlegged regional colleges have no more right to operate in the American system than quack doctors. Both are undermining the sure foundations upon which individual achievement and initiative are built. It is more than an even guess, It is almost a certainty, that the courts will invalidate such colleges.

South's Share-The-Wealth Education Move Takes Step

The Montgomery Advertiser

ATLANTA, Dec. 5.—(AP)—The South's share-the-wealth move in college education is stated to get out of the talking stage and into action next week.

Montgomery Ala.

Southern governors, flanked by 150 college presidents and deans, meet in Savannah next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday to discuss the nation's pioneer plan for regional education.

Thurs 12-6-48

They are expected to adopt their first specific program for regional operations, in at least one field—veterinary education.

And they will outline more research and spadework toward extending their scheme into almost all branches of higher education.

The idea is that by regional planning and financing, the South can provide far more and better education than the single states could work out individually.

Lower Costs, More Education

Not all states, for example, can afford an expensive veterinary school. Demand wouldn't justify a separate school in each state, either. But, by establishing several regional schools, each state has almost all the advantages of its own veterinary college.

A research committee of educators is ready to recommend that veterinary schools at Oklahoma A & M, Auburn, Tuskegee Institute for Negroes and the University of Georgia be the first to embark on the regional program.

It should work like this: 12-6-48

A student from North Carolina, for example, could attend the Georgia school at the same low tuition rate charged for Georgia students. Otherwise. he would have to pay higher out-of-state rates, and might not be able to afford veterinary education unless his own state established a school.

Regional Fund To Help

The state of North Carolina, however, would draw from a regional education fund to pay a certain amount for each student it sends to Georgia. Thus the regional school would get top financial support, with low rates for all students.

Southern governors have been talking about such a system since they approved the general idea in Asheville, N. C., in October, 1947. They have created a regional education council to work out details. The council meets in Savannah with the Southern Governors' Conference.

The specific operating plan for veterinary education will be submitted to state legislatures this Winter and Spring. If as many as six states approve, regional education will begin at the Fall term in 1949.

Committees, meanwhile, will continue studies in other fields—to determine the South's top needs in education and how to meet them. Tagged for action next are medical schools—including dentistry, pharmacy and nursing—and graduate schools.

In the background is the problem of higher education for Negroes. Southerners hope to give a rapid boost to Negro education through the regional plan. And thus they hope to preserve, in large part, their tradition of segregation of races.

The immediate goal is to establish existing state schools on a regional basis. Eventually, in fields where no existing schools are adequate, completely new regional colleges may be established, financed by all Southern states for the benefit of all.

Kentucky has not yet joined the regional education plan. States participating in preliminaries are Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas.

Planning Regional Education

The State Tenn

A young man who has lived many years in Alabama has been chosen by the 14-state Regional Council for Education to prepare a plan by which the South can build its regional education system. He is 30-year-old Dr. John E. Ivey, a graduate of Auburn, where his father was a faculty member. He took his doctorate at the University of North Carolina, where he was professor of sociology and director of the Division of Research Interpretation. Formerly associated with the Tennessee Valley Authority, he was for six years the executive secretary of the Committee on Southern Regional Studies and Education of the American Council on Education. His specialized knowledge lay in the field of Southern resources, and he has written a textbook on that subject. Thus he may be assumed to be particularly well fitted for the new job he has undertaken.

* * *

Dr. Ivey will devote all his time for the next 18 months to the task of drafting plans for setting up regional courses and research facilities in fields where there is an immediate need. He will prepare a long-range study on which the South can build a system of cooperative institutions designed to give Southern students technical training not now provided in the section. His work will be done under a budget of $100,000 provided by the Regional Council for Education. The results of his study should provide an intelligent basis upon which individual state legislatures can decide how best the states may cooperate with each other in establishing the needed institutions at strategic points throughout the South.

* * *

The plan in its general outline has been under discussion for some time. It would relieve the separate states from the burden of maintaining within the borders of each graduate, technical and professional schools at prohibitive expense and risk of duplication of work. The most difficult problem which the plan may eventually face is the matter of segregation of the races. If the courts should rule that Negro students must be provided with equal and immediate educational opportunities, the expense of setting up a dual system would be great, and doubtless in excess of what the South could afford. The only other alternative would be the admission of qualified Negro students on the same basis as whites, a matter which would cause profound misgiving and dangerous complications in the region.

Dr. Ivey's work is to prepare plans and to survey the field so that intelligent work can be done when, and if, the plan is ready to be activated.

Educator Denies State Will Evade Issue by Trickery

Atlanta Ga.

By A. M. RIVERA Jr.
(Courier Staff Correspondent)

RALEIGH, N. C.—State Superintendent of Public Instruction Clyde A. Erwin emphatically denied here this week that North Carolina has any intention of becoming a "party to any action to circumvent the actions of the United States Supreme Court in establishing segregated regional schools for Negroes."

Dr. Erwin, along with President Alfonso Elder of North Carolina College at Durham, represented the State at the Regional Council for Education, at the request of Governor Gregg Cherry, In Atlanta, Oct. 11.

DR. ERWIN, LIBERALS, OBJECTION STATED

Dr. Erwin, one of the State's most distinguished liberals, asserted that, "If I had any idea that the regional plan was to circumvent the Supreme Court decision, I could no longer subscribe to membership and would immediately withdraw my support."

He stated, quoting a figure here and there, that those provide for whites. The regional plan is, Reports emanating from Atlanta understanding, de- this week indicated that President graduate and pro- Elder's request to include in the on for both races Council's minutes some statement cannot afford du- of specific guarantees for educational facilities equal in quality to those provided for whites.

According to his understanding, de- this week indicated that President graduate and pro- Elder's request to include in the on for both races Council's minutes some statement cannot afford du- of specific guarantees for educational facilities equal in quality to those provided for whites.

Reports emanating from Atlanta and there, that the regional plan is, according to his understanding, designed to provide graduate and professional education for both races Council's minutes some statement that cannot afford duplication of specific guarantees for educational facilities equal in quality to those provided for whites.

In Durham this week Dr. Elder, caused lively discussion, but no action.

Representatives of the Southern Governors admitted that to include such guarantees would "alienate Mississippi and probably some other States of the Deep South."

Governor Caldwell was requested to include in press releases statements favoring the guarantee of equal facilities for Negroes. The Governor declined to make such a statement.

Gov. Browning Wants Medical School As Unit of A&I State

"Gentlemen's Agreement" Made At Savannah This Week Must Be Approved By South's Legislatures; Texas and Kentucky Fail to Approve New Plan

The most realistic and unassailable plan for "saving Meharry Medical College" got not the least consideration form the assemyled educators and Southern governors at Savannah, Georgia on Monday of this week. Instead they worked out a sort of "Gentleman's Agreement" that apparently satisfied the sponsors of "Regional Education" whose enthusiasm for the regionals is inspired either by a desire to save themselves or to dodge providing equality of educational opportunity for Negroes of the South, in compliance with the law of the land as laid down by the U. S. Supreme Court.

Best plan for saving Meharry and dodging a lawsuit, such as the "Gentleman's Agreement" seems certain to bring about, was offered by Tennessee's Governor-elect Gordon Browning, who went to the meeting with Gop. Jim McCord as his guest and therefore had no authority to press for the adoption of the Browning plan.

Governor-elect Browning wanted the state of Tennessee to take over Meharry as a state institution and make it a part of the A. and I. State College system. The state of Tennessee would then accept students from other states for the sum of $1,500 which "Gentleman's Agreement" has specified will be the contribution each state will send to Meharry with each of its selectees. Newspaper accounts of what went on behind "closed doors" at the Savannah conference which was carried on in an atmosphere of secrecy, stated that Gov. Browning would ask the 1949 legislature to make the necessary appropriations to take care of a definite quota of medical students that Tennessee will be permitted to have under the "agreement."

It is likely, however that much water will flow over the dam before Tennessee enters into the agreement. It is possible Governor Browning will become convinced that the Savannah conference did not adopt the best possible plan for saving Meharry and will seek further to relieve the crisis that has overtaken the medical school by bringing it into the state system, which would make it certain that the school's future would not be menaced by lawsuits, protests and other handicaps that are likely to affect the future enrollment at the medical college.

The proceedings at Savannah were carried out by the sponsors of regionalism as though they felt that they are able to compel colored citizens to attend school at Meharry whether they wish to or not. It is said they have not been able to get a single disinterested colored citizen of prominence to endorse their plan of saving Meharry Only such persons who have personal and financial interests to serve have been put up to "voice the approval" of the South's Negroes, it is revealed.

Those colored leaders in Nashville who have kept informed regarding the moves that have been made to convert Meharry into a repional school, are not convinced that the "Gentlemen's Agreement" entered into at Savannah, is anything more than a temporary expedient. Many doubt that it will receive approval of all the state legislatures that will be asked to appropriate money to finance the plan.

It is pointed out that the great state of Texas, with more money to appropriate for education than any Southern state, has refused to endorse the plan, and will instead take care of the medical education of all Texans, colored as well as white, right at home, just as Gov. Browning would do for Tennesseans. It is noted that, conspicuously absent as a signatory of the "Gentlemen's Agreement" is the state of Kentucky. It is recalled that Senator Alben W. Barkley, recently elected Vice President of the United States, voted ayainst regional schools when the Southern governors were trying to get congressional approval of the proposition last year.

Another indication that Kentucky will not enter into the agreement is the attitude of colored physicians of Kentucky, led by Dr. J. A. C. Lattimore of Louisville, an eminent Meharry alumnus and who retired as president of the National Medical Association this year. Dr. Lattimore in his annual address strongly opposed the efforts of his Alma Mater to convert it into a regional school, for Southern Negro students only.

Whereas, there is virtual certainty of a lawsuit regarding making Meharry a regional school, there is none in prospect if Meharry should be taken over by the State of Tennessee on the plan suggested by Governor-elect Gordon Browning. His proposition would be merely an extension of the state's educational system to include medical training for its colored citizens.

The Browning plan, it is suggested would comply with the mandate of the Supreme Court in the Gaines case. There is a possibility however, of a lawsuit if Tennessee should insist on sending any of its students out of the state for training that is provided within the state for white students.

The feeling is that if Tennessee should take over the operation of Meharry it would mean using only a reasonably small sum of the vast accumulation of sales tax money to run the school. In addition state snpervision could provide for a more economical administration of Meharry's affairs and certainly would mean bringing to the college addtional colored experts in medicine who increasingly are graduating from the greatest medical schools of the nation.

Some say it is not too much to expect that the Federal Government itself would appropriate money for operating Meharry, just as it now appropriates money to run Howard University. A state-operated Meharry would be launched with the blessing and good will, not only of colored Tennesseans in every walk of life, but also with the good will of Meharry alumni, now living in Northern states, who are hostile to the regional plan because they believe efforts are going to be made to eliminate students from Northern states. It is held the quota system for Meharry, as proposed at Savannah, seems to carry out "off the record" statements which have been made to the effect that Northern students are trouble-makers; they interfere with the thought-pattern for colored Southerners that some of the bigoted sponsors of regionalism desire.

Many colored Nashvillians express deep regret over the fact that Hon. Gordon Browning was not in office when the 1947 session of the legislature was in session. They feel he would have taken steps to save Meharry for the state of Tennessee and thus assure the medical school a future which cannot now be predicted under the Savannah financial plan, which, even if adopted by the Southern states, rests on nothing sounder than a "Gentlemen's Agreement" which draws its inspiration from a well known best seller by the same name.

College President and representatives attendin[g] Regional Council for education conferenc[e] held in Savannah, Ga., at the General Oglethorpe Hote[l], December 11, 12, and 13. (Standing) W. B. Banks, President Prairieview A. & M. Colleg, Texas; Dr. C. O. Dummett, Florida A. & M.; Dr. F. D. Patterson, Tuskegee; President James A. Colston, Ga. State College; T. H. Williams Fish University; A. F. Manlly, N. C. State College.

(Staed) Dr. Rufus Clement, Atlanta University, President; Mrs. Elizabeth Carnegie, Florida A. M.; Miss Lulu Johnson Florida A.M.; Dr. Sam Neshitt Atlanta University.

Let Meharry Close Its Doors

The National Medical Association in its recent 53rd annual session took high ground in condemning the effort of southern governors to establish regional colleges in the southern section of the United States. The immediate cause of concern for the convention delegates stems from attempt to convert Meharry Medical college into the first regional school.

Retiring President J. A. C. Lattimore is due great credit for the courageous stand he took in opposition to this reactionary movement. Dr. Lattimore told the assembled delegates:

"I would rather see Meharry close its doors than to see it reinforce the vicious pattern of Southern discrimination."

We are going places when we have strong leaders who speak out as in this instance, and receive the unanimous support of their constituency.

API Regional Training Plan Up At Meeting

Georgia Conference Set To Study Veterinary Medicine Idea

By L. O. BRACKEEN

AUBURN, ALA., Dec. 12—Southern governors and presidents and administrative officers of 55 institutions of higher learning meeting in Savannah, Ga., Sunday through Wednesday, Dec. 12-15, will have before them a "proposal for establishing and operating regional services for training in veterinary medicine" which was initiated on the campus of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Too, they will have facts that the veterinary school at Auburn has successfully operated as a regional school in veterinary education for the Southeast for 40 years. The school was established in 1907 and has admitted students from all southeastern states since that time.

These facts were revealed here today by Dr. R. S. Sugg, dean, Auburn Veterinary School, just before he left for Savannah, where he will represent Alabama Polytechnic Institute and its School of Veterinary Medicine.

Records here reveal that in September, 1946, the late Dr. L. N. Duncan, then president of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, called a southeastern conference on veterinary education. Land-grant college representatives were present from 10 states, including Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia.

Report Approved

Upon recommendation of a committee composed of Dr. A. L. Shealy, University of Florida, Dr. I. D. Wilson, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Dr. W. T. Oglesby, Louisiana State University, and Dr. R. S. Sugg, Alabama Polytechnic Institute the group unanimously approved a report, which says in part:

"It is the sense of the meeting that a most serious handicap to the development of the livestock industry in the South is the lack of adequate veterinary service, particularly in the fields of teaching, research, nutrition, poultry diseases, artificial insemination, parasitic disease, general rural practice, livestock sanitary control, regulatory work, and public health, including dairy and dairy farm inspection, meat and food inspection, and diseases of animals transmitted to man such as burcellosis, tuberculosis, rabies, etc."

Following the meeting in 1946, the Florida legislature approved a plan for contributing financial aid for use by students studying veterinary medicine in other states. Since other states did not pass similar legislation, the Florida plan has not been operated.

Realizing the need for further consideration of the regional veterinary training service, Dr. Ralph Draughon, president of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, called a second southeastern conference at Auburn on Sept. 2 and 3 this year.

All 10 states were represented.

Plan Okehed Again

Also attending were: Dr. John Ivey, Jr., newly appointed director of the Regional Council for Education, Atlanta, Ga., Dr. A. R. Meadows, Alabama Superintendent of Education, and Dr. John T. Caldwell, President of Alabama College, Montevallo.

Present also were: Dr. W. L. Parrish, Clanton and Dr. Joe Davis, Albertville, members of the A. P. I. Board of Trustees.

This group again approved the idea of regional training in veterinary medicine and set in motion plans which led to the present proposal being considered in Savannah.

Under the proposal, Alabama Polytechnic Institute would provide regional services in veterinary medicine for Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina and Tennessee; Oklahoma A. & M. College services for Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma; Tuskegee Institute services for any Southern State contracting for them, and the University of Georgia would provide services for the states of Georgia, Maryland, North Carolina, West Virginia and Virginia.

If the proposal is approved, legislatives of the various states will be asked to appropriate funds so that contracts between states can be executed. It is expected that by September, 1949, participating Southern states may begin to bear the costs which the Alabama, Georgia, and Oklahoma institutions incur in educating veterinary medical students from other states.

Tuskegee's President Defends Plan

Says Regional Education Is 'Entirely Sound'

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—(NNPA)—Defending the tentative arrangement under which Tuskegee Institute would become a regional school for veterinary medical training, Dr. Frederick D. Patterson, its president, said regional education is "entirely sound."

Admitting that governors of southern states were probably using the regional education program as a means of defeating the fight to abolish racial segregation in education, Dr. Patterson said Tuskegee would prefer not to enter into the arrangement.

As an alternative, he suggested that 100 colored persons guarantee the institution $1,000 a year each, or 1,000 colored persons guarantee $100 a year each.

The School of Veterinary Medicine at Tuskegee Institute is in its fourth year of operation. It has a total enrollment of forty-nine students. A number of these are students from states other than Alabama, but no other state contributes to the school. The current operating budget is $65,000, appropriated by Alabama, plus amounts collected from tuition and fees.

At the meeting in Atlanta representatives of Tuskegee Institute, Alabama Polytechnic Institute and the University of Georgia with staff members of the Regional Council for Education, it was estimated that within the next two years the capacity of the school can be increased within the next two years to a total enrollment of 200 students with forty-eight students allotted to Alabama and 152 to the other sixteen southern states.

In order to carry out this expansion, the Tuskegee School of Veterinary Medicine, it was estimated will need $50,000 for additional equipment, $50,000 to complete the physical plant, an annual operating budget of $175,000 to $250,000

Patterson, defending his en- of meeting educational need to de- into the arrangement, said: feat the aspirations of Negroes to ard regionalism not only as do away with with segregation in uth. I realize it is probable of us who are working in Negro he southern governors are education must be exceedingly but recognize its existence education.

fact of long standing.

trouble is that we are con- "This I regard as extremely un- it with the racial policies of fortunate and it implies that those Accreditation cannot be made un- $1,000 for each student a state oth- "The trou til the middle of the fourth year of er than Alabama would send to its fusing it wi operation. Dean T. S. Williams ex- School of Veterinary Medicine. the South. pects to request examination of the DEFENDS ACTION at the s ng a pe careful not to become instruments to assist the governors in the achievement of that objective.

"On the other hand, there is nothing that we can do in the case of certain offerings where the demand is limited and the costs are high except acknowledge the fact that making these offerings available on a regional basis is entirely sound. It just so happens that veterinary medicine is one such instance."

Six Governors Push Plan To Take Meharry

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 20.—(NNPA). — Initial steps were taken here last Saturday toward the establishment of regional schools for white and colored students to relieve the financial burden on Southern States of affording equal educational opportunities for both colored and white students.

Governors of six Southern States approved a plan to establish jointly financed regional colleges and universities to ease the burden of providing graduate and professional education for both white and colored students.

At the same time trustees of Meharry Medical College offered the $8,000,000 school as an outright gift to fifteen Southern States to operate if the regional plan is put into effect.

The only condition of the offer was that the school "be operated at its present high standards".

The Committee on Regional Education for the Southern Governors' Conference, composed of six governors, reported complete agreement on the necessity of th regional educational plan and said it would so report to a full meeting of the Governors' Conference.

Governor William T. Lane, of Maryland, president of the conference promised to call a meeting of the conference within six weeks to act on the regional college plan and the offer of Meharry as the frist regional school.

The educational committee approved the plan after an inspection last Saturday of Meharry.

Governor Millard E. Caldwell, of Florida, dovetailed the Meharry proposal into an argument in favor of establishing regional colleges for all professional students white and colored.

The regional program, proposed by Governor Jim McCord, of Tennessee, at a meeting of Southern Governors last October in Asheville, North Carolina, also was discussed last Saturday by Governors Melvin E. Thompson of Georgia, William Tuck of Virginia, and Governor Lane.

In his statement last Saturday Governor Caldwell said:

"It is apparent that no single Southern State is financially able to supply the best educational facilities for all of its citizens. In certain specialized fields there are not enough students to justify establishment of separate schools in each State.

"It is apparent that if the Southern States work together they can establish and maintain the very best in educational opportunities in all fields for all of their citizens, regardless of race. Purely incidental to this meeting, the trustees of Meharry College have reached the conclusion that it must close unless the Southern States can take over its operation.

"Therefore they have offered to turn over this institution, including an endowment of five million dollars, to the several Southern States if the States will take over its operation and maintain its present high standards".

Meharry also has accredited schools of dentistry, pharmacy, and nursing.

The school at present has an enrollment of 490. It includes 190 bed Hubbard Hospital, a medical college approved by the American Medical Association, a class "A" dental school and a nursing school.

Regional Schools Opposed by NMA

Group Backs Truman; Raps J.C. Vet Units

NEW YORK (NNPA)—Opposition to regional medical schools, support for President Truman's Civil Rights program, and a reaffirmation of its stand against segregation in Veterans Administration hospitals were expressed here Feb. 2' by the board of directors of the National Medical Association.

The organization also went on record as supporting Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Administrator, in his efforts to have colored internes and doctors of Howard University make use of facilities at Gallinger Hospital in Washington.

Convention Here 16-20

Other resolutions passed by the NMA directors urged admission for colored people to all tax-supported hospitals.

The group selected this city as the site of their annual convention into be held Aug. 16-20. The organization is a sustaining member of the NAACP.

Segregated Medical Education Essential, Says Florida Leader

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 2—(AP)—Gov. Millard F. Caldwell, of Florida, said yesterday that "Negro education in dental and medical fields can be had in this country only on a segregated basis."

And, he said, "if segregation were abolished today you'd have about 900 Negro medical and dental students thrown out of school."

Caldwell told the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, however, that the South is not doing its part in providing facilities for Negro medical and dental students.

He urged that regional schools be set up, on a segregated basis, to provide better facilities for whites and Negroes alike.

Caldwell is chairman of the Southern Governors Conference and of the governors' committee on regional education.

HE OUTLINED the conference's reasons for setting up the Regional Council of Education and its proposed plan of operation to the first general session of the association's 53rd annual convention.

"I believe I am safe in saying that before another school year starts we will have regional schools in operation," he remarked.

Caldwell said he wasn't primarily interested in the segregation angle of the council's plan to set up regional schools. What matters, he said, is that the South pool its resources and intelligence and set up a great system of schools.

The council proposes that Southern states get together and decide on what schools are needed. Then they will organize the schools and share the expense.

SOUTHERN GOVERNORS APPROVE SCHOOL PLAN

Regional Education Program Wins Support

14 STATES TO TAKE PART

By MORRIS CUNNINGHAM
Staff Correspondent

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 13.—Eleven Southern Governors meeting here Monday approved an "action program" for a precedent-shattering regional education plan and checked the matter to their legislatures to provide necessary funds.

The program calls for 14 Southern states to contribute an annual total of $868,000 to the support of institutions teaching medicine dentistry, and veterinary medicine.

High Praise Given Plan

Governor Millard Caldwell of Florida, chairman of the Southern Regional Council for Education that drafted the program after months of study, said construction fo new institutes is not planned for the immediate future.

Instead, contributions will be made to the support and expansion of existing Southern universities for negroes and whites and they will accept students from other Southern states on a quota basis, he explained.

Governor Caldwell, who was continued as chairman of the council although his term as Governor of Florida expires in January, joined with his gubernatorial colleagues in hailing the leap across state borders in financing higher education.

Other comment:

Governor McCord of Tennessee: "I consider it the most advanced educational step ever taken. I am calm in the confidence that it meets the need of the hour.

Governor-elect Gordon Browning of Tennessee: "I am sure it will prove to be a very profitable arrangement. I shall ask the Tennessee Legislature to approve it and appropriate our share of the funds."

Governor Wright of Mississippi: "I think we have taken a long forward step." He added that the Mississippi Legislature already has granted legal approval. If a special legislature session is called this year to receive a highway report it will be asked to appropriate Mississippi's share of the funds, he said. Otherwise the appropriation will be requested at the regular session in 1950, Governor Wright said.

Governor Laney of Arkansas: "It is a very wise and favorable development which depends now upon the attitude of the legislatures. The governors have done all they can do. A solid foundation has been laid. I shall present the matter to the January session of the Arkansas Legislature."

Governor William Preston Lane Jr. of Maryland, chairman of both the Southern and the National Governors Conferences: "The progress that has been made is excellent. The basic idea, educational or otherwise, means to a large extent the salvation of the Southern states and great benefit to the Nation."

Governor James Folsom, of Alabama: "There is no race question in it. It is purely economic."

Governor Herman Talmadge of Georgia: "By using all of our resources for a total effort we can accomplish more than we can single-handledly."

Meharry To Get Support

Under the terms of the plan, the states will contribute stipulated sums to the Southern Regional Council for Education. The Council will then contribute to the support of participating institutions.

Contributions will be made to the schools of veterinary medicine for whites of Alabama Polytechnic Institute (Auburn), Oklahoma A. and M., and the University of Georgia, and to Tuskegee Institute for negroes.

Meharry Medical College at Nashville is due to receive support of the education of negroes in medicine and dentistry. Howard University and a proposed negro medical college at the University of Texas also will be eligible for aid.

Cecil Sims of Nashville, legal adviser to Governor McCord, said the plan adopted assures the continuation of Meharry if the legislatures provide the funds requested. The negro college at Nashville has been faced with the prospect of closing because of a failure of former sources of income.

The medical and dental schools for whites to be aided have not been determined, Dr. John E. Ivey Jr. of Atlanta, director of the Council, said. Members reported that Emory University in Atlanta, and the University of Virginia at Richmond were considered at a closed meeting of the Council Monday afternoon.

The schedule of contributions adopted listed these amounts to be sought from the Legislatures of Mississippi, Arkansas and Tennessee for the two-year period beginning July 1, 1949.

Mississippi: $36,000 for white and negro veterinary medicine; $,600 for negro medicine and dentistry; $112,500 for white medicine; $45,000 for white dentistry; $14,000 for support of the council; total $250,100, or $125,050 per year.

Arkansas: $27,000 wor white and negro veterinary medicine; $36,000 for negro medicine and dentistry; $45,000 for white dentistry; $14,000 for support of the council; total $122,600, or $61,300 per year.

Tennessee: $36,000 for white and negro veterinary medicine; $55,200 for negro medicine and dentistry; $14,000 for support of the council; total $105,200 or $52,600 per year.

Steelman Is Speaker

Appropriations and contribution of these sums will enable the participating states to send a given quota of students each year to the designated regional schools.

Mr. Sims said the students would be enrolled in their own state universities but would receive instruction and credits from the regional schools. Tuition and fees according to the regular schedule would be paid by the students at the regional schools. The state contributions are merely for the overall support and mainteance of the institutions, Mr. Sims explained.

"The actual cost of operating institutions of higher learning is much greater than the amounts received from students," Mr. Sims said. The state contributions, he added, would seek to bridge this difference.

The schedules of state contributions is based upon a quota that calls for the payment of $1000 per year for each student of veterinary medicine and $1500 per year for medical and dental students.

The quotas were worked out by the Council on a basis of need in each Southern state. Tennessee, for instance which has the largest medical college for whites in the South, will not participate in the regional plan for white medical ciple may be agreed upon later. He praised the work of the Gov-education. Mississippi and Florida, Veterinary medicine and medicaernors at their meeting here and neither of which have medical and dental education were placedcalled for co-operation between schools, are the only participants in the forefront, Governor Cald-Federal, State, and Local Govern-in this field well explained, because they arement. 12-14-48

Each Southern state as asked to regarded as most pressing in the "The great need now is for contribute $7000 a year for the South at the present time. future," Dr. Steelman said, "is for support of the Council, which will Dr. John R. Steelman, a formerall three types of Government to continue its research on the re-Arkansan and Vanderbilt Univer-work together, to co-operate togional lead. Members stressed sity professor, who now is an as-ward our common objectives of that the present program is only sistant to President Truman, ad-providing for the national defense a beginning and that many other dressed a banquet meeting Mon-and the general welfare of our fields for application of the prin-day night. people."

Regional College Compact

Daily Worker Atlanta, Ga.

By a vote of 235 to 45 the House has approved the Southern Governors' plan to set up regional colleges for Negroes. Competent Washington observers have predicted similar approval in the Senate, which when accomplished, will open the road for the 15 southern states to go forward with their scheme to extend the lines of discrimination and segregation.

Fri. 5-7-48

It is indeed regrettable that the highest lawmakers of the nation would be so short-sighted as to feel that such a step could be acceptable to any large segment of right-thinking American citizens, either Negro or white. But the fact that it is a virtual certainty that the compact will be approved, poses another and perhaps graver problem. In the past, the matter of Federal aid to education was universally approved by Negroes. Under the scheme of the regional compact, it is altogether likely that Negroes could not be expected to approve the expenditure of Federal education money to be used in such a discriminatory fashion. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will probably have some specific pronouncement on this subject in the near future. We hope that it will withdraw its support to the bill under these undemocratic conditions.

The regional compact is not a scheme to strengthen education for Negroes in the South. It is being advocated as the Southerners' answer to the United States Supreme Court decision in the Gaines' and Sipuel cases. It was not borne out of a realization that the South owes to and therefore must do more for Negro education. It is, to the contrary, a method of doing less instead of more, to equalize educational opportunities for Negroes.

Daily World

Moreover, as things stand now, the regional plan would benefit a small and inconsiderable number of Negroes, since it is designed for those on the graduate level. What we need most in the South is the expenditure of vast sums in the lower brackets of education for the Negro masses. The elementary and high schools, for example, stand in crying need of more equitable distribution of funds. It is in this bracket, where most of our people stop their education at or about the high school level, that we need the state's most generous expenditure. Yes, we need more education on both levels. But, as between helping a selected few to continue graduate and professional training, and leaving the great masses ignorant and uneducated, we should greatly prefer passing up the professional leaders, since it is both bad economy and poor insight to begin education at the top, rather than at the bottom.

Atlanta, Ga. Fri. 5-7-48

Regional Schools Aired At Fisk U.

Journal & Guide Norfolk, Va.

NASHVILLE — (ANP) — The topic of the southern plan for regional colleges was discussed both pro and con last week at the race relations institute at Fisk University.

1-31-48

Dr. Melvin O. Alston, educational research director of Florida A. and M. College, spoke in favor of the plan. He said that the governors had not planned this idea to avoid segregation.

MORGAN HEAD OPPOSES

But Dr. Martin Jenkins, president of Morgan State College felt that regional schools as planned by the southern governors are "primarily to avoid the issue of segregation." He called this a violation of the principles of democracy.

Although not favoring the southern scheme, Dr. Jenkins said that regional schools were the only "logical and reasonable" approach to solving the educational problems.

7-31-48

STATES VS. INTER-STATE

Dr. Edwin Embree, president of the Julius Rosenwald Fund, said the question was one of state against interstate policy. He said that backers of the southern regional plan were "conniving to establish an interstate principle o segregation" in education.

Wayne Morse Succeeds In Fight To Shelve Southern-Sponsored Measure For Regional Universities In Dixie

The Worker

Sat 5-22-48

New York, N.Y.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (FP) — By a one-vote margin, the Senate bounced back to its Judiciary Committee Thursday a bill to approve a fifteen-state Southern compact providing for establishment of regional universities.

The vote was a hard-won victory for certain Republican legislators who contended that passage of the measure would have given Congress sanction to racial segregation in Southern schools.

The 38-37 vote came as the result of a recommittal motion made by Senator Wayne Morse, Republican of Oregon, who argued that the agreement did not require Congresional approval and that passage of the approval legislation would set a dangerous precedent, since Congress would in effect be backing segregation. The plan is seen by many as an attempt to get around recent Supreme Court decisions for equal educational facilities for Negroes, although proponents have insisted the proposal has been up since 1935 and for overall economic reasons.

Recommitting of the bill averted a knock-down, drag-out battle over civil rights legislation. Had the motion lost, Senator Morse planned to call up an amendment forbidding the Southern states to practice racial discrimination in the proposed regional universities.

If that amendment was defeated, he had threatened he would offer parts of President Truman's entire civil rights program as amendments.

This sudden move on the part of Morse caught the leadership of both parties utterly by surprise. The Truman plan, still locked up in committees, had called for anti-lynching, anti-poll tax and anti-segregation legislation, plus creation of a permanent FEPC. None of the Senators had been prepared to tackle these delicate issues for at least another month.

Backs Temporary Regional Plan

Defender Chicago, Ill.

Sat. 1-31-48

EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES BY RACE

(In the 17 Southern States and District of Columbia where segregation is maintained by law.)

Courtesy: Journal of Negro Education and Southern Patriot

Key: W = White; N = Negro

	1930	1945
Value of school property per pupil	W-$166	$224
	N- 32	52
Average salary Elementary Teachers	W-$958	$1,307
	N- 510	959
Courses in state colleges and universities	Three times as many undergraduate courses for whites
PROFESSIONS
DOCTORS	Or. Five times as many white doctors in proportion to white population as Negro doctors to Negro population.
	White- 1 to every 545 white persons
	Negro-1 to every 4,409 persons
Amount spent per pupil in elementary schools enrolled	W-$ 43.50	$ 73.67
	N- 11.26	32.46
Length of school term	W-162 days	173.5 days
	N-132	164

RANGE: From twice as many whites in Missouri to 22 times as many in Mississippi.

DENTISTS: White-1 to every 2,795
Negro-1 to every 12,101
(4 times as many white dentists)

PHARMACISIS: White-1 to every 1,714
Negro-1 to every 22,815
(13 times as many white pharmacists)

Defender
Chicago, Ill.

LAWYERS: White-1 to every 702
Negro-1 to every 24,997

SOCIAL WORKERS: White-1 to every 2,654
Negro-1 to every 11,537

ENGINEERS: White-1 to every 644
Negro-1 to every 130,700
(42 times as many in Oklahoma; Almost 900 times as many in South Carolina. No Negro engineers in Delaware and Florida.)

Sat. 1-31-48

Educators Say Regional Plan Undemocratic

Courier Pittsburgh
Sat 4-10-48

Group At Tuskegee Talks On Democracy In Higher Schools

TUSKEGEE, Ala—"It is unjust and undemocratic for a state to support institutions within its borders for one racial group and maintain at the same time that lack of funds requires Negro citizens to pursue higher education outside its borders," reported the resolutions and recommendations committee of the National Association of Collegiate Deans and Registrars in Negro Schools, when it met in twenty-second annual conference at Tuskegee Institute March 24, 25, 26.

Dean B. R. Brazeal of Morehouse College, president of the association, presided over the sessions.

Fifty deans of colleges and thirty-four registrars attended the meeting which represented sixteen states and the District of Columbia. The theme of the meeting was "Extending Democracy in Institutions of Higher Education for Negroes."

Sat 4-10-48

WELCOME ADDRESS

In the absence of President F. D. Patterson of Tuskegee, Dean I. A. Derbigny of the Tuskegee administration extended welcome remarks to the opening session which met in the auditorium of the Trade "A" building Thursday morning. He also gave a brief discussion of the development of the conference theme.

A panel discussion, "Handicaps to Intellectual and Cultural Growth in Colleges was held and participated in by Robert G. Brown, Tuskegee student; Dean R. A. Carter Alabama A. and M. College; Dr H. C. Trenholm, president, Alabama State Teachers College; Dean B. W. Hall, Jr. Leland College, and Dr. Mozell Hill, Atlanta University departmetn of sociology.

Other topics discussed at the Thursday session were, "Democracy in Faculty Administration Relationships," Dr. George N. Redd, Fisk University head of the department of education; "Faculty Morale as it Relates to Rank, Tenure, Salary Scale and Sabbatical Leave," Dean W. W. E. Blanchett, Fort Valley State College, Fort Valley, Ga., and "Legislative Function of the College Faculty," Dr. James Holladay, University of Alabama, regional representative of the American Association of University Professors.

Sat 4-10-48

STUDENTS' ROLE

An address open to students, faculty and visitors was delivered in the Institute Chapel at 6:30 p. m., Thursday. Dr. T. R. Solomon, registrar, Prairie View A. and M. College, spoke on "Students' Role in the Democratic Progress" at this public meeting.

A banquet was given in Tompkins Dining Hall at 8:00 o'clock Thursday night at which Dr. Harry V. Richardson, former chaplain of Tuskegee, spoke on the conference theme.

FRIDAY SESSION

At the Friday session, a special committee report, "Survey on Educational Trends in Curriculum Planning in the Liberal Arts Colleges" was given by Dean J. Newton Hill of Lincoln University, (Pennsylvania). This was followed by a report, "Student Government and Participation in Activities of the College," given by Dean J. T. Cater, Talladega College.

New officers of the association elected are: Dean Bertram W Doyle, Louisville Municipal College, Louisville, Ky., president; Registrar J. T. Brooks, State Teachers College, Montgomery, Ala., first vice president: Registrar E. N. Wilson, Morgan State College, Baltimore, Md., secretary; Mrs. Charlis S. Henderson, Arkansas State College, Pine Bluff, assistant secretary; Registrar C. D. Batchlor, Langston University, Langston, Okla., treasurer, and Dean H. Manning Efferson, Florida A. and M. College, Tallahassee, Fla., editor of The Journal.

Commercial Appeal
Memphis, Tenn

Regional Education Plan

GOV. MILLARD CALDWELL of Florida, chairman of a 14-state group known as the Regional Council for Education, has just made an announcement that brings hope of sound accomplishment in that field. The council has chosen Dr. JOHN E. IVEY of the University of North Carolina, a specialist in the field of Southern resources, to prepare a detailed study of the need and the possibility of meeting it.

The regional education idea is to establish institutions for the teaching of technical subjects which would be open to all eligible students from the 14 Southern states interested. The prime consideration would be to train our best young people here in the South so that there would be a larger probability of their remaining here to work. The second consideration is that it is clearly inefficient and unnecessary for the several states to undertake to set up and maintain separate institutions.

It is estimated that the study on which Dr. IVEY and an adequate staff are embarking will require a minimum of 18 months. It will consist of factual information in general, and in particular will reveal plans for setting up regional courses and research facilities speedily in fields where there is an immediate need.

Wed. 8-4-48

This program for regional education, originated and promoted in large degree by Gov. JIM MCCORD of Tennessee, strikes us as one of the most sensible and practical proposals for the South. There can be no question of the South's need for improved facilities for technical training, while it is equally obvious that the coordination of the resources of the several states will meet the need much more successfully than otherwise.

Regional Schools to Open Next Year, Caldwell Says

Alfro American
Sat 11-29-48
Baltimore, Md.

Governor Tells Publishers Plan to Flout Supreme Court's Edict Set for September

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Gov. Millard D. Caldwell of Florida departed from his prepared address to the Southern Newspapers Association here last week to forecast that "by next Sepember you will see regional education in action."

He said the Southern Regional Education Council scheduled to meet Dec. 12 would draft specific proposals for submission to next year's State legislatures, but would not reveal what the recommendations would be.

Want Racists Castigated

The Florida executive told the publishers, regional education would help provide the best graduate schools in the world and keep Southern boys and girls in the South where they are needed.

He urged the publishers to "unsparingly castigate" any party or individual who attempts to inject race or religion in the public affairs of America.

The governor emphasized that the Democratic Party was split by the religious question in 1928 (Al Smith's nomination for the Presidency—he was a Catholic), and the racial question (civil rights) in this year's Presidential election.

Have Learned Lesson?

He then commented: We learned our lesson about religion in 1928, and, I believe we have learned the lesson about the races in 1948 . . .

"If the word 'Negro' could be banished from the air and the press for a few years, the nation would witness an astounding change in relationships."

14e(2) 1948

Regional School Pact Denounced

17 Land Grant College Heads Hit Dixie Plan

By ALICE A. DUNNIGAN

WASHINGTON—(ANP)—When the seventeen presidents of Negro land-grant colleges departed for their respective States after having attended a three-day conference in Washington last week, each expressed his determination to continue his fight against the segregated policy now being practiced by the Southern institutions, and to do all in his power to see to it that every American citizen is provided with equal facilities to obtain an education.

The subject which drew the most fire was the regional school compact, which was so authoritatively interpreted and ably presented by George M. Johnson, dean of the School of Law at Howard.

SOME IN DISFAVOR

Apparently some of the presidents had been looked upon with disfavor for attending a regional conference in Atlanta where several Governors, white college heads and other State officials had presumably met for the purpose of furthering plans for the regional school compact.

G. L. Harrison, president of Langston University in Oklahoma, and L. A. Davis, president of Arkansas State College, made it clear that they definitely opposed the regional school idea, but attended the conference upon the invitation of the Governors.

They further expressed their belief that Negroes should be present at any meeting where plans were being formulated which directly affected Negro people.

A statement was read from the report of a previous Governors' conference held in Florida which quoted President Rufus Clement of Atlanta University, President F. D. Patterson of Tuskegee and President Trenholm of Alabama State College as having said they approved "any" plan that stood for higher education for all people.

CLEMENTS DEFENDS

President Clements, who was scheduled to lead the discussion in this particular session, was absent from this meeting. Neither President Patterson nor President Trenholm attended. Rushing in before the afternoon meeting closed, however, President Clements defended himself of the charge brought to the floor in the morning session.

He declared that he had always opposed segregation whether it be regional or local and said he had constantly contended that the present pattern of segregated schools of the South was uneconomical, unjust and un-Christian.

He admitted that he had said that the regional planning was sound but he did not approve of segregation. He emphasized his willingness to discuss this question of segregation anywhere either openly or prviately.

MARSHALL SPEAKS

Thurgood Marshall, chief NAACP counsel, delivered the main address in the Wednesday afternoon session, speaking on "The Courts and Equal Opportunities for Negroes." Mr. Marshall cited cases which had been brought to the courts, charging equality in education, by the NAACP and the results or status of each case. He spelled out methods by which Southern colleges could go about obtaining equal opportunities, repeating many suggestions made earlier by James M. Nabrit Jr., secretary of Howard University.

Dr. Nabrit had suggested that college presidents make a list of everything which the white colleges offered which their colleges do not, then ask for the things which they do not have. An avalanche of applications of Negro students should immediately go into the white land - grant institutions on the grounds that the Negro colleges are not able to offer research or experiment stations, etc. Then sue the institutions if these applicants are denied the right to enroll.

DEPT. OF AGRICULTURE

The presidents charged the Department of Agriculture as being the most prejudiced of all Federal agencies. They pointed out that Federal funds intended to further agricultural research in the South had been spent wholly for white schools to the exclusion of Negroes.

The college presidents attending the conference were J. F. Drake, Alabama A. and M.; L. A. Davis, Arkansas State; H. D. Gregg, Delaware State; W. H. Gray Jr., Florida A. and M.; C. V. Troup, Fort Valley State; R. B. Atwood, Kentucky State; F. G. Clark, Southern University; J. T. Williams, Maryland State; W. H. Pipes, Mississippi A. and M.; S. D. Scruggs, Lincoln, Mo.; F. D. Bluford, North Carolina A. and T.; G. L. Harrison, Langston; M. F. Whittaker, South Carolina State; E. B. Evans, Texas A. and M.; L. H. Foster, Virginia State; J. W. Davis, West Virginia; R. E. Clement, Atlanta University, and James A. Colston, Georgia State.

Regional Plan

Educators Helpless In Move to Halt Drive

(Special to The Courier)

ATLANTA, Ga. — The Southern States are going forward with their plans for regional education, and Negroes—at least the institutional presidents—are being carried along with the movement.

Last week, seven college presidents met with the invited heads of white colleges and four governors and other State officials in an official launching of the Southern Council with headquarters in Atlanta.

The educators were virtually "handed" the plans of the governors and the staff that has been appointed to implement the regional college idea. There was virtually no opposition to the plans as explained by officials, everything being in the general rather than the specific.

SUGGESTIONS TABLED

Two Negro educators were reported to have told the gathering that Negroes generally were against the regional college idea since it seemed a move designed to circumvent the Supreme Court ruling of equal education within the States' borders. The discussion was tabled in quick order by the chairman.

Another suggestion tabled was that the council clarify its position on Negro education and guarantee equality of expenditures and facilities.

Meharry, as a regional institution, was mentioned by one of the speakers, but no action taken.

The council meeting ended, leaving the matter up to the legislatures of the Southern States for appropriation. The regional college compact idea was defeated in Congress during the last session.

Negro college presidents attending the meeting included:

Dr. William H. Gray of Florida A. and M. College, Dr. Lawrence A. Davis, Arkansas A. M. and N.; Dr. C. V. Troup, Fort Valley State College; Dr. William E. Henry, Maryland State Teachers College; Dr. Alfonso Elder, North Carolina College; Dr. G. L. Harrison of Langston, and Dr. W. H. Banks of Prairie View.

It is the plan of the group to establish regional schools for both Negroes and whites in a region "economically poor."

Disagree Over Regional Plan

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — The effect of a Dixie scheme to continue Jim Crow education through a regional college plan now before congressional committees, was the subject of disagreement among members of the State Board of Education here Wednesday.

The so-called "Negro issue" is the topic of the day by sullen southerners, the Alabama education board is no exception.

State School Supt. A. R. Meadows said at the Wednesday meeting he thought a southwide regional Jim Crow educational plan for Negroes would "have a chance" to win U. S. Supreme Court approval.

Attack High Court

However, two board members disagreed in an attack on the nation's high court for not bowing wholly to the South's chicanery to deprive Negroes of equal educational opportunities.

Former Lt. Gov. Landy Ellis of Columbiana, said he doubted the regional education plan now being worked out by southern states would win Supreme Court approval, "the way the court is presently constituted." Continuing he declared "If I were on the court I would vote for it."

Former Alabama Rep. Joe Starnes who was a member of the notorious un-American activities committee bebore being defeated for re-election, agreed with Ellis but hoped that a reactionary sentiment would control the nation's political and judiciary life in the near futurc.

He speculated that "maybe the political situation in Washington won't be so acute in a few years."

National Press

Regional Schools

From The Washington Post

The nine Southern governors who have entered into a compact laying the foundation for a regional system of higher education no doubt believe they have hit upon a neat scheme to circumvent the recent edict of the Supreme Court in the Ada Lois Sipuel case. The scheme is to establish, by pooling the resources of some 15 Southern states, medical and law schools for Negroes who are now excluded from the tax-supported institutions of the states themselves. It is true, to be sure, that under this arrangement the states will be able to offer Southern Negroes graduate schools better staffed and equipped than could possibly be made available to them if each state were to attempt separately a wasteful duplication of its present facilities for white students. It seems extremely improbable, however, that the scheme will succeed in satisfying the Supreme Court's requirements, the legitimate aspirations of the Negro people or the moral responsibilities of the state governments.

A decade ago in the Gaines case the Supreme Court ruled that a state could not meet its constitutional obligation to provide equal educational facilities for Negro students by sending such students to institutions in neighboring states and paying their tuition there. Chief Justice Hughes, speaking for the court at that time, found that "the white resident is afforded legal education within the state; the Negro resident having the same qualifications is refused it there and must go outside the state to obtain it. That is a denial of the equality of legal right to the enjoyment of the privilege which the state has set up, and the provision for the payment of tuition fees in another state does not remove the discrimination." It is hard to see how the discrimination would be removed by the provision of a regional school in another state unless white students were confined to an equivalent regional system.

In any case, however, such segregated schools could not possibly afford Negroes the equality of opportunity to which they are legally and morally entitled. The very fact of segregation itself imposes upon the minority subjected to it a humiliation and degradation which are the antithesis of equality. Half a century ago when the Supreme Court first gave its consent to statutory segregation, Justice Harlan, a Kentuckian, had the integrity and foresight to declare that "the thin disguise of 'equal' accommodations . . . will not mislead anyone, or atone for the wrong this day done." What the Southern governors propose is nothing more than a new way to perpetuate this wrong. What better place could they find to initiate the righting of the wrong—by offering Negroes the equality of opportunity that can be found only in free association—than in professional schools where the maturity and education of the students can be counted upon to erase racial prejudice?

Southern Regional School Opening Scheduled in '49

(The Associated Press)

Atlanta, Oct. 11. — Southern regional schools, operated through the co-operation of several states, will be ready to open by September 1949, Gov. Millard Caldwell of Florida said today.

Contracts for the actual operation of regional professional and graduate schools will be submitted to the Legislatures of Southern states in January, Caldwell said.

The regional council for education, of which Caldwell is chairman, held a closed meeting here today. Caldwell reported results in a press conference.

The council voted to name technical commissions to explore the immediate demand and need for regional education services, develop specific proposals regarding facilities needed to meet these demands and needs, and propose methods for inaugurating a regional educational service program.

These proposals are to be ready for presentation to state legislatures by January 15.

States in which regional contracts are involved will be asked to provide funds to finance the regional education of their students, the Florida governor said.

The council concluded the most immediate needs are regional schools in veterinary medicine, medical and health services, social work, forestry, engineering, law and graduate studies, he added.

The council approved appointment of Dr. John Ivey of Atlanta as executive director. It set up a budget of $63,000 for the year.

Congress Asked to Okey Regional Education Pact

27 Democrats, 2 Republicans Offer Joint Resolution in Senate for Plan's Approval

WASHINGTON—(NNPA)—A joint resolution to give the consent of Congress to the compact on regional education entered into by Southern States at the Southern Governor's Conference at Tallahassee on Feb. 8, was introduced into the Senate last Wednesday.

A similar joint resolution had been offered in the House on Feb. 24 by Rep. Sam Hobbs (Dem., Ala.) Congressional approval of such a joint resolution is necessary because the United States Constitution forbids any State to enter into a compact or agreement with another State without the consent of Congress.

Bill's Sponsors Named

The Senate joint resolution is sponsored by 27 Democrats and two Republicans. The Democratic sponsors are:

Sens. Spessard L. Holland and Claude Pepper of Florida; Lister Hill and John J. Sparkman of Alabama; John J. McClellan and J. William Fulbright of Arkansas; Burnet R. Maybank and Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina; Walter F. George and Richard B. Russell of Georgia; Millard E. Tydings and Herbert R. O'Connor of Maryland; James O. Eastland and John C. Stennis of Mississippi; Kenneth McKellar and Tom Stewart of Tennessee, Tom Connally and W. Lee O'Daniel of Texas; Harry F. Byrd and A. Willis Robertson of Virginia; Clyde R. Hooey and William B. Umstead of North Carolina; Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma; John H. Overton and Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana, and Harley M. Kilgore of West Virginia.

Educators Attack Plan

The two Republicans are Sens. John S. Cooper of Kentucky and E. H. Moore of Oklahoma. Sen. Chapman Revercomb (Rep., W.Va.) did not join his colleagues as a sponsor of the resolution.

At Atlantic City on Feb. 23, the executive committee of the conference of Presidents of Land-Grant Colleges for colored students adopted a motion declaring that "We do not approve of regionalism as a method of equalizing educational opportunities for colored students."

Regional Plan Major Topic Of Discussion

Inequality In Grants Of Federal Gov't. Is Also Considered

By LOUIS LAUCHIER

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—The 26th annual session of the Conference of Presidents of Negro Land-Grant Colleges last Wednesday was told that the proper remedy against inequitable distribution of federal funds between colored and white land-grant colleges is legal action to compel admission of colored students to the white institutions and to enjoin the Secretary of Agriculture from making disproportionate allocation of funds.

This advice followed a discussion of the southern regional school program, during which several of the college presidents who attended a meeting of southern governors and educators in Atlanta on Oct. 11 answered a number of questions asked by Dr. John W. Davis, president of West Virginia State College, to bring out that efforts were being made to corral the support of the nation for the regional education program.

DR. TROUP PRESIDES

With C. V. Troup, president of Fort Valley (Georgia) State, presiding, addresses were given at the morning session last Wednesday by Herbert O. Reid, a Howard University law school instructor, and James M. Nabrit, Jr., secretary of Howard University, on "Remedies under Statutes Granting Federal Aid to Land-Grant College," and by George M. Johnson, dean of the Howard law school, on "Regional Universities" with particular reference to Congressional consent to the compact of southern states to set up regional schools.

Dr. Rufus E. Clements, president of Atlanta University, who was present at the opening session of the conference on Tuesday, October 19, failed to show up to lead the discussion on the southern regional school program, and James A. Colston, president of Georgia State College, substituted for him.

QUESTIONS ASKED

Dr. Davis asked a number of questions concerning the meeting of southern governors and state attorneys general at Atlanta, which was attended by William H. Gray, president of Florida Agriculture and Mechanical College; Dr. Troup; Lawrence A. Davis, president of Arkansas A. and M. College; William E. Henry of Maryland State College; Alonzo Elder, president of North Carolina State College; George L. Harrison, president of Langston University, and W. R. Banks, president emeritus of Prairie View State College.

Questions by Dr. Davis developed that other meetings of various educational organizations were to consider the regional school program and that the subject would come up again in the Eighty-first Congress.

Replying to one of Dr. Davis' questions as to whether there were any off-the-record conferences in connection with the Atlanta meeting, Dr. Harrison, who was named as a consultant by Governor Roy J. Turner of Oklahoma, said that it was secret meetings at which controversial issues were settled.

Referring to a report sent him on a previous meeting, at which Dr. Clement and Frederick D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, were present, Dr. Harrison said the report stated that these educators were invited to speak pressed an interest "in any pro- before the conference and they ex- gram" that would be for the welfare of all the people.

OBJECTED TO PHRASE

Stating that he objected to the phrase, "any program," Dr. Harrison said he had written Dr. Davis that if colored people were going to be misquoted, he thought it was time for somebody to be on guard and correct misstatements.

When Governor Turner designated him to serve as a consultant, Dr. Harrison said he told the governor that he was vigorously opposed to any segregated program of education, and the governor told him it was his privilege to speak freely and to take any position he chose.

Replying to a question by Dr. Davis as to who is financing these meetings, Dr. Harrison said nine southern states had put up $3.000. each, the General Education Board had donated $30.000, and the Carnegie Foundation had been asked or has promised an additional $30,000.

"There is a considerable amount of study going on in this issue," Dr. Davis commented," and for once in this life the Negro people, especially educators, should rally themselves so that the American creed and the American deed might get together and work harmoniously for the good of the nation."

DR. DAVIS SPEAKS

Just before the meeting recessed for lunch, Dr. Davis of Arkansas said he hoped it will not be construed that mere attendance at the Atlanta meeting carried with it an indorsement of the regional school plan. He added that he had opposed the plan even to the extent of being called by the governor and being asked to state his position. He said he had attended the Atlanta meeting as an observer because he had been appointed by the governor.

Dr. Nabrit told the conference that as land-grand college presidents they had no constitutional rights and cannot avail themselves of equal protection of the laws as institutions. He said that as college presidents it was not fitting that they should attempt to do that as individuals but it would be wiser that citizens in the various states should appear as plaintiffs and question the allocation of federal funds in these states.

Funds distributed by the United States Office of Education for resident education of land-grant colleges are equitably divided between the white and colored colleges, Mr. Nabrit said, but pressure should be brought upon the Federal Security Administrator and his staff to get them indoctrinated with the idea that they should lend their good will and the influence of their offices in the contacts they have in the various states to prevail upon the states to increase the distribution of these funds to colored colleges to make up for inequitable distributions in the past.

RESEARCH PROGRAM

Regarding the program for research in the colored land-grant colleges, where the situation is "deplorable," Mr. Nabrit suggested that the proper remedy is "an avalanche of applications to the white land-grant institutions on the ground that the Negro land-grant institutions are not in position to offer the instruction in research either at the resident level or in the experiment stations which the states are offering to white [illegible] told the twenty college heads from seventeen states that they should seek an end to oral contracts for being allotted a proportionate share of the funds.

Immediately upon rejection of these applications, he said, suits should be instituted-one at the state level to force admission into the white institutions because of a denial of equal protection of the laws, and, enjoin the Secretary of Agriculture from making allocations in those states in which the

Mr. Marshall said he had attended the New York Herald Tribune annual forum, and all of the speakers at that forum, except one, condemned racial segregation. South.

The oral contracts, relics of Reconstruction days when most colored people were illiterate, fail to provide for compensation for improving the land, he said, contributing heavily to the disappearance of the South's farm resources.

One of those who did not speak two, condemning segregation, said Mr. Marshall was James B. Conant, president of Harvard.

MARSHALL SPEAKS

Thurgood Marshall special counsel for NAACP said the fight to abolish segregation in institutions of higher learning must be continued in an address last Wednesday.

14e(2) 1948 (Southern Governors Conference

White Leaders Work Overtime After Recent Court Decision

The Advertiser Montgomery, Ala.
Fri. 2-6-48

By BEM PRICE

ATLANTA, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The U. S. Supreme Court decision in an Oklahoma case that Negroes are entitled to the same educational opportunities as white students has white leaders in the South working overtime.

They are trying to find a solution to equal racial education without disturbing the segregation pattern fixed by state constitutions and laws.

The Court did not dispute Oklahoma's right to segregate the races. It said simply that if a course is available to white students, it should be available to Negro students at the same time.

To provide such educational facilities for all, the southern states would have to spend millions of dollars they do not have, or eliminate segregation.

In the latter event they would run head on into the fact that most state constitutions forbid mingling of the races in schools.

So far only the southern governor's conference has come forward with a proposed solution.

At last October's conference of the 15 member governors in Asheville, N. C., Gov. Jim McCord of Tennessee suggested that the southern states pool funds and purchase a school to provide graduate education for Negroes in the entire region.

The suggestion came before the Oklahoma decision but after the Texas case in which the Supreme Court held the state must provide facilities on a graduate level equal to those offered white students. This decision did not include a time element as did the Oklahoma ruling.

Texas is now spending $3,000,000 for the establishment of a state University for Negroes.

Whether the Southern governors' plan to establish a regional school would win court approval was anybody's guess. Ten years ago the U. S. Supreme Court ruled in a Missouri case that the state must furnish within its borders equal educational opportunition for Negroes.

As a first step toward implementing Gov. McCord's suggestion, a five man committee on regional education from the governors' conference held a meeting Jan. 18 at Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tenn.

After a closed meeting with trustees of Meharry, the committee's chairman, Gov. Millard T. Caldwell of Florida, said the $8,000,000 institute had been offered for sale to the southern states.

The Advertiser

Said Gov. Caldwell: "It is apparent that no single southern state is able financially to supply the best education at facilities for all its citizens. In specialized fields there are not enough students to justify establishment of separate schools in each state.

"Purely coincidental to this meeting, the trustees of Meharry College have reached the conclusion that it must close unless the southern states can take over its operation.

"Therefore, they have offered to turn over this institution, including an endowment of $5,000,000 to the several southern states if the states will take over its operation and maintain its present high standards."

Before the southern states can take such a step. Gov. Caldwell said, it might be necessary to ask congressional approval. Action by the various state legislatures also would be required.

Member states of the Southern Governors' Conference are Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas, Maryland, Kentucky, West Virginia and Oklahoma.

6 Dixie Governors Seek Negro College Solution

The Constitution Atlanta, Ga. Sun. 1-18-48

By JACK TARVER
Constitution Associate Editor

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 17—Governors of six Southern States gathered here Saturday night to investigate the possibility of taking over Meharry College as a solution to their problem of providing professional training for Negroes.

The Governors — Thompson, of Georgia; Caldwell, of Florida; Lane, of Maryland; Tuck, of Virginia; Laney, of Arkansas, and McCord, of Tennessee — comprise the Committee on Regional Education of the Southern Governors' Conference, named to look into the feasibility of setting up jointly-financed professional schools to train students "in subjects which attract too few enrollees to make it economically practical for each State to provide separate facilities."

The matter of providing such regional schools was originally undertaken with both races in mind, but last week's Supreme Court decision that Oklahoma must admit a Negro to its law school or set up equal facilities for him emphasizes the need for immediate action in the Negro field.

Meharry College is one of the largest Negro institutions in the Nation. It has accredited schools of medicine, dentistry, pharmacy and nursing. While its plant is modern and its faculty capable, its endowment is not large and there is reason to believe its trustees would be willing to have it taken over by a financially responsible agency such as the Southern Governors' Conference.

The States, on the other hand, jointly have been appropriating several hundred thousand dollars annually to provide graduate training in private schools to qualified Negro students who make application.

The Constitution

Georgia, for instance, appropriated $35,000 for the purpose this tion the amount will have to be increased considerably in the net few years as more and more Negro students, many aided by the GI Bill of Rights, complete their college work and make application for graduate studies.

Georgia's Acting Gov. Thompson, a member of the Committee which will make recommendations on the subject, is on record as favoring a regional school, jointly-operated by the various Southern States, to provide professional training for Negroes. So, although not as positively, is Herman Talmadge. It was during one of the administrations of the latter's father, incidentally, that Georgia began setting aside money to send Negro professional students to private colleges.

Atlanta, Ga. Sun. 1-18-48

The Only Practical Solution

The Constitution

There is no over-estimating the importance of the conference of Southern Governors which is to be held today in Nashville.

Atlanta, Ga.

The Supreme Court has ruled, in effect, that where separate facilities of equal caliber are not provided, any qualified Negro who applies must be enrolled in the State's professional colleges.

That means a Negro student who has completed the prerequisite training could apply tomorrow to Georgia Tech or the University Medical School at Augusta or Law School in Athens and, by order of the highest court in the land, be admitted.

Sun. 1-18-48

Georgia has circumvented this problem in recent years by providing money for qualified Negro professional students to get their higher education elsewhere, the State paying the difference between the cost at private Negro universities and what tuition would have been had the student been able to attend the State University System.

This is currently costing the State of Georgia approximately $35,000 annually and indications are that, even if such a solution were legal, the appropriation for this would have to be doubled or trebled in the next few years. Other Southern States are spending as much or more with the same outlook for the future.

Because, from the economic standpoint, it is not presently possible or practical for each State to set up and operate graduate schools for Negroes in the fields of medicine, dentistry, law and other professional studies, the Southern Governors are looking into the feasibility of undertaking jointly to meet their obligation to their Negro citizens.

There are those, of course, who question the legality of the proposed solution, which a strict interpretation of the

But it seems a plausible one and is undecision would entail. Indeed, the

For the Benefit of All—Black and White

The Constitution Atlanta, Ga.

Too many people are thinking of the for the good its traditional new regional educational agreement between the Southern states as a temporary cially unable, expedient aimed at circumventing recent aid, to estab-federal court decisions relating to Negro o universities students.

Atlanta, Ga.

n of the latest The truth of the matter is that leading ed, they would have but a handful each of students if we could.

Sun. 1-18-48

A regional professional school, jointly operated and financed, seems the only practical answer.

Court ruling a Negro to its qual facilities

Atlanta, Ga.

without millions in Federal aid, educators for years have recognized that no Southern state was providing, or was financially able to provide, technical and specialized education in the graduate fields on a par with the best in other sections. Sun. 2-15-48

The Southern Governors Conference long has nurtured the idea that, by prorating the cost, the South could afford at least one Grade-A school in fields where it is impractical for each individual state to maintain its own schools.

"What we are discussing is EDUCATION, period. Not Negro education or white education," said Florida's Governor Caldwell at last week's Tallahassee conference on the subject. "The South often has been accused of wasting its material resources, but it is just as guilty of wasting human resources when its most progressive youth has to go North to obtain adequate training in many technical branches . .. and remains in the North to the South's loss. The phrase 'elementary college education' expresses what we have been doing in the South." Sun. 2-15-48

Governors Would Scuttle Education To Save Jim-Crow

The Worker
New York, N.Y. Sun. 2-15-48

By Martin Craig, Jr.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—Governors of nine Southern states this week indicated their intention of crippling higher educational facilities for all students below the Mason and Dixon Line rather than altar the system of educational Jim-crow. Taking advantage of a loophole in the recent U. S. Supreme Court ruling in the Sipuel Case, the Governors signed a compact to build a regional education system, purportedly to consist of equal but separate facilities for whites and for Negroes. Sun

The Supreme Court held that the State of Oklahoma must provide "equal" law school facilities to Mrs. Ada Sipuel Fisher, a Negro law student. after she was barred from the state law school. But the Court evaded the question of segregated facilities. thus following other U.S. Supreme Court precedents which hold that segregation does not necessarily involve discrimination. 2-15-48

According to the governors' agreement, all 15 Southern States would pool their funds and educational equipment to afford separte regional school facilities for whites and Negroes. This means, in effect, an end to the state universities, and will consequently — if realized— penalize the majority of white university students as well as Negroes.

NEGRO OBSERVERS here, however, scoffed at the governors' talk of providing "equal" facilities. One leading Negro educator who preferred to remain anonymous said the evasion of providing equal facilities for Negroes in anything was a persistent practice throughout the South, and that it was fallacious to argue that segregation does not mean discrimination.

"Only the most cynical sophists can look at the facts of American life and put forward such an argument," this educator said. "Segregation, as it works out here, renders discriminatory treatment easier. Every schoolboy knows it is easier to discriminate against people inside a ghetto than if they are integrated throughout the entire community." 2-15-48

★

THE GOVERNORS agreed to set up a Board of Control for Southern Regional Education. This Board would administer "the establishment, acquisition, operation and maintenance of such educational institutions as may be authorized by the states." It will hold title to any property acquired under the compact, and will be financed through public funds allocated in the proportion each state's population has to the combined population of the participating states. 2-15-48

The agreement is to become effective upon ratification by six state legislatures. It was signed by the Governors of Alabama, Georgia Florida, Arkansas, Maryland, Mississippi, Tennessee, Texas and South Carolina. Signatures are still to come from the Governors of Kentucky, Louisiana, North Carolina Oklahoma, Virginia and West Virginia, all of whom were absent from the conference held south of here at the resort town of Wakulla Springs. The Worker

This action came as the Governors denounced the vote-catching civil rights' appeal of President Truman, the political trickery of which they gave indication of understanding, however, by spiking all talk of "bolting the Democratic Party." New York, N.Y.

The governors elected a five-man committee to study ways of "protesting" Democratic Party leadership, and the committee is to choose a place for another governors' conference within the next 40 days.

Regional College Plan To Benefit All Groups

News 3-13-48 Sat.

WASHINGTON, March 13—(AP)—Southerners said Friday the question of racial discrimination is in no way involved in their plan to set up regional universities and professional schools. Birmingham, Ala.

They told a Senate judiciary subcommittee their plan has been under discussion for years—long before the present controversy over civil rights legislation. Ala

Gov. Caldwell, of Florida, a spokesman for the Southern group, testified it is "unfortunate" that the plan came before Congress at this time and that "political and racial questions" have been injected into it.

Before the subcommittee is a resolution by a group of Southern senators to give congressional approval to a compact entered into by 15 Southern states for establishment and operation of regional schools of higher education. News-4

Caldwell said the only purpose of the compact "is to further education in the South. . . . It is idle to contend there is anything in it that conflicts with the constitution or that attempts to circumvent any decision of the Supreme Court.'

* * *

ASKED By Sen. McGrath (D., R. I.) if such a plan "would obligate you to provide equal facilities for whites and Negroes," Caldwell said: 3-13-48-Sat.

"That is a legal question, of course, but it is our aim and purpose to furnish the finest in education for Southern youth—whites and Negroes alike."

Sen. Wiley (R., Wis.) interposed that he had received a "flood of communications indicating this compact is to circumvent the rights of Negroes."

"It is clear that is not so," he said. "It seems to me this is a forward looking step we should welcome."

At the outset of the hearing Sen. Cooper (R., Ky.) withdrew his name as a sponsor of the resolution. He said he desired to make a further study of "legal phases" before expressing his stand.

Rep. Priest (D., Tenn.) read a statement from Gov. McCord, of Tennessee, who said Southern states individually cannot afford technical schools and "it is more sensible for us to establish regional schools."

Priest and McCord both mentioned that Meharry Medical Institute at Nashville, a medical, dental and nursing school for Negroes is due to close in June.

Under the compact, Priest said Southern states plan to take over and operate this school for Negroes of the South. Birmingham,

* * *

SEN. McKELLAR (D., Tenn.) urged approval for the compact. He said Southern states now are "badly handicapped" in operation of professional schools. Ala.

* * *

SEN. SPARKMAN (D., Ala.) said the plan offers Southern youth, "white and colored alike," opportunity to make big strides educationally.

Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) said the plan was suggested by the late President Roosevelt in 1934 as one which would permit the South to do more for education.

Sen. Maybank (D., S. C.) said Southern states had joined similarly in developing the Southern pine industry. News

Rep. Peterson (D., Fla.) told the committee that "no one had any idea of using the compact to discriminate against the Negro."

Caldwell said he wasn't certain congressional approval was even necessary but that it was being asked "in the interest of orderly procedure."

14e(2) 1948 (Southern Governors Conference)

Regional Colleges Idea Nearer Use

The News Birmingham, Ala.

BY MALCOLM B. JOHNSON

GAINESVILLE, Fla., March 5—(AP)—The South's educators pushed their regional college plan a little father toward actual operation today.

The council set up a 14-state compact to do the spade work, named an executive committee headed by Gov. Millard Caldwell, of Florida, and made plans to ask two national foundations to finance a study to recommend a detailed program.

Gov. Caldwell said he thought it might take as much as $100,000 to make the survey. The Carnegie Corporation and the General Education Board will be asked to put up the money.

Until they act on the application, the states will start the ball rolling with contributions from their contingent funds.

* * *

KEY FIGURES in both the Carnegie Foundation and the General Education Board yesterday endorsed the Southern plan to pool state resources for setting up in highly specialized fields top-ranking colleges which no state alone could afford.

The endorsements came from Owen D. Young, New York industrialist and member of the General Education Board, and Oliver C. Carmichael, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

Both said the Southern plan also would answer Northern needs for specialized training.

The regional education scheme has been talked about for years. It received general approval from scores of leading educators of the South and other sections at a conference here yesterday in connection with ceremonies inaugurating Dr. J. Hillis Miller as president of the University of Florida.

The News

THE PLAN CONTEMPLATES both white and Negro regional schools. Negro education received official recognition when the council invited presidents of three Negro colleges to sit with them in the planning session.

The board recommended that the governor of each state name an outstanding Negro educator to join future discussions.

The operating council issued a statement of policy which said "a program of cooperating education may not cost less than the states now are spending, but would cost less than if each state were left to develop an adequate program of its own. "Also, the proposed program would provide a higher quality of education than any state could develop on its own resources."

Carnegie Foundation Head Okehs Regional College Plan

The News Birmingham Ala.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., March 4—(AP)—The Southern states' regional college scheme, divorced from politics by absence of governors from the planning table, won approval of the Carnegie Foundation's president today.

Dr. Oliver C. Carmichael, president of the Foundation, said the only hope of providing adequate training facilities in certain highly special fields "is some kind of cooperative undertaking on the part of the several states."

The New Yorker made the statement to some of the nation's leading educators attending a conference on regional education and the inauguration of Dr. J. Hillis Miller as president of the University of Florida.

Millard Caldwell, of Florida, was the only governor present at the session called by governors to plan detailed operation of their Wakulla Springs compact to pool educational resources.

* * *

ANNOUNCING the other Southern governors would be absent, Gov. Caldwell said "in view of the state of national politics, this is in harmony with the necessity to avoid any implication that regional education may be linked with either racial or political questions."

Largely because the plan came into the limelight about the same time, it has been confused with issues arising from President Truman's anti-discrimination program and the U. S. Supreme Court decision that the University of Oklahoma law school must admit a Negro.

The News

Dr. Carmichael said several state and private institutions in the South already are cooperating in efforts to avoid duplications of their programs.

* * *

THE GOVERNORS' plan would go farther. It calls for actual joint financing of regional colleges, with contributions in proportion to state populations.

The schools, both white and Negro institutions, would be owned and operated by an interstate board of control.

Dr. Carmichael said the regional education plan would be applicable to schools for social study, veterinary medicine and natural sciences. All those, and several more, are on the list for first consideration in the South.

Thurs.

He said "exceptional resources already exist in the South for the development of an outstanding center for research and training in the physical sciences in the Oak Ridge atomic energy plant near Knoxville, Tenn."

Backs Temporary Regional Plan

Defender Chicago, Ill. Sat. 1-31-48

By LOUISE STEPHENS

The recent Nashville meeting of southern governors to discuss regional schools for higher education of Negroes serves to show that pressures too strong for Jim Crow are abroad in the land. Especially concerned, of course, are the 17 states and District of Columbia where school segregation is maintained by law.

Currently the most widely known of such pressure is the Supreme Court decision that Oklahoma must immediately furnish a law school for Ada Sipuel which shall be equal to that furnished whites. Of this ruling, in a special wire to the Defender, President Charles H. Wesley of Wilberforce State college says:

WESLEY SPEAKS

Defender

"Supreme Court Oklahoma decision another milestone in the development of educational opportunity. We should now press this issue courageously for actual admission and not be satisfied with any exclusively separate establishments.

In the intervening years since that incident, many white and colored people have increasingly found mutual interests in the professions, in business, and in public service. Frequently these normal contacts include lunching together or meeting at group dinners.

Unlike the "Mammy" referred to above, these people are not awed in the presence of white people. Such casual contacts are "all in the day's work," and leave no more impression than eating with their own people.

Another factor, too little recognized, which has further reduced "awe and excitement" on the part of colored people in normal contacts with whites is business competition. Sales people, nowadays, with front office sanction, are not unduly sensitive about the color line when good and sizeable accounts are in prospect.

And by the same token, colored purchasers consider company attitudes as well as they do quality, price, and service.

The intemperate language used in some of the discussions of civil rights leaves the impression that in addition to its political implications, a very real concern is the effectiveness—more and more apparent—of those customs and devices designed primarily to keep colored people awed and timid, and the increasing difficulties encountered, under world scrutiny, in justifying adopted practices which defeat the principles of democracy so ardently advocated by our country.

TO SOUTHERN GOVERNORS

It is going to be pretty hard to find a better answer, written by a Southerner in answer to Southern governors than the following comment by Albon L. Holsey of Tuskegee Institute.

He writes:

Present discussions of President Truman's Civil Rights program recall a similar furor, which forty years ago followed the occasion when President Theodore Roosevelt invited Booker T. Washington to lunch with him in the White House.

A Southern writer of that period quoted a colored "Mammy" as saying: "Dat colored man ought to be ashamed of heself for eatin' wid white folks."

Following the death of Booker T. Washington, Mr. Roosevelt (then ex-President) was one of the speakers during memorial services held at the Institute. On that occasion he gave the reason for his friendliness to Tuskegee's founder when he said:

I turned to him as I turned to only a limited number of men for advice and help when I was President, because I knew that never would he give me one word of advice with any selfish purpose of benefit to himself. He never gave me any advice save what in the exercise of his best judgment he deemed would be best, not only for the people of his race, but for the people of all races.

NINE SOUTHERN GOVERNORS SCUTTLE PRES. TRUMAN'S 10-POINT PROGRAM

WAKULLA SPRINB, Fla.—The Southern Governors Conference gave the National Democratic Party 40 days in which to reverse its stand on civil rights or face a threat of secession by the traditionally solid South.

With no dissenting vote but with three governors abstaining, the conference adopted a resolution by Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, calling for another meeting of the conference within 40 days specifically for "careful consideration of the problems of the Southern states arising from the civil-rights proposals."

Thurmond called the 10-point civil-rights program advocated by President Truman in a congressional message "an outrage and an insult by Democratic Party leaders who think Southern Democrats have no place to turn."

Gov. Beauford Jester of Texas said all the nine governors attending the meeting here were in accord with the preamble of three separate resolutions offered by the governors — each denouncing the President's stand.

Jester agreed with Thurmond that action on the issue be postponed at this meeting and that a committee should go to National Democratic Chairman J. Howard McGrath with a flat warning of "drastic action" unless the party reversed its stand.

Jester said McGrath should be told in no uncertain terms that the South stood ready to withold funds collected at the party's Jackson Day dinners and possibly to withhold electoral votes from the Democratic presidential candidate.

Thurmond said, "We are shocked by the spectacle of parties bidding for the vote of small minorities by attacking customs of the South."

Gov James E. Folson of Alabama, who earlier had proposed that Southern states send delegates committed to a favorite son from their own state or send delegates without commitments at all, said, "I agree (with Thurmond's ideas). We should fight out our party differences within the party. We should go to the convention with our sleeves rolled up for action."

Folson has offered himself as a favorite-son condidate in Alabama for the presidential nomination.

Later reports indicate the president will issue an order appeasing the threatening secessionists.

Negro Educators Not Invited To South's Council

Jacksonville, Fla. —(G)— Because the Council of Southern Governors "have not yet invited a single Negro to sit in on their deliberations concerning Negro education, it is being doubted that their pretended interest in Negro higher education is genuine. Not only are there no Negro educators who have been invited to take part in the sessions, but, with one exception, no white man serving as state director or supervisor of Negro work has been invited to these meetings.

When any goup says that it is concerned about any matter but refuses to its meetings the vey people most capable of giving information and advice, it is difficult to feel that there is much sincerity or honesty in such a gathering.

Governors Okey Jr. Universities

Score Truman but Stop Dixie Secession Talk

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — The Conference of Southern Governors which met here Saturday and Sunday, approved the establishment of regional universities jointly financed as a means of maintaining racial segregation, but vetoed a proposed revolt against President Truman because of his bold civil rights program for racial minorities.

Eight of them affixed their signatures to a history-making agreement for the co-operative operation of schools of higher learning in the South—an accord prompted by the whip-lash of the U. S. Supreme Court against separate and unequal education for colored students.

Eight States Join Pact

Subject to approval by Congress and the State legislatures, the governors of Florida, Alabama, Maryland, Mississippi, Georgia, Texas. Arkansas and Tennessee agreed to set up regional universities of engineering, medicine, forestry, game conservation, veterinary science and fine arts—for white students also, if necessary.

Reference to segregation is concealed in the document which mentions Meharry Medical College at Nashville specifically as a school to be acquired in the regional universities' system.

Thurs the governors hope to achieve a double triump—Congressional assent to racial segregation in education, and satisfying the Supreme Court's insistence upon equal educational opportunities for colored students, without providing duplicate schools i nall States, and without admitting them to white universities.

Lane Drafts Compromise

Gov. William P. Lane of Maryland effected a compromise by linking an explosive preamble to a mild resolution, expressing Southern dismay at the President's demand for FEPC, antilynching and anti-poll tax legislation while preserving party regularity.

It was freely admitted around the conference table that recent talk about Dixie desertions from the Democratic party was an empty gesture, "that all of us are going to be for the Democratic nominee in November, and all of us know it."

Council Makes Plea

The Southern Regional Council, George S. Mitchell, executive director, se t each governor a telegram Saturday which said in part:

"Surely the statesmanlike thing for the South to do in the civil rights controversy is to declare an honest intention to provide speedily the fundamental civil rights which the nation and the world expect from us."

Governors Balk Over Civil Plea

WAKULLA SPRINGS, Fla. "Damn democracy, if it means the uplift of the Negro," was the keynote of the Southern governors conference which issued the Nathreatening warning on recent attacks on "white supremacy."

Waving a all-out Bourbon revolt in the party's face, the governors agreed to meet in 4 days to "review developments."

The conference rejected an alternative proposal by Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi, which would have called for a meeting of southern Democrats March 1 to consider a bolt from the Democratic party. The resolution failed for lack of second.

It also ignored a resolution by Gov. James Folsom of Alabama who advocated support of "favorite son" candidates pledged to uphold traditions of "white supremacy" in the Democratic national convention.

Form Probe Body

They will meet again within 40 teddays at a time and place desigdays at a time and place designated by its chairman. In the interim, a special committee will give "careful consideration" to problems arising from President Truman's program of civil rights for Negroes.

The committee will recommend "joint and common action" to make the south's displeasure heard in Washington and in the Democratic party.

Governors McCord of Tennessee, Jester of Texas, Caldwell of Florida, and Laney of Arkansas joined Wright, Folsom and Thurmond in castigating Truman's program.

"We have been betrayed by the leadership of the Democratic party If these (laws) are to be imposed upon us, I for one would rather they come from a Republican than from the party for which I have given my allegiance," Laney said.

Against Split

Folsom and McCord urged the southern governors to fight their battles within the Democratic party. They said the south should especially insist on return of the historic two-thirds rule, by which two-thirds majority was required for nomination of party candidates.

Caldwell told the confernece the south had only itself to blame for allowing repeal of the two-thirds rule in 1936, when President Roosevelt was renominated.

MINORITY RULE

The ultimatum given President Truman last week by the Southern Governors said, in effect, "stop attacking white supremacy or we will wreck the Democratic Party." The Governors even appointed a watch-dog-committee which will report in "forty days" on how the President is behaving.

Mr. Truman has been further threatened by a motley group of Dixie demagogues in the Congress. Their outbursts have been so offensive many newspapers refused to publish them.

This mad chorus welling up out of Dixie is calculated to intimidate the President and frighten those national leaders who believe that we must ever work toward a more perfect democracy.

The common chord which all the Southern belligerents strike is that the President has been guilty of knuckling to the racial minorities. This point was graphically made by Congressman Rivers of South Carolina who declared; "It has gotten to the sad sight of 13,000,000 tails wagging 130,000,000 dogs."

As a matter of fact, the Dixie "white supremacists" constitute a vicious minority which has influenced national affairs more than any other comparable group in the history of our country. It has been often said that while the North won the Civil War the South really won the peace.

The truth of this assertion becomes apparent when one examines the gradual [illegible] of the racial practices of Dixie in many of the enlightened states of the North.

The Southern bloc in Congress has not only intimidated various national administrations, it has killed off liberal legislation which has been proposed in the national interest year after year.

The ten Southernmost states, Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Florida, Georgia and the Carolinas, which represent the die-hard "white supremacy" section of the nation. have a white population only slightly in excess of 20 million. Further not all the whites in this section subscribe to the doctrine of "white supremacy".

When one examines the nation-wide influence of the Southern bigots it begins to appear that the tail that is wagging the dog is a possum's tail deep in the heart of Dixie.

We believe that the great majority of the American people agree with President Truman the time has come to clip the possum's tail.

14e(2) 1948 Southern Governors Conference

As We See It

mon. 2-9-48

Why There's Heat Under Southern Governors' Collars

Daily Worker
14e
new york, n. y.

By Abner W. Berry

THERE are tens of thousands of good rea wrought up over President Truman 10-point sons why 11 southern governors are so civil rights program.

But let me hasten to add that few of these reasons are to be found in Washington—and not one of them in the White House. In my opinion they are to be found in the thousands of white students and in the 90,000 Negro students who are fighting Jimcrow education.

The heat under the collars of the southern governors, most of whom owe their offices to Jimcrow practices and polltaxes is generated by their disgruntled constituents.

Thousands of white southern students have had a chance to voice their opinions of Jimcrow education and each time they have opposed it. Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Maryland, North Carolina and Texas student bodies have expressed themselves on the issue. And I am sure that there is no doubt as to the position of the 90,000 Negro students.

Well, about 100,000 articulate opponents to Jimcrow adds up to an "equal rights" spectre haunting the Bourbon empire.

This opposition is beyond the talking stage.

mon. 2-9-48

OKLAHOMA UNIVERSITY students proved that a week ago. The two demonstrations—one against, and one for, segregation—was enough to send a chill down the spine of a reactionary southern governor. Both demonstrations were inadequately reported by the wire services. From an on-the-spot source I learned the following:

More than 700 students stood in three inches of snow for more than half an hour to applaud Howard Friedman, a student from Oklahoma City, when he denounced Jimcrow as "an extension of the Hitler myth of racial superiority."

Defending Mrs. Ada Lois Sipuel Fisher's right to attend Oklahoma University, the student spokesman declared: "The University is not a place to spend four years in absentia. It is for the development of minds, not the preservation of color lines."

The spontaneous demonstration ended with the cremation of the 14th Amendment and mailing the ashes to President Truman. All that happened during class time Thursday, Jan. 29.

The next day a pro-Jimcrow rally was called. More students turned out than on the previous day. As the speakers at the rally began to crack anti-Negro jokes to bolster their position in favor of Jimcrow they drew "Heils!" from the audience.

mon. 2-9-48

PAUL HAGGARD, an Oklahoma City businessman, tried to rescue the chauvinistic speakers by trying to "give you students a little information on racial mongrelization." Equal rights, Haggard said was "the first step on the road to communism."

A student popped up and shouted, in answer to Haggard's red baiting: "I don't care who's behind this movement. I'm not a Communist, but if they're against segregation, I'm with them!" 2-9-48

What settled it for the pro-Jimcrow group was an answer to one student's shouted question: "What about the Bill of Rights?" A pro-Jimcrow clacque in the audience shouted back: "To hell with it!" Haggard had to give up. The pro-Jimcrow meeting had been turned into a rally against segregation.

That happned on the campus of Oklahoma University, known traditionally as "the country club of the Southwest." In this stronghold of sports and social life has come social struggle around one issue—Jimcrow. This is what the southern politicians are faced with. It's a revolt on the campuses of their own states which has then frightened.

Daily world

TRUMAN IS WOOING this progressive current in the South with his paper proposals for civil rights legislation. The southern politicians will try to hold onto their special privileges even if they have to abolish all graduate schools in their states. That is the idea already put forward by Gov. Jim McCord of Tennessee.

mon. 2-9-48

As to where President Truman stands in the struggle of the students to maintain and extend their educational standards against the Jimcrow dangers is self-evident. So far he has not answered the attacks of the governors. The Attorney General has not even growled an ugly word at them for their attempts to subvert the 14th Amendment to the Constitution.

The students are wise enough to understand that Jimcrow is strangling them. They are not too dumb to learn that the old politicians' words cannot stop the process.

These 100,000 students now active in the fight for non-segregated, free education are likely to be a thorn in the sides of both the southern Bourbons and the Truman Democrats who cynically are shadow boxing with Jimcrow.

Southern States Discuss Merging College Efforts

The News
Birmingham, Ala

Governors Blast At Truman's Policies Sent To Committee

Mon 2-9-48

WAKULLA SPRINGS, Fla., Feb. 9—(AP)—Southern governors pushed aside politics long enough yesterday to set up an interstate college plan which they hailed as the most important development of the past century in higher education.

They signed a nine-state compact calling for the joint financing and operation of Southwide colleges to offer top rate training in specialized and professional fields which no one state could afford on its own.

Their widely publicized revolt against President Truman's civic rights proposals was left in the hands of a committee where some thought it might cool off a little before they meet again on call within 40 days.

The regional education plan, calling for both white and Negro schools, won't become effective, however, until it is ratified by at least six state Legislatures and is approved by the federal Congress.

While this legislative action is awaited, a regional council will make a detailed survey of Southern education facilities and needs. The council will hold its first meeting at Gainesville, Fla., March 4.

* * *

AT THAT TIME, the council will also go further into the offer of Meharry Medical College trustees to turn over their institution at Nashville, Tenn., for the cooperative schooling of Negro doctors, dentists, nurses and pharmacists.

The compact signed by the nine governors provides for the participating states to contribute tax monies in proportion to their populations to a common pool for the regional schools.

The Tennessean

Two or more states within the whole region could agree between themselves to operate joint colleges. The whole scheme could not be abandoned without unanimous consent of the participating states, but a state could withdraw on two years' notice.

Birmingham, Ala.

* * *

THE PACT WAS SIGNED by the governors of Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Texas, Florida, Mississippi, Maryland, Tennessee and South Carolina. The governors of Louisiana, Kentucky, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Virginia and West Virginia were not present.

Mon 2-9-48

The governors' conference was called solely to discuss regional education, but it turned its attention Saturday to the president's request for laws against racial discrimination in employment and for anti-lynching, anti-poll tax, and anti-segregation legislation.

The governors capped their resentment of Mr. Truman's proposal by adopting a resolution asking for a committee to study just what the South can do about the proposed civil rights program.

Chairman William Preston Lane, Jr., of Maryland, named Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, of South Carolina, author of the resolution, to head the committee. Other members are Govs. Beauford Jester, of Texas; Ben T. Laney, of Arkansas; Gregg Cherry, of North Carolina, and William Tuck, of Virginia.

The Times

Tuck and Cherry were not at the conference. Thurmond said he would get in touch with them by telephone and see how they felt.

LANE SAID GOV. WRIGHT of Mississippi declined to serve on the committee "because of the situation he might have in his own state."

Birmingham, Ala

Lane did not amplify the statement, but Wright said a mass meeting in Jackson next Thursday to discuss means of some action against the national Democratic leadership will be held as planned.

He also said he had not entirely given up his idea for a general meeting of Southerners to organize resistance to the Truman program. His resolution calling for such meeting on March 1 found no support among the governors.

2-9-48

REGIONAL COLLEGES CHARTED FOR SOUTH

The Times
New York, N. Y.
Mon 2-9-48

Nine Governors Agree on Plan to Give Higher Education to Whites and Negroes

14e(2)

By JOHN N. POPHAM

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAKULLA SPRINGS, Fla., Feb. 8—An unprecedented step in the educational annals of the country was taken today when the Governors of nine Southern states affixed their signatures to a compact that would establish a geographical district with cooperatively owned and operated regional schools to provide higher education for whites and Negroes.

The compact was drafted at a two-day extraordinary closed session of the Southern Governors' conference. Copies of the compact will be forwarded for signing to six other Southern Governors who are members of the conference but were unable to attend the special session.

The Times

The Governors' signatures, however, represented approval with reservation, since the compact provides that it shall not take effect or be binding upon any state until it has been approved by the Legislatures of at least six of the states whose Governors have subscribed to it within eighteen months from today.

New York, N. Y.

Also, it was learned, the compact will be presented to the Congress of the United States for approval, although experts in Constitutional law were reported to have informed the drafters of the compact that they did not regard such approval as "necessary" but

An Answer to High Court

The compact asserts that it is aimed at improving the educational facilities of all people in the South, but proposed implementation steps indicate that for many it also constitutes the South's answer to recent successive Federal Court decisions affecting the controversial problems of providing equal but segregated schooling for Negroes.

The fact that two weeks ago the trustees of Meharry Medical College for Negroes at Nashville, Tenn., informally offered the similar ruling affecting a Negro applicant for law school in Oklahoma. The situation also developed in Texas. Last Oct. 21, at the Southern Governors' conference in Asheville, Gov. Jim Nance McCord of Tennessee proposed the establishment of regional schools to provide professional, technical and graduate training for white and Negro students in the South.

The Times

The extraordinary session of the Southern Governors Conference was called solely to hear the report of the educational committee

Meharry College Sought

At that time a committee under and take action on a situation which the Governors have already described as "acute."

Although there have been suggestions for regional schools in the South for the past ten or twelve years, the general feeling is that the "pressure" of the recent Supreme Court decisions made it imperative to Southern executives and legislators to seek some solution in line with the South's traditional Jim Crow policies.

From the first proposal, however, the southern Governors have maintained that the need for regional schools affects both whites and Negroes, thus involving the welfare of the region, and that also the southern states are unable financially to provide many forms of higher education facilities within their own borders.

It was learned that the Governors hope to bring about the establishment of five regional institutions, possibly with a medical and dental school for white students in the South, similar to the proposed use of Meharry College for Negroes in the medical and nursing fields. Wash. 2-9-48

Interim Group Set Up

An interim committee to be known as the Regional Council, consisting of the Governor and two designers from each state signing the compact, will survey the higher educational problems in the southern states and will hold its first aeronautics, ceramics, mining, petroleum, textiles, dentistry, nursing, medicine, public health and optometry. Wash. 2-9-48

Under the terms of the compact the states will enter into a broad educational area with a pooling of funds on a scale without precedent in this country. No one ventured to predict the cost of the regional schools to the participating states. When the legislatures of six states have approved the compact it will become binding on the six states within sixty days. Other states can join upon conditions to be agreed upon at the time they apply. 2-25-48

Then the member states will set up a board of control for Southern regional education, similar in membership to the interim committee at this time, which will be the key organization in the regional compact.

Regional College Progress

The plan for the establishment of cooperatively financed colleges for the whole Southern region, drawn up into compact form at the recent conference of Southern governors in Florida, is being carried another step. The compact requires congressional approval. Rep. Sam Hobbs, of Alabama, has introduced a House bill authorizing the states to pool their money for the project. Sen. Holland, of Florida, is reported to be preparing to offer a similar bill in the Senate. Birmingham, Ala.

It is good that congressional action on the plan is now under way. It is to be hoped that these bills will not get bogged down in the mass of legislation up for congressional consideration. Southern representatives and senators should keep alert to assure swift passage of the legislation. ala.

There is another legislative hurdle that must be passed before the plan can be got under way. The Legislatures of at least six of the states concerned must approve the compact before it can take effect. Speedy action at this level is another pressing requirement. Ga. 2-26-48

Southern Governors Submit Plan For 15-State College Authority

The Times

Program Would Establish Board to Operate Schools for Both Negroes and Whites—Congress Asked to Act Soon

New York N.Y.

Wed. 2-25-48

By BESS FURMAN

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, Feb 24—Southern Governors today presented their proposed fifteen-state compact for regional schools of higher education to the Senators and Representatives of their states. Accompanying the program was a request for immediate Congressional sanction.

Modeled along the lines of the New York-New Jersey Port Authority compact, the Governors' interstate agreement would establish a board of control for Southern regional education. This organization would be authorized to establish, acquire and operate graduate, technical and professional schools for both white and Negro advanced students in states within the compact.

Gov. Millard F. Caldwell of Florida, who presided at the meeting of the Governors, legislators and educators here, called the compact "the most significant step forward in education in a century."

Joint Sponsorship Urged

The Times

Legislators crowded around Florida's Governor when the session ended, indicating their wishes to comply with his request that when the enabling measure is introduced in Congress it be sponsored by the Senators and Representatives of all fifteen participating states.

On the grounds that one of this country's two Negro medical schools will be forced to the wall unless it is quickly supported on a regional basis, Governor Caldwell urged the utmost speed, both in endorsement of the compact by Congress and in ratification by the state Legislatures. He said that if Congress acts rapidly six state Legislatures can vote on the compact this year. New York N.Y.

However, the Florida Governor emphatically stated that the compact was of far more importance to the education of whites than of Negroes. He also insisted that the recent civil rights issue is "a complete aside" to the question of the compact, which has been under discussion for more than ten years.

Not a Civil Rights Issue

Wash. 2-25-48

Questioned as to how the United States Supreme Court decision in the Oklahoma law school case of Mrs. Ada Sipuel Fisher might apply to the proposed regional colleges, Governor Caldwell said:

"That problem is an incident here. The thing that is important to the South is education."

He said it is now accepted that the Southern states, individually, cannot support great schools and that too many of their most promising youth have had to go North to get advanced education and have remained there.

Other speakers noted that the Oklahoma Negro mandate hinged on the law school there being the only one supported by the state. It was pointed out that the proposed regional schools for both Negroes and whites would be supported by all states in the compact. Governor Caldwell said that a test case could be brought just as soon as the Mehary Medical College at Nashville, Tenn., with its $4,500,000 endowment and $5,000,000 of buildings is taken over by the regional control board.

Fiscal Straits at Meharry

The Times

The case for the Meharry Medical College was presented by Governor Jim Nance McCord of Tennessee and hisl egal adviser, Cecil Simms. They said that, due to an operating deficit for the last five years, which had increased from $112,000 to $350,000 annually, this Class A institution, which has half the facilities for educating Negroes in medicine and dentistry, will cease to function. Every state in the South has students there, and 65 per cent of its enrollment comes from the South. Meharry wil be carried one more year by cutting into the endowment principal, pending action on the compact, the Tennesseans said.

Mr. Simms added that Negro students fared better both at Meharry and at Howard than they would "under civil rights" in that white applicants at both institutions would have crowded the Negroes out this year on a "competition, personal basis" had it not been that the Negroes had a preferred status. New York N.Y.

Only an occasional Negro applicant, he said, "prefers his so-called civil rights to Howard and Meharry, where he can belong to clubs and fraternities and go back to reunions." But if Meharry closes, Mr. Simms added, Negro students, half-way through, would be "going back to their states and demanding open doors." Wed. 2-25-48

Mr. Caldwell said the governors had never discussed Federal aid to the proopsed regional colleges, and he was against it.

The governors of five states were present: Texas, Tennessee, South Carolina, North Carolina and Florida.

Governors of these nine states signed the compact on Feb. 1: Maryland, South Carolina, Arkansas, Texas, Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, Tennessee and Florida. Two have signed since: North Carolina and Virginia. Two more, West Virginia and Kentucky, were expected to sign later today.

Louisiana and Oklahoma will sign very soon, it is understood.

FLORIDA STUDENTS REBEL AGAINST DIXIE GOVERNORS

Daily World - Atlanta, Ga.

By JAMES B. LaFOURCHE

MIAMI—(ANP)— In riotous protest over the March 4 meeting of the Southern Governors Regional council at Gainesville, Fla., a group of 35 white students of the University of Florida have labeled the caucus "undemocratic" in that its sponsors "advocate an unjust and inequitable system of education in the south."

Feb. 3-9-48

The students were motivated in their action primarily as a result of the Wakulla Springs meeting two weeks ago at which time nine southern governors met and severly criticized President Truman for his request of a civil rights program. These executive meeting at Wakulla Springs and operation of regional education such as no one southern state could presently afford for Negroes.

The student resolution in part protesting the governors meet reads:

"This meeting can only further hatred and prejudice, and our university will inevitably be stigmatized by the meeting of this group." Feb. 3-9-48

Student leaders attempted to forestall the adoption of the resolution by the protest group, but to no avail. The University of Florida student body numbers more than 8,500.

Gov. Millard F. Caldwell, who had just returned to Florida from Washington, is confident that the rebel students will lend their support to the regional movement

"I am in favor of doing everything possible to make Truman rescind the civil rights 'bill.' Wallace has already split the party in the south and I do not feel that the southerners should secede but that they should make Truman rescind the parts of the bill that are objectionable. Some one may arise on whom the south could unite and swing the election.

"We would be helplessly lost if we did secede. We can't go to Wallace or to the Republicans."

Said Edgar J. Wall, Jacksonville postmaster:

"We have always known how to treat the Negroes in the south once they know the facts. Said Gov. Caldwell:

DEFENDS OTHERS

"The regional education plan provides for both white and Negro schols on an interstate basis."

Ramsey, state committeewoman, to handle this problem down here ner March 30 elicited the following remarks from Mrs. J. Reid and they have always known how to treat us. We have been able ways will be."

A circuit court judge, M. W.

14e(2) 1942

Southern Governors Conference

MEDICAL COLLEGE OFFERED TO SOUTH

New York Times, N.Y.

$8,000,000 Meharry Center Urged on Governors' Group as Regional Negro Unit

Mar. 1-19-48

By JOHN N. POPHAM

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 18—The first step in a Southern plan to solve the controversial problem of providing higher education and preserving racial segregation policies was taken today when the $8,000,000 Meharry Medical College was offered informally to the Southern states for joint operation as a regional medical school for Negroes.

The Southern Governors Conference Committee on Regional Education, meeting in closed session here, announced the Meharry development one week after the United States Supreme Court commanded Oklahoma to provide virtually immediate legal education for a Negro woman under the constitutional guarantee of equal protection for all citizens.

The committee announced that its members were in "complete agreement on the board picture of the necessity for regional schools in the South to provide certain forms of advanced and professional training for all citizens, regardless of race or economic standing."

It was also reported that the conference would meet within six weeks at a site as yet unchosen to enable the Governors and their educational advisers to study the Meharry offer further and to initiate the necessary steps for "setting up the overall framework for establishing regional schools for all citizens of the South." 1-14-48

Evading of Courts Disavowed

The committee members emphasized at a press conference that they considered the Meharry development "a mere incident in the broader picture of providing regional schools for all citizens" and said the general plan "is not a defensive move to circumvent any court decisions but actually an offensive move to obtain the best possible education facilities for white and Negro students." Mem.

The members stressed further that the subject of regional schools had been discussed by Southern Governors for almost ten years and that the first formal resolution calling for positive action had been introduced at the Southern Governors Conference in Asheville, N. C., last October by Gov. Jim Nance McCord of Tennessee. 1-14-48

Governor McCord's resolution, which was approved by the conference, called upon Congress to authorize the Southern states to enter into a compact permitting establishment of the regional schools. It was pointed out that similar compacts concern irrigation problems in the West and the Port of New York Authority.

In presenting his resolution Governor McCord informed the conference that he had reason to believe that Meharry Medical College in Nashville, the only exclusively Negro medical school in the country, could be obtained for regional training purposes.

Financial Limitations Cited

The Times

Gov. Millard F. Caldwell of Florida, chairman, in describing the results of the committee's session today, said that the group recognized that "the problems of regional education and the economy of the whole section moved hand-in-hand with the degree of education the citizens enjoy."

"It is apparent," Governor Caldwell said, "that no single state in the South is financially able to support the best in education for its own citizens and it is obvious that in many fields there would not be a sufficient number of students to warrant establishing certain forms of education.

"It is equally apparent that by working cooperatively the Southern States can establish and maintain the best in education for all people without reference to race or economic condition." New York N.Y.

Governor Caldwell said that Meharry was faced with a financial crisis. As a privately endowed school it is receiving about one-third of the net income it formerly received and that amount is purchasing only one-half of what it formerly did, he said, although the school has not lowered its standards and is a Class A medical college.

Trustees Ready to Act

"If the regional school plan works," he said, "the trustees, we know, will turn the school over to the Southern States if there is some assurance that the Southern States will maintain it and operate it according to present standards."

The Governor said that if Meharry closed its doors the medical education of Negroes in the South would be "severely penalized." Mem. 1-19-48

Other members of the committee present were Govs. McCord, William Preston Lane of Maryland, chairman of the Southern Governors Conference; William M. Tuck of Virginia and Melvin E. Thompson of Georgia. New York, N.Y.

Also attending were J. Hillis Miller, president of the University of Florida; Raymond R. Paty, chancellor of the university system of Georgia; Doak S. Campbell, president of Florida State University; Cecil Sims, adviser to Governor McCord, and Dr. Hugh Morgan, member of the executive committee of the board of trustees of Meharry Medical College.

The committee and its associates lunched at Meharry College and made a tour of the buildings and grounds. The Times

As We Thurs. See It

What the Southern Governors Really Want

Daily Worker 2-12-48

New York, N.Y.

By Abner W. Berry

THE COMMERCIAL PRESS completely played down the dangerous conclusions reached by the conference of Soluthern Governors last week-end in Tallahassee, Fla. Uniformly the papers told readers that the governors (1) sought to improve Negro education and (2) refused to consider bolting the Democratic Party. New York N.Y.

What the readers weren't told, however, is that the governors actually planned to cut the already inadequate education for both Negroes and whites. Thurs.

Jim Nance McCord, Governor of Tennessee, a state where movies featuring Lena Horne have been banned, is the father of the idea. McCord's proposal, adopted at the meeting last week, was made some time ago. 2-12-48

•

THE PROPOSAL is simply this:

• Abolish all graduate schools in each of the 11 participating states. Then no Negro could apply as there would be no schools provided for whites either.

• Two regional schools would then be provided—one for Negroes and one for whites, with each state assuming a portion of the financial burden.

That is how the irate, white-supremacist governors plan to meet the "separate but equal" mandate of the U. S. Supreme Court. The plan now goes before the legislatures of the 11 states and if six of them ratify the agreement the Jimcrow-saving plan will go into effect.

Now how reporters, on the spot, could report this as a plan "to improve Negro education" escapes me. Thurs 2-12-48

•

IT SEEMS to me that the governors wouldn't like too much publicity around their "plan." Southern white students surely haven't shown enough love for educational Jimcrow to give up their rights to an education in their own states to preserve it. And I think that it is the fact that southern white students are NOT showing a love for Jimcrow that lies behind the anger of the Bourbon governors.

They need Jimcrow and more Jimcrow to bolster their rule which is being challenged bit by bit. So in answer to the fight of the Negro students and the Negro people against the separate schools, these unreconstructed Claghorns propose super-Jimcrow. 2-12-48

At their meeting they elected to make their pro-Jimcrow fight within the Democratic Party. Well, that was hardly news. That's the party they control. That is their vehicle to the spreading of Jimcrow practices throughout the nation. Why should they leave?

Cooler heads than Sen. James O. Eastland, of Mississippi and Gov. Fielding H. Wright prevailed. And why not? I can almost hear them being told the score at the closed session. 2-12-48

"Now see here," a governor would say, "can't you see which way the wind is going? You know that the President has to get a few votes from them mongrelized cities. So he's got to make out some sort of a program for 'em." The governor licks his lips and gazes intensely at another governor in the front row and asks, man to man: "But don't you notice he didn't say a word about this education issue which we are about to discuss?" Thurs

•

A FEW HEADS began to nod. The governor speaking at the moment smiles a knowing smile and continues, "Another thing, I'll bet these social equality folks didn't win the President on mixing colored and white in the army. Now let that be a hint to you, and let us quit talking about splitting the party." Daily Worker

That settled the party unity question. They can still hold on to their Jimcrow domains with Truman. They might even get some help in corralling the grumblers who are going off after that Wallace fellow. If they can put across their Jimcrow plan in the South, without any outside interference, they can stop all threats to their one-party dictatorships.

So far no official has interfered with them and their attacks on the 14th Amendment. 2-12-48

Truman said through his secretary that he was not going to back down on his Negro rights proposals, but he said so one day after approving Jimcrow in the Army. "Absolutely" he's for Negro rights and Army Jimcrow. Thurs

While the battle of words goes on between Truman and senatorial white supremacists, the southern Democratic leaders are destroying education and patching up their Bourbon dictatorship.

6 Dixie Governors Push Super Jim Crow School

PM New York, N.Y. 1-19-48

By United Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. At the same time the Southern Governors' Conference was offered Meharry College for Negroes here $8,000,000 in outright gift by the trustees, duced income from investments have forced a drastic reduction in the school's endowment and that it "would be best for all concerned if the joint States would take over the school." 1-19-48

Governors of six Southern States have approved a plan to establish jointly-financed regional colleges and universities to relieve the bur- Gov. William T. Lane of Maryden on separate States of providing higher education for all citizens. land, president of the Governors' Conference, said he would call the members of the 15 State group, into session within six weeks to act on the regional college plan and the offer to Meharry.

Meharry, a privately operated ,000,000 institution, has pro- ced half of the estimated 5000 egro physicians in the Nation. It so has accredited schools of den- try, pharmacy and nursing.

Trustees said high costs and re- sion," Caldwell said in apparent

"Thinking in regional education matters antedates any court deci-reference to a recent Supreme Court ruling that a Negro student, Ada Lois Sipuel, seeking a law school education in Oklahoma, "is entitled to secure legal education afforded by a State institution."

The Supreme Court decision implied that a scholarship offered by a state for a Negro to attend an out-of-state school admitting Negroes was not enough.

The Oklahoma Supreme Court on Saturday directed the State Board of Regents to provide Miss Sipuel a legal education without violating State laws requiring segregation of the races. The State court indicated that the U. S. Supreme Court had not ruled a segregation statute in that State unconstitutional.

Dixie Leaders Act To Revamp Truman's Plan

The Advertiser
Montgomery, Ala.

Five-Man Unit Created To Voice South's Views On Civil Rights Issue

Mon. 2-9-48

Wright Begs Off

Regional Education And Meharry Negro School Backed By Governors

By G. C. LONG
Advertiser Staff Writer

WAKULLA SPRINGS, FLA., Feb. 8.—The Southern Governors' Conference today appointed its own five-man political action committee to demand concessions on "White Supremacy," from President Truman, and also signed an agreement for interstate operation of colleges for specialized and professional training of the South's youth. Mon. 2-9-48

The committee, headed by Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, South Carolina, will go to Washington, to voice the South's displeasure at Mr. Truman's recommendations for new "civil rights" legislation and Gov. Thurmond asserted it would speak "in the strongest possible language."

Still Debated

The real significance of the action taken by the conference to combat the president's civil rights legislative recommendations was still being debated here today as the session adjourned.

Gov. William P. Lane, Jr., of Maryland, appointed the five-man committee under terms of a resolution introduced Saturday by Gov. Thurmond, to investigate the problems brought about by the president's civil rights program and make recommendations at another meeting of the Southern Governors to be held not more than 40 days from now.

The Committeemen

Named to the committee to make the investigation and recommendations were Governors Thurmond, chairman; Beauford Jester, of Texas; Ben Laney, of Arkansas; Gregg Cherry, of North Carolina; and William M. Tuck, of Virginia. Montgomery Ala.

In naming the members of the committee, Gov. Lane, who is chairman of the conference, explained that he had left Gov. Fielding L. Wright, of Mississippi, who has been an advocate of the South pulling away from the national Democratic party, off the committee at Wright's own request. The Advertiser

Lane said Wright gave as his reason for not wanting to serve, as "the home state situation."

Gov. Wright introduced a resolution at the conference calling for a conference of "true Democrats" in Jackson, Miss., on March 1, "to form our plans that will enable us to use our electoral votes in a way that will best serve the South and the nation.

Resolutions Lost

The Mississippi governor offered his resolution as a substitute for the one introduced by Gov. Thurmond, but it died, as did one introduced by Gov. James E. Folsom, of Alabama, for lack of a second. 2-9-48

Gov. Thurmond's resolution has been considered by many observers on the spot as a compromise between the two extremes in the South—those who would like to pull the Southern Democrats out of the national party and those who would like to continue to follow President Truman in spite of his recent message to Congress asking for an FEPC law, anti-lynching legislation, anti-poll tax and anti-segregation legislation.

Opinions Differ

Gov. Wright was classed as one of the chief executives who would like to pull out, while Gov. M. E. Thompson, of Georgia, has indicated he thinks there should be no bolt. The Advertiser

Most chief executives here have taken the attitude that a course of action should be taken that would not lead to a hasty decision. Hence, Gov. Thurmond's compromise to the effect that a committee be appointed to study the matter and then report back to the governors at a meeting to be held not later than 40 days from now. Montgomery, Ala.

Among most of 35 to 40 newspapermen gathered here to cover the conference the action taken by the governors was not considered as an ultimatum to President Truman and the national party.

Compact Signed

As for education, the nine governors assembled here today signed a compact to be submitted to Congress for approval that will permit the Southern States to enter into agreements on regional education. Mon. 2-9-48

Under the terms of the agreement reached here, the governors and their representatives will meet again on March 4 in Gainesville, Fla., to pursue the matter. The motion to that effect, introduced by Gov. Millard Caldwell of Florida, read:

"That a regional council be formed to consist of the governor and two designees from each of the states signing this compact; that the council be instructed by the conference to make a thorough-going survey of higher education in the signatory states. Asking such staff and such foundation funds as may be available; that within the over-all survey the council be instructed to direct immediate attention to the necessity for the early establishment of regional schools or institutions covering the fields which have been indicated by the subcommittee as being urgent, including the Meharry Institution, and that the council meet in its first session on March 4 at Gainesville, Fla.

To Accept School

The Advertiser

The governors agreed in the compact, subject to approval by Congress and the individual state legislatures, to take over Meharry Medical School in Nashville, Tenn., as a regional medical college for Negroes. Montgomery Ala

In addition the governors agreed that an urgent need for regional education exists in the fields of engineering (aerobautic, ceramics, mining, petroleum and textile), forestry, conservation of game and wildlife, medical and health services (dentistry, nursing (collegiate schools), medicine, public health and optometry, music and fine arts (graduate level) and veterinary medicine. Mon.

Specific location of any of the regional schools named was not given but it was learned that the Alabama Polytechnic Institute may be the location of the veterinary school in the event it is set up on a regional basis. 2-9-48

The governors also went on record as recognizing the need for a continuation of basis education and recognizing its importance in relation to advanced education.

On the importance of the educational work done here by the Southern governors, Dr. Austin R. Meadows, Alabama state superintendence has taken a very important step forward for education in Alabama as well as the South. This program, I believe, merits the support of the people."

Dr. John T. Caldwell, president of Alabama College at Montevallo, stated: The Advertiser

"It is the most important thing that has happened in sounder education (and possibly national) in my generation. It opens up a new field for interstate cooperation. It is the constructive and affirmative answer to the critics of Southern effort to attain a high standard of education for all. Montgomery Ala

Governor Folsom said:

"The action will save one of two medical institutions in the United States for Negroes. It is a matter of pure economy and states rights are not invaded."

As for a meeting by the committee of governors appointed by Lane to study and make recommendations on President Truman's civil rights program, Lane said the time and place for the meeting would be named later, taking into consideration recommendations of the committee on the matter. Mon. 2-9-48

Expediting Regional Education

The Constitution

A bill has been introduced in Congress paving the way for establishment of regional schools for graduate education by the Southern States.

An outgrowth of several meetings of the Southern Governors' Conference, the proposed measure would provide congressional authority for 15 States joining together to furnish training in fields in which it is impractical or impossible to offer adequate instruction individually. Atlanta Ga

The bill, introduced by Rep. Hobbs, of Alabama, may be superfluous. Various States have contracted together for educational purposes in the past, although never on so large a scale. West Virginia, for instance, has an arrangement with the University of Virginia for the training of third- and fourth-year medical students. And veterinary students from Mississippi attend Auburn under an agreement between the two States. Mon 2-26-48

The Hobbs Bill will merely assure that the plan has congressional approval.

Unfortunately, professional race protagonists are seeking to label the proposal an attempt on the part of the South to circumvent, rather than live up to, responsibilities in the field of Negro education.

The truth of the matter is that regional education for Negroes may not meet the Supreme Court interpretation of "equal facilities," although it seems to us Southern States cannot be accused of not showing good faith in thus endeavoring to meet their obligation. Montgomery Ala

Certainly, in the first such institution likely to be acquired, the Negro facilities will be the superior, if anything, to the white. Meharry Medical College in Nash-

8-10-48 Mon

return. Montgomery Ala

Southern re million state medi-
outh.
rsities for Court test
Bill is de-centers of rided for Su

ty has so re numercation for where.
ey, do not

As our own Chancellor Paty has frequently pointed out, there are numerous specialized phases of education for which our youth must go elsewhere. And, all too frequently, they do not

14e(2) 1948

Charge Move To Sabotage Truman Plan

BY VENICE SPRAGGS

WASHINGTON — Less than a week after reaffirming his support of President Truman's civil rights program, Sen. J. Howard McGrath, chairman of the National Democratic committee, lined up with Sen. Alexander Wiley (R. Wis.), in brazen support of continued segregation in education in the south.

Sen. McGrath's position was looked upon as an attempt to regain the support of Dixie Democrats by cabotaging the Truman rights plan.

Sen. McGrath and Sen. Wiley comprise a two-man Senate Judiciary Subcommittee hearing testimony on a joint resolution introduced by Sen. Spessard L. Holland (D. Fla.), asking congressional approval of a proposed regional education compact drawn Feb. 8, by the conference of Southern Governors.

Only the governor of Kentucky has not joined the plan, and Sen. John Sherman Cooper (R. Ky.) has withdrawn his sponsorship of the bill which would permit several states to finance one school.

In New York last week the board of directors of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People passed a resolution demanding that congress withhold approval of the compact, and instructed Walter White, and Leslie Perry to lobby against it in the subcommittee hearings.

Lack-Authority

Tangling with Thurgood Marshall, special counsel for the NAACP, McGrath argued heatedly that Congress does not have the "Constitutional right" to prescribe that the compact be administered "without distinction as to race, creed, color, sex, as to students, faculty, and administrative officers" as recommended by the NAACP attorney.

Marshall countered, "Congress can say to the Southern Governors, you will put in the amendment, or we will disapprove the compact."

Here McGrath asked Marshall, "Would you support the continuation of the present education condition of Negroes in the South rather than have the compact approved?"

Marshall replied, "I would either disapprove it, or require that the regional schools be set up without distinction as to race."

Sinks Intelligence

McGrath quoted figures which had been introduced into the hearings on the previous day by President M. Don Clawson of the Meharry Medical College, Nashville, Tenn., showing that only 86 Negro students had been admitted to interracial medical schools in the North. He, like Dr. Clawson implied that the reason for the sparsity of Negro students in these schools was inferior mental ability to that of white students seeking admission.

To this indictment, Marshall admantly replied, "I deny any implication that there are only 86 Negro students in the country capable of being admitted to interracial medical schools."

Marshall made the bold accusation that the proposed Southern governors compact "is merely an effort to circumvent the effects of the recent Supreme Court decisions" in educational cases. He said that what the Southern governors are seeking is "federal sanction for the perpetuation of the policy of racial segregation."

He told the subcommittee that Congressional approval was not needed for the compact, and the governors had been so advised by their own counsel. He said congressional approval of such a compact, if granted, might later be used to becloud the issue in any future court consideration of the issue of segregation in education.

In wording the compact, the governors have assiduously refrained from making any mention of segregation. It was for D. Martin Jenkins, education advisor for the Negro Newspaper Publishers Association to force this issue into the open. In reply to a direct question by Jenkins, Governor Millard Caldwell of Florida, stated the schools would be operated within the constitution of the various states signing the compact, all of which provide that schools must be organized on a racially segregated basis. Significantly, the only specific proposal in the compact is the taking over of Meharry Medical College, "because of the present financial condition of the institution."

Ties In Sipuel Case

At the meeting of the Southern governors, legislators, and educators here Feb. 24, Cecil Simms, legal adviser to Gov. Jim McCord of Tennessee, related the proposed regional plan to the decision of the Supreme Court in the Sipuel case, involving the University of Oklahoma.

He stated then, that if Meharry was not able to maintain itself, the Negro students sent there by the Southern states would come back home demanding admission to the state-supported white medical schools.

Dean George Johnson of the Howard University school of law and Dr. James Nabrit, law professor at the same institution, made a brilliant legal back on their heels For up to this point the constitutionality of the proposal had weathered all attacks. Senator McGrath was not present, having quit the discussion after his heated set-to with Marshall.

Johnson and Nabrit appeared as representatives for the Conference of Negro Land-Grant College Presidents whom they testified were opposed to the compact and to all segregation, especially segregation in education.

Hits Legal Aspect

Challenging the constitutionality of the compact, Nabrit told the subcommittee that if they persisted in approving it in spite of opposition, they should make clear that Congressional assent to the plan "should in no way to construed as an endorsement of segregation in education."

Nabrit warned the subcommittee that their assent to the compact may well enlarge the area in which the constitutionality of segregation must be tested. He asked, "Does Congress want to add additional disability to a Negro plaintiff wishing to test segregation under the equal protection guaranteed by the Constitution.?"

He further contended that where suits are brought in such cases, it is difficult to find out the parties to sue. In fact he said ,a plaintiff might find himself in the position of having no one to sue.

This argument was in rebuttal to that advanced by Senator Wiley who contended from the beginning of the hearings that the compact should by all means be approved as a forward step in education. He said if any individual later found his civil rights jeopardized under the compact, he could bring suit.

Compares Jobs

Supporting the compact, Senator Holland cited studies which show that six times more Negroes hold responsible positions at all levels in the South's segregated educational system than do in the North. Taking him up sharply on this defense of segregation, Nabrit made clear that large numbers of Negroes would rather be "just plain American citizens with the same rights as any other American citizen," than hold these positions glorified by Holland.

He said, "The price of position in order to hold that type of inferior post is too high. It is a position in a worthless educational structure, and therefore the status is inferior."

The day, before M. Don Clawson, pres. of Meharry Medical College spoke in favor of the compact. Meharry will be forced to close July 1, if financial aid is not available.

Clawson criticized the refusal of a large segment of Negroes to go along with the proposal. "Those who would destroy Meharry for imaginary reasons should direct their fire at the constitution of the state," he said. Closing the school would not change Dixie segregation laws he declared.

Immediate goal of the compact is to regionalize Meharry, thereby avoiding admitting Negroes to white state universities or providing in state training under the terms of the Supreme Court ruling in the Sipuel case.

Two organizations financing Meharry, the Rockefeller and Kellogg Foundations, have agreed to support it for a year past July 1, 1948 if financial relief under the regional plan is assured at the end of that time, according to Clawson.

Hints Inferiority

Clawson claims that Negro students have little chance for admission to unsegregated schools where they would compete with the white students with "superior" abilities for vacancies. The Meharry president said only 86 Negroes are enrolled in medical schools of the north, and that he is constantly beseiged with requests for superior Meharry students whom these schools would like to enroll "for appearance's sake only."

Dr. B. T. Rolfe, executive secretary of the Meharry Alumni Association testified that the "overwhelming majority" of graduates support the regional plan ,including the Chicago chapter, which originally opposed the idea.

Admits Protests

Senator Wiley admitted that he had been deluged with wires opposing the regional plan.

Lightning like efforts of the southern governors to have their plan rectified by Congress is said to be based on the desire to get the the plan in action before the Heman Sweatt case brings the question of "separate but equal" education before the U. S. Supreme Court.

Dr. John Russell of the U. S. Office of Education warned the subcommittee that the plan will require long and careful study by experienced educators. He said the compact as now drawn "does not give assurance of stable control."

Fears Administration

Answering Senator Wiley as to whether the compact violates constitutional rights of any individual, Dr. Russell said: "As a compact it does not. I can see that it might be administered so as to interfere with the rights of the individual."

Frank Chambers of the Justice Department told the subcommittee that the legality of the compact is now under study by his agency.

Others appearing before the subcommittee in opposition to the compact were: Miss Alma Vessells, national Association of Colored Graduate Nurses; Dr. J. G. Gathings, National Medical Association; M. C. Clark, National Negro Insurance Association; Miss Marian Perry, National Lawyers Guild; James B. Cobb, National Alliance of Postal Employes; Dr. W. H. Jernagin, National Fraternal Council of Negro Churches of America; George L. P. Weaver, National CIO Committee to Abolish Discrimination; Howard Long, American Teachers Association.

Southern Governers' Conference

Walter White a 'Liar' Says Rufus Clement

By DOUGLASS HALL

RALEIGH, N.C.—"If I had been at the meeting, I would have told Walter White that he was telling a lie," Dr. Rufus Clement, president of Atlanta University, told the AFRO-AMERICAN, shortly after he delivered a fiery address to the 67th annual convention of the N.C. Teachers Association.

"After talking with me about an munism and Rankinism. He was hour regarding my visit to the in an angry mood, and minced no Southern Governors' conference in words in "setting the record Florida," Dr. Clement declared straight" as to where he stood on angrily, "Walter White then went important matters that face the away and made a speech stating world today.

that I approved the Southern Educational Regional Plan."

Did Not Accept Their Invitation

"Just before the first meeting of the Governors in Florida," he explained that while he and could see that!

Losing Fear of Klan

Pointing out that colored persons in Georgia don't scare very easily, the speaker stated that "When the Klan first marched, no colored persons showed up at the polls the next day.

Says Plan Is Sound

"The second time, about one dozen where at the polls and voted. The last time they marched, about every colored person who intended voting was at the polls the next day.

"I think that I can explain that. Many of the voters had been off to

During his hour-long talk to the teachers, Dr. Clement denounced Southern Governors, Henry Wallace, Walter White, Bilboism, Communism from a friend, stating that the Gov-war where they came face to face with real dangers of death and destruction. Surely, they were not going to return home and be scared by a few men in sheets and pillow cases."

Speaking of the Southern Governors, "somebody ought to grab them and sit them down," he insisted.

Sorry for Wallace Supporters

"America is the last outpost of freedom," he continued, "and we are facing a war that might see the last of human liberty."

"I am disturbed over colored persons' following Henry Wallace. The Russians have gotten Wallace. He is in captivity. I cannot call him a Communist, but the Communist are dictating to him."

In conclusion, he declared that "we cannot stop Communism until we stop Bilboism and Rankinism. Human beings are human beings. The time has come when a man should live his life in peace-time, as well as give it in time of war."

Negroes And Higher Education

The Supreme Court's decision in regard to the Oklahoma law school case will come as a shocker to many people. Yet administrative officials in all Southern colleges and universities supported by tax money have known for a long time that sooner or later they would be directly face to face with the problem. That time has now arrived. Action of some kind must be taken, and soon.

The court's decision has two parts. Both of them are important for members of both races in the South. The court ruled (1) that Negroes are entitled to receive in state institutions any sort of educational training that white persons can get in such schools, and (2) that they are entitled to get it as quickly as any other group.

Thus the state of Oklahoma is faced with the immediate necessity of doing one of two things: it must either admit Negroes to its state tax-supported schools at once, or it must provide equal opportunity for Negroes to get instruction of equal quality, also at once. Much of the same sort of decision was made by the Supreme Court in a Texas case some time ago. But the state of Texas then announced it would provide educational opportunities for Negro students of equal quality, but that such opportunities could not be provided at once, inasmuch as it would take some time to build up a school of the sort the law demanded. Then it set about in leisurely fashion creating a school to be attended by Negroes. When it was finished it was obviously not the equal in opportunity or instruction to the state's university, but it was better than anything else which the state of Texas had ever offered its Negro citizens.

In this present case, however, the court ruled that there must be no time lapse while a new school is built. A new term of college instruction opens this month. The Negro must then be admitted to the school of choice now, or a provision for equal instruction must be provided within the next week. One presumes it would be possible for the present instructional staff to hold extra classes to which only Negroes are admitted, that the same laboratory and library facilities be granted to the Negroes. Thus, however, the work of the teaching staff would be doubled, even though a very few students presented themselves for teaching. It would be expensive. It would mean that other teachers must be hired, for a teacher cannot give more than a certain number of hours of his time to the classroom. Men and women competent to teach in college and in professional schools are not easy to find at a moment's notice. The ruling may have the unhappy effect of lowering scholastic standings all the way around. That is, unless the university admits the few Negroes who are prepared to take professional training in college to the regular classes without discrimination on account of color.

The ruling did not say what the university ought to do to solve this problem which the court has thrust upon it. From the standpoint of millions of American citizens, the matter is simple. From the standpoint of other millions who have lived in the South always, and among whom the mixing of races within the classrooms and laboratories of a school has never been considered, the solution is complex and full of problems too difficult to be solved by a flourish of the pen.

It is all well and good to say what ought to be done. It is another thing to fly directly in the teeth of traditions so deeply embedded in a section's consciousness that more than writing on a scrap of paper will be required to remove them. We must not be blind to the facts because we are unmindful of a situation, no matter in what section of the country we live.

Educators of Alabama are fully aware of these problems as they are likely to affect this state. On Wednesday of last week the State Board of Education ordered an immediate study to determine how best to provide professional educational facilities for Negroes in Alabama. The work will be initiated by Supt. A. R. Meadows. He has suggested that facilities of the State Teachers College at Montgomery be expanded. A member of the board remarked that the cost to Alabama may run into millions of dollars, but that no matter how expensive, the state must do something about the problem.

Legal suits are now planned by Negroes to force the University of Alabama and Auburn to accept members of their race into the student body. They admit they have no legal case by which to try to force admittance to these schools for regular liberal arts courses, although they insist that the work offered by the state's two tax-supported Negro institutions is not comparable in quality with that provided white students in the white colleges. Negroes make the incontestable point, however, that the university and Auburn offer much specialized work—engineering, veterinary medicine and some courses requiring expensive laboratory equipment—which is wholly unavailable to their race in any Alabama college.

It is for such reasons that the N. A. A. C. P. has been readying cases to bring to trial. Its feeling has been that suits similar to those brought in Texas and Oklahoma may have to be brought in each Southern state.

The state's recent policy has been to grant funds to qualified Negro students who wish to study such professional courses as law, medicine or dentistry. Negro students whose training qualifies them for the state's professional schools are now being sent outside the state at public expense for graduate work. The plan will obviously become more and more costly as greater numbers apply for its application.

Many Negroes do not approve of establishing a large Negro college and university center in a Southern city to which qualified Negro students may be admitted from all over the South. They insist that such discrimination is still a form of segregation which is humiliating to the dignity of a human soul, no matter what the color of the skin. It is unlikely that great sums of money are going to be spent by several Southern states to build such a school as long as there is a possibility that its functioning, as the South wants it to function, may be invalidated by a court decision.

Alabama faces the necessity of making a decision. The choice has already been forced upon her. The handwriting is on the wall very plain. Governmental and educational leaders know that fact and are taking cognizance of it at this moment.

Congress Speeds Jimcrow

THEY'RE about to freeze Jimcrow education in the South by Congressional consent. Already — two months after the southern governors demanded action to prevent Negro students gaining admission to all-white colleges — their regional segregated school plan has been approved by both House and Senate Judiciary Committees.

This unusual "treaty" between several states not only endangers Negro education but threatens general education in the South. Under the regional compact of the 14 southern states participating states would pool their resources to establish regional white and Negro schools. It is conceivable that many all-white schools now located in states would be closed.

It is indicative of Republican cynicism that both committees which approved the bill are GOP-controlled. As for Truman and the Democrats, it should be noted that Sen. Alben Barkley, Senate minority leader, is one of the bill's sponsors.

It seems that the louder the talk about democracy the greater the speed in the opposite direction. It's about time the people took a hand to let the gentlemen in Congress know that action on civil rights is demanded, that Jimcrow has got to go.

STATE RIGHTS IN THE SOUTH

The Supreme court recently told states that draw the color line that they must either admit Negroes to the professional colleges of the state universities or provide truly equal facilities elsewhere for Negroes. Fifteen southern states then negotiated a compact for joint support of educational institutions.

When the compact was presented to the senate for approval, Sen. Morse offered an amendment providing that no institution established under it should make race, color or creed a qualification for admission. This would kill the compact, because its initial purpose is that the co-operating states would take over the support of Meharry Medical college in Nashville and send all their colored applicants for medical education there. Sen. Morse and Sen. Ives, who has a looser amendment, have the backing of the Republican majority in the senate. The Republicans cannot do otherwise than support them.

This incident, and the fulminations of the southerners over it, is typical of the dither into which the south has got itself over what its citizens call state rights. If the southerners were genuinly concerned about the rights, they would directly for scholarships to send their rep- colored students there. Also, it is questionable whether the support of a single public medical institution for Negroes in 15 federal states would meet the Supreme court test of equal opportunity. 5-15-48

The strongest objection to the proposal, however, is that it is just plain silly. The immediate problem of the southern states is to provide equal educational opportunities for Negroes in law and medicine. The obvious solution is to admit them to existing state institutions.

Segregation has already been abolished in public vehicles in Richmond, Va., once the capital of the confederacy. Negroes now are received in dining cars on trains in the south without raising more than an occasional ripple of discontent. People who ride in street cars and trains are not selected for intelligence and self-restraint. People in universities are. If segregation can safely be abolished in public vehicles in the south, it ought to be possible to abolish it in state universities. In fact, there is reason to believe that the young people of the south, particularly those from the kind of families that send their children to college, would accept the presence of Negroes in the classroom just as calmly as they are accepted at Harvard, the University of Iowa, Oxford, the Sorbonne, and every other first rank university in the world excepting those in our south.

The stiff necked attitude of the southern politicians can only stimulate pressure to solve the problem by federal action. A solution dictated from Washington may well be as injurious to the Negroes as it would be humiliating to the white people of the south. Certainly a rational treatment of the problem in the south is preferable.

TEXAS U. SENIOR: Meeting at the first discussion session of T. S. U.'s Faculty Seminar are, left to right: Dr. Wesley J. Lyda, Dean, School of Arts and Science, TSU; Dr. Alonzo Myers, Chairman, Division of Higher Education, New York University; Dr. R. O'Hara Lanier, President of TSU, former Minister to Liberia and former Acting President of Hamptony Institute, greeting the first lecturer, Dr. Malcolm MacLean, Professor of Higher Education University of California at Los Angeles— former President of Hampton and FEPC head; Dr. L. L. Click Assistant Dean, College of Arts and Science, University of Texas and Dr B. A. Turner, Dean, School of Technical and Vocational Education at TSU, formerly Chairman, Teacher Training Department in Industrial Education at Hampton. (TSU Photo by Richardson)

Dr. Weaver Named Texas College Dean

DR. E. K. WEAVER

TYLER, Texas.-At the beginning of the 1948-49 academic year at Texas college, Dr. Edward K. Weaver, distinguished educator and world traveler, was presented by President D R . Glass as dean and director of instruction of the institution. Dr. Weaver comes to Texas college from Alabama State Teachers college, Montgomery, Ala., with a rich background of training, experience and travel.

The new dean of instruction is fitting most uniquely into the academic and administrative setup at Texas college. He has inaugurated a progressive program that is destined to improve the college and increase its usefulness and efficiency in preparation of young men and women to fill adequately the needs of the various professions, communities and areas which they seek to serve.

Dr. Weaver was an All-American lineman at Langston and received his undergraduate degree from that school; also the M. S. degree from the State University of Iowa and the doctor of education degree from Columbia university.

Dr. Weaver was joined here by his wife, Mrs. Geneva Weaver who likewise boasts a varied and unusual record of experiences and travel. She attended West Virginia State college and Teacher's college and taught at Bethune-Cookman college and Alabama State college.

Mrs. Weaver has traveled extensively with her husband in Canada, Mexico, England, France, Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Italy. Yugoslavia, Algeria, French North Africa, and participated in the International Dance Competitors at Prague, Czechoslovakia in the summer of 1947 and did research work at Litvinof and Lidice in Czechoislovakia.

Tex. Law School Opens Sept. 20

HOUSTON—President R. O'Hara Lanier of Texas State University for Negroes has announced the opening of the University's Law School, Sept. 20, when all fall-term classes will begin at T. S. U.

The board of directors has approved Ozie H. Johnson as acting dean of the Law School.

SUIT TO SET UP TEXAS U. BRANCH

AUSTIN, Tex. — (ANP) — A suit to force the University of Texas to establish a Negro branch here, was dismissed by the state supreme court last wednesday on a technicality. The suit was brought by Dr. Everett H. Givens.

Givens had been refused a rehearing in the third court of civic appeals. According to law, he was allowed 30 days in which to apply to the higher court for writ of error. The supreme court counted 31 days between the time he was refused a hearing and applied for a writ of error.

Texas State Univ. Opens Law School

HOUSTON — (ANP) — Freshman and sophomore classes in the newly opened law school of Texas State university will be operated here Sept. 20, the opening day of school, it was announced this week.

Ozie H. Johnson has been approved by the board of directors as acting dean of the law school, President R. O'Hara Lanier announced. Other members of the law faculty are Earl J. Carl, (Yale); Everett Bell (Kansas university); William George (Western Reserve), and Roberson King, J. D (University of Chicago).

According to Dr. Lanier, the law library has 25.000 volumes on hand or on order. These include English and American reports and periodicals. The school has already applied for approval by the American Bar association.

DAY NIGHT CLASSES

Freshman classes will be held in the day and evening divisions, and second year classes in the day only. A limited number of scholarships and fellowships are available for persons of high scholarship. Interested persons may apply to the University Committee on Admissions.

An enrollment of nearly 3,000 students is expected this fall. Other new courses being offered besides law are health and nursing education both awarding degrees. One shift of the school of vocational and technical education for veterans has been discontinued.

The following deans and heads of departments have been announced:

S. E. Warren, Ph.D., (University of Wisconsin), division of social sciences; Mrs. Harriett E. Hale, chairman, department of business administration and commerce; G. T. Wiggins, Ph. D., Ohio State university, chairman, department of education and dean of the graduate school.

PIERCES ON FACULTY

Mrs. Juanita Pierce, D. Ed., New York university, chairman, physical education for women: Mrs. Ina Bolton, chairman, philosophy, and dean of women: Herbert H. Hartshorn, Ph. D., University of Minnesota, veterans registrar and councilor;

Joseph Pierce, Ph. D., University of Michigan, chairman department of mathematics and division of natural sciences and mathematics; Joseph Dorsey, Dr. Ed., University of Pennsylvania, chairman, division of fine arts; J. W. White, acting chairman, department of English; John Carter, Ph. D., University of Illinois, chairman, foreign languages;

John Codwell, Ph.D., Michigan, chairman, physical education, health and nursing education and recreation and director of athletics; Howard Wright, Ph. D., Ohio State, chairman, psychology; Eugene Richards, Ph. D., University of Southern California, chairman, sociology; Ira Bryant, D. Ed., Southern California, dean of students, and B. A. Turner, D. Ed., Pennsylvania State college, director, school of vocational and technical education.

Dr. Raphael Lanier, U. S. Minister To Liberia Named President Of Texas State Univ.; Takes Post June 1

HOUSTON, Texas—Dr. Raphael O'Hara Lanier, United States Minister to Libera, has been named president of Texas State University for Negroes. The announcement was made by Craig F. Cullinan, chairman of the Board of Directors. Dr. Lanier is expected to assume his duties by June 1.

Favorably known throughout the nation as an outstanding educator and administrator, Dr. Lanier has held many important positions with educational institutions and with the government.

He served as Dean of Florida A. & M. College, 1925-33; Dean of Houston College for Negroes, 1933-38; assistant director of the Division of Negro Affairs, National Youth Administration, Washington; acting president and Dean of the College, Hampton, Institute; special assistant, Bureau of Services, UNRRA; and American Minister to Liberia since March 1, 1946.

Dr. Lanier received the bachelor of arts degree cum lauda from Lincoln University in 1922, his master of arts degree from Stanford University in 1928, and doctorate of pedagogy from Lincoln University in 1941. During 1931-32 he attended Harvard University on a Julius Rosenwald Fellowship.

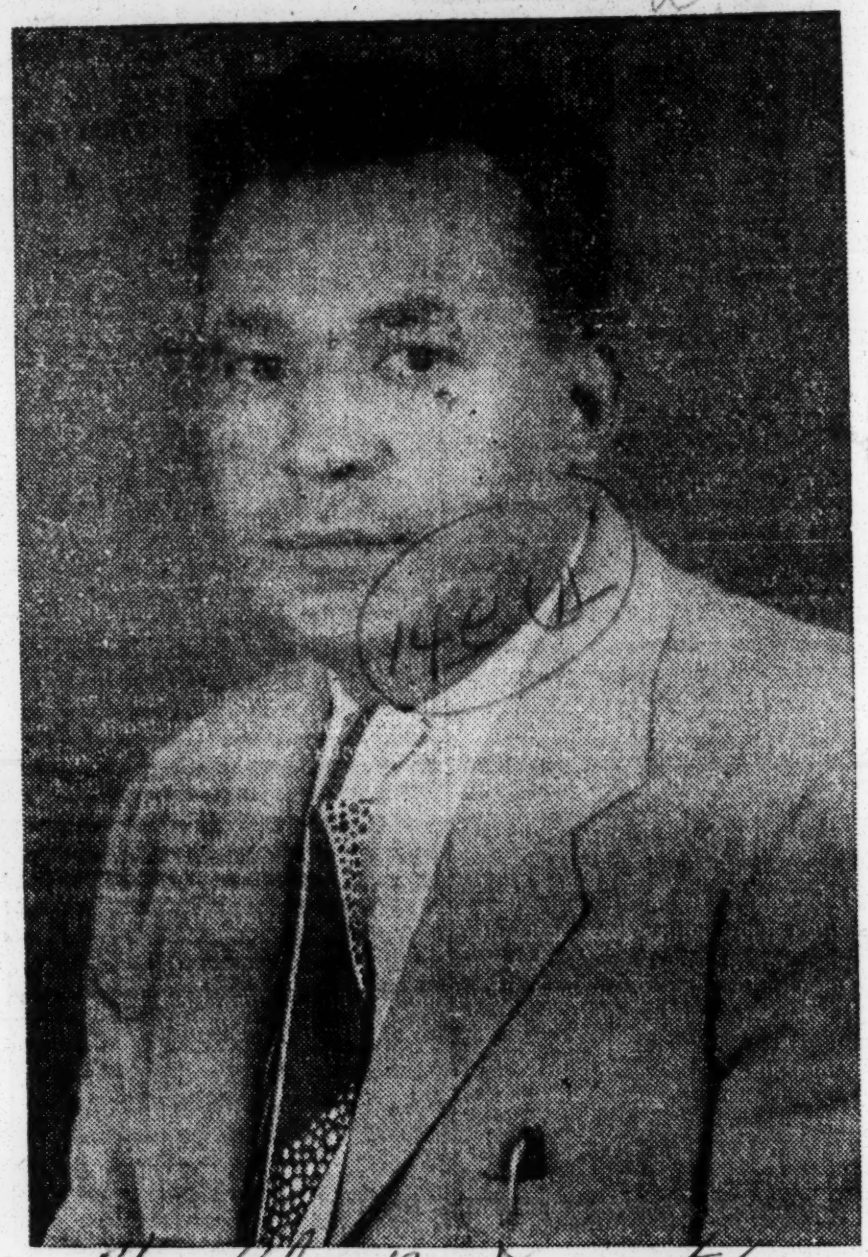
Aside from being listed in the 1948 Who's Who in America, Dr. Lanier is a member of a number of leading national associations, and has contributed to educational journals and other publications.

Editor Sees Trick In Huge 'Goodwill' Gift

HOUSTON, Texas—(ANP)—Although he gave $100,000 to Houston college "as evidence of my good intentions toward the Negro race," the intentions of Hugh Roy Cullen are not appreciated by the Negro race, an editorial in the Houston Informer, March 2, said.

The editorial was written in answer to a statement to the white press of this city in which the "philanthropist" urged the Negroes of the south to "oppose the passage of federal anti-lynch anti-poll tax, anti-segregation, FEPC and other civil rights laws."

Cullen said politicians who promised the Negro race more rights were demagogues and "agitators." In his "address to the Negro race" he said the passage of President Truman's



TYLER, Texas.—At the beginning of the 1948-49 academic year at Texas college, Dr. Edward K. Weaver, distinguished educator and world traveler, was presented by President D. R. Glass as dean and director of instruction of the institution. Dr. Weaver comes to Texas college from Alabama State Teachers college, Montgomery, Ala., with a rich background of training, experience and travel.

The new dean of instruction is fitting most uniquely into the academic and administrative set-up at Texas college. He has inaugurated a progressive program that is destined to improve the college and increase its usefulness and efficiency in preparation of young men and women to fill adequately the needs of the various professions, communities and areas which they seek to serve.

Dr. Weaver was an All-American linesman at Langston and received his undergraduate degree from that school; also the M. S. degree from the State University of Iowa and the doctor of education degree from Columbia university.

Dr. Weaver was joined here by his wife, Mrs. Geneva Weaver, who likewise boasts a varied and unusual record of experiences and travel. She attended West Virginia State college and Teacher's college and taught at Bethune-Cookman college and Alabama State college.

Mrs. Weaver has traveled extensively with her husband in Canada, Mexico, England, France, Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Italy. Yugoslavia, Algeria, French North Africa, and participated in the International Dance Competitors at Prague, Czechoslovakia in the summer of 1947 and did research work at Litvinof and Lidice in Czechoslovakia.

14e(2) 1948

TEXAS STATE UNIVERSITY BEGINS SECOND SEMESTER

Daily World Atlanta, Ga.

HOUSTON — The Texas State University for Negroes opened its door for registration for the second semester on Monday, January 26, 1948. Registration continued through Friday, January 30, and classes were resumed on Monday, February 2.

Lanier Heads New University

HOUSTON, May 2 (AP)—Dr. Raphael O'Hara Lanier, Negro educator who is the United States Minister to Liberia, yesterday was named president of Texas State University for Negroes. Craig F. Cullinan, chairman of the university's board of directors, said Dr. Lanier has submitted his resignation to the State Department and will arrive here before June 1. He became Minister to Liberia March 1, 1946. The university began its first term in September and Dr. Lanier will be its first permanent president.

Dr. Lanier Named Texas State Head

Daily World Atlanta, Ga. Fri. 5-7-48

Minister To Liberia To Assume Duties By June 1

HOUSTON—Dr. Raphael O'Hara Lanier, United States Minister fo Liberia, has been named president of Texas State University for Negroes. The announcement was made by Craig F. Cullinan, chairman of the Board of Directors. Dr. Lanier is expected to assume his duties by June 1.

Favorably known throughout the nation as an outstanding educator and administrator, Dr. Lanier has held many important positions with educational institutions and with the government.

He served as Dean of Florida A. and M. College, 1925-33; Dean of Houston College for Negroes, 1933-38; Assistant Director of the Division of Negro Affairs, National Youth Administration, Washington; Acting President and Dean of the College, Hampton, Institute; Special Assistant, Bureau of Services, URRA; and American Minister to Liberia since March 1, 1946.

Dr. Lanier received th ebachelor of arts degree cum laude from Lincoln University in 1922, his master of arts degree from Stanford University in 1928, and doctorate of pedagogy from Lincoln University in 1941. During 1931-32 he attended Harvard University on a Julius Rosenwald Fellowship.

James E. Dorsey On Texas State Faculty

Journal Guide

TUSKEGEE, Ala. — James E. Dorsey, a graduate of Tuskegee Institute, Class of 1924, has been appointed chairman of the fine arts department and professor of music at Texas State University, Houston, Texas, it was announced last week.

Dorsey has had extensive training and long experience that eminently qualifies him for his new post. He received his A. B. degree from Lincoln University in 1928. His musical education was received from the University of Pennsylvania where he was awarded the degree of bachelor of music, 1933, master of arts in music, 1935, and Ph.D. in music, 1947. He also holds a degree in education from Columbia University.

From 1925 to 1928 he was student instructor of music, Lincoln University, Penn. From 1928 to 1943 he had faculty rank at Lincoln, as instructor, assistant professor and associate professor. From 1943 to 1945 he was on leave for study. In 1945 he was appointed professor of music and chairman of the department of music at North Carolina State College, Durham, N. C.

Dorsey spent several hours at Tuskegee Institute last week and while on the campus received congratulations from his many friends here who wished him success in his new post.

Tex. Law School Now in Houston

The Courier Houston, Tex.

HOUSTON, Tex.—With Attorney Ozie H. Johnson, Temple University graduate at the helm as dean, the Texas State University Law School will be moved from Austin this summer and will open on the campus proper here.

The law school was set up in a basement in Austin as an aftermath to Heman Marion Sweatt's attempt to enter the University of Texas Law School.

Other action taken by the board was authorization of President R. O'Hara Lanier to seek establishment of an ROTC unit at the school.

Texas State University

Texas State Law School to Open on September 20

The Afro American Sat. 9-11-48 Baltimore, Md.

3,000 Students Expected at University; Faculty Enlarged; More Library Facilities

HOUSTON, Texas—President R. O'Hara Lanier of the Texas State University has announced the opening of the University's Law School on September 20, when all fall term classes will begin.

The board of directors has approved Ozie H. Johnson as acting dean of the Law School, with four additional instructors: Earl J. Carl, LL.B., (Yale); Everett Bell, LL.B., (Kansas University); William George, LL.B., (Western Reserve) and Roberson King, J.D. (University of Chicago).

President Lanier also noted the rapid expansion of the law library, with approximately 25,000 volumes on hand or on order. Appliciation and is such approval is andressed to the American Bar Association and is anticipated at the ticipated at the Association's next regular meeting.

A combined enrollment of close to 3,000 students is expected when the fall term opens. With the discontinuance of one of three vocational shifts by the State Approval Agency at Austin, enrollment of veterans is expected to be only 1,000.

New staff members for the coming year are listed below. A completed list will be released following the board meeting on Sept. 14.

Deans, Departments Heads

Dr. S. E. Warren, Division of Social Sciences; Mrs. Harriett E. Hale, Chairman, Department of Business Administration and Commerce; Dr. G. T. Wiggins, chairman, Department of Education and dean of the Graduate School; Mrs. Juanita Pierce, chairman, department of physical education for women;

Mrs. Ina Bolton, chairman, department of philosophy and dean of Women; Dr. Hermert H. Hartshorn, Veterans Registrar and Councilor; Dr. Joseph Pierce, chairman, division of natural Sciences and mathematics; Dr. Joseph Dorsey, professor of music and chairman, division of fine Arts;

J. W. White, acting chairman, department of English; Dr. John Carter, chairman, department of foreign languages; Dr. John Codwell, chairman, division of physical education, health and nursing education and recreation, and director of athletics; Dr. Howard Wright, chairman, department of psychology; Dr. Eugene Richards, chairman, department of sociology; Dr. Ira Bryant, dean of students; Dr. B. A. Turner, director of the school of vocational and technical education.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

House Bottles Up Education Aid Bill

BY DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—It hasn't been publicized, but the census takers have unearthed the shocking fact that 10,000,000 American adults cannot read or write.

Yet Congress, willing to spend billions to train young men for war, has bottled up the $300,000,000 aid-to-education bill to train young men and women for peace.

Georgia's Democratic Congr. Don Wheeler has been begging for 218 of his House mates to sign a discharge petition to force the federal-aid-to-education bill out of the education and labor committee where it has been salted away by the GOP leadership. But he has not been able to scrape up more than 43 names!

Chief obstacles are Speaker Joe Martin and Majority Leader Charlie Halleck, who have ordered the committee not to let the bill out. Also, they have passed word to Republicans not to sign any discharge petition. So far only one Republican has defied these orders—North Dakota's Bill Lemke, who joined with 42 Democrats already on the petition.

However, Minority Leader Sam Rayburn also has quietly blocked the petition and has succeeded in keeping Texas and Virginia Democrats from signing.

* * *

Less Literate Than Russia

MEANWHILE, LITERACY in the United States has sunk to an alarming low—probably lower than Russia. What the public also doesn't realize is that the nation's 10,000,000 illiterates over 24 years old are not Southern Negroes, but many of them native-born whites. Official statistics show that 4,200,000 adults, who cannot read or write, are whites born in this country. Another 3,100,000 are foreign-born whites, whereas only 2,700,000 are Negroes. The remaining handful are Latin Americans and orientals by birth.

Furthermore, illiteracy isn't found exclusively in the South. For example, more than 1,000,000 illiterate adults live in New York, another 696,000 in Pennsylvania and 462,000 in Illinois. However, 36 per cent of Louisiana's total population cannot read or write.

During the war, the draft boards weeded out 350,000 young men who could only sign their name with an X. Of these, 150,000 were physically fit to serve in the Army but were disqualified because of lack of education—a loss to the country of approximately 15 divisions.

Sens. Morse, Magnuson And Kilgore Sponsors

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—Three Senators last Thursday introduced a bill providing for Federal aid to the states for the removal of adult illiteracy by the development and maintenance of special programs of basic elementary education for adults.

According to the 1940 Census, there were more than 10,000,000 adults in the United States, 25 years of age and over, who were functionally illerate, who could not read and write at all, whose reading and writing ability was insufficient to be of practical use.

Of that number, 4,200,000 were native born whites, 3,100,000 were foreign-born whites, 2,700.00 were colored and another 100,000 were classified by the Census as "other", including persons of Latin-American or oriental birth or parentage.

WORLD WAR II

In offering the measures on behalf of himself and Senator Wayne Morse, Republican, of Oregon, and Senator Warren G. Magnuson, Democrat, of Washington, Senator Harley M. Kilgore, Democrat, of West Virginia, pointed out that during World War II the Selective Service System found that 350,000 illiterates signed their names by an "X". Of this number, 130,000 were white and 220.000 were colored.

The national literacy education bill provides for a cooperative program of action between the United States Office of Education and state departments of education.

It authorizes an appropriation of $5,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1949, $10,000,000 for the fis cal year 1950, and $15,000,000 for each fiscal year from 1951 through the fiscal year 1957, and decreasing to $5,00,000 in the fiscal years 1958 and 1959 when the program of Federal aid would terminate.

ALLOTMENTS

Each state, from which an application was received and approved by the Commissioner of Education, would be entitled to an allotment of Federal funds in the proportion that the number of adults in the state who had not completed the fifth grade of school, as reported by the Census Bureau, bore to the number of such adults in all the states.

The funds so allotted would be used under the direction and supervision of state departments of education to stimulate the organization of classes for adults designed to classes and for the fostering of research, experimentation and demonstration in eeducational institutiins of improved methods and materials for use in such clazses.

The plan outlined in the bill parallels closely the adult illiteracy program which has been carried on under the supervision of Dr. Ambrose Caliver, specialist in Negro education in the United States Office of Education.

They Can't Read

Would you know what to do if you saw a sign that said "Explosives—Keep Away"? Or "Poison—For External Use Only"?

Sen. Harley M. Kilgore (D-W. Va.) says the census reveals that slightly over 10,000,000 Americans—one out of every seven adults—wouldn't know. He calls them "sheer or near illiterates." He proposed $130,000,000 federal aid to help such people learn to read and write. His bill died, but educators says it is sure to come up again.

What is an illiterate? Where do these 10,000,000 illiterates live? Kilgore says the answers to these questions are so amazing the situation can only be described as a national disgrace.

First, he describes illiterates as persons without the equivalent of a fourth grade education. They can't read or, if they can, they can't understand what they read sufficiently well to function as citizens.

Second, he says many of these people—probably the majority of them—don't live far out in the sticks, where an education is hard to come by. And the majority are not foreign born, but native Americans.

He gives these figures: 4,200,000 are white people, born in this country A total of 3,200,000 are foreign born whites; 2,700,000 are Negroes. He says one-tenth of the 10,000,000 live in New York, 462,000 in Illinois and 385,000 in California.

Louisiana has a higher percentage of illiterates among its total population than any other state. Kilgore estimates the number at 36 per cent. Iowa has the lowest, 4.1 per cent.

There are three times as many illiterates in the country as college graduates, Kilgore adds. He says this weakens democracy because many of these people cannot read the words "freedom" or "peace." Communists are aware of this situation and take full advantage of it by using only the simplest types of propaganda or by making personal contacts, the senator says.

He proposed that $5,000,000 aid be given the states in 1949 to teach people to read, write, speak and understand the English language, to perform elementary arithmetical computations and to understand the basic features of United States government. He would appropriate $10,000,000 for the teaching program in 1950, and then $15,000,000 a year until 1957, decreasing to $5,000,000 in 1958-59. By that time, he believes, illiteracy would be eliminated in the United States.

One difficulty is that illiteracy apparently hasn't been accurately defined. Most authorities agree that the 10,000,000 estimate may be wide of the true mark, one way or the other. Until 1940, the United States Census Bureau counted illiterates merely by asking people if they could read and write in any language. If they couldn't they were classified as illiterate. In 1940 the census classified people by their degree of education—number of years they attended school. This is the origin of the estimate that there are 10,000,000 people without the equivalent of a fourth grade education.

During the war, the Army used the fourth grade as the dividing line between literary and illiteracy. This was based on the wartime experience of the Army. It found that as a general rule people with less than a fourth grade education couldn't read or obey the simplest sort of orders.

Army officials say 350,000 soldiers between 21 and 45 had to "make their mark" with an "X" because they couldn't write their own names.

Progress Noted in Fight Against Adult Illiteracy

Project Well Under Way, Says Dr. Caliver; 500 Enrolled in 25 Classes in 3 States

WASHINGTON (NNPA)— Concrete progress in the attack on adult illiteracy was claimed last Monday by Dr. Ambrose Caliver, a specialist in Negro education in the United States Office of Education and director of the Adult Education Project, sponsored by that office.

The project now in its second year aimed at attacking the problem of illiteracy among adults who have had less than five years of schooling. It is being financed by the Carnegie Corporation of New York, which recently granted $25,000 for its continuance for two more years.

Dr. R. O. Johnson, assistant director of the project who is on leave from Morris Brown College, said the project now is well under way with about 500 adult students enrolled in 25 classes in colleges and communities in three States.

In addition, textbook material, prepared by Miss Ella Griffin, project editorial assistant, is being used in co-operating public school systems in Atlanta, Washington and Baltimore.

Typical is the work being done at Fort Valley State College in Georga, where there are seven classes, 150 students and three full-time teachers. The classes are conducted in the college, a church, a high school, a suburban area and a rural area 30 miles from Atlanta.

The colleges uses churches, newspapers and a radio program to create interest among illiterates.

Dr. William Boyd, who heads the program admits recruiting many of his students from the pool halls and popular hangouts located in the town. Classes also are conducted for students who wish to teach adults.

Similar programs are being carried on at Hampton Institute, Virginia State College, Tennessee State Atlanta and Fisk Universities.

Illiteracy at a Record Low in U. S., With Rate at 2.7%, Survey Shows

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—There are 2,800,000 Americans over 14 years of age who can neither read nor write, but the figure is the lowest on record, the Census Bureau said today as it announced results of a survey made late last year.

The present 2.7 per cent illiteracy rate compared with a rate of 4.7 per cent in 1930. The rate was 6.5 per cent in 1920, and 20 per cent in 1870.

The bureau credited this "marked progress" to these factors:

"The greater enforcement of compulsory school attendance laws, the extension of educational opportunities, the dying off of the relatively numerous aged illiterates, and the special training given illiterates in the armed services during World War II."

Nevertheless, the bureau found, five in every 100 persons in farm areas (double the general average) and eleven out of 100 non-whites (nearly four times the general average) still could not read or write.

The 11 per cent illiteracy rate for non-whites — mostly Negroes, although American Indians and Asiatic races were counted too—was six times as high as the 1.8 per cent rate for white persons.

Yet, the bureau added, the data on non-whites by age groups reflected "dramatic" progress: Twenty-four out of twenty-five non-whites aged 14 to 24 could read or write; among those over 65, only one out of three could.

Among whites, the illiteracy rate was about the same for females as for males. But among non-whites, illiteracy was nearly twice as prevalent among women.

Including the people who could not read or write at all, the bureau said, there were 8,200,000 persons above 14 who were "functional illiterates" — meaning they had no more than four years of schooling.

"In a society with a highly complex technology the mere ability to read and write — perhaps with difficulty—is in itself an index of only limited usefulness," the bureau commented.

THOSE WHO CAN'T READ

Illiteracy in the United States dropped from 20 per cent of all persons over 14 in 1870 to 6.5 per cent in 1920, 4.7 per cent in 1930 and 2.7 per cent in 1947, the Census Bureau has just reported. Reasons are found in the dying off of an older generation of illiterates, in better schools and compulsory attendance and in special training given drafted men during the Second World War. Another cause may be the increasing percentage of the population now living in urban areas. People in cities can hardly get along if they can't read. What poor schools and poor opportunities generally can do is shown by the percentage for "non-whites," most of whom are Negroes. Of these 11 per cent are unable to read.

Worse yet, there are what the Census Bureau calls "functional illiterates," who have had not more than four years of schooling and did not learn enough to be at home in the world of the printed word. There are about 5,600,000 of these. There must be many others who never acquired the reading habit—probably enough to throw a national election one way or the other if they all voted alike. They do not vote alike, but they do vote on what is obviously insufficient information. The radio might be a substitute, in part, for the written word. An illiterate citizen who listened to all the broadcast speeches of all the Presidential candidates might be able to make up his mind intelligently. But it is not likely that illiterate citizens do listen to that extent. The ability to understand general ideas, of the sort that go into even the simplest political speeches, requires a background of reading.

We have come a long way. For instance, 24 out of 25 "non-whites" between 14 and 24 can now read, as contrasted with one in three of those over 65. But we need to go further. We need not only to wipe out illiteracy but to teach young people in our schools to read easily and understandingly. Our democracy is imperfect if they do not.

Reporting Progress In Eliminating Illiteracy

There are only 2,800,000 Americans 14 years of age and over who can neither read nor write, a survey made late last year by the census bureau reveals.

This gives the United States an illiteracy rate today of 2.7 per cent as compared with 4.7 per cent rate in 1930. The rate was 6.5 per cent in 1920 and 20 per cent in 1870.

The illiteracy rate for whites was 1.8 per cent and for non-whites—mostly Negroes although American Indians and Asiatic races were counted in this group also—was six times as high as for whites, or 11 per cent.

Yet the data by age groups reflects "dramatic" progress in this non-white group. Twenty-four out of 25 non-whites aged 14 to 24 could read or write; among those over 65 only one out of three could.

There are geographical differences in illiteracy rates. For example five out of every 100 persons in farm areas—double the general average—could not read and write.

These figures are encouraging, indicating that we are approaching victory in our attempt to wipe out illiteracy. Parents are making the effort to guarantee to their children the educational opportunities that they did not enjoy. The census bureau credits this "marked progress" to four factors: the better enforcement of compulsory school attendance laws, the extension of educational opportunities, the dying off of the relatively numerous aged illiterates and the special training given illiterates in the armed services during World War II. The illiteracy rate in both races will continue to decline as the older illiterates die out.

But there are not only 2,800,000 Americans who lack sufficient education to make their way in today's increasingly complex world. Including these 2,800,000 illiterates there are 8,200,000 Americans aged 14 and above who are "functional illiterates"—meaning that they have had no more than four years of formal schooling. And even four years of schooling isn't enough.

"In a society with a highly complex technology the mere ability to read and write—perhaps with difficulty—is in itself an index of only limited usefulness," the census bureau comments.

The battle must, therefore, go on. And the easiest way to win it is to insist upon the strict enforcement of the compulsory attendance laws. The state is spending money to provide the schools and teachers, but if the pupils do not attend, it is money and energy wasted. And it's one of the more costly and dangerous ways of wasting the state's money.

ELKS WILL CRUSADE ON ILLITERACY

First Effort On National Scale

WASHINGTON. — (ANP) —Delegates appointed by the governors of 14 states, including college presidents, editors, high school principals, teachers, Community and organization leaders and just plain citizens, are included among the more than 500 persons who will attend a three-day conference on functional illiteracy to be held here at Metropolitan Baptist Church, Jan. 29-30.

The conference is sponsored by the Elks Educational department.

It represents the first time in the history of American fraternal life that a fraternal order has tackled the problem of illiteracy among colored people on a national scale.

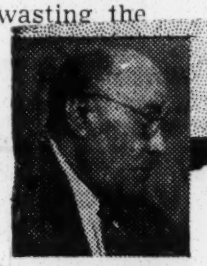
According to the conference director Judge William C. Hueston, Elk commissioner of education, the conference will be a "workshop" meeting from which will be launched a national community class-room program for teaching thousands of adults how to read and write, according to the army education training plan used in the war.

"Our aim is not to try to teach basic English to the entire colored population," he said, in explaining the plan, "but to provide a six-week course in as many communities as we can reach during the next six months, which will enable large numbers of our people to conduct their everyday affairs more efficiently.

"We hope that this step will stimulate a nation-wide interest by the United States government and all citizens for the passage of federal-aid-to-education bills now before congress.

Principal speaker at the conference will be Dr. Horace Mann Bond, president of Lincoln university, Pennsylvania.

Among the college presidents who will attend are Dr. Charles Wesley, president of Wilberforce; Dr. R. V. Moore, Bethune-Cookman college; Dr. Richard I. McKinney, Storer college; and Dr. L. Harrison, Langston university, Okla.



ALBERT Barnett

Illiteracy Rate High In State Of Alabama

THERE is much of interest this week along the news fronts of the nation.

From Alabama, seat of government of the Confederacy during the stirring regime of famed Jeff Davis, comes word that the illiteracy rate is assuming alarming proportions.

Florence, Ala., reports that a recent state-wide study reveals that only 20 percent of the students go further than the eighth grade and only seven percent go to college for one year. Even in the first grade, one third of the state's pupils make miserable showings.

Commenting on the situation, a State Teacher's college instructor, doubtless hit the heart of the trouble when he stated:

"We have illiteracy not only among the illiterates, but also among the intellectuals, for they do not assume civic, health and human responsibilities. Our rural children in Alabama are two years below the national average."

The instructor's statement gives both substance and weight to the great training program conceived by Booker T. Washington when he laid the foundation for the great work that has since made Tuskegee Institute the vocational center of the world, many of whose graduates have distinguished themselves both at home and abroad in various lines of endeavor.

On Adult Illiteracy Progress In Attack Claimed By Caliver

By JAMES L. HICKS

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—Concrete progress in the attack on adult illiteracy was claimed last Monday by Dr. Ambrose Caliver, a specialist in Negro education in the United States Office of Education and director of the Adult Education Project, sponsored by that office.

The project is aimed at attacking the problem of illiteracy among adults who have had less than five years of schooling. It is being financed by the Carnegie Corporation of New York, which recently granted $25,000 for its continuance for two more years.

Going into the second year of the project now is well under way with about 500 adult students enrolled in twenty-five classes in colleges and communities in three states.

Dr. R. O. Johnson, assistant director of the project who is on leave from Morris Brown College where he is the head of the department of education and psychology, said the attack on illiterates to become functionally literate.

Dr. Caliver and his staff point to progress from the problem of illiteracy to the actual teaching of

General

Anti-illiteracy project to receive funds; 15,000 adults to be schooled yearly

Lincoln Clarion — Wed 11-3-48

Kansas City Call

Washington—(ANP)—Dr. Ambrose Caliver, FSA specialist for higher education among Negroes, announced here last week that he had received pledges of financial assistance to a project sponsored by the U. S. Office of education to wipe out illiteracy among adult Negroes from four national Negro organizations. The assistance given by these organizations will help maintain the project, which has been underway for two years until adequate federal funds are procured.

The organization named as supporters of the plan are Phi Beta Sigma fraternity, Conference of Negro Land Grant colleges, American Teachers association and the Improved Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. The project is currently in operation at Atlanta university; Fort Valley, Tennessee and Virginia State colleges; and Hampton institute, aided by grants totaling $48,910 from the Carnegie cororation.

Dr. Caliver said that the program offered workshops, college courses and fellowships to provide teachers and community leaders specifically trained for adult work. The assumption of greater responsibility by 50 Negro colleges in preparing 5,000 teachers and 250 supervisors of adult education will lead to making between 15,000 and 20,000 individuals literate in another year, he added.

Wed 11-3-48

During the last two years, nearly 1,000 teachers of adults have been aided by the project. Dr. Caliver pointed out that these teachers have donated $15,000 to further the work, as evidence of their faith in it.

Through June 30, $45,000 has been expended on the project. Allotment of $17,050 to six participating colleges were spent within their areas for demonstration classes and college courses in adult education .Hampton served as custodian of the fund provided by the Carnegie corporation.

In addition, services for the adult education. Hampton served contributed without cost to the government by Miner Teachers college, Washington; several divisions of the D. C., public schools and those in Baltimore; Albany, Ga.; Little Rock; and the state department of education in Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, and Texas.

Dr. Caliver held that the "timeliness" of the project was emphasized by the army experiences during the last war and the "anticipated problems of the selective service here at home."

He also reported that representatives of Belgium, Haiti, China, England, India, Indonesia and South Africa, and UNESCO officials have sought information from this project as an aid in combatting illiteracy among other peoples.

Bill to Reduce Adult Illiteracy in Senate

The Afro American Baltimore Md.

WASHINGTON (NNPA)—Three Senators, last Thursday, introduced a bill providing for Federal aid to the States for the removal of adult illiteracy by the development and maintenance of special programs of basic elementary education for adults.

1948

According to the 1940 Census, there were more than 10,000,000 adults in the U.S. 25 years of age and over, who could not read and write at all, or whose reading and writing ability was insufficient to be of practical use.

S. 1513

In offering the measure on behalf of himself, Sen. Wayne Morse (Rep., Ore.), Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (Dem., Wash.) and Sen. Harley M. Kilgore (Dem., W. Va.) pointed out that during World War II, the Selective Service system found that 350,000 illiterates signed their names by an "X." Of this number, 130,000 were white and 220,000 were colored.

As We See It

Negro Industrial Schools, A Retrogressive Campaign

By Abner W. Berry

IT STRIKES ME AS BEING slightly awry that a campaign for Negro industrial schools should be launched in honor of Abraham Lincoln, the Emancipator. But that program was announced by the Booker T. Washington Birthplace Memorial on Lincoln's birthday.

On rereading the "Life and Times of Frederick Douglass," friends and adviser of Lincoln, and the outstanding spokesman for the Negroes before and during the Civil War, I found that he favored such a program back in 1848. Now something must be wrong—and not with the Negroes—if we can come back to the same program in 1948, 100 years later.

Dean Ernest O. Melby, of New York University, chairman of the Booker T. Washington campaign in New York City, ought to know—and he does.

"The failure of America to provide adequate education for our Negro citizens," Dean Melby states, "has increased disease, fostered crime and lowered the living standards of the entire nation."

The good Dean plans to raise money for such schools through the sale of the Booker T. Washington half dollars, charging one dollar for each coin.

•

MAYOR O'DWYER added his send-off to the campaign and called it a fitting way of honoring Lincoln and Washington. Both gentlemen are off the right track leading to adequate education for Negroes.

It was all right for Harriet Beecher Stowe, the Abolitionist writer, and others to organize industrial schools for the free Negroes in the northern cities. Then the citizenship of the Negroes wasn't clear. The great majority of the Negroes were still enslaved. Private industrial education was, then, a means of furthering freedom.

But now that the Civil War is over and presumably WON by the federal armies, to campaign for Negro industrial schools is to turn backward toward the 19th century.

It is even more than that—it is subsidizing Jimcrow.

FOR THE BENEFIT of the Mayor and Dean Melby the facts show that the poorest Negro schools and the best white schools in the South are located in areas where Negroes constitute a majority of the population. The local school boards get funds based on the Negro population, and then divide it as follows:

In Mississippi, latest statistics reveal that $11.96 is spent on a Negro child to $71.60 for a white child. In individual counties the disparity is even greater. This situation holds true from Maryland to Texas.

Now, the Booker T. Washington Memorial is asking the people of New York and America to make up this discrepancy. And if we do we will make Jimcrow schools profitable.

Negro education needs more than a voluntary program for building industrial schools. What is needed in 1948 America is a program to do away with the arrogant Jimcrow system which is being militantly defended by the minority which profits from it.

It is not as Dean Melby puts it at all. He says, "By establishing industrial training schools, the Booker T. Washington Birthplace Memorial will be rendering a great service to the nation."

•

IT WOULD BE a service to the would-be insurgent Southern governors and the white-supremacist politicians now on the warpath against non-segregated education. And anything that is of service to these gentlemen is, in my opinion, against the nation.

The best way to honor Lincoln is to fight for the expansion of freedom—in education as in every other sphere of American life. Education cannot be free for Negroes or white as long as it is Jimcrow education.

The white students in the South are in danger of losing their educational rights because the Bourbon bigwigs want to retain Jimcrow. They would abolish all education rather than endanger their political dictatorship.

The Mayor and the Dean are doing a disservice to education in the South with this new industrial school program. The fight for free education is in an entirely different arena.

The launching of such a program on Lincoln's Birthday is, to me, a misuse of historical landmarks.

S. J. Phillips Is President; Enroll 150 For Training

Industrial School at Virginia Birthplace of Famed Educator Made Possible By Sale of 1 Million Memorial Half-dollars To Public

Roanoke, Va.—Despite the harsh criticism from many of the "agitating" members of his race, S. J. Phillips of Tuskegee has succeeded in erecting an industrial school at the birthplace of Booker T. Washington, twenty miles from here. The school which opened in October, began with an enrollment of 150 students, most of whom come from the immediate area in which the school is located. Mr. Phillips who is president of the school says that soon there will be a dormitory on the campus and the school will then be able to take care of boarding students.

The campaign to launch the school began in 1946 when the Federal Government minted five million memorial half-dollars and gave permission for them to be sold for one dollar each. One million have already been sold, out of which the school realized a half million dollars. The school was begun with this sum and the campaign is now under way to get the remainder of million of the half dollars sold, Mr. Phillips announced. When this is done, it will bring in a total of two million dollars. Mr. Phillips states that one million dollars will be set aside as an endowment fund and the other million put into the operating treasury. He says the size of the school will be determined by the support the public gives it and he hopes that every American who reveres the memory of Booker T. Washington will buy one or more of the memorial half-dollars.

Students enrolled in the school are taking training in building trades, agriculture, auto mechanics and home service occupations, all of which are occupations demanding well-trained persons and which pay well. Other occupations in which some students are enrolled are typing, tailoring, printing, and truck and transportation driving. The school owns a 216 acre farm.

Mrs. Portia Washington Pittman, daughter of Booker T. Washington has been a faithful aide to Mr. Phillips in getting the school established. Now 65, she continues very active in all she can do to make the project succeed. Recently she reviewed the circumstances under which the school project got started. She stated that she read in the paper that the plantation at Hale's Ford where her father was born was to be sold at auction. She got in touch with S. J. Phillips, who in turn spoke to the executives of the Nehi Corporation of Columbus, Georgia, and they enthusiastically advanced the money with which to purchase the plantation. The executives also granted Mr. Phillips a leave of absence from his salesmanship work with the corporation to push the sales of the memorial half dollars.

Mrs. Pittman is unashamed of lauding the educational theory her father expounded more than fifty years ago and which he so notably put into practice at Tuskegee Institute. Mr. Washington, she stated "always thought that one should learn to do common things in an uncommon way. In that manner, you can develop cooperation and racial understanding. Those things take care of themselves if a person can make his own living and thus become a better citizen."

Booker T. Washington was born in 1856. At the time of his death in 1914 he was one of the nation's most illustrious citizens. A successful industrial school erected near his humble birthplace is regarded by many citizens as the most appropriate memorial the nation could erect in Booker T. Washington's memory.

A Negro Program

To the Editor of The News-Age-Herald:

My father, Booker T. Washington, was a firm believer in the kindness and helpfulness of all men. He felt too that our Southland would never achieve its highest goal until those of us who are of the South—white and black—learn to work together for the common good.

For the past four years I have been working with the Booker T. Washington Birthplace Memorial to establish a program based on my father's teachings. It was his belief—and it is ours—that the Negro will succeed in proportion as he earns for himself the respect and good will of those about him. We believe that this can best be achieved by learning to do the things that the world needs done—and doing them efficiently.

To this end, here at my father's birthplace and in nearby Roanoke, we have set up a program of trade and industrial education that is arousing the interest of the nation. It is based on the sane, fundamental teachings of my father and will help the Negro to stand on his own feet. We believe that many of the problems of today can be solved through such a program. We know that there will be no room for distrust, for communism and all of its attendant evils among those whom we inspire with my father's ideals. S. J. Phillips, president of the Booker T. Washington Birthplace Memorial, is a sincere, capable person who is doing a grand job among the masses of our people along lines indicated by my father.

As the only living child of Booker T. Washington, I am happy to see a program being put into effect that will mean so much to the South in particular and the nation in general. I would be deeply grateful for expressions of good will and encouragement from anyone who might be interested.

TWO-SCHOOLS-OF-THOUGHT DEPARTMENT

The Booker T. Washington Birthplace Memorial boys (S. J. Phillips put on a show for House Congressional Committee on Public Works. In favor of his bill (HR 4664 introduced by Miller, R-Neb.) to acquire Carver and Slowe government residential halls for training Negro domestics, he presented himself, his Vice Prexy Howard, Booker T.'s daughter Portia, and a Reverend Jemison who claimed his father represent 4 million Baptists.

Then as a "piece de resistance" or "Mickey Finn" according to your point of view, he brought in some dozen characters dressed as maids, janitors, waiters, carpenters, etc., and put on a "demonstration" of what would go on in his schools. The maids swept, the janitors janitored, but the popeyed Congressmen had eyes only for a luscious turkey being carved by a chef. Chum, it was a killer. The Congressmen accepted and eagerly gobbled the turkey but somehow we weren't hungry. We went away from there firmly converted to the old DuBois anti-Booker T. school of thought.

Now get us straight, there's nothing wrong with being a janitor or a waiter or a personal servant, personally we have been all of them and more in our varied career. But they certainly didn't belong, it was agreed at the press table, in Congress.

It was a pleasant relief to hear the other side. Rep. Keef (R.-Wis.), Administrator Raymond Foley of Housing, Prexy Mordecai of Howard U., etc. all urged without fanfare passage of HR-5509 which would give these properties to Howard for dormitories.

School At Washington's Birthplace Flourishing

ROANOKE, Va. — One hundred and fifty colored men, most of them veterans, are beginning their second month as students of the newly established Booker T. Washington School of Industrial Training located on the site of the noted educator's birthplace about 20 miles from here.

In explaining recently to New York newsmen that the institution was established more than a year ago, Mrs. Portia Washington Pittman, daughter of Booker T. Washington, stated that three years ago she read where her father's birthplace would be sold at auction. "I had always wanted the place to be recognized and developed. Up until that time nobody paid any attention to it," she said.

Quick Action

Quick action on the part of Mrs. Pittman and S. J. Phillips resulted in executives of the Nehi corporation in Columbus, Ga., agreeing to advance the money for the property. Then there was the problem of financing the school.

In 1946 the government minted 5 million Booker T. Washington memorial half dollars. The school received permission to sell them for $1 apiece, and with the sale of the first million, the school realized $500,000, enough to open its doors this fall. The plan now is to sell the remainder and build a million dollar endowment fund for the school and a similar amount for its operating treasury.

On the site where the noted educator was born in 1856 now stand new buildings in which building trades, agriculture, auto mechanics, home and service occupations are taught.

Mr. Phillips' only comment was: "We'll make the school as big as the American public will help us to."

Teachers are being trained to impart to the students Washington's idea of the dignity of efficient labor and the ability to live on the farm and off the farm.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL

TULSA, Okla. — Tulsa county commissioners this week will award contracts for the construction of a new $1,400,000 Booker T. Washington high school building. Specifications in all bids require that the building be ready for occupancy within 500 days.

14h 1948

County

Library Set Up In Bartow County

Students in the Atlanta University School of Library Service last week were in Cartersville, Georgia, to organize the library collection of the Bartow County Schools. Invited by the Bartow County Teachers Association, the students were assisted in this experience by members of the faculty including Dr. Virginia L. Jones, Miss L. K. Daly, Mrs. Hallie B. Brooks and Mrs. Josephine Thompson.

The books, numbering between six and seven thousand, were a gift from Mr. W. L. Buffington of Paine College (Augusta, Georgia), who has given many books to the Faith Cabin Libraries.

The library in Cartersville is one of several county libraries being set up in Georgia.

14h 1948

Faith Cabin Libraries

Used Books for Georgia Negroes

Residents of Greene County have collected 17,000 pounds of used books for a log cabin library being erected at Haddock in Jones County, Ga., in the plan for a series of Faith Cabin Libraries to serve Negroes in backwoods communities in the South. This was announced yesterday by Herman Styler, who heads the New York drive for books to stock the libraris.

14h 1948 Public

Columbus Library

Editor Constitution: This letter is prompted by my deep interest in the welfare of the Columbus Public Library as well as certain moral issues that are to me of prime importance.

I believe that no one owes a greater debt to the Columbus Public Library than I. During my childhood and the formative years of my youth, our Library was my spiritual home.

I understand there has been some altercation about allowing all citizens, both white and Negro, the use of the new Columbus Public Library. I do not understand the concrete issues involved but I understand too well the abstract ones. Always it has been an intolerable shame to me to know that Negroes are not accorded the same intellectual privileges as white citizens. As an author, represented in the Library, I feel it is my duty to speak not only for myself but for the august dead who are represented on the shelves and to whom I owe an incalculable debt. I think of Tolstoy, Chekov, Abraham Lincoln and Thomas Paine.

I would like to go on record to say that we owe to these (the molders of the conscience of our civilization) the freedom of all citizens regardless of race, to benefit by their wisdom, which is our dearest inheritance.

CARSON McCULLERS.

Nyak, N. Y.

Miss McCullers, native of Columbus, Ga., is regarded as one of the best of the modern novelists. Her latest novel was "A Member of the Wedding."

MAYS LIBRARY OPENS FOR NEGROES IN SOUTH CAROLINA

COLUMBIA, S. C. (ANP) — The Benjamin Mays library was opened here last month for Negroes in the largest and best quarters yet operated for colored readers.

Named for Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, president of Morehouse college in Atlanta, the library is located in the Tompkins office building. It is the colored branch of the Greenwood library.

Originally the library contained 50 books and was housed in the Brewer school. In 1943 the Percival Funeral home provided a room rent-free for the collection of about 400 books. The present unit in its new home has 850 volumes including six sets of encyclopedias.

Dr. Reddick Quits N.Y. Library Post

Terms City Indifferent, To Join Atlanta Staff

NEW YORK — In a statement of sharp criticism of the New York City Fathers, Dr. L. D. Reddick resigned his position as curator of the Schomburg Collection of Negro Literature of the New York Public Library.

Charging the city government and library authorities with indifference to his efforts to build a world center for the study of Negro history, literature and art, he said that he had done his best and that "it is now up to the people of New York City."

Needs Cited

Located in Harlem, the largest colored urban community on earth, the collection, he said "is sorely in need of an increased staff, additional books, shelving space and facilities for preserving the valuable items that are already in the Collection and should be acquired."

Dr. Reddick will become chief of the Atlanta University Library on April 1. He came to the Schomburg Collection as curator in 1939, succeeding Arthur A. Schomburg, founder. He is a graduate of Fisk University and holds a Ph. D. from the University of Chicago.

Reddick Tells Why He Quit Schomburg Post

NEW YORK--In a statement of sharp criticism of the New York City Fathers, Dr. L. D. Reddick resigned his position as Curator of the Schomburg Collection of Negro Literature of the New York Public Library.

Dr. Reddick charged the city government and library authorities with indifference to his efforts to build a world center for the study of Negro history, literature and art.

"DONE MY BEST"

He said, "I have done the best that I could to build a center of Negro culture with the limited resources the New York Public Library has been willing or able to provide. It is now up to the people of New York City."

Dr. Reddick pointed out that New York City with UN, Broadway, radio networks, news gathering agencies, Wall Street, great libraries and museums, and the many diverse peoples is indeed the capital of the world and it should also be, he feels, the capital of Negro culture.

The Schomburg Collection is located in Harlem, the largest Negro urban community on earth. It is sorely in need of an increased staff, additional books, shelving space and facilities for preserving the valuable items that are already in the Collection.

ON THE THRESHOLD

"We are at the threshold of a remarkable social, intellectual and artistic development of Negroid peoples the world over. It is a pity that the evidences of this renaissance cannot be properly preserved because of indifferent public officials who do find funds for other things while the Schomburg Collection starves."

Dr. Reddick will become Chief of the Atlanta University library April 1. He came to the Schomburg Collection as Curator in 1939 succeeding Arthur A. Schomburg, founder. He is a graduate of Fisk and the University of Chicago.

N.Y. Libraries Fall Far Short of Standards, Figures Reveal

NEW YORK—New York City's financial support for libraries measures poorly against the minimum standards for library support just announced by the American Library Association, according to Ralph A. Beals, director of the N.Y. Public Library. He revealed that his library per capita income is only 75 cents as compared with a desired one of $2.25 and a limited one of $1.50.

In addition, the New York libraries fall short in book standards, the branches of the N.Y. Public Library receiving approximately 10 cents per capita as compared with the 26 cents per capita set by the association as minimum standard book appropriation.

Va. City Closes J. C. Library Unit, Opens Main Center to All

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — All facilities of the main Public Library were opened to colored citizens and the separate branch on Fourth St., established 12 years ago, closed down last week, following passage of a resolution to this effect by the local Library Board.

The resolution said in part: "There appears to be no occasion at this time for segregation of the races in their use of the City Library . . . the experience of other Virginia cities has demonstrated that operation of separate facilities is unnecessary."

Negroes' Free Library Dedication Set Today

Montgomery's first free library for Negroes will be dedicated today at the formal opening from 5 to 8 p.m. at 321 Union Street.

Officially named the Union Street Branch of the Carnegie Library, it will be directed by Bertha Louise Pleasant and under the supervision of the Montgomery Friends of the Library Association.

The librarian, a native of Montgomery, was graduated from Alabama State Teachers College, and the Atlanta University, Atlanta, Georgia.

The Union Street Branch Library is jointly sponsored by the City Federation of Negro Women's Clubs and a Negro Library Committee. It will begin functioning with approximately 1,700 volumes.

He Prepared Civil Rights Charts

Robert L. Bostic, graphical statistical analyst, who prepared charts for President Truman's Civil Rights Committee report, is shown at work in the library reference division of the Library of Congress in Washington. He is one of 1,633 employees who help run what is said to be the largest library in the world. For more about the Congressional Library and its operation see AFRO MAGAZINE in this issue.

Makes Protest On City Library That Bars Colored

COLUMBUS, Ga. — (ANP)— A Negro citizens' delegation last week questioned the legality of appropriation of public funds to construct a city-county library which would exclude persons of African descent.

Leading the group protesting the ban was Dr. T. H. Brewer, well known physician. Spokesman for the group was Oscar D. Smith, attorney, who asked the city commission if it was right for public funds to be expended on any project which expressly excludes part of the population and if there is any plan now under consideration for making library facilities available to colored people.

Mayor Walter Richards told the delegation that the city commission feels that colored people are entitled to library facilities and "we certainly intend to provide those facilities." A formal reply to the question was to be read at the municipal board's meeting, Feb. 24.

According to Mr. Smith, the title to the Bradley tract, where the new library will be erected, states that persons of African descent would not be allowed to enter the library. The Bradley site was the home of the late W. C. Bradley, white Columbus capitalist.

Mays Library Opens In Columbia

COLUMBIA, S. C. — (ANP)— The Benjamin Mays Library was opened here last month for Negroes in the largest and best quarters yet operated for colored readers.

Named for Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, president of Morehouse College in Atlanta, the library is located in the Hopkins office building. It is the colored branch of the Greenwood Library.

Mrs. Wynetta Cummings Miller, school teacher, is the librarian.

It was pointed out that Columbus Negroes represent one-third of the population of the city.

Library Ban On Biography Of Robeson Scored

NEW YORK — (NNPA) — William C. Piper, member of the West Virginia Legislature who banned Shirley Graham's book, "Paul Robeson—Citizen of the World," from West Virginia's public libraries, last Thursday was branded by the publishers of the book as either an "over zealous patriot or an ignoramus."

West Virginia libraries removed the book from their shelves on March 14 after Mr. Piper objected to children in the state being allowed to read the biography of a Communist."

Mrs. Kathryn Messner of the Julian Messner Publishers, Inc., 8 West 40th street, wrote to the West Virginia library commission protesting the ban on the book and questioning Mr. Piper's authority to have it removed from the libraries.

Terming Miss Graham's book as the kind of success story worth reading by young people of today who need "real flesh and blood heroes," Mrs. Messner described the book as the simple story of a youth who, "in spite of poverty, prejudice and loneliness, became a football star, a Phi Beta Kappa, and world famed actor and singer."

Miss Graham, winner of the Julian Messner award of $6,000 for her book, "There Was Once a Slave," said she did not know Mr. Piper, "But apparently he does not consider that either Mr. Robeson or I, being Negroes, share in the rights derived from the Constitution." She added that youths of both races "lose by the banning of such a book."

The book about Robeson appeared on the recommended list of children's books published by the H. H. Wilson Company and the Book List published by the American Library Association.

It could not be learned what steps the publishers intend to take to have the ban lifted, but Miss Graham has turned the matter over to her lawyers.

The Library Board's Action

The Courier-Journal

It is good to read the news that the Library Board is abolishing discrimination against our colored citizens. We thought for a time that the Jefferson County Medical Society was going to take the lead in our community, but it seems to be lagging behind.

We are all aware of the friendly rivalry between art and science. Science has been boasting for some time of the giant strides it has been making for the welfare of mankind, but in our local community, at least, it now has to bow to its rival, art, which, in this instance, has shown it up as a laggard with a game leg. Louisville, Ky. FAIR PLAY.

Louisville. Sat. 5-15-48

Board Votes to Open Main Library to Negroes

The Courier-Journal

Their 5-4 Action Doesn't Apply to Branches; City Becomes First In South to Take Step

Louisville, Ky.

Wed. 5-12-48

The Library Board yesterday voted 5 to 4 to open the Main Library at Fourth and York to Negroes, effective immediately.

The action, approved after a tense 30-minute discussion, does not apply to neighborhood branches. Atwood S. Wilson, who submitted the resolution, explained the Main Library has educational facilities not available at Negro branch libraries.

Librarian C. R. Graham said Louisville, by the board's decision, becomes the first Southern city to end library segregation.

Several Ask Postponement.

Voting for the measure were the Rev. Felix N. Pitt, H. Cecil Powell, Robert L. Sanders, Alan Schneider, and Wilson, who also is principal of Central High School. Opposed were Pope McAdams, G. W. McDaniel, Dan J. Sullivan, and Mrs. Starling Fagin. Dr. Joseph Rauch, board president who votes only in case of a tie, later said he favored the step. Wed. 5-12-48

Several board members asked that the vote be postponed. When Dr. Rauch accepted Father Pitt's motion to put the issue to test, those voting against it explained they did so because they thought the matter had not been given enough consideration.

However, Wilson observed that Mayor Farnsley had "left it up to the Library Board" when queried about Negro access to the Main Library at one of his recent City Hall "beef sessions."

Father Pitt, secretary of the Catholic School Board, pointed out that the controversial subject first was debated by the board a year ago. Rabbi Rauch said letters notifying board members that the resolution was to be submitted yesterday were mailed April 28. Louisville, Ky.

Father Pitt remarked: "I don't see how the board of trustees has a right to indefinitely forbid any group of citizens to use the Public Library." Wed. 5-12-48

McAdams said he had no prejudice on the matter, but expressed doubt that the board had explored public sentiment sufficiently. McAdams suggested the City might poll Library users on the question.

Wilson Outlines Stand.

Others thought this would prove inflammatory. Sanders, principal of Highland Junior High School, contended that many persons denouncing interracial Library rights "don't possess a Library card and never enter a Library."

In a written statement outlining his stand, Wilson declared: "In view of the fact that the Library is tax-supported, it is logical that all citizens share its facilities.

"Any foreigner, regardless of color, may come into our main branch for reading and research. Can we, therefore, logically deny this privilege to our Negro citizens? The Courier-Journal

"It is my frank belief that the type of Negro citizen who would want to use the facilities of the Main Library would be of the highest caliber. It would be our college students, our research students, and those of a type whose culture would do honor to this great institution."

Delay Called 'Easy Way.'

Louisville, Ky.

Schneider, City Hall publicity secretary, said to delay the decision would be "an easy way out, but a cowardly evasion of responsibility. We don't exclude Negroes when we collect taxes or draft soldiers. Why should they be banned from libraries?"

Powell said that regardless of the feelings of individual board members, interracial libraries are "in the cards." Wed.

The board also agreed to allow Americans for Democratic Action, anti-Communist liberal group, to meet in the library auditorium, provided it remains nonpartisan. Dr. Rauch said organizations convening in the library are forbidden to engage in partisan politics, charge fees, or foster "subversion." 5-12-48

In its application for meeting space, the A.D.A. said it would indorse candidates, but not on the basis of their political affiliations. McAdams asked whether A.D.A. members are politicians, but in the best sense of the term."

Gets $2,500 For Expenses.

The board voted Librarian Graham $2,500 annually for expenses. Graham now receives the constitutional salary limit of $5,000 a year, but Schneider said Graham spends part of this on library business.

A review of the library's proposed 1948-49 budget disclosed the institution will ask the City for approximately $60,000 more this year to defray higher operating costs. 5-12-48

A $125,450 contract for installation of six moving stars from the first to third floors in the Kaufman-Straus Company building also was approved. The Library Board owns the building and leases it to the store for a percentage of its gross income. The contract was awarded to the Otis Elevator Company on its promise to install the electric stairs before the 1948 Christmas shopping season. The Westinghouse Electric Company submitted a lower bid but was unable to guarantee installation before next year.

DOWN WENT THE BARRIER

The Journal

Louisville, May 18—This city is still celebrating the fall of the barrier last week when the Library board voted to opens the doors of the Main library to all the people of this city, irrespective of race. Incorrect Date

There was no inkling of the fight against the Jim Crow practice before the night of the vote. Long towards the close of a stated meeting of the board, Principal Atwood Wilson of Central High School, only colored member of the board, ups with a motion that the doors of the main building be opened. The vote was taken, and there he was with victory in his hand. 5-20-48

Public (Schombrug Collection)

PURSUIT OF DEMOCRACY

Pittsburgh Courier

Columnist Discusses Future Development of Schomburg Collection

By MARJORIE McKENZIE

Sat 11-27-48

(The views expressed in this c opi

PERHAPS not many people who live outside of New York or who have not attended Negro colleges or who have not been engaged in research about Negroes have ever heard of the Schomburg Collection. It is a legacy of books and other materials by and about the Negro which was left by Arthur Schomburg to the New York Public Library.

M. McKenzie

Schomburg was a New Yorker and a Negro to whom the Collection had been a life-long hobby and investment. It has been housed for more than twenty years in the 135th Street Branch of the New York Public Library, lending its often unique and rare services to the Harlem community and to scholars the world over.

Pittsburgh Sat.

The present curator, Dr. Dorothy G. Williams, recently has recommended to the trustees of the library, and they have approved, that the future development of the Schomburg Collection should be in the direction of expanding its facilities as a scholarly research library.

* * *

TO NON-SCHOLARS such a decision does not appear on its face to be very earth-shaking business. It is, however, a matter of real, mundane significance and, reduced to its simplest implications, is a recognition by one of the world's great library systems of the importance of the Negro minority in the management of world affairs.

Research people, whether engaged in individual studies, such as doctoral dissertations or in group projects, such as the Carnegie-Myrdal Study, or as journalists, creative artists or Government personnel, have the most difficult time locating and synthesizing information about the Negro.

There are, of course, other libraries with extensive holdings in this field, notably the Atlanta, Duke, Fisk, Howard, North Carolina (Chapel Hill) and Yale University Libraries and the Library of Congress. Not much cooperation and considerable rivalry exist among them.

* * *

THERE IS DUPLICATION of data, yet many gaps in learning, some of them unrecognized. An overview is sorely needed. Schomburg is the logical institution to perform this function because of the superior quality of much of its material, its position as a unit of the New York Public Library, free of Governmental pressures yet possessed of resources, and because of its location in a city where it is available to the largest number of people.

One of the immediate requirements in the field of Negro studies is the production and publication of bibliographic aids. The only extant general bibliography is Work's "Bibliography of the Negro," which was incomplete when done in 1928. Real scholarship about Negroes has developed within the last three decades and no one has collected and indexed the total in a professional way.

Under a revised emphasis of its own, Schomberg could stimulate the preparation of a series of bibliographic studies by specialists in various fields on a project basis, thus identifying and presenting the material to the whole world of scholarship, here and abroad.

Sat 11-27-48

A COROLLARY OF this development would be the undertaking of a competent reference and information service to the individuals and agencies, public and private, that use, interpret and disseminate information about the Negro. An observation regarding the potential use of such a service by UN from its permanent New York home is irresistible. The path of scholarship must provide a steady parallel to the road of political and social progress. No more logical nerve center for information about the darker people of the world suggests itself than Schomburg.

Schomburg cannot be all things to all men, however. If it is to become an active research and reference library of top-flight calibre, it must give up its other functions as a branch library for Harlem and as a leadership force in the community. There are other voices to speak for Harlem in its struggles, but scholars are rare and their gifts should be husbanded. There would be no loss, for Schomburg's local services can and should be performed by the branch library.

Harlem Aroused Over Fate Of Schombura Unit

Daily Worker

NEW YORK--When they heard the rumor that the Schomburg Collection was being destroyed, two elderly women, Mrs. S. Chapman and Mrs. Florence Willis immediately rushed to the Collection volunteering to do anything they could to help save it. Actually, they left home in such haste that they forgot their eye-glasses and had to be slightly assisted themselves when they arrived at the Library. They were greatly relieved to find that the Schomburg Collection literally was not being destroyed but that it was suffering greatly from neglect by the City Fathers and top-level library authorities.

The following day two small boys, who happened to be listening to the radio when station WINS broadcast a program, "The Battle of the Books" which told about the deplorable conditions in the Schomburg Collection, came up to see what it was all about.

The condition of this special library of Negro literature and art was dramatically brought to the attention of the public two weeks ago when the Curator, Dr. L. D. Reddick, who has served it for the past nine years, resigned charging city officials and library administrators with not providing adequate funds to maintain this institution. For some time Reddick had been asking for funds for acquiring new and rare books, filing cabinets for valuable papers, microfilms of Negro newspapers, elevator, drinking fountains and rest rooms for the reading public.

NEWSPAPER SPREAD

The news of this resignation and the accompanying charges was spread on the front pages of the three Harlem newspapers and has been the topic of editorials, of several conferences and organized group meetings.

The "New York Age" deplored the resignation as "a cultural blow not only to the community but to the whole realm of research."

Mass 2-7-49

In an editorial entitled, "New Yorkers are Interested,' the 'Peoples Voice" stated, "We were surprised to learn last week that Dr. L. D. Reddick has resigned as curator of the famous Schomburg Collection of the New York Public Library. It is especially regettable to learn that this resignation comes because of differences which are said to have arisen between Dr. Reddick and the City Fathers over administration of this famous collection."

"We are certain that both Dr. Reddick and the city fathers will want to do everything to preserve this collection and to see that it continues to be used effectively. For that reason every possible means should be explored to determine whether or not the present misunderstanding is irreconcilable."

The same week the Amsterdam News in a long editorial accompanied by a cartoon declared that "Careful investigation has brought to light deplorable facts."

Schomburg Collection Gets Woman Curator

Texas Courier

Los Angeles Sentinel

NEW YORK CITY—For a week now a woman has been presiding as curator of the valuable Schomburg collection, the best extensive library in this country of race literature. She's young Dorothy Williams. At 24, she has her Master's Degree from Columbia, majoring in library science; and since then, has obtained her Doctorate from the University of Chicago. Following scholarly Dr. Lawrence B. Reddick, who vacated the post to take charge of Atanta Universlity's library, Dr. Williams has no qualms about taking over. She recognizes that she is in a position about which there has been much controversy.

Los Angeles Calif.

Miss Williams came to Schomburg directly from six month's workout in the reference division of the Main Library on Fifth Ave. and 42nd St.

Mass 5-17-41

14h 1948

Public (Schomburg Collection)

Ex-Curator Charges City Neglects Schomburg Collection of Negro Art

By John Hudson Jones

City neglect of the Schomburg Collection of Negro literature and art has aroused many Harlem citizens, former curator Dr. L. D. Reddick said yesterday. Dr. Reddick resigned Jan. 14 and sharply criticized the city fathers for ignoring the Negro culture center housed at the 136 St. Library.

The curator, whose resignation becomes effective in April, said that since he exposed conditions, housewives, scholars, school children, newspapermen, and community leaders have visited the library to voice their indignation.

Dr. Reddick, appointed curator in 1939, charged that facilities for the care of priceless manuscripts, objects d'art, and other items were lacking. He criticized library officials for lack of interest in the finest collection of its kind in the world, and for not providing among other things microfilms for the preservation of data from Negro newspapers. Added to this was an inadequate underpaid staff, Dr. Reddick declared.

CITY WASN'T "CONCERNED"

Dr. Reddick, who has been named librarian for Atlanta University, declared he had asked the city to place the collection in the library system to avoid its being "the child of the Circulation Department and a foundling on the doors of departments not interested." But evidently Dr. Reddick hinted the city was not too concerned with a collection of Negro books and art.

The collection contains 12,000 books, 3,000 manuscripts, 2,000 etchings, and several thousand pamphlets. It was bought for the city in 1926 from Arthur A. Schomburg, a Puerto Rican who served as its curator until his death in 1938.

Library officials declare that "nothing can be done unless the city provides funds for the work Dr. Reddick declares necessary to maintain and add to the collection.

THE SCHOMBURG COLLECTION

Early this week the Schomburg Collection of the New York Public Library had its mention in the news when its director, Dr. Lawrence D. Reddick, announced the Honor Roll of Race Relations for 1947. But perhaps many of those who read this announcement knew little of what the Schomburg Collection is. It is, to begin with, about 14,000 books, 4,000 manuscripts, 5,000 etchings and several thousand pamphlets, dealing with Negro life and history the world over. It is also a center of research. It presents lectures for those interested in its subject. It is a place from which emanate good-will and understanding between races. The annual poll from which the Honor Roll is made up is an example of this constructive work.

But the Collection is badly handicapped, as are most other parts of our library service, by lack of funds. So serious has this become that Dr. Reddick, despairing of being able to do as fruitful work here as he wished, recently announced his resignation, effective April 1, to become chief librarian of Atlanta University. Cramped quarters, poor working conditions and lack of seminar rooms for advanced students are among the difficulties. The loss of Dr. Reddick, after nine years of admirable service, is typical of what happens when we let our libraries starve. Those interested might like to inspect the Collection, at 104 West 136th Street. And some might like to observe Negro History Week by doing something about the situation. It is estimated that $100,000 for permanent improvements and $45,000 for annual operating expenses would make the Collection really effective.

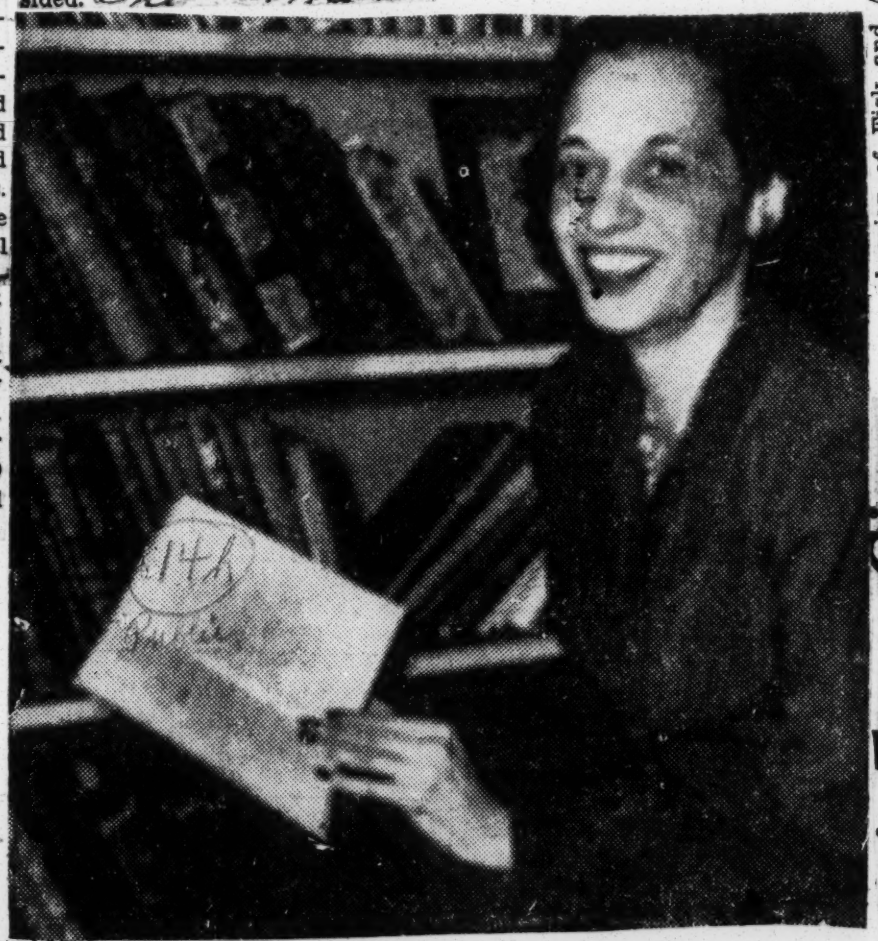
CITY FUND IS URGED TO SAVE NEGRO ART

A resolution urging Mayor O'Dwyer and the Board of Estimate to appropriate $100,000 to save the Schomburg Collection of the New York Public Library was passed yesterday by the New York Branch of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History. The collection contains contributions to literature, art, music and science by Negroes, in this and other countries.

Three hundred persons came to the Grand Street Boys Club for the eleventh annual breakfast of the association, closing the observance of Negro History Week. The program was dedicated to the 100th anniversary of the emancipation from slavery of the Virgin Islanders.

Steps to banish myths about Negroes were urged by Miss Ethel J. Alpenfels, anthropologist from New York University. She said scientific studies would refute prejudices, and advised courage "to expand the word American to include all citizens."

Other speakers were Dr. Eric Williams of Howard University and Edward R. Dudley of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Harcourt A. Tynes, regional director of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History, called for revision of textbooks containing misconceptions about Negroes. Councilman Benjamin J. Davis Jr. and Paul Ross, administrative secretary to the Mayor, also spoke. James E. Allen presided.



APPOINTED DIRECTOR OF SCHOMBURG COLLECTION — NEW YORK — Dr. Dorothy G. Williams has been appointed as acting curator of the Schomburg Art Collection of Negro Literature and History, 104 West 136th St..

Dorothy G. Williams former librarian of Fisk and Atlanta universities, has been appointed acting curator of the Schomburg collection of Negro literature and history, it was announced here last week by Miss Ester Johnston, chief of the circulation department, New York Public library. Graduated from Hunter college with a A. B. degree in 1932, Miss Williams also holds degrees of M. S. in library science from Columbia university, B. S. from Simmons college, and a Ph. D. in library science received from the University of Chicago last December. She has had 12 years of experience as a professional librarian, including a year spent on the staff of the New York Public library, re-cataloguing the Schomburg collection. She returned to the library last year to work at the information desk in the central building. Interested in the fields of adult education, reference service and bibliography, she is author of several articles, including "National Negro Organizations and Their Publications" and "Film Forums at Atlanta University." Before the post of acting curator had been offered her, she was scheduled to take over the position of adult education specialist with UNESCO in Paris.

Professor's Error Gives Birth To Negro History

CHICAGO — Arthur Schomburg's life-long search for documentary proof of the Negro's contributions to history which resulted in the New York Public Library's prized Schomburg collection began as the result of a professor's error according to a May Negro Digest article "The Birth Of Negro History."

When Schomburg was a boy in school in his native Puerto Rico the Negro Digest article declares, a local professor told him to be glad he had some good Teutonic blood in him for Negroes were inferior and had no history. "With a name like Schomburg," the professor said "the Teutonic blood is enough to dominate the African blood in you.'

Stung and disbelieving, Schomburg lost to history as written by whites. In person and through contacts he combed the libraries and bookstalls of the entire world to assemble his collection.

Schomburg's basic premise was: "The American Negro must remake his past in order to make his future." And his collection which is now housed in the 135th Street branch of the New York Public Library proves his beliefs.

Dorothy Williams Chosen Curator of Schomburg Works

Dr. Dorothy Williams Chosen Curator Of Schomburg Collection

NEW YORK — (ANP) — Dr. Dorothy G. Williams, former li- NEW YORK — Dr. UNESCO in Paris.

Seek Funds To Improve Schomburg Collection

NEW YORK—(ANP)—In a meeting closing Negro History week, the New York branch of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History passed a resolution calling for Mayor O'Dwyer and the board of estimate to appropriate $100,000 to improve the Schomburg Collection of Negro history of the New York Public library.

The resolution also called for a $20,000 yearly appropriation for the upkeep and additions to the collection. Recently, the collection's curator, Dr. Lawrence D. Reddick, claimed that it was suffering from neglect.

At this meeting dedicated to the 100th anniversary of the freedom of slaves on the Virgin Islands, Miss Ethel J. Alpenfels, New York university anthropologist, told 300 guests that American education must be revised so the textbooks may include the latest scientific information refuting racial myths in America.

Other speakers included Dr. Eric Williams of Howard university; Edward R. Dudley of the NAACP legal staff; Harcourt A. Tynes, regional director of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History; City Councilman Benjamin J. Davis, Jr., and Paul Ross, the mayor's administrative secretary. James Egert Allen presided.

Schomburg Collection Not Being 'Neglected'

By OLLIE STEWART

NEW YORK—There are two sides to every question. There are even to sides to the charges made recently by Dr. L. D. Reddick, when he resigned as curator of the Schomburg Collection, 135th Street Branch Library, here in New York City.

Resigning Jan. 15 to become chief librarian at Atlanta University on April 1, at a substantial increase in salary, Dr. Reddick blasted the New York Public Library for its lack of financial support to the Schomburg Collection.

He said there had been a heavy turnover in his department workers, because of the low salaries paid the workers.

He said the city fathers either could not or would not appropriate enough money to keep the Schomburg Collection, one of the largest and most important libraries on colored people.

Neglect His Main Charge

He said many other things in his newspaper statements, but it all boiled down to one word—neglect. Neglect of the Schomburg Collection.

Shocked at the blast, and reluctant to answer, head library officials, nevertheless, consented this week to give the AFRO their side of the picture—not as an alibi—but as a means of getting all the facts before the public—facts they said Dr. Reddick omitted to mention.

First and foremost, Miss Anna L. Glantz, administrative assistant, who often repreesnts Ralph A. Beals, director, told this writer:

"The New York Public Library is very much in need of money, and has been for a number of years.

Others in Worse Condition

"The Schomburg Collection is not the only one of our library facilities that needs a budget increase. Actually, there are other facilities in a much worse condition, financially, than the Schomburg Collection."

Regarding salaries, Miss Glantz pointed out that of the 1800 public library employees, only 11 receive as much as $4,000 a year.

New York's library budget is now 11th among the big cities of the country, and in 1945 was 18th in the list of beginning salaries for professional librarians. And in 1945 New York lost one-fourth of its experienced librarians to other cities that pay higher salaries.

Meager Per Capita Expenditure

The present library budget in New York City is only 75c per capita—and if it were $2 per capita it could only be considered "reasonable." Nearly 76 libraries are now closed part of the time because there aren't enough librarians to go around.

There is definitely no discrimination against the Schomburg Collection, Miss Glantz emphasized.

To be entirely fair, she said, Dr. Reddick might have added to his charges the fact that the library for the blind is in a warehouse—and that the music lending library occupies only the first floor of an old building downtown.

$500,000 Needed for Salaries

Some branch libraries need new roofs, new furnaces, fire escapes repaired, additional fire exits, new flooring, plumbing repairs, new window shades, new paint and new equipment.

To grant salaries requested in the 1947-48 budget would require an increase of $500,000, and to grant budget requests for books would require $700,000 more.

The New York library has never bid for service on the basis of salary, Miss Glantz said, because New York's starting salary of $25.38 a week plus a $2.30 cost-of-living bonus does not compare with $40 in Detroit or $39 in St. Paul or even $35 in Oakland.

But a year in the New York system, she declared, is one of the best references any librarian can have.

Resignation Regretted

Dr. Reddick's resignation was accepted with regret, according to the administrative assistant, but New York could not bid against Atlanta University, nor could the Schomburg Collection be singled out for preferential treatment.

Library salaries are in four classes: (1) $2,220 to $2,450, (2) $2,460 to $2,820, (3) $2,880 to $3,120, and (4) $3,420 to $3,840.

The six persons on Dr. Reddick's staff were said to include Dr. Reddick in the class four bracket, two librarians in the class two bracket, a general clerk and a stenographer in class one, and a page who was paid $.65 per hour—the same as paid others in the same salary bracket.

Will Not Be Abandoned

"One bright spot in the picture," said Miss Glantz, "is the fact that several people who have come in to complain about the treatment of the Schomburg Collection are more liable than not to stay and volunteer to help the entire system.

"Dr. Reddick, who has been in the system since 1939, made it appear as though the Schomburg Collection had been singled out for neglect. We have no intention of abandoning the Collection."

Dr. Reddick was not criticized once during the interview, but it was observed that the Schomburg Collection was not a museum—and if the paintings and sculpture in it were sent to a New York museum there might be room to catalogue all the books and papers already received.

14h 1948

Dr. Lawrence D. Reddick, curator of the Schomburg collection at the 136th Street branch of the New York Public Library, who has been named head of the Atlanta University Library. Dr. Reddick will take office April 1. Thurs 1-8-48

Atlanta U. Names Reddick To Library Post

President Rufus E. Clement of Atlanta University has announced the appointment of Dr. Lawrence D. Reddick of New York City as head of the Atlanta University Library, it was made known this week. Dr. Reddick, who will have the rank of professor of history, will take office April 1, 1948.

A native of Jacksonville, Florida, Dr. Reddick was educated at Fisk University and the University of Chicago. He earned the Ph. D. at the last named institution. Since 1939 he has been curator of the Schomburg Collection of Negro Literature at the 136th Street branch of the New York Public Library.

Dr. Reddick is a former member of the faculties of Kentucky State College and Dillard University. He has taught in the evening division of City College, New York, and at the New School for Social Research.

At the Atlanta post, Dr. Reddick will be director of the library which serves the six colleges that make up the Atlanta University Center. In addition to Atlanta University there are Spelman College, Morehouse College, Morris Brown College and Gammon Theological Seminary.

Since the resignation of Wallace Van Jackson in April to become a member of the staff of the American Legation of Liberia, the Library has been under the direction of Dr. Virginia Lacy Jones director of the School of Library Service. Thurs. 1-8-48

LIBRARY WILL LOSE NEGRO BOOK HEAD

Dr. Reddick Dissatisfied With Slowness of City to Provide for Shomberg Collection

New York, N.Y.

Dr. Lawrence D. Reddick, curator of the Schomburg Collection of Negro Literature and History in the West 135th Street Branch of the New York Public Library, resigned. He said he was dissatisfied over slowness in providing his department with adequate facilities and staff. Dr. Reddick will become chief librarian of Atlanta University on April 1. Thurs

The curator said his criticism was not directed against any individual, but that "the major responsibility for the discouraging conditions confronting the Schomburg Collection rests with the City Fathers." Efforts to build a center of culture had been handicapped increasingly, Dr. Reddick declared, by the limited resources that the library officials had been able or willing to provide. 1-15-48

When told of the curator's intention to resign, Miss Esther Johnston, chief of the circulation department, remarked that "perhaps Dr. Reddick does not realize how many of the divisions are in the same shape as his own." It was agreed that "everything he says is true, and he should have all that he asks for, but there are other branches having less facilities than he." A spokesman added that much that Dr. Reddick wanted for his work could not be granted because it was not provided for in the budget.

Other Branches Cited

1-15-48

Other branches said to be handicapped by poor working conditions were the Library for the Blind at 137 West Twenty-fifth Street, "hich has not nearly enough space at a time when the demand for books for the blind is equally high"; the Music Library at 120 East Fifty-eighth Street and the Bronx Reference Library at 2555 Marion Avenue, both of which are called equally handicapped.

Dr. Reddick, who was appointed curator in 1939, listed his handicaps on the job as the lack of shelves, cabinets, storage space and an adequate staff for the care and evaluation of many items that he considered priceless because of their scarcity and oddity. He criticised the library authorities for alleged lack of interest in the items and for not providing microfilms to preserve data from Negro newspapers.

The curator noted no provision for paintings and sculpture. He declared that although much of the patronage of the collection was from advanced students, there were no seminar rooms, no work rooms, "and absolutely no privacy for the student who comes here to work." The Times

Dr. Reddick said he had decided that the city government was too laggard in interest in the collection of Negro books and art. He regretted that the collection owned by Arthur Spingarn had not been purchased for New York, and contended that other collections ought to be obtained to enlarge the Schomburg Collection.

The collection of Negro books owned by Mr. Spingarn, who is president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was bought last year for Harvard University at the reported price of $25,000.

New York, N.Y.

Collection Held "Foundling"

Dr. Reddick said he had urged that the Schomburg Collection be so placed in the library system that it would not be "the child of the Circulation Department and a foundling on the doors of departments not interested."

The collection contained 12,000 books, 3,000 manuscripts, 2,000 etchings and several thousand pamphlets. It was obtained by the Carnegie Corporation for the New York Public Library in 1926 from Arthur Alfonse Schomburg. Of Negro descent, he was born in San Juan, Puerto Rico, in 1874. Mr. Schomburg served as first curator of the collection until his death on June 10, 1938. Thurs 1-15-48

Dr. Reddick, a graduate of Fisk University, received his doctor's degree at the University of Chicago. He has been giving courses in Negro history and culture at City College. He expects to terminate his teaching there at the close of this semester.

New York Bids Reddick Adieu

Daily World

NEW YORK — The citizens of Harlem and New York City at lrage expressed their appreciation for the public services of Dr. L. D. Reddick in appropriate ceremonies last Tuesday at the Schomberg Collection of Negro literature of the New York Public Library. Most men have to die before they have said about them such things as were spoken at this farewell get-together. Dr. Reddick has been Curator of the Schomburg Collection for the past 9 years. He becomes Chief of the Atlanta University Library April 1st. Atlanta, Ga

Mrs. Gertrude Ayer, only Negro woman Principal in the New York Public School system, told the stroy of "what Dr. Reddick has meant to Harlem"—emphasizing the growth of the new world--famous Schomburg Collection. Dr. Algernon D. Black recounted Dr. Reddick's contributions to New York City— especially to such projects as the Citywide Citizens Committee on Harlem and the Encampment for Citizenship. In a letter Mr. Byrne J. Hovde regretted the loss of Dr. Reddick as a teacher at the Hew School for Social Research. Mrs. Ruth Br ll, sculptress, unveiled a "head' 'of Dr. Reddick which she has done. Sat 3-27-48

HONOREE RESPONDS

Dr. Reddick in responding, paid tribute to the good years in the library that preceded "the recent excitemen." He spoke in praise of Franklin F. Hopper, Harry Miller Lyndenberg, former Chiefs of the NYPL and others ho did much to make the development of the Schomburg Collection possible. Dr. Reddick thanked his own staff and as a token of this pinned a corsage on Mrs. Catherine Latimer, who has retired recently from the Schomburg Collection because of failing eyesight.

In closing, he reminded the audience that a representative citizens comittee should be formed — composed of leaders in politics, philanthrophy, the arts and community organization—which would secure funds from the city of New York, the state and private sources — for the purpose of building a large and significant center for Negro culture in New York, the capital of the world. 3-27-48

Leigh Whipper of Broadway and and Hollywood, read "The Dead Soldier," Dr. C. A. Petioni, Chairman of the Library Citizens' Committee presided.

Dr. Reddick to Head Atlanta U. Library

The Afro-American

ATLANTA—President Rufus E. Clement of Atlanta University, has announced the appointment of Dr. Lawrence D. Reddick of New York City, as head of the Atlanta University Liberary. Dr. Reddick, who will have the rank of professor of history will take office April 1.

A native of Jacksonville, Fla., Dr. Reddick was educated at Fisk University and at the University of Chicago where he earned the Ph. D. Since 1939 he has been curator of the Schomburg Collection of Negro Literature at the 136th Street New York Public Library. Baltimore Md.

A former member of the faculties of Kentucky State College and Dillard University, Dr. Reddick has taught at City College, New York, and at the New School for Social Research. He will be director of the library which serves the six colleges that make up the Atlanta University Center.

General

REJECTS $237,500 "GIFT" FROM FLORIDA'S GOVERNOR

April 8, 1948

MIMS, Fla., April 8,—In a sharply worded letter to Governor Millard F. Caldwell of Florida, Harry T. Moore, executive secretary of the State Conference of Branches of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, informed the state's chief executive that Florida Negroes would not consider as a "gift his proffer of $237,500 to the Florida Agricultural and Mechanical College at Tallahassee.

The Governor was awarded the sum as damages in a libel suit against Collier's Magazine as the result of editorial censure of his alleged statements and lack of effective action in the lynching of Jesse James Payne in Madison County two years ago. At the time he filed suit against the magazine, the Governor promised to give any sum awarded to him to the state college for Negroes.

Criticizing Governor Caldwell for his failure to suspend the sheriff, Mr. Moore further asserted: "We wish to make it clear that we shall not consider this as a gift to the Negroes of Florida. Florida A. and M. College is a state-supported institution. The support and development of this school is the responsibility of the State of Florida. If Florida A. and M. College is not getting sufficient financial support to make it measure up to the standards maintained at the University of Florida at Gainesville and the Florida State University at Tallahassee, it is the fault of our state government, and not the responsibility of Florida Negro citizens. Therefore, any money that you give will be a contribution to our state government, and not a gift to the Negroes of Florida. We wish also to emphasize the fact that such

Atlanta U Fund Hinges On $600,000

Dr. Trevor Arnett, former Director of the Rockefeller General Education Board and now Chairman of the Trustees of Atlanta University, told a group of Atlanta educational, financial and business leaders Wednesday the University must raise $600,000 between now and June 30, in order to receive a like amount in an endowment offer from the General Education Board.

The $600,000, he explained, is the last amount remaining to be raised under the terms of an offer made to the University 10 years ago when the Board pledged the school $3,200,000, if the institution would raise $3,200,000 itself so as to provide a 10-year $6,400,000 program of expansion.

Thus, on the matching dollar-for-dollar basis the University stands to gain by $1,200,000, if it only can raise $600,000 by June 30, to carry out and complete the terms of the 10-year agreement.

Since the Atlanta University Center was created, co-ordinating the activities of the University, Clark College, Morehouse College, Spelman College and Gammon Theological Institute, the Rockefeller General Education Board has aided all of the Negro educational institutions to the total amount of more than $13,000,000, Dr. Arnett said.

At the meeting called by W. E. Mitchell, former President of the Georgia Power Company, Dr. Arnett told the group the University, now in its eighty-first year, has been placed on the approved list of the American Association of Universities.

Dr. Rufus E. Clement, President of the University, said the enrollment of the entire system now totaled more than 4,000 students, many of whom were studying to be teachers to fill the need in the South's growing Negro schools. The University, he said, had produced the Presidents of 11 Negro colleges, including three in Georgia.

Mitchell, in urging financial support for the institution, lauded its work in building sound character and leadership and improving race relations.

AT LIBRARY OF CONGRESS — Miss [illegible], [illegible] graduate of the Atlanta University School of Library Science, is employed in a responsible position in the subject cataloging division of the Library of Congress. She is a native of Washington and a graduate of Howard University.

new Negro College Fund head

Manhattan corporation counsel

NEW YORK—William E. Cotter, counsel for Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation, has accepted the chairmanship of the 1948 annual nationwide campaign of the United Negro College Fund to be conducted this Spring.

Cotter, who was chairman of the New York campaign in 1946, was one of the national vice-chairmen last year. For the fifth successive year, Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National Bank, will act as national treasurer, and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is chairman of the national council of the fund.

In addition to his legal duties, Cotter has been closely identified with many civic activities in New York. He is general vice chairman of the New York University-Bellevue Medical Center Fund a director of the Occupational Research Foundation, and a former president of the Notre Dame Alumni Association.

WILLIAM E. COTTER
. . . college fund head.

Fortune Magazine Article Surveys College Fund Work

NEW YORK—In an illuminating article entitled, "Alma Mater Asks For $2 Billion," the February issue of FORTUNE magazine reports on the work of the United Negro College Fund, naming it as one of the major educational fund-raising organizations in America.

Nearly 500 institutions, including the 32 accredited private Negro colleges participating in the Fund, are seeking to raise additional operating money to meet their critical economic problems, the article pointed out in its survey.

The aims of the United Negro College Fund are reviewed in the FORTUNE article, which publishes excerpts from a letter to John D. Rockefeller, chairman of the National Council of the Fund, sent by W. T. Holliday of Cleveland, president of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, explaining why his company supports the Fund.

EXCERPTS FROM LETTER

Mr. Holliday wrote: "Up until not so long ago the social burdens calling for philanthropy were borne by the wealthy people of the community. With the increasing burden of income and inheritance taxes, however, that source of financial support has almost disappeared. If the burden is not taken up by the corporations, then it will have to be borne by the government, and we are straight on the way to socialism.

"Here in Cleveland we are very conscious of the interracial problem. The Negro colleges supply most of the colored ministers and socail workers of the community. Therefore, it is indeed a proper business expense for Cleveland corporations to subscribe to the United Negro College Fund."

The article concludes with an excerpt from the report of President Truman's Commission on Higher Education which suggested that fund-raising be strengthened and expanded.

Rockefeller Heads New Council Group

NEW YORK—The United Negro College Fund, earmarking its fifth year with a program aimed toward a more comprehensive sphere of operations, has created a National Council of which John D. Rockefeller Jr. will act as chairman, it was announced by President F. D. Patterson of Tuskegee Institute, Ala., president of the fund.

The Council, made up of prominent businessmen, educators, and leaders in civic affairs and social thought from all over the country, will actively serve the fund in its expanded national program.

In accepting the chairmanship, Mr. Rockefeller commended the work of the fund in conducting yearly fund-raising campaigns for thirty-two of the country's thirty-six accrediated private Negro colleges.

DISTINGUISHED PERSONAGES

Serving on the National Council under Mr. Rockefeller's leadership will be Henry R. Luce, Hon. Owen J. Roberts, Bruce Barton, Jesse Jones, Thomas M. Girdler, Harvey S. Firestone Jr., Eric Johnston, Phillip Murray, Frank E. Gannett, Charles Evans Hughes Jr., William Green, Robert G. Sproul, Thomas J. Watson, Channing H. Tobias, Spencer Miller Jr. Isaiah Bowman, Randolph W. Burgess, Lindsay Bradford, S. J. Anderson, David Dubinsky and Charles Seymour.

Also on the Council are Archbishop Richard J. Cushing, Wilson M. Brown, Matthew W. Bullock, Harry Woodburn Chase, Mrs. William L. Clayton, Harold Dodds, Edwin R. Embree, William Dean Embree, T. K. Gibson, W. T. Holliday, John Holmes, Rufus M. Jones, Samuel D. Leidesdorf, Ira F. Lewis, M. L. Benedum, Randle R. Gilbert, Robert M. Hanes, Charles Mahoney, Thomas W. Martin, Edwin B. Meissner, Albert G. Milbank, Jeremiah Milbank, Kenneth Parker, Graham Patterson, Thomas H. Eliot and Ernest Quantrell.

STEEL TYCOON ON BOARD

In addition are Andrew W. Robertson, Lessing J. Rosenwald, T. J. Ross, Alexander Ruthven, Henry D. Sharpe, Edgar Stern, Ernest T. Weir, Harry C. Wiess, L. Kemper Williams, J. E. Walker, Edmund E. Day, John B. Gage, Eugene Holman, Harvey B. Harrison, Thomas M. Geeghegan, B. F. Ashe, Henry Bell, Charles Hook, Abe Lastfegel John R. Suman, Walter A. Dew, Lawrence J. MacGregor, Fowler McCormick and Mrs. T. M. Say-

As We See It

Thurs. 6-3-48

Calls for Charity Won't Help Build Colleges for Negro Youth

By Abner W. Berry

THE VOICE COMING OVER the New York City-owned radio station WNYC could not have meant it that way, but the announcement made me angry. As I remember it, a woman's well-modulated voice said: "Help our Negro citizens take their places in the community; help them make a contribution to our national progress; give to the United Negro College Fund. . . ."

I felt that I had become an object of charity. A function of government, guaranteed to every other American and his children, has to be supplemented by charity when it comes to Negroes. . . . "Help our Negro citizens. . . ."

Because some sovereign states of the Union defy the Constitution and condemn Negro Americans to inferior education, at best, and stark illiteracy, at worst, education for Negroes must be placed in the same category as blindness or social catastrophe.

•

CHARITY CANNOT be the answer to the Negro's educational problems today. Seventeen states are taxing Negroes for schools they cannot use. Countless southern counties are drawing down state appropriations based on the Negro population and building schools for "white only." As long as this situation remains it is impossible for high class begging to bridge the Jimcrow gap in education.

Negro illiteracy and poor educational facilities are not "acts of God." These evils are the coldly calculated end results of the system established to keep the Negro "inferior." To get around this system by the use of charity, it seems to me, is to abandon our clear duty of bringing the "American way of life" to about one-third of the country. Furnishing with charity what is due from the government puts a premium upon Jimcrow in education.

There are those who see it from a different angle. Charles H. Houston, the outstanding attorney who heads the NAACP legal staff and himself a fighter against Jimcrow, is one who does so. Houston supports the UNCF because it aids in "educating the mass of my people and furnishing them the knowledge and the means by which they themselves will finally blast segregation out of American life."

Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, president of Morehouse College, in Atlanta, who is associated with the Wallace movement in his community, also has a good word for the Fund. Dr. Mays, it should be stated, is no defender of the Jimcrow system, yet I don't follow him in contending that the UNCF campaign will lead to integrated education. ". . . when we become sufficiently enlightened," he wrote in a recent column, "students of all races will attend the better schools, whether they were originally designated for Negroes or whites."

FROM WHAT I've seen of American Negro youth, they are sufficiently "enlightened" right now to "blast segregation" out of American life. As for the white youth, they aren't accepting the degrading and degraded Jimcrow system without a fight, either.

In school and after school in southern states the white student bodies have voted against segregation in one form or another. The southern governors and the southern deans have admitted that no southern state can properly educate its citizens on a Jimcrow basis.

I don't think it is a question, as some defenders of the Fund have placed it: of whether or not to "tear down" the Negro colleges. It is a question of placing the responsibility for Negro education where it belongs—in the laps of the states and the federal government.

The UNCF is out to collect $1,300,000 in 1948. But while this collection is going on with all the fanfare of a national bazaar, with northern matrons using it as a foil for social triumphs, millions of dollars in educational funds will be stolen by the southern bigots. This thing has been going on for over 50 years. The political school-fund snatchers have built themselves a screen of Jimcrow laws behind which they rob the Negro youth of their educational and other rights.

For the past 50 years the Negro colleges have turned out militant and brilliant students. They have contributed greatly to the economy and culture of the country. It isn't illiteracy and backwardness (although there is too much of that still around) which holds the Negro back from "his place" in the American community; it is the un-Constitutional Jimcrow barriers built by Bourbon-minded political leaders and guarded with rope, gun, court and jail. Remove those barriers and the Negro will take his place in American life as naturally as all other Americans.

Ex-Army colonel joins college fund drive

Colonel Irwin W. Minger this week joined the United Negro College Fund's drive in Los Angeles in the capacity of co-chairman. He will serve with George A. Beavers, Jr., of Golden State Mutual Life Insurance co., Lawrence B. Wilson, of Liberty Savings and Loan Association, and Abe Lastfogel, of the William Morris Agency.

Serving in the Army during both world wars, Colonel Minger rose from the rank of private to that of lieutenant colonel. He has been active for 28 years in the American Legion; he is at present executive director of the South Bay [illegible] Service Center.

In accepting the co-chairmanship, Colonel Minger called upon Los Angeles to go all out in support of the drive. "Never in history," he said, "has the need for skilled doctors, dentists, social workers and civic leaders been so great. Regardless of race, creed, color, or national oigin we cannot have too many skilled and educated people. The functioning of a democracy demands an educated electorate. Never has this democracy had greater need of smooth functioning." 7-31-48

The drive for funds went into its second week of solicitation among the Eastside and Westside Business communities today. The public is urged to send contributions in early. Local address of the drive is 6612 Sunset Boulevard, Hollywood 28, Calif.

College Fund Drive Nears $21,000 Goal

Chairman E. M. Martin and Vice Chairman B. E. Mays of the Atlanta Campaign of the United Negro College Fund feel quite certain that the $21,000 goal will be reached soon. Over $18,000 has been paid in cash and $2,400 is expected from sources that are almost certain. By the end of the month, the campaign should be victoriously concluded, officials said Saturday. Some of the contributions follow; 7-18-48

Physicians, $571.00; Dentists, $247.00; Public School Teachers, $1,004.50; Clak College (Faculty and Students), $2,025.00; Reported by President Brawley from others, $83.59; Morehouse College Faculty and Students, $2,555.80; Atlanta University, $2,015.36; Spelman College, $1,095.50: Masons of Georgia, (J. W. Dobbs), $500.00; Barbers, $179.50; Churches, $579.75; Morris Brown Faculty and Students, $2,300.00; Reported by President W. A. Fountain from others, $250.00; Mrs. Sadye Powell, $100.00, reported by Mrs. Powell from others $55; Georgia State Employment Service, $50.00; S. W. Walker, $100.00; Social Workers, $30.00; Miss Doris Drummond, $48,00; E. M. Martin, $100.00; Real Estate, $180.00.

Blaminya, $600.00; Insurance Employees, $320.30; Ted Lewis Laundry and Cleaners, $300.00; Launderwells, $50.00; Hooper's Market, $150; Undertakers, $200.00; Lawyers, 130.00; Mrs. Alice Davis, Apex Beauty Company, $100.00; Gammon Theological Seminary, $100.00; Mrs. Birdie Wallace, $12.00; Atlanta Daily World, $200.00.

Truman Backs United Negro College Fund

BY PAUL SMITH

NEW YORK — (NNPA) — A letter from President Truman urging support of the fifth annual appeal of the United Negro College Fund was made public last Monday by William E. Cotter, national campaign chairman.

The Fund has offices at 38 East Fifty-seventh Street and is seeking $1,400,000 for thirty-two private colleges.

Mr. Truman's letter said:

"We are living in a time when the maintenance and development of a free society is under serious challenge. The philosophy and political activity of totalitarianism require us to offer assistance to those nations which are actively striving to remain free. This we are now doing.

"But an essential part of the world-wide struggle is the perfection in each country, including our own, of the free institutions we cherish. Totalitarianism will not thrive where opportunity is equal and individual liberties are fully protected.

"Among the most cherished of our free institutions are the schools of America. To a remarkable degree they have extended educational opportunity, to all our people. The final goal, however, is equal educational opportunity, for all persons, to the maximum of their individual abilities, without regard to economic status, race, creed, color, sex, national origin or ancestry.

"As we strive for this goal every higher educational institution will need to be strengthened to meet the unprecedented demand for educational services."

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is chairman of the fund's national council.

Drive Still Open for Negro College

Prospective donors to the fifth annual United Negro College Fund have been asked to make their gifts at the Fund headquarters,

208 Mack, which will be kept open till July 10-48

The drive, which ended officially June 18, reached approximately one-half of its goal of $75,000. A total of $37,879.04 has been subscribed.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Already more than 500 individuals and business corporations have contributed $14,992.73 toward Washington's share of the $1,400,000 sought nationally to aid 32 private accredited Negro colleges, it was announced Monday by John L. Durling of the Justice Department, chairman. Effort is being stated the public interest and of the nation this of the Nation- increased oppor- Negro higher edu- movement by [illegible] ing the [illegible] ance of the [illegible] sterling [illegible] contributed $14,992.73 toward Washington's share of the $1,400,000 sought nationally to aid 32 private accredited Negro colleges, it was announced today by John L. Burling of the Justice Department, chairman. Effort is being made to double the local total by August 1.

D. C. Funds To UNCF Amount To $14,992

Citing the public interest and the generous support given the campaign in Washington and 65 other major cities of the nation thus far as evidence of the National concern with increased opportunites for Negro higher education, Mr. Burling stated that the "constructive influence of the private Negro colleges and universities is felt in every part of the nation."

"In these uncertain times, there is greater need than ever for more young men and women trained in the responsibilities of citizeship. The graduates of the Fund's Negro colleges who become teachers, ministers, and other communities leaders among members of their race are a stabilizing force for national unity," Mr. Burling said.

"In that area of the United States in which the largest part of the whole Negro population lives, the colleges which are members of the United Negro College Fund supply substantially the only opportunities which Negro men and women have for higher education."

THE NEGRO COLLEGE FUND

There are in the United States more than 14,000,000 Negro citizens who are compelled by social and economic barriers against them to depend upon racially separate institutions for the training of their youth in the professions and useful arts. Not until recent years have the Southern states accepted a share of the burdens of higher education for Negroes, leaving the training of doctors, social workers, dentists, nurses, lawyers and college teachers to thirty-six accredited institutions. All but one of these Negro colleges are in the South. Their support has come mainly from the North.

Five years ago, under the leadership of Dr. Frederick D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, twenty-seven of these colleges joined in forming the United Negro College Fund, Inc., which maintains headquarters at 38 East Fifty-seventh Street. The number of affiliated colleges today numbers thirty-two. John D. Rockefeller Jr., who has been associated with the Fund from the beginning, is chairman of the national council.

The Fund seeks this year the modest sum of $1,400,000, which will be distributed among the member colleges. Obviously, the colleges will receive just enough to keep them above the line that divides success from failure. They have small endowments, and the Fund officials report that "if we put them all together they would have a sum about equal to that of Princeton University."

The effort of the College Fund is a step in the right direction and a noble undertaking about which there can be no controversy. Last year more than 3,000 men and women gave their services to the campaign, for which individual givers donated $442,000. Sums from 125 philanthropic foundations amounted to $207,000. New York City, which has among its citizens 1,500 graduates of these colleges, is out to raise $450,000. The drive will be initiated on Tuesday and deserves prompt and generous support.

UNITED NEGRO COLLEGE FUND

"Totalitarianism will not thrive where opportunity is equal," states President Harry S. Truman in a letter supporting the fifth annual appeal of the United Negro College Fund released today by William E. Cotter, national Campaign chairman. John D. Rockefeller Jr. is chairman of the National Council of the Fund which has just opened its nation-wide campaign for $1,400,000 to aid 32 private Negro colleges.

Negro College Fund

Editor Constitution: Will you permit me to present to your readers the case for the United Negro College Fund? Thirty-three accredited Negro colleges, mostly in the South, have pooled their appeal for funds so that we, who have been giving a little money haphazardly to this Negro college or that, may know that our contributions will go where the need is greatest. Their annual campaign for $1,400,000 begins April 13. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is Chairman of the National Council for the Fund.

However widely we may differ in our views on other aspects of the Negro problem, all of us who even pretend to be good Americans agree that the Negro has a right to education. Our conscience cannot be quite easy when we reflect on the fact that while one white person in 20 is able to go through a four-year college course, only one Negro out of 80 can do so. The disproportion in opportunities for professional training is far greater.

We all recognize in the Negro race fine human material that is capable of contributing in large measure to our social health and happiness. No other racial group responds more quickly to educational opportunity and leadership. The colleges associated in the United Negro College Fund are achieving marvels in view of their slender resources. We are morally bound to come to their aid so far as our means permit.

JACOB BILLIKOPF,
Chairman Executive Committee, Howard University.
Washington, D. C.

Bad Reasoning

Negro and liberal-minded white persons who advocate an end to segregation and discrimination in education have come forth with a question as to whether they would be justified in their support of the current United Negro College Fund appeal. It appears that because of this doubt, Harlem Negroes and others are refusing to contribute to the fund merely because the 32 colleges which make up the Fund are operated exclusively for Negroes.

W. J. Trent, Jr., Executive Director of the Fund, says that the Fund is of "real value" in the light of the present day thinking on segregation in education; that 90 per cent of the 70,000 colored people who go to college attend schools in the South; that in order for Negroes who attend them to get as fine and education as possible under the circumstances, and that in the future when laws no long required race segregation, these colleges can be known as excellent, well-administered institutions open to serve all who are qualified."

But we would like to approach the answer from another viewpoint. It seems to me that the Harlemites might follow that line of reasoning to its logical end; meaning of course, that for that very reason we must withhold our support of Negro insurance companies, Negro barbers, Negro stores and Negro churches, North and South. What is the real difference, if any, between supporting one and withholding support from the other?

There is scarcely any sound argument whiich can be affered to support the Harlem contention. The colleges need the money for their continuance. No amount of idealism can provide the money the colleges must have. And there is no place to accomodate the Negro students, granting that full integration were possible as of this year, except that such arrangements be made to utilize the present fac May be the Harlemites know these facts already and they are using this to get around supporting colleges have a legitimate claim upon their loyalites and financ sources.

Presiding at the luncheon was Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee institute and also of the fund. Thomas A. Morgan of Sperry corporation was named chairman of the board for the fund and James E. Stamps, president of the newly organized joint alumni association for the member colleges.

Rockefeller Reaffirms Aid For Negro Education Efforts

NEW YORK—(ANP)—At a luncheon meeting of the United Negro College Fund, Ind., in Waldorf-Astoria hotel here last week, John D Rockefeller Jr., reaffirmed his devotion to the cause of Negro education and expressed the hope that the work of the fund could be broadened. The luncheon was given by presidents of 32 colleges in honor of Frank M. Totten, of the Chase National bank, and William E. Cotter United Carbine and Carbon corporation.

Mr. Rockefeller termed the work as a "cause for which I could work that is free of controversy.

"I feel free to invite my friends to join in this work because they can find for themselves a constructive task without getting into controversy." he said.

AWARDED PLAQUE

Mr. Totten was awarded a plaque by Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta university, for his two years service as campaign manager of the fund.

The fund has just completed a two-day discussion on financial problems faced by Negro colleges. The discussions were chaired by Dr. Lindsley F. Kimball, president of United Service organizations. and Ralph H. Blanchard, executive director of the Community Chest and Councils, Inc.

141 1948

United Negro College Fund

As We See It

Education for Negroes In A Very Sad State Now

By Abner W. Berry

Daily Worker

EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES for Negroes are in a sad state. In 11 southern states—Arkansas, Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Virginia, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Louisiana, Texas and Florida—it would require $265,463,860 to bring the school plant allocated for Negroes up to the level of that presently enjoyed by whites.

Among the individual states, Louisiana spends $6.70 for white school buildings for every dollar spent for Negroes. It would require $40,000,000 for the State of Mississippi to provide equal educational facilities to Negroes. North and South Carolina would require more than $60,000,000.

All of these figures were culled from the Negro Year Book, published by Tuskegee Institute's Department of Records and Research. The figures show that "excepting Kentucky, every state of this group has provided from 2.4 to 6.7 times as liberally for white school plants as for Negro school plants. . . ." But even if we were to get the $265,000,000, already mentioned, the southern schools would be still far behind the rest of the country.

6-7-48

I GOT all this information from the Negro Year Book the better to clarify my discussion of the United Negro College Fund. I heard Winthrop Rockefeller on the radio last Friday soliciting funds to help the Negro "get an education." Along with every other early-morning listener to the breakfast programs, I learned how the grandson of the oil king had become interested in "race relations," how three generations of Rockefellers had worked in this field.

The radio audience also was told how in Houston, Texas, Jesse Jones, who is reputed to own half the town, is working for the fund. That did it.

For, as young Winthrop was telling us how interested Grandfather Rockefelled was in "the underdog," I could only say to myself, "He surely should be interested in them. He created enough of them on his way up."

At the mention of Jesse Jones' name in connection with Negro education, I was reminded of the fact that this citizen of Houston, Wall Street and Washington is reportedly the author of Texas' Jimcrow law. Jones at the turn of the century was a young legislator. His interest in the Negro College Fund is to maintain the rotten status quo which he helped to create.

•

ALL OF THE tear-jerking statistics cannot get away from the fact that the $1,300,000 which the Fund is scheduled to raise this year is not going to erase a tiny section of the Jimcrow line.

How in the name of goodness can any one warm up to a drive, which in order to be successful would have to run for more than 200 years!

Daily Worker

Well that is the time it would take for the Fund to wipe out the differential between Negro and white in the educational field at the rate of $1,300,000 a year.

William J. Trent, Jr., the executive director of the Fund advises that the Negro Question will have to be met with "training, patience and fortitude." Trent was at one time race relations advisor to Harold Ickes when the latter was Secretary of the Interior. His own education came from Negro colleges and non-segregated northern schools. He should know better, and I think he does.

"Patience and fortitude," the Negroes have shown a plenty. For three generations of Rockefellers they have waited. They have endured a Jesse Jones, accepted the "separate but equal" formula.

Now they awake to find that they are being robbed and they aren't patient any more. In 11 states of the United States $265,000,000 is cashed in on Negro illiteracy. And the white supremacists gain from this material for use in their political campaigns. As long as that situation is unchallenged we will "need" a Negro College Fund.

6-7-48

LISETNING to Rockefeller and Trent I had to remark that these guys are a few years behind the white editor of the Jackson, Miss., Daily News, who wrote in 1942:

". . . . This negligence (of Negro education) has been quite bad enough in Jackson, but in the rural portions of the county (Hinds), where we have a white population of only 5,331 as compared with a Negro population of 24,094, school facilities are pitifully inadequate. . . . Despite the fact that our enrollment of educable children is . . . 57 percent Negro, the Negro schools get only nine percent of the budget. . . . This is not only shameful, but in flagrant violation of decisions of the United States Supreme Court."

Mon. 6-7-48

We need more fighting for applying the Constitution with enabling legislation from Washington to offset the undemocratic Jimcrow laws and practices. Charity in Negro education can only mean living with the intolerable conditions as they exist. Jesse Jones seems to know what he is doing. He's protecting his stake in the Jimcrow system by working for the UNCF. And so is young Rockefeller.

N.F.G.A. Assn, Of Colleges Holds Second Annual Conference

Fund Campaign Kicks Off

NEW YORK—Acceptance by D'A. Brophy of the presidency of the public information committee for the campaign of the United Negro College Fund has been announced by William E. Cotter, chairman. Mr. Brophy served the fund in this capacity during the 1947 campaign. The fund represents 32 of the nation's 36 accredited Negro colleges.

Mr. Brophy is president of the Brophy Advertising Council; chairman of the committee on public information, USO; chairman of the committee on public relations, National War Fund. The College Fund, with John D. Rockefeller Jr., as national council chairman; Winthrop W. Aldrich as treasurer, and Thomas A. Morgan as chairman of the executive committee, has raised $4,000,000 in the first four years of its existence and is launching its fifth campaign April 13.

Its funds go to assist member colleges in maintenance and in improvements. The colleges this year are facing serious economic problems, intensified by heavy enrollments, swelled by the great number of veterans seeking college training.

Life Insurance Firms Grants

NEW YORK—Negro life insurance companies gave generously to last year's campaign of the United Negro College fund, it was announced this week by W. J. Trent, Jr., executive director of the fund. This statement came as a prelude to National Negro Insurance week, May 10-15.

According to Trent, 26 of the 52 companies belonging to the National Negro Insurance association contributed. With 32 accredited Negro colleges participating the fund raises more than $1,000,000 a year, which goes to aid its members in meeting operating costs and providing scholarship aid for deserving students.

The executive director stressed that the Fund has raised more than $4,000,000 in the four years of its existence. He called attention to the fifth annual campaign which got under way April 13 in the Rainbow room of Rockefeller center. Among the speakers was Atty. Homer S. Brown of Pittsburgh, member of the Pennsylvania legislature.

Brophy Again Jo Serve College

The 1949 meeting of the Alumni Federation will be held in Atlanta Georgia.

The delegates drew up a plan of national alumni action whereby the alumni also served throughout the nation will be concentrated to rally behind the 1948 paign. The campaign of the United Negro College Fund.

Mr. Brophy is president of the Kenyon and Eckhardt, Inc., a New York advertising corporation which has offices in four other major cities. He is a native of Montana and has held important positions with many corporations here and in Canada.

He is president of Westchester's Foundation, of which he was president last year. He has served as director of the War Advertising Council; chairman of the committee on public information, USO; chairman of the committee on public relations, National War Fund. The College Fund. with John

N.F.G.A. Assn, Of Colleges Holds Second Annual Conference

Fund Campaign Kicks Off

Life Insurance Firms Grants

Brophy Again Jo Serve College

NEW YORK—The National Alumni Council of the United Negro College Fund held its second annual conference in New York, January 20 and 21.

Attending the conference were thirty National presidents and Alumni Secretaries and alumni officials from twenty-six colleges for the purpose of studying and working out plans for building stronger national alumni organizations and stimulating alumni to give greater support to the United Negro College Fund.

The alumni officials and the presidents of member college of the Fund had lunch at the world famous Waldorf-Astoria Hotel on January 20. Other guests included John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Action taken by the body included ratification of the Permanent organization of the National Federation of General Alumni Association of colleges in the United Negro College Fund and reelection of all officers for two-year terms as follows:

President Mr. James E. Stamps, Chicago (Fisk) 1st. Vice Pres. Dr E. C. Mitchell, Atlanta (Morris Brown) 2nd Vice Pres. Mrs. Estel-

James E. Stamps, the President of the Alumni Federation and Manager of the Social Security Board of Chicago and former President of the General Alumni Association of Fisk University was elected to the Board of Directors of the United Negro College Fund. The chairman of the Board is Thomas A. Morgan, President of the Sperry Corporation Other members are John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and the presidents of the colleges in the Fund.

THERE are still those who fight the United Negro College Fund because they say we perpetuate segregation when we raise money to keep the Negro private colleges healthy and thriving. That is tantamount to saying "let the Negro private colleges die" — destroy Atlanta, Hampton, Fisk, Virginia Union — in fact all private Negro colleges; or it is tantamount to saying "do not support them until they become interracial."

Mr. Mays

As for the latter, there are seventeen States that require by law that Negroes and whites be educated separately. That these laws should be abolished is admitted matter by all unprejudiced minds. And we should strive to get the laws changed or abolished. But in 1948 this is the case.

* * *

LET US BE logical. If the Negro private colleges should not be supported because they perpetuate segregation, the tax-supported Negro colleges should not receive appropriations from the States because they, too, perpetuate segregation.

Those who fight the United Negro Fund should also fight any State appropriation to Prairie View, Tennessee State, Virginia State, South Carolina; in fact they should fight to stop all appropriations that go to the seventeen State and land grant colleges for Negroes. Strict logic leads to no other end.

* * *

BUT IF THOSE who say that the private Negro colleges should not be supported are logical, they must go further. They must oppose equally the efforts of all private white colleges to get funds for existence because the private white colleges that exclude Negroes are also perpetuating segregation. They must not even stop here. They must fight against State appropriations to white colleges in the South that are supported with tax money.

To pick out the private Negro colleges to shoot at, without at the same time shooting at the private white colleges, the tax-supported white colleges, and the tax-supported Negro colleges is grossly unfair.

* * *

IF NEGRO PRIVATE colleges should not be supported because they are restrained by law from admitting white students, then all colleges that do not admit both races should be closed or permitted to die. And if we are not willing to go this far, if we are fighting only to destroy the Negro institutions, we are saying that the Negro institutions are not fit to survive but white institutions are. And this is an admission that I am not willing to make because I know that many of these Negro colleges are just as good as white institutions of comparable size and resources.

* * *

I SUPPOSE IF we wanted to push the point further, we would be logical in saying that a Negro undertaker who buries only Negroes because white undertakers will not bury them should not exist, and that a Negro physician who serves only Negroes because white people are too prejudiced to use him should not practice medicine until he can get some white patrons.

The Negro physician is willing and ready to serve white patients; so is the Negro college ready and willing to admit white students, but the Negro college meets the law, which says no.

* * *

I HAVE SAID in these columns before and I say so again. Our job is to fight segregation and discrimination with all our might but while we fight against them, we will strive to build and maintain first-class colleges.

Some day segregation will go. It is incompatible with democracy, science and Christianity. Unless America turns its back on these three and becomes Nazi, segregation will some day end. When it does end, we will need then as now all good colleges whether they previously existed for Negroes or whether previously they served whites.

* * *

INTEGRATION will not be a one-way traffic; it will be a two-way traffic. White students will be in Morehouse and Negro students will be in Emory. Negroes will be in the University of Alabama and white students will be in Tuskegee, Talladega and the State Teachers' Colleges.

Negro students will be in Vanderbilt and white students will be in Fisk. Integration is a two-way traffic. To see it otherwise, to see it only as a one-way traffic, as a means of destroying everything Negroes have built up, may be an unconscious sign of the inferiority complex. Let us support the United Negro College Fund.

National Negro College Fund Chapter Organized In Atlanta

Taking time by the forelock and seeking to wield an effective campaign for the Negro College Fund, a local group has organized to facilitate fund-raising and to prepare the way for the National group which meets in Atlanta on February 18, 19, and 20, 1949. Officers of the local NCF Organization are: Dean E. C. Mitchell, Morris Brown College, President; Mrs H. S. Murphy, Atlanta University, Secretary; Mr. H. H. Strong, Treasurer; Dr. George L. Hightower, Chairman Ways and Means Committee; Mrs. Margaret Curry, Spelman College, Chairman program Committee; Mr. Robt. A. Thompson, Chairman Publicity Committee and R. E. Cureton, Chairman Constitution and By-Laws Committee.

The purpose of the Inter-alumni Council is five fold:

To stimulate the interest of alumni in United Negro College Fund and the 33 member colleges receiving benefits in the period between campaigns; To acquaint the general public with the value of the colleges in the fund and the contribution of the alumni to civic and community progress; To encourage young people to take fullest advantage of opportunities for higher education; To give maximum assistance in raising funds during annual campaigns of the U. N. C. F. in cooperation with the local campaign committee; To serve as a continuing interest group on a permanent basis to assist the fund in evaluating, planning and executing its program.

Groups not yet represented are especially requested to join the council. The next meeting will be held Tuesday, 7th of December at the Atlanta University Dormitory at 7:00 P. M.

Members of, or representatives of the following schools have not been heard from yet. Please be sure to have a representative at this next meeting; Benedict College, Bethune-Cookman, Bishop J. C. Smith, Lane College, Le Moyne College, Livingston, Philander Smith, Samuel Houston, Texas College, Tillotson, Touggaloo, Virginia Union, and Wiley.

United College Fund Adds 12 Lay Members To Board

NEW YORK City—The board of directors of the United Negro College Fund has been enlarged to include among its members 12 prominent lay citizens, as well as the presidents of the 32 colleges belonging to the Fund, Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute and president of the Fund, announced last week during a brief visit to the organization's headquarters, 38 East 57th street.

"The addition of a group of such representative business and civic leaders of our board is a strong indication that the broad scope of our educational program is now generally recognized," said Dr. Patterson in announcing the names of the Fund's new directors.

"We are fortunate that these distinguished citizens are to serve on our board and will cooperate with trustees and friends of Negro colleges in strengthening the finances of these institutions."

NEW MEMBERS

Thomas A. Morgan, president of the Sperry Gyroscope Corporation, has been named chairman of the board, which, in addition to the college presidents, will consist of Arthur B. Brenner, of Van Vorst; Siegel & Smith, New York; C. Arthur Bruce, executive vice-president of E. L. Bruce Company, Memphis, Tenn.; George H Burchum, Chase National Bank New York; William E. Cotter, of Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation, New York; Walter D Fuller, president, Curtis Publishing Co., Philadelphia.

Also, Walter D. Hoving, president, Hoving Corporation, New York; Lindsley F. Kimball, United Service Organizations, New York; Fowler McCormick, chairman of the board of International Harvester Company, Chicago; James E. Stamps, Social Security Board, Chicago; Willard S. Towsend, International president of United Transport Service Employees (CIO), Chicago; Mrs. Chauncey L. Waddell of New York.

The United Negro College Fund, which includes 32 accredited private Negro colleges in the country, will begin its fifth annual campaign, April 13. William E. Cotter is national chairman; C. C. Spaulding of Durham, N. C., is vice chairman; John D Rockefeller Jr., chairman of the national council; Winthrop W. Aldrich, treasurer.

Infantry Unit In Japan Contributes $5,000 To United Negro Col. Fund

WITH THE EIGHTH ARMY IN GIFU, Japan—Soldiers in the 24th Infantry Regimental Combat Team have contributed voluntarily $5,222 to the United Negro College Fund. Thirty-two Negro colleges and universities belong to this "educational chest" which provides scholarships for needy and deserving students.

Company C, commanded by Capt. John W. Ward, 418 High street, Rhinelander, Wisc., contributed the largest sum, $556; Capt. Thomas H. Wright, 823 Clifton Drive, Dayton, O., made the largest individual contribution, $25; and Anti-Tank Company, commanded by Capt. William A. Bobo, 4229 West Cote Brilliante avenue, St. Louis, Mo., contributed more than $600 per individual.

Capt. John J. Phillips, Lockland, O., public information officer at Camp Gifu, acted as local chairman for the college fund.

Personal Impressions

By LEON W. STEWARD

THE NATIONAL NEGRO COLLEGE FUND. Announcement last week of Los Angeles' "First organized drive" for funds to aid 32 Southern Negro colleges was cheering. We were about to conclude that Los Angeles had decided to pass up this important enterprise this year. Nothing had been said at anytime by anybody to dispel this idea at all up to last week. So we have already made our comparatively small contribution to the Negro College Fund because we are among those who take great pride in the opportunity TO MAKE SUCH A CONTRIBUTION.

WHY CONTRIBUTE?

We have talked with very few people who question the wisdom of giving money to the Negro College Fund. They have either pointed out that they had not been served by the schools or that it was about time that many of them "fold up." Fortunately, only a very few hold these attitudes. Most people see the practical value of giving this support for the very reason of their sincere interest in the advancement of the Negro in America. They doubtless realize that we cannot hope to maintain higher standards among black people even in Los Angeles, unless those of the south are given every chance for cultural advancement such as these very schools offer. We, ourselves, were in one long enough to see young men enter one out of the poorest, uneducated homes of East Texas and gain in the schools just what it has taken to start them towards becoming bishops in the great Methodist Church, special assistant to the Secretary of War, college presidents, scientists, distinguished lawyers, and social leaders, some of whom are today right here in Los Angeles. And in each case it is quite doubtful that any one of them would have attended any college had there not been one near to his home town, and one which was deeply sympathetic with his desire for more training than he could possibly have been able to pay for.

Los Angeles is better off that these men and women were given this opportunity which only Southern Negro Colleges could have given.

LOCAL LEADERSHIP

An interesting sidelight on this year's set-up of the NNCF is the fact that both co-chairmen, Lawrence Wilson, of the Liberty Savings and Loan Ass'n., and George Beavers, of the Golden State Mutual Life Insurance Co., have never attended one of these Southern Colleges. It occurs to us that this is good evidence that men of brains and sincere community interest feel the concern for these schools so clearly that they are willing to take time out from their very busy lives to challenge the rest of us to take this campaign seriously enough to give, as becomes men and women with intelligent group interest and hearts that respond to human need.

WHAT ABOUT SOUTHERN CLUBS?

The thing that puzzles us in this matter is that we have not, to this date, noted any special concern for the National Negro College Fund on the part of the local Negro college clubs. Doubtless their members have, as have we, contributed from year to year but we sincerely hope that they will each come forth volunteering club and individual support towards making this campaign a success. Here is opportunity that these good folk may reflect their own intelligent interest in the schools which doubtless lifted them from what might have been a more or less backward status and which they still sing of loving. Here is their opportunity to give financial and moral support to an idea that gave them their chance in life and which through their continued support may remain to serve those worthy but financially poor young people whom they left behind in Texas, Louisiana, Georgia, Virginia, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and elsewhere. That idea is to drop the educational bucket where there is greatest need. We'll give another check to the local drive. How many intelligent well-wishers of the Negro in his struggle toward the light of first class citizenship will do likewise?

CIO to raise money for Negro College Fund

The Los Angeles CIO Committee has endorsed the United Negro College Fund.

At the last council meeting, John H. Dial, Jr., chairman of the CIO Fair Practice Committee, presented William Burke, director of fund raising, who described the southern Negro colleges needs; and the committee authorized President Luncefore, Secretary Robert Clark and Dials to help the Campaign Committee raise money.

Sixty-six CIO locals are expected to contribute.

Negro College Funds Slow

Concern over progress of the $55,000 campaign for the United Negro College Fund was expressed by Superior Judge Edward P. Murphy, drive chairman.

"To date we have received only $7,095 of the Bay Area quota," he declared. "I am sure that if persons who are ale to give realized the needs of Negroes in health and social welfare fields, response would be more generous."

"One of every 10 Americans is a Negro. Yet there is ut one Negro doctor in every 4000, one Negro lawyer in 24,997. There are 400,000 white nurses and only 8,000 Negroes so trained.

"If the Negro youth of America is to be given a fair chance to be of assistance to members of his race, this drive must cucceed."

A total of $1,400,000 is being sought nationally to help defray operating expenses of 32 private Negro schools.

Rockefeller Seeks More College Aid

Two Fund Workers Honored in New York

NEW YORK — During a luncheon given by the presidents of the 32 colleges of the United Negro College Fund, John D. Rockefeller Jr., expressed the hope that the work of the fund would be broadened.

The meeting was held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in honor of Frank N. Totton of the Chase National Band, and William E. Cotter of the United Carbide and Carbon Corporation for their services. Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee, presided.

Mr. Totten was given a plaque for his two years' service as campaign manager. Dr. Rufus E. Clements, president of Atlanta University made the presentation.

Without Controversy

Mr. Rockefeller explained that he invited his friends to work for the fund because it was possible to do a constructive job without getting into constroversy.

James E. Stamps, head of the joint alumni association for the member colleges, said graduates were going to support the fund more. Thomas A. Morgan is chairman of the board for the fund.

Financial problems faced by the colleges were discussed during a two-day session. Dr. Lindsey F. Kimball, president of United Service Organizations, and Ralph H. Blanchard, executive director of the Community Chest and Councils, Inc., led the talks.

College Fund Head Named

NEW YORK-William E. Cotter, Counsel for Union Carbide and Carbon corporation, has accepted the chairmanship of the fifth annual nationwide campaign of the United Negro College fund to be conducted this spring, according to Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of the Fund and Tuskegee institute.

Cotter, who was chairman of the New York Campaign for the Fund in 1946, was National Vice-Chairman last year. For the fifth successive year, Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of Chase National Bank, will act as national treasurer. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is chairman of the National Council of the United Negro College fund.

In addition to his legal duties, Cotter has been closely identified with many civic activities in New York. He is General Vice Chairman of the New York University-Bellevue Medical Center fund.

Campaigns will be organized in fifty-five cities throughout the country, Cotter reported, including cities where member colleges are located.

"Higher education in America is facing a great financial crisis," he declared, "Costs are up and income has not kept pace. As a consequence, institutions are facing unprecedented deficits.

Harvard Group Bars College Fund

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (ANP) — The Harvard Youth for Democracy last week requested that the United Negro College Fund be barred that any money earmarked stricken from Harvard's Combined for the fund would be turned over Charities drive. to it.

The group urged that all money collected at the time for the fund But, symptomatic of student liberal thinking, Drive Chairman be turned over to colored students James D. Cameron Jr., said:

Pickets to Aid Court Cases for Equality

"If there is another recognized organization handling the problem from the point of view of the HYD, students are free to write it in on their solicitation cards, and the money will be sent to that organization." Sat-11-27-48

Says HYD Aids Jim Crow

In a public statement to the Harvard Crimson, undergraduate paper, the Youth for Democracy group charged that college endorsement of the United Negro College Fund was "an underwriting of the system of jim crow in America."

Further the statement read: "This fund does not aim at the breaking down of barriers to education for colored people."

"It serves instead to lend respectability to educational segregation and to the maintenance of substandard colored educational opportunities."

Cameron's Comment

Replying later to the HYD statement which had made no mention of the immediate needs of Southern students, Mr. Cameron said:

"The drive committee, far from favoring segregation believes, however, that by helping to improve education for colored people in the South, equality of opportunity is promoted, and discrimination in education is correspondingly lessened."

Howard Withdraws From College Fund Membership

Afro American
Sat 10-16-48
Baltimore Md.

President Johnson Tells Group Trustees' Decision Not Based on 'Lack of Interest'

NEW YORK — Withdrawal of Howard University from membership in the United Negro College Fund, announced at the fifth annual board of directors meeting at Atlanta University on Oct. 5, was revealed here last week by the Fund's headquarters.

President Mordecai Johnson of Howard made it clear that the decision of the Board of Trustees was not based upon "lack of interest in the Fund," which is "as strong as ever."

University's Statement

He said the university may be counted upon to give the Fund support "from time to time as our strength may permit," Dr. Johnson told the Fund's directors:

"The trustees of Howard believe the university requires them to have a more intensive relationship with their own graduates, and to seek a much larger income in current support than would be permissable under the Fund's present formula.

Sat 10-16-48

Officers Re-elected

"That it would be improper for Howard, with its present support resting so heavily upon appropriated funds, to seek a revision of the formula, very properly adjusted to meet the needs of institutions more heavily dependent—in proportion—upon income from endowments and current gifts."

Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee, was re-elected president of the Fund. Other officers re-elected were: Thomas A. Morgan, chairman, board of directors; Dr. Florence M. Read, president, Spelman College, vice president; Dr. Robert P. Daniel, president, Shaw University, secretary. William J. Trent Jr., is executive director.

Will Direct 1948 Drive For Negro College Fund

William E. Cotter
Dodkin Studio

William E. Cotter, counsel for the Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation, has accepted the chairmanship of the 1948 drive for the United Negro College Fund, Inc., 38 East Fifty-seventh Street, the fund directors announced yesterday. He was one of the national vice chairmen last year and in 1946 served as chairman of the drive in this city.

The fund seeks support for thirty-two member colleges for Negroes, all of which, except Lincoln University in Pennsylvania and Howard University in Washington, are in the South. Winthrop W. Aldrich of the Chase National Bank will serve as treasurer for the fifth successive year. John D. Rockefeller Jr. will continue as chairman of the national council of the fund.

Dr. Frederick D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute and president of the fund, said the campaign for funds this year would be conducted in fifty-five cities with large Negro populations.

United College Fund Board Is Enlarged

NEW YORK CITY—The board of directors of the United Negro College Fund has been enlarged to include among its members 12 prominent lay citizens, as well as the presidents of the 32 colleges belonging to the Fund, Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute and president of the Fund announced this week during a brief visit to the organization's headquarters, 38 East 57th Street.

"The addition of a group of such representative business and civic leaders to our board is a strong indication that the broad scope of our educational program is now generally recognized," said Dr. Patterson in announcing the names of the Fund's new directors. "We are fortunate that these distinguished citizens are to serve on our board and will cooperate with trustees and friends of Negro colleges in strengthening the finances of these institutions."

Morgan Chairman

Thomas A. Morgan, president of the Sperry Gyroscope Corporation, has been named chairman of the board, which, in addition to the college presidents, will consist of Arthur B. Brenner, of Van Vorst, Siegel & Smith, New York; C. Arthur Bruce, executive vice-president of E. L. Bruce Co., Memphis, Tenn.; George H. Burchum, Chase National Bank, New York; William E. Cotter, of Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation, New York; Walter D. Fuller, president, Curtis Publishing Co., Philadelphia.

Also Walter D. Hoving, president, Hoving Corporation, New York; Lindsley F. Kimball, United Service Organizations, New York; Fowler McCormick, chairman of the board of International Harvester Co., Chicago; James E. Stamps, Social Security Board, Chicago; Willard S. Townsend, international president of United Transport Service Employees (CIO), Chicago; Mrs. Chauncey L. Waddell of New York.

The United Negro College Fund, which includes 32 accredited private Negro colleges in the country, will begin its fifth annual campaign April 13. William E. Cotter is national chairman; C. C. Spaulding of Durham, N. C., is vice-chairman; John D. Rockefeller, J chairman of the national counc Winthrop W. Aldrich, treasurer.

WOMEN OPEN DRIVE FOR NEGRO SCHOOLS

Seek $100,000 in City to Help Program of the Colleges in Southern Areas

The Women's Division of the United Negro College Fund, Inc., 38 East Fifty-seventh Street, urged "fair-minded, education-minded" people of the nation yesterday to support the Negro colleges of the South, and called the drive for $100,000 in New York City "a cause to which in a country like ours, there can be no objection."

The division met in the club room of the International Business Machine Corporation, 590 Madison Street. Mrs. Chauncey L. Waddell of Riverdale, the Bronx, chairman, reported that $73,500 was raised last year in gifts of $1 to $5,000 from 1,300 persons. This year's total has already reached $15,000.

The solicitation of funds, she said, was a year-round campaign that was educational as well as financial, with the aim to make the North aware of the type of work that must continue in the South "no matter what changes are sought, or what changes in custom and policy might be sought or achieved in years to come."

Mrs. George A. Wyeth, former president, Women's National Republican Club, also called the campaign "sensible and necessary," adding that "the fact that one-tenth of our fellow-citizens lack both schools and teachers to fit them for a fair chance for usefulness in the world, strikes all of us as a wrong that must be righted."

Mrs. Peter Marshall Murray, wife of a Harlem physician and former soloist for the Riverside Church, asked that the Southern Negro colleges "be kept going for the noble spirits who founded them."

Also speaking in support of the fund, Dr. Constance Warren, former president of Sara Lawrence College, recalled impressions she had received on visiting thirty Southern colleges, Negro and white, especially what the Negro has been doing for himself in both the private and state-operated institutions.

LANE COLLEGE ALUMNI

With the 1948 annual campaign of the United Negro College Fund approaching, this is a good time to tell you and other loyal and interested alumni of Lane some of the benefits which have come to your Alma Mater from our share of the United Fund in years past:

We have raised more money for current operations at less cost than before the United Negro College Fund was formed.

New books have been added to the Library.

Salaries have been increased and additions made to the staff.

New classrooms and laboratory equipment and supplies have been purchased.

Additional funds have been secured for student aid.

Lane has also benefited from the national attention member colleges of the Fund have received.

The 1948 campaign opens nationally on April 13. Campaign committees are now being formed in many cities. Will you help the local UNCF committee or the Inter-Alumni Council if one has been organized in your city.

If no formal campaign is being conducted in your city or town please help us by soliciting contributions from a few of your friends and sending these together with your own, either to me here at Lane or to the United Negro College Fund, Inc., 38 East 57th Street, New York 22, New York.

With every good wish, I am

Sincerely yours,

DEAN S. YARBROUGH
President, Lane College

Divi... ficial in Drive For Negro College Fund

John R. Suman

John R. Susman, vice president and director of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, accepted the chairmanship yesterday of the Greater New York Division for the fifth annual campaign of the United Negro College Fund, Inc., 38 East Fifty-seventh Street, it was announced by fund officials.

Mr. Suman, who came to this city three years ago from Houston, Tex., will be associated with William E. Cotter, national chairman of the fund. John D. Rockefeller Jr., who will head the national committee; Winthrop W. Aldrich, treasurer, and Thomas A. Morgan, chairman of the executive committee.

The solution of the problem of education will aid 14,000,000 Negro citizens to raise their standards "with consequent enrichment of our national life in many important spheres," Mr. Suman declared. The plant evaluation of the thirty-two colleges aided by the fund was set at $41,000,000, with an enrollment of 30,000 students, the announcement read.

and leaders in civic affairs and social ...ions, has created a National ...ncil of which John D. Rocke...er, Jr. will act as chairman, it ...s announced Wednesday by Pres...nt F. D. Patternson of Tuskegee ...titute, Alabama, president of the ...nd. The Council, made up of ...prominent businessmen educators ...

In accepting the chairmanship Mr. Rockefeller commended the work of the Fund in conducting yearly fund-raising campaigns for 32 of the country's 36 accredited pri-

United Negro College Fund Creates National Council

NEW YORK—The United Negro College Fund, earmarking its fifth year with a program aimed toward ... a more comprehensive sphere of op-

vate Negro colleges. He said, "Because this campaign is both constructive and cooperative, it offers to every citizen an unusual opportunity to indicate concretely his interest and good will for the Negro race. To industry, likewise, it brings a similar opportunity and responsibility." Mr. Rockefeller spoke of the Fund's progress in helping to raise the educational standards of our 14,000,000 Negroes as "a source of enrichment to our national life in many spheres." Times 3-4-48

Serving on the National Council under Mr. Rockefeller's leadership will be Henry R. Luce, Hon. Owen J. Roberts, Bruce Barton, Jesse Jones, Thomas M. Girdler, Harvey S. Firestone, Jr., Eric Johnston, Phillip Murray, Frank E. Gannett, Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., William Green, Robert G. Sproul, Thomas J. Watson, Channing H. Tobias, Spencer Miller, Jr., Isaiah Bowman, Randolph W. Burgess, Lindsay Bradford, S. J. Anderson, David Dubinsky, Charles Seymour, and others.

Group Seeks $75,000 for Negro Schools

Detroit Times

The fifth annual United Negro College Fund campaign will be held in Detroit from April 19 through May 19. Dates

Ernest T. Marshall, campaign director, said the City's quota is $75,000. 4-1-48

NATIONAL QUOTA is $1,400,000, which will be distributed to 32 Negro colleges and universities, he said.

Charles H. Mahoney, campaign general chairman, said the need for funds now is especially great because of increased school enrollment. Dates

Some 200 campaign workers will canvass the City for contributions.

General chairman for the national committee is John D. Rockefeller, Jr. 4-11-48

$51,800 for Negro College Fund

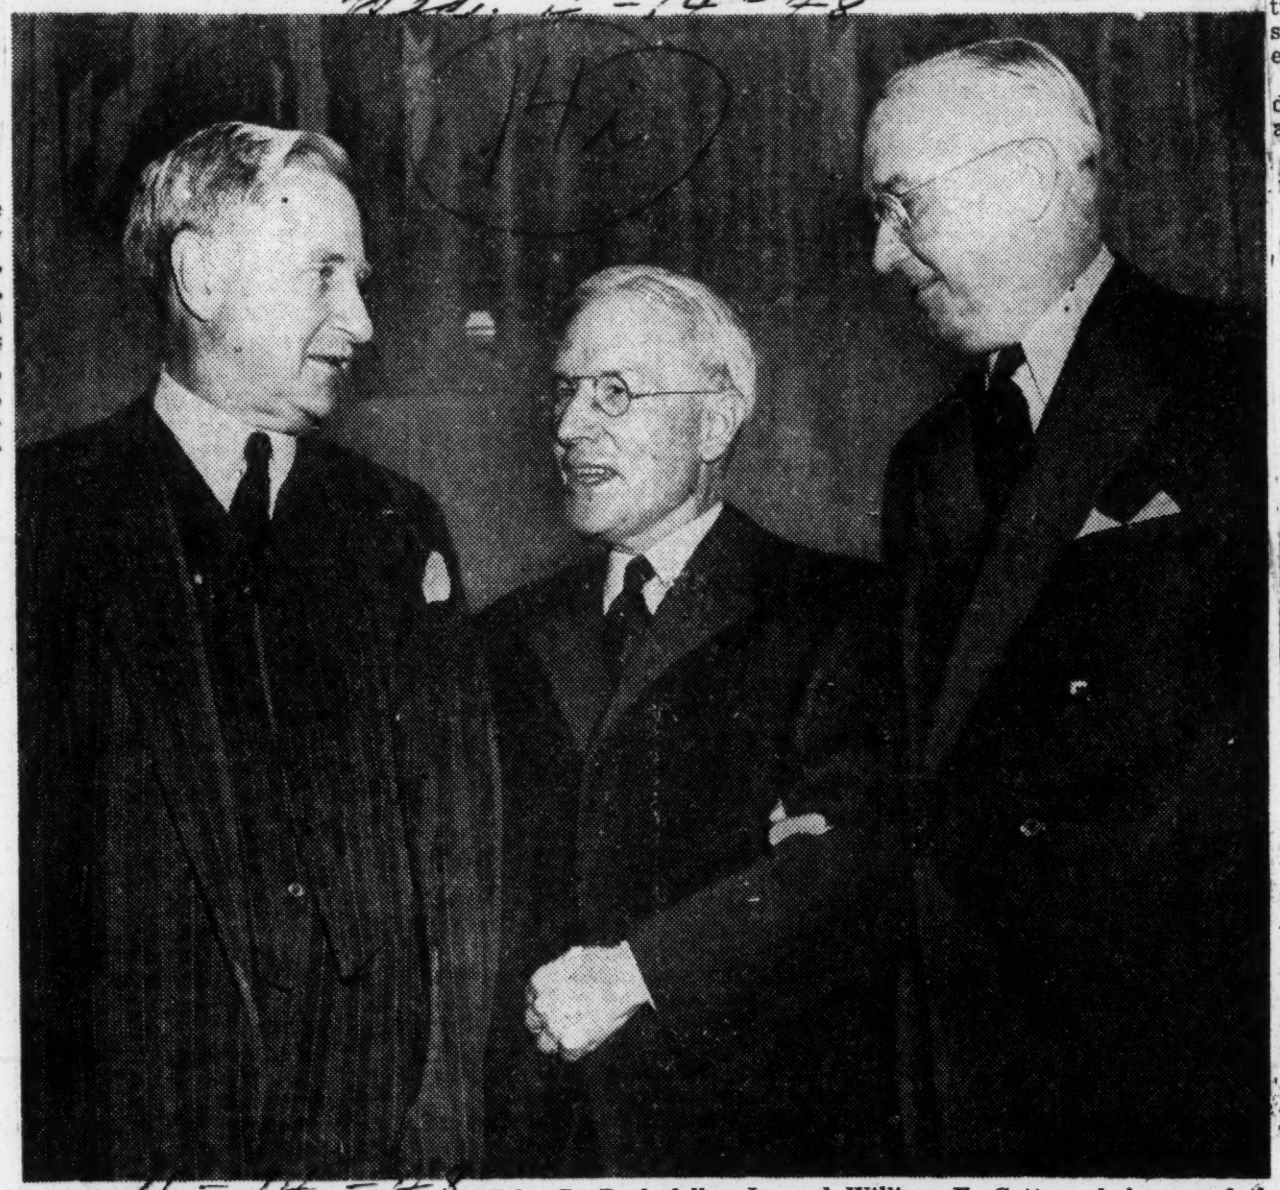
Gifts totaling $51,800 were reported yesterday by the women's division of the Greater New York City drive to aid the United Negro College Fund, Inc., with headquarters at 38 East Fifty-seventh Street. The fund contributes annually toward the current expenses of thirty-two member colleges, mainly in the South. John D. Rockefeller Jr. is chairman of the national advisory council of the fund. New York, N. Y.

Mayor Hails Negro Fund

The Times, New York, N.Y.

Mayor O'Dwyer hailed yesterday the fifth annual campaign of the United Negro College Fund, Inc., as a "unique" program designed to train leadership for 14,000,000 Negro citizens thereby advancing the cause of better race relations. The fund seeks to raise $1,400,000 for its thirty-two member colleges. John D. Rockefeller Jr. is associated with the fund, which has headquarters at 38 East Fifty-seventh Street. Sun 5-14-48

OPENING 1948 CAMPAIGN FOR UNITED NEGRO COLLEGE FUND



Winthrop W. Aldrich (left) with John D. Rockefeller Jr. and William E. Cotter, chairman of the drive, at meeting at Rockefeller Center yesterday. The New York Times

32 NEGRO COLLEGES TO SEEK $1,400,000

The Times, New York, N.Y.

Fifth Drive for Funds Opens Here—Leadership Among Members of Race Urged

New York, N. Y.

The fifth annual campaign of the United Negro College Fund, Inc., for $1,400,000 to aid its thirty-two member colleges was started yesterday at a meeting of 350 persons in the Rainbow Room of Rockefeller Center.

Several speakers emphasized development of leadership among 14,000,000 Negro citizens said to represent the greatest untapped human resource of the nation. John D. Rockefeller Jr. and various business associates were at the meeting. William E. Cotter, national campaign chairman, presided.

A women's division will seek to raise $100,000 of the city goal of $450,000. Mrs. Chauncey L. Waddell, a daughter of former Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes, reported paid-in pledges of nearly $30,000 for the division. She said her experience as a board member of the Spellman College in Atlanta had shown the need of ready cash for Negro education.

Dean Donald J. David of the Harvard University Graduate School of Business declared that education must be re-directed toward development of skilled Negro personnel for business and industry. He said the nation had fallen short of its goal of equality of opportunity for all by inadequate education of Negroes.

With other speakers, the dean asserted that the United States had to prove among its own citizens that democracy could work. He said unhappiness, frustration and discontent become seed beds of intolerance and strife. He urged educational institutions to make further eforts in the field of racial relationships. The Times

Frank S. Weil, president of the National Jewish Welfare Board, advocated that the theory of the European Recovery Program be applied in this country to make democracy and freedom possible for everybody at home. 4-14-48

The enormity of the problem of Negro education, said Homer S. Brown, a member of the Pennsylvania Legislature, calls for support of the thirty-two colleges.

John R. Suman, chairman of the local drive, asked tobacco and textile interests to take a greater share in support of Southern Negro education. New York, N.Y.

The fund has raised $4,000,000 during its operation. Headquarters are in 38 East Fifty-seventh Street.

Negro College Funds

The Constitution Atlanta, Ga. Date 4-27-48

So long as the South insists on segregation in its educational institutions, it cannot escape the moral obligation to aid Negro colleges which give higher education. Thirty-three Negro colleges, most of them in the South, are having a difficult time raising money in their joint appeal—the United Negro College Fund. Their goal this year is $1,400,000. This is not a large sum, as endowments go, yet if they raise it they will receive assistance from other sources. Even so the sum will not be large for 33 colleges, but in its field it will be productive of much good.

The Negro colleges in this fund include, of course, Atlanta University. These colleges have rendered great and valuable service to their graduates and to their communities. Education is the door to economic opportunity. Given education and the ballot, the Negroes themselves can grapple with the dilemma of the Negro citizen. Certainly a contribution to this Fund is an effective contribution to solution of the dilemma. We hope that Southerners able to give will consider the challenge of this campaign. The Constitution Atlanta, Ga. Date 4-27-48

Receives Scholarship To Washington U.

Mrs. Frelda Witherspoon was named this week as one of seven recipients of $1600 stipends for second-year students in the psychiatric division of the George Warren Brown School of Social Work at Washington University. The stipends are part of a grant of $25,568 received by the School from the U.S. Public Health Service for the 1948-49 academic year. In announcing receipt of the grant this week, Benjamin E. Youngdahl, dean of the school, said approximately half of the grant will be used for setting up two field work training units in psychiatric social work, while the remainder is to be distributed to students in the same field.

Mrs. Witherspoon, who is the wife of Atty. Robert L. Witherspoon, and the mother of two children, is the only Negro student as well as the only St. Louisan chosen to receive one of the scholarships. She has already completed two years of graduate work at St. Louis University in the child welfare field, and is employed as a member of the staff of the State Child Welfare Services. She lives at 20 Lewis place.

NEW YORK — Presidents of 9 California colleges have joined heads of 172 leading colleges to issue a call to Negro students to apply for 10,000 scholarships. These presidents comprise the Board of the College Scholarship Fund for Negro students.

The fund helps Negro students finance an education at 968 interracial, non-segregated institutions. According to Fund officials, few Negro students realize that thousands of scholarships are available to them.

Students are urged to send their names and addresses to the College Scholarship Fund for Negro Students, Room 462, 360 W. 122nd st, New York 27, N.Y.

California college presidents represented on the Board include Dr. Robert G. Sproul, University of California; Dr. E. Wilson Lyon, Pomona college; Dr. Charles Frederick Hard, Scripps college, Claremont; Dr. Lynn T. White, Jr., Mills College, Oakland; Dr. Frank W. Thomas, Fresno State college; Dr. William C. Jones, Whittier college; Dr. Arthur G. Coons, Occidental college, Los Angeles; Dr. Robert E. Burns, College of the Pacific, Stockton; and Dr. George H. Armacost, Universsity of Redlands.

LUJUANA WRIGHT, winner of the Delta Sigma Theta sorority prize of $75 for high freshman scholarship at Tuskegee Institute, Ala., is at present visiting her cousin, Miss Gloria Ruth Wright, at Cleveland, Ohio. The prize, given for maintaining a B average or above during the entire year and making a worthwhile contribution to out-of-class activities was awarded at Tuskegee's annual commencement. Miss Wright is the daughter of Frank Wright, superintendent of printing at Tuskegee, and Mrs. Wright.

On the Educational Front

Miss Gertrude E. Fitzgerald has been chosen as the student who has done the most for the senior class of Radcliffe College during her four years at the school. A history major, she was recently elected class marshal and is a member of the editorial panel of the school newspaper . . . The new $100,000 administration building at Campbell College, Jackson, Miss., named for AME Bishop S. L. Green, will be dedicated at commencement exercises in May.

3 Given Catholic Scholarship Aid

Organization to Help 10 Students in Fall

SPRINGFIELD, Mass.— Three students are attending Catholic colleges this year with the assistance of Catholic Scholarships for Negroes Inc., an organization with headquarters here. The students are:

Robert M. Matthews Jr., of George Washington Carver High School, Woodstock, Md., a premedical student at St. Joseph's College, Philadelphia; M. Patricia Goins of Chester, Pa., a graduate of St. Francis de Sales Academy, Rockcastle, Va., now attending Dunbarton College of the Holy Cross, Washington; and, Agnes A. Smith of St. Francis Academy, Baltimore, awarded a scholarship at Marywood College Scranton.

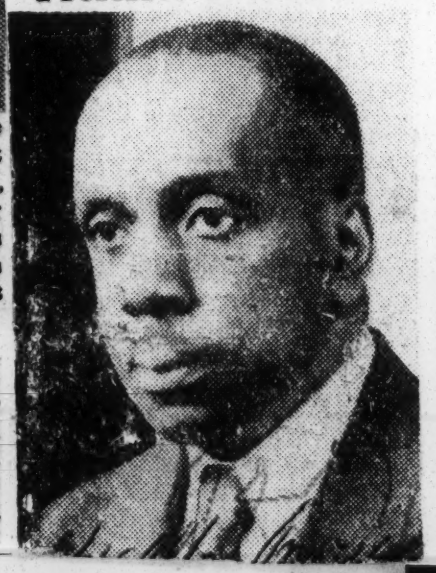
Organized to assist colored Catholic young people to secure college education, Catholic Scholarships is seeking to place at least 10 colored students in Catholic colleges this fall. Students are chosen through competitive examinations.

Wins Fellowship

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Frank B. Johnson of Howard University was the only Negro among 44 winners of fellowships recently awarded by the Atomic Energy Commission for research in biological and physical sciences. The fellowships provide funds ranging from $1,600 to $3,000 a year. Mr. Johnson will study at the University of Chicago.

Professor at Iowa U.



Dr. Howard Thurman, for the past two years co-pastor of the interracial Church of Fellowship in San Francisco, has joined the faculty of the University of Iowa as Protestant professor of religion.

National Honor Society To Meet At Southern U.

Daily World
Atlanta, Ga.

The tenth annual convention of Alpha Kappa Mu National Honor Society will be held at Southern University, Baton Rouge, Louisiana, Feburary 11-13. The theme of the meeting is "The Role of the Scholar in Interpreting Civil Rights in the American Democracy."

Approximately one hundred ranking students in scholarship represen ting 32 colleges will be in attendance. Fri, 1-2-48

Officers of the Society are: President, W. S. Mazie, State Teachers College, Fayetteville, North Carolina; Vice President, Miss Dorothy L. Allen, Southern University, Baton Rouge, Louisiana; Secretary-Treasurer, George W. Gore, Jr. A and I State College, Nashville, Tennessee; Assistant Scretary, Miss Mabel Bently, Wiley College, Marshall, Texas; Director of Public Relations, John W. Riley, Virginia Union University, Richmond, Virgina; Historian, Miss Beulah V. Johnson, Knoxville College, Knoxville, Tennessee. Regional Directors: T. E. McKinney, Johnson C. Smith Univresity, Charlotte, North Carolina; S. J. Wright, Hampton Institute, Hampton, Virginia; R. B. Atwood, Kentucky State College, Frankfort, Kentucky; Miss Minnie Finley Javier Uniresity, New Orleans, Louisiana; R. O. Johnson, Morris Brown College, Atlanta, Georgia. The Executive Council members are: W. H. Gray, Jr. Florida A and M College, Tallahassee, Florida and Miss Lois Samuels, A and T College, Greensboro, North Carolina. Daily World

Chapters of the Society are located in the following colleges: A and T College, Alabama State Teachers College, Arkansas State College, Benedict College, Bennett College, Bluefield State College, Clark College, Dillard University, Elizabeth City College, Fayetteville State ollege, Florida A and M. College, Knoxville College, LeMoyne College, Morgan College, Morris Brown College, North Carolina State College, Jaine College, Philander Smith College, Praire View Colege, Shaw University, Southern University, Tennessee State College Tillotson College, Tuskegee Institute, Virginia Union University, West Virginia State College, Wilberforce State College, Wiley College and Xavier Universitv.

Atlanta Ga
1/2/48

First Negro Earns Doctor Degree at Central Baptist Theological Seminary

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (ANP) — The Rev. Maynard P. Turner, Jr., became the first Negro in history to be conferred the doctor of theology degree, last week, at the Central Baptist Theological seminary.

Studying at Central seminary for three years, Rev. Turner earned his degree while maintaining a busy schedule of work as dean of Western Baptist seminary in Kansas City, Mo. He specialized in Old Testament literature and interpretation.

Born and raised in St. Louis, he was president of the Fisk university class of 1934. He is one of only two Negroes who have earned the bachelor of divinity from the Eden Theological seminary at Webster Groves, Mo.

He and his wife now make their hame at Western Baptist seminary.

Earns Doctor's Degree At Central In Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Kan.—The Rev. Maynard P. Turner Jr., became the first Negro in history to be conferred the doctor of theology degree, last week at the Central Baptist Theological Seminary.

Studying at Central seminary for three years, Rev Turner earned his degree while maintaining a busy schedule of work as dean of Western Baptist Seminary in Kansas City, Mo. He specialized in Old Testament literature and interpretation.

Born and raised in St. Louis, he was president of the Fisk university class of 1934. He is one of the only two Negroes who have earned the bachelor of divinity degree from the Eden Theological seminary at Webster Groves, Mo.

He and his wife now make their home at Western Baptist Seminary.

Churchman gets U. C. doctorate

BERKELEY — Employed as national director of Student Industry Projects, Student Division of the YM-YWCA, in charge of seminars on problems of labor and industry, is Melvin H. Watson, who received his doctor of theology degree from the University of California at the June convocation.

Serving while studying on the staff of Dr. Howard Thurman's Church of the Fellowship of All People, Dr. Watson is a graduate of Morehouse and Oberlin colleges.

Rev. Turner Awarded Degree In Theology

KANSAS CITY, Kan.—(ANP)—The Rev. Maynard P. Turner Jr., became the first Negro in history to be conferred the doctor of theology degree, last week, at the Central Baptist Theological Seminary.

Studying at Central Seminary for three years, Rev. [illegible] Turner earned his degree while maintaining a busy schedule of work as dean of Western Baptist Seminary in Kansas City, Mo. He specialized in Old Testament literature and interpretation.

Born and raised in St. Louis, he was president of the Fisk University class of 1934. He is one of only two Negroes who have earned the bachelor of divinity degree from the Eden Theological Seminary at Webster Groves, Mo.

He and his wife now make their home at Western Baptist Seminary.

Cal Ph.D. gets teaching post at Morehouse

ATLANTA — A degree holder from the Pacific School of Religion at Berkeley, Calif. has won a teaching post at Morehouse College.

Melvin Watson, who was awarded a doctor of theology degree from the California divinity school last June, is now a member of the faculty of the School of Religion at Morehouse.

Dr. Watson is a Morehouse graduate, class of 1930. He also holds degrees from Oberlin college (M. A.), Oberlin Graduate School of Religion, and has taught at Shaw, Dillard and Howard universities. His major field is Christian Ethics.

Making the announcement, Morehouse contributed the interesting bit of information that about 30 graduates of the college have earned doctorates in a wide variety of fields from major U. S. universities and a few foreign schools.

First Negro Earns Doctor's Degree At Central Baptist Theological Seminary

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (ANP) — The Rev. Maynard P. Turner Jr., became the first Negro in history to be conferred the doctor of theology degree, last week, at the Central Baptist Theological seminary.

Studying at Central seminary for three years, Rev. Turner earned his degree while maintaining a busy schedule of work as dean of Western Baptist seminary in Kansas City, Mo. He specialized in Old Testament literature and interpretation.

Born and raised in St. Louis, he was president of the Fisk university class of 1934. He is one of only two Negroes who have earned the bachelor of divinity degree from the Eden Theological seminary at Webster Groves, Mo.

He and his wife now make their rome at Western Baptist seminary.

14j 1948

AWARDED DEGREE

WASHINGTON — A. J. Blackburn, on leave-of-absence as Field Agent to serve as Acting Director of Student Affairs at Howard University, has been awarded the degree of Doctor of Education at Columbia University, it was revealed by university officials.

Campbell College Honors Mr. Howard

Daily World
Atlanta, Ga 3-16-48

WASHINGTON, D. C. — (NNPA) —Perry W. Howard, Republican national committeeman for Mississippi and a member of the law firm of Cobb, Howard and Hayes, has been honored by Campbell College, an A. M. E. Church school at Jackson, Mississippi, which conferred the degrees of doctor of laws upon him recently.

For many years Mr Howard was an active practioner in Jackson and came to Washington early in the Harding administration when he was appoin TF edteaspc ETAOI OD was appointed a special assistant to the Attorney General to represent the Government in suits brought against it by railroads and other corporations. He filled this position for nine years with a staff composed of Louis R. Mohlinger, an attorney, Louis R. Lautier, and the late John R. Wright. Sues.

At the age of 21 years, Mr. Howard was a professor and head of the department of mathematics at the Mississippi land-grant college. He held his professorship until he began to practice law. 5-16-48

He graduated from Rust College with a bachelor of arts degree and received his law degree from DePaul University, Chicago.

Dr. J. J. Seabrook Of Claflin College Gets LL.D. Degree

New York City
Sat. Sept. 12-47

COLUMBIA, S. C.—The Doctor of Laws degree was conferred on Dr. J. J. Seabrook, president of Claflin College, Orangeburg, S. C., at Allen University commencement exercises Thursday.

Dr. Seabrook, who was also Allen University's commencement speaker received the LL.D. degree along with three clergymn who received the degree of Doctor of Divinity and more than one hundred graduates who received bachelor degrees. Dr. J. J. Seabrook, who became president of Claflin College, Orangeburg, S. C., in 1945, is a native of Orangeburg and received his only training at Claflin College. In addition he received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Clark Collge, Atlanta, Bachelor of Divinity and Doctor of Divinity degrees from Gammon Theological Seminary, Atlanta, Bachelor of Laws from Howard University, and Master of Laws degree from Boston University.

Sat. 6-12-48

Since becoming president of Claflin College the student enrollment has increased from 213 in 1945 to 509 in 1947. During his three years of administration more than $250,000 has been spent for physical improvements. The South Carolina Conference, Alumni and friends have increased their annual support to the school from $10,000 to $75,000. In 1947 Claflin College was approved as A-rated senior college by the Southern Assocation of colleges and Secondary schools.

IT'S DOCTOR MARSHALL NOW

June 3, 1948

PETERSBURG, Va., June 3.—The honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon Thurgood Marshall, special counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, by Virginia State College at the commencement exercises here last Monday (May 31.)

N A A C P - Press - New York City.
Thurs. 6-3-48

Recalling Mr. Marshall's role in ending the white primary and in overthrowing restrictive covenants, the citation concludes: "As a result of these and other notable victories you have advanced the citizenship status of millions of people and have broadened the meani- of civil rights to a degree not excelled by any lawyer in the history of American jurisprudence."

Thurs. 6-3-48

Harvard Honors Fisk President With LL.D. Degree

Leading the Harvard University commencement procession at Cambridge, Mass. June 10 graduating class are First Marshal Ray A. Goldberg, left, of Fargo, N. D., and Chester M. Pierce, right, of Glen Cove, N. Y., second marshall.

Pierce became the first Negro in the history of Harvard University to serve as marshall at commencement. Previously, he was the first Negro to compete against white athletes in an intercollegiate sport south of the Mason-Dixon line.

In the inset is Dr. Charles S. Johnson, president of Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn., who was honored with the degree of doctor of laws at the commencement. He is the third Negro to be awarded an honorary degree from Harvard University. Booker T. Washington and R. R. Moton were awarded honorary master of arts degrees from the university previously.

Detroit Teacher

And Youth Aid

Takes M.D. Degree

Chicago Defender

Detroit- Dr. Horace F. Bradfield was granted his M.D. degree at Wayne University College of Medicine at graduation exercises at State Coliseum here June 17.

Dr. Bradfield is a graduate of Eastern high school and received his B.S. and M.S. degrees in chemistry at the University of Michigan in 1933 and 1934, respectively.

Detroit Teacher And Youth Aide Takes M.D. Degree

DETROIT—Dr. Horace F. Bradfield was granted his M. D. degree at Wayne University College of Medicine at graduation exercises at State Coliseum here June 17.

Dr. Bradfield is a graduate of Eastern High school and received his B. S. and M. S. degrees in chemistry at the University of Michigan in 1933 and 1934, respectively.

He worked for 10 years (1934-44) as an attendance officer and adult education teacher with the Detroit Board of Education at the Lincoln and Ferry Attendance centers and at the Lincoln and Miller Evening schools.

In 1944, Dr. Bradfield was appointed a night supervisor in the Boys Division of the Juvenile Detention home by Judge D. J. Healy and worked at this position while completing his medical education.

Dr. Bradfield received the Clark D. Brooks scholarship and H. Peyton Johnson awards in 1947 and 1948. He is 34 years, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Bradfield, 6169 Iroquois, and lives with his wife and two children at 6102 Iroquois. He will interne at Detroit Receiving Hospital.

Couple Receives Degrees From Cornell University

Pittsburgh - Courier, Pittsburgh, Pa. Sat. 6-5-48

ITHACA, N. Y.—Dr. Claud C. Marion, former principal of the E. O. Douglas High School, Sebring, Fla., has been awarded the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, with a major in Agricultural Education and minors in Administration-Supervision and Agricultural Economics from Cornell University.

Mrs. Evelyn Y. Marion received the degree of Master of Science in home economics education and child care and development in June, 1947, and is now completing a full year's work leading towards the Ph. D. degree in home economics education and clothing.

Dr. Marion is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Marion of Fort Pierce, Fla. He received his B. S. degree from the Florida A. and M. College and the M. S. degree from the University of Minnesota. He is a member of Alpha Phi Alpha social fraternity, Phi Delta Kappa honorary fraternity, an Elk and a Mason. He is also a General Education Board Fellow.

Mrs. Marion is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Remer W. Young Sr. of Thomasville, Ga. She received her B. S. degree from the Florida A. and M. College. She is a member of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority and the Phi Delta Gamma honorary sorority.

The couple will leave Cornell University on June 4 to visit friends and relatives in Florida and Georgia.

Dr. Dorothy G. Williams, former libarian of Fisk and Atlanta Universities, has been appointed acting curator of the Schomburg collection of Negro literature and history.

Graduated from Hunter College with a B.A. degree in 1932, Miss Williams also holds degrees of M.S. in library science from Columbia University, and a Ph.D. in library science from the University of Chicago.

32 Negroes Finish Univ. Of Penn.

PHILADELPHIA — (NNPA) — About thirty colored persons were graduated from the University of Pennsylvania last Wednesday at the 192d commencement exercises held in the open air Dormitory Quadrangle, 37th and Spruce Sts.

The doctor of philosophy degree was conferred on G. James Fleming, race relations secretary of the American Friends Service Committee, in the field of political science. Fleming's major was public administration. His doctoral disser tion was written on "The Administration of "Fair Employment Prac tice Programs."

Last week, Fleming was selected for the Distinguished Service Award given each year to an alum nus of Hampton Institute.

Eight of the Pennsylvania grad uates received degrees and certificates in social work from the Penn sylvania School of Social Work. Those receiving the master of social work degree were: Dr. Marechal-Neil Ellison Young, Ellen E. Bullock, Blanch M. Cowan, Ernest K. Goldsborough, Jeannette A. Greene, Monroe E. Hill, and Delma O. May A vocational certificate was earned by Raymond E. Miller.

The master of business administration degree was earned by Broadus E. Sawyer, in accounting; while the master of government administration went to Irving L. Finley, in local and state government administration.

Nine were granted the master of science degree in education Frances E. Askew, French; Louise L. Bell, health and physical education James F. Dawkins, industrial arts Clarence P. Halstead, vocational; William A. Hudgins, health and physical education; Mildred N. Pierson, elementary supervision; Mattie S. Holmes, education; Horatius F. Smith, Supervisor, principal; Lois B. Wilson, counselling; and Mildred R. Wilson, counselling (the latter two are sisters.)

The master of arts degree was granted Joseph R. Applegate in linguistic analysis; Frederick D. Arnold, classical studies; Harold L. Dixon, sociology.

It is reported that several persons received undergraduate degrees. Two recognized were William Perry, bachelor of arts in psychology, and Margaret W. Seamon, bachelor of science in education.

PRESIDENT G. L. HARRISON, Langston University, Langston, Okla., has just announced receipt of a check for $500 in support of chemical research at the university. The grant is in support of research in the synthesis of some new analgesics.

The work will be done by Dr. S. P. Massie and Dr. R. P. Perry. Dr. Massie took his Ph.D. at Iowa State College while Dr. Perry received the Ph.D. from the University of Iowa.

G... 'S DOCTORATE — Flournoy Cole who will be awarded the degree of Doctor of Philosophy by the University of Pennsylvania at its summer Convocation has been appointed professor of Economics at Florida A. and M. College according to an announcement made recently by Dr. William H. Gray president of the college.

Mr. Cole recently returned from Italy where he studied the Italian Post War Emonomy and Foreign Trade on a Penfield Traveling Fellowship.

Dr. Clara Henderson has returned to Wilberforce State College after receiving a doctor of philosophy degree from Ohio State University.

Doctor of Philosophy

SOUTH CAROLINIAN GETS PH. D. — J. Avery Pittman, a native of Charleston county and serving as chairman of the Department of Mathematics at the North Carolina College, Durham, N. C., was awarded the doctorate degree from Teachers College (Columbia University) in Educational Research, with educational statistics as the area of specialization at the 1948 spring convocation.

During his stay at Teachers College he was appointed student assistant in the Division of Educational Research and Statistics, being one of the few Negroes to receive such an appointment.

Dr. Pittman was elected to membership in Phi Delta Kappa, national honorary fraternity, for workers in teaching on the higher educational level. Until about five years ago, this fraternity did not admit Negroes. Dr. Pittman was also elected to membership in the American Educational Research Association, the highest professional society in this country for workers in educational research. He has been a member of the American Statistical Association since 1940.

Dr. Pittman was gradauted from Avery Institute in 1932 and from Talladega College, Talladega, Ala cum laude, in 1936. He attained the Master of Science degree in mathematics from the Graduate School of Liberal Arts of New York University in June of 1937. Before coming to North Carolina College and his present position, he held the same position at Bennett College, West Virginia State College, Delaware State College and has taught summer sessions at Atlanta University.

32 Negroes Finish Univ. Of Penn.

PHILADELPHIA — (NNPA) — About thirty colored persons were graduated from the University of Pennsylvania last Wednesday at the 192d commencement exercises held in the open air Dormitory Quadrangle, 37th and Spruce Sts.

The doctor of philosophy degree was conferred on G. James Fleming, race relations secretary of the American Friends Service Committee, in the field of political science. Fleming's major was public administration. His doctoral disser tion was written on "The Administration of "Fair Employment Prac tice Programs."

Last week, Fleming was selected for the Distinguished Service Award given each year to an alum nus of Hampton Institute.

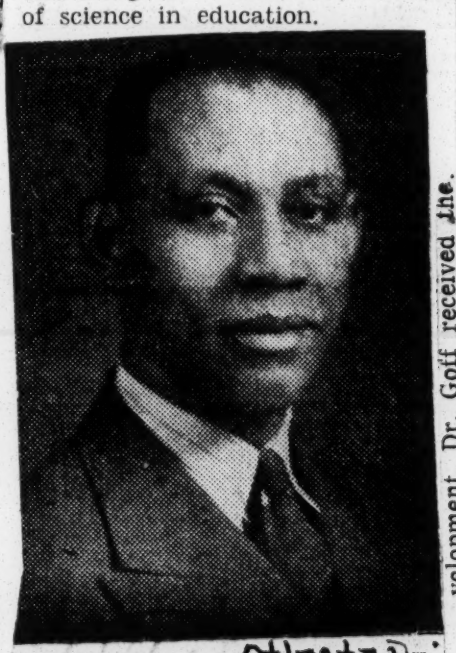
Eight of the Pennsylvania grad uates received degrees and certificates in social work from the Penn sylvania School of Social Work. Those receiving the master of social work degree were: Dr. Marechal-Neil Ellison Young, Ellen E. Bullock, Blanch M. Cowan, Ernest K. Goldsborough, Jeannette A. Greene, Monroe E. Hill, and Delma O. May A vocational certificate was earned by Raymond E. Miller.

The master of business administration degree was earned by Broadus E. Sawyer, in accounting; while the master of government administration went to Irving L. Finley, in local and state government administration.

Nine were granted the master of science degree in education Frances E. Askew, French; Louise L. Bell, health and physical education James F. Dawkins, industrial arts Clarence P. Halstead, vocational; William A. Hudgins, health and physical education; Mildred N. Pierson, elementary supervision; Mattie S. Holmes, education; Horatius F. Smith, Supervisor, principal; Lois B. Wilson, counselling; and Mildred R. Wilson, counselling (the latter two are sisters.)

The master of arts degree was granted Joseph R. Applegate in linguistic analysis; Frederick D. Arnold, classical studies; Harold L. Dixon, sociology.

It is reported that several persons received undergraduate degrees. Two recognized were William Perry, bachelor of arts in psychology, and Margaret W. Seamon, bachelor of science in education.



AWARDED Ph. D. — Landry E. Burgess, chairman of the Department of Biology at Morehouse College who was awarded the Ph. D. degree in this field on June 5 by the State University of Iowa. Burgess was graduated from Morehouse College in 1935 and from Atlanta University in 1937.

Doctorate To Miss Regina

MOBERLY, MO. — The degree of doctor of philosophy was recently conferred upon Miss Regina Mary Goff by the faculty of Philosophy of Columbia university. Her major field was that of child development. Dr. Goff received the bachelor of science degree from Northwestern university, and the master of arts and a professional diploma in Supervision from Teachers' college, Columbia university. She has also studied at the National college of Education. Twice recipient of fellowships of the Division of Education at Stowe Teachers' college, St. Louis, she was an instructor in the department of education at Lincoln university, Jefferson City. Professional Association of Phi Lambda Theta for Women and the Alpha Mo. She is teaching at the A. and M. college in Tallahassee, Fla., this summer.

Dr Goff became the chairman of the Problems and Previous to this appointment, she was an instructor in children Which Are Attributed to the Fact That They Are Negroes", will be published as a Teachers' college contribution to Education.

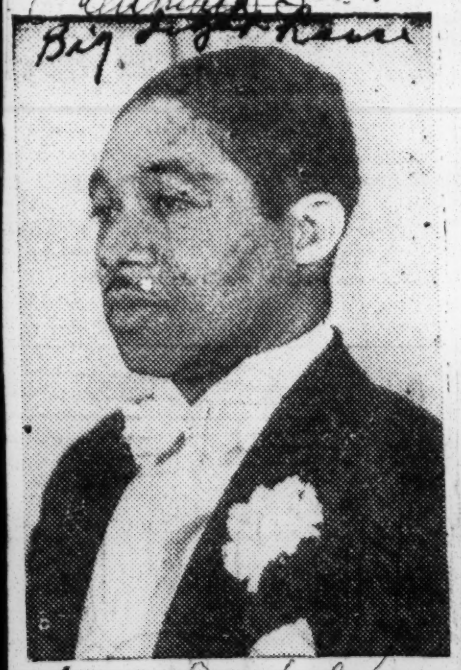
Dr. Goff is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Goff. Her father is pastor of Gillum Memorial Methodist church at Mobe[illegible]

Gets Ph.D. Degree From Iowa State

Claudrye E. Burgess, a native of Baton Rouge, La., and a graduate of Atlanta University in 1937 with the master of science degree, received the Ph.D. degree in biology at the June convocation of the State University of Iowa. Also a graduate of Morehouse College



MUSIC DOCTORATE — Rudolph Everett von Charlton, director of music at Prairie View College in Texas, received the Doctor of Philosophy degree in Music in the June 1948 Commencement exercises at Columbia University.

Trieste border guarded in light of Yugoslav-Russian rift.

Relations Expert Receives Penn. Ph.D.

Dr. James Fleming, race relations secretary of the American Friends Service Committee, was awarded the doctor of philosophy degree in political science during the recent 192nd commencement exercises at the University of Pennsylvania. He was one of the approximately 30 Negro members of the graduating class.

Guest Columnist

This week The New York Age is proud to present as its guest columnist, Dr. Dorothy G. Williams, curator of the nationally known Schomburg Collection of Negro literature of the New York Public Library, who is one of thre Negroes in the United States who holds the Doctor of Philosophy degree in Library Science.

Dr. Williams has had twelve years of experience as a professional librarian and college teacher, including three years at Fisk University, and three years at Atlanta University.

A native of Madison, Conn., she received her Ph.D. degree from the University of Chicago; M.A. from Columbia University; B.S. from Simmons College, Boston, Mass.; and A.B. from Hunter College.

She spent a year on the staff of the New York Public Library (1939-40) and returned to this library in November 1947. She has served on several committees of the professional library journals.

Dr. Williams' article, "Here And Now" may be found in the Guest Editorial column on page eight.

Two Women Ph.D's On Famcee Staff

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—The Florida A. and M. College has the distinction of having two of the country's limited number of Negro women Ph. D. degree holders, according to a statement made by Dr. William H. Gray, Jr., the college president. The two women are Dr. Regina M. Goff, and Dr. Lulu M. Johnson.

Dr. Goff is Professor of Education and serves as head of the Department of Early Childhood Education. She has been recipient of two fellowships from Rockefellow Foundation. She is the first Negro woman to receive a Ph. D. degree in Child Development from Columbia University.

Dr. Goff holds the B. S. from Northwestern University and the M. A. and Ph. D. degrees from Columbia University. Her fields of concentration are Child Development, Psychology and Education. She is a member of Pi Lambda Theta Honor Society.

Dr. Lula M. Johnson is Professor of History and serves as chairman of that department. She has been a fellow of the Rockefellow Foundation and worked in a Workshop of Intergroup Education which was sponsored by the Christian and Jesus Conference in 1946 in Detroit, Michigan. She is a member of the American Historical Association, the National Geographical Association and the American Association of University Professors.

Dr. Johnson holds the A. B., M. A. and Ph. D. Degrees from University of Iowa. She also has studied at the University of Chicago and Western Reserve.

FOUR NEGROES GET PH. D. AT OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

COLUMBUS, O.—(ANP)—Constituting the largest summer school graduating class in the history of the school, 1,187 persons received degrees from Ohio State university Friday, Sept. 3. Of the 386 graduate degrees, 56 were Ph. D.'s including four Negroes.

Among those receiving the doctor of philosophy degree were: Catherine Watkins Duncan, education; Alfred [illegible], English; Elton Clement Harrison, industrial education, and David W. Mays jr. agronomy.

Professor Was Recipient Of Two Fellowships

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—Dr. Regina Mary Goff has been appointed professor of education at Florida A & M College according to Dr. Gray, president of the College.

With the distinction of being the first woman with a doctor of philosophy degree to be appointed to the faculty of the college, Dr. Goff will teach in the area of Early Childhood Education.

Dr. Goff received the Bachelor of Science Degree from North western University and the Master of Arts and a professional diploma in Supervision from Teacher's College, Columbia University. The doctor of philosophy degree was awarded by Columbia University.

She is a member of Pi Lambda Theta honor and Professional Association for women and twice the recipient of fellowships from General Education Board of the Rockfellow Foundation.

Dr. Cornelius C. Lewis was [illegible] appointed head of the Department of Agriculture at West Virginia State College.

Dr. Lewis brings to this post a rich background of thorough training and varied experience. A native of Virginia, he received the degree of bachelor of science in agriculture from Virginia State College, master of science from Michigan State College in soil science; doctor of philosophy from the University of Massachusette in agronomy. He is a member of Sigma Xi honorary scientific society. His most recent publication, "Relationship of Plant Development to the Capacity to Utilize Potassium in Orthoclase Feldspar," appeared in the June issue of "The Journal of Soil Science," the authoritative publication of this field.

Dr. Lewis was formerly head of the Department of Agronomy at Fort Valley State College in Georgia.

Heads Agriculture At West Va. College

. . . . Savannahians were thrilled and read with interest this week, "Our History," a weekly feature in the Pittsburgh Courier, as it featured our own Jessie Parkhurst Guzman. I quote: Taught history at New Orleans College and Alabama State Teachers College and Tuskegee Institute—Specialize in Negro history and race relations. Courier Assn." (End of quote.) Mrs. Guzman is the sister of Harriett —assisted the late Dr. Monroe Work with Negro year book from Brown (Mrs. Samuel) of East Anderson Street, Ella Law, Mrs. Ed- 1912 to 1938 and the monumental and invaluable "Bibliography of the ward) of W. 39th Street, and David Parkhurst of this city . . . . .

S. U. FACULTY MEMBERS RECEIVE HIGHEST DEGREES

BATON ROUGE, LA. (ANP)--Three Southern university faculty members have received highest academic degrees during the summer, according to an announcement by President Felton G. Clark.

Dr. David W. Mays received a doctor of philosophy degree from Ohio State university.

Dr. Elton J. Harrison also received his doctor of philosopjy degree from Ohio State.

Dr. Leander L. Boykin received his doctor of education degree from Stanford university.

Dr. Clark pointed out that all three of these men have done their research in areas where the problems of the south are most acute in keeping with Southern's philosophy of meeting the needs of the deep south.

Baltimorean Gets Yale Ph.D.

DR. PHYLLIS A. WALLACE

A June graduate from Yale University, with the degree of doctor of philosophy in economics, 27-year-old Miss Phyllis Annie Wallace of 1022 W. Franklin St., plans to do a years research work and then teach.

Miss Wallace will be employed by the Federal Government, where she worked several years ago as an economist of the War Production Board. Then, she said she plans to teach in one of the New York Colleges.

She earned her master's degree in economics from Yale. Following a year spent in government work she returned on a scholarship to Yale in October, 1945. With other grants from that school and the Maryland State Scholarship Fund she earned her doctorate.

During her last year at Yale she was a graduate assistant in economics to one of the professors.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wallace.

RECEIVES PH. D.—Mrs. Catherine J. Duncan, professor of education at Fort Valley State College, was awarded the degree of doctor of philosophy at the summer quarter of Ohio State university. Her thesis was entitled "In-Service Teacher Education for Negroes in Georgia." She took her bachelor's at Fisk and master's at the University of New Pittsburgher Awarded Ph.D.

TALLADEGA, Ala.—Among the degrees awarded in absentia last week at the mid-year convocation of the University of Pittsburgh was the doctorate degree in English to James O. Hopson who used as the subject of his dissertation "Attitudes Toward the Negro as an Expression of English Romanticism."

A native Pittsburgher, Dr. Hopson received his A. B. degree cum laude from Lincoln University Pennsylvania and his M. A. in English from the University of Pittsburgh where he was awarded a Graduate Council Scholarship.

At present Dr. Hopson is professor of English and dramatics at Talladega College, Ala. Among the professional organizations to which he belongs are the Southern Association of Dramatics and Speech Arts, American Association of University Professors and the American Educational Theatre Association.

When in Pittsburgh, Dr. Hopson resides with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Dandridge of Oakwood Street.

Langston Professor Gets Laval Ph. D.

LANGSTON, Okla.—(ANP)—Mrs. Ida Rowland Bellegarde, professor of Sociology at Langston university was awarded a doctoral degree in Social Science by the faculty of social science at Laval university in Quebec, Canada last week.

Dr. Bellegarde, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henri Rowland of Muskogee, Okla., wrote for her dissertation "A Historical Analysis of Tension-making Factors in Georgia." Her husband is a candidate for his doctorate at the Faculty of Letters, Laval university.

Dr. Joseph Williams, who took his Ph.D. in zoology at the U. of P. and taught at Lincoln, Howard and Hampton, is now an interne at Mercy-Douglass Hospital. Got his M.D. at Howard. How some people like to study!

Pioneer

DR. JULIETTE V. PHIFER, who received her Ph.D. degree at New York University last June, has been appointed associate professor at Willimantic State Teachers College in Willimantic, Conn. A native of North Carolina, Dr. Phifer was formerly principal of Laboratory School at State Teachers College in Fayetteville, N. C., where she served for a number of years as principal and supervisor of student practice. She wrote her dissertation on Haiti's educational system, after studying in the Black Republic of a U. S. Gkpvernment, fellowship A member of Kappa Delta Pi, an international honor society, she is also on the board of directors of the Association for Arts in Childhood.

Faculty Additions Announced at L. U.

LANGSTON, Okla. — Twelve additions have been made to the faculty of Langston university, Dr. G. L. Harrison, Langston president, announced this week.

These are: Lena Morton, Ph. D., (Western Reserve University), English; Hasco Ellis, B. S. (Langston), agriculture; William Jones, M. A. (Columbia), biology; Jimmie King, B. S. (Langston), commerce; L. A. Glover, M. A. (Michigan), mathematics; L. T. Davis, A. B. (Langston). music; Mrs. Mildred K. Byuarm, M. A. (Illinois), social science; Roscoe Chesley, M. A. (New York University), social science; J. C. Samuel, M. A. (New York University), social science.

Dorsey E. Walker of Detroit, Michigan, assistant professor of history at Florida A. and M. College, has received the Ph.D. degree at the University of Michigan. Now completing his second year as a member of the faculty at Florida A. and M., Mr. Walker holds the A.B. degree from Wayne University and the M.A. degree from Atlanta University.

Gets Ph.D. Degree

Pioneer

DR. JULIETTE V. PHIFER, who received her Ph.D. degree at New York University last June, has been appointed associate professor at Willimantic State Teachers College in Willimantic, Conn. A native of North Carolina, Dr. Phifer was formerly principal of Laboratory School at State Teachers College, Fayetteville, N. C., where she served for a number of years as principal and supervisor of student practice. She wrote her dissertation on Haiti's educational system, after studying in the Black Republic of a U. S. Gkpvernment, fellowship A member of Kappa Delta Pi, an international honor society, she is also on the board of directors of the Association for Arts in Childhood.

Appointed To Staff Of White College

Dr. Juliette V. Phifer, who received her Ph. D. at New York University last June, has been appointed associate professor at the Willimantic State Teachers College, Willimantic, Conn. Dr. Phifer, who is a native of North Carolina, is the first of her race to receive an associate professorship at this old and distinguished institution.

Receives Her Doctors Degree

The degree of Doctor of Philosophy was recently conferred upon Miss Regina Mary Goff by the faculty of Philosophy of Columbia University. Her major field was that of Child Development. Dr, Goff received the Bachelor of Science degree from Northwestern University, and the Master of Arts and a professional diploma in Supervision from Teachers' College, Columbia University. She has also studied at the National College of Education.

Twice recipient of fellowships from the General Education Board, Rockfeller Foundation, she is a member of Pi Lambda Theta Honor and Professional Association for Women and the Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority. She is now serving as chairman of the Division of Education at Stowe Teachers' College.

The dissertation, "A Psychological Study of the Problems and Emotional Difficulties of Negro Children Which Are Attributed To The Fact That They Are Negroes", will be published as a Teachers' College Contribution to Education.

Dr. Goff is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Goff, and lives at 4562 Labadie avenue.

Rev. Fisher To Get Ph.D. Degree

DURHAM, N. C.—The Rev. Miles Mark Fisher, pastor of the White Rock Baptist Church here, will be awarded a Doctor of Philosophy Degree in the December 17 convocation at the University of Chicago, according to informtion received here this week. Rev. Fisher, who is now in Chicago has been notified that he successfully passed the oral examination for the degree Wednesday December 1. The thesis subject on which Rev. Fisher states he has been working for the past 25 years, is "The Evolution of Slave Songs in the United States." He has sought to prove in this dissertation that Negro spirituals are not primarily folk music, but are history, expressing in song an individual Negro's reactions to his circumstances. He has assigned to each song a probable date and place of origin and has given a description of its message.

Born in Atlanta, Georgia, Rev Fisher received the B. A. degree from Morehouse College in 1918.

Ohio Girl Wins PhD From Penn. State In Home Ec.

COLUMBUS, Ohio— (ANP)— A former Dayton girl, Miss Elizabeth Durham, now a teacher at Virginia State College, received her Ph. D. Sept. 18 in graduation exercises at Penn State College.

Her field was home economics in the particular sphere of nutrition. Her doctor's dissertation was titled "A Study of the Dietary Habits and the Nutritional Status of 500 Children," 373 pages long.

Earning this degree climaxed years of working to get an education by Miss Durham. She is a daughter of the late Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Durham who died in 1937 and 1939 respectively.

STRUGGLING FAMILY

She and her brothers and sisters were forced to work their way thru school to get an education. Only one member of the family still lives in Dayton. He is a brother, Gowdy Durham.

A Sister, Miss Marjorie Durham works for the Veterans Administration in Columbus. The other sister, Mrs. Esther Jackson is a bacteriologist in the state health laboratory at Ohio State university, and the other brother Barbee Durham works in the chemical re-agent laboratory at the same school. Both of them are graduates of Ohio State.

Miss Elizabeth Durham graduated from Steele high school and worked seven years before she could go to college. Then she worked her way through Virginia State College where she earned a master's degree in four years.

She now teaches at that school. She was granted a General Education board fellowship to study nutrition at Penn State. It was renewed twice so that she could complete her study. At Penn State she was elected to Iota Sigma Pi, national honorary chemical society for women students, and to Sigma Delta Epsilon, national home economics honor society. She is also a member of the Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority.

In Dayton she is a member of Bethel Baptist church.

N. C. Teacher Is First At Conn. School

NEW YORK — Dr. Juliette V. Phifer who received her Ph.D. at New York University last June has been appointed associate professor at the Willimantic State Teachers College, Willimantic Conn. Dr. Phifer, who is a native of North Carolina, is the first of her race to receive an associate professorship at this old and distinguished institution.

Before accepting the position at Willimantic State Teachers College, Miss Phifer was principal of Campus Laboratory School of the State Teachers College, Fayetteville, N. C., and served for a number of years as principal and supervisor of Student Practice.

Miss Phifer has been awarded several fellowships including a U. S. Government Fellowship which provided for studies in the Republic of Haiti, of which she wrote her dissertation for her doctorate entitled "System of Education in Haiti."

Miss Phifer is an elected member of the International Honor Society Kappa Delta Pi and a member of the board of directors of the Association for Arts in Childhood.

Alcorn College Adds 4 Ph Ds

ALCORN, Miss.—Dr. W. H. Pipes, president of Alcorn A.&M. College, has announced the recent employment of four persons each holding a Ph.D. degree for the 1948-49 school year. They are Drs. J. I. E. Scott, V. V. Oak, Emile Hooker and R. Grann Lloyd.

Dr. Scott, a University of Pittsburgh, Ph.D., in school administration, will serve as dean of instruction and dean of the school of education.

Dr. Oak, a Clark University Ph.D. in journalism and economics, will serve as administrative assistant to the president (dean of the college and director of public relations).

ONE CORNELL GRAD

Dr. Hooker, a Cornell University Ph.D., in agricultural economics, will head the department of agricultural research.

Dr. Lloyd, a New York University Ph.D., in social science, will serve as director of the division of social science.

Others who will strengthen the Alcorn faculty and staff for 1948-49 are Sara Owsley Stivers of Spelman College, piano; Julian Bell, head coach at Fisk University, dean of men and health and physical education; John C. Greene of the Ford Motor Company, superintendent of buildings and grounds and O. E. Yokley, Dillard University, head of the science division (chemistry).

Dr. Law Added To Maryland State Staff

President J. I. Williams has announced that Dr. Augustus Law has been appointed head of the department of history and government at Maryland State College, Princess Anne, Md. A graduate of Lincoln University, Missouri, Dr. Law earned both the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees at Iowa State University, and has had teaching experience at Florida Normal, the St. Louis Public school system and A. and T. College, Greensboro, N. C. He comes to Maryland State from A. and T., where he has been serving as head of the social science division.

Student Strikers Enjoined

53 Suspended, 25 Banned From College Grounds; Hearings Set for Saturday

MARSHALL, Tex.—Attempts to settle the Wiley strike through a compromise agreement between attorneys for the school and the fifty-three suspended students ended in a stalemate Saturday. College officials declined to take the Wiley College alumnus and a ..Chicago lawyer, arrived to represisted that the fifty-three at a court hearing set for Friday. Twenty-five of them were banned from entering the campus by a temporary court injunction.

Rangers strode the college campus last week-end and reports persisted that the school might close indefinitely as its troubles arising from a student strike continued to rock the Southwest!

Students began a mass exodus urday and Sunday were jammed days, and Atty. Herbert Dotson, fifty-three students during the holi-

MARSHALL, Tex. — The fabulous gum-slinging Texas

By J. DON DAVIS
(Courier Staff Correspondent)

14j 1948

Franklin Delano Roosevelt Scholarship

Wins Roosevelt Scholarship

The Urgo
4-30-48

DETROIT—(ANP)— A strong will and determination and the "never-say-die" spirit paid off for George D. Brown, 18 year old graduate of Miller High school here, when he was awarded a Franklin Delano Roosevelt scholarship last week. Young Brown has an outstanding record at Miller which he achieved in spite of illness and the fact that he worked in a shop after school hours.

St. Louis - Mo.

The scholarship fund, held in trust by the Michigan Mortgage Corp., was set up by George D. Schermerhorn to assist worthy students. The award was delivered to Brown by the president of the mortgage corp in the presence of Mayor Van Antwerp. George Brown will enter the University of Michigan school of pharmacy in September.

Tue. 4-30.

Speech Prof. Is Awarded Fellowship

PHOENIX, Ariz. — (ANP)—Marcus H. Boulware, speech professor, was notified recently by the speech department, University of Wisconsin, that he has been granted a graduate teaching fellowship for the year 1948-1949.

The teaching assistantship will require that he teach two courses in speech while completing his residence and course requirements for the Ph.D. degree in speech at the University of Wisconsin. A substantial salary will be paid Mr. Boulware for his services.

At a meeting of speech department staff on February 21, Boulware was also nominated for an unassigned university fellowship, paying $800 per year, and exempting him from out-of-state tuition ($200), according to A. T. Weaver, chairman of the speech department.

Boulware has gathered most of the material for his doctoral thesis which will be developed under the title, "History and Criticism of American Negro Oratory, 1915-1949."

NEGRO GIRL HIGHEST IN ...

BOSTON — Liberia-born Rachel H. C. Boone, daughter of missionaries, placed highest in the nation in a recent national board exami-

Philadelphia Girl Wins Scholarship

OSKALOOSA, Iowa—Miss Berniece Gardner of Philadelphia, has been awarded the second semester scholarship in music at William Penn College here, it was announced last week.

Miss Gardner is a graduate of the Benjamin Franklin Evening High school in Philadelphia, and of the Mastbaum Vocational School in the same city, is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gardner, 1625 N. Bouvier st., Philadelphia. She was, during her student days in high school accompanist for the school orchestras and glee clubs, and served also as organist for the youth choir at Mount Zion Methodist church.

One of the few colored students at the local college, she was judged the ranking music student in this her freshman year.

U. S. IN BIOCHEMISTRY TEST

nation in biochemistry. Miss Boone, who will receive her M. D. from Boston university next year, received 96 out of a possible 100.

Ga. Teacher Elected To Assn. Of Librarians

ATLANTA, GEORGIA, (Special)-Dr. Virginia Lacy Jones, director of the Atlanta University School of Library Service, has been elected to the office of Secrtary-Treasurer of the American Association of Library Schools.

This Association, made up of the faculties of 34 accredited library schools in the United States, is organized for the purpose of promoting the study of library education and at the same time planning the education of librarians so that library service can make an ever increasing contribution to American life.

Dr. Jones was elected for a term of three years. She also has

Pepsi-Cola Awards Two Fellowships

PALO ALTO, Calif.—Awards of unusual distinction have been conferred upon two college seniors by the Pepsi-Cola Scholarship Board. They are Lester Banks, majoring in nuclear physics at Howard University, and George Rawls, a pre-medical student at Florida Agricultural and Mechanical College.

Both have received followships which cover full tuition and $750 a year each for three years of graduate study in any college or university in the United States or Canada they wish to attend.

Winners announced by Dr. Paul F. Lawrence, Negro consultant to the Pepsi-Cola Scholarship Board, Palo Alto, Calif., were chosen from 141 applicants representing fifty Negro colleges. They are the first students selected from Negro colleges by the Pepsi-Cola Scholarship Board to receive graduate fellowships under an extension of the board's scholarship program.

2,147 APPLIED

Lester Banks lives in Middletown, Conn., and George Rawls is a Gainesville, Fla., resident.

Bufordyne N. Westbrooks, a student of English at Talledega College in Alabama, was named first alternate in the event either of the two winners does not use his fellowship.

Of the 2,147 Negro and white candidates who applied for the twenty-four fellowships offered to graduates of white colleges throughout the Nation, Clarence C. Ferguson, a Negro law student at Ohio State University, was named first alternate in the Midwestern Division.

Student Wins Speaking Contest At Northwestern U.

CHICAGO— (ANP) — A Negro student from Chicago's south side, David L. Minor, became the first "Best Speaker" of the Northwestern University forum May 14 when he won an oratorical contest in competition with four of the forum's best speakers.

As speaking champion, Minor's name will appear on a permanent plaque in Abbott hall on Northwestern's Chicago campus. This will be the first time the name of any colored student has headed a plaque or scroll of any kind at this school.

The forum will present him his award, a cup, formally at a dinner at the exclusive Younger's restaurant on Chicago's north side, June 5th.

The judges, two professors in Northwestern's School of Speech, and the audience unanimously acclaimed his talk as the best. The contest topic was "What Is Our Responsibility in European Affairs?"

Norfolk Physician Gives A Scholarship

Dr. S. R. Wilson well-known Norfolk physician, presents a scholarship in music to Miss Havanah Simmons, senior student at Norfolk Division, Virginia State College. This is Dr. Wilson's first scholarship to an outstanding student and his plan is to make a similar presentation to a Norfolk Division student each year.

Dr. Wilson, according to his own version, was prompted to aid this young student upon first hearing her sing when the college choir gave a concert at the Center Theatre. "Being so much impressed with her voice," he said, "I concluded that she had in her the making of a star. Upon investigation, I learned that she hoped to make music her career. After a talk with the musical director at the college, I determined to present her a scholarship in music, provided she would accept it. She gladly accepted, and I gave her a three-year scholarship."

W. Va. State Confers Honorary Degree Upon Mrs. Roosevelt

INSTITUTE, W. Va.—Mrs. Anna Eleanor Roosevelt received the degree of Doctor of Humanities at the special Honors Convocation of West Virginia State College held at Institute, W. Va., May 16, 1948.

President John W. Davis of the college conferred the degree in the presence of more than 3,000 persons who crowded the College Gymnasium. Dr. Fannin S. Belcher, Jr., of the West Virginia State Department of Drama, presented Mrs. Roosevelt for the degree.

In an address which was broadcast over CBS, Mrs. Roosevelt pleaded for all citizens to help the United Nations, by helping all Americans to all their democratic rights.

"From us must come the leadership in democracy, because we are the strongest nation economically and we are potentially the strongest military power. If the world is to believe in democracy, we have to show its real working de-state government, ed the stage with will give the Baccalaureate Address, and on May 30th, commencement exercises will be held. The also conferred by ment of West Virginia State College. On Dr. Irvin speaker on this occasion will be upon Dr. Percy L. Julian, a former member of the staff, now with the Those fundamental rights and freedoms which we must be enjoyed by all Americans, of whatever race or creed."

President Davis also conferred by Governor Clarence Dickason, President of Bluefield State College, Bluefield, W. Va., and Henry Lake Stewart, President of the Virginia University, Chicago, Ill.

The representative of the United States in the United Nations was

ESTABLISHES SCHOLARSHIP

The National Achiebement Club, Inc., establishes the Alma Illery scholarship at Tuskegee Institute. Mrs. Mary Clark, first vice president of the National Achievement club, presents a check to Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee, at the February meeting of presidents of the Pittsburgh area.—(ANP)

Pepsi-Cola Gives Two Graduate Scholarships

Winners To Get $750 a Year for Next Three Years

PALO ALTO, Cal. — Awards of unusual distinction have been conferred upon two Negro college seniors by the Pepsi-Cola Scholarship board. Lester Banks, who is majoring in nuclear physics at Howard university, and George Rawls, a pre-medical student at Florida Agricultural and Mechanical college, have just been informed that they will receive fellowships which cover full tuition and $750 a year each for three years of graduate study in any college or university in the United States or Canada, they wish to attend.

The winners, whose names were announced by Dr. Paul F. Lawrenc, Negro consultant to the Pepsi-Cola Scholarship Board, at the Board's headquarters in Palo Alto, were chosen from 141 outstandingly talented applicants representing 50 of the nation's Negro colleges.

They are the first students selected from Negro colleges by the Pepsi-Cola Scholarship Board to receive graduate fellowships under an extension of the Board's scholarship program, Dr. Lawrence said. The fellowships are financed by the Pepsi-Cola Company at the suggestion of its president, Walter S. Mack Jr., and they are offered as a part of the company's public service program. John M. Stalnaker, professor of psychology at Stanford University, is the director of the Pepsi-Cola Scholarship Board.

Lester Banks lives in Middletown, Connecticut; and George Rawls is a Gainesville, Florida, resident.

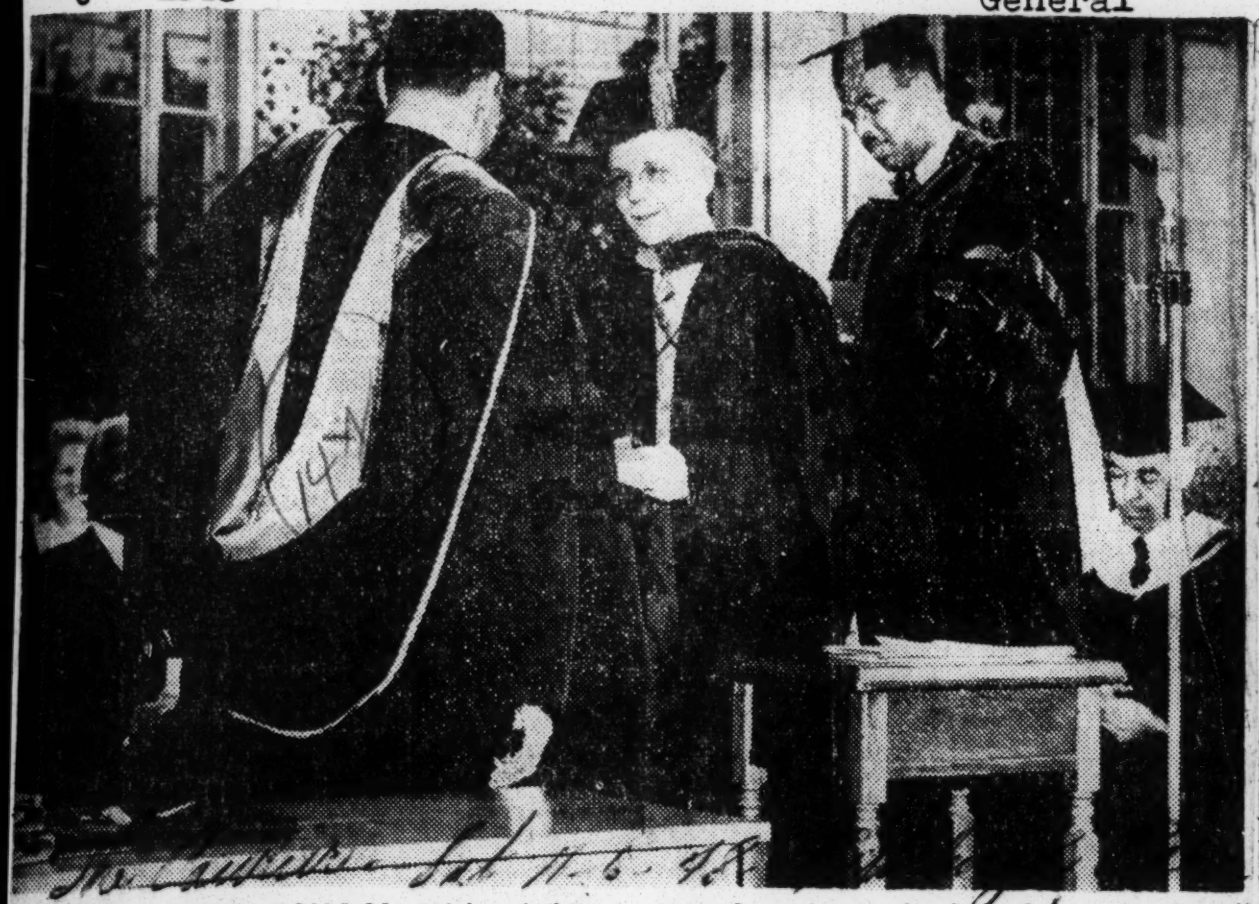
Bufordyne N. Westbrooks, a student of English at Talladega college in Alabama, was named first alternate in the event either of the two winners does not use his fellowship. Three other graduate Negro students who applied for the fellowships were given honorable mention for their excellent scholastic records in college, the announcement stated. They were: Lucille A. Simmons, also of Talladega college, Luetta B. Colvin of Fort Valley State college, and Barbara Robinson of Miner Teachers college.

Of the 2,147 white and Negro candidates who applied for the 24 fellowships offered to the graduates of white colleges throughout the nation, Clarence C. Ferguson, a Negro law student at Ohio State University, was named first alternate in the Midwestern Division.

Winners in this new fellowship program were selected on the basis of their promise of outstanding achievement in their own fields as evidenced by their undergraduate records and recommendations as to character, personality, and qualities of leadership, the announcement stated, and the awards were limited to those students with financial need.

Applications from students in Negro colleges were assembled by the Pepsi-Cola Scholarship Board and sent to a selection committee composed of William H. Gray Jr., president of the Florida Agricultural and Mechanical college; Horace Mann Bond, president of Lincoln university, Pennsylvania; and J. B. Blayton, vice president of the Citizens Trust company in Atlanta, Georgia.

In making the announcement of the Negro winners, both Lawrence and Stalnaker particularly emphasized the skillful work done by the selection committee and expressed the pleasure of the board at having three such capable men serve in this capacity.



HONORED BY HIS SCHOOL—Walter White, executive secretary of the NAACP, receives an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Atlanta University in recognition of his "lifetime of service in the fight for justice for all Negroes all over the world."—Keystone Photo.

SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS—Among twenty employes of the huge Lane Bryant, Inc., and its affiliated stores, who were awarded Albert Malsin Scholarships totaling $3,048 for study in any field chosen by the winners, were three Negroes, left to right: Margaret Scott, New York City; Kay Owen, Detroit, Mich., and Wanda L. Bishop, Waukegan, Ill. The scholarships are made possible by the Lane Bryant Twenty-five-Year Club, now in the fourth year.

INDIANA SHAMES OKLAHOMA

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES OTIS STOUT

A brilliant Oklahoma girl, who did not have a chance to take a graduate course in law in Oklahoma, Mrs. Charles Otis Stout has just received her J. D. degree from the University of Indiana, and is now a full-fledged attorney.

Mrs. Stout, a former Wewoka girl, worked in the law offices of Charles H. Houston, Washington, D. C., during the war, but later went to the University of Indiana to take her law course, not being able to secure it in Oklahoma.

Monday, Mrs. Stout was shaking hands with Mrs. Ada Lois Fisher in the offices of the Black Dispatch. "I think I'm just about ready to take your case," she told the Chickasha matron, whose case is still pending in the courts.

Teen Girl To Fisk U. On Pepsi-Cola Scholarship

100 Negro contestants from Ten- the National Honor Society and nessee. The award, which marks her secretary of her class. She was a as the top Negro student in the state member of the "Y" Teen and the will pay her full tution plus $25 a New Home Makers of America. month and travel expenses for four Altogether there will be sixteen students attending Fisk on Pepsi-Cola Scholarship awards during the present academic year.

Miss Wyatt, who graduated from Five other Tennessee Negro stu- Bruce High School in Dyersburg dents received runner-up awards in in June, was elected by her class- the Pepsi-Cola competition last mates to participate in the Pepsi- March. They were: Leon Davis, Cola competition as a student "most John Downs, and Ferguson Tolbert, likely to make an outstanding con- all of Memphis; Shirley Lyle of tribution to human progress." While Kingsport; and Constance Staten Entering Fisk University this month is Dorothy Wyatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Wyatt of Newburg.

She is attending Fisk on a Pepsi-Cola Four-Year College Scholarship which she won last March over

MORRIS T. JOHNSON, who recently received his L. L. B. degree from Harvard university, is shown with his wife, the former Miss Alice Norman of Beaumont, Texas. Johnson, son of the Myles T. Johnsons of San Antonio, Texas, is a charter member of the Kings Beach club and served in the armed forces of the last war as captain. His wife, a graduate of Spelman college, Atlanta, and the Atlanta University School of Social Work, is a former employee of Traveler's Aid. They are currently visiting Johnson's relatives in San Antonio.

Negro Science Group To Open Parley Today

Dr. C. R. Drew, Plasma Research Expert, Among Speakers

Some 200 outstanding Negro scientists and scholars convene here at the Alabama State College today for the national convention of Beta Kappa Chi, national honorary scientific society.

Dr. H. Council Trenholm, president of Alabama State, has issued an invitation for the public to attend. Especially at the general session to be held today at 3 p.m. at Tullibody auditorium.

Dr. Victor J. Tulane, of Howard University in Washington, and a native of Montgomery, said that today's gathering probably will be one of the most widely attended meetings in the organization's history.

Principal speaker for the two-day affair will be Dr. Charles R. Drew, professor of surgery at Howard University, and chief of surgery at Freedman's Hospital in Washington. Noted for his contribution in the field of plasma research, Dr. Drew has received many scientific honors both here and abroad.

Other prominent persons to attend are James C. Evans, of the War Department, and Herman Daves, specialist of Negro education for the T.V.A.

On the planning committee in charge of convention arrangements are Dr. R. T. Adair, chairman; Dr. H. L. Van Dyke, science department head, and Miss Alice James, president of the local chapter of Beta Kappa Chi.

Dr. CHARLES R. DREW

Dr. VICTOR J. TULANE

LOS ANGELES GIRL WINS $1,000 ORATORY SCHOLARSHIP PRIZE

LOS ANGELES ANP) — For her speech on "The Debt We Owe Susan Anthony," senior Agnes Moreland of Jefferson High School won $1,000 scholarship certificate in the Los Angeles Daily News Oratorical contest last week. She plans to enter Redlands college.

Wilberforce Dean Given Doctorate

WILBERFORCE, OHIO—Miss D. Froe, Dean of Students at Wilberforce State College was awarded the Doctorate Degree at the University of Chicago December Convocation.

Doctor Froe holds B S Degree from Bluefield, West Virginia College, Class of 1935 and M A Degree from University of Michigan 1940, with a major in Education Administration. While studying at the University of Chicago, Dr. Froe majored in the field of Education Administration and his thesis dealt with College Student Personnel.

His teaching experiences include both public and private school, having taught in the Public School system of West Virginia and served as Dean of Instruction, Morristown College, Morristown, Tennessee, 1940-1945.

He has made a number of contributions through his research which has been published in School Review and other publications. He was appointed Dean of Students at the Wilberforce State College, July 1947 and recently made a Personnel Study of Wilberforce State College students, a report covering the fall and winter quarters of 1948.

He holds memberships in the American Association of School Administration and American College Personnel Association.

Grace E. Byrd Receives Degree

WASHINGTON — Dr. Grace Elizabeth Byrd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Byrd of Wilberforce State college, Wilberforce, Ohio, was among June graduates of the Howard university college of Dentistry.

Dr. Byrd graduated from Wilberforce in June 1944 and is a member of the Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority, the Beta Kappa Chi honorary scientific society and the Sen Menr Rehk scholastic society.

While at Howard she received the freshman award for dental anatomy; the Louise Ball scholarship for the most promising freshman women student in the college of dentistry; the trustee's scholarship for superior work in the sophomore year and the Ladies Auxiliary Award for highest scholastic average for the first three years.

In her senior year, she was elected to Chi Lamda Kappa Honorary dental society and the Omicron Kappa Upsilon National Honorary dental society.

Upon graduation Dr. Byrd received the honor of being the highest ranking student of her class and was given the Dr. William Brazier award for the graduating senior with the highest scholastic record for four years and the Dean's award for superior academic achievement, excellence in clinical skills and exemplary character.

Her father, is architect for Wilberforce college and her mother, Mrs. Grace Byrd is a member of the home economics faculty and supervisor of Mitchell cafeteria at Wilberforce.

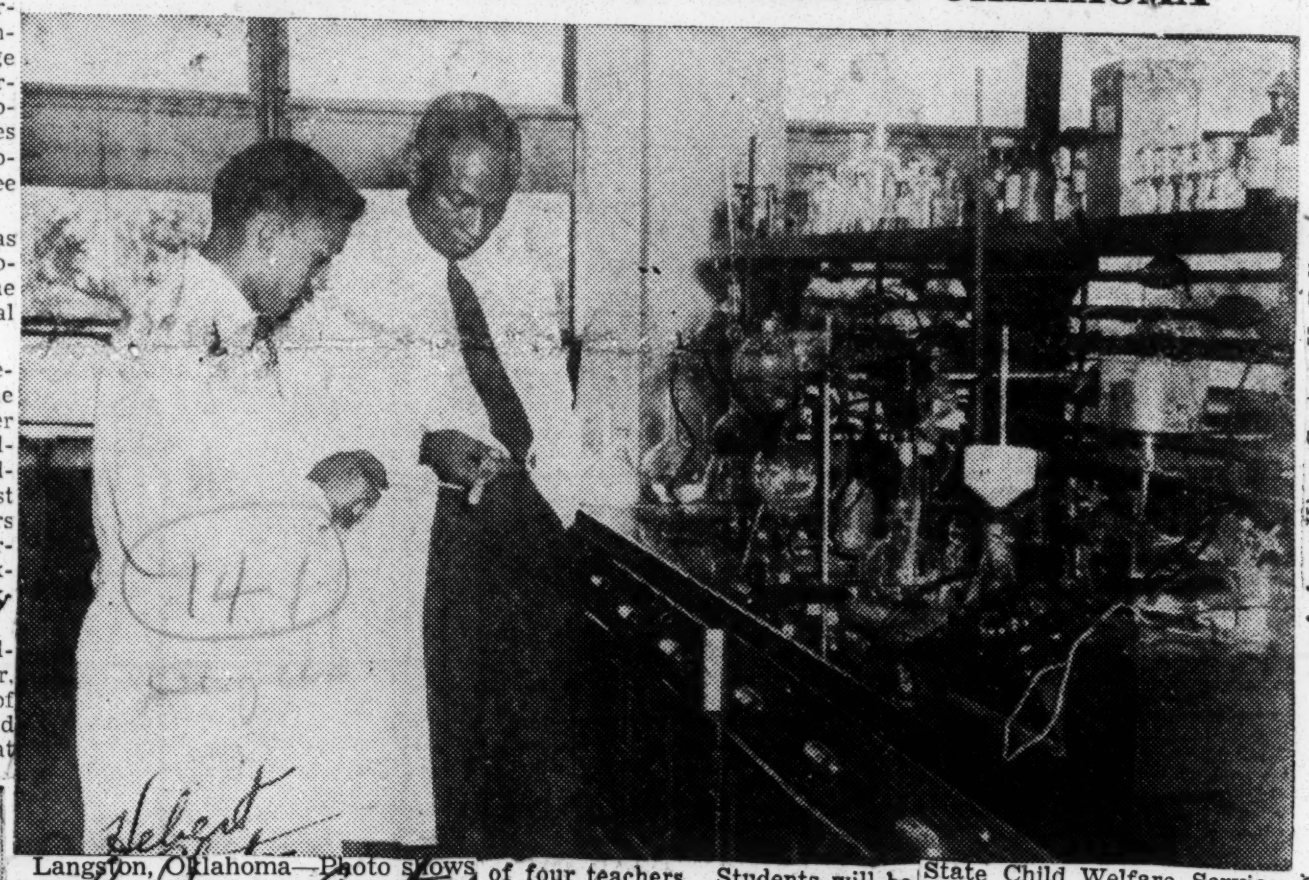
MRS. THELMA T. GORHAM, assistant professor of journalism at Lincoln (Mo.) Univ. School of Journalism, is the first Negro woman elected to Theta Sigma Phi, national honorary society for women in journalism.

Percy Julian Given Honorary Doctorate

By Samuel P. Perry, Jr.

BOSTON — (ANP) — Percp L. Julian, chemist and director of research as well as manager of fine chemicals for the Glidden company, Chicago, received one of the 13 honorary degrees given at the recent 50th convocation exercises of Northeastern university.

GRADUATES OF IOWA AT WORK IN OKLAHOMA



Langston, Oklahoma—Photo shows Dr. S. R. Massie (left) and Dr. P. Perry (right), Langston University chemists, who are working on a research project dealing with the synthesis of some new analgesics. The project is being subsidized jointly by the Upjohn Company, drug manufacturers of Kalamazoo, Michigan and Langston University. Dr. Massie took his Ph. D. at the Iowa State College while Dr. Perry received the Ph.D degree from the University of Iowa.

Pittsburgh Teacher Gets Scholarship To Study in France

PITTSBURGH — (ANP) —Mrs. Marie Carter Hayes, well known local pianist and music teacher, flew from New York this week to study under scholarship at the Fountainbleu school of music near Paris.

She was recently honored by the International Piano Teachers association with a three and a half months scholarship to the world famous French music institution.

When she returns to Pittsburgh she will open an accredited school of music with a full time faculty of four teachers. Students will be given credit on work at the Hayes school on both the high school and college level.

A graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and the Pittsburgh Musical institute, Mrs. Hayes is a member of Phi Delta Tau honorary musical society and Delta Sigma Theta sorority.

AWARDED GRANT FOR PSYCHIATRY STUDY AT WASHINGTON U.

Mrs. Fredda D. Witherspoon, well known civic and club women's leader residing at 20 Lewis place, is one of the seven second-year graduate students granted $1600 scholarships. The grants are made by the United States Public Health Service. They provide for advanced training in psychiatric social work.

The George Warren Brown School of Social Work at Washington U. is custodian of the $25,568 grant. Dean Benjamin E. Youngdahl said the sum will be used to set up two field work tranining units and for the scholarships in the graduate division to be used next academic year.

Mrs. Witherspoon is a child welfare worker with the Missouri State Child Welfare Service. She is a product of Bishop College, Northwestern U., and St. Louis U. She is the wife of Atty. R. L. Witherspoon and mother of Bobby, Jr., 3 years old, and Vanita Carol, 6 months.

Dr. Gillem Awarded Research Fellowship

By NAPA NEWS SERVICE

NEW YORK — Dr. Norbert Gillem, chief resident physician for tuberculosis at Freedmen's Hospital, Washington, was one of four King Gustav V Fellowships to study in Europe.

Student Granted Four Fellowships To Europe

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — Mrs. Arie J. Brown was advised last week that her son, Clarence P. Brown, has been awarded a Fellowship to study in Europe. He is a graduate of the University of Southern California, has received a series of degrees and was one of four graduates to receive the highest honor at the commencement exercises May 31 at 10.30 A. M.

African Prince Awarded Degree at Lane College

JACKSON, Tenn.—Prince A. Adwafor Orizu of Nigeria, West Africa, and President Lawrence A. Davis of Arkansas A. M. and N. College were awarded honorary degrees at Lane College's sixty-fifth commencement exercises held here Sunday.

Prince Orizu was elected to succeed his father as ruler of 3,000,000 Nigerians, but decided that by studying in America he could be of greater service to Africa. He now holds a Master's degree from Columbia University.

Dr. H. H. Humphrey, pastor of Jamison Temple CME Church in Kansas City delivered the bac-

HURGOOD MARSHALL TO GET HUSE DEGREE

PETERSBURG, Va.— Thurgood Marshall, counsel for the Arie NAACP, will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Virginia State College at its 49th com-awarded one of three teaching research fellowships given by the National Tuberculosis Association at its forty-fourth annual meeting held last week at the Pennsylvania Hotel and attended by more than 400 chest physicians and public health workers. Sat. 6-26-48

The award is for a year's fellowship in teaching and medical research to be carried out at Freedmen's Hospital under the direction of Dr. Howard Payne and Dr. K. Albert Harden of the Freedmen's staff.

Dr. Gillem will study the evaluation of streptomycin and the treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis and will cooperate in the program for B. C. G. vaccination of colored nurses. The B. C. G. vaccination is given to immunize persons against tuberculosis and is being tested in various parts of the country on different nationality groups.

Dr. Gillem won his award over hundreds of applicants. A native of Washington, he received his bachelor's degree from Dartmouth and his medical degree from the New York University college of medicine.

Last Wednesday the tuberculosis association reelected Dr. Payne, Dr. A. W. Dent of Dillard University, and Dr. Charles S. Johnson of Fisk University to its board of directors.

Dr. Payne attended sessions of the meeting but Dr. Johnson and Dr. Dent were unable to be present. Many colored public health workers were present to view the exhibits and attend the clinics held in connection with the conference.

The tuberculosis association meeting was held in conjunction with the American Trudeau Society and the National Conference of Tuberculosis Secretaries.

Fellowships Open for 3 Students

The Afro Amer. Baltimore, Md.

NEW YORK—The Harlem District Committee of the Community Service Society is offering three fellowships to colored students in this area who wish to train as social workers. The students must be between 21 and 35 years old and must have lived here for at least two years. Sat. 5-22-48

The fellowships are valued at $600 each, and applicants must satisfy the admission requirements of the New York School of Social Work, Columbia University. The scholarships cover tuition for a full year with the possibility of renewal for the remaining two-year program. Sat. 5-22-48

Applications Due June 1

Applications must be filled at the school by June 1. The awards are for the fall quarter. So far 26 students have received such awards, but the need for professionally trained social workers in the area is still great.

An interracial group, the Harlem Committee composed of 27 women, has raised $18,653 to aid students. Mrs. Harry G. Bragg is chairman of the scholarship committee.

HARVARD SELECTS NEGRO FOR HONOR

The Afro Amer. Sat. 6-19-48

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.,--Chester M. Pierce of Glen Cove, N. Y., Harvard varsity football star, was elected a class marshal, the first Negro ever to receive that office, college authorities said. Chicago Defender

Mr. Pierce, 6-foot-4, 215-pound tackle also was the first of his race on any Ivy League team to play intercollegiate football south of the Mason-Dixon line. A letterman for three years, he took part in the recent Harvard-University of Virginia game at Charlottesville.

Also elected as permanent 1948 class marshals were Ray Allan Goldberg, Fargo, N. Dak. and Walter Coulson Lawrence, a teammate of Mr. Pierce. Sat 1-17-48

Mr. Pierce is a premedical student and lives at Harvard's Lowell House.

17 Get Scholarships From Pepsi-Cola Co.

The Courier Sat. 3-27-48

WASHINGTON—Two 16-year-olds—a boy and a girl—topped 1,875 candidates representing 652 Negro high schools, competing for college scholarships in the fourth annual Pepsi-Cola scholarship contest, in which scholarships worth $330,000 were given to ninety-one Negro boys and girls, Dr. Mordecai Johnson announced here last week. Pittsburgh

Dr. Johnson, president of Howard University, and a member of the Pepsi-Cola Scholarship Board, said that Sanford Pearl Bradby Jr. of Schofield High School, Aiken, S. C., topped 667 boys, and Maureen Dolores Watson of Sumner High School, St. Louis, Mo., ranked highest among 1,208 girls in the contests.

SEVENTEEN FULL SCHOLARSHIPS'

Seventeen high school seniors received scholarships which will send them to college with full tuition, a monthly allowance, and traveling expenses paid for four years, as a result of the competition sponsored by the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company. Seventy-four other outstanding students will receive College Entrance Awards which grant each $50 upon entering college this fall.

John M. Stalnaker, director of the Pepsi-Cola Board, said in Palo Alto, Calif., that 46,112 white and Negro students from 10,629 high schools in the United States, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico, took part in the 1948 scholarship program.

FOR NEGROES IN SOUTH

In the South the awards were set aside specifically for Negroes, but in Northern States both white and Negro students competed for the same scholarships, with 722 awards being made altogether. Seventeen of the full scholarships were set aside for Negroes in States which have separate educational systems, Dr. Stalnaker said. Sat 5-27-48

These annual awards, totaling $330,000, were financed by the Pepsi-Cola Company upon the recommendation of its president, Walter S. Mack Jr., and are designed to discover young men and women of outstanding ability and train them for leadership within their own fields. They may enter any accredited college they wish to attend. Dr. Johnson is the only Negro member of the board.

Morehouse Senior Voted Outstanding Collegian

Atlanta Daily World Atlanta, Ga.

NEW YORK CITY—(SNS)—An interesting "inter-college" competition to select the most outstanding student from 32 competing Negro schools was completed here last Thursday, with five judges agreeing that Robert B. James, senior at Morehouse College, should be given first honors; Daisy Whitmeyer, a junior at Texas College, was runner-up. June 5-11-48

The contest was sponsored by the Westinghouse Corporation, for the United Negro College Fund, and the competition was between students of the 32 accredited Negro schools which are aided by the Fund. Basis for the judging was from letters submitted by the competing students, bulwarked by reports from the schools themselves. Honorable mention went also to Howard University, Benedict College and LeMoyne College.

The outcome of the contest will be aired May 20 on the Westinghouse program, featuring Ted Malone, "Your Radio Story Teller." The May 20 broadcast will be heard by the three million listeners of the ABC network from 11:45 a. m. to 12 noon.

First prize to James was a $100 war bond, and a citation which was given by the Fund; Jame's school, Morehouse, received the latest model console radio-phonograph by Westinghouse, Miss Whitmeyer received a $25 war bond.

Judges were Thomas A. Morgan of Sperry Gyroscope Corporation, who is chairman of the Fund's executive committee; Channing H. Tobias, director, Phelps-Stokes Fund; Thomas D'Arcy Brophy, president, Kenyon and Eckhardt Inc., who is chairman of the Fund's executive committee; Leon Goldstein, vice-president, radio station WMCA; Ted Malone, radio emcee.

Young James has an interesting background, not dissimilar from many other students attending the Fund's member schools. Born in Alabama of poor parents, he went through grade and high schools the hard way. Interested in music, science, history, football, he did odd jobs to eke out an existence. Inducted into the army, he went overseas as a sergeant, won five battle stars, returned to America and Morehouse with a broadened outlook and perspective. June 5-11-48

Miss Whitmeyer also came from a poor family. Her family life was disrupted by a separation between her parents. For 14 years, the young girl worked in a white cafeteria, hoping someday to be able to go to college. A $100 scholarship finally opened the way. Other aid came from her school—Texas College, Tyler, Texas. Friends of both races helped, and Daisy went to college. Today she is a major in home economics. Among her many student activities she has included a "tag day" for the College Fund, in gratitude for the assistance given her school by that organization.

FELLOWSHIPS OPEN TO NEGRO STUDENTS

New York, N. Y.

Three Awards at New York School of Social Work Worth $600 Each for a Year

Times 5-13-48

To help relieve the shortage of skilled Negro social workers, three fellowships valued at $600 each have been opened to college students in the metropolitan area who can meet the admission requirements of the New York School of Social Work, Columbia University, it was announced yesterday.

The awards will be for the fall quarter, but applications must be filled at the school by June 1. The fellowships cover tuition for a full academic year with the possibility of renewal for the remainder of the two-year degree program.

Offered by the Harlem District Committee of the Community Service Society, similar awards have been made available to twenty-six students since the group was formed in 1939. Under the fellowship plan, supplementary grants may be allotted toward maintenance and other expenses, varying according to the needs of the applicants.

The Harlem committee, an interracial group composed of twenty-seven women, has raised to date $18,653 toward aiding Negro students who otherwise might not have been able to get social work training, according to Mrs. Harry G. Bragg, chairman of the scholarship committee. Times

"So far twenty-six students have benefited through our annual scholarship project," she said, "but the need for professionally trained Negro social workers has never been greater. Our fellowship program will make it financially possible for at least a few additional students to receive the necessary training. However, much depends on the support of the public for our fellowship fund."

She added that Negro social workers were needed especially to help cope with mounting problems of family dislocaations, delinquency and ill health. 5-13-48

The fellowships are open to Negro men and women between the ages of 21 and 35 who have lived in this city for at least two years. The applicants must satisfy the admission requirements of the school, which include a baccalaureate degree in arts, letters, philosophy or science from an institution approved by Columbia University. At least two of the four years of college work must have been in liberal arts studies, and the applicants must have completed a minimum of twenty semester hours in socia land biological sciences.

The recipients of the fellowships are to be selected by the Harlem committee in consultation with the admission committee of the school.

Mrs. Bragg noted that former scholarship students now hold positions with the New York Urban League, Youth House, Veterans Administration, the Community Service Society, the Department of Welfare and other public and private welfare agencies.

WINS SCHOLARSHIP

The Times

New York, N.Y. 5-3-48

Roy Eaton Adelman

CITY COLLEGE BOY WINS MUSIC PRIZE

New York, N.Y.

Negro, 17, Seeking 2 Degrees at Once, Is First of Race to Get Foreign Study Prize

A 17-year-old student who combines scholarship at City College with piano studies at the Manhattan School of Music was announced yesterday the winner of a $2,000 scholarship that will finance a year of study beginning in September at the University of Zurich, in Switzerland. Sun

The student, Roy Eaton of 375 Edgecombe Avenue, is the first Negro to earn the Aaron Naumburg Scholarship since it was established in 1927. It is awarded annually to a City College sophomore for "outstanding scholastic attainment and character."

Though he carries a full program at City College, attending classes from 8 A. M. to noon, the youth manages also to take courses in harmony, theory and sight-singing from 1 to 4 P. M. each day at the music institutions. "This required perfecting the art of eating lunch in five minutes or less," he explained. 5-8-48

His musical education began on his sixth birthday, when he received his first piano lesson. Nine months later he played Bach's Minuet in G well enough to earn first prize in the elementary division of a contest sponsored by the Music Education League. He received a gold medal from Lily Pons in a ceremony at Carnegie Hall.

While attending the High School of Music and Art, the youngster won a scholarship enabling him to enroll in the Manhattan School of Music. Upon graduating with honors from high school in 1946, he received a grant from the Leopold Schepp Foundation that made it possible for him to continue studying for his Bachelor's degree in music at the Manhattan school.

Because he "wanted to be more than just a musician," the youth registered at City College, where he is majoring in history. "I wanted to learn more about people and about the world at large," he said. He speaks five languages and is the only non-Jewish student enrolled in the college's Yiddish course. The Times

Besides his scholastic achievements, which include maintaining a "slightly below A" average in his first two years at the college, the youngster found time to give concerts there last November and again in March. In addition he is a member of the school's vocal group. When he doesn't accompany them, he sings with them.

He is extremely appreciative of the sacrifices his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Eaton, made to provide him with his musical education. "I hope this prize will make them feel that they have not wasted their efforts," he said. 5-8-48

His ambition is to play a concert at Carnegie Hall. He does not want to be "merely famous" but wants primarily to excel at his art. Those who have heard him interpret Bach and Beethoven are convinced he hasn't far to go.

N'western Alumni Honor Dr. Clement

Daily World Atlanta Ga.

At the annual celebration o Alumni Day at Northwestern University on Saturday, Dr. Rufus E Clement, president of Atlanta University, was the recipient of the Merit Award, which is given "in recognition of worthy achievemen which has reflected credit upo Northwestern University and eac of her Alumni." Among the othe 11 recipients were Richard Hal Young, dean of the School of Medicine, University of Utah; Dr. Harold Charles Lueth, dean of th College of Medicine, University o Nebraska; and Charles Harve Fahs, library curator of New Yor New York. The awards were recommended by the Alumni Achievemer Committee and approved by th Board of Directors. The presenta tion took place on the Evanstc campus of Northwestern Unive sity. Sun

Dr. Clement earned the M. A. Northwestern in 1922 and the P D. degree in 1930. He also has a earned degree from Livingston C lege. 6-20-48

PRIZE STUDENT SO BUSY HE HAS 5 MINUTE LUNCH

Times 5-13-48

Negro Is First to Win N.Y. Scholarship

New York, May 12 (Special)- Winner of a $2,000 music scholarship, Roy Eaton, 17 year old negro, will undertake a year of study in Switzerland beginning in September.

The youth, who combines scholarship at City college with piano studies at the Manhattan School of Music, is the first Negro to earn the Aaron Naumburg scholarship since it was established in 1927. It is awarded annually to a City college sophomore for "outstanding scholastic attainment and character."

5 Minutes For Lunch

Tho he carries a full program at City college, the youth manages to take courses in harmony, theory, and sight-singing from 1 to 4 p.m. each day at the music institution. "This required perfecting the art of eating lunch in five minutes or less," he explained.

His musical education began on his sixth birthday when he received his first piano lesson. Nine months later he played Bach's Minuet in G well enough to earn first prize in the elementary division of a contest sponsored by the Music Education league. He received a gold medal from Lily Pons in a ceremony at Carnegie Hall.

Wins Scholarship

While attending the High School of Music and Art, he won a scholarship enabling him to enroll in the Manhattan School of Music. Upon graduating with honors from high school in 1946, he received a grant from the Leopold Schepp Foundation that made it possible for him to continue studying at the Manhattan school.

Because he "wanted to be more than just a musician," the youth registered at City college, where he is majoring in history. "I wanted to learn more about people and about the world at large," he said. He speaks five languages and is the only non-Jewish student enrolled in the college's Yiddish course. 5-13-48

Besides his scholastic achievements, which include maintaining a "slightly below A" average in his first two years at the college, he found time to give concerts there last November and again in March. In addition, he is a member of the school's vocal group. When he doesn't accompany them, he sings with them.

Grateful For Family Aid

He is extremely appreciative of the sacrifices his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Eaton, made to provide him with his musical education. "I hope this prize will make them feel that they have not wasted their efforts," he said. 5-13-48

His ambition is to play a concert at Carnegie Hall. He does not want to be "merely famous" but wants primarily to excel at his art. Those who have heard him interpret Bach and Beethoven are convinced he hasn't far to go. Times

Receives Her Doctors Degree

The Argus St. Louis Mo.

The degree of Doctor of Philosophy was recently conferred upon Miss Regina Mary Goff by the faculty of Philosophy of Columbia University. Her major field was that of Child Development. Dr. Goff received the Bachelor of Science degree from Northwestern University, and the Master of Arts and a professional diploma in Supervision from Teachers' College, Columbia University. She has also studied at the National College of Education.

Twice recipient of fellowships from the General Education Board, Rockfeller Foundation, she is a member of Pi Lambda Theta Honor and Professional Associatest sponsored by the Music Education league. He received a gold medal from Lily Pons in a ceremony at Carnegie Hall.

Wins Scholarship

While attending the High School of Music and Art, he won a scholarship enabling him to enroll in the Manhattan School of Music. Upon graduating with honors from high school in 1946, he received a grant from the Leopold Schepp Foundation that made it possible for him to continue studying at the Manhattan school.

Because he "wanted to be more than just a musician," the youth registered at City college, where he is majoring in history. "I wanted to learn more about people and about the world at large," he said. He speaks five languages and is the only non-Jewish student enrolled in the college's Yiddish course. 5-13-48

Besides his scholastic achievements, which include maintaining a "slightly below A" average in his first two years at the college, he found time to give concerts there last November and again in March. In addition, he is a member of the school's vocal group. When he doesn't accompany them, he sings with them.

Grateful For Family Aid

He is extremely appreciative of the sacrifices his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Eaton, made to provide him with his musical education. "I hope this prize will make them feel that they have not wasted their efforts," he said. 5-13-48

His ambition is to play a concert at Carnegie Hall. He does not want to be "merely famous" but wants primarily to excel at his art. Those who have heard him interpret Bach and Beethoven are convinced he hasn't far to go. Times

Wins Scholarship To Yale University

Laboratory of Applied Physiology. es to control, education, and He is to work with a select group therapy of alcoholism. of scholars to make most recent Grimstead, noted for his work in findings of scientific research the fields of education and relavailable for application to the gion, as teacher, librarian, and problems of alcoholism in the student worker was one of the few community. The curriculum to be persons in this area to receive a followed will include both the full scholarship to do this work. general overview of the of the biological, He planned to leave for Yale about sociological, historical, physiocal, sociological, historical, and cal, religious and economic aspects of the problems of alcohol; and special professional approach-

NASHVILLE, Tenn. E. Grimstead, class '34 of Tennessee A. & I. State College, recently received a scholarship from Yale University to study this summer at the Yale School of Alcohol Studies of the

Dr. Goff is the daughter of Rev.

Girl Wins Scholarship To New Mexico A & M

STATE COLLEGE, N. Mex.

For the first time in the college's history, New Mexico College of Agriculture and Mechanical arts awarded a scholarship to a Negro student last week.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Harrison, junior arts and science major, won the Progress Club scholarship for 1948. This $100 grant is awarded to one upper classman each year. The student is selected on the merits of scholarship and character.

A native of Las Cruces, she lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, there. She graduated from Washington high of that town.

MISS RACHEL BOONE

Girl Tops Nation In Medical Test

Marks Highest in Biochemistry Exam

RICHMOND — Miss Rachel C. Boone, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Tharps of this city and student at Boston University Medical School, placed highest in the nation in a biochemistry test given recently by the National Board of Medical Examiners.

According to Dr. James M. Faulkner, dean of the B.U. School of Medicine, Miss Boone's grade of 86 out of a possible 100 is one of the highest ever recorded in a national biochemistry test.

The test is one of three which qualifies physicians to practice in 46 States where the National Board's certifications are accepted. The young woman will take the second before receiving her medical degree and the third during her internship.

Miss Boone, a sister of the Rev. C. C. Boone of this city, was born in Monrovia, Liberia, where their parents were missionaries. She came to the States at an early age received her B.A. degree from Houghton College, N.Y., and attended Virginia Union University.

Later, she studied scientific subjects for a year at Brown University and in 1944 accepted a laboratory position under Dr Philip H Mitchell. She entered Boston U. the following year and will receive her M.D. degree with the class of 1948.

Miss Boone makes her home at 221 Oaklawn Ave., Meshanticut Park, with her aunt, Dr. Bessie B. Tharps, a 1916 graduate of the B.U. School of Medicine. Mr. and Mrs. Tharps, her uncle and aunt here, are owners of Hope Haven Riding Academy.

Pathologist Gets Atomic Fellowship

WASHINGTON, D. C. (NNPA)—A pathologist connected with the Howard University Medical School and Freedman's Hospital is one of forty-four applicants from twenty-four states who will study at twenty-four different institutions throughout the United States on research fellowships in medicine, biology, and physical sciences, the Atomic Energy Commission announced last Sunday.

He is Dr. Frank B. Johnson, 1737 S Street, Northwest. He will study at the University of Chicago under Dr. Paul R. Cannon. His studies will be on the metabolism of essential animo acids, utilizing radioactive and stable isotopes.

His post-doctoral fellowship carries a basic stipend of $3,000 a year.

Tutor Elected To Prairie View Radio Engineers

PRAIRIE VIEW, Tex. (ANP)—Franklyn Wesley, head of the radio department at Praiview View, received notice that he had been elected a member of the Institute of Radio Engineers. Mr. Wesley had special training in the field while in the army and is considered one of the best prepared men in the filed. His department will play an important part in the new hook-up for broadcasts from the campus over KLEE, Houston, each Saturday at 5 to 5:50 p. m.

Mr. Wesley is studying at Kansas State college this summer. He is a native of Temple, Tex., and is married and has a son, Franklyn Jr. His wife is the former Miss Bennye Jean Cook of San Antonio.

Cornell U. Staff, Students Favor Mixed Instructors

Civic Unit Survey Shows Main Objections to Be Qualifications; Southerners Attitude

ITHACA, N.Y. (ANP)—Faculty members and students at Cornell University are not wholly against the hiring of or working with colored instructors. A slight majority of both groups are in favor of having colored persons as teachers and professor.

This conclusion reached by the Cornell NAACP chapter was based o na survey conducted among 79 department chairmen of various colleges at the university and among students themselves. The NAACP distributed a questionnaire during the last spring term which said:

"We are interested in finding out how the faculty feels about accepting colored persons on the staff. We are interviewing the chairmen of the departments because we feel they can tell us more about department policies and attitudes."

71% for Hiring

Six questions were asked.

The first, relating to employing a qualified colored person, drew a vote of 71% for hiring and 29% against. Asked whether "any colleauges would object to having a colored person on the stak," the chairmen voted 35% for "no," 43% "don't know;" and 25% "yes."

A large part of the "yes" answers were based upon the expected objections of Southern-born staff members.

The chairmen voted 29% "no;" 27%, "some;" 43%, "don't know," and 22% "yes," to the question would students object to being taught by a qualified colored person?" On this question, 461 students from three colleges voted 5.5% "yes," against 92.% "no."

Reasons Vary

Twenty-three out of 37 chairmen said the erason colored were not on the faculty was because they did not possess adequate qualifications, while 88% indicted they never had applied for a position in their departments.

Dr. F. L. Marcuse, professor of psychology, who assisted in the survey, declared this question to be significant. He said:

"It is interesting to note that in the answer to the question on absence of colored persons on the faculty, approximately 50% attributed it to lack of qualifications,, while responses in the next question indicated 88% had never had applications from them.

The indication is that pre-judgment, based on factors other than actual credentials has been made."

Race Relations

The last question asked was:

"Do you think the presence of a colored faculty member, selected competitively and on the basis of competence, would contribute to the improvement or race relations?" Answers to this were, 20% "no"; 33%, "don't know;" and 47%, "yes."

The NAACP concluded that the main objections were that colored persons' lack of qualifications, attitudeof some Southern-born faculty members, and the question of student reaction.

It pointed out that there is noteams in the past, "but this is desire for the appointment of a man with inadequate qualifications merely because he is colored, nor can he expect to be "head and shoulders above his colleagues;"

That objections from Southern faculty members, "could and should be countered in a simple and direct manner by liberals; and student opinion, rather than opposing would support a faculty policy of teacher appointment irrespective of color.

Named Nation's Negro Honor Pupil

Robert B. James, Negro senior at Morehouse College, Atlanta, was named the Nations highest Negro student by a committee representing 41 Negro colleges and universities, reported Ted Malone in his Thursday morning broadcast.

The son of a poor family of Foxville, Alabama, James has consistently maintained superior grades all through grammar, high school and college, in spite of tremendous financial handicaps. During high school he walked seven miles to the classroom, and travelled 60 miles daily to the job he found to help out during summer vacations.

The brilliant senior is a veteran, with a splendid service record and several battle stars. He spent his first college year in Florida A&M, and plans to do graduate work at the University of Michigan.

In naming Robert B. James to the high honor, the committee examed the names and records of dozens of outstanding Negro students submitted by college officials. The names of James was entered by Benjamin E. Mays, president of Morehouse, which is part of the Atlanta University system.

He was presented a token award of a $100 saving bond, while Morehouse received a radio-console for its part.

Kansas Scholarships For Negro Athletes

MANHATTAN, Kans.

Two athletic scholarships at Kansas State will be awarded to outstanding Negro athletes next year by the college chapter of Blue Key, national honorary fraternity for senior men. The scholarship will be completely financed by Blue Key and will be available only to applicants from the state of Kansas.

In announcing the scholarships, John Aiken, Blue Key chapter president, said that Negroes have not been barred from Kansas State not commonly known and, consequently, many outstanding Negro athletes have not considered enrolling here.

17-Year-Old Sophomore Gets $200 Scholarship

NEW YORK (NNPA)

The 1943 Aaron Naumburg scholarship — providing a year's study at the University of Zurich in Switzerland — went to Roy Eaton, 17-year-old sophomore at City College last week.

Young Eaton, who lives at 375 Edgecombe Ave., is a talented pianist and had given two recitals at City College.

The scholarship is awarded annually for scholastic attainment, character and personality. The late Mr. Naumburg, financier and philanthropist, established the scholarship in 1927 with a gift of $20,000. No awards were made during the war and accumulated funds have made the scholarship for 1948 $2,000 instead of the original $1,000.

It is the second prize Eaton has won at the piano. When he was six and had been studying the instrument only nine months, he played a Bach minuet in a contest sponsored by the Music Education League, emerged a winner.

"Lily Pons gave me a big gold medal in Carnegie Hall," he recalled.

At City College, Eaton is majoring in history. He is a student also at the Manhattan School of Music.

"I want to be more than merely a musician," he said, "I want to develop more facets of my personality. I want also to be a good concert pianist and play in Carnegie Hall."

Besides his recitals at City College, Eaton sings in the City College Chorus and in his church choir. His mother, Mrs. Bernice Eaton, a graduate of Shortwood College in Jamaica, British West Indies, sings in the choir of St. James Presbyterian Church. Her husband, Felix Eaton, is an automobile mechanic.

The scholarship winner said that what pleased him most was the pride his parents took in his good fortune.

14j 1948 Herstein Scholarships

SIX STUDENTS AWARDED
HERSTEIN SCHOLARSHIPS July 1, 1948

NEW YORK, July 1.— Scholarships of $100 each have been awarded to six young men and women who were graduated from New York City high schools last week. The scholarships, established in 1939 by the late Bernard Herstein, have been continued by his son, Karl M. Herstein. The NAACP was named as trustee of the fund through which the scholarships are awarded annually.

NAACP. New York, N.Y.

Thurs. 7-1-48

The scholarships are awarded to high school graduates planning to matriculate in non-sectarian colleges. They are renewable annually for four years. This year's winners are Vincent Harding, 856 Dawson Street, Bronx, Morris High School; Ulric Haynes, 494 McDonough Street, Brooklyn, Midwood High School; Muriel Chavious, 425 Putnam Avenue, Brooklyn, Girls' High School; Thomas Wooten, 2130 Fulton Street, Food Trades Vocational High School; and Ellen Holly, 8737 118th Street, Richmond Hill, Richmond Hill High School.

14j 1948

ELECTED TO HONORARY SOCIETY — Dr. Eunice S. Matthew, State Consultant for In-Service Teacher Education, Tennessee State, Department of Education, has been notified of her recent election to the Cornell University Chapter of Phi Kappa Phi, a national honorary society for outstanding scholars.

A graduate of Hunter College, Miss Matthew received the degree of Master of Arts from Columbia University and the degree of Doctor of Philosophy at Cornell University. Her scholarship at Cornell had previously won her membership in Pi Lambda Theta, an honorary society for women in the field of Education. She is a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority.

A former member of the faculty of Knoxville College and teacher in the New York City school system, she is also Professor of Elementary Education at Tennessee A. and I. State College.

Two Make Phi Beta Kappa At Ohio State

COLUMBUS, Ohio (ANP)—Among the 45 students elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary society, at Ohio State University last Friday were Mrs Lillian Kennedy Beam, of Columbus, and Clarence C. Ferguson of Baltimore.

Mrs. Beam, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Kennedy Sr., of Franklin, Ohio., has been making her home in Columbus following her appointment to the library staff at Ohio State University last fall. She was graduated from Ohio State last June cum laude, having acquired an accumulative point hour ratio of 3.72 out of a possible 4.0.

Mrs. Beam, who became the wife of Loudin Beam a few months ago, is a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority, and an active member of the young peoples group of Second by-pass the banquet and give the food to charity, the management stepped in, and apparently to not be outdone, refused to accept payment for the food.

A reliable source disclosed that the management's refusal to serve the group was partially due to an oversight of the planning committee.

Northrop Aircraft hires first Negro engineer

HAWTHORNE — Northrop Aircraft corp, recently hired its first Negro engineer without knowing he was a Negro, it was reported this week.

The engineer is William Major Alexander, of St. Louis, who applied for the job from Illinois university and was accepted by return mail. When Alexander reported here to R. L. Ehinger, of Northrop's engineering personnel, Ehinger was reportedly surprised at his being a Negro, but said it would make no difference if Alexander was qualified for the work. Alexander said the company's job application blanks did not require his racial identity.

Alexander, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Alexander, graduated Phi Beta Kappa last month from Illinois university. His father is a graduate in electrical engineering from the University of Pittsburgh.

Alexander expects to begin at Northrop as a mathematician in thermodynamics. He is the lone Negro among the 1,300 employes.

Tuskegee Prof. In Scientific Society

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—Charles Marion Ford, research fellow in bacteriology, and veterinary science at the University of Wisconsin, has recently been elected to Sigma Xi, natonal society for the promotion of scientific research. Mr. Ford is on leave from Tuskegee Institute for advance study.

He will rejoin the Tuskegee faculty in September, 1948.

Two Elected To Phi Beta Kappa

COLUMBUS, O.—Among the 45 students elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary society, at Ohio State university last Friday, were Mrs. Lillian Kennedy Beam, of Columbus, and Clarence C. Ferguson of Baltimore.

Mrs. Beam, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Kennedy Sr., of Franklin, O., has been making her home in Columbus following her appointment to the library staff at Ohio State university last fall. She was graduated from Ohio State last June cum laude, having acquired an accumulative point hour ratio of 3.72 out of a possible 4.0.

Mrs. Beam, who became the wife of Loudin Beam a few months ago, is a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority, and an active member of the young peoples group of Second Baptist church.

Clarence C. Ferguson, who also had a 3.7 average, was graduated cum laude and with distinction in history from Ohio State in March. While a student, he established quite an enviable secord. Starting in as a third quarter freshman, he completed all the work for his degree in 24 months and was elected to two other honorary societies.

Ferguson is a member of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity. He plans to enter Harvard Law school in September.

ONE NEGRO AT PHI BETA KAPPA FOUNDERS' DINNER

One who is familiar with Lena Mason's famous poem "A Negro In It" could not help recalling its sentiment, had he been present at the Founders' Day Dinner of the Des Moines Phi Beta Kappa Association held last Monday evening in commemoration of the one hundred seventy-second anniversary of the fouding of this society of the golden key, the oldest Greek Letter Scholarship Society in America. Among the one hundred-forty members present there was one Negro, Atty. S. Joe Brown, whose membership was among the oldest if not the oldest of those present, he having won the distinguished honor at Iowa University more than fifty years ago.

News in Tabloid

(Condensed From Reports by AFRO, NNPA and ANP Correspondents)

Progress Report for the Week

James B. Ward, former Army captain and father of a 16-month-old daughter, last week, became the first member of his race to be elected to the Phi Beta Kappa at Denver University, where he received his bachelor of arts degree. . . . Walter White, NAACP executive secretary, last week conferred with President Truman about his trip to Paris, where he will observe the proceedings of the United Nations General Assembly. . . . Clarence L. Simpson, Vice President of Liberia, is slated to arrive in the United States this week on an unofficial visit. He will enter his son, who came here on Aug. 10, in an American college.

Miss Lovraine Azalea Wiggan, 1946 graduate of Carthage College, who last Sunday became the first colored woman of the Illinois synod to be commissioned as a missionary of the United Lutheran Church, will leave for Puerto Rica on Sept. 9 to begin her duties on Sept. 11. . . . Wilson C. Lowery, last weke, celebrated his 20th year as a compositor on the mechanical staff of the N.Y. World Telegram.

Jonn Shaw, Ethiopian Consul General, last week, purchased three twin-engined Cessna Bobcats from the war surplus stocks at the Newark airport for training purposes in Ethiopia. . . . Acting Governor Ramage of Freetown, Sierra Leone, has moved to push the upgrading of Africans to high governmental posts. . . . Mrs. Madaline McCoy, deputy mayor of Harlem, last week, was installed as the interim mayor succeeding Sherman Hibbitt, who was named to the office on March 16. According to Reuben J. Patton, executive director of the Unofficial Mayor's Committee of Harlem, the change was made because of Hibbitt's violation of an agreement restricting him from endorsing political candidates.

Two veterans operate a unique business in Des Moines, Iowa, where Manuel M. Caulderon and George V. Semple, white, serve as president and vice-president, respectively, of the Capital City Wrought Ironsmiths. They maintain an interracial hiring policy and do business in four States. . . . Hale Woodruff and Charles Alston, NYC artists commissioned by the Golden State Mutual Life Insurance Company to paint two murals depicting California history and the contribution of its pioneer colored citizens, arrived in Los Angeles last week for a 3-week research study for the project.

The Memphis city government is studying the possibility of hiring colored policemen following a survey by the Commercial Appeal, Memphis daily, which revealed 51 Southern cities now have colored policemen. . . . There are 245 uniformed colored policemen, 23 plainclothes officers and eight policewomen in the 51 cities, with Miami boasting the highest number, 20. Only Southern States without colored police are Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana.

Richard Wright and Leslie Perry of the NAACP are among contributors to the 10th anniversary issue of the book, "Twice A Year." . . . Interstate Life and Accident Insurance Company of Chattanooga, Tenn., with assets of $14,123,330, moved into its new building at 85 Merritts Ave., N.E., last week. . . . Actors' Equity has been urged to extend the prohibition of its members from playing in segregated theatres to Virginia and other parts of the Washington area.

Miss S. V. Totty, director of business education at Southern University now in Chicago working on her doctorate, served as special counselor at the Chicago "Negro in Business" conference last week. . . . Dr. Joseph D. Lahman, author of "The Police and Minority Groups," may be retained by Louisville, Ky., to instruct police. . . . Contributions to the Ingram Defense Fund last week totaled $43,102.05 the NAACP announced.

Covering a Variety of Subjects

Acting on an appeal from James M. Hinton, State NAACP president, Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, ordered the State constabulary to investigate and report on charges made by the Rev. Archie Ware that he was beaten and stabbed by white men after voting Aug. 10 at Calhoun Falls. . . . Constabulary Chief Joel D. Townsend said the probe "may take three days, three weeks or three months." . . . Thirteen native Africans were sentenced to death by a British court at Maseru for the alleged murder of a man during tribal rituals. Two more ritual murder cases, involving 23 natives, are slated to be tried by the court.

Damages of $42.000 were asked by four volunteer workers of the Friendship House in U.S. District Court in Chicago last week against a cocktail lounge which refused them service on Aug. 14 because one member of the party was colored. The plaintiffs are Rosemary Boyle, St. Cloud, Minn.; Mary E. Traxler, LeCenter, Minn., and Robert D. Lippert, St. Louis, Mo., all white, and Joyce Williams, Chicago. . . . In Muncio, Ind., several railroad workers filed a petition in Delaware County Circuit Court charging that they were held in slavery for 12 days by their employers. Sabastian Albergo of the Sabastian Albergo and Sons Construction Co., and the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad.

Johnnie E James, 31, sentenced to die in the electric chair on Oct. 29 at Va. State Penitentiary, is the first colored man ordered to the electric chair for the sex murder of a colored women in Norfolk since Dec. 27, 1944. . . . Capt. James E. Scott, head of the Liberty Square Housing Project in Miami, Fla., died last week at the age of 58. . . . An Englishman, Richard Bourne-Vanneck, has purchased the New York Age for $130,000. The N.Y. weekly has been owned by colored since 1907.

Report on the Boiling Political Pot

Michigan Republican leaders, 250 strong, met last week and elected Dr. Theodore S. Boone permanent chairman of the group. . . . Mrs. Pauline Kigh Reed, Progressive Party candidate for secretary of State of Illinois, native of Birmingham, Ala., and Wilberforce University graduate, is a former registrar at Wilberforce, but for the past 20 years has served as social worker for the United Charities of Chicago. . . . Ballot box stuffing was charged last week in South Carolina's Lexington County's Democratic primary when a recount of the ballots showed only 816 persons voted, whereas the box was found to contain 1,404 votes.

Congressman William L. Dawson last week appealed to ministers of all faiths to set aside on Sunday during the period Sept. 12-26 as National Truman Civil Rights Day. . . . Petitions to place the national ticket of the Socialist Party. with Norman Thomas, Presidenial candidate, and Tucker P. Smith, Vice Presidential candidate, on the ballot in New York State have been filed in Albany.

The slogan, "A dollar a man for Truman and civil rights," was adopted by the Memphis (Tenn.) National Citizens Committee for the Re-election of President Truman which began a $25,000 fund-raising drive last week. . . . Congressman William L. Dawson was the principal speaker in the drive for $50,000 at a Chicago luncheon sponsored by the Truman group, with donations from $1 to $1,000 being contributed. Willard S. Townsend was master of ceremonies. . . . Harry T. Moore, executive secretary of the Florida State Conference of NAACP, in an open letter, asked citizens of Florida to double their vote in the November elections.

They Said It: "Quote and Unquote"

"We are convinced that millions of Americans outside the South are under erroneous impressions concerning the program of the Southern States to raise the standard of living of all our people, including not only the colored people but the underprivileged of all races."—Senators Eastland and Stennis, of Mississippi, in letters to 13 Southern governors.

"Agreement and slow steady progress don't make news, whereas conflict and deadlock do."—Mrs. Beatrice Pitney Lamb, editor of the United Nations News, in a three-year report on the work of the UN.

"The combined impact of economic and social discriminations in America casts a shadow over colored people that extends from the maternity bed to a premature grave."—Leslie Perry, NAACP legislative representative in Washington in an article, "Patterns of Discriminations in Fundamental Human Rights."

"The right to safety of the person, the right to citizenship and the vote, the right to equality of opportunity are rights which every American has and which are not to be interfered with by any State or government."—Father Vincent J. O'Connell in a radio debate on civil rights with Gov. Fielding L. Wright, Dixiecrat leader.

A Quick Glance Over the Educational Front

Lt. Col. H. B. Reubel, formerly at Hampton, now heads the ROTC at Priarie View College, succeeding Col. West A. Hamilton, who is now at Morgan State College. . . . Dr. W. E. B. DuBois will give a 15-weeks course, "The Negro in American History," at the New School for Social Research, NYC, beginning Sept. 27. . . . Dr. Charles S. Johnson, president of Fisk University, was appointed vice chairman of the newly formed Tennessee division of the Southern Regional Council, which publishes The New South, a periodical on Southern problems and Southern progress. Z. A. Looby, Nashville attorney, is one of the members of the executive board.

With Dr. Channing H. Tobias as one of the sponsors, and Dr. Alain Locke and Dr. William Stuart Nelson of Howard University among the participants, fifty scholars will join in an intensive study of "What Should Be the Goals for Education?" at Men's Faculty Club of Columbia University in NYC this week. . . . The Revs. A. R. Howard Jr. and Clarence T. R. Nelson of the Central Jurisdiction of the Methodist Church were members of the 5-weeks seminar on "Teaching Through Preaching" at Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., which closed Aug. 27.

Lincoln U. (Mo.) students won three second and two third place art prizes at the Missouri State Fair at Sedalia last month. . . . Supt. Willett of Richmond public schools told teachers there last week that a plan to train qualified teachers for administrative, supervisory or guidance posts would be inaugurated this year. . . . Arkansas is short $3,435 of its fund to aid out-of-state colored students and the University of Arkansas and Arkansas A.M. and N. College are being asked to make up the deficit.

Pupils in Orangeburg, S.C., will ride the first school bus provided by city officials this year. . . . Dr. Woodrow L. Derricotte, former Washington, D.C., school teacher, now at Florida A. and M. College, made the keynote address at Duval County Pre-School Conference in Jacksonville, Fla., last week.

14j 1948

Lecture Series

Howard Professor To Lecture In West For Friends Service

Daily World, Atlanta, Ga.
Sat. 1-10-48

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Dr. John Lovell, Jr., Associate Professor of English at Howard University, has departed for the far West to assume a visiting lectureship on behalf of the American Friends Service Committee in 14 colleges and universities of Iowa and California, it was announced Friday by Howard University officials. 1-10-48

The purpose of these lectureships, sponsored by the Friends, is to introduce Negro scholars into white universities and colleges on a regular basis. The visiting lecturer assumes the duties of a regular member of the department, and enters into the social life of the campus. He thus breaks down artificials barriers which have previously attached to his membership in his race or group.

The colleges Dr. Lovell will visit are: in Iowa—Parsons College, Willian Penn College, Central College; in California —Pomona College, Scripps Women's College, Claremont Men's College, Mills College, College of the Pacific, Whittier College, Pasadena City College, Occidental College, Stanford University, University of California at Berkeley, University of California at Los Angeles. He will be away for the entire Winter Quarter, from Jan. to April.

Topics which Dr. Lovell has been asked to discuss are: "Challenges to American Democracy as Seen in the Literature," "The New American Theatre," "Bernard Shaw and the Theory of Propaganda Through Fun," "Negro Drama Through a Looking Glass," "Philosophical Backgrounds of New England Transcendentalism," and "Thoreau."

At the University of California at Berkeley, from which the lecturer received his doctoral degree, Dr. Lovell will also conduct the weekly poetry reading in the Morrison Recreational Library.

Fisk Students In College Who's Who

NASHVILLE, TENN. — Four juniors and ten seniors from Fisk University have been selected to the 1947-48 Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges, it was announced recently by A. A. Taylor, Dean of the College.

Approved by the Executive Committee of the Faculty these students are: Helen J. Banks, Columbus, Ohio; Jesse T. Henderson, Amsterdam, New York; Charles J. Lee, Bridgeport, Connecticut; and Emery O. Utterback Jr., Chicago, Illinois; all juniors: Loretha A Black, Newport, Arkansas; Benjamin T. Johnson, Boston, Massachusetts; Betty R. Jordan, Roselle, New Jersey; Frank J. Lanier, Cincinnati, Ohio Cornelia V. Mitchell, New Haven, Connecticut; Inman H. Moon, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; Rosemary V. Saxton, Pleasantville, New York; Nathaniel H. Smith, Pritchard, Alabama; Robert P. Stewart, Brooklyn, New York; and Norma E. Stokes, Rocky Mount, North Carolina. seniors

FLA. A. & M. PRESIDENT LISTED IN 'WHO'S WHO'

TALLASHASSEE, Fla. — Dr. William H. Gray, Jr., president of Florida A. and M. College, has been honored as being one of 29 citizens of this city to be listed in "Who's Who in America" and one of the few colored persons of Florida to be listed in this internationally famous reference book of outstanding persons.

Bishop W. J. Walls Is Named to Who's Who

CHICAGO — More honors have been heaped upon Bishop William J. Walls of the AME Zion Church, who has been named Europe as a member of a group of clergymen sent to study conditions there under the auspices of the War Department. He has been cited for membership in the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

Other recent honors to Bishop Walls, included his selection for "Who's Who in America," "Who's Who in the Central States," and "Who Who in Religious Leaders of America." He holds memberships in the American Society of Church History, the General Committee of the World Council of Churches, the National Religious Education Association and other civic, religious and social bodies.

Harvard Council Chooses Negro as Class Marshal

By The Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 7—Chester M. Pierce of Glen Cove, Long Island, N. Y., Harvard varsity football star, today was elected a class marshal, the first Negro ever to receive that office, college authorities said.

Pierce, six-foot-four 215-pound tackle, also was the first of his race on an Ivy League team to play intercollegiate football south of the Mason-Dixon line. A letter man for three years, he took part in the recent Harvard-University of Virginia game at Charlottesville.

Named second marshal of the class of '48 by the student council's elections committee, he will be one of three students to lead the commencement procession in June.

Also elected as permanent 1948 class marshals were Ray Allan Goldberg of Fargo, N. D., and Walter Coulson of Lawrence, a teammate of Pierce.

The 21-year-old Negro is a premedical student and lives at Harvard's Lowell House.

Colston Heads NYC Summer School Club

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y. —James A. Colston, president of Georgia State college, Savannah, was installed last week as president of the University Club, New York University summer session here.

Unanimously elected by the 350 students at Chautauqua, President Colston becomes the first Negro to hold an office in the University Club. He succeeds James A. Vaughn, executive director of Simmons college, Boston, Mass., who served as president last year.

Other officers include William Roberts, director of music, Wilkes Barre, Penn., vice-president; Miss Marion Williams, elementary school teacher, Nottingham high school, Syracuse, N. Y., treasurer.

Frisco Gets First Negro Instructor

Daily World Atlanta, Ga. Thurs. 2-26-48

SAN FRANCISO —(ANP)— Mrs. Josephine Cole was not too much surprised today to find herself the first Negro teacher ever to be employed in a San Francisco high school.

Being first is a sort of family habit with the Coles.

Audley Cole, Josephine's husband, was the first Negro motorman hired by the municipal railway.

Mrs. Cole was also the first Negro to earn a regular appointment as a teacher in the city grammar school system. That was in 1943.

3 year Probation Period

Her appointment as a high school teacher came last week. She is now teaching English at Balboa High school. Under the rules of board of education, she must serve a three year probationary period before becoming a regular high school teacher. Herald 2-26-48

Mrs. Cole, a native daughter, graduated from the University of California in 1936, she began teaching the same year at St. Vincents, a parochial school. In 1941 she began teaching in the public schools and won her appointment as a regular in 1943, teaching at Rapheil Weill school. When appointed to the high school post, Mrs. Cole was on leave ob absence, special studying at the University of California.

Thurman Teaching At Iowa University

Daily World Atlanta, Ga.

IOWA CITY —(A N P)— Dr. Howard Thurman, noted theologian has arrived here to teach for the next four months at the University of Iowa. He is on leave for that period from his duties as co-pastor of the Interracial and Intercultural Church for the Fellowship of all Peoples at San Francisco. 3-11-48

Dixon to teach at Juilliard

Herald Tribune

NEW YORK — Dean Dixon, who won the $1,000 Alice M. Ditson award in Columbia University's musical festival this year, as an American conductor who had rendered distinguished service to American music, has been named to the faculty of the Juilliard School of Music, of which he is a graduate. Sat.

Mr. Dixon's duties will include leading of the school's two or-

Shatters Bar

The Afro American Balto. Md. 7-12-48

Dr. Allison Davis, who has been teaching at the University of Chicago since 1942, has been promoted to the rank of full professor of education at the university, where he now holds permanent appointment. All other full professors in northern colleges and universities are white. Baltimore, Md.

chestras, as he, along with Eleazar de Carvalho, young Brazilian musician, and Jean Paul Morel, French conductor of the City Center Opera co., have been invited to the school for the first time as guest condutcors. 7-10-48

Conn. College Gets First Negro Teacher

Atlanta Daily World Atlanta Ga

WILLIMANTIC Conn.—(ANP)— One of America's oldest schools, Willimantic State Teachers College, has appointed its first Negro instructor, it was announced here last week. Fri. 11-12-48

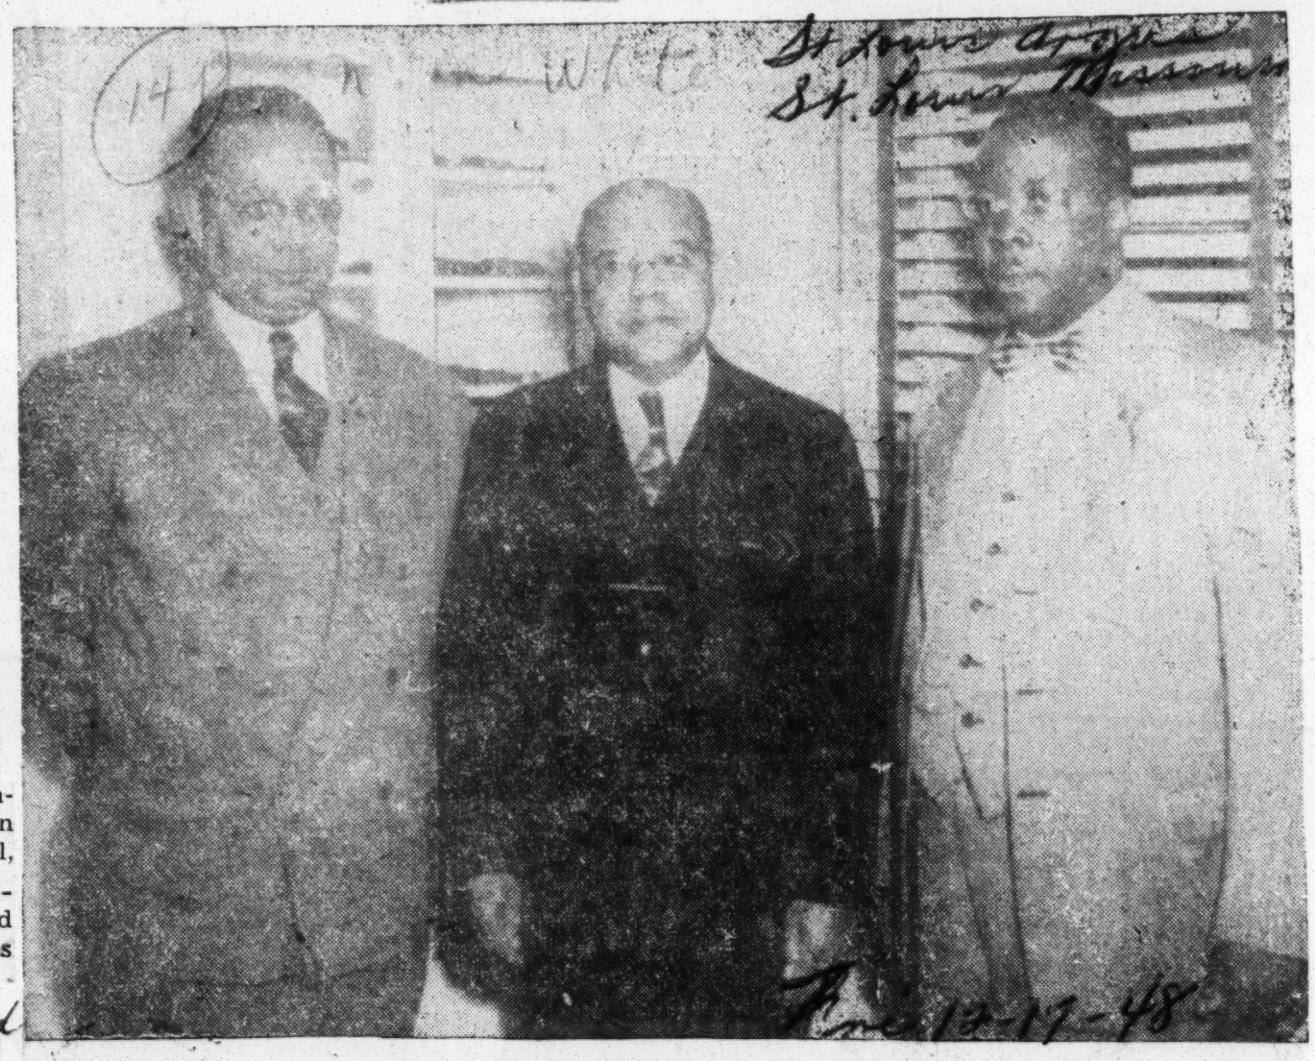
Dr. Juliette V. Phifer, a native of North Carolina, has been appointed an associate professor at the school.

Before taking her position at Willimantic, Dr. Phifer had been serving as principal of the Campus Laboratory school of the State Teachers College at Fayetteville, N. C for several years.

She earned her Ph. D. last June at New York university with a dissertation on "System of Education in Haiti." She studied in Haiti on a government fellowship of the federal government. Fri. 11-12-48

She is an elected member of the international honor society, Kappa Delta Pi, and a member of the board of directors of the Association for Arts in Childhood.

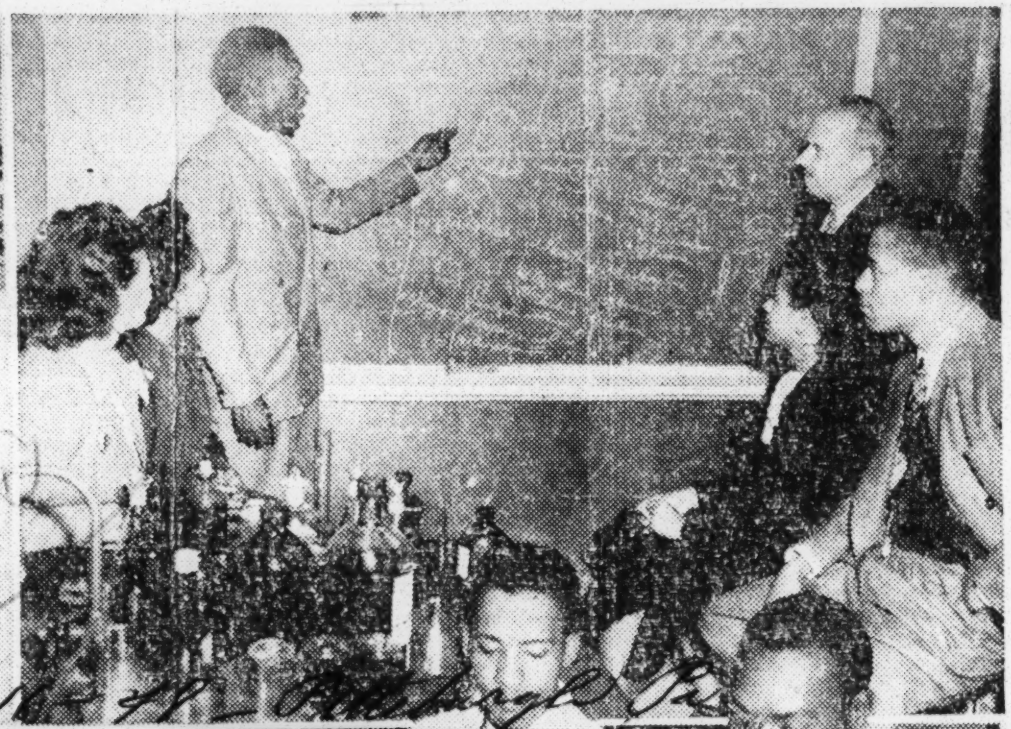
Appointed To The Faculty Of St. Louis Medical School



St. Louis Argus
St. Louis Missouri

Fri 12-17-48

A precedent was set last Monday when three members of the National Medical Association were appointed to the faculty of St. Louis University School of Medicine. They are, rt to right, Dr W H. Weathers, Dr. A. N. Vaughn and Dr. W. A. Your[illegible] —Photo by Franklin



DUQUESNE OPENS DOORS—Lower left, immediately above, is Dr. Tage Ellinger, head of the Duquesne University biology department, who has named four Negro laboratory assistants at the Pittsburgh institution. He is an eminent Danish biologist. Top left is Dr. Helena Miller, professor at D. U., with two assistants. Extreme right, above, are Bernard Anderson and Lewis White, laboratory assistants, and top right, the staff with Dr. Ellinger.—Harris Photo.

A. U. Names 8 Visiting Profs.

ATLANTA, Ga. — Eight distinguished educators will serve as visiting lecturers at Atlanta University this year in the division of social sciences which embraces the departments of history and pre-history, anthropology and sociology.

In addition to presenting the course, the Foundation of Social Science, which was inaugurated at Atlanta University in 1944, the lecturers will conduct a series of public forums on the theme "Peoples and their Culture."

Opening the series in the exhibition gallery of the university library on Nov. 3 will be Dr. John P. Gillin, professor of anthropology and research professor in the Institute for Research in Social Science, who will discuss "Peoples and Their Culture."

FRENCH LECTURER

Others to appear during the year are Dr. Richard H. Williams, director, Bureau de Psychologie Industriele of the Commission Generale d' Organization Scientifique, Paris, who will speak on 'Peoples at Work: French Workers and Their Culture''; Dr. Abram L. Harris, associate professor economics at the University of Chicago, who will speak on "Economic Behavior of Peoples: An Economist Looks at Planning";

Dr. Evelyn Millis Duvall, executive secretary of the Nation Council on Family Relations, University of Chicago, who will discuss "Peoples and Marriage: When You Marry"; Dr. Maurice R. Davie, chairman of the department of sociology, Yale, who will speak on "When Peoples Move"; Joseph O. Lohman, executive secretary of the National Committee on Segregation in the Nation's Capital, whose subject will be "Segregation and Discrimination Among Peoples";

Dr. Ira DeA Reid, chairman of the department of sociology, Haverford College, whose topic will be "Peoples in Society: Atlanta—Pluralistic Metropolis"; and Dr. Mabel A. Elliott, chairman of the department of sociology, Pennsylvania College for Women, who will discuss "Delinquent Behavior in Peoples and the Community's Responsibility for the Prevention of Delinquency."

Dr. Rushton Coulborn and Dr. Mozell C. Hill, of the departments of history and sociology, respectively, at Atlanta University, will serve as chairmen of the forums.

tories on the "Ag" college campus.

She earned her B. S. in home economics at Tuskegee institute in 1945, and her M. S. in foods and nutrition at the University of Nebraska in 1947.

She is married to Granville Coggs, an honor student in pre-med science at the university. Both are natives of Little Rock, Ark.

Mrs. Coggs is a member of Phi Upsilon Omicron, home economics honorary society; Alpha Kappa Mu, national honor society, and Delta Epsilon chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority. At her church, Mt. Zion, she is a member of the choir and edits the church bulletin.

Dr. Thornton Teaching On U. of Chi Faculty

CHICAGO —(ANP)— Dr. Robert Thornton is now a member of the faculty of the University of Chicago, teaching physics. Dr. Thornton, who received his doctorate at the University of Wisconsin, did a great deal of his graduate work at Chicago so he is much at home here. For many years he taught at Tallahega College. For the past two years he taught at the University of Puerto Rico.

Nebraska University Hires First Full Time Negro Staff Member

LINCOLN, Neb. — (ANP) — Nebraska university has hired its first full time Negro staff member, it was announced here this week. The new worker, Mrs. Maude Coggs, was appointed to the college staff Aug. 16, although the fact was not publicized.

She is working as a research assistant in the animal nutrition department of the university's experiment station in Lincoln.

Her project right now is the preparation of a bacterial essay for identifying vitamin B-12 (animal protein factors). During the past year she has studied and worked as a graduate assistant in the foods and nutrition labora-

WISCONSIN 'PROF'. — Miss Betty Hickson of West Philadelphia, Pa., was recently named assistant professor of Spanish at the University of Wis-

BOB AND THURGOOD

In the picture above can be seen Attorney Thurgood Marshall, New York, leading counsel for the NAACP, and William R. Ming, member of the faculty of the University of Chicago Law School. The above picture was made earlier in the year when the two eminent barristers appeared at the Norman trial of Mrs. Ada Lois Fisher. Both of these NAACP attorneys will address the 14th annual session of the NAACP at Tabernacle Baptist church.

Negroes to Teach At 3 NYC Colleges

By GLADYS P. GRAHAM

NEW YORK—(ANP)—A number of Negro educators will teach at summer sessions of three leading New York colleges, Columbia and New York Universities, and City College of New York.

Among those listed as instructors are Stanton L. Wormley, Dr. Robert E. Weaver, Miss Grace Marr, Hale Woodruff, Mrs. Estelle Massey Osborne and Pauline Taylor.

Mr. Warmley is chairman of the German department of Howard University.

DR. WEAVER REPEATS

Dr. Weaver at Teachers College, Columbia University, will present two courses. Along with Prof. Goodwin Watson and Donald Tewksbury, he will teach education in the American culture, and civic and political education.

A course being offered in three sections, elementary microbiology, will be taught by Miss Marr along with Prof LaVerne R. Thompson. Miss Marr is an instructor in nursing education at Teachers College, Columbia.

Woodruff will offer a six-point course in advanced painting at NYU faculty as a full-time visiting associate professor of education.

ROSENWALD FELLOW

During the summer, Mrs. Osborne, a nursing education faculty member at NYU, will give a two-point course in ward management.

On Rosenwald Fellowship, Pauline Taylor of Kalamazoo, Mich., will be one of the consultants in NYU workshop in human relations studies.

Duquesne U. Names Four Negroes to Biology Staff

PITTSBURGH—For the first time in the history of the institution, Duquesne University, through Dr. Tage Ellinger, new head of the biology department, has opened its doors to Negroes as laboratory lecturers and staff assistants. Since assuming his position last June, Dr. Ellinger, an eminent Danish scientist, appointed four colored staff assistants.

Reorganizing the department with an entire new staff of professors, lecturers and laboratory assistants, Dr. Ellinger, from a list of twenty-seven applicants with "B" averages or better, assigned four colored laboratory assistants. The assistants are all graduate students.

Dr. Ellinger himself holds a Master's degree from the University of Denmark and has done graduate study at both Johns Hopkins in Baltimore, Md., and at Harvard University.

STAFF MEMBERS

Dr. Helena Miller, Ph.D. in biology from Harvard University; Prof. Kenneth Wertman, University of Pittsburgh; Prof. Robert Wottman, Columbia University; the Rev. Hilary Kline, Duquesne University; Miss Beatriz Lopez, Puerto Rico; Miss Margaret Raskausas and Miss Ellen Moorehead composed the staff of lecturers and instructors.

Negroes assigned by Dr. Ellinger as graduate laboratory assistants are Bernard Anderson, B.S. in biology, who hails from Houston, Tex.; Lewis L. White, B.S. in biology from Lake Charles, La., and Miss Inez Hall, B.S. in biology, Natchitoches, La., are graduates of Southern University, Scotlandville, aL., and Miss Muriel Clark, B.S. in biology from Livingstone College, hails from Salisbury, N. C.

All four are members of Beta Kappa Chi, the honorary scientific fraternity, of which Dr. Ellinger is also a member. Mr. Anderson and Mr. White are members of the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity and Miss Hall is a member of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority.

NEW BUILDING

The biology department is to move into a new building on Forbes Street in the near future. The new building, a five-story affair, will serve as laboratory and class rooms. A new library, boasting more than fifty biological periodicals, half of which are foreign, will also be housed in the new structure.

Some of the most recent scientific journals of post-war Germany, three Russian journals and many others constitute a library unlike any other in the city, according to Dr. Ellinger.

The new head of the department intends to focus his attention on raising the scholastic rating of the department with emphasis on the graduate school. The graduate school of the Biology Department began the present year with ten students, including the four Negro laboratory assistants.

ONE HOWARD GRADUATE

Miss Williette Johnson, B.S. in biology from Howard University, who comes from Liberia, Africa, is also one of the students in the graduate school. Miss Johnson intends to enter medical college in the future.

In a statement to The Courier, Dr. Ellinger asserted that the four Negro assistants "have more than fulfilled my expectations of them in these first few weeks of school by displaying the most outstanding and complete work.

"I am very fond of them all and I sincerely hope that they shall each become university instructors in their respective fields. The student body as a whole has shown a splendid spirit toward the department in general and I feel certain of the success of the venture."

Scientist First To Teach At Co-Op College

BY GLADYS P. GRAHAM

NEW YORK—(ANP)—The noted scientist, Dr. Mark Thaxton, a native of Mississippi, is now in New York to become a professor at Hervey Junior College in mid-town Manhattan.

This two-year-old college is well known because of its new cooperative program for its students. Under the co-op setup, students attend school for 12 weeks, then work in industry full time with full time salary for 12 weeks. Working with the college under this program are 53 companies.

Before coming to Hervey, Dr. Thaxton worked as research engineer with the Sperry Gyroscope company. He has also held industrial positions with the Solar Manufacturing company in Bayonne, N. J., as senior engineer during the war, and as a consultant with International Electronics.

In the field of teaching, he has served as head of the department of mathematics and physics at A and T College in Greensboro, N. C., and as an instructor at Delaware State College. He earned his degrees from Howard university and the University of Wisconsin.

A member of a number of learned societies, Dr. Thaxton has contributed articles to professional journals in the United States and foreign nations. He has also written several books including "Manipulative Mathematics," "Experiments in Physics" and others.

The school at which he teaches is the only junior college in the country working under the co-op plan. It is operated by the YMCA.

Students of all races and creeds attend Hervey. They take courses in liberal arts, business and technical fields.

Dr. Thurman at Iowa University

IOWA CITY, Ia.—Dr. Howard Thurman, distinguished religious leader will arrive here next week to join the faculty of the University of Iowa's School of Religion. He will serve as a guest lecturer for the second semester.

Dr. Thurman will teach a course of religion in human culture and "Men Who Have Walked With God." The latter will be broadcast over the university's broadcasting station, W-S-U-I twice a week.

Dr. Wade A. Ellis Named to Faculty Of Oberlin Univ.

By Samuel P. Perry Jr.

BOSTON — (ANP) — Dr. Wade A. Ellis, an instructor in mathematics at Boston university, has been appointed to the faculty of liberal Oberlin college in Ohio as an assistant professor of mathematics. The appointment is effective next September.

Mr. and Mrs. Whit Ellis of Chandler, Oklahoma. He is a graduate of Wilberforce university and holds a M. S. degree from the University of Michigan. He was also from the University of Mexico, and the Ph. D. Institute of Technology from the University of Michigan. served as chief of the radiation laboratory, Cambridge Field station for the air material command in Cambridge, Mass.

At Michigan he taught mathematics, prior to his Boston university position. Fisk has also had material bridge During the war Dr. Ellis was married Mr. Ellis is the son of the late the young scholar as a member of its faculty.

a staff member of the radiation laboratory at the Massachusetts

Allison Davis Named Full Chicago U. Professor

CHICAGO (ANP)—At the University of Chicago, a precedent in the history of American universities has been established by the advancement of a Negro to the rank of a full professor, on regular and permanent appointment. Dr. Allison Davis, who has just been raised to the rank of full professor of education, thus becomes the first Negro to hold this rank on a permanent appointment at a northern university.

In 1942, when Dr. Davis was appointed assistant professor at the University of Chicago, he was, according to the Atlantic Monthly (July, 1947,) "the first Negro faculty member on record to serve with regular status in any northern university." In 1947, after teaching five years at Chicago, Dr. Davis was promoted to the rank of associate professor. A year later he has been made a full professor, the highest academic rank possible.

Dr. Davis is reported to have been the first Negro to have been valedictorian of a New England college, having led his class summa cum laude at Williams college, Massachusesst, in 1942. He received his M. A. in English from Harvard university in 1924, taught for six years at Hampton institute, and in 1931 began the study of social anthropology at Harvard. He later took M. A. and Ph.D. degree in anthropology, the last degree at the University of Ch.cago. He has studied also at the University of London.

Boston Prof. Gets Chair At OberlinCollege

By Samuel P. Perry, Jr.

BOSTON (ANP) — Dr. Wade A. Ellis, an instructor in mathematics at Boston university, has been appointed to the faculty of liberal Oberlin college in Ohio as an assistant professor of mathematics. The appointment is effective next September.

Mr. Ellis is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Whit Ellis of Chandler, Okla. He is a graduate of Wilberforce university and holds a M. S. degree from the University of Mexico, and the University of Michigan. At Michigan, he taught mathematics, prior to his Boston university position. Fisk has also had the young scholar as a member of its faculty.

During the war, Mrs. Ellis was a staff member of the radiation laboratory at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and also served as chief of the radiation branch, antenna laboratory, Cambridge Field station for the air material command in Cambridge, Mass.

Anderson Appointed To Boston U. Faculty

BOSTON—(ANP)—Atty. Charles W. Anderson, recently appointed member of the special commission to recodify general laws of Massachusetts, has been appointed to the faculty of the Boston University Law School. Atty. Anderson, who will serve on a part-time basis while completing the recodification of the state laws, taught his first class this week.

Allison Davis Named Full Professor at Chicago U.

CHICAGO—(ANP)—At the University of Chicago, a precedent in the history of American universities has been established by the advancement of a Negro to the rank of a full professor, on regular and permanent appointment. Dr. Allison Davis, who has been raised to the rank of full professor of education, thus becomes the first Negro to hold this rank on a permanent appointment at a Northern university.

In 1942, when Dr. Davis was appointed assistant professor at the University of Chicago, he was, according to the Atlantic Monthly (July, 1947), "the first Negro faculty member on record to serve with regular status in any Northern university."

Allison Davis Named Full Chicago U. Professor

CHICAGO (ANP)—At the University of Chicago, a precedent in the history of American universities has been established by the advancement of a Negro to the rank of a full professor, on regular and permanent appointment. Dr. Allison Davis, who has just been raised to the rank of full professor of education, thus becomes the first Negro to hold this rank on a permanent appointment at a northern university.

In 1942, when Dr. Davis was appointed assistant professor at the University of Chicago, he was, according to the Atlantic Monthly (July, 1947,) "the first Negro faculty member on record to serve with regular status in any northern university." In 1947, after teaching five years at Chicago, Dr. Davis was promoted to the rank of associate professor. A year later he has been made a full professor, the highest academic rank possible.

Dr. Davis is reported to have been the first Negro to have been valedictorian of a New England college, having led his class summa cum laude at Williams college, Massachusesst, in 1942. He received his M. A. in English from Harvard university in 1924, taught for six years at Hampton institute, and in 1931 began the study of social anthropology at Harvard. He later took M. A. and Ph.D. degree in anthropology, the last degree at the University of Chicago. He has studied also at the University of London.

Professor Named To Oberlin Staff

OBERLIN, O.

President William E. Stevenson of Oberlin College last week announced the appointment of Dr. Wade Ellis as assistant professor of mathematics.

Dr. Ellis had his Bachelor of Science degree from Wilberforce University, his Master of Science degree from the University of Mexico, and his Doctor of Philosophy degree from the University of Michigan.

His teaching experience included high school work in Oklahoma, and college teaching at Fort Valley State College, Ga., Fisk University, the University of Michigan and, at present, Boston University.

The distinguished mathematician had also been a staff member of the radiation laboratory at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and chief of the radiation research branch laboratory, Cambridge U. S. Air Field Station in Cambridge, Mass. Dr. Ellis was born in Chandler, Oklahoma, son of the late Whit Ellis and Mrs. Ellis, who resides there now.

Holds New York University Post

Mrs. Pauline Byrd Taylor, Kalamazoo, Mich., educator, who is the first Negro to be assigned to the Center for Human Relations Studies of the New York University school of education. A Rosenwald teaching fellow and holder of a university scholarship, Mrs. Taylor also serves as assistant to Associate Professor of Education Ethel Alpenfels.

Hampton Front All Quiet; Field Cut

NEW YORK — No new developments in the race for Hampton Institute's presidency is expected until the meeting of the executive committee in early October.

Meanwhile at least one possible choice seemed eliminated when Dr. Robert Weaver accepted a teaching appointment from New York University.

Kent University Hires Negro Teacher

AKRON, Ohio—(ANP)—Kent State University appointed its first full-time Negro instructor last week when Oscar W. Ritchie of Massillon was chosen to serve in the sociology department of the school.

Doctors Recognized With Appointments

By Associated Negro Press

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Dr. W. A. Younge, and Dr. A. N. Vaughn of St. Louis and Dr. H. H. Weathers of East St. Louis, Ill., have been appointed senior instructors on the faculty of the school of medicine at St. Louis University.

They will serve at Homer G. Phillips Hospital, one of the institutions whose teaching facilities are overseen by the university.

Dr. Younge, past president of the National Medical Association, is a member of the American Board of Internal Medicine, medical director of St. Mary's Infirmary, and past president of the Mound City Medical Forum.

Allison Davis Forms New Intelligence Test

Dr. Allison Davis, associate professor of education at the University of Chicago, has begun the construction of new, culturally fair tests of intelligence. A second grant bringing the total to $80,000, has been made to the University for the development by Dr. Davis of intelligence tests which will prove fair to all socio-economic and racial groups.

Cornell Faculty Not Averse To Race Professors

By Associated Negro Press

ITHACA, N. Y. — Faculty members and students at Cornell University are not wholly against the hiring of or working with Negro instructors. As a matter of fact, a slight majority of both groups are in favor of having Negroes as teachers and professors.

This conclusion was reached by the Cornell NAACP chapter here recently and was based on a survey conducted among department chairmen of various colleges at the university and among students themselves. The questionnaire which said they distributed during the last term asked: "Are you interested in finding out about the attitudes of Negroes on the staff," the chairmen voted 35 per cent for "no," 43 per cent, "don't know," and 25 per cent, "yes." A large part of the "yes" answers were based upon the expected objections relating to employing Negroes on the staff, the questions were asked: "Six questions were asked: any colleagues would object to having a Negro on the staff," the department policies they can tell us more about the attitudes."

tions of southern-born staff members.

The chairmen voted 29 per cent "no;" 27 per cent, "some;" 43 per cent, "don't know," and 22 per cent, "yes" to the question would students object to being taught by a qualified Negro?" On this question, 461 students from three colleges voted 5.5 per cent "yes," against 92.5 per cent "no."

Twenty-three out of 37 chairmen said the reason Negroes were not on the faculty was because they did not possess adequate qualifications, while 88 per cent indicated Negroes never had applied for a position in their departments.

Dr. F. L. Marcuse, professor of psychology who assisted in the survey, declared this question to be significant. He said, "It is interesting to note that in the answer to the question on absence of Negroes on the faculty, approximately 50 per cent attributed the absences to lack of qualifications, while responses in the next question indicated 88 per cent had never had applications from Negroes. The indication is that prejudgment, based on factors other than actual credentials has been made."

The last question asked was, "Do you think the presence of a Negro faculty member, selected competitively and on the basis of competence, would contribute to the improvement of race relations?" Answers to this were, 20 per cent "no;" 33 per cent, "don't know;" and 47 per cent, "yes."

The NAACP branch concluded that the main objections were the Negro's lack of qualifications, attitude of some southern-born faculty members, and the question of student reaction. It pointed out that there is no desire for the appointment of a man with inadequate qualifications merely because he is a Negro, nor can he expect to be "head and shoulders above his colleagues;" that objections from southern faculty members "could and should be countered in a simple and direct manner by liberals;" and student opinion, rather than opposing would support a faculty policy of teacher appointment irrespective of color.

Weathers To Instruct Medics In University

Reverend Paul C. Reinert, S. J., acting president of St. Louis University, announced Monday that three members of the staff of Saint Mary's Infirmary, 1536 Papin street, have been added to the instructional staff of the Saint Louis University School of Medicine. This action was taken at the last meeting at which Reverend Alphonse M. Schwitalla, S. J., presided as dean, before his resignation because of ill health.

The appointment of three doctors of the race to the faculty of this recognized school of medicine is believed to have set a precedent.

The three appointees are Dr. Henry Hudson Weathers, Dr. Walter A. Younge, and Dr. Arthur N. Vaughn. All are graduates of the Meharry Medical college in Nashville, Tenn. Dr. Weathers interned at the old St Louis City Hospital No. 2, and also completed three-year residency at that institution. He is a member of the American College of Surgeons and will act as instructor in surgery at the St. Louis University School of Medicine.

Dr. Walter A. Younge, has been named senior instructor in medicine.

Dr. Walter A. Younge, has been named senior instructor in medicine. He served his internship at the People's Hospital and is a member of the American College of Physicians. Dr. Younge was born in British Guiana, South America, and is a graduate of Lane College.

Dr. Arthur N. Vaughn, a native of Columbus, Ky., has been named senior instructor in surgery. He also served his internship at the People's Hospital and is a member of the American College of Surgeons.

Drs. Younge and Vaughn are both past presidents of the National Medical Association. All three appointments are effective immediately.

Drs Younge Vaughn And Will Teach Medicine To Both Races

ST. LOUIS—It was just like Christmas to thousands of St. Louisans who have fought so hard against all forms of Jim Crow in higher education—and indeed Christmas was almost here when St. Louis University appointed three Negroes to the staff of the medical school.

History was made in the surprise announcement by Rev. Paul C. Reinert, S. J., acting president of the Jesuit school, that Dr. Arthur N. Vaughn, Dr. Walter A. Younge, and Dr. Henry H. Weathers would join the faculty.

Dr. Vaughn has been named a senior instructor in surgery. Dr. Weathers, a member of the American College of Surgeons, will act as an instructor in surgery also. Dr. Weathers, an associate member of the American College of Surgeons, has been named a senior instructor in medicine.

The doctors will teach mixed classes in medicine at St. Mary's Infirmary, 1536 Papin st. St. Mary's is one of the hospitals connected with the University, according to Father Reinert.

The holiday announcement marked the first time a Negro has been appointed to the faculty of any of the university's schools.

News Among The Colored People

The Institute and community honored themselves Tuesday evening as they honored Dr. and Mrs. Harry V. Richardson in a testimonial service at Washington Chapel A.M.E. Church. The Richardsons, who left Wednesday for their new home in Atlanta where Dr. Richardson is to be the president of Gammon Theological Seminary, were eulogized highly by the speakers on the program who represented different areas.

After devotions led by Reverends J. L. Mathis and R. B. Ford, J. D. Reid spoke for the community. Chaplain Henry C. Bowden, of the Veterans Facility, substituted for Manager T. T. Tildon, of the hospital. Rev. William E. Carson, president of the Ministers Council, spoke for the ministers. Dean I. A. Derbigny represented the Institute in the absence of Dr. Patterson, who sent regretful word of his inability to be present. Kenneth B. Young, principal of the High School represented his group. Mrs. M. W. Frazier spoke for the Washinghon Public School, of which she is the principal. Mrs. Dorinda Fair read communications from several business establishments and Rev. Earnest T. Dixon gave an illustrated lecture showing what is being done for rural ministers under the direction of Dr. Richardson. In his inimitable manner T. M. Campbell sang "Without a Song", accompanied by Mrs. Victorial Nicholson. Tokens were presented by Rev. T. R. Newman of the Washington Chapel Church. Response was made by Dr. Richardson who said that if he were five years older he would not think of leaving Tuskegee for work anywhere. Atlanta is not so far that they would not be seeing us quite often, and perhaps they would return for good sooner than we think, their love being so great for the people here. A beautifully bound booklet containing the names of signators to a patrons list was presented the couple who with the large number of friends repaired to the basement of the church for delightful

Nebraska University Hires Full-Time Negro On Staff

LINCOLN, Neb. — (ANP) — Nebraska University has hired its first full time Negro staff member. The announcement was made this week. The newest staff member, Mrs. Maude Coggs, was appointed to the college staff Aug. 16, although the fact was not publicized.

She is working as a research assistant in the animal nutrition department of the university's experiment station in Lincoln.

She earned her B. S. in home economics at Tuskegee Institute in 1945, and her M. S. in foods and nutrition at the University of Nebraska in 1947.

She is married to Granville Coggs, an honor student in pre-med science at the university. Both are natives of Little Rock, Ark.

Mrs. Coggs is a member of Phi Upsilon Omicron, home economics honorary society; Alpha Kappa Mu, national honor society, and the Delta Epsilon Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority. At her past year she studied and worked as a graduate assistant in the foods and nutrition laboratories on the campus.

Her project is the preparation of a bacterial essay for identifying vitamin B-12 (animal protein factor). During the experiment she is the author of the article which is now in circular form.

Poll Favors Negro Teachers at Cornell

A survey conducted by the education committee of the Cornell University Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People revealed an overall of 71 per cent of department heads at Cornell would hire qualified Negroes as members of their staffs.

Fifty-five department chairmen in the four colleges comprising the university were surveyed. Sixteen students took part in conducting the survey which took in six items or questions. The highest favorable percentage was returned from the college of arts and sciences, 90 per cent.

The lowest return was in the department of home economics which returned 43 per cent. All of the interviewers were white with the exception of one. Four department heads could not be reached and two refused to be interviewed.

CITES PREJUDICE

The general answer given by those who stated they were not in favor of such a move was that the time is not ripe for such experiment; they did not think there were such qualified Negroes, and that Southern white students might object.

One department head even went so far as to state that "statistically they are an inferior race. In twenty-three years no graduate Negro student, who could meet the conventional qualifications has applied" for a post.

Students who were asked if they would object to being taught by a Negro faculty members answered 92.5 per cent favorably. Indications were that students were more liberal than faculty members gave them credit for being.

SURVEY PUBLISHED

The survey was published in the winter edition of The Journal of Negro Education under the title of "Ag" college c

Negroes On White Faculties

Roosevelt College Appoints Mrs. Valeria Thompson Hill

CHICAGO, — (ANP) — Mrs. Valeria Thompson Hill has been appointed a member of the interracial faculty of Roosevelt college here. She will work in the education department, assisting in the supervision of practice teaching, and will teach tests and measurements.

A graduate of Tuskegee institute in 1943, she received her master's degree from the University of Chicago. She is now working for Ph. D. in elementary education.

Bennington College Gets Negro Teacher

BENNINGTON, Va. — (ANP)— Bennington College, famed institution for higher learning for women, has added to its staff John Caswell Smith, former executive secretary of the Boston Urban League.

School Board

4-14-48

PRECEDENT SETTING ELECTION IN SOUTH — SAN ANTONIO, Texas—The San Antonio Junior College election, held recently in this Texas city, set a precedent throughout the South by the election of G. J. Sutton, (above) Negro businessman. Mrs. E. R. Lewis, the defeated candidate for re-election said that the people had spoken and she would not challenge the results. A check showed that 789 residents who voted in the school board race did not vote in the Junior College race. It is assumed that following the trend of other suburban areas, most of these votes would have gone to Sutton's competitors. In unofficial returns, Sutton won by a majority of only 79 votes—(INP) 4-14-48

14J 1948

Trip to Washington, D. C.

26 Negro Honor Students To Leave April 3 For Tour Of Nation's Capital

The News

Twenty-six boys and girls, honor students from the Negro public, private and parochiel high schools in the county, will leave April 3 for a week in Washington, seeing the federal government in action. 3-11-48

This is the first time such a trip has been planned. It is patterned after the Jefferson County High School Citizenship Tour, conceived last year by Rep. Laurie Battle and sponsored by civic clubs and the school systems. 3-11-48

Arrangements for the trip have school principals, led by Paul Ware, of Hooper City School, and with approval and support of school superintendents. Birmingham Ala.

Finances for the trip have been made available by a number of industries and businesses, plus contributions from individuals and organizations. 3-11-48 Large donors include American Cast Iron Pipe Company, Bishop Thomas J. Toolen, Masonic and Pythian Lodges, Jones Valley Elks Lodge No. 14, Negro Business League, Woodward Iron Company, Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company, Smith & Gaston Funeral Home, Stockham Pipe Fittings Company, The BirmingNews-Age-Herald. Expense of each student is $125. The News

Unlike the trip to be made by children from white high schools in the county, more than one representative has been chosen from the Negro school. 3-11-48

Selection has been made largely on basis of school enrollment. For instance, there are but two Negro high schools in Birmingham. Ullman is, in truth, used to relieve the overflow at Parker High. Enrollment at the latter school is around 4,000, so there will be four students foing from that school.

THE STUDENTS with their chaperons, will travel by chartered bus. They will stop overnight at Jackson C. Smith University, in Charlotte, N. C. Birmingham, Ala.

En route from Charlotte to Washington, they will stop for a visit at A. & T. College in Greensboro, N. C., at Bennett College, and will visit Monticello, home of Thomas Jefferson. The News

Headquarters for the group in Washington will be the George Carver Hotel and the Lucy D. Stowe Home. Mews, 3-11-48

Arrangements for sight-seeing trips around Washington have been arranged by Dr. Ambrose Caliver, director of Negro offairs of the U. S. Office of Education, in cooperation with Rep. Battle's staff. Mews

Tentative plans include a trip to Philadelphia. The return route will be along the Skyline Drive through the Shenandoah Valley. 3-11-48

WORKING WITH PROF. Ware on details of the trip are: Mrs. Odessa McKinney, Miss Susie Mae Jamar, E. Paul Jones, C. W. Hayes, E. J. Oliver, J. S. Abrams.

Mrs. Dessie Ray, of Parker High School, and Prof. Ware will chaperon the trip. Mattie Rowe, writer or The Birmingham News column, "What Negroes are Doing," will cover the trip. Mews

Schools participating are: Brighton, Dunbar, Fairfield, Hooper City, Immaculata, Muscoda, Payne, Praco, Parker, Ullman, Westfield, Wenonah. Two Birmingham News-Age-Herald carriers will be included in the party. 3-11-48

14j 1948

Who's Who In America

Bishop William J. Walls of the A. M. E. Zion Church is included in the 1948 edition of Who's Who in America. He was recently cited for membership in the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

Bishop Walls is a member of the American Society of Church History, the general committee of the World Council of Churches, the National Religious Education Association and other civic and religious groups.

Bishop Walls In Who's Who In America

BOSTON, — (ANP) — Bishop William J. Walls of the AME Zion church is included in the 1948 edition of Who's Who In America, the committee of publishers announced this week. He was recently cited for membership in the American Academy of Political and Social science.

Bishop Walls is a member of the American Society of Church history, the general committee of the World Council of Churches, the National Religious Education association and other civic and religious groups. He will also be listed in Who's Who in the Central States and Who's Who in Religious Leaders.

WHO'S WHO

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 6—The President of the Shaw University student body and the captain of the Shaw Bears football team were among the ten students of the institution recently named to Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. William A. Cannon, a junior of Asheville, student council president, and Everett C. Lattimore, a senior from Plainfield, N. J., Shaw team captain, were notified along with six other seniors and two more juniors of the honor.

The distinction is based upon scholarships, leadership, co-operation in student activities, and promise of future usefulness. Each of the 10 students will receive a certificate of recognition and each will be mentioned in the annual publication of the Who's Who index.

Our Graduates

The News
Birmingham, Ala.
5-29-48

Some 950 young men and women are graduates at this season of Birmingham high schools. They are all at the commencement of new periods in their lives. Each of them looks forward to a set of new experiences. Some will go to work at the jobs which they may follow all their lives long. Many hope for college careers to guide them into positions of leadership in business and professional life.

Sat.

These 950 students come from seven different high schools. Six of them are white schools; only one high school is for Negroes. Yet about 40 per cent of Birmingham's population is colored. Of the high school graduates, 438 are Negro, which is just about 46 per cent of this Spring's crop of graduates. They all come from Parker High School.

This paper does not know whether the figures above presented are particularly significant. But they are cause for thought. Parker High is a big school, and it is accounted a good one with an excellent administration and a competent faculty. Perhaps it is well equipped to care for nearly half of Birmingham's high school population.

But the figures do indicate one thing without doubt: that Birmingham's Negroes are hungry for an education. We will be doing ourselves and the whole city an irreparable wrong if we ever allow ourselves to provide anything less than the best education we are capable of giving to the colored citizens of our community. 5-29-48

'IT SEEMS TO ME'

Jefferson County Heads U. S. In Negro Education

The News
Birmingham, Ala.
Mon. 7-5-48

BY ALYCE BILLINGS WALKER

Jefferson County school system has, it is believed, the largest number and more accredited Negro high schools than any other school system in the country. Mon. 7-5-48

This is one evidence of the progress being made in raising public education standards for Negroes in this district.

Facts to prove this progress have been compiled by E. Paul Jones, director of Negro schools for the county system. His booklet, "Status of Public Education for Negroes in Jefferson County," points up things the county school board has done to lift all public education in its jurisdiction, and particularly, to close gaps between advantages offered Negro and white children.

ALYCE WALKER

* * *

STRIDES THAT HAVE been made in Negro education are the result of combined efforts of the board of education and Negro teachers and principals. Another important factor is growing realization among Negroes of education's importance and their increased desire for it. The latter is expressed in greatly stepped-up school attendance. More Negro children are going to, and completing high school now than ever before.

The effort being made by teachers is manifested in their improved academic and professional training. According to the Jones study, of the 317 Negro teachers and principals employed by the board in 1935-36, only 138 held degrees. In 1947-48 there was a staff of 375, and 254 held degrees. Only two of the number had master's degrees in 1942-43. There are nine this year

MUCH OF THIS professional development has resulted from in-service training. Meetings for teachers, principals and supervisors were set up by the Board of Education, but the teachers did the planning of programs and discussions. Through the board and the Negro teachers' association a teachers' professional library has been growing since 1938. The News Birmingham, Ala.

However, of the total degree holders, 177 have been graduated from non-accredited schools. This fact has been cause of one of the chief criticisms aimed at Negro education in the South—the differential in white and Negro teachers' salaries. All teachers' salaries are largely determined by graduation from a standard college or university, approved by regional accrediting agencies. The Jefferson County system today is paying equal salaries for equal training among both white and Negro teachers. Mon.

Some tangible results of efforts made by the Board of Education are: increased salaries; better school buildings and teaching materials; improved transportation; decreased teaching loads and increased professional and non-professional personnel. 7-5-48

THE AVERAGE TEACHER salary has tripled since 1935-36. At that time, the average annual Negro teacher salary was $507. Today, it is $1,524, raising the board's total expenditure for Negro teachers' salaries from $168,426 in 1935-36 to $524,125 in 1947-48.

The board, too, has moved as rapidly as funds and material availability allowed in improving school buildings for both white and Negro children. It has been getting its Negro schools out of churches, lodge halls, and buildings owned by industrial companies. Mon. 7-5-48

As recently as 1942-43, 34.8 per cent of the Negro schools were housed in company-owned structures. The number has now been cut to 22.4 per cent. This a more important fact than the casual observer realizes. In the first place, majority of the buildings were not intended for schools. The expense of conversion and subsequent repairs was responsibility of the board. That was money spent on someone else's property. Too, these structures weren't always fireproof. Nor were they well lighted, heated or ventilated. The News

SINCE 1933, the board has added 224 classrooms for Negroes, as annexes to present buildings or as completely new construction. The new schools are modern and fireproof. Birmingham, Ala.

There was no transportation whatever for Negro children in the 1930s. Today, they have equal facilities with white youngsters. However, the entire system's transportation equipment is inadequate—again, because of inadequate funds. Mon. 7-5-48

There has been a lightening of teachers' student loads through the addition of more classrooms and addition of more personnel. Too, non-professional personnel has been added where needed, such as registrars for the larger schools, attendance workers and directors of Negro education.

THERE ARE, of course, some areas in which progress has not been so marked. There is need for libraries, science laboratories and for lunchrooms. Mon.

In all this fine development, the citizens have had their important part, too. They have been in there pitching for more school funds so that improvements could be made. The board and the teachers are not unmindful of this fine spirit. 7-5-48

Therefore, all of us can take pride in the report. Indeed, it is a fine answer to charges that the South—particularly our district—isn't trying to correct one of its serious problems.

Jefferson Students Homebound After Long Sightseeing Tour

The News
Birmingham, Ala.

BY MATTIE B. ROWE
News Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 9—Today Jefferson County touring high school Negro students are wending their way home over the famous Skyline route. By nightfall they should be in Winston-Salem, N. C., for an overnight stop at the Winston-Salem Teachers College. Our itinerary calls for arrival at the bus terminal in Birmingham Saturday. Tue. 4-9-48

After an extensive tour of Gettysburg yesterday, the party came on to Philadelphia, the cradle of American independence. We were met at the Carlyle Hotel by an official guide.

Our first stop was Independence Hall. Here we viewed the Liberty Bell and the Declaration Chamber where the Continental Congress adopted the Declaration of Independence July 4, 1776.

It was interesting to watch these youngsters as they stood in awe before the very table on which this previous document was signed, in this same room when, in 1787, the Federal Constitutional Convention framed the Constitution of these United States.

Pilgrimage was made to the Betsy Ross house, where, according to tradition, Mrs. Elizabeth Ross at the request of Washington and the Continental Congress made the first American flag in 1777.

* * *

THEIR LAST STOP included a visit to the Franklin Institute, known popularly as the "Wonderland of Science" dedicated to Benjamin Franklin. The News

Then, tired and weary, but still happy, they retired reluctantly for an early start for home—29 souls that have fed at the fountain springs of liberty, have sat at the feet of its founding fathers—Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln; have talked with those who are carrying on today the principles of integrity, equality and freedom for which these fathers lived and died. For them the American way of life has a new meaning and a most sacred and proud heritage. Tue. 4-9-48

The first colored citizenship tour can be called an immense success and those who have had a part in the planning and financing of this movement may be sure that these 32 tourists will be grateful to you forever and that your investment will return dividends of inestimable value. Birmingham, Ala.

This is the final report as the long hours of travel towards home will not permit further stops.

14k 1948

Classes Open At $205,000 Negro School

900 Attend First Day; Building Has 30 Classrooms

Nine hundred smiling Negro children yesterday entered the Booker T. Washington High School, Union and Grove Streets, to begin first classes in the new $205,000 structure.

Showing their pride in having modern classrooms, sanitary conditions and educational aids, the students told Dr. Clarence M. Dannelly, superintendent of city and county schools that they would care for the buildings, improve their studies, and, in general, strive to be worthy of the new school.

Although the school has been put into use, it still lacks a few finishing touches. Plumbing fixtures, lockers, and science equipment, not available now, will be installed when manufacturers can supply them.

The dual shift program, in use for several years, was eliminated with the new school's opening. Formerly pupils attended school from 7 a.m., to 12 p.m., on one shift, and from 12 a.m., to 5 p.m., on the second shift. Classes now start at 8:30 a.m., and continue for the full six and one-half days.

30 Classrooms

The school, a fireproof structure, except for flooring and moulding, has 30 modernistic classrooms. Each room is similar, with 40 desks, blackboards, bulletin boards, and file cabinets.

Two water fountains are located on each floor, and toilets for boys and girls are on the first and second floors.

A modern lighting system, making the use of electricity almost unnecessary, includes 3,600 window panes. The lower part of the windows on the first floor are fogged to prevent interruption of classroom studies and "window visitors."

Large Campus

The school was built 20 feet from the street's curb to provide a larger area for playground facilities. The terrain, which formerly sloped toward the rear, was leveled by bulldozer operation and made into a flat campus, sufficiently large for baseball, basketball, or football practice.

The library, administrative offices, and lunch room, located across Union Street in the elementary building, are accessible from the new school through a 123-foot underground tunnel. The elementary building now serves the upper elementary and some of the junior high school pupils.

The school's principal, Theodore Smiley, has bachelor's and master's degrees from the State Teachers College here, and the other 29 teachers, who are all Negroes, hold college degrees. Ten have master's degrees.

Funds for the construction of the three-story school were allocated by the State Building Commission, following a recent legislative act to construct new Negro schools over the state.

The campus was donated to the school system by the Swayne board of trustees. The old Swayne School, which had deteriorated, was torn down to make room for the present structure.

Students of the school have opened a fund drive to erect a statue, on the campus, to the memory of officials of the Swayne School.

Plans for the new building were drawn by Sherlock, Smith and Adams, and construction was by Bear Brothers.

Another new Negro school — Carver High School—is expected to open after the Christmas holidays. It is located on Fairview Avenue.

Civil Service Week

Civil Service Week, which is sponsored annually by the American Federation of Government Employees, will be observed throughout the nation in 1949 during the week of Jan. 16. President Truman, the U.S. Civil Service Commissioner, and other high officials interested in the welfare of Federal workers will be asked to take part in commemorative ceremonies marking the anniversary of the Civil Service Commission. Approximately 2,200,000 Federal workers are expected to take part in observance of the week.

Two Negro Schools Planned In Dallas

SELMA, ALA., Dec. 14.—Dallas County officials signed contracts for two county high schools for Negroes, the Shiloh Junior High near Sardis, and the Keith High near Orrville.

The buildings will be of concrete block construction, each with eight class rooms, an auditorium to seat 400, modern rest rooms and electric lighting. Plans were drawn by Hudson, Gilmore and Campbell of Montgomery. Cost will come out of State Building Commission funds, provided by the legislature for school buildings for Negroes.

School Gets 'A' Rating

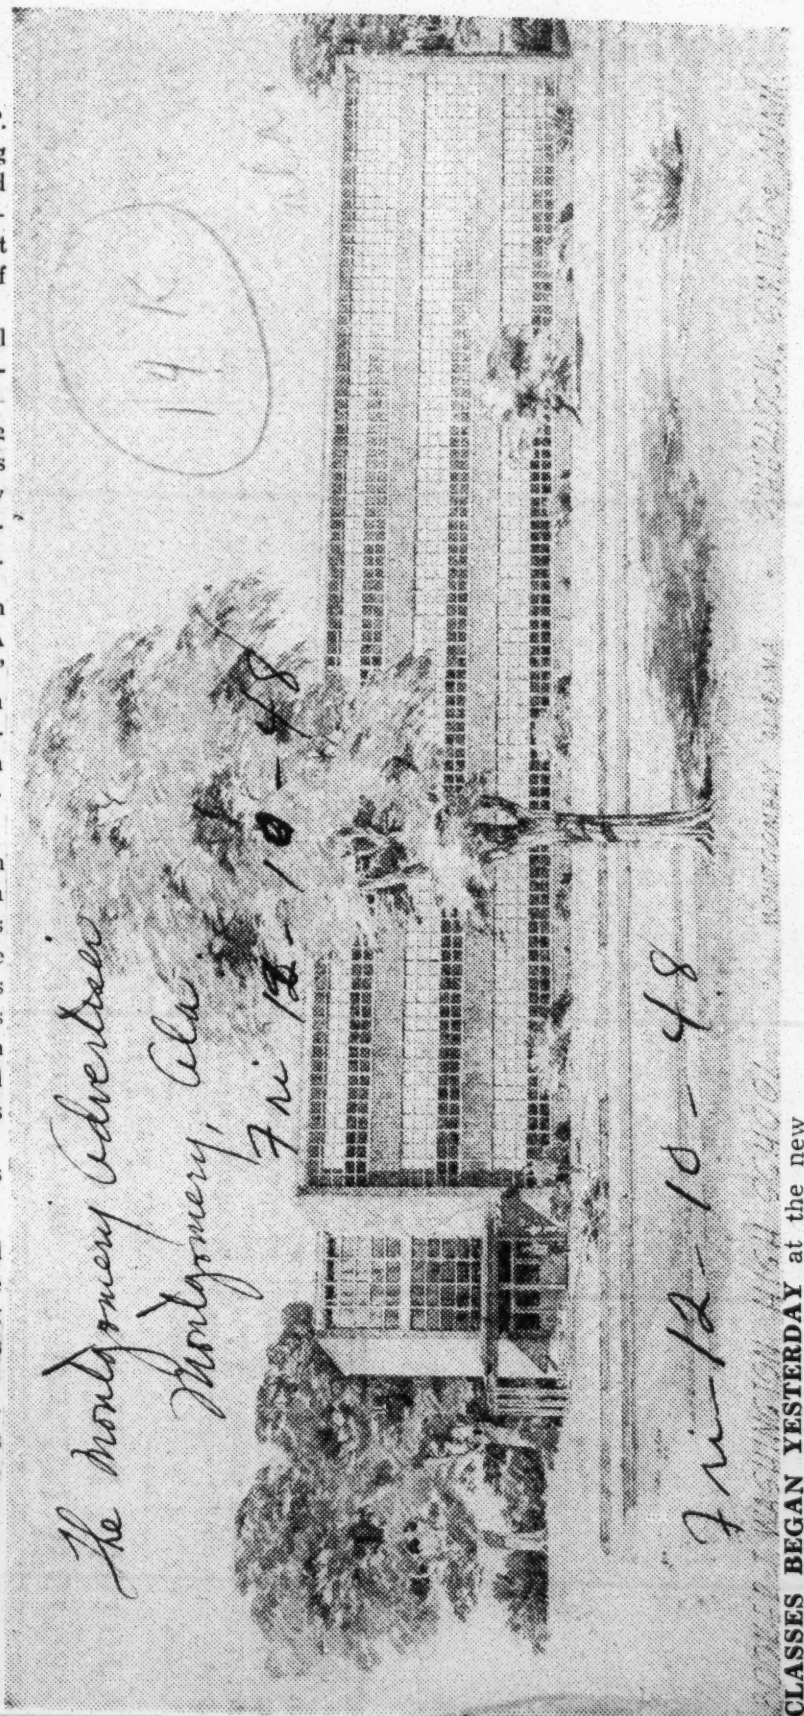
MOBILE, ALA.—Principal J. T. Gaines of Mobile County Training School has been officially notified by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools that the school retains the "A" rating of this evaluating body.

The Association is the regional evaluating body. Its scope of influence is the Southeast and Southwest area of the County. A rating by this body enables the students in institution to matricalate in any school in the country on a continuation study basis without penalty.

The agency gives two ratings, on "A" rating and a "B" rating. A school receiving the coveted "A" meets all of the standards set forth by the agency as those it deem adequate for a school within a given area, (high school or college graduate).

County received its initial "A" in 1934. It has enjoyed this distinction ever since. For a period of ten years it was the only public school the entire state of Alabama with this rating. Since 1944 it has shared this honor with only one other such school within the state. The second School is in North Alabama thus County remains the only publi school in South Alabama within this select class.

Principal Gaines, the faculty and student-personnel of County are justly proud of this high rating honor. However, each is desirous of much more company in this select circle. They realize that adequacy of educational opportunity is a most desirable goal for all of the people.



CLASSES BEGAN YESTERDAY at the new $205,000 Booker T. Washington High School, Union and Grove Street, with approximately 900 pupils attending. Formal dedication will be held early in January. The school has 3,600 window panes, making electric lights almost unnecessary. It is connected with the elementary school across Union Street by means of an underground tunnel.

BY MATTIE B. ROWE

The tour is ended, but the memory lives on——

Twenty-nine teen-agers, chosen from the 14 Negro high schools of Jefferson County to make the first good citizenship tour, returned home April 10. Birmingham Age-Herald

Although they had enjoyed a most successful tour of Washington, D. C., Philadelphia, Pa., and many other places of interest, the entire group was in agreement that "There's No Place Like Home."

En route home the group formed an organization to provide a complete report on the tour for the library of each of the 14 Jefferson County Negro high schools. 4-18-48

In the organization, Newstell Dowdell, Parker High student, was named president; Annie Stanbeary, Westfield High, vice president; Louise Reed, Westfield High, secretary; Bettye Taylor, Parker High, assistant secretary; Curtis Cheatham, Dunbar High, treasurer.

Chairman of planning for the group is Ethel O'Neal of Dunbar High School. Birmingham, Ala.

The group will meet at an early date when the public will have the opportunity of viewing scenes of the trip caught by the student moving picture photographers, as well as hearing the students relate their experiences on the tour. Sears

Success of the trip was due largely to Prof. Paul L. Ware, principal at Hooper City School, who was in general charge, and to Mrs. Dessie Harris Ray, instructor at Parker High School, chaperon. The writer is happy to present the following comment: 4-18-48

"The first citizenship tour was a remarkable success. It served well the cause of education and in so doing it serve equally well the cause of democracy. It gave the pupils a view of the far-reaching social and political implications and consequences of all they have studied relating to government; it gave them a new sense of pride, of responsibility and of reverence.

"We will always be grateful to all responsible for the initiation, the planning and the execution of this unique project—our superintendents, Cong. Laurie Battle, The Birmingham News-Age-Herald, the Citizenship Tour Committee, our generous civic organizations, Dr. Ambrose Caliver and his staff in Washington, the principals and teachers of the various high schools, and particularly Mr. Paul Ware."

Manual Arts Girl Orator Wins Opening Herald-Express Contest

Evening Herald Express

—Herald-Express Photo

CAPACITY AUDIENCE HEARS HERALD-EXPRESS BEN FRANKLIN CONTEST
Student Body of Benjamin Franklin High School and Some Parents Jammed Auditorium to Hear First of Preliminary Oratory Contests

Yvonne Watson Is Victor

Herald Express

Five Other Students in Tie For 2nd Honors

Los Angeles, Calif.

By LYLE ABBOTT

With a speech that gripped and stirred a capacity audience Yvonne Watson of Manual Arts High School today won the first of the preliminaries in the Herald and Express Benjamin Franklin Oratorical Contest.

Miss Watson, coached by Stuart Stengel and Mrs. Mary Wilt, spoke last on the program in the huge Benjamin Franklin High Auditorium, and so thoroughly convinced the four judges that she received a score of 6 points in the "low-score-wins" system.

By a remarkable display of talent, four of the other speakers scored exactly the same, 15 points, and the sixth scored only a point more. Thurs. 4-30-48

GOES TO L. A. FINALS

By her victory, Miss Watson goes into the citywide finals and a chance for further honors in the zone and national contests.

The great crowd, which included besides the student body many adults from the Franklin High district, was welcomed by Principal R. E. Winchester and Girls Vice-principal Elsa May Smith.

Joseph Woollett, president of the student body, presided at the opening ceremonies and Armin C. Hentschke, coordinator of student affairs, was chairman.

The contestants having drawn for places on the program, Chairman Hentschke introduced them in order: George Rogers of Marshall, Anthony Campana of Francis Polytechnic, Miriam Feldman of Roosevelt, Ernest Vargas of Garfield, Mary Louise Caflisch of Eagle Rock and Miss Watson.

All received generous applause, but an ovation followed the speech of the winner.

The judges were Mrs. Margaret W. Divizia, Bernard Brennan, Bruce Findlay and Judge Thomas J. Cunningham. Evening

Yvonne Watson is 15. She is the daughter of Mrs. Lola Watson of 3744 La Salle avenue.

Her next contest will be in the city finals for high schools at 8 p. m. Tuesday, May 4, in the Alumni Chapel at Occidental College. Herald Express

There the judges will select the outstanding speaker from among the four high school finalists to enter the Pacific Coast Zone contest at Oakland May 7 and try for a place on the national finals program at Chicago May 14. Tues.

Also at Occidental, will appear the eight college finalists. 4-30-48

The college and high school contests are judged separately, and the two best speakers are chosen to represent Los Angeles. They will be competing in very fine company, but hope to emulate the great achievements of Los Angeles orators in the past, who have won three out of the four previous national finals in the college division. Los Angeles, Calif

—Herald-Express Photo

YVONNE WATSON AND ARMIN HENTSCHKE
Manual Arts High School Girl Wins First Oratory Contest, Is Congratulated by Chairman

Judges who named Yvonne Watson (center), winner of first Benjamin Franklin preliminary oratory contest, are, left to right, Bruce Findlay, Judge Thomas J. Cunningham, Mrs. Margaret W. Divizia and Bernard C. Brennan.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS SUED FOR INFERIOR FACILITIES

WASHINGTON, D. C. —(NNPA) — Damages of $110,000 are sought from local school officials in a suit filed in the District Court last Wednesday on the ground that they afforded colored Junior high school pupils inferior educational facilities.

The suit was brought by two parents and two junior high school students. The plaintiffs are Judine Consuelo Bishop, a Browne Junior High School pupil; Barbara Jean Arnold, a pupil enrolled in the same school; Gardner L. Bishop, Judine's father, and Mrs. Edith H. Arnold, mother of Barbara.

Named as individuals defendants are members of the Board of Education and Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning. The members of the school board are Mrs. Marian Wade Doyle, Robert A Mauer, Mrs. Lenore W. Smith, Jno. H. Wilson, C. Melvin Sharpe, Jas. A. Cannon, Adelbert W. Lee, Mrs. Velma G. Williams and Geo E. C Hayes. Wilson, Mrs. Williams and Hayes are colored.

INFERIORITIES HIT

The suit alleges that the defendants have "wilfullly and maliciously" alloted "marked inferior" facilities including buildings and equipment,' to the colored division of their local school system and are, as a result, depriving colored pupils of substantially equal educational opportunity, solely because of race compared to the facilities afforded white pupils.

Declaring that there are surplus facilities in the white school divisions--buildings not used to capacity and standing idle-the complaint states there are more pupils enrolled in the Browne Junior High School then there are buildings, equipment and facilities to accommodate them.

The plaintiffs also state that the defendants have refused to transfer surplus buildings, equipment and facilities fom the white to the colored school divisions.

INJURIES CLAIMED

On last November, the plaintiffs charge, the defendants further curtailed educational opportunities of colored pupils and injured their mental and physical health by barring them from the Browne Junior High School part of the school day an ordering them sent, through the streets in all kinds of weather and subjected to traffic hazards, to the old, outmoded Blow and Webb elementary school buildings.

The complaint adds that these latter two buildings are wholly unsuited for the instruction of junior high school pupils.

The defendants, the plaintiffs assert, are still enforcing their order and compelling colored pupils, including Judine and Barbara, to be locked out of Browne Junior High School and affording them educational opportunities inferior to those afforded white pupils.

Jim Crow School Suit Dismissed

WASHINGTON — (ANP) — In dismissing a suit by Marguerite Daisy Carr for admission to a white junior high school in the District of Columbia, Associated Justice Alexander Holtzoff declared that the district court could not determine whether segregated schools are authorized by congress.

This court has no authority to schools delegated to the board of education in the organization act of 1906, the justice pointed out, unless there is evidence that legal authorit yis exceeded or that the administration is arbitrary.

Atty. Leon A. Ransom, representing the 13-year-old student, said that an appeal would be filed in a few days. The case, which was heard in the district court Tuesday, was the result of the refusal to transfer Miss Carr, a part-time student at Browne junior high to Eliot junior high which offers full-time instruction.

2 Million Asked For D. C. School Construction

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA) —Colored schools of the District of Columbia account for $2,446,353 or 56 per cent of the capital outlay of $4,335,683 recommended for public school construction here in the District of Columbia budget, submitted to Congress last Monday.

The estimates include the following items for the colored schools, which have been the subject of a stubborn controversy as a result of over-crowding:

For completing construction of the Miller Junior High School, including recreational facilities and treatment of grounds, Forty-ninth street and Washington place northeast, $817,573.

ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

For completing construction of the 16-room Montgomery elementary school building, including auditorium, lunchroom, physical education and recreational facilities, and treatment of grounds, New Jersey avenue and P street, northeast, to replace the present Morse and Twining elementary schools, $439,280.

For completing construction of the new 24-room Nalle elementary school building, including an assembly hall-gymnasium, recreation facilities, and treatment of grounds, East Capitol street and Benning road, southeast, 164,000.

For completing construction of a 24-room elementary school building, including auditorium, lunchroom, physical education and recreation facilities, and treatment of grounds, Nichols avenue and Sumner road southeast, to replace the present Birney School, $510,000.

A 24-ROOM SCHOOL

For completing construction of a new 24-room elementary school building, including auditorium, lunchroom, physical education and recreation facilities, and treatment of grounds, Third and L. streets northwest, to replace the present Walker-Jones Schools, $360,500.

For completing construction of an 8-room addition to the Young Elementary School, including necessary remodeling of the present building, and treatment of grounds, $155,000.

FOR LAND PURCHASE

Of the total estimates of $133,700 for building and playground sites, $113,700 is for the purchase of additional land in the vicinity of Sixth and O. streets, northwest, for a new junior high school to replace the Shaw Junior High School.

In the estimates for capital outlay for furniture and equipment, items for the colored schools total $312,600 or 65 per cent of the total of $477,600 recommended for this purpose.

Specific items for the colored schools are as follows:

Armstrong High, $25,735; Birney Elementary School, $56,000; Miller Junior High, $60,000; Montgomery Elementary School, $42,000; Phelps Vocation-High School, $20,100; Walker-Jones Elementary School, $25,000; Dunbar High, $54,405; Francis Junior High, $29,360.

Separate Schools in D.C. Assailed

U.S. Appeals Court Asked to End System

WASHINGTON

A three-judge United States Court of Appeals, Friday, was asked to abolish race segregation in the District of Columbia public schools.

The case, a joint one involving pupils of the overcrowded Browne Junior High School here, reached the appellate court after District Courts had dismissed two suits asking for injunctions to guarantee a non-segretory school policy.

The Browne Parent-Teacher Association brought the first suit against the School Board, its superintendent and assistant superintendent to restrain the authorities from putting overflow pupils from Browne into two elementary schools transferred to the colored division in an effort to relieve overcrowding.

Two Suits Combined

The second suit was filed on behalf of Margaret Carr, a Browne pupil, by her father, James C. Carr, to enjoin the School Board to permit Margaret to attend the school nearest her home, which happened to be one in the white division.

The Appeals Court ordered the suits combined two weeks ago. The joint case was argued by Leon A. Ransom, Belford V. Lawson and Austin L. Fickling, attorneys.

The justices who heard the appeals were Judges Henry W. Edgerton, Bennett Champ Clark and E. Barrett Prettyman. At the conclusion of the hearing the case was taken under advisement.

Civil Rights Violated

The lawyers argued that in establishing separate school systems here for white and colored pupils the School Board exceeded the authority Congress gave it. They pointed out that the power to segregate is a legislative function.

Congress alone must set up separate schools for the races and must do so by specific legislation and so direct the Board of Education.

Civil rights guaranteed colored people by the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution are being violated here daily by the separate school system, which provide unequal facilities for white and colored children, they stated.

"Substantially-Equal" Excuse

Attorneys for the School Board argued that the 1901 District Code had not changed previous laws directing separate schools for white and colored children.

THE HI

by Charles H. Houston

The so-called "strike" of the Browne Junior High School students in Washington is not a strike but a lock-out by the school officials.

The children report to the Browne Junior High School every school day.

The school authorities refuse to let them stay. When they send the children to Blow or Webb Schools the children, under instruction of their parents, go home.

The parents know they cannot force the Board of Education to abandon the dual school system which Congress and the courts have imposed on the District of Columbia.

Believe in Rights

But they believe, and so do I, that the Constitution and the Civil Rights Act which guarantee every school child in Washington equal educational opportunity, the Board of Education to give colored junior high school children educational opportunities equal to those offered the white place an inescapable obligation on junior high school children.

The Board of Education does not offer colored junior high school children equal educational opportunity when it sends them to old outmoded elementary schools while it has unused space in modern junior high school buildings.

The Blow and Webb Schools are elementary schools with equipment much too small for junior high school children.

They have no shops, laboratories, libraries, gymnasiums, auditoriums or other facilities which modern junior high school buildings have — such as, for example, the Elliott Junior High School building reserved for whites with a lot of unused space going to waste.

The colored children have to shuttle back and forth every day between the Browne Junior High School and the other two schools, a distance of 9 or 15 blocks according to which school the colored children are sent to from Browne.

Part of the day's instruction is at Browne; part at Blow or Webb. The children traveling from one school to the other are unsupervised, are not guarded from traffic hazards, are out in the weather. It would not happen to white children.

Whites Have More Space

The white schools have twenty-seven per cent more space than pupils; the colored schools have seven per cent more pupils than space. Elliott Junior High School (white) is right across the street from Eastern Senior High School (white). Both are modern buildings. Neither has a capacity enrollment.

All the white junior high school students at Elliott could be transferred and accommodated in Eastern, and still leave Eastern with empty rooms.

Elliott could then be turned over to the colored students, over-flow from Browne, and all the colored junior high school students in the Northeast could be accommodated full time in modern junior high school buildings.

But the Board of Education is afraid to do the correct, straightforward and easy thing. The white parents would protest and still leave Eastern with loudly. So it splits the colored students backward instead of forward.

The board tries to excuse itself on the ground that the bad arrangements is not the part-time between equal education is not satisfied by giving white junior high school students a good education today intended for junior high and promising colored junior high school students a good education tomorrow.

Board Violates Law

To my mind it is not the Board of Education but the which is violating the law. The United States Supreme Court says that the board knows its position is untenable; otherwise it would have attempted to have the Browne "striking parents" prosecuted long before now under the truancy laws. Sat 1-17-48

The Browne pupils are losing time in school, but it may be better to lose a few days education completely rather than submit to an inferior brand of education indefinitely, because unless a miracle happens these present junior high school children will be graduated before adequate new junior high school buildings are built.

The Browne parents may not be within the orders of the Board of Education, but to my mind they are safe under the Constitution as long as they send their children to Browne every school day, and the school authorities themselves order the children out to a brand of education which they would not offer to the white children, and which is flagrantly inferior and discriminatory.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS SUED FOR INFERIOR FACILITIES

The Light — House Informer
Sun 2-1-48

WASHINGTON, D. C. — (NNPA — Damages of $110,000 are sought from local school officials in a suit filed in the District Court last Wednesday on the ground that they afforded colored Junior high school pupils inferior educational facilities. Thurs 1-29-48

The suit was brought by two parents and two junior high school students. The plaintiffs are Judine Consuelo Bishop, a Browne Junior High School pupil; Barbara Jean Arnold, a pupil enrolled in the same school; Gardner L. Bishop, Judine's father, and Mrs. Edith H. Arnold, mother of Barbara.

Named as individuals defendants are members of the Board of Education and Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning. The members of the school board are Mrs. Marian Wade Doyle, Robert A Mauer, Mrs. Lenore W. Smith, Jno. H. Wilson, C. Melvin Sharpe, Jas. A. Cannon, Adelbert W. Lee, Mrs. Velma G. Williams and Geo. E. C Hayes. Wilson, Mrs. Williams and Hayes are colored.

INFERIORITIES HIT

The suit alleges that the defendants have "wilfullly and maliciously" alloted "marked inferior" facilities including buildings and equipment,' to the colored division of the local school system and are, as a result, depriving colored pupils of substantially equal educational opportunity, solely because of race, compared to the facilities afforded white pupils.

Declaring that there are surplus facilities in the white school divisions--buildings not used to capacity and standing idle-the complaint states there are more pupils enrolled in the Browne Junior High School then there are buildings, equipment and facilities to accommodate them.

The plaintiffs also state that the defendants have refused to transfer surplus buildings, equipment and facilities fom the white to the colored school divisions. Sun 2-1-48

INJURIES CLAIMED

On last November, the plaintiffs charge, the defendants further curtailed educational opportunities of colored pupils and injured their mental and physical health by barring them from the Browne Junior High School part of the school day an ordering them sent, through the streets in all kinds of weather and subjected to traffic hazards, to the old, outmoded Blow and Webb elementary school buildings.

The complaint adds that these latter two buildings are wholly unsuited for the instruction of junior high school pupils.

The defendants, the plaintiffs assert, are still enforcing their order and compelling colored pupils, including Judine and Barbara, to be locked out of Browne Junior High School and affording them educational opportunities inferior to those afforded white pupils.

Parents Urged To Continue Strike Against School Seconds

Daily Herald
Florida Sta.

WASHINGTON — (ANP) — Parents sponsoring the student strike against Browne Junior High School and its two annexes were urged here last week to continue their protest against "hand-me-down" school buildings for Negro students. The exortation was made by Dr. George Davis to more than 50 parents meeting at Jones Memorial Church. 12-24-47 Daily Worker

Dr. Davis denounced the schools as being "inadequate, discriminatory and a factor in the inferior caliber of Negro education as compared with white." The strike has been going on since Dec. 3.

Meanwhile, the National Negro Council, headed by Edgar G. Brown, met with about 75 persons at Metropolitan Baptist Church, and adopted a resolution calling upon Negro parents in Washington to accompany their children to school for a "first-hand look-see at the inequalities of the old white hand-me-down Negro school buildings." Mr. Brown told the group that a volunteer picket line would be ready to form lines around the schools. He also said that a million dollar fund was to be raised to buy radio time for a campaign for equal rights. Gainesville, Ga

However, Bernarr A. Simmons, of the Browne PTA steering committee, announced that Browne had "no sanction from the PTA whatever," and that parents disowned his meeting and proposals 12-27-47

Negro Employed To Teach in White Maysville School

The Black Dispatch
Oklahoma City

White Principal Shocked On Meeting Train

PAULS VALLEY. — The principal of the Maysville (all white) school is minus a music instructor, although he talked over long distance with the very competent young lady in Peoria, Ill., and arranged for her transportation to and from that [illegible] climate.

Okla.
Sept. 9-11-48

The music teacher arrived on time, when the Santa Fe train arrived, but the all-white principal from an all-white town was shocked off his feet to discover himself looking into the face of a pretty Negro girl who did not know about separate schools in Oklahoma and all of the statutory fines one is supposed to have upon one's head if he violates the dual educational system of Oklahoma.

The astonished principal, who assumed he was meeting a pure Nordic on the depot platform, immediately arranged for transportation back to Peoria, and placed the young woman in the hands of Mrs. B. M. Elsberry, principal of the Pauls Valley separate school, who spared no pains in making it pleasant for the young woman between trains.

The young woman, Miss Alice Jones, of Peoria, recently graduated from Lincoln university, Jefferson City, Mo., majoring in music. She left Thursday of last week for her home. Her application had been sent to the department of education at the state capitol and the error occurred there, through the recommendation made to the Maysville school principal.

Ho! Haw! That's the nearest a Negro teacher has come to breaking into an instructional position in a white classroom in Oklahoma.

We presume the Maysville principal feels duly humiliated. It's enough to almost make him lose his job.

14k 1948

Discrimination (South Carolina)

Suit Asks Busses For Negro Pupils

Columbia Record - Columbia, S. C.

Discrimination Charged In Federal Action; Adequate Transportation Is Demanded

Wed. 3-17-48

Charging violation of the 14th Amendment of the United States Constitution, a suit was filed in the Eastern district of United States court today, seeking to compel free school bus transportation for Negro pupils of the public schools in this state.

The suit was brought by James Pearson, a sophomore pupil at the Scott's Branch high school, Clarendon county, through his father, Levi Pearson, with Thurgood Marshall, counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, as one of the attorneys. Other lawyers associated in the case are Edward R. Dudley of New York, and Harold D. Boulware of Columbia.

Wed. 3-17-48

The complaint, eight pages long, declares that the present system of providing free bus transportation only to white pupils discriminates against Negro pupils, and names as defendants the Clarendon county board of education; L. B. McCord, county superintendent of education; the board of education of school district No. 26 of Clarendon county; and Jesse T. Anderson, superintendent of education for the state of count of their race and color."

Injunction Asked

The complaint asks a permanent injunction from making "a distinction on account of race or color in providing, establishing or maintaining adequate free bus transportation for white school children while failing or refusing to provide adequate free bus transportation for Negro children."

Wed. 3-17-48

"Defendants over a long period of years have consistently pursued and maintained . . . the policy of providing free bus transportation for white school children . . ." the complaint charged, "and are failing and refusing to provide similar free bus transportation for Negro pupils throughout the various sections of Clarendon county, South Carolina. Such discrimination is being practiced against the plaintiff and other Negro children similarly situated, solely on account of their race and color."

Wed. 3-17-48

Young Pearson lives about nine miles from the school he attends, the complaint continued. Although his home is near a public highway over which one of the school buses operates, he is not furnished with transportation to and from school.

The complaint states in part, "The defendants acting as agents and agencies of the State of South Carolina have provided and maintained, and still provide and maintain busses for the free transportation of white pupils to and from the public schools of Clarendon county, South Carolina, and fail and refuse to provide free transportation for plaintiff and other Negro school children similarly situated.

14k 1948

Discrimination (Texas)

Negro Students Denied Opportunity

Daily Worker
New York
Dallas, Tex.

14K

Editor, Daily Worker:

I am a Negro high school student of 17, and would like to discuss the educational problem of my people. If the majority of the student body at the Booker T. Washington High School which I attend were asked, what do you wish to become, they would not be able to give an answer. The curriculum is so narrow and limited that there are no trades and professions to choose from. There isn't any doubt that Negro students would participate in such courses if they were offered, if view of the splendid job they have done with the inferior and inadequate facilities. wed.

Why shouldn't we be offered the same courses as the whites? Why shouldn't the Negro high schools have an R.O.T.C.? Why shouldn't we have a chance to study some other trade beside shoe repairing and carpentry.

We can't correct the other nations when we are wrong ourselves. We don't practice what we preach. 4-21-48

STUDENT

TEXAS HIGH SCHOOL CASE SET FOR JULY 1

Daily Worker

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 29 —At a pre-trial conference here Mar. 22, the Judge of the United States District Court for the Western District of Texas set July 1 as the date for hearing the case against the Hearne Independent School District in Texas. In this case, Thurgood Marshall and W. J. Durham, NAACP lawyers, are arguing, on behalf of Mr. C. G. Jennings and his two daughters, that Hearne's Negro high school is inadequate, unsanitary and inferior.

Hearing Bares Sham Justice in 'Separate but Equal' Principle

RICHMOND, Va.—Federal Judge Sterling Hutcheson in District Court here rendered an opinion finding that racial "discrimination" is evident in three more Virginia counties. This was the second time within a week that Judge Hutcheson ruled that discrimination against Negro teachers and students must cease.

In four counties Negro teachers and students brought suits against the counties for discriminating in salaries, school facilities and bus transportation. The counties are: Surrey, Chesterfield, Gloucester and King George.

The court's finding revealed a much lower standard in salaries. In Chesterfield County, white male principals receive $3,625 while Negro male principals receive $2,300. White female principals get $2,413 while female Negro principals get only $1,829. The same disparity exists for teachers, although a greater number of Negro teachers held college degrees than white.

IN THESE COUNTIES besides the salary differential the court found great discrimination in facilities, books, library, buses, etc., and declared:

"It follows that when a state, as has Virginia, provides at public expense free educational opportunities for its children, those provided for members of one race must be substantially the same type as those provided for members of another race. . . .

"The scope of this opinion is limited by the authority of the court to find from the evidence and legal principles applicable whether unlawful discrimination exists and whether the plaintiffs are entitled to injunctions against its continuance."

In his judgment in Surry County case, Judge Hutcheson ordered the school board there to report to the court by Sept. 15 on the progress it had made in equalizing educational opportunities.

Attorneys for the Negro teachers and school children indicated that they would lose no time in submitting proposed orders to Judge Hutcheson to act on his findings of discrimination in the educational systems of the counties.

★

ATTORNEY MARTIN A. MARTIN said the plaintiffs were anxious to have the school boards of the counties affected equalize educational facilities and teachers' salaries as soon as possible. He said the plaintiffs also would ask for injunctions forbidding the continuation of discrimination in these counties.

Mr. Martin said he hoped it would be unnecessary to bring suits against other Virginia counties where Negro leaders have complained of discrimination in public education. It is generally understood that several such suits are in preparation and that they might be brought to trial if the conditions complained of do not improve.

The Richmond Times-Dispatch reluctantly called for local action by counties. It raised the bogey of "federal interference" and eventual abolition of the vicious dual school system which is costly and denied adequate education not only to the Negro children but to whites, too. This is what the Times-Dispatch says:

"It has been evident for some time that unless facilities are provided, the federal courts may refuse to permit continuance of the dual system of schools. Either schools for the two races will be made substantially equal, or the state may be ordered by the federal courts to operate a single system, and to admit all children, irrespective of race. The hand-writing on the wall seems plain, in the light of Judge Hutcheson's decision. We must ac accordingly."

THIS DECISION as well as the challenge of the whole vicious system of segregation and Jimcrow comes at a time of intensified political activity of Negro citizens, who comprise one-third of the population of Virginia. In many municipal elections Negro candidates are running for office. And progressive whites joined with Negroes in backing five bills introduced by a labor member of the recent session of the Virginia Legislature to abolish segregation on public transportation and public assemblies.

Although the Byrd machine majority killed these measures in committee, the support showed at public hearings amazed the powers that be and it is expected that the fight will continue until won. Yes the hand-writing is on the wall! Progressives are agreeing that the fight can be won and they are uniting to make this a year-round fight to guarantee its success.

Bond Issue Balloting Is Failure

Committee Has No Comment But Court Action Certain

NORFOLK — Although no official announcement has been made, and members of the joint citizens committee who have been working to secure improved conditions in the county's colored schools were non-committal, a court suit looking toward equalization of the county's school facilities appeared imminent this week following the failure of Princess Anne county voters on Tuesday to approve a $250,000 bond issue to build a new colored county high school.

Princess Anne county voters turned down the $250,000 bond issue by a 331 to 359 vote but at the same time voted by substantial majorities for extensive improvements to three white schools in two magisterial districts.

Only 695 of the county's more than 3,000 qualified voters went to the polls in Tuesday's balloting. This figure compared with 604 who participated in a referendum last December 16 in which only the $250,000 bond issue for the colored high school was at stake.

The referendum on Tuesday assured the issuance of a bond issue of $325,000 to finance additions and improvements to the Bayside Elementary School and the Kempsville High School, both white, the vote being 182 for, and 113 against.

CREEDS SCHOOL TO BE ENLARGED

It also set the stage for an additional $100,000 bond issue for enlargement of the Creeds School in the Pungo District also white. The vote in this case was 121 to 52.

Queried on Wednesday as to possible future action by the joint citizens committee following the failure of the bond issue referendum affecting the colored high school, W. Francis Taylor, of Virginia Beach, chairman of the committee, would only say "no comment."

Officials and members of the three organizations represented on the joint citizens committee were likewise non-committal, but the Journal and Guide learned on good authority that the next step by the committee will be the filing of a suit.

Organization represented on the citizens committee include, the Princess Anne County Civic League, county chapter of the NAACP, and the Countywide Parent-Teacher Association.

THIRTEEN POLLING PLACES SET

Thirteen polling places were set up for the balloting on Tuesday at the following points: London Bridge, Cape Henry, Bayside, Kempsville, Glenrock, East Ocean View, Capps Shop, Creeds, Washwoods, Princess Anne Courthouse, Brook's Bridge, Sigma and Blackwater.

On a precinct basis, six of the voting communities favored the $250,000 bond issue, and six opposed it. Washwoods, which voted five to nothing against the issue last December, on Tuesday failed to register a single vote.

Voting was rather desultory throughout the day. A checkup by a Guide reporter at the London Bridge precinct in the Lynnhaven District at four p. m. revealed that only four colored voters had cast ballots up to that time. There are 53 qualified colored voters in the district.

A similar situation was found to exist at Princess Anne Courthouse 30 minutes later, although figures on the exact number of colored qualified voters in that district were not immediately available.

SUPERINTENDENT COX COMMENTS

Queried about the failure of the colored school bond issue Tuesday night County School Superintendent F. W. Cox was quoted as saying: "As for the proposed Negro high school, the electorate has decided that issue for the time being."

Precinct returns, listing first the votes for the $250,000 bond issue, and those against in parenthesis, follow:

Bayside, 89 (24); Blackwater, 17 (8); Brocks Bridge, 1 (14); Cape Henry, 21 (2); Capps Shop, 14 (79); Creeds, 34 (47); Princess Anne Courthouse, 16 (34); East Ocean View, 39 (10); Glenrock, 12 (7); Kempsville, 25 (91); London Bridge, 60 (23); and Sigma, 3 (20).

AT ISSUE FOR SEVERAL YEARS

The Princess Anne county colored school situation has been the subject of considerable agitation for several years. In 1946, following an expose of the deplorable conditions existing in the county's colored schools by the Journal and Guide, a special survey was conducted by the State Board of Education at the behest of the school board to study the elementary and high school needs of the Negro people.

At that time, the commission recommended that a new high school be built, to meet standard requirements of state education, as the first step in a long-range program that would include three consolidated elementary schools.

The survey recommended haste, stating that "the need for adequate school buildings for the Negroes of Princess Anne county is so great that school officials should proceed as rapidly as possible to construct the buildings suggested in this report."

The county supervisors, at the request of the school board and Superintendent Cox, at their July, 1947, meeting sent a resolution to Judge Kellam asking for a special referendum, which subsequently was set for December 16, 1947.

LEGAL ACTION HINTED

Agitation continued for better school facilities and colored organizations stated subsequently that legal action might be taken to insure better schooling for their children.

The county school board early this year, at the suggestion of the County Board of Supervisors, made application to the State Literary fund for a loan of $80,000 to add four classrooms and extra lavatory facilities to the existing Princess Anne Training School, the only Negro high school in the county. At that time, money was not available in the fund.

Schools Head Asks Negroes To Cooperate

Richmond, Va., Sept. 18 (AP).—

State Superintendent of Public Instruction G. Tyler Miller said today that "the need for adequate school buildings for the Negroes of Princess Anne county is so great that school officials should proceed as rapidly as possible to construct the buildings suggested in this report."

The county supervisors, at the request of the school board and Superintendent Cox, at their July, 1947, meeting sent a resolution to Judge Kellam asking for a special referendum, which subsequently was set for December 16, 1947.

LEGAL ACTION HINTED

Agitation continued for better school facilities and colored organizations stated subsequently that legal action might be taken to insure better schooling for their children.

The county school board early this year, at the suggestion of the County Board of Supervisors, made application to the State Literary fund for a loan of $80,000 to add four classrooms and extra lavatory facilities to the existing Princess Anne Training School, the only Negro high school in the county. At that time, money was not available in the fund.

And on the matter of buildings in a number of Negro areas to speed school and other school plant facilities improvements for pupils of which he called admittedly impor-

—Miller said the gap between financial support of Negro and white education had been narrowed considerably in the past. He said it was reasonable aavilable, it is evident that the salaries of Negro and local and State school authorities teachers would be equalized are willing and anxious to im-instead of court injunction as a means of solving the equalization problem.

In a 2000-word statement on the to believe school prove school plants throughout the equalization matter—although completely by

State for both white and Negro pupils.

Miller said the recent emphasis in the equalization matter had been placed mostly on the physical facilities. He added, however, that those qualified to evaluate an education program generally conceded that the quality of the program rested to a major degree upon the teacher.

"It would appear, therefore," he said, "that those who are properly concerned with equality of educational opportunities for all children, both white and Negro, should place the emphasis more on the instructional program and on well-trained teachers, financially secure in their positions, than upon the buildings and other psysical facilities . . ."

Attorney's Plea Viewed As 'Illegal'

Martin Assails 'Demoting' Move

By BILL FOSTER

Negro students who yesterday refused to register in an "inadequately equipped" King George Training School today were denied admittance to the nearby white high school.

T. Benton Gayle, superintendent of King George County schools, branded as "unreasonable" and "illegal" the request of Negro Attorney Martin A. Martin that the Negro students be enrolled.

White and Negro onlookers outside the King George High School (white) awaited the outcome of Gayle's and Martin's conversation quietly.

There were no demonstrations against the 12 Negro students, who accepted Gayle's refusal and returned immediately to the Negro training school to enroll there.

'DELIBERATE REPRISAL'

Prior to the visit to the white high school, Martin, who represents 30 of the Negro students, described as "a deliberate reprisal" the action of King George school officials in "demoting" the principal and the agriculture teacher at the Negro school.

William L. Smith, Jr., principal of the white high school, was appointed supervisory principal of both schools. The move placed a new superior over E. B. Webb, the Negro principal who formerly supervised the training school and was answerable only to Gayle.

In a similar move, G. T. Saunders, agriculture teacher at the Negro school, was made assistant to Frank Coleman, agriculture teacher at the white school.

(Pictures on Page 24)

Neither change affected the salaries of the Negroes involved.

Gayle described the move as "a better administrative setup."

But Martin said the action was taken "in an effort to intimidate the Negro citizens in their efforts to obtain equal school facilities."

The King George School Board has been perpetually enjoined by the Federal District Court in Richmond from discriminating against Negro students in the matter of equal school facilities.

Yesterday, a Negro inspecting party visited the training school and described recent improvements there as "wholly inadequate." Asked to comment on this reaction, Gayle declared late yesterday:

"I expected that—and I agree with them." He declared, however, that:

"We've done all we could in the short time we had."

TO FILE MOTION

Today, Gayle demanded of Martin in the superintendent's office:

"Do you realize that you are asking me to violate the oath of my office by asking me to enroll Negro students here in violation of the Constitution and laws of Virginia?"

Martin responded that Gayle's first duty is to the Constitution of the United States, which guarantees that no one shall be discriminated against by reason of race or color.

Martin said he would file a motion in District Court "within the next few days" asking that the King George School Board be cited for contempt of allegedly refusing to comply with the court order for equal facilities.

Tuck Backs Refusal To Allow Negroes In Va. White Schools

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 10—(UP)—Gov. William M. Tuck today backed up school officials of two Virginia counties for their refusal to permit Negroes to register at high schools for whites.

"The advocates of the so-called 'civil rights' program sponsored by President Truman will not force upon the people of Virginia this curse of non-segregation in our schools," Tuck said.

"Segregation of the races in the public schools is called for in the fundamental law," he added. "It has been observed throughout the history of the commonwealth and will continue to be observed."

...ents. Virginia farm land, in other words, ...aid only 60 per cent of the average tax of ...ke property in the United States.

The nominal amount of tax, you may answer, often is deceptive because it may disregard the assessment and the levies on ...ther property. What, you demand, is the ...mount of tax Virginia farm land pays in ...erms of true value. "Give me," you say, ...the rate of taxation in the average Virginia ...ounty on each $100 of the actual value of ...arm land—not on the basis of high or low ...ssessment or of real estate taxes offset ...y high taxes on other things." You repeat: ...What is the tax rate on each $100 of the ...rue value of Virginia farm land?"

It is 40 cents.

What is the average for the United States? ...t is 90 cents—or two and a quarter times ...what it is in Virginia. These figures are for ...946, but no material change is believed to ...ave occurred nationally or in Virginia since ...hat year.

That Virginia figure of 40 cents—44 per ...ent of the national rate—will make you ...ause for a moment. but you come back ...quickly: "Ah," you say, "you are talking ...about rich agricultural States; give me some ...figures about the actual tax rate for $100 of ...true value in States comparable to Virginia—what is it in North Carolina?"

It is 55 cents.

What is it in South Carolina?

It is 48 cents.

In Georgia, what?

The rate is 67 cents.

Then give me the true rate in the State that has the largest percentage of farm population in the South: What is the rate in Mississippi?

Mississippi farm land pays 97 cents on each $100 of true value, against Virginia's 40 cents.

We need not call the roll of the States. The startling fact set forth in the report on farm real estate taxes in 1946 by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics is this: ONLY TWO STATES IN THE UNION (DELAWARE AND WEST VIRGINIA) HAVE A LOWER TAX ON THE TRUE VALUE OF FARM REAL ESTATE THAN VIRGINIA HAS.

A FEW OF THE FIGURES

...acre of Virginia farm ...rk you, because the seg... to the Constitution for... of any sort on real es...

...e average acre of farm ...in taxes for all purposes ...ecord, 1946? It was 28 ...verage for farm land ...ited States? Forty-six

Should we not ponder those figures a while before we hurry to adopt a new State tax for school buildings?

TWO QUESTIONS MUST BE ASKED

...cial ability of the State ...ay: First, are the coun... ...dy paying such heavy ...be burdened unreason... ...pay interest and amor... ...nds? Second, can the ...nce school construction ...re of a load on those ...ady are carrying their ...e of State government? ...ated, we think, that the ...of having the taxpayers ...r city merely pay the ...unt of money through ...her. If that were the ...simply would be that of ...nful process of extract... ...m the same man. This ...t the fact. Part of the ...e Commonwealth pro... ...ol building has its origin ...to keep taxes on farm ...possible.

...e taxes? To what ex... ...incipal property in the ...cality, being taxed for... ...e average Virginia city, ...Virginia towns, real es... ...gh as they should be in ... of the locality. Both ...utely, urban real estate ...of the burden.

...l estate in the counties ...examine

CAN COUNTIES AFFORD NEW SCHOOLS?

On the same day that Negro leaders refused to accept the high school facilities offered their race in King George County, the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia affirmed, five to two, that the fiscal officers of the State cannot replenish the depleted literary fund by transferring to it any part of the accumulated reserve of the teachers' retirement account. Today, while officials pondered their next step in providing funds for building better Negro schools, students of that race demanded admission to the white high schools of King George.

Being refused, they will come back to the Federal bar and probably will ask that the county authorities of King George be cited in contempt of court. Beyond that it is not necessary to look at the moment, because we cannot believe that the Negro leaders recklessly will overplay their hand or that the white leaders will refuse to look fact in the face. The Negroes may call in a Federal marshal to arrest school officials, but those same Negroes have to live in a community dominated by white persons. Legal advantage will not be pressed, we hope, to the impairment of everyday relations. Compromise and conciliation are dictated.

What of the fiscal problem of providing new school buildings? Complicated as it is by the decision of the Court of Appeals, how is that problem to be solved?

The answer given in many localities is, of course, call the General Assembly in extra session, pass a stiff sales tax and from it provide sufficient funds for the counties to erect new Negro schools without having to issue bonds. In other words, the demand is that Virginia reverse her previous policy under which the construction of school buildings has been a part of the locality's obligation. From the beginning of the public school system in Virginia, the Commonwealth has said to the locality, "You build and repair the schools; the State will help support them when you have constructed and have opened them."

In the abstract, this is not an immutable policy. Few policies ever are. As the revenues of the Commonwealth already have increased out of all proportion to the rise

...ents.

...What was the average ...throughout the United 14k 1948

Florida

Negro Gets Diploma The Hard Way

Atlanta Journal
The Constitution

Special to The Constitution.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., June 12—Ada Lou Johnson, 48-year-old Georgia Negro who said it "was no fun" taking washing and ironing 40 shirts a day after classes, Saturday was graduated from Gibbs High School here.

Ada Lou said she plans to go to college and then return to Georgia to establish an industrial school for her race. She finished the eighth grade in Georgia and taught for two years in Butts County before coming to St. Petersburg 24 years ago. She was born in Jackson, Ga.

6-13-48

Palmer Memorial Institute Begins 47th Year Sept. 17th

By J. H. CROCKETT Jr.

SEDALIA, N. C.—With an expected enrollment of over 200 students representing thirty states and three foreign countries, the Palmer Memorial Institute at Sedalia will officially open the 1948-49 school year on September 17th.

Opening was delayed two weeks because of the polio epidemic. New students were selected from over 500 applications for admission. This announcement comes from the founder and president, Dr. Charlotte Hawkins Brown, who is beginning her 48th year of service as an outstanding educator.

Among the staff of twenty members, the following have served the institution previously: Miss Cecie Jenkins, executive secretary; Donald J. Montague, administrative dean; Ira Hall, business manager; Dr. John Brice, director of religious education; Rufus Brent and Miss Lucille Platt, instructors in music; Mrs. Ruth C. Pride, dean of girls and librarian; Marshall Allen, dean of boys; and Mrs. Ollie Burnside, director of the boarding department.

OTHER STAFF MEMBERS

Other members of the staff include: Miss Dorothy Bradley, secretary to the president; Mrs. Mary J. Banks, junior high instructor; Max Dardeau, a native of Haiti and a graduate of the University of Haiti, Romance languages; Mrs. Natalie Vaughn, of New York University, English; Mrs. Marie Cooper, home economics, Miss Louise Gallego, physical education, and Miss Daisy Williams, mathematics, all of Hampton Institute; Mrs. Hazel McCree of Fisk University, director of Stone Hall; Mrs. Eugenia Jarrett of Texas, director of Eliot Hall, and Mrs. Josephine Rogers, of Greensboro, school nurse.

Palmer Memorial Institute is the only college preparatory school of its kind for American Negro youth and offers an unusual opportunity for cultural training. Graduates of the school are admitted to "A" grade colleges in all parts of the country.

Special emphasis is placed on music and art. In their third appearance, Sedalia Singers, composed entirely of Palmer students, recently delighted an audience of over 2,000 in Symphony Hall, Boston, Mass.

Under the leadership of the president, the Palmer Memorial Institute strives to send out students educationally efficient, religiously sincere, and culturally secure.

Students Ask D. C. Jim Crow End

ALLENTOWN, Pa.—(NNPA)—The senior class of Upper Freehold Township High School, which was on its annual tour of the nation's capital last Thursday, has asked President Truman to end discrimination in Washington hotels before undertaking the broader measures envisioned in his civil rights program.

The forty-five students met last Wednesday to discuss the trip and recalled that last year colored members of the senior class were forced to stay at an all-colored hotel while other pupils stopped at the Continental.

The message to Mr. Truman was proposed by Marvin Bressler, 17. The only colored student in the class this year stayed home, explaining that he had visited Washington before and did not want to make the trip.

Carver Hi Of Mount Olive, In Southern Ass'n

MOUNT OLIVE, N. C. — Carver High School at Mount Olive, N. C. has been approved for membership in the Southern Association of Colleges and secondary schools.

Dr. J. Henry Highsmith of the state department of education revealed the approval in a recent letter to Spencer E. Durante, principal of Carver High School. The approval was given at a recent meeting of the executive committee of the association, which met in Louisville, Ky.

The state committee of the association spent several days last April checking the school for the strict requirements of membership.

Carver is the only high school in the Wayne county system which holds membership in this association.

The rating given Carver is the result of the diligent and conscientious efforts of the faculty, students, and community, under the leadership of C. H. McLendon, former principal now principal of Washington High School, Raleigh, N. C.

Mr. Durante, in making the announcement to the faculty and student body, stressed the importance of the rating to the students and urged that it serve to inspire both faculty and student body to greater and more effective service to themselves and to their community.

The Princess Anne Dilemma --

AN INDICATION of the growing concern over the crisis in the inequities and inequalities in the public school system as conducted by the counties is the announcement that Judge KELLAM of the Princess Anne County Circuit Court is soon to order another—the third—bond issue election, in another attempt to have the voters adopt a $250,000 bond issue for the purpose of constructing a Negro high school.

This third effort is probably the result of a quiet educational campaign carried on in recent months by white and colored citizens of the county to get the residents—the white residents—of the county to see, in its proper light, the responsibility which rests upon the county to provide substantially adequate school facilities for all of its children. The Princess Anne case is perhaps unique in the state. While other counties have, to a fairly noticeable extent, built some school houses for Negroes, the sum total of school houses built by Princess Anne county for Negroes during the past 60 years would represent a surprisingly small cash outlay.

The structure that now serves as a high school building, and which is completely inadequate to meet the need, was procured as a federal PWA project. The contributions in land and equipment made to the school project by the Negro patrons were of such proportions as to make the county's cash outlay negligible. On the whole, the school, while doing the best job it can under the circumstances, is woefully below standard requirements.

Of the twelve elementary schools for Negroes in the county, ten are housed in properties owned by colored churches and fraternal lodges, if they have not been conveyed as gifts to the county. The county has built two one-room school houses at its own expense. The school houses provided at the total expense of colored citizens are: five two-room, four three-room, and one seven-room frame structures.

We can hardly believe that the majority of the voters in the county could know these facts and conscientiously vote against a bond issue to provide funds with which, in part, such inequities as we have cited may be removed.

NEGRO STUDENTS MIX WELL WITH WHITES IN CATHOLIC SCHOOLS

ST. LOUIS, Feb. — (NNPA) — The colored students admitted last fall to Catholic schools that formerly had only white pupils have mixed in easily with their new educational companions, it was learned last Thursday.

Archdiocesan officials say they have received not one report of friction among white and colored pupils since the new policy of Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter was put into effect.

The number of colored students in Catholic schools is still small, but those who have been admitted have participated actively in such activities as debating, the glee club and sports.

Two of the four colored students at McBride high school, have been out for the football and basketball teams. McBride is a diocesan school for boys, with an enrollment of 960.

Sister Clotilda, principal at Labourne high school, another diocesan school, said the two colored students have been "beautifully accepted." She stated there was never an indication of resentment on the part of the 650 white students.

At Rosati-Kain, a high school for girls, across from the St. Louis Cathedral, there are four colored students among the 750 pupils.

One of the nuns in charge of the school commented: "The girls just seem to take to them."

Gloria Waters, 13 years old, one of the colored students at Rosati-Kain, is enthusiastic about her new educational surroundings.

"The white girls have been just lovely," she said. "We study together, we eat together and we ride home on the bus together. "Some of them call me up at the St. Francis Girls' Home, where I live, just for a friendly talk."

Most of the other Catholic high schools, for both boys and girls, said they had no colored students, simply because no applications were received.

The Rev. James E. Hoflich, acting superintendent of parochial schools, said he was unable to determine the number of colored students among the 40,000 pupils in the 120 elementary schools in St. Louis and the country. Archbishop Ritter, he pointed out, took the position it was not necessary to distinguish between white and colored children in obtaining attendance records.

He was certain, however, that colored pupils had been admitted to a number of schools that formerly had only white pupils, including St. Edward's and St. Mathew's parishes from which came a large segment of the group that had violently opposed the archbishop's ruling last year.

County School Progress

Paul D. West, Superintendent of Education in Fulton County, has submitted his annual report to the Chairman of the Board of Education.

It is an excellent report. It reflects progress. It also reflects planning and thought, which are even more important.

Fulton County, in its vast area of 512 square miles outside the City of Atlanta (and one-government advocates might take warning), operates 91 school units. Of these eight are high schools for white students and one for Negro. In addition to the one Negro high school, other students will be cared for at the new vocational school operated jointly by the city and county. This is a vault forward, as prior to last year there was no county high school for Negroes.

At a time when the civil rights controversy stirs the South and the nation, these reports are interesting beyond their local meaning. We have promised that within our pattern we would provide equal facilities. We have not done so and therein lies the source of much of our present trouble.

For example, Fulton County transports much of its Negro school population in school busses. As far as we know there are no other school busses operating in the State for Negro children, a situation which—if not corrected—will be, and ought to be, a basis for one of those distasteful law suits. Fulton County has less Negro population than the city. It is sparsely settled save in the direction of Hapeville, Palmetto and Fairburn. The number of high schools is now on an approximate equitable basis. The report also indicates real progress in improving toilet and water system facilities, classrooms and so on, as well as recreational facilities.

The need for planning and thought is reflected in the fact that school attendance is up. By 1950, the Superintendent warns, there will be a need for new high schools, elementary schools, and additions to existing plants.

The County will do well, in its planning, to avoid the mistakes of the City, and thereby avoid racial frictions which the City will have. In Atlanta, as far as we can determine, not a single Negro school is to be provided with an auditorium or a gymnasium. This is, of course, planning for trouble, not to avoid it.

The County Board of Education can take pride in this annual report. That it will inspire them to plan for the future, according to law the Supreme Court decisions, one may assume with some assurance because of the fact they already seem to be nearing the goal of equal but separate facilities and services.

We congratulate the County.

High School Needed

The Constitution 6-16-48

Editor Constitution: I read with interest your column on Booker T. Washington High School. After thinking the matter through, I feel that your suggestion of another high school for Negro students is very timely and hope that other influential citizens of this area will take the matter into consideration and help solve this vital problem.

Atlanta, Ga. 6-17-48

Atlanta. MRS. LOUISE MADDOX.

New High School

Editor Constitution: I have read your column with much interest this morning on conditions at Washington High School. I think it is a fine article and do believe you are sincere in your desire that Negro children should have decent schools.

I, too, think there should be a high school on the Southside but I do not agree with you when you seem to carry the idea of placing schools in different sections to stop children whose parents are of different stations in life from intermingling.

I believe in democracy all the way. I cannot understand how you arrived at the idea that Pittsburg is the worst slum area, from the fact that these four young boys had gotten in a killing scrape and neither one of them came from Pittsburg. I live in Pittsburg and there is much to be done. I have three children, all who finished Washington High School, two are in college, and there are many more families like myself who live in Pittsburg and have a bathtub.

I trust you will write many more articles about the conditions of colored people.

CLYDE B. MITCHELL.

Atlanta.

Core of a Problem

The Constitution

Editor Constitution: As a former resident of the State of Georgia, please permit me to express my interest in the fine editorial which recently appeared under your byline, "Murder and a School." My sincere hope is that it will arouse in the minds of those who can do something about the deplorable conditions which have existed too long in Atlanta and elsewhere the firm intention of doing something about it.

Here in New Orleans the School Board had planned the construction of a 100-room (elementary) school for Negro children in an area so-called Less-chance. This school was to serve approximately 4,000 children, the school being under the supervision of one principal. It seems that the plan has been dropped because of several of the things mentioned in your editorial. Sun.

As to the crime rate, I believe you have presented intelligently the core of the problem. Those who are responsible for the law, its administration and enforcement seem to have forgotten that crime in any group affects the total picture.

More power to you, sir, and may those in authority do something to improve such conditions which are blemishes upon the record of Georgia.

ROBERT N. PERRY, JR.

New Orleans Council BSA. 6-28-48

Negro Hi School Strife Laid to Poor Facilities

The Constitution

Atlanta, Ga. Sun. 6-6-48

By KEELER McCARTNEY

At strife-ridden Booker T. Washington High School, students reporting daily armed with razors, knives and even pistols, will continue slaying and fighting unless Negro school facilities are expanded and more stern measures of discipline are put into effect.

This was the consensus Saturday among the Negro teachers at Washington and a cross-section of students. Lamar Weaver, a Negro reporter, asked the following question:

"What's wrong at the school?"

He got six answers in the following order:

1. A highly overcrowded campus. The Constitution

2. Failure of the school board to employ "practical" measures for maintaining discipline among students. Atlanta, Ga.

3. Infiltration of outsiders, who encourage delinquency, tardiness, fights among factions and the like.

4. Inadequate recreational facilities. Sun. 6-6-48

5. Lack of an auditorium in which the student body may assemble. (No Negro elementary school has one.)

6. No effective Parent-Teacher Association.

With a total enrollment of 3,500 ates outnumbered those finishing high school by 902.

With these overcrowded conditions, teachers maintain, it is impossible for the staffs to cope with campus problems. They also argue that present psychological methods of discipline employed by the school board are totally ineffective.

"Students know they will receive only verbal censure for their wrong doings," a teacher declared. "Therefore they don't care."

Outsiders crowd the campus and Washington Park in search of recreational facilities, which are not adequate for the school. At times recreational classes at Washington exceed 200 students, teachers said, but the supervisors have little equipment to offer.

Neither Washington or Howard has a gymnasium.

Juvenile authorities have been lackadaisical in enforcing punishment on youths, adopting the same "Nigger killing" attitude with which courts try adult offenders, the survey revealed. Teachers have adopted a "what's the use?" attitude in reporting violations.

Both students and teachers scored the lack of outside interest in promoting interest in the school. Only six parents attended the final PTA meeting of the year, they said. The Constitution

On the campus itself, they see no hopes of improvement.

School Board officials promised two years ago that all portable buildings would be done away with, teachers maintained. Since that time, however, more portables have been erected. In heavy rains the floors of some are flooded. Atlanta, Ga.

Recently, Board members have promised that the portables would be abandoned when the present annex to the school is completed. But from the greatly increasing influx of elementary graduates, teachers are doubtful if both the portables and the annex will suffice. Sun. 6-6-48

There was little comment on reported rival factions in the schools over the retirement of veteran C. L. Harper as principal of Washington and the appointment of C. N. Cornell as his successor. Some have argued that Harper was replaced because he did not align himself with the more outspoken followers of Negro rights.

However, the facts are that Harper was retired simply because he had reached the retirement age for teachers established by the state—a rule which applies to all teachers regardless of race.

Whatever the arguments on both sides, the teachers and serious thinking students are alarmed over the appearance daily on the campus of "gangs" from the slums of "Pittsburgh" and other such sections.

They are alarmed over the fights that develop over too many Negro boys and girls vieing for too few recreational facilities, with nerves on edge from overcrowded and poorly heated classrooms. They are alarmed over razors, knives and even pistols found in the pockets of students and over the fights, stabbings and the like which never are placed on police records.

They are duly alarmed. They have had promises and promises and promises. But now they have little hope.

Atlanta Public School officials deny reports of poor discipline, disorders, and gang activity at Booker T. Washington High School. They say the reports have been circulated maliciously by enemies of the present Principal C. N. Cornell and have been intensified since the slaying of two Negro youths, one a student at the school, May 28.

Ed S. Cook, President of the Board of Education, and Miss Ira Jarrell, School Superintendent, contend that Negro High School facilities have been and are being increased at a rapid pace. They contend the present board has done more for the Negro than any other board in history and are compiling a list of expenditures. The Constitution

The average daily attendance at Washington is 3,100, of which 500 pupils come from Fulton County. The opening of Carver Vocational High School this Fall is expected to cut attendance to about 2,000, which Cook and Miss Jarrell say is about in line with other high schools. Atlanta, Ga.

Plans for the $542,500 improvements at Washington do not contemplate enlargement of the present plant, but the elimination of portables by erection of permanent structures, they say. Miss Jarrell said a recent inspection of Washington by the State Department of Education (Bob Cousins made it) gave Washington one of the best ratings in the country. She said she was told the standard there was as high, if not higher, than any other high school in the South. The average student class load at Washington is 27 as against an average of more than 30 for white high schools. Washington High is fully accredited with an "A" rating. 6-6-48

Roy Davis, Assistant Superintendent in charge of High Schools, and others contend there is a studied effort to discredit the school, that "loafers" who are not students hang around and that police protection has been provided to keep them from invading the school grounds. All say anonymous telephone calls and letters reach them on the situation, and Davis says that checks on the "tips" fail to produce substantiation. Davis said he ordered a disgruntled prospective teacher from his office Wednesday after Davis had been threatened with adverse newspaper publicity and editorials.

Interest High In Demand For School Probe

Daily World

Atlanta, Ga.

Atlanta citizens Monday continued to urge a sweeping investigation of the conditions reported at Booker T. Washington High School and its environs which had been branded Sunday as a "seed-bed of juvenile and adult delinquency." Two.

Numerous telephone calls to the World and to persons who commented in Sunday's story on developments indicated a growing interest in an investigation of a prevailing situation. 6-1-48

Charges of gross professional neglect at the school followed in the wake of the fatal shooting of Junior Askins, 17, of 321 Payne Avenue and William Cornelius Butler, 14, of Drummond Street, S. W. allegedly at the hands of Elijah and Arthur Brown, brothers of 253 Merritts Avenue. The two were shot down about two blocks from the school, reportedly while leaving a Washington High outdoor activity.

Sweeping Investigation Of Ills Urged

Daily World

Citizens Speak Mind About Local Alleged Condition

Atlanta, Ga.

Sun. 5-31-48

BY MARION E. JACKSON

A full scale investigation of Booker T. Washington High School may come as an aftermath of the slaying of two youths Friday afternoon as T. M. Alexander, prominent insurance man, branded the institution a "seed-bed of juvenile and adult delinquency" in an open letter to Atlanta citizens.

Alexander in his letter demanded that the Board of Education appoint an interracial committee "to investigate the situation that prevails".

There was swift concurrence in Alexander's viewpoint. Mrs J. S. Flipper charged that the school is well as of in a "deplorable condition" and ad- the moral and educa- ded "I am sure that the situation tional qualification of the community has now reached a crisis. Some- to allow this situation to persist. thing must be done at once". The Parent-Teachers Association, under the chairmanship of Alexander stated: "It is a reflection on Citizens Committee need to com- impartial investigation of the con- tinuing incidents at the school as bine their efforts to delouse Washington High."

Atlanta, Ga.

Rev. M. L. King, pastor of the Ebenezer Baptist Church, declined to comment on the conditions at Washington High, but termed the shooting "a ridiculous thing" in blaming state of affairs at Washington High on" congestion and carelessness on the part of teachers".

Mrs. George D. Kelsey placed the blame solely on "congestion".

NEGLECT CHARGED 5-30-48

Charges of gross professional neglect came on the heels of the death of Junior Askins, 17, of 321 Paynes Avenue, and William Cornelius Butler, 14, of Drummond St., S. W. allegedly at the hands of Elijah and Arthur Brown, 253 Merritts Avenue

On the slaying of the two youths, Alexander charged: "It has reached the point that any innocent bystanders may be shot down in cold blood, stabbed or otherwise brutalized criminally by hoodlums who are either registered in school or have the run of the place, attending no classes and having no business on the premises of this tax-supported institution. City Police have to patrol the halls to keep order at times. Knives and guns are packed by would-be gangsters whom even the teachers fear."

DANGERS CLAIMED

Daily World

"The safety and security of our children is in constant jeopardy and it is hardly safe to walk the streets in the vicinity of the school".

Alexander furthur charges: "Morality is very lax and teachers are fearful of protesting vigorously regarding these conditions" 5-30-48

"It is also alleged that the accused assailant, whose shootings resulted in the fatal deaths of two youths, had had free excess to the school even though he was graduated over the protest of many teachers, and enjoyed the privilege of maintaining certain keys which made the building available to him. He is reported to have, prior to the shooting, been permitted to hang around unmolested. It is further alleged that the throwing of coke bottles has endangered both teachers and students."

Atlanta Daily World

"Morality is very lax and teachers are fearful of protesting vigorously regarding these conditions. The Board of Education should be urged to appoint an interracial committee to investigate the situation that prevails. The safety and securety of our children is at stake. Too much has been muffed and quieted by expediency and fear. We have failed to expose this situation to public scrunity Let us not wait until the ghost of our stupidity, indifference and lethargy rest on our own door steps. It is better for our children to be ignorant and alive than dead and educated. If you have never bowed over the cradle of your own child you would not appreciate this position. "Now is the hour"."

Ken. 5-24-48

Education To What End?

Daily World Atlanta, Ga.

The slaying of two school-aged lads by a rifle shot of a 21-year-old veteran and father here Friday afternoon was a shocking revelation to colored Atlantans that all is not well in our educational system upon which we lean so confidently for the training of our children. One of the slain lads was a student of the Booker T. Washington High schol, while the other was not a school boy. But to all intents and purposes, all of them might just as well belonged to the school, since it was their major hang-out rendezvous.

The shooting Friday is the symptom of a deep and far more grevious condition inherent in the organization and conduct of the Washington High school. To say that the principal is at fault is only partially true. To lay the blame on the shoulders of the Board of Education would be much nearer the truth. But no one group or set of factors can be charged with all of the responsibility. There is much that is wrong and wicked at the school and in truth, all of us are in part, to blame. Ken. 5-30-48

We have known for years that gangsters and rowdies not registered in the school, have enjoyed free and easy association and contacts with the students. We have known for years the frightful conditions of overcrowding and congestion. We have known for years that young boys and girls have been repeatedly reported for knife and gun-toting. And we have known for years of the shootings and cuttings which have been hidden and cloaked by persons in the school, lest the public become aroused. But despite our knowledge, we have said nothing, and done nothing about them. Consequently, the faculty members have resigned themselves to fate. Some of them have been assaulted by students. Others, have been bodily threatened and a few have been reported manhandled. Insolence is a common place by the students. All of which adds up to a state of utter confusion and contradictions in the educational process.

We have thus reached the point to call a halt to these conditions or demand that the school be closed up until they can educate the youth to some worthy end, rather than deceive themselves and ourselves that we are training the children for useful and purposeful lives. Now is the time for the citizens to speak. They can and will be heard if they speak with sincerity of purpose. They will not be remedied if the citizens sit back and resolve to allow the Board of Education to do it. It doesn't work like that. Negroes pay the taxes to support Washington High and the other schools for Negroes. It is their business, through the cooperation of the Board, to call attention to the failure and weaknesses of the school program, to teachers and to all other forces and factors which complete the process of making a worthwhile school. This is an indictment of one high school, but we can also point with painful truth, to other schools not measuring up to the standards of a well-ordered school system for Atlanta Negro children. 5-30-48

New High School

Editor Constitution: I have read your column with much interest this morning on conditions at Washington High School. I think it is a fine article and do believe you are sincere in your desire that Negro children should have decent schools. The Constitution

I, too, think there should be a high school on the Southside but I do not agree with you when you seem to carry the idea of placing schools in different sections to stop children whose parents are of different stations in life from intermingling. Atlanta, Ga.

I believe in democracy all the way. I cannot understand how you arrived at the idea that Pittsburg is the worst slum area, from the fact that these four young boys had gotten in a killing scrape and neither one of them came from Pittsburg. I live in Pittsburg and there is much to be done. I have three children, all who finished Washington High School, two are in college, and there are many more families like myself who live in Pittsburg and have a bathtub. Tue. 6-11-48

I trust you will write many more articles about the conditions of colored people.

CLYDE B. MITCHELL.

Atlanta.

Ground Broken For New High School

Augusta Chronicle 5-3-48

AUGUSTA, Ga.—Ground was broken for the new high school building of the Immaculate Conception school here Sunday afternoon, in connection with the annual May procession at the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

The Rev. Adolph Gall, S. M. A., pastor of the church, officiated at the ground-breaking ceremony, with the Rev. Joseph Wernert and Rev. Francis Hynes, assisting pastors, assisting. 5-4-48

The structure will be of brick, one story in height and modernistic in design, and will contain classrooms, and a chemical and biological laboratory. The new building will provide desk space for 180 students.

League Confers With Pres. Cook On Expulsions

Atlanta Daily World 5-11-48

According to reports from officials of the Atlanta Urban League on the matter of expelled students Washington high school because "non residence," Ed. S. Cook, President of the City Board of Education released the following information following a conference held after he met with a committee of Negro leaders:

"Mr. Cook met with board officials requesting full description of the process used in expelling students. He outlined the procedures reported to him as follows:

"1—Each student was required to fill a card giving name, parent's name, address, name and address of the person with whom the student was living.

"2—These cards were screened and about 600 were found where parents were residents of other places. Mon.-11-24-48

"3—After the second screening, approximately 400 were found which were definitely questionable. There were interviews and questions regarding the information given on the card before being put out of school.

"Approximately 80 persons have asked for appointments with school officials. These are ebing seen as rapidly as possible by a staff of four people in the Board's office.

"The Board does not wish to penalize any child who is entitled to enrollment in Atlanta schools. Mr. Cook says that if cases are known which appear to be a violation, he will appreciate having these brought to his personal attention.

"Tuition will not be accepted for students from other places, because of lack of sufficient space to care for students from Atlanta and Fulton County.

"In response to a question regarding complaints that some children were being forced to enroll at Carver—he replied that this could not be done."

The Negro leaders having called on the Board included Rev. M. L. King, Attorney S. S. Robinson, V. W. Hodges, and Mrs. Grace Towns Hamilton, the League said.

Kentucky

Central High Will Expand Trade Program

Courier-Journal, Louisville, Ky. 14K 1948 Thurs. 2-19-48

New School to Serve All of Negro Community

Negro students at the new Central High School will have more than double their present choice in vocational classes, school officials said yesterday.

Plans for the new school call for 12 special classrooms for trade instruction, compared with five in the present school.

Students will have special rooms for learning electrical, printing, sheetmetal and plumbing trades, and beauty culture, home nursing, and child care.

Capacity Set At 1,500.

The school will handle 1,500 students, compared with 1,200 in the old building at 806 W. Chestnut; its classrooms will number 50 instead of 40. It will be two or three stories high. Thurs. 2-19-48

It will be "something unique in this part of the country," said Principal Atwood S. Wilson. He said it will be the only Negro high school in Louisville's history planned from the start to serve the entire Negro community.

Specifications were distributed yesterday by Superintendent Omer Carmichael after months of work by teachers, parents, Wilson, and special advisers.

Depends On Costs.

Louisville, Ky.

Whether all the details of the plan will be included in the final building depends on building costs, Carmichael said. But he expects the school to be substantially as outlined in the specifications. The Courier-Journal

Carmichael said he hopes bids will be taken for the building "this time next year." He expects it to open in 1951. Its new site is between 11th, 12th, Chestnut and Esquire, half a block north of Broadway. Thurs.

Plans call for the following improvements: 2-19-48

An auditorium to seat 2,000 persons, large enough to house national conventions of Negro groups, orchestra concerts, and stage shows, and the school's graduations now held at Halleck Hall.

Gymnasiums Planned.

The Courier-Journal

Two gymnasiums for boys and one for girls. The boys' gyms could be combined by removing an electrically operated partition. This would seat 2,500 spectators.

A model child nursery. Here working parents could leave their children for a small fee. Girl students would learn proper methods of baby care from instructors. It would handle 15 to 20 children. Louisville, Ky.

Space will be provided in the architect's plan for a future swimming pool with access to both gym areas. Thurs. 2-19-48

May Be Converted.

There will be two elevators, one for freight and one for general use. The latter will be especially useful for crippled students, now that the Board of Education is furnishing them training through the 12th grade. Only Theodore Ahrens Trade High School now has an elevator.

Carmichael said the present school building "is too good to destroy." One possibility is that it may be converted into an elementary school. Thurs.

"I wish it were practical to develop the old site for a stadium, and leave the new site open for group playing programs," Carmichael said. 2-19-48

Will Have Listening Booths.

The library will have listening booths for recordings and transcriptions. There will be student alcoves off the main library; a locker room for visiting teams; community and faculty conference rooms; a sound-control room for the interclass communication system; considerable work space for teachers; a social room and council room for students, and shops for building construction, tailoring, clothing-cleaning, auto mechanics, foundry and molding, electrical, plumbing, and printing. The Courier-Journal

"Artistic use of color" on walls and furnishings is called for.

A main dining room of 5,200 square feet, with double counters, and teachers' cafeteria is specified. Louisville, Ky.

The specifications will be given to the architects, T. J. Noland and Sons, who are expected to work up a general plan for the building, with a very rough estimate of costs, Carmichael explained. Later more detailed planning and estimates will follow. Thurs 2-19-48

The Colored Basketball Tournament

The Courier-Journal

This is in response to a letter about the colored high school basketball tournament held in Louisville last month. It is easy to criticize, but not quite so easy to build up. This may be the case of the person who wrote the letter in question. I agree that there is plenty of room for improving this tournament, but I refuse to agree that the promotion of it "stunk." I regret that the writer from Hopkinsville was unable to take a defeat, but I predicted that Attucks would not repeat in 1948 as State champions. Although our team, Central, did not win the tournament in the finals between Hopkinsville and Lexington, it would be unfair to place the win or loss on the officials, and we are better sports than that. However, every player who obtained five fouls was sent from the game, including Hopkinsville's No. 50 and Lexington's No. 37, the two players in question. 4-14-48

You are correct regarding the scoring incident in the Madisonville-Lynch game, and I regret the game ended without the matter being straightened out. I am only giving you the facts in both cases you cited. The officiating should return to that of past State tournaments, but let's remember the coaches got for their teams what they voted for. Jeffersonville, Ind.

Louisville is not willing to accept any responsibility for the lodging or meals for the coaches or players, and many of us agree with you that better arrangements should have been made. If your board of control had appointed a local committee (men who know the local conditions) to aid in such matters, the whole matter of housing, etc., would have perhaps been satisfactory to all. Wed. EDWARD Q. ADAMS, SR.

Louisville, Ky. 4-14-48

A NEW HIGH SCHOOL-PROGRESS

Louisville Courier-Journal 4-14-48

We are at that season of the year when Louisville with the rest of the nation sends its children and younger people back to school and college. Usually folks in Louisville welcome the coming of each season with the changes its brings. This year however finds a rather large number of people not so joyful, some almost in despair.

About 30 years ago the "Central High School for Negroes" moved into its present quarters at 9th and Chestnut Street and not long after that people began to criticize the building and almost everything about it.

Parents of children of high school age and parents of potential high school students, backed by churches, civic organizations and leaders began to clamor for a new building and they have kept up the clamor for 30 years. Now a new building is in sight and eviction is imminent for approximately 1,000 people living in the area set apart for the new building. These people are sorrowing, "They have no place to go."

Many of the people slated to move are parents of high school pupils, many have lived in the neighborhood since they were born or can remember and some of them have lived in the same house. Many of these people are the same ones who wanted a new school for their children, a new school and better educational opportunities.

The prospect is not so bright for them now but neither is it as dark as it may seem. It is reasonably certain that the time given them to move will be extended unless some suitable provisions are made to house these people in the meantime. Many of them dread the thought of moving even to make way for progress because it is only natural. The place they have come to know as home is dear to them.

Some sacrifice must be made if the community is to show the progress it deserves and those people who are now fearful of losing their homes need not worry too much. Louisville is a big city and will find a way or make one before a 1,000 of its people, many of them substantial citizens, will be left homeless on the city streets.

High Schools In Louisiana Are Unaccredited

NEW ORLEANS — (ANP) — None of the 137 public and private Negro high schools in Louisiana are accredited by the Southern Association of Secondary schools, according to a report of the state department of education. Of the 466 white public and private high schools in the state, only four are not accredited by the association.

Of the Negro public high schools, 46 are approved and accredited by the state department; 35 are approved and not accredited and 37 are unapproved. None of the 19 private Negro high schools is accredited.

This disparity in the educational system of Louisiana is given as one factor in the generally low qualifications of Negro school teachers and the general low rating of the state of Louisiana in comparison to other states in educational facilities.

New Orleans, one of the first southern cities to equalize Negro and white teachers' salaries, has been one of the slowest to recognize Negroes in advisory capacities in the educational system. There is only one supervisor for 37 elementary schools and two visiting teachers.

DOUBLE SHIFT SET IN NEGRO SCHOOLS

Will Provide for 1200 New Prep Students

Negro public high schools will operate on double shifts next school term to provide education for all of the 1200 students promoted from elementary school, Supt. Lionel J. Bourgeois said Friday.

And some 55 more teachers will be hired by the school board for both elementary and high schools, he said.

Faced with a federal suit which charges it is not providing equal opportunity of education for Negroes, the school board is planning to take care of those for whom there are no facilities in this way until its building program begins.

If it has to, it will also put in double shifts in elementary schools, Bourgeois said. Last September, enrollment in the grammar schools increased by more than 20 per cent over the previous year, and it may well do it again this September, he explained.

But the board knows there will be at least 1200 going into high school for whom there are no facilities. As many schools will double-dip as necesary to take care of them, the superintendent said.

Class hours have not been set, but if, for instance, a building opens at 7 a. m., the first shift will end at noon, and the second shift take over from noon to 5 p. m.

Shreveport To Get New High School

SHREVEPORT, La. — (ANP) — A building permit for $1,064,065 high school for Negroes in Shreveport was issued this week by the Caddo Parish school board. The new building will have 135,000 square feet of floor space and accommodate 1,500 students.

Construction of the new building will begin in April, and it is expected to be ready for use next September. The present high school for Negroes, Central, will be remodeled and converted into a junior high school.

Race Gains, Whites Lose In School Enrollment

ST. LOUIS. — During the past five and one-half years while white high schools in St. Louis have lost 3,700 in attendance, Negro high schools have shown an increase of about 250 pupils, survey by the St. Louis Star-Times, disclosed last week.

Average daily attendance for the two Negro academic high schools, Vashon and Sumner, for the first semester this year was 3,643, as compared with 3,384 for the full year of 1942-1943, the newspaper's survey showed.

Superintendent of Instruction Philip J. Hickey said the rise in Negro high school enrollment is the natural reflection of the steady increase in enrollment in Negro elementary schools during the past ten years. Average daily attendance in Negro elementary schools has risen from 15,215 in 1937-1938 to 19,943 in the first semester of this year.

Jobs Available for Whites

Hickey attributed the decline in enrollment in white high schools, which dropped from 17,182 in 1942-1943 to 18,387 in the first semester this year, to availability of jobs for boys and girls of high school age.

A contributing factor, he said, is the decline in elementary enrollment about six or seven years ago is making itself felt in high schools today.

More Tech Students

Both the white and Negro technical high schools have gained in enrollment during the five and one-half year period. Booker T. Washington, the Negro technical school, has gained 513, with a nenrollment of 816 for the first semester this year as compared to 301 in 1942-1943.

Hadley, for whites, shows an increase of 99, from 1,766 in 1942-; to 1,865 in the first semester s year.

Louisiana

Mrs. Annabella Dutton Succeeds Mrs. Margaret Bowen At Gilbert

NEW ORLEANS — (ANP) — Mrs. Annabelle Taylor Dutton has been appointed principal of Gilbert Academy, Methodist high school, by the Methodist church board of education, to succeed Mrs. Margaret Davis Bowen, wife of the newly elected Bishop J. W. E. Bowen. This announcement was made by Bishop R. N. Brooks and Dr. M. S. Davage, board secretary, here last week. Mrs. Dutton received the appointment on the recommendation of Mrs. Bowen who has been the school's head since its beginning.

An alumnus of Dillard university, Mrs. Dutton has taught mathematics at Gilbert for the past six years. She formerly taught at Dudley High School, Greensboro, N. C. She is also a member of Iota Phi Lambda Sorority.

Her husband, Aaron C. Dutton, is also a teacher. Until this September, he was on the Gilbert faculty, but is now employed at Laundry school, New Orleans. A photographer of note, he formerly taught at Claflin College, Greensboro. The Duttons have three boys and a girl.

LOUISIANA HAS NO ACCREDITED HIGH SCHOOLS

NEW ORLEANS — (ANP) — None of the 137 public and private Negro high schools in Louisiana are accredited by the Southern Association of Secondary Schools, according to a report of the state department of education. Of the 466 white public and private high schools in the state, only four are not accredited by the association.

Of the Negro public high schools, 46 are approved and accredited by the state department; 35 are approved and not accredited and 37 are unapproved. None of the 19 private Negro high schools is accredited.

$12,000 GRANTED TO BUILD
Journal and Guide
HIGH SCHOOL
Norfolk, Va.
Sat. 1-24-48

Natchez, Miss.- (ANP)-Construction on the first and only high school for Negroes in Wilkinson county was made possible here last week when the state building commission set aside $12,000 to be used for the project. The school which will serve Negro students in Centerville and Wilkinson counties, will be built at an estimated cost of $15,000.

GULFPORT DEDICATES NEW HIGH SCHOOL.

The Clarion Ledger
1-24-48

GULFPORT, Miss. — (ANP) — A new high school building, to replace the building destroyed by fire shortly before the end of the school term last year, was dedicated here a few days ago. Prof. J. B. Greene has been principal of the school for the past seventeen years.

Dedicate New High School

The Jackson Advocate
1-24-48

GULFPORT, Miss. — (ANP) — A new Negro high school building, to replace the building destroyed by fire shortly before the end of the school term last year, was dedicated here a few days ago. During the dedication ceremony Prof. J. B. Greene was given much praise for his work as principal of the high school for the past 17 years.

Both the unusually large plot of ground and the buildings were made possible by the board of education of the city schools. As an evidence of satisfaction in what had been done, members of the board, together with the superintendent of education, were present for the dedication.

Several of the board members and the superintendent spoke briefly, following the principal address and praised highly the work being done by principal Greene and his teaching staff, most of whom hold college degrees. The school is fully accredited by the state department of education.

Disgusted With Prejudice In Their Country, Jersey Students Take Action

The Defender
Sat. 8-13-48

SOMERVILLE, N. J.—Tired of the old American practice of forcing prejudice down the throats of her young people, a group of white high school teachers here last week launched its own move to permanently erase all forms of racial and religious discrimination.

The group of eight students began their anti-prejudice assault by canvassing soda fountains and sweet shops on their attitude toward serving Negroes. They won a promise from the proprietor of one favorite teen-age resort that he would no longer discriminate against Negro youths.

The same group is planning to try to break down the tradition against Negro students attending local white dances. A Negro member of the group has promised to attempt to induce some of his friends to attend the next dance, while the other members are pledged to see that they are made welcome.

The eight students, a small part of a near nationwide revolt of students disgusted with so-called American democracy, have already enlisted wide community support behind their movement. At a mass meeting in the local high school Wednesday night, at which Catholic, Jewish and Protestant clergymen were present, they obtained 946 signatures of youths and adults to the "Somerset County Plan," after youthful speakers had told of various slights against minority groups.

Adults who attended the meeting voted to begin the formation of an Adult Council, to work with the students. The Ministerial Association and the Parent Teachers Association have both endorsed the anti-discrimination move.

School Boycott Asked of Capital Jim-Crow Trips

N.Y. Herald Tribune
N.Y.
Sat. 8-14-48

White Youth's Protest Over Segregation Brings N. J. Action, Plea to 3 States

Special to the Herald Tribune

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 13.—New Jersey school authorities will ask those of New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts to join in a boycott of the annual pilgrimages of high school seniors to Washington, unless the practice of segregation is discontinued in the capital.

This purpose was disclosed in an exchange of letters between Dr. Joseph L. Bustard, Assistant Commissioner of Education in charge of the division against discrimination, and Richard L. Van Nort, seventeen, a member of last spring's graduating class at the Haddonfield, N. J., High School.

Richard reported that he and most of the 192 members of his class tried to force the issue last spring in a petition to the principal, Thomas H. Skirn, but did not get his support. In Washington, he said, the five Negro members of the class were forced to use hotel and restaurant facilities apart from the rest of the class.

Youth Files Protest

After their return a protest was made to the Haddonfield Board of Education, then the youth made a trip to Newark to file a complaint with Dr. Bustard. The latter was away on vacation, so the graduate wrote a letter asking state action.

"We students complained against segregation," he wrote, "because we felt it was a violation of the principles of democracy as taught in our high school classrooms. We were applying the principles to a situation which arose around us."

In a letter made public today, Dr. Bustard replied:

"This division intends to recommend to the Assistant Commissioner of Education in charge of secondary schools, H. H. Ryan, that the practice of many New Jersey high schools of making annual trips to Washington be seriously studied in relation to the school year of 1948-1949. In addition, it is hoped that it will be possible to interest school authorities in New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut along the same lines.

Sat. 8-14-48

"I personally expect to recommend that if the pattern in Washington cannot be changed, that New Jersey high schools discontinue the practice of taking senior class trips to Washington. Perhaps, as time goes on, the Haddonfield incident will prove of great value in helping to change the traditional pattern.

Blames Southern Congressmen

"This pattern, as you know, is caused by the peculiar set-up in the City of Washington. Unfortunately, it seems that the pattern of the Southern States and the accepted one of the Southern members of Congress have to date been successful in maintaining Washington as a Jim Crow city."

A New York City delegation of school safety patrolmen, including four Negroes, refused in May to take part in a thirteen-state parade in Constitution Avenue, because the members objected to segregation in hotels and restaurants in the capital.

New Jersey's new constitution forbids segregation in public schools, but twenty districts have yet to complete plans for abolishing the practice.

14k 1943

South Carolina

Columbia Schools Honor Negro Educator

The Record

Three times in the past 34 years the Columbia school board has departed from its custom of naming Columbia's schools only for persons not living at the time.

Once was when Wardlaw Junior high school was named in honor of Dr. Patterson Wardlaw. Once when Dreher high school was named in honor of E. S. Dreher. Both were former Columbia educational leaders though both at the time had severed their active connection with the Columbia schools.

The third exception was made the other day when the board voted to name the new $450,000 high school for Negroes, now being constructed on the Barhamville road, Johnson high school in honor of C. A. Johnson, supervisor of Columbia Negro schools since 1930. 14K Sat. 3-27-48

In this case the honor is being paid Dr. Johnson, not only while he is still alive but also while he is still actively connected with the Columbia school system, to which he has devoted nearly 35 years of effective service. Columbia, S. C.

The exception in this case as in the other two is appropriately made. Dr. Johnson has made an important and significent contribution to the development of Columbia's Negro educational system. He has made an important and significent contribution to the development of Negro education in South Carolina. It is no accident that Columbia's Negro schools are among the best in the state and have been so for years. For Dr. Johnson believes that all races may advance only through the achievements of individuals who may become the leaders of their race. Sat. 3-27-48

And this preachment he has applied in his own life. He has himself been and still is an exceptional Columbia citizen, disregarding race. Columbia, S. C.

Minorities Surpass Whites Attending S.C. City Colleges

Afro-American Columbia, Md.

ORANGEBURG, S. C. (ANP) 4/4

In proportion to their numbers, more colored high school graduates of Orangeburg than whites attend college, a survey taken here revealed last week. 14K

Sat. 3-27-48

City Supt. of Schools E. W. Rushton made the announcement after the survey committee had completed its report. He explained that this was probably because two colored colleges are located here.

According to the survey, one out of two Orangeburg colored high school graduates go to college, but only one out of every three whites goes. The two colored colleges here are Claflin and State A. and M

Washington Hi Graduates 147 Boys Along With 207 Girls In Ellis Auditorium Sat. Night

The city's oldest and largest Negro secondary institution, Booker T. Washington High School, will present 354 graduating seniors tomorrow, (Saturday) night, at Ellis Auditorium.

One hundred and forty seven boys and 207 girls will be participants in the mammoth and unusually unique Commencement Program planned for the occasion. There will be 17 veterans of World War II among the graduates.

Tomorrow night's exercises will mark the 57th year of Commencement programs for the institution which is a direct continuation of old Kortrecht High School. The name was changed to Booker T. Washington High when the new building was occupied in 1926.

The present graduating class is one of the largest in the school's history, according to Prof. Blair T. Hunt, principal of the city's only Negro senior secondary school.

Throughout this week a full program of Commencement activities has been featured. Sunday afternoon, May 30, the Commencement sermon was delivered at Washington Auditorium by Rev. J. H. Pugh, pastor of Cain Creek Baptist Church before a packed audience. Monday afternoon the SenMEMsS,lhichlagk "Education Triumphant" was presented, under the direction of the Senior class advisors, Mrs. Carlotta Stewart, and Mr. James King. Tuesday marked the beginning of "Senior Privilege" Days. Wednesday, June 2, was Class Day, with a special program and playlet presented in the school chapel. Thursday was a holiday for the Seniors marked by an outing for the members of the Washington 1948 "ballet" cast. Friday members of the Senior class re-assembled for a final school rehearsal. Tomorrow morning they will rehearse at Ellis Auditorium the locale of their Commencement program.

The unique phase of the Washington Commencement will be the presentation of the school's daily departmental activities via a mammoth reproduction of specially selected pages of the Senior Annual for this year. The pages will carry pictures of sixteen phases of the student and teaching activities at Washington High. Eight student speakers (members of the graduating class) will describe the pictures and explain their significance to the audience.

Other features of the program include an instrumental duett, during which Wendell Whalum, son of the late H. D. Whalum, and Miss Ruby Woodruf, daughter of popular musician, Mrs. Georgia Woodruf, will play a rendition on the Auditorium's mammoth pipe organ and Baby Grand piano. The Senior Glee Club will render two numbers. The Washington band, will play an overture to start the program at 8 p. m. And the entire class of 354 voices will be presented in two choruses. Superintendent E. C. Ball, of the City Board of Education, will receive the class for the Board of Education.

High honor students of the class (those earning an average of 90 or above for four years in high school) include: William McCray, highest honor student, Ethel Lois Isabel, Alice Peoples, Carrie Watson, John Downs, Mary Reason, Lillian Ann Aldridge, Grace Currin, Faye Gentry, Theodore Jefferson, Elise Fields Helen Ann Hayes, Ferguson Tolbert, Ireaby Connally, Elma Annette Hubbard, James Edward Love Thomas Leonard Gibson (outstanding football player), Lois Belle English, Lois Foster, Lawrence Glover, and Donald Robinson.

General class officers are, Theodore Jefferson, president, Faye Gentry, secretary, Evelyn Posey, assistant secretary, and Clarence Walton, business manager.

Class colors are Pea Green and Pink. Class flower is the Pink Camelia. Class Motto is "We have climbed the foothill; now the mountain". Faculty advisors and sponsers include: Mrs. Carlotta M. Stewart, J. G. King, B. T. Jones, Miss H. R. Heard, William Lowe, Mrs L. S. Austin, Miss E. V. Johnson Mrs. M. E. Corpal, Miss R. A. Robinson and Prof. Blair T. Hunt, principal of the school.

The public is invited to be present for the Commencement program, which begin promptly at 8 p. m.

Memphis to Build $1000,000 Stadium for Negro Schools

MEMPHIS, — (ANP) — A $100,000 stadium and athletic field to be used by Negro high schools is being planned by the Memphis Board of Education. Plans for a 4,800 seat stadium are now being drawn by the city engineering department, Watkins Overton, president of the school board, announced this week.

Overton did not say when the new construction will be completed. It will supplement the field of Booker T. Washington high which is too small and getting old, the president said.

Other improvements slated for colored schools, announced by Overton include a $5,000 cafeteria for Hamilton high and lighting, heating, plumbing and floor improvements at Grant school.

Just Outside the Door . . .

By Charles DeVecchio

PUPILS DENIED ENTRY—Seven of the ten students denied admittance yesterday to the King George High School are pictured as they stood outside the entrance for the result of the conference which barred them. The superintendent said to admit them would violate the laws and constitution of Virginia.

White County Schools Reject Va. Race Pupils

(From Pittsburgh Courier Press Service)

KING GEORGE COUNTY, Va.—Authorities in two counties last week refused to register Negro pupils in white schools after having failed to meet court orders that facilities for Negroes and whites be equalized, and left the pupils' attorneys pondering the question of asking the Federal Court to cite county school officials for contempt of court in view of the latter's ruling last April.

The rejection of colored pupils, who appeared with NAACP attorneys at the white schools for registration, took place in King George and Gloucester Counties. On Monday school authorities in Arlington faced the same possibility, and although no report on action taken by Negroes in Chesterfield and Surrey Counties has been made at this writing, the court ruling also affected these school areas.

STATE CODE CITED

In King George County ten pupils accompanied to the white high school by their attorneys were courteously but firmly refused registration by County Superintendent T. Benton Gayle. Mr. Gayle pointed out that Virginia's segregation codes prohibited interracial school attendance and that it was his duty to decline to register the colored pupils.

Over in Gloucester County, NAACP attorneys who attempted to register twenty-five colored pupils in the white school met with the same result. Parents of colored children in Gloucester and King George counties are determined to force equalization between colored and white facilities.

These latter steps are the result of a suit prosecuted in Federal Court last year on grounds that Negro facilities were grossly inadequate. Federal District Judge Sterlig Hutcheson ordered the two county school boards to immediately equalize school facilities on the interpretation of Virginia segregation statutes meaning facilities must be "equal."

COMPLIANCE ATTEMPTED

The court order for "equalization" was handed down last April and King George County only last month began hurried attempts to comply with the court ruling. After inspection of county colored schools Martin A. Martin, Richmond attorney, advised county parents that no appreciable improvements had been made and that the only step left was to attempt enrolling their children in the white schools.

In a dramatic, but not hostile atmosphere, attorney, parents and children made the trip to the school. The children were forced to remain outside during the conference which resulted in their rejection. They then returned to the Negro school where further improvements are scheduled in conformity with the Federal Court order.

"POOREST" COUNTY

Mr. Martin has not decided what his next step will be although he suggested that he might ask the Federal Court to cite county school officials for contempt of court. School officials claimed that the county, one of the poorest in Virginia, had not had sufficient time to make all the changes necessary to equalize the facilities.

In Gloucester County, where conditions are described as even worse than in King George County, Oliver A. Hill, Richmond Negro councilman and Mr. Martin's law partner, met much the same resistance when he tried to enroll twenty-six Negro children.

Neither incident was marked by any threats of violence or open hostility. Large and curious crowds of Negroes and whites assembled to watch the proceedings but in both cases the matter was handled without friction.

Virginia Governor Says He's Shocked By "Impudence of Negroes" Pressing Equalization of Educational Rights

"Federal Civil Rights Program Is Not the Law of Virginia," Says Gov. Tuck

CHIEF EXECUTIVE SAYS NON-SEGREGATION IN SCHOOLS IS A "CURSE" NOT TO BE FORCED ON STATE

RICHMOND — (ANP) — Governor William M. Tuck issued a statement on the school situation Thursday night, deploring the action of "certain persons posing as leaders of the Negro race" who "have shocked many people in Virginia by advocating and urging the violation of the constitution of our commonwealth on the part of public school officials."

At the same time Tuck called for the "utmost calmness and tolerance" in facing the problem of equalizing public school facilities for whites and Negroes in Virginia.

The Governor said many white Virginians have been "shocked" by the "impudence of Negroes and leaders" who advocate violation of Virginia's racial segregation laws in its public school system.

Tuck's statement was issued as a result of the NAACP's campaign in the state to compel an end to the state's historical and well grounded custom of denying Negro children and Negro teachers equal school facilities and salaries enjoyed by white school children and white teachers. This discriminatory practice has been in vogue in Virginia cities and countries ever since the public school system was established.

The Governor issued his statement as Negro students in Gloucester and King George counties applied for admission to the white high schools of those counties. Both of the counties are under court orders to equalize school facilities for Negro and white school children, but the parents and children under advisement of their attorneys rejected as inferior the facilities afforded in the counties of their education."

To all his "shocked" white friends and supporters Tuck said segregation in schools "will continue to be observed" in accordance with the constitution of Virginia. He made no such assurance on the problem of equalizing the educational facilities for white and Negro school children in the state.

Tuck did say that "facilities are unequal in many instances and that localities "will be encouraged to correct these inequalities as rapidly as practicable." He added, however, that inequalities exist among white schools and that "there is no such thing as absolute equality in the schools."

"The advocates of the so-called 'civil rights' program sponsored by President Truman will not force on the people of Virginia this curse of non-segregation in our schools, which would be offensive to the sensibilities of the better elements of the people of both races. Virginians have not been accustomed to the type of colored leadership recently displayed and which has come to the surface. The hundreds of thousands of law-abiding and peace-loving Negroes of Virginia deserve better guidance from their own race and are capable of and I hope will provide it. Their friends in all races will be glad to help them in every proper way.

"I sincerely trust that all parties concerned will recognize their responsibilities as citizens. We must be tolerant and patient, both with our officials and with each other.

"The so-called federal civil rights program, above referred to calculated to stir up strife and misunderstanding, is not the law of Virginia."

Tuck has been a bitter foe of the federal civil rights program. The fact that he does not favor civil rights for Virginia Negroes and elementary justices was plainly evident by his refusal to speak in favor of the Murray civil rights bills introduced in the short session of the Virginia General assembly.

Pulaski School Equality Case Ends; Delay Decision

Regional Educational Center in Rural Area Basis for Discriminatory Pattern

RICHMOND — Is the regional school, once considered the salvation of education for Virginia rural areas, a hammer to nail down the lid on segregated and discriminatory education for colored?

This is the core of the legal action taken by citizens of Pulaski County in the name of students of high school age to secure equal educational opportunity in Pulaski County, according to J. Rupert Picott, executive secretary of the Virginia Teachers Association.

The VTA and the Virginia NAACP are co-operating closely with the citizens group and the lawyers, Hill, Martin, and Robinson, in suits on the dockets and pending to secure non-discriminatory educational facilities for colored children in Virginia.

Mr. Picott and W. Lester Banks, secretary of the State NAACP, attended the Pulaski two-day hearings which closed Thursday in United States District Court in Roanoke, Judge Alfred D. Barksdale of Lynchburg presiding.

Alton I. Cromwell, Pulaski County Commonwealth's attorney, and Roby Sutherland are representing the Pulaski school authorities. W. Simpson Tate of Washington is assisting the Richmond lawyers.

Travel 36 Miles

According to the contention of the citizens group, the regional setup at Christiansburg Industrial Institute, operated jointly by Pulaski and Montgomery Counties and Radford city, does not afford equal educational facilities for the colored students in Pulaski inasmuch as white pupils may attend three high schools in the county, including Pulaski High School. Colored pupils, they say, must travel as great as 36 miles, one way to Cambria each day.

Chief witnesses for the defense were G. Tyler Miller, superintendent of public instruction, and Dr. Fred M. Alexander, director of secondary education of the State Department of Education. Mr. Miller reviewed the history of the regional school plan and declared that in some instances educational opportunities offered colored students were broader than those provided white children.

He told of plans that have been prepared or were being developed in other Virginia localities to provide adequate educational programs through the regional school idea. He told further of the State appropriations of nearly $50,000 which have been earmarked for the Cambria institution. Defense counsel moved that Mr. Miller's testimony be striken from the record as irrevelent and Judge Barksdale took the motion under advisement for a later ruling.

Variance in Counties

Dr. Alexander, long a crusader for the regional school plan and the author of a work setting forth its advantages, said that the Christiansburg school rated above the average among Virginia county high schools.

John Banks, principal at Christainsburg, testified earlier that the curriculum at his school included one year in algebra, one course in geometry, but no foundation mathematics, no Latin, no Spanish, general art, diversified occupational training, vocational agriculture or bookkeeping. Typing and shorthand are available, along with choral work and band instruction, he said.

Decision Delayed

"This accent on the regional school as a method of circumventing the rapidly spreading fight for equal educational facilities and plants in Virginia counties is a new twist," said Mr. Picott following the hearing.

"Much of our thinking on the matter needs overhauling to weed out the extension of the discriminatory pattern and at the same time not kill the fruits which cooperation among school units can bring to the sorry spectacle of inferior education for Virginia's children."

Judge Barksdale will not give a ruling in the case until the first of the year.

10 King George Negro Pupils Barred From White School

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

King George, Va., Sept. 9.—An unsuccessful attempt to register 10 Negro pupils at the all-white King George County High School was made [illegible] morning in a dramatic but orderly incident.

While a tense crowd of about 100 whites and Negroes waited outside the school, white school officials met with Negro leaders and informed them that Negro students could not be registered because of Virginia's Constitution and State Code, requiring segregation.

Negro leaders countered that the United States Constitution specifies "equality," and that Federal Court orders on equal school facilities for Negroes must take supremacy over State laws.

As anticipated, the situation reached an impasse which will go

In King George County, which is also under Federal Court order to equalize Negro school facilities, Negro pupils in both counties were returning to classes today.

The same tactics were employed in Gloucester County, where the delegation of Negro parents and spokesmen arrived in automobiles, approached the school.

There they were met by T. Benton Gayle, superintendent of schools for King George and Staffords Counties, who demanded of the white school here—four miles from the King George Training School pending the attempt to register at the white school. There they were met by T. Benton Gayle, superintendent of schools for King George and Stafford Counties, who demanded of the men and children were Martin A. Martin, Richmond Negro attorney.

"What is the purpose of this visit?"

Most of the men were in work clothes, and some sat in parked cars. Several women held infants

Demand Equal Facilities

All looked on in silence as about 30 Negroes, accompanied by newsfor my clients, as ordered by the

"To get equal school facilities

The result there was almost

At Gloucester County, just north of Yorktown, Va., and about 60 miles southeast of here, Negro leaders today attempted a similar effort to enroll 26 students from the Gloucester County Training School at the white Botetourt High School at Gloucester.

Federal District Court on July 31," replied Martin.

"All of us are unanimously of the opinion that the King George Training School is not equal to the school here," declared Martin.

While the "prospective" Negro registrants, six boys and four girls, waited on the steps, Martin, accompanied by W. Lester Banks, executive secretary of the Virginia State Conference, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, went inside to talk with Gayle. William L. Smith jr., newly appointed supervising principal of the county schools, sat by.

Gayle sought to determine whether Martin had specifically directed all Negro pupils not to register at the King George Training School the previous day, when Negro leaders visited there. At that time, Martin termed the school, with about 380 pupils in grades 1 to 11, somewhat improved but still "grossly inadequate."

Martin replied he had only advised 30 parents, who were his clients, to take their children home and return the next day. Gayle then dropped this questioning which he later said was to determine if there was a cause for action against Martin.

"Are you familiar with the Constitution of Virginia, Section 140, which states that Negroes and whites shall be taught in separate schools?" "I am," replied Martin.

Two Constitutions Cited

Gayle asked a similar question about the Virginia Code, drawing a similar answer. "Do you realize you are asking me to violate the oath of my office to uphold the State Constitution and the State laws?" declared Gale.

"It appears to me that the laws of Virginia in this particular are contrary to the Constitution and laws of the United States," countered Martin.

"That is only your opinion," retorted Gayle, getting red in the face.

"It is your first move," said Martin, "to obey the Constitution of the United States, and secondly, the laws of Virginia."

After further inconclusive debate, Gayle said, "I expected you people to be reasonable on this. I don't think you have been reasonable. We did not receive the court order until August 5."

Martin replied that Federal District Court Judge Sterling Hutcheson had entered his decision in the case in April, and "You knew and I knew what the order was going to be . . . you should have prepared for it. . . . Neither you nor your attorney have gotten in touch with me since the trial."

Newsmen Jeered

"Well, we felt you were going to be reasonable about it," replied Gayle. "We've done everything we could in the short time." Gayle then announced that he was formally refusing to register the Negro pupils at the white school.

As reporters and photographers left the school with the Negro leaders, white persons in the crowd began to jeer the newsmen.

"Why pick on this county?" asked one woman, heatedly. "There are plenty of other counties where the niggers are much worse off—you outsiders are just stirring this up."

As reporters were getting into one car, a pleasant-looking white-haired old woman, stooped with age, who lives opposite the school, shielded her eyes from the sun and called out:

"We're just reaping from the Republican Party!"

Puzzled newsmen asked what she meant. "That old rascal Abe Lincoln is the cause of all this," she replied angrily. "He should have died before he was born! Him and his emancipation!"

After the Negro group returned to the King George Training School, Gayle arrived there and discussed with Principal E. B. Webb a new water pump and tank for the school, which Gayle said had been ordered.

In an effort to comply with the Federal equalization order, a number of additions have recently been made to the school plant, including, among other things, a commercial course plus some commercial equipment, a new outhouse, and some agriculture vocational equipment.

"We know facilities are not equal," said Gayles, "but we have made more progress—relatively—for Negro schools than for white schools since I came here 23 years ago. It's just that we had so far to come. The home economics and agricultural shop are just as good as they are at King George High."

Martin told reporters he did not know when his law firm will seek a motion to cite school officials for contempt of court, "but I can say we won't waste any time."

Earlier, Martin attacked another development on Wednesday in which Smith, the white high school principal, was named for the first time to be supervising principal of both the white and Negro schools. Gayle had announced this was done to accomplish "better administration and supervision."

Martin charged this was "a deliberate reprisal against teachers, pupils and parents, to try to intimidate them.

"This is flouting the court's authority," declared Martin, "and to my mind, that alone is contempt of court."

Va. Toll Totals 313, Highest Since 1945

Virginia's infantile paralysis count stood at 313 yesterday, the highest since the 1945 total of 33[illegible] cases, with the recording of 11 new cases.

Nine of today's victims were women and the remaining two were men. The victims' ages ranged from 10 months to 30 years.

The nine cases were recorded as follows:

Arlington County, a girl, 4, and a woman, 30; Norfolk, a girl, 6; Rockingham, a girl, 19; Patrick, a girl, 2; Roanoke City, a girl, 10 months; Carroll, a girl, 5; Louisa, a boy, 12; Fairfax, a woman, 29.

With A Grain Of Salt

What Subjects Are Taught At King George County Training School Is $64 Question

By ARTHUR P. DAVIS

THIS is an article I have tried not to write. In fact I have waited now almost two weeks, hoping that some other columnist or editor would ask the question I have in mind, but at this writing none to my knowledge has done so. I must therefore wade in and do it in my own crude manner.

DR. DAVIS

On November 4, the King George County (Virginia) School Board, in an attempt to equalize educational opportunity in that area, dropped from the white high school five courses which were not taught in the Negro. These courses were chemistry, physics, biology, geometry, and algebra II.

Now, the question I have wanted somebody to ask is this: What the hell DID they teach in the Negro high school?

* * * *

CAN YOU IMAGINE any high school anywhere on the face of the earth in this scientific era, leaving out of its curriculum, chemistry, physics, biology, geometry and algebra? These are the basic subjects for an understanding of the modern world. What could they possibly substitute for such courses? Did the school give its pupils extra work in band practice or "drum-majoretting" or shop-work or physical education or some other equally useless subject? Or did the school fill in with survey courses?

Frankly, I should like to know because the spectacle of a high school—and presumably the only Negro high school in the county—without algebra, geometry, physics, chemistry and biology shocks me much more than I can express here.

And yet, I suppose there are other high schools in Virginia with curricula as sub-standard as this one. Unfortunately, many Negro parents are not in position to know what should be taught their children, but the principals and the teachers of these schools know, and they are criminally negligent when they fail to point out such deficiencies. They are not only negligent but are guilty of a very disgusting kind of race disloyalty. I say this, knowing full well that there are realistic factors to be considered in such a situation.

* * * *

I MUST CONFESS that I am incorrigibly old-fashioned in educational matters. In all probability, there are many principals and teachers in Virginia who feel that one can have a very good high school without teaching the five subjects mentioned above. Such persons would, I presume, insist that giving exact knowledge in subject matter—particularly mathematics and science—is nearly so important as, what they would call, "integrating the total personality." They would insist, I am sure, that having such "character-building" activities as a good band or a snappy drum majorette corps or a victorious football team is far more important than having a solid course in physics or chemistry.

To such teachers and principals, I say with all sincerity, I believe you are wrong and that your type of education is far more hurtful than you can possibly realize. The business of a high school is to ground the students in the fundamentals of basic subject matter. It must give the student the scholarly preparation necessary for him to get further knowledge. All else is gratuitous. If it fails to do this, it fails in its primary function.

And I say to you principals and teachers, Negro children need this scholarly grounding far more than any other group in America. If you don't believe me, look at the racial scores on national intelligence tests; look at the graduate record examinations in our universities. They will corroborate what I am saying. And the fault lies with you.

DON'T FOOL YOURSELVES, principals and teachers; there are no real substitutes for geometry, physics, chemistry, biology, algebra, and deep down within you, you know it, no matter how deeply you are officially attached to the "new curriculum."

And I say to you parents whose children are victims of these sub-standard schools, take a tip from the Negro citizens of King county. Put the pressure on your school boards and superintendents, make them squirm; but at the same time see to it that your principals and your teachers also toe the mark. Check them, too. Some of them have been getting away with murder.

Tuck Urges Calm, Tolerant Handling of School Problem

Governor Tuck last night called for the "utmost calmness and tolerance" in handling the problem of equalizing public school facilities for whites and Negroes in Virginia.

He said many Virginians have been "shocked" by the actions of "certain persons posing as leaders of the Negro race" who have been "advocating and urging" the violation of the Virginia Constitution's provision for segregation in the school system.

Tuck's statement came at the end of a day in which Negro students in King George and Gloucester Counties attempted unsuccessfully to enroll in white schools after rejecting as inferior the facilities afforded them in Negro schools. (Details in separate story, this page.)

The Governor said segregation in schools "will continue to be observed" in accordance with the Constitution.

Conceding that "facilities are unequal in many instances," Tuck said the localities "will be encouraged to correct these inequalities as rapidly as practicable." He noted, however, that inequalities exist among white schools and that "there is no such thing as absolute equality in the schools."

He deplored the "unfortunate agitation of the racial issue," urged all parties concerned to "recognize their responsibility as citizens," and added "we must be tolerant and patient, both with our officials and with each other."

The text of the Governor's statement:

"Certain persons posing as leaders of the Negro race have shocked many people in Virginia by advocating and urging the violation of the Constitution of our Commonwealth on the part of public school officials. Segregation of the races in the public schools is called for in the fundamental law. It has been observed throughout the history of our Commonwealth and will continue to be observed.

"The white and Negro races have lived in harmony and mutual respect in Virginia longer than in any other part of the Western Hemisphere. We recognize that problems exist in connection with educational facilities for both races in Virginia. Marked progress already has been made toward their solution. An expanded program of public buildings at this time would only serve to complicate and make worse an already bad situation. Building costs are higher than they have ever been in history. Labor is scarce.

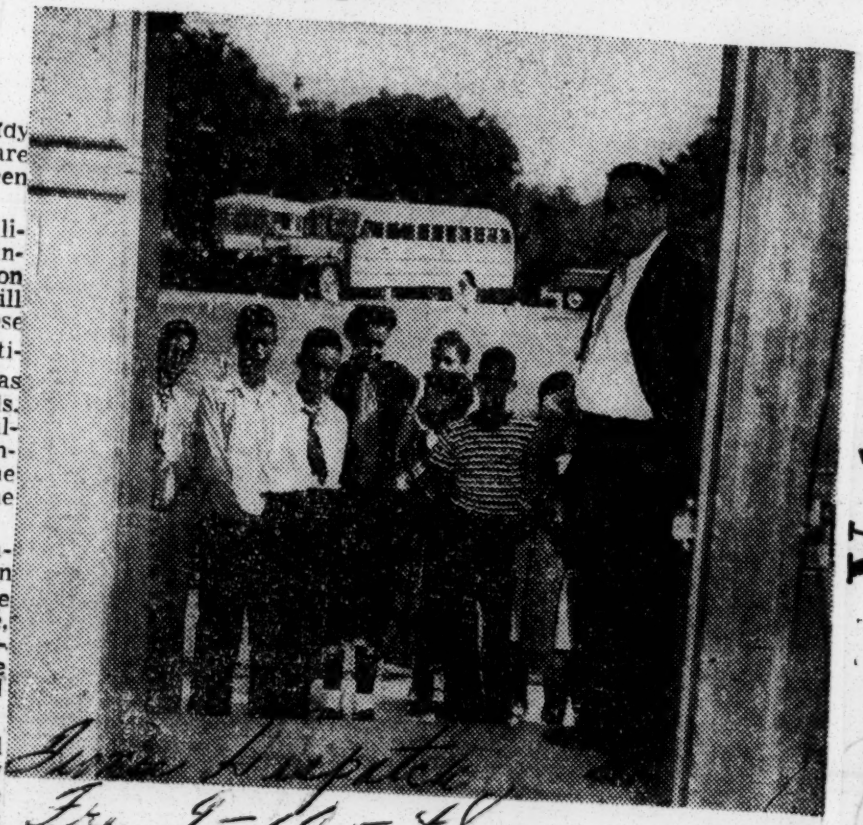
"We recognize that the facilities are unequal in many instances. This problem is common to both races. The localities will be encouraged to correct these inequalities as rapidly as practicable. There is no such thing as absolute equality in the schools. The last and newest school is almost always the best. They cannot all be constructed at the same time and according to the same pattern.

"Despite the unfortunate agitation of the racial issue by certain individuals who have assumed the role of leaders of the Negro race, I know that the people will recognize that the situation must be treated with utmost calmness and tolerance.

"The advocates of the so-called 'civil rights' program sponsored by President Truman will not force upon the people of Virginia this curse of nonsegregation in our schools, which would be offensive to the sensibilities of the better elements of the people of both races. Virginians have not been accustomed to the type of colored leadership recently displayed and which has come to the surface. The hundreds of thousands of law-abiding and peace-loving Negroes of Virginia deserve better guidance from their own race and are capable of and I hope will provide it. Their friends in all races will be glad to help them in every proper way.

"I sincerely trust that all parties concerned will recognize their responsibility as citizens. We must be tolerant and patient, both with our officials and with each other.

"The so-called Federal 'civil rights' program, above referred to, calculated to stir up strife and misunderstanding, is not the law of Virginia."



Waiting to Learn If They Will Be Admitted to School

—Staff Photo

Group Applies at King George County High in Test Case

witness called by counsel for Gloucester Negro School pupils in a hearing in which Judge Sterling Hutcheson ordered the Gloucester County school board to show cause why it should not be cited for contempt.

The show-cause order was issued on petition of counsel for the plaintiffs on the ground the school board had failed to abide by the antidiscrimination injunction issued by the court last August.

Cooper, under cross-examination by Martin A. Martin, attorney for the school children, listed these improvements at the school since the opening of the fall term:

1. Additional supplies provided for science courses.
2. One portion of the school wired for electric lights.
3. Approximately 500 new books, requisitioned by teachers themselves, added to the library.
4. New flooring laid in entrances to some buildings.
5. Woodwork in some rooms freshly painted and walls painted in gymnasium and auditorium.
6. Running water installed in science classrooms.
7. Two used typewriters and an "unusable" adding machine added for commercial courses.

Cooper said, however, some of the frame buildings still leaked; that space was inadequate in science classrooms, and that toilet facilities remained as outside installations.

At another point, he agreed the only difference between courses of study listed for his school and Botetourt High School (white) was that band instruction was offered at Botetourt and not at the Negro high school.

At another point, he agreed that equalizing was "vigorously opposed to the action of the school board and the circuit judge in dropping subjects from the white school curriculum." The county school board Thursday dropped four courses from the white high school on advice of Circuit Judge Leon M. Bazile. The move apparently was aimed at equalizing the curricula of the Court of King George Training School and the white high school. Morrison said yesterday he thought the judge had taken over the Commonwealth's attorney's function as counsel to the school board. Courses in physics, chemistry, biology and geometry were

Negro School Improvements Cited in Court

Richmond, Va., Dec. 8 (AP).—Principal J. D. Cooper of the Gloucester County Training School for Negroes testified in Federal District Court today concerning improvements in facilities at the school.

Cooper appeared as the first

New Inspection Of Surry Schools Shows Facilities Still Unequal

Special to Journal and Guide

SURRY, Va.—An inspection of the high school at Dendron and the white high school at Surry, was made recently by W. Hale Thompson, Newport News attorney, to determine the extent of improvements made at Dendron to equalize facilities and curricula at the two schools as ordered by Federal Judge Sterling Hutcheson following a case entered by a citizens group of Surry county.

Accompanying Mr. Thompson as educational consultant and adviser was J. Rupert Picott, executive secretary of the Virginia Teachers Association.

The citizens group has under consideration a proposal to enter against the school board variance, which school authorities at Dendron shop showed a wide or what it charged was failure to carry out the court order by extent to the farm machinery September 15. Investigation showed that a quonset building under construction which will be used a vocational agriculture shop, a classroom for the shop, and a third room which will be used for a commercial typing class. Focal point of the investigation were the shops at Dendron at Surry. Note was made that a cafeteria was in operation at the white school and one at the colored school, which fore the court was premature, now an answer from M. B. Joy- and that they still must answer superintendent of schools, for equal plant as well as equal the parent-teacher associ- facilities in future court hearation sponsors the cafeteria pro- ings.

King George Votes $150,000 Bond Issue Today

King George Courthouse, Va., Nov. 5 (Spl.).—King George voters will decide Saturday whether to not elaborate on the statement. Morrison did say, however, he controversy from the white school curriculum." The county school board Thursday dropped four courses from for a new facilities at the white high school on advice come on The move apparently was aimed that the at equalizing the curricula of the e Court of King George Training School review the (Negro) and the white high school. tion Thurs- Morrison said yesterday he riculum of thought the judge had taken over the white high school.

Horace T. Morrison, King George Commonwealth's attorney, said he would request a mandamus try. biology and geometry were listing of equipment on dropped from the white high school.

Preceding Judge Bazile's recommendation to the school board were these events:

Federal Judge Sterling Hutcheson ordered the school board to bring Negro educational facilities to a par with those of whites in the county. The injunction followed an action by counsel for a group of Negro pupils.

A show-cause order was then issued by the Federal District Court in Richmond, charging the board was in contempt of the injunction after a contempt citation was entered by counsel for the plaintiffs.

Morrison, acting for the board, filed an answer Thursday. In it, the board denied a series of allegations brought by plaintiffs. Morrison asked that the citation be dismissed or the case set for hearing.

Along with dropping the four courses at the white high school, the school board Thursday ordered creation of a ninth grade at the Negro school. It would require promotion of half the present eighth grade pupils. Thus, both white and Negro high schools would have grades 8 through 12.

NAACP FILES CONTEMPT CHARGE AGAINST VA. COUNTY SCHOOL BOARDS FOR IGNORING FEDERAL INJUNCTION AGAINST JIM CROW FACILITIES

Superintendents Ordered to Appear in Court October 22 to Show Cause Why They Should Not Be Punished

PETITION CIRCULATED AMONG NEGROES DENOUNCING NAACP

RICHMOND — (ANP) — The superintendents and school boards of King George and Gloucester counties have been ordered to appear before Federal Judge Sterling Hutcheson on Oct. 22 to show cause why they should not be punished for "contempt" in ignoring an injunction against discrimination in educational facilities, it was learned here Friday. But spokesmen for the school authorities of both counties say they do not consider themselves guilty of contempt of court.

Judge Hutcheson entered rules against the school heads on petitions of attorneys for Negro school children, who had won the injunctions last July. Both cases were reinstated "for good cause shown."

In the King George county case, Atty. Martin A. Martin presented a copy of a petition "being widely circulated by defendants and their agents," which he termed as "further evidence of defendant's malicious and contumacious conduct and attitude."

The petition requested and demanded that Negro citizens of the county renounce and repudiate" the attorneys for the defendants, and also "annual and repudiate" all affiliations with the NAACP. The petition demanded that this would have to be done before the school board would ask the circuit court to call for an election on a bond issue to secure money to build Negro schools.

In addition, Martin charged that on the first day of the current school term, the King George school board "maliciously demoted" the Negro principal of the training school, the vocational science and commercial science teachers and made them assistants to their white counterparts at the King George High school.

As for Gloucester county, the attorney charged school authorities "have made no serious effort to comply with said order."

On the other side of the fence, Sdpt. T. Benton Gayle of King George said, "The way I feel, no real inequality exists at present so far as learning processes are concerned. We do not have central heating systems or toilets of the kind asked, or gymnasiums, but so far as the learning processes go, we believe we are offering equality. We certainly are not in contempt."

As for the petition being circulated among Negroes, he said, "I had nothing to do with it, although I am in full accord with its purpose."

Dr. Stanley T. Gray, chairman of the Gloucester school board, said he did not consider the county was in contempt, but that they would come to the hearing to answer "as best we can."

Four-County Negro School Is Dedicated

By Richard Lyons
Post Reporter

Culpeper, Va., Oct. 23.—Whites and Negroes joined today in dedicating a school near here which may offer a partial answer to charges of inadequacy arising from the State's dual school system.

Named the George Washington Carver Regional High School, it will serve Negro students from four north central Virginia counties—Culpeper, Orange, Madison and Rappahannock.

Enthusiasm for the school is high, particularly among its officials, who declare that it provides equal or even better facilities than those of many white schools.

The school represents the attempt of large but sparsely populated rural areas to do together what they could not do alone—provide facilities for Negro students equal to those offered white children.

The Carver School is located on Route No. 15, 7 miles south of Culpeper. It contains 17 classrooms, a cafeteria, library, combination auditorium-gymnasium, and other specialty rooms such as a music room, shop, two-room clinic and a six-room economics department. Cost of construction was $400,000.

Students moved in October 1 while workmen were adding final touches. The heating system didn't start operating until a few hours before yesterday's ceremony.

Built for 600 pupils, the school already has enrolled 472, far above last year's figures. Officials attributed this largely to the attractiveness of the red brick building.

Educators from all over the State joined yesterday in the official opening. Speakers included President J. M. Ellison of Virginia Union University, and G. Tyler Miller, State superintendent of public instruction.

Each county needed a new school. But Negro enrollments were so much smaller than white that it would have been financially impossible for each county to build a Negro high school on a par with that of its white students, officials pointed out.

In 1946 the General Assembly passed a law allowing two or more counties to build and operate regional schools jointly. The four counties then set up a regional board consisting of a school board member and the superintendent from each area.

A site was purchased close to the center of the region. Each county contributed in proportion to the size of the Negro population in 1945. Operating costs will be divided among them accordin to average daily attendance.

The Carver School is not unique in Virginia. Prince William and Fairfax Counties operate a similar school at Manassas in a building that formerly was a private school. However, according to Paul Hounshell, superintendent of Culpeper County schools, Carver is the first regional school built as such.

Educators in the area started talking about a regional school three years ago, Hounshell said. Orange County had a Negro high school, which Superintendent D. N. Davidson called "very inadequate." Neither Madison nor Rappahannock Counties had Negro high schools. They sent their students to a crowded old building in Culpeper.

The situation was most serious in Madison, where Negroes had demanded admission to the white high school in protest, and nearly brought a court suit.

The chief drawback to a regional school is the transportation problem. The four counties contain an area slightly larger than the State of Rhode Island. This means that students at the end of the bus line must ride school buses 32 miles to school. But white students travel the same distance on one route in Culpeper County alone, Hounshell said.

Does the school serve its purpose of providing equal facilities?

"Yes, and more," said Hounshell. "There isn't a white school in any of the four counties that can compare with it. Some of the white people threatened to sue unless we provided them with equal facilities." A white high school, however, is now being built in Culpeper.

Ruling In Pulaski School Case Awaited

By NNPA News Service

ROANOKE, Va.— Testimony in the suit against Pulaski County School officials for their cases, the judge commented, that "one thing has been demonstrated here without need for argument. It is the fact that (school) facilities in Virginia are deplorable."

Throughout the trial the elementary school age in his neighborhood are picked up by a station wagon and taken to school bus stops. The Negroes, he said, are picked up first and must stand for about an hour while awaiting the bus. The whites sit in the station wagon as they wait, he testified.

STUDENTS TESTIFY

After a ten minute mid-morning recess, Hill called several white high school students of Pulaski to the stand and questioned them about athletics and extra-curricula activity facilities. They testified in substance that their schools provide gymnasiums and athletic fields and equipment for sports.

One student told the court that a school bus is provided for Pulaski high school athletic teams to make trips to neighboring schools.

Two Negro boys who attended the institute said they had to arrange their class schedules so they could play football. Practice, they said, is held from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m., during regular school hours because the bus back to Pulaski leaves at 3:45 p. m.

Andrew Holland, an 18-year-old Pulaski Negro, said that often players who live in Pulaski had to rush from practice to the bus without taking a shower.

An elderly Negro, who said he lived about 12 miles from Pulaski, testified that two grandchildren who live with them have not attended school for six years because of having no facilities and no transportation.

Two other defense witnesses, Foy E. DeHaven and C. C. Shelburne, division school superintendents of Radford and Montgomery county respectively, testified to plans for new buildings and operation of the school.

Mr. DeHaven said the board has been trying since last July to employ an industrial arts instructor but has been unable to find a qualified man.

Raymond L. Wimbish, state Superintendent of Pupil Transportation, told the court that in his opinion the 50 to 56 miles Pulaski Negroes must ride by bus each day to get to and from school is "not unduly arduous, harsh or long."

He admitted under cross examination, however, he would have to be famiilar with the routes the buses take to make a definite statement. He said he was not familiar, except in a general way, with the routes.

As a general statement, Dr. Alexander said, Pulaski High School and the institute rank about even, with Draper and Dublin High Schools, the other two white high schools in the county, well below them.

On cross examination, Mr. Hill put this question to him: "Do you still insist that a Negro attending the Christiansburg Institute has the same educational opportunities that a white student who attends Pulaski High School has?"

"I've never insisted that," declared Dr. Alexander. "I say they're pretty close."

Hill in his cross examination brought from Dr. Alexander the admission that the Cambria school does not offer these courses taught at Pulaski High School: business English, bookkeeping, solid geometry, Spanish, general art, diversified occupations, industrial arts and vocational agriculture.

Dr. Alexander said the state was fast abandoning instruction in business English and pointed out that no Negro college in Virginia requires solid geometry for entrance. He also said that the institute offers barbering and beauty culture, which are not taught at Pulaski High School.

In some instances, Mr. Miller stated, educational opportunities offered the colored students were broader than those provided for white children. He told of plans that have been prepared or developed in other localities in Virginia for the purpose of lowering pupil costs and offering an adequate program.

Turning to the Cambria institution, Miller said the state had earmarked between $40,000 and $50,000 for the school, with an appropriation of about $15,000 for shop equipment. This money, he pointed out, was earmarked before start of the litigation.

DISTANCE TRAVELED

Discussing the question of distances traveled by students, Mr. Miller said the State Board is not so much concerned with the distance as with the time spent on buses. The maximum suggested is one hour, but circumstances often justify elapsed times up to 90 minutes, he added.

The attorney asked the witness if the "whole plan" is not based on separation of the races. Mr. Miller answered "No," and went on to mention the operations in Lancaster county as a typically efficient arrangement.

Pulaski county has three high schools, but the one at Draper is small and cannot offer an adequate program without further consolidation, the witness said.

Asked why there is a high school for white students in Pulaski, but at the same time Negroes are forced to ride 28 miles each way, Mr. Miller replied that the Constitution of Virginia provides for segregation and that the Board abides by this provision.

Mr. Hill then asked if, in taking oath of office, he was pledged not only to uphold the laws and Constitution of Virginia but those of the Federal Government as well, Mr. Miller replied:

"Yes, of course."

Last witness for the plaintiffs was John Banks, principal of the Christiansburg Industrial Institute since last August, who testified that the curriculum included one year of algebra, one course in plain geometry, but no foundation mathematics, no Latin, no Spanish, general art, diversified occupational training, vocational agriculture or bookkeeping.

Typing and shorthand are available, along with choral work and band instruction.

BANKS TESTIMONY

Mr. Banks said there were no individual desks for experimentation in the science lab at the Cambria school and that he found the classroom in which beauty culture is taught in a bad state of repair.

The cottage used by the home economics department for its instruction he said is occupied partially be a family of six or seven. Members of this family, he said, must use the same entrance as the students and must pass through the classroom to get to their upstairs quarters.

"About the only thing that could be said about the school's athletic field, he added, was that it was "reasonably level."

A father of one of the Negro children attending the Cambria school, L. J. Hill, told the court that he has to drive his 14-year old daughter five miles to a point where she meets a bus in order to get her to school.

He said he lives about six miles southeast of Pulaski and that white children are provided transportation approximately 500 yards from his home.

Under cross examination, he said both Negroes and whites, of courtroom was packed, largely with colored people, among them parents of students who attend Christiansburg Institute in Cambria which is owned and erated jointly by the counties Montgomery and Pulaski and Radford City. Pulaski county has no colored high school.

It was the contention of the plaintiffs that school authorities are not meeting their constitutional responsibilities in providing equal facilities for colored pupils.

WITNESSES CALLED

Several witnesses were presented by counsel for the plaintiffs, headed by Oliver W. Hill, Richmond attorney. He was assisted by Martin A. Martin, and Spottswood W. Robinson, III, of Richmond, and W. Simpson Tate, of Washington.

Representing the school authorities was Alton I. Cromwell, Pulaski County Commonwealth's attorney and Roby Sutherland.

G. Tyler Miller, of Richmond, state superintendent of public instruction, a defense witness, went back to legislation providing establishment of high schools operated jointly by counties and cities, and explained that the first such arrangement with which he had experience was worked out by Warren and Rappahannock counties, which were faced with the problem of providing adequate secondary education for colored pupils.

Opposing counsel declined Judge Barksdale's offer to hear brief oral arguments, saying they preferred to submit them in writing at later dates.

Attorneys for the plaintiffs were granted thirty days after receipt of the transcript of the testimony to file their brief, and defense counsel was given thirty days from this date, with an additional 15 days allotted to the plaintiffs' counsel to make answer if this is considered advisable.

DEFENSE WITNESS

One of the principal witness for the defense was Frank J. Criser, of Pulaski, county superintendent of schools, who sought to justify conditions about which the plaintiffs had complained by pointing out that most of the elementary schools of the county are two or three-room structures with outside toilet facilities and some without running water on the premises.

Criser termed some of the county's school problems "war horn" and said that a school improvement program is designed to rectify some of these conditions, mentioning specifically that work has been started on a new building near Radford to replace the present Fairlawn School and permit the single grouping of children now being taught in the basements of two churches.

DR. ALEXANDER TESTIFIES

Dr. Fred M. Alexander director of secondary education of the State Department of Education, testified that the Christiansburg Institute, which serves as high school for colored pupils in Pulaski county, and the Pulaski High School, one of the three white schools in the county rank above the Virginia average.

The cost of instruction per pupil at the Negro school last year, he said, was $118, compared with $98.38 at Pulaski, $102 at Draper and $95 at Dublin. The Institute with 235 students had 15 teachers and Pulaski with 606 students had only 25 teachers, he added.

Obeying U. S. Court Order

Two Virginia Counties Rush Negro School Improvements

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

"Full efforts" to equalize Negro school facilities in two Virginia counties—as directed by a Federal court order—were reported under way yesterday.

In King George County, where the Negro high school opens Wednesday, and the white high school opens the following day, T. Benton Gayle, division superintendent of schools in King George and Stafford counties, declared:

"We're doing everything humanly possible to comply with the court order. Even though today is supposed to be a holiday, I've just been down at the King George Training School for Negroes—the only school involved in King George County—working with a crew of men to do what we can."

In Gloucester County, Superintendent of Schools J. Walter Kenney said "everything possible has been done" to provide "equal" facilities at the school involved there, the Gloucester County Training School for Negroes. Both white and Negro schools in Gloucester County will open on Thursday.

The order to King George and Gloucester Counties to provide equal facilities for Negroes was issued July 31 by Federal Judge Sterling Hutcheson, after an unprecedented decision last spring. Surry County drew a similar equalization order, but through a consent decree was given to September 15 to report its corrective action.

In a fourth case, Chesterfield County was directed to equalize white and Negro teachers' salaries. Unlike the school facilities' cases, however, equalization of teachers' salaries has been previously tested in the courts and ordered into effect in several other counties.

The Negro leader directing the prosecution of the equalization cases, Martin A. Martin, Richmond attorney, has stated that if the Negro schools in King George and Gloucester Counties do not have equal facilities with white schools when classes begin, he may try to take Negro students into the white schools.

Asked what King George County said, "I guess there's going to be some difference when we get PWA funds for a Gayle Under Virginia Laws

Gayle said, "You know the Constitution and the laws of Virginia prohibit such mixed schools, even if there may be some difference in the dispute yesterday, when asked, anticipate no violation leaders did not see the court order which gave us only a month to do anything." Gayle said in Richmond yesterday, "I recommended in 1939, will do if such an effort is made, feeling in the county about this." County school white school, that we should build a Negro high school also. We've spent all our available money the past 10 years trying to bring the Negro schools up to the white schools, and this is one of the poorer counties in the State.

"The Negro high school has no central heating plant, no auditorium-gymnasium, and has outside toilet facilities. We put running water in the science lab today. Tues 9-7-48

"King George Training School had 77 pupils at the end of last term, while the white high school had 189. Differences in instruction, school equipment and textbooks have now been equalized, including employment of a commercial education teacher, new typewriters and other business machines and a full-time janitor for the Negro high school.

"Everything except a new building has been provided at the Gloucester County Training School, which had 135 pupils last term," said Superintendent Kenney there. "We've refurnished the home economics department with up-to-date equipment, and painted and repaired everything.

"The court order was very indefinite, you know. It just called for 'equalization,' and did not specify where. We already have plans for a new Negro high school and hope a bond issue will be approved for it. Salaries already are equal."

Lawyers Say No Agreement Made in Va. School Case

Hill Hints Conference Produced Basis for Settlement Only; Proposal 'Secret'

RICHMOND

NAACP attorneys refused to deny or confirm a statement attributed to a spokesman for the King George County school board that it had unanimously approved on Friday a five-point agreement which its attorney said would satisfy plaintiffs in the equalization suit now pending in Federal Court.

Oliver W. Hill, city councilman and member of the law firm of Hill, Martin and Robinson, counsel for plaintiffs in the King George case, asserted on Thursday that "the basis for negotiations looking toward a settlement" of the issue was agreed upon in a conference with the board's attorney Wednesday. Sat 11-20-48

He did not deny that some specific proposals for settling the impasse had been made during the conference in Judge Sterling Hutcheson's chambers, but said "we agreed to keep anything along that line secret" until after another scheduled conference.

Violated Confidence

Declaring that "nothing has been reduced to writing," Mr. Hill indicated that Horace T. Morrison, Commonwealth's Attorney for the county and counsel to the school board, had violated a confidence by revealing details of a tentative agreement among counsel.

Among points covered in the tentative agreement, according to Mr. Morrison's statements to the board, were: Sat 11-20-48

1. An immediate conference among members of the school board, Superintendent T. Benton Gayle and plaintiff's attorneys to work out a method of equalizing the pay of colored and white teachers in the county.

Ask Long Delay

2. A pledge by the school board and superintendent that all possible improvements and extensions to courses of study at the training school will be undertaken immediately, not after completion of the proposed $150,000 addition to the colored school.

3. A pledge by attorneys for plaintiffs that they will not oppose a motion for continuance until Sept. 1, 1949, of a hearing on the contempt citation against the board and superintendent now pending in Federal District Court here. Sat 11-20-48

4. Immediate rescinding of an administrative order which demoted the commercial teacher and the agriculture instructor by placing teachers holding similar positions in the white high school in a supervisory capacity over them.

Principals In King George School Controversy

Three of the demoted personnel of the King George County Training School are shown above in top photo. They are left to right: E. B. Webb, principal; Miss Lillian C. Brown, instructor in commercial education, and George T. Saunders, vocational agriculture instructor. Mr. Webb has been named assistant to William L. Smith Jr., principal of King George County white high school; Miss Brown is assistant to Miss Wilma L. Lindsey (white) commercial education teacher; and Mr. Saunders was named assistant to J. Frank Coleman (white) instructor in vocational agriculture.

Students of the King George County Training School who refused to register at the training school and with their attorney presented themselves at the King George County School for white, for registration are shown in bottom photo. These pupils were refused registration with the explanation that it would violate the state's segregation law.

Front row, left to right, they are: Janet Evans, Addie Barclay, and Ethel Tolliver. Back row, left to right: James Braxton, Thomas Barclay, Charlie Shanklin, Donald Johnson, and Reginad Johnson. Margaret Brooks, another pupil who went with the group, did not appear for the picture. (Guide photos by J. Andrew Bowler.)

Suit Attorneys Protest Whittling Down Action

Daily World Wed 11-10-48

RICHMOND, Va. (NNPA)—Action of the King George County School Board in striking four subjects from the curriculum of its white high school last Thursday in order to "equalize" it with its colored high school spurred vigorous protestations from attorneys on both sides of the school's discrimination court wrangle.

"I was vigorously opposed," said Horace T. Morrison, of King George, attorney for the school board and Commonwealth's attorney of the county.

"One of the most dastardly things I have ever heard of," offered Martin A. Martin, of Richmond, one of the attorneys who obtained from the Federal District Court here the order directing an end to racial discrimination in the King George school system.

NOT ACCOMPLISHED

Martin and his law partners, Oliver W. Hill, and Spottwood Robinson, III, recently asked Judge Sterling Hutcheson, who handed down the anti-discrimination order, to adjudge the King George board in contempt of court. The attorneys held then that equalization had not been accomplished.

The contempt action is still pending, but the school board, meeting with Circuit Judge Leon M. Bazile, of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit, ordered the four courses in the county's one white high school dropped, as of last Friday in a move to make the curriculum in that school more similar to the curriculum in the one colored high school.

Schools Superintendent T. Benton Gayle, of King George, made it plain that the courses were whittled off over his objections.

"I thoroughly disapprove," Gayle said. Wed 11-10-48

He added that he was eliminating the courses — chemistry, biology, physics and geometry—only at the orders of the board.

Morrison, the board's attorney, said he and Gayle had held out to the last against making such a move.

"I was vigorously opposed to the action of the board and the circuit judge in dropping subjects from the white school curriculum, and when they decided to act in such a manner I saw to it that it was read into the minutes that I, as Commonwealth's attorney of the county and attorney for the school board, was opposed to the action," Morrison said, adding:

"I do not believe we can comply with Judge Hutcheson's order by tearing down the white schools. What we've got to do is build up the colored schools, and we've done that until today there is substantial equalization between our white and Negro schools, aside from the action of the board.

"I do not believe the colored people of our county want the white schools torn down. They've told me they didn't.

BOND ISSUE

"I just hope the board's action does not interfere with our chances of passing our $150,000 bond issue to provide for building colored school facilities. It will mean a lot, if passed, in proving that we in King George, know how to run our county."

People in the county voted Saturday on a resolution which would authorize the bond issue. Morrison said passage of the resolution, he felt, would make it possible for construction of facilities which would assure complete equalization of the white and colored schools.

G. Tyler Miller, State superintendent of public instruction, declined to comment on the situation. He said he had not yet studied the action and wished to confer with Gayle before commenting.

ACCREDITATION THREATENED

He pointed out, however, that the step may affect accreditation of the white school and jeopardize chances of seniors obtaining jobs after they graduate.

In line with this Morrison said he feared it might not be accepted into certain colleges. He said some parents had announced their intentions of withdrawing their children from King George High School and sending them to Fredericksburg.

Action in King George

Virginia County Board to Buy Land for Negro High School

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 8 (spl.). — In the opening move to equalize

King George County School Board Negro educational facilities in King to purchase a plot of land George County, the board apon which a Negro high school, au- proved a motion to purchase 4½ thorized Saturday by referendum, will be built. June 11-9-48 in referendum by a vote of 322 to 245, is to be financed by a $150,000 bond issue. Plans call for it to contain four classrooms, library, combination auditorium-gymnasium, and laboratory.

Meanwhile, possibility of action by the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals was indicated yesterday in ...ra—were dropped by the board ...ge High School. Sat-11-7-48

...present King George ...school for Ne- ...fails to restore by Wednesday five ...science courses dropped last week ...from the white King George High School. Sat-11-7-48

...hool, approved ...vote of 322 to ...d by a $150,000 ...call for it to ...rooms, library, ...ium-gymnasium, ...y.

...bility of action ...reme Court of ...ed yesterday in to equalize white-Negro educational facilities.

In cutting them off, the board followed the advice of Judge Leon M. Brazile, of the Fifteenth Judicial District.

Morrison yesterday asserted Judge Brazile had overstepped his authority in compelling the school board to abolish courses which are necessary for some students to graduate and enter college.

He declared that sentiment was growing among the white patrons of King George High School in favor of restoring the courses and that they would not wait "longer than Wednesday" to have some definite action by the board.

R. E. Owens, chairman of the school board, said the board "has some plans for restoring some of the courses dropped." He added, however, that "until Judge Brazile recommends otherwise," the board's instructions to T. Benton Gayle, superintendent, would stand.

Morrison and Gayle both objected to dropping the courses.

The Federal District Court in Richmond still has before it a request for the school board to be cited for contempt in allegedly failing to equalize educational facilities.

A reply to this order, citing the school construction plan and denying the contempt charges, was filed by King George County last week.

Virginia Moves To Equalize Schools

Daily Worker
Wed. 8-11-48

RICHMOND, Va.—(NNPA)—The establishment of two five-year high schools, one for white and the other for colored pupils, jointly operated with neighboring Sussex County, was recommended last Thursday to the Surry County School Board as a means of equalizing educational facilities for colored children.

The recommendation was the result of a survey of school facilities in Surry County recently completed by a committee headed by Dr. Fred M. Alexander, State director or secondary education.

Ordered by Judge Sterling Hutcheson of the United States District Court to start immediately to provide equal educational opportunities for colored children in the county, Surry school officials have until September 15 to report their plans for construction of school buildings for the purpose.

A precedent — setting consent decree, entered March 30, ordered the Surry School Board immediately to make plans to equalize the educational facilities and opportunities for colored children in the county, and also enjoined payment to colored teachers or less salaries ,on acount of their race and color, than those paid to white teachers.

MORE MEETING

Although the Surry County School Board met last Thursday, M. B. Joyner, county school superintendent, said several other meetings will be necessary before any decision is made. The only alternative, he said, might be the construction of some larger schools in the county.

Sussex County also was affected the decree. T. D. Foster, school superintendent in that county, said his board, would not consider consolidation until such a request came from Surry County.

According to Mr. Foster, salaries of colored and white teachers and transportation facilities in Sussex County have been equalized for several years.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Specific recommendations made by the committee headed by Dr. Alexander were.

(1) That school authorities of Surry County approach school officials of Sussex County to establish a jointly owned and operated five year comprehensive high school for about 300 white pupils in the two counties.

(2) That a similar move be made to establish a 600-pupil school for colored children in the two countries.

(3) Since a few white and colored pupils of high school age live near the border of Isle of Wight County, school officials of Surry should arrange for these pupils to attend high school in that county.

(4) That the elementary school for white pupils at Dendron be consolidated with the elementary school center for white pupils at Surry Court House when the high school is moved from that point.

(5) That all elementary schools for colored pupils be consolidated into two centers.

(6) That in the arrangement for joint high schools with other counties and for the elementary centers within Surry County, provisions be made for buildings and facilities to house a comprehensive program of education for both the high and elementary centers.

School Bond Issue Vote Set For June 29

Journal & Guide
6-28-47
Norfolk Va.

NORFOLK—An intensive campaign designed to interest colored residents of Princess Anne county in exercising their right to vote, is in progress following the announcement last week that a $250,000 bond issue for a new colored high school will be voted upon in a countywide referendum to be held on June 29.

The referendum, which also includes bond issues totaling $425,000 for improvements to three white schools in the county, was authorized on Friday by Circuit Judge Floyd E. Kellam who had received resolutions from the Princess Anne County School Board and the County Board of Supervisors, urging such action.

The $250,000 bond issue for a new colored high school is the only one to be voted on by all five districts in the county, however.

The Kempsville district will vote on a $350,000 bond issue for additions to the Bayside and Kempsville schools, while voters of the Pungo district will ballot on a $100,000 bond issue for improvements to the Creeds school. All of these are white.

Officials of a joint citizens committee comprising three county civic and educational organizations are now busily engaged in urging colored residents of the county who are qualified to vote, to support the bond issue in order to insure its success.

W. Francis Taylor Jr., of Virginia Beach, is chairman of the joint citizens committee which includes representatives of the Princess Anne County Civic Organization, the County Chapter of the NAACP, and the County Parent-Teacher Association.

Action on the referendum proposals came last week after Mr. Taylor announced that all efforts to have a second bond issue referendum authorized were being abandoned.

He said that attorneys for the NAACP had advised his committee that legal action to improve the county's colored schools was inevitable, and that the entire resources of the State Conference of NAACP branches, as well as the wholehearted support of the national office of the NAACP had been promised.

SECOND REFERENDUM IN SIX MONTHS

If the $250,000 bond issue is approved on June 29 the funds will be used to erect a new high school building on property adjacent to the present County Training School at Euclid, at present the only school in the county offering any semblance of high school training to colored pupils.

The referendum on the new high school will be the second within six months. A similar vote was held last December with only a total of 600 votes being cast, the majority of them against the issue. Another new development in the situation was the statement by Chairman Taylor last week that one hundred parents of colored school children have already given NAACP attorneys the power to institute legal action on their behalf.

SURVEY CONDUCTED

A survey of the county's colored schools was conducted in December, 1946, by a special commission appointed by G. Taylor Miller state superintendent of public instruction, at the request of the Princess Anne County School Board. In its report of its findings made public in May of last year, the commission recommended, among other things, the erection of an entirely new high school to supplement the work of the County Training School, and the replacement of the present dilapidated, outmoded one, two, and three-room elementary school buildings located in strategic areas throughout the country.

The whole problem was pointed up by a series of illustrated articles in the Journal and Guide which began in September, 1946, and ran for several months.

Council Puts Off Action On School Project

Journal Guide
Norfolk, Va.
Sat. 1-24-48

Present Building Crowded, Without Auditorium

PORTSMOUTH —A new senior high school for colored students, as recommended by the Portsmouth School Board and strongly advocated by the Central Civic Forum, was presented before City Council Tuesday night with the approval of City Manager W. Guy Ancell.

Action on the recommendation for the new colored high school, one of the most acutely needed projects in the entire school system, was postponed until next month's conference between councilmen and members of the School Board.

It was regarded as significant that the proposal for a new colored high school should come up at this time, when the Portsmouth chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is considering plans to institute legal proceedings for equal facilities in the colored schools.

SCHOOL HANDICAPPED

The present Norcom High School building has neither auditorium, cafeteria or gymnasium and is the only school of its size in the state that is so handicapped. For more than ten years colored citizens have sought these essential facilities for Norcom High. For many years Superintendent H. A. Hunt has listed the auditorium-gymnasium-cafeteria project for the colored high school as a most essetinal school need.

Originally, the school boar planned to recommend an anne to the present Norcom building However, the Central Civic Forum headed by Dr. O. C. Jones strongly contended that an entirely new high school plant on a different site would be the most practica solution to the problem. The Central Forum even went so far a to point out possible sites for th new high school building.

CROWDED SCHOOLS

The Central Civic Forum contended that the present Norcom building should then be used to relieve overcrowded conditions a the George Peabody School and also to serve as a junior high school.

The school board concurred with the recommendations of the Central Civic Forum and, consequently, included the new high school project in its recommended program for public school improvements. The program is now in the files of the city council.

In recommending the new high school for colored students, City Manager Ancell also advocated the construction of a junior high school for white.

County School Matter Turned Over To NAACP

Journal & Guide Norfolk, Va.
Pat. 1-17-48

By ALBERT L. HINTON

NORFOLK—The matter of improvement in the colored schools of Princess Anne county, including the failure of the county's voters on Tuesday, Dec. 16 to approve a proposal to float a $250,000 bond issue to build a new Negro high school, will "be officially turned over to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People within a few days."

The announcement was made on Wednesday by W. Francis Taylor Jr., of Virginia Beach, chairman of a joint committee representing three county civic and educational organizations which has been working on the school improvement project for some time.

Sat. 1-17-48

The announcement followed in the wake of a meeting of representatives of the joint committee Wednesday afternoon at which, according to Mr. Taylor, it was decided that a "group of interested colored and white citizens" would not meet at Princess Anne Courthouse with members of the County Board

In A Democracy

Journal Guide

The Failure Of Negroes Of Princess Anne County To Get A New High School

Sat 1-17-48

By LUTHER P. JACKSON

IN THE FAILURE of a people to get what is due them from a country, city, state, or national government, they sometimes have somebody to blame but themselves. One of the best recent examples of the truth of this statement is furnished by the Negroes of Princess Anne county, Virginia. Sadly in need of a modern high school building, they had a chance to get one at a cost of $250,000, but they failed. They failed simply because they had not enough voters to carry the bond issue proposal which was offered in a special election held in this county in December. In this instance they could not blame the superintendent, nor the school board, for these and many other persons of the white race were sympathetic with the colored people and voted accordingly. And what is more glaring the only expenditure proposed in this bond issue was this single Negro high school. Thus the people for whom it was intended had a first class school almost in their hands but they did not deliver the votes in sufficient number to carry the proposal. Less than two hundred voted for the measure while more than three hundred voted against it.

Norfolk Va.

The Negroes of Princess Anne performed poorly this time just as they have for many years in the past. Their record indeed is pathetic. Though having slightly more than 4,000 persons of voting age, they have never had anything like this number to pay the poll tax, or meet merely this first requirement for voting.

Nor have they had 3,000 or 2,000, or 1,000 to pay. They actually fall lower still. They have not had 500, 400, or even 300. The highest number they have ever attained in seven years is 261; their lowest was 35 in 1941.

Having this handful meant that less than one percent had met even the poll tax requirement for voting in Virginia. Poor old Princess Anne stood next to the very bottom of the 100 counties in the state. It was only Accomac which was worse still, holding as it did 100th place with its thirty poll tax payers.

Sat 1-17-48

AFTER REACHING 261 and after receiving special praise for their increase in an article in this column, the county slipped back to 158 the following year, while now they have 206. And nothing like these 206 turned out to vote in December, for some of them have never registered and many apparently did not care.

Fundamentally the trouble with the Princess Anne citizens is not their inability to qualify to vote, but their failure to understand that we now live in a day when most of the good things of life come from the hand of the government and not from private souces. Many of the individuals who had not paid poll taxes to the extent of five dollars in order to vote in the bond election, whereby they might have secured a new school, would not have hesitated to plank down fifty dollars to build one at their own expense.

Somehow the vast majority of Negroes everywhere have separated themselves completely from politics and allowed the white people to take over for them. They don't know that good health, good houses, good education, good roads, and even a wife, husband, and family are handed down to mankind by the action of the government under which they live.

And then to say that they are not going to have any association with the government, which ranks second in importance only to God, is to deny themselves all the many blessings which every government has in store for those who participate in its affairs.

Sat. 1-17-48

SOMEHOW, SOMEBODY in Princess Anne needs to clear the thinking of its Negro citizens. Do they have sufficient preachers and teachers? Yes they seem to be pretty well supplied with these professional groups, but they are a class who come out into the county from nearby Norfolk and Portsmouth and return just as soon as their particular private tasks are completed.

And then when the ministers come, with a few exceptions, they say nothing about how to get through the ballot better health, better homes, better farms, better schools, but rather concentrate their efforts on the life in the world to come.

Many of the teachers are qualified voters but their high status hardly extends beyond the classroom if even in the classroom.

Will the stigma which rests on Princess Anne in the sight of the country remain on it always? Or will it rise from the dust to great heights in the affairs of American government? I predict that this county lying on the Atlantic ocean in the southeastern corner of Virginia will soon come into her own if the people only follow the leadership of W. Francis Taylor and his associates there.

This man, the Journal and Guide, and other parties have exposed the deplorable state of its school buildings to all parties concerned and to the general public. With this public airing and enough voting strength to vote themselves a decent school, I believe the citizens will use their misfortune as a stepping stone as in the years to come.

BARRED BY VA. WHITE SCHOOL — These King George County, Va., pupils last week were stopped at the door of the white high school where NAACP attorneys sought to force their admittance for compliance with a court ruling that school facilities for Negro and white pupils be equalized in the county. At the time of this photo lawyers were conferring with school officials who refused to violate the State law on segregation. Above scene also took place in Gloucester County. —Washington Post Photo. (Story inside.)

Such An Ugly Mug Too

The rather odd practice of "biting off the nose to save the face" bids fair to become another southern custom. Last week the officials of King George County, Virginia, abolished courses in chemistry, physics, biology and geometry in the white high school rather than make these courses available in the colored high school in compliance with a court order demanding equalization of educational facilities.

Since there are more white teachers per capita in the school population than colored, we are holding our breath now awaiting news that some board of education in Dixie has ordered the extra white teachers shot. Anything seems preferable to these die-hards than to grant new opportunities to Negro youth and abandon Jim Crow.

In Arkansas university offficials put a rail around a Negro student to set him apart from the white students in the class but they took it down on second thought. In Oklahoma the officials placed a Negro student at the University of Okahoma in an ante-room to separate him from his white classmates.

We can forgive those visitors to our shores who wonder about the sanity of white Americans on the Negro issue. We are becoming apprehensive over their good sense too. We have known all along that many of our white brethren are evi and now proof is piling up that they are also crazy. Biting off the nose to save a face under some circumstances might conceivably make sense, but when you consider the pock-marked mug the Southerners are trying to save you wonder.

Deplorable Public School Facilities In Virginia

THERE is at least one case paralleling the Pulaski county (Va.) high school situation which prompted Federal Judge BARKSDALE to say in Federal District Court in Roanoke that "One thing has been demonstrated here without need for argument. It is the fact that (school) facilities in Virginia are deplorable."

Dr. FRED M. ALEXANDER, director of secondary education of the state department of education, testified at the trial of the Pulaski case that the Christiansburg Industrial Institute, which affords high school facilities for the Pulaski county colored children "ranked above the Virginia average."

The Christiansburg school was erected by northern philanthropists. It was operated for a number of years and is still operated in part by these philanthropists. Its facilities are afforded the county because there is no colored high school in the county.

The parallel case is found in Brunswick county, Va., where the Negro population is slightly in excess of the white population. St. Paul's Polytechnic Institute (formerly St. Paul's Normal and Industrial School) has afforded Brunswick county the only high school accommodations it has for Negro children. St. Paul's was built by private contributions and the hard labor for forty years of the late Archdeacon JAMES S. RUSSELL.

At the present time the maximum number of high school students that St. Paul's can accommodate is six hundred. This is with 25% overcrowding. The potential high school enrollment in Brunswick county is approximately nine hundred.

St. Paul's Polytechnic Institute is so situated that some of the pupils attending the high school there must travel 100 miles a day. The range is from one to one hundred miles, depending on which part of the county the pupil comes from. Some of the pupils have to be at the bus pickup point by 6:00 a. m., and are not able to return home until 6:00 p. m.

Brunswick county has two high schools for white children with a potential high school enrollment of approximately five hundred pupils. These two buildings were constructed and paid for by the localities.

For several years efforts have been made to get a high school building in Brunswick county constructed by the county authorities with the assistance of the towns of Lawrenceville, Alberta and others. This effort has so far failed and the board of education of Brunswick county is now requesting St. Paul's School to continue to furnish housing facilities for the Negro high school pupils in the county.

The state and county jointly pay the salaries of the teachers. The St. Paul's Polytechnic Institute furnishes the housing. The arrangement handicaps the work of St. Paul's Institute and stunts the development of the pupils of high school age in Brunswick county. Truly, as Judge BARKSDALE remarked, school facilities in Virginia are in a deplorable state.

Seek Continuation Of Va. School Case

KING GEORGE, Va. — (NNPA) — Horace T. Morrison, attorney for the King George County school board last Friday asked Federal Judge Sterling Hutcheson to continue until September 1 of next year contempt proceedings against the board in a school equalization case.

At the same time he made this request he telegraphed the Federal District Judge in Richmond an outline of a five-point agreement reached by him and attorneys for the county's white school principal were in, we have no disposition to Planned immedi... added for additi... erection of a n... building for wh... cently passed a ... for Morrison's requ... of the contempt ... steps taken by ... it and an additiona... plaintiffs suspen... activity until after con... struction of the ... building formed ... the agreement.

Begun studies to determine how best to extend and improve curriculum at the colored training school "So long as the plaintiffs ... faith in any effort to purge itself of contempt action we allege they

Martin, an attorney for the plaintiffs, last Friday said:

Arlington Pays Negro Tuition At Manassas

Arlington's School Board has agreed to pay tuition of all county Negro senior high school students who want to attend the Negro Regional Vocational High School in Manassas.

The move followed this week's attack by Negro leaders on what they claimed were "totally inadequate" facilities at Arlington's only Negro high school, the Hoffman-Boston.

On Monday, nine Negro parents asked, and were denied, permission to enroll their children at Arlington's white Washington-Lee High School. They charged facilities in the Negro and white schools were not equal.

Arlington school officials yesterday said they didn't regard it "economically feasible" to provide Hoffman-Boston's present 33 high school students with "vocational training equipment equal to that at a regional school" such as Manassas.

The tuition payments to the Manassas school will cost $100 per pupil annually. Fairfax, Fauquier and Loudoun Counties already have similar arrangements for Negro students.

The Arlington decision was reached after Mrs. Lucy S. Davis, 2442 S. Lowell st., Arlington, asked for tuition to enable her son, Calvin, to continue his high school studies at the Manassas regional school.

Before school opened this year, the Arlington School Board announced it would stop all tuition payments for Negro students, except for seniors now attending District schools who will need accreditation to go to college. The Hoffman-Boston High School is not accredited.

Attorneys Confer On School Cases

Spottswood Robinson 3d, Richmond Negro attorney, yesterday discussed "informally" the "equal facilities" cases he and his associates are handling, at a conference here with members of the legal staff of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Robinson, Martin A. Martin and Oliver W. Hill, Richmond law partners, plan contempt of court actions against school officials of King George and Gloucester Counties in Virginia, they have announced.

The conference was held at the law school of Howard University, Robinson said.

The preparation of the proposed contempt motions may take until next week, Robinson said.

Judgment Sought For Consolidated Negro High School

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 6 (AP). A declaratory judgment approving a consolidated Negro high school here will be sought by the King George County school board as a solution to its acute problem of Negro education, it was announced today.

T. Benton Gayle, superintendent of King George and Stafford County schools, said the proposed regional institution would serve Negro students from the two counties and Fredericksburg. A resolution was approved yesterday by the King George school board and board of supervisors to have a proceeding brought in United States District Court to obtain approval of the plan.

The King George school board is under court order to submit a plan of equalization of school facilities by September 1.

Negro Entry To Arlington High Refused

Equal Facilities' Plea Barred at Washington-Lee

Virginia's school segregation issue moved next door to the Capital yesterday when nine Negro parents asked—and were denied—permission to enroll their children in Arlington's white Washington Lee High School.

The nine said that facilities at Arlington's only Negro high school, Hoffman-Boston, were not equal to those at Washington-Lee.

For this reason, they declared, they wanted their children admitted to the white high school, which registered its pupils yesterday.

Their request was refused by Washington-Lee principal, Claude M. Richmond, who told them the Virginia constitution "does not allow colored and white children to attend the same school."

Similar Negro delegations recently have received the same answer from school officials in Virginia's Gloucester and King George Counties.

Schools in both counties are under order by the Federal District Court in Richmond to provide equal facilities for both races.

The situation in Arlington is different in this respect—county schools are under no court order to provide equal facilities.

However, Arlington is awaiting outcome of a suit filed last September in Alexandria District Court by 16-year-old Constance Carter, 3425 S. 22d st., Arlington, who sought and was denied admission to Washington-Lee.

Miss Carter's attorney, Leon Ransom, said yesterday he personally hoped the Alexandria court, after reviewing the Carter case, would follow the Richmond decision and order Arlington to provide school facilities.

The nine-member Negro delegation visiting Washington-Lee quietly waited outside the main entrance while one of their leaders, James B. Cobb, an associate of Ransom, talked to Richmond.

Earlier yesterday, Cobb, and Julius B. Lee, another associate of Ransom's, had inspected the Hoffman-Boston School to see if its facilities matched those at the white high school.

Facilities Viewed

They reported "facilities have not begun to equal" those at Washington-Lee. Attorney Ransom declared their findings probably will be added to files on the Carter test case as "supplementary evidence."

Specifically, Cobb and Lee complained of the following "shortcomings" at Hoffman-Boston High School:

1. An inadequate library, with out-of-date textbooks, including a "New Geography" printed in 1920, and many books with one or both covers missing.

2. No gymnasium, with indoor athletic activities conducted in the school's workshop. A bushel basket hoop, the men said, served as a basketball basket.

3. No stadium, and an athletic field [illegible] grass "above your knees."

4. Manually operated machines instead of the electric variety in the domestic science shops, a gas stove but no electric model. Insufficient equipment in the vocational (wood working, auto mechanics) shop.

5. Senior high, junior high and elementary school children together in one building. The Negro leaders said this posed "a disciplinary problem" and added to "juvenile delinquency."

Answering these criticisms, Fletcher Kemp, Arlington school superintendent, said yesterday the school board has spent or contracted to spend "more than $20,000" on the Hoffman-Boston School since last June.

Barnard Joy, school board chairman, has listed several of the improvements made at the school, including hiring of a full-time music supervisor, gym teacher, and librarian and a new home economics teacher.

The home economics room has received new equipment; the library is expecting "at any time" a new shipment of books; the auditorium has been redecorated, heating system improved, and lockers ordered for students.

Two New Classrooms

In addition, the school board has on order a temporary structure which will be placed beside the present building, adding two new classrooms.

Joy said the school board "will continue to work toward improvement of all of Arlington schools, making every effort to provide each of the 31 schools with facilities, staff, and curriculum that are equal."

Leaders in yesterday's test admission case pointed out that the Hoffman-Boston School, which last year had a student body of 23 and only one graduate, never has been accredited.

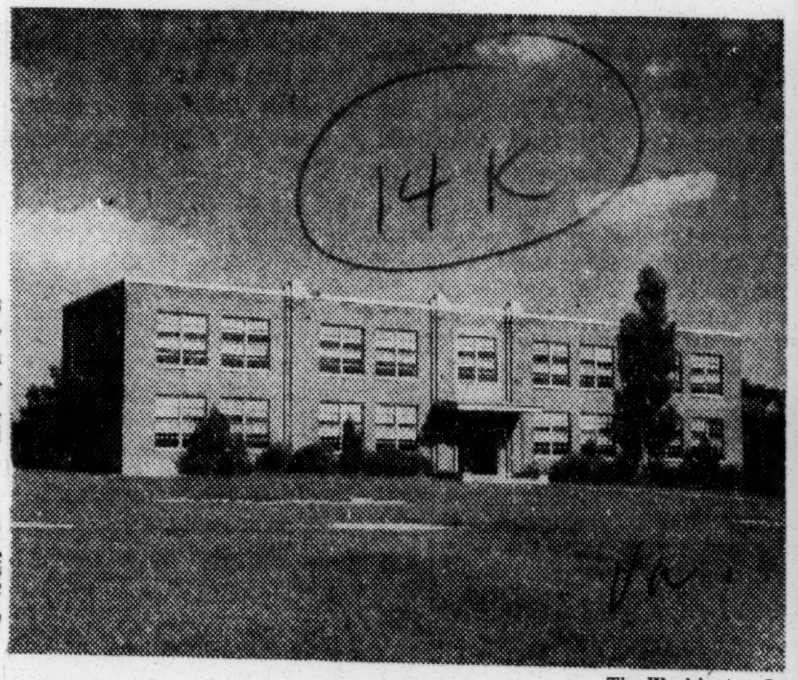
Last year the school board paid tuition to District schools for Arlington Negro pupils unable to find courses they wanted at Hoffman-Boston.

This year, however, the board has stopped tuition payments for all except Arlington seniors now attending District schools who will need accreditation to go on to college.

Negro parents who asked admission of their children to Washington-Lee are Mrs. Eleanor Taylor, 3425 S. 22d st., mother of Constance Carter whose case is pending in District Court.

Mrs. Mary Hernandez, 2102 S. Glebe rd.; Mrs. Armenia Gaskill, 3524 S. 24th st.; Mrs. Lillia Mae Snow, 2132 S. Monroe st.; Mrs. Josie Bevard, 2014 N. Dinwiddie st.; Mrs. Evelyn McCamey, 3108 S. 18th st.; Mrs. Eleanor Jackson (no address available); Mrs. Mamie Brown, 1941 N. Dinwiddie st.; Mrs. Almeda Perkins, 2018 N. Dinwiddie st., and Moses Owens (no address available).

9 Negroes' Appeal for Entry To Arlington School Denied



Hoffman Boston High School at 14th and South Queen sts. Arlington, Va. —The Washington Post

SEGREGATE—From P. 1

The Day

Down the streets of Hingham, Mass. one day last week marched five little boys in lock step, gloomily chanting, "The last mile . . . the last mile." Last week, over most of the U.S., boys & girls were grudgingly trudging back to school.

New York City's Board of Education issued a special pamphlet. A parent, the pamphlet said, should explain to a child that school would not be so bad. "Tell him . . . he will draw, sing, play games . . . He will make many new friends . . . School will be an enjoyable . . . experience."

It was an experience not equally enjoyable to all. In King George County, Va., ten Negro children, led by a Negro lawyer, tried—and failed—to enroll in the white high school; and 29 more tried to do the same in Gloucester County. Their own schools, the Negroes said, were "wholly inadequate." The Negroes of King George County were especially discontented with their library. Sample books: The Love Letters of a Worldly Woman a 1937 Bell System Technical Journal, a 1905 Annual Report of the Librarian of Congress, and a 1925 Carnegie Endowment for International Peace Yearbook.

All schools had one common complaint: too many students. In many a U.S. city and town, schools would operate in two shifts. Youngsters would be going to school in cafeterias, churches, and prefabs —and no immediate relief in sight. Said a Detroit school official: "It will be tough through 1955."

Judge Admits School Facilities Deplorable

ROANOKE, Va.-(NNPA)-Testimony in the suit against Pulaski County school officials asking for equal facilities for colored school children was brought to a close in the United States District Court here last Thursday afternoon, but there were indications that Judge Alfred D. Barksdale, of Lynchburg, who heard the two-day trial, will not give a ruling until the first of the year.

As attorneys for both sides announced they were resting their cases, the judge commented, that "one thing has been demonstrated here without need for argument. It is the fact that (school) facilities in Virginia are deplorable."

Opposing counsel declined Judge Barksdale's offer to hear brief oral arguments, saying they preferred to submit them in writing at later dates.

Attorneys for the plaintiffs were granted thirty days after receipt of the transcript of the testimony to file their brief, and defense counsel was gvien thirty days from this date, with an additional 15 days allotted to the plaintiffs' counsel to make answer if this is considered advisable.

The principal witness for the defense this afternoon was Frank J. Criser, of Pulaski, county superintendent of schools, who sought to justify conditions about which the plaintiffs had complained by pointing out that most of the elementary schools of the county are two or three-room structures with outside toilet facilities and some without runnnig water on the premises.

Criser termed some of the county's school problems "war born" and said that work has been started on a new is designed to rectify some of these conditions, mentioning specifically that work has ben started on a new building near Radford to replace the present Fairlawn School and permit the single grouping of children now being taught in the basements of two churches.

The overall teacher load in the county is about forty students, Criser stated.

Dr. Fred M. Alexander, director of secondary education of the State Department of Education, testified last Thursday morning that the Christiansburg Industrial Institute, which serves as a high school for colored pupils in Pulaski county, and the Pulaski High School, one of the three white high schools in the county, rank above the Virginia average.

Another witness offered by the defense—Herman Ratcliffe, a visiting teacher in the Pulaski system—related that there are a number of children in the county who do not attend school for the sole reason they lack transportation or have too far to walk. Some of these, he explained, should be enrolled in Pulaski High School.

Throughout the trial, the courtroom was packed, largely with colored people.

It was the contention of the plaintiffs that school authorities are not meeting their constitutional responsibilities in providing equal facilities for colored pupils.

Several witnesses were presented by counsel for the plaintiffs, headed by Oliver W. Hill, Richmond attorney. He was assisted by Martin A. Martin, and Spotswood W. Robinson, III, of Richmond, and W. Simpson Tate, of Washington.

Another (Va.) School Parity Suit Looms

RICHMOND, Va. — (ANP)—It appeared last week that another Virginia county would soon be involved in a suit to compel action for the equalization of educational facilities for its Negro and white pupils. Four counties are already in the courts on the same issue.

Most likely Princess Anne County, which has suffered considerable unfavorable publicity because of the rotten condition of its Negro schools will be the next target of legal attack by the NAACP. These were the developments as surveyed by educators here last week.

Speculation about Princess Anne County arose from published reports on Monday that John B. Dey, chairman of the school board of the county, told board members and supervisors that he expected court action to be taken against the county within 90 days on the question of Negro schools.

Crisis Admitted

Dey said something must be done about the Negro schools and division superintendent Frank W. Cox joined him in preventing a petition to the county supervisors requesting them to arrange for a $355,000 bond issue for additions and improvements to three white schools in the county.

The Negro schools in the county are so deplorable and antiquated that Negro citizens under the leadership of Francis Taylor had through organized mass meetings and state-wide publicity in white and Negro newspapers focussed public attention on Princess Anne County—frequently called the cradle of American democracy.

This publicity forced the county superintendent to request the state board of education to ask for a survey of the Negro schools of the county.

King George School Work Is Restored

Board Replaces 3 of 5 Subjects It Dropped in Equalization Case

Bowling Green, Va., Nov. 9. (AP)—The King George County School Board today restored to the curriculum of its white high school three of five subjects it dropped last week as a school equalization measure.

The board conferred here with Circuit Judge Leon M. Bazile, who last week told the board the course-dropping measure was a technical way of complying with a Federal court order to equalize facilities between Negro and white schools in the county.

The board restored the courses after Judge Bazile said the move was permissible since there were no candidates for the subjects in the Negro high school.

Conference to be Asked

The subjects restored were physics, second-year algebra and geometry. Still excluded from the curriculum are chemistry and biology.

Commonwealths' Atorney Horace T. Morrison said after the meeting he would try tomorrow to schedule before Federal Judge Sterling Hutcheson a conference with attorneys for the plantiffs in the school equalization case.

He said "If I can't get a conference which will solve the difficulties relating to chemistry and biology, I shall probably go to the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals for a writ of mandamus" for restoration of the missing courses.

Morrison said he desired to confer with attorneys for the Negro pupils in the case because of the passage Saturday of a $150,000 bond issue in the county for the construction of a new Negro high school. Morrison said the conference was needed also in view of the answer he had filed to the Federal Court petition.

Contempt of Order Claimed

The petition of the plantiffs asks the King George School Board to be held in contempt of the Federal Court order to equalize school facilities. Morrison's answer asked that the petition either be dismissed or that a hearing be set in which the plantiffs should be required "to prove their every allegation" in the petition.

The school board said restoration of the three courses satisfied the scholastic needs of all but three students in the King George High School (white). Three of the students who are seniors, however, need the missing subjects for graduation this year.

Morrison today asked Judge Bazile if he were at the school board meeting as adviser to the board. Judge Bazile answered he was there in his capacity as a Circuit Court judge.

WHITE VIRGINIA STUDENTS TASTE FRUIT OF JIMCROW

Another attempt to duck the responsibility for providing equal education—this time in the public schools—was unearthed in King George County, Va.) last week.

The county school board there dropped four courses of study from the white high school because it said they "could not be taught" at the colored high school.

In other words, it is their plan to bring the level of education for white children down to that of the colored rather than raise the level of the colored children's level to that of the whites.

Meanwhile, a bond issue to provide $150,000 for construction of a new colored high school was passed by a 77 vote majority.

Here again is ample evidence that the luxury of segregation is not only expensive but, as in King George County, downright stupid.

Another illustration of the harmful effects of segregation upon Negroes and whites as well as provided in Virginia the other day.

The King George County School Board announced that it was dropping five courses offered to white high school students in order to "equalize" the curriculum with those offered students in the Negro high school.

The county was required by Federal Court decision to bring school facilities for Negro students up to those in the white schools.

But the school board, showing more consideration for the vicious system of segregation in the state than the needs of either white or Negro children, decided to cut the standards for white students.

AND MORE OF THE SAME

Virginia School Board Fails To Comply, Cited For Contempt

RICHMOND, Va. — (NNPA) — Judge Sterling Hutcheson of the Federal District Court here last Friday ordered members of the school boards and the school superintendents of King George and Gloucester County to appear in court October 22 and show cause why they could not be adjudged in contempt of court.

The basis of the contempt citation was a petition presented to Judge Hutcheson last Thursday by attorneys for colored children in the two counties.

Filing of the petition asking that school officials of the two counties be held in contempt of court was the first legal move made by the plaintiffs since Judge Hutcheson issued permanent injunctions last July ordering the two counties to equalize educational opportunities for colored children.

The suits against the two counties were reinstated in the court's docket by order of Judge Hutcheson last Friday "for good cause" shown by the plaintiffs.

Attached as an exhibit to the petition of the plaintiffs in the King George County case was a copy of a petition allegedly being circulated by the defendants in King George County demanding that colored citizens of that county, including plaintiffs, "repudiate and annul all affiliation" with the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Implying that it was drawn by colored persons, the petition asserts that the NAACP "has led us into a position of extreme embarrassment which could imperil our future and retard the honest progress which our race hopes to achieve."

The petition also demands that the platintiffs "renounce and repudiate" Mr. Martin A. Martin, one of their attorneys, as well as the law firm of which he is a member.

The petition also asks signers to approve a segregated school system because through this policy both the white and colored races will live more harmonious and progressive lives."

The petition concludes by asking King George County school board to request Judge Boon M. Brazilo of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit of Virginia to call for an election for a bond issue in order to secure more money to build colored schools.

One of the allegations of the plaintiffs' petitions stated that the King George school board had "maliciously demoted" the principal of the King George Training School, the vocational science teacher and the commercial science teacher and made them assistants to their white counterparts at King George High School.

The petition for the "show cause" rule against Gloucester School officials listed improvements made in the colored schools of that county, but asserted that these officials "have made no serious effort" to comply with Judge Hutcheson's order for equalization of school facilities.

Va. County Grants "Equalized" Schools

DENDRON, Va. — (ANP) — The Surry county school board reported last week that plans had been made to equalize the educational facilities in the county for Negro and white school children.

Supt. M. J. Joyner, of Dendron, who was alarmed several years ago by the developing equalization movement in the state, reported that the school board had increased the salaries of Negro teachers high enough for the 1948-49 school term to reduce by half the disparity in pay between white and Negro teachers.

The board is making an effort also to equalize library and laboratory facilities of the two races in the county, the superintendent said. "Several hundred dollars worth of books have been ordered for Negro school libraries, he reported.

UNDER MANDATE

The school board is under mandate to report that progress toward equalization has been made by Sept. 15 to Judge Sterling Hutcheson of the District court who ordered that discriminatory practices must cease.

The Negro population in Surry county, which is one of the poor counties of the state, is larger than the white population. In all Virginia counties with a larger Negro population than white population the task of equalizing school facilities between the two races is most difficult.

It has been a policy throughout Virginia and all other states of the south to provide inferior schools for Negro children to those maintained for white children. Obviously in localities where the Negro school population is larger than the white population the problem of equalization is much more difficult.

OLD POLICY

White school boards in Virginia had not intention of equalizing school facilities for Negro and white school children. It was their intention to maintain forever the inferior Negro school facilities and the lower salaries of Negro teachers. There is no other logical conclusion to deduce from the policy these boards have followed since the emancipation of Negro slaves in 1865.

The discriminatory policy of the school board of Surry county has been in effect so long that it will be difficult now for the board to speedily bring about equality between Negro and white school children. The board of supervisors and the county board never figured before on business necessary to equalize educational facilities between Negro and white school children.

Va. Facing the First Negro School Showdown

This Week

Equal Facilities Ordered by Court Not Yet Ready; No Solution Seen

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Richmond, Sept. 4.—Virginia is headed next week for a dramatic showdown on the bitterly controversial subject of equal school facilities for Negroes.

On Wednesday morning, schools are scheduled to open in King George County—where officials have been directed by Federal Court order to provide equal school facilities for whites and Negroes.

The following morning, school openings are set in Gloucester County, which is under a similar order to equalize buildings, equipment and courses.

Just what will happen if equal facilities are not available for the Negroes when school bells ring—and no one contends that fully equal facilities will be ready—is still a matter of speculation, even at this late date.

The leading Negro attorney in the equalization fight, Martin A. Martin of this city announced a month ago, "In September, I shall take my clients to the white school and insist that they be allowed to attend.'

However "unthinkable" this prospect is to most white Virginians, it still remains a possibility, and could lead to violence.

Martin told The Washington Post today: "Right now we are not in a position to say just what our plans are; we're still working on them. They have made some improvements in King George, but facilities certainly are not equal. As I see it, there is no alternative to the court order—the facilities have to be equal.

"If the situation is no adjusted, we will have to ask the judge to hold the school people in contempt of court—of course, that's something for the judge to decide, not us."

Expects Obedience to Court

Asked if an effort will be made to take Negro children into the white schools next week, as he previously announced, Martin declared.

"I'm going on the assumption that the court order will be obeyed . . . If separate facilities are not available, the only thing I can see is that they have to let those children into the white schools."

When it was noted that this would violate Virginia's segregation laws, he countered:

"As I understand the law, the Federal Courts and the United States Constitution are supreme; if Virginia laws or the Virginia constitution violate them, then Virginia will have to make the change in its laws."

Martin said he anticipated "no violence of any kind. I see no reason for violence. Of course, we expect equal protection on that, too."

Most observers here believe a peaceful settlement can be made in this dispute—through the courts. Some speculate, however, on what they term "impossible alternatives"—closing all the schools involved in the affected counties, thus "making them all equal," or moving whites into Negro schools and Negroes into white schools. Some few are hopeful that the Negro leaders will not press the issue immediately, permitting more time for correction.

The formal court orders on the King George and Gloucester County schools were issued late in July, resulting from decisions last spring by Federal District Court Judge Sterling Hutcheson.

In another case before Judge Hutcheson, settled by consent decree, the Surrey County School Board was directed to provide equal facilities for its students, and also equal salaries for Surrey's white and Negro teachers. Judge Hutcheson, in a fourth case, directed Chesterfield County to provide equal salaries to its Negro teachers. Chesterfield authorities have filed an appeal in this case.

While court fights over equal teacher salaries in Virginia date back to 1938, the decisions in the school facilities' cases were unprecedented.

Surrey Has to Sept. 15

Surrey County was given until September 15 to report on its equalization progress, but the orders leveling school facilities in King George and Gloucester Counties had the effect of an "immediate" directive. Until school actually opens, however, the Negro leaders cannot very well challenge effectiveness of the orders.

King George County is due east of Fredericksburg, Va., and is bounded on the north by the Potomac River. Washingtonians pass through it en route to Potomac Beach and Colonial Beach, in adjacent Westmoreland County.

T. Benton Gayle, division superintendent of schools for King George and Stafford counties, disclosed earlier this week that "a number of improvements" have been made at the King George Training School for Negro pupils enrolled in the 1946-47 school year.

Last month a motion for a new hearing in its case was filed by the Gloucester County school board, in an attempt to comply with the court order.

Surry County, southeast of here, is regarded as one of the State's most poverty-stricken communities, and Negro students outnumber the York county. The York ber white students 3 to 1.

In a July survey made by Dr. Fred M. Alexander, director of secondary education in Virginia, it was found there were 339 white and 973 Negro pupils enrolled in the 1946-47 school year.

Value of white schools per pupil was $264.98 compared to $182.56 for other Virginia counties. The value of Negro schools in Surry County was $51.39 per pupil, compared to $65.65 for Negroes elsewhere in the State.

In contrast to the majority of Virginia's counties, faced with soaring school populations and overcrowded schoolhouses—which have brought demands for a special session of the Virginia Assembly to provide construction funds—Surry County's population is "disappearing."

Big Drop in 30 Years

The county's population was 9715 in 1910; 7096 in 1930, and 6193 in 1940. From 1930 to 1945 its white school population decreased 52.4 per cent, the survey found, and its Negro school population decreased 34.5 per cent. Despite its preponderance of Negro population, there are no Negroes on the school board or county board of supervisors.

The surveyors recommended that Surry County's white and Negro high schools be consolidated with those in adjoining Sussex County in an effort to reduce school costs and provide equal facilities.

Because of its poor financial condition, Surry County was given extra time to equalize its teachers' salaries. In conformance with this, School Superintendent M. B. Joyner announced yesterday that Negro teachers' pay has been raised one half the differential between white teachers' salaries.

In Chesterfield County, which adjoins Richmond, school officials said they have mailed new contracts to Negro teachers which they said will equalize salaries, even though an appeal of the order is under way.

Judge Hutcheson, in first ruling on the Chesterfield, King George and Gloucester cases last April, said he was "not undertaking to supervise or direct . . . what steps must be taken to eliminate the discrimination" against Negroes.

He said he was aware of the "familiar contention" of financial difficulties and "the claim that the greater portion of the tax burden falls upon the white population," but:

"While I am not unmindful of the practical problems presented, a superficial consideration of these suggestions is sufficient to bring a realization that under the prevailing law, neither has any bearing upon the legal and factual questions here involved."

The suits charging discrimination in teachers salaries have been directed by a joint committee of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the Virginia Teachers Association, Inc., the latter composed of Negro teachers. The school facilities suits are sponsored by NAACP.

Similar Suits Planned

Martin is the chief attorney for the suits in the Richmond area. His firm, Hill, Martin and Robinson, includes Oliver W. Hill, recently elected to the new Richmond City Council, which will take office Tuesday when this city converts to a city manager form of government. Hill is the first Negro ever elected to such a post in Virginia.

Hill said today that plans are underway for filing similar equalization suits in other parts of the State. One such suit, involving Arlington schools, is pending in the Federal Court for the Northern District of Virginia.

In this suit, Leon A. Ransom of Washington represents Constance Carter, 16, who charged last year that she could not obtain courses she desires in the Hoffman-Boston school, which are available in Washington-Lee High School. Ransom said today, "The Arlington school board contends they have eliminated discrimination, but we say it still exists." He said the case will probably come up in court this month.

King George Votes $150,000 Bond Issue For New High School

By NNPA News Service

RICHMOND, Va.— Although incensed over the action of the King George County School Board in striking four subjects from the curriculum of its white high school last week in order to "equalize" it with its colored high school, citizens of the county voted favorably Saturday for the passage of a $150,000 bond issue referendum for the financing of a new Negro high school.

While contempt action is still pending, but the school board, meeting with Circuit Judge Leon M. Bazile, of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit, ordered the four courses in the county's one white high school dropped, as of last Friday in a move to make the curriculum in that school more similar to the curriculum in the one colored high school.

Schools Superintendent T. Benton Gayle, of King George, made it plain that the courses were whittled off over his objections.

"I thoroughly disapprove," Gayle said.

He added that he was eliminating the courses—chemistry, biology, physics, and geometry—only at the orders of the board.

Morrison, the board's attorney, said he and Gayle had held out to the last against making such a move.

"I was vigorously opposed to the action of the board and the circuit judge in dropping subjects from the school curriculum, and when they decided to act in such a manner I saw to it that it was read into the minutes that I, as Commonwealth's attorney of the county and attorney for the school board, was opposed to the action," Morrison said, adding:

"I do not believe we can comply with Judge Hutcheson's order by tearing down the white schools. What we've got to do is build up the colored schools, and we've done that until today there is substantial equalization between our white and Negro schools, aside from the action of the board.

"I do not believe the colored people of our county want the white schools torn down. They told me they didn't.

"I just hope the board's action does not interfere with our chances of passing our $150,000 bond issue to provide for building colored school facilities. It will mean a lot, if passed, in proving that we in King George, know how to run our county."

COUNTY VOTED SATURDAY

People in the county voted Saturday on a resolution which would authorize the bond issue. Morrison said passage of the resolution, he felt, would make it possible for construction of facilities which would assure complete equalization of the white and colored schools.

G. Tyler Miller, state superintendent of public instruction, declined to comment on the situation. He said he had not yet studied the action and wished to confer with Gayle before commenting.

He pointed out, however, that the step may affect accreditation of the white school and jeopardize chances of seniors obtaining jobs after they graduate.

In line with this Morrison said he feared it might not be accepted into certain colleges. He said some parents had announced their intentions of withdrawing their children from King George High School and sending them to Fredericksburg.

Attorney Martin made the following statement on the development:

"Our only interest is in trying to bring the colored schools up with the white. If it is correct (that the courses are to be stricken from the curricluum) it's one of the worst things I've ever heard of being perpetrated by any school board in an attempt to equalize facilities.

"Up until now, it has appeared to me that Mr. Gayle has been wilfully obstructing equalizing of the schools. If the news story (telling of the development) is accurate, it appears the board is doing the obstructing, and Mr. Gayle has belatedly discovered his mistake and found he can't buck the federal courts and is now actually attempting to comply with the court's order.

"It seems the school board maliciously attempted to create sympathy for its position in not equalizing the schools and attempted to prejudice people against the federal courts, the plaintiffs, their attorneys and the organizations supporting them.

"There is no excuse that I can see. In my opinion, the decision of the school board to bring the white school down to the level of the colored school in order to attempt to comply with the court's decree is one of the most dastardly things I have ever heard of, particularly when it would be so easy to bring the colored school up to the standard of the white school."

King George Board Accepts Agreement

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 11 (Spl.)—An agreement in the King George County legal battle over equalization of Negro and white schools was approved today by the county school board.

The agreement, reached yesterday between lawyers for Negro pupils and the board, provides:

1. That the board's attorney ask Federal Judge Sterling Hutcheson for continuance to September 1, 1949, of a contempt citation against the board, now pending in the Federal District Court at Richmond.

2. That an administrative order in which School Supt. T. Benton Gayle placed a white principal, a white commercial teacher and a white agriculture teacher over the Negro pupils who brought the contempt action claiming the county board had not equalized schools as ordered by the Federal court.

The approval came during a meeting in which the board restored chemistry and biology to the white high school curriculum. The two subjects were among five dropped from the white school to equalize the Negro and white schools by lowering the white school curriculum.

The contempt hearing had been tentatively set for December 6 in the Richmond court.

Following today's meeting, school board members went to King George Training School to discuss acquisition of land needed for the new Negro school building.

The agreement approved by the board was reached in Richmond at a conference between Horace T. Morrison, King George Commonwealth's Attorney and school board counsel, and Martin A. Martin, counsel for the Negro pupils who brought the Fight Looms Over 'Equal' School Plan

(Special to The Courier)

FREDERICKSBURG, Va. — Horace T. Morrison, Commonwealth's attorney for King George County, threatened this week to take the case of the "equalization" of educational facilities in that county to the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals.

The King George School Board sought to "equalize" educational facilities for white and Negro pupils by dropping four courses taught in the county's white high school. The board's action followed a conference with Circuit Judge Leon M. Bazile.

Morrison was critical of Judge Bazile and said he believed the judge had usurped the function of the Commonwealth's attorney as counsel for the school board.

OPPOSES ACTION

He said he was "vigorously opposed to the action of the board and the circuit judge in dropping subjects from the white school curriculum."

The board ordered courses in geometry, physics, chemistry and biology eliminated at the white high school and said by its action it had equalized educational facilities.

Morrison said he will apply to the State's highest court for a writ of mandamus "if it goes much further." He was referring to the action of the board.

Meanwhile, parents of pupils in the King George white high school are disturbed because the dropped subjects, under State regulations, are necessary for graduation. Under the rules, a pupil must take at least one of the four eliminated courses in order to graduate.

Leaders in the educational field doubt that students from the King George school can be admitted to colleges as long as the four courses are not taught.

The King George school board is one of two Virginia school boards ordered to show cause in Federal District Court why it should not be held in contempt for failure to comply with an injunction, signed last spring, requiring equalization of school facilities for the two races.

The board has asked the court to dismiss the show cause order on the ground that it has equalized facilities.

The court fight was started by attorneys for the NAACP and was brought on behalf of Negro pupils.

In September, on advice of the attorneys, several pupils of the King George (Negro) Training School tried to register at the high school for whites, but they were turned away.

King George Voters Approve $150,000 School Bond Issue

King George, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.). King George County, which is deep in controversy over equalizing facilities at white and Negro schools, today voted to finance a new Negro high school.

The referendum tally showed that 322 persons had voted for the $150,000 bond issue and 245 against it, a total of 567 votes. The county cast 719 votes in the election last Tuesday.

Voting officials said 49 Negroes cast votes, although about 200 of them were eligible to cast ballots.

The vote did not offer any immediate solution of the county's problem to comply with a Federal Court order to provide facilities in its school for Negroes equal to those provided in the white schools. The school board has dropped four courses in the white schools in an effort to meet the terms of the court directive.

County officials also emphasized that it will be some time before the new school for Negroes can be built as authorized in today's referendum vote. It has been estimated that the $150,000 project will add about 80 cents to the county's present tax rate of $1.60 a thousand dollars, claimed to be one of the lowest tax rates in Virginia.

While the voting was in progress, the school board gathered for a regular meeting and heard 21 white patrons urge that it restore certain classes eliminated in the white schools of the county Friday to equalize curricula in white and Negro schools.

The board declined to act on the requests today, but indicated some action would be taken early next week.

Commonwealth's Attorney Horace T. Morrison, who attended the meeting, said later that unless the board acts voluntarily it appears that patrons will ask him next week to file mandamus proceedings with the State Supreme Court of Appeals to require the restoration of dropped courses.

Morrison told the patrons at the meeting that Circuit Judge Leon M. Bazile's recommendations to the school board in special session had "practically forced" the board to order School Superintendent T. Benton Gayle to eliminate courses offered in the white high scool that could not be taught in the Negro school.

A. W. WKalker, school board member, said it was with great regret that the board took action to drop the classes.

"If any of you," he told the patrons, "had been there at the special session of the board, I am confident you should have decided as we did. I don't believe that Judge Bazile's advice and practically a command can be cast aside without consideration."

"Nearest Thing to Order"

Superintendent Gayle said Judge Bazile's recommendation "was the nearest thing to an order I ever saw."

However, Judge Bazile said he did not suggest lowering the standards of white schools to meet those of Negro schools, but merely had pointed out that means of complying with the technical terms of a Federal court order to equalize the schools.

The judge said he told the board "that an injunctive court order, issued by a competent court, is a serious order, and must be complied with."

If the school board were allowed to put itself in the position of being in contempt of the Federal court order, Judge Bazile said, it would be subject to heavy fines, imprisonment, or both.

Such punishment, he added, would have the effect of paralyzing the country's school system.

Judge Bazile said that after the school board had heard him, it decided to drop geometry, physics, biology and chemistry from the list of subjects taught in the white schools.

Dr. Fred M. Alexander, State director of secondary education, said that technical schools require several mathematic credits, including solid geometry. He said most liberal arts colleges require three units of mathematics and some science in answer to questions as to whether or not the King George school system would any longer be able to prepare its white students for further education.

G. Tyler Miller, State superintendent of public instruction, said the main problem at King George might well prove to be the difficulty for students to get as many as 16 credits, required by an accredited high school. The board's action in dropping subjects was also seen as possibly preventing the graduation of some seniors on schedule.

Previously, Judge Bazile had announced that if the $150,000 referendum did not pass, the county could expect a Federal court order to admit Negro children to white schools. If that happened, Judge Bazile said, he would close all schools until they were equalized.

Dismissal of Petition Asked by Gloucester

Newport News, Va., Nov. 6 (AP). Attorneys for the Gloucester County School Board have asked dismissal of a Federal Court petition that sought to have the board held in contempt of a court order.

The order, issued by Federal Judge Sterling Hutcheson, had instructed the board to equalize school facilities between Negro and white pupils, charged the board had failed to comply with the order. Judge Mutchinson issued a rule directing the school board to show cause why it should not be found in contempt, and it was this rule the school board attorneys answered yesterday.

In asking dismissal of the petition, school attorneys said school facilities for Negro children in the county have been substantially mproved since the issuance of the Federal order.

Further evidence of the county's compliance, the attorneys said, could be found in consideration of a $750,000 bond issue for a Negro high school and the raising of the county tax rate as a means of increasing the Negro school budget.

False Equality

There is something profoundly heartrending about the efforts of authorities in King George County, Va., to equalize school facilities for white and Negro students. What the officials have done is to equalize on the lowest common denominator. The Negro King George Training School does not offer certain courses given at the white high school. Consequently, these courses are to be dropped from the white curriculum. They include such essential subjects as physics, chemistry, biology, geometry and advanced algebra.

The purpose of these gyrations is a "show cause" order issued by a Federal Court, under which officials would have been liable to contempt citations if the facilities had not been "equalized" by Friday. Technically, what has been done may be compliance with the order at least with respect to courses offered, but it is the kind of compliance in which no one, not even the bitterest foe of segregation, can take any pride. It is conceivable that the change may result in the disaccreditation of the white high school. And certainly the dropping of these elective courses is likely to cause resentment among white students and their parents.

There is no doubt that the abolition of all educational discrimination presents a real problem in King George County. This is one of the more impoverished Virginia counties, and the financial burden of additional facilities for Negroes at this time may seem staggering. This is a realistic demonstration of the fact that the burden of maintaining segregated facilities falls most heavily on the localities least able to pay for them. The moral is one which Virginians ought to take to heart. If there is to be any positive improvement in Virginia schools, then it is obvious that this improvement will have to encompass students of both races. The mounting cost of segregation in education is the one factor which above and beyond all other considerations, ultimately is most likely to lead to its abolition.

EQUALIZATION PLAN DENOUNCED BY WHITE

NEW YORK, Nov. 15—Action of the King George County (Virginia) school officials removing chemistry, physics, biology and geometry from the curriculum of white high schools in a move to "equalize" educational opportunities was denounced today by Walter White, NAACP secretary, as a "vicious device, calculated to incite race hatred."

"In our drive for equalization," Mr. White said, "we are not asking for a downard revision of facilities and opportunities. We do not wish to deprive white youth of a decent education. Our demand is for raising the standard of education for both Negro and white students. This objective can be attained only through the abolition of the cumbersome and uneconomical system of segregated schools. By resorting to ths device, a court order to equalize school facilities in the county after attorneys for the National Association for the Advancement of Colred People had won a suit to compel the county to provide facilities for Negro children equal to those offered white boys and girls.

The move was made in response to King County School officials have betrayed their trust."

White School Cuts Courses To 'Equalize'

King George Drops 5; New Negro Grade Is Ordered; Court's Deadline Is Today

King George, Va., Nov. 4 (Spl.).—In a drastic attempt to obey a Federal Court order to provide equal white and Negro school facilities here, five courses have been dropped from the local white high school curriculum.

At the same time, the King George County school board ordered that by Friday a ninth grade class should be created at the Negro King George Training School.

The latter action involves promoting half of the Negro eighth graders to create the ninth grade class. By this, both the white and Negro high schools will be on a five-year basis, with eighth through twelfth grades.

Both actions are intended to show that King George County is doing everything possible to "equalize" facilities, in addition to a referendum set for Saturday on the question of a $150,000 bond issue for a new Negro high school.

Deadline Today

Federal Judge Sterling Hutcheson on October 22 gave the King George County school board a deadline of this Friday to "show cause" why it should not be held in contempt of his equalization order.

Dropped by the white high school were its elective courses in chemistry, physics, biology, geometry, and algebra II.

School Superintendent T. Benton Gayle said today that he "thoroughly disapproves" abolishing these courses.

While some [illegible] were expressed that this might [illegible] the school its accreditation [illegible] school, William L. S[illegible], supervising principal of [illegible] the white and Negro scho[illegible]. "I don't see where that [illegible] affected. The school is still [illegible]ing all courses that are requi[illegible] for accreditation."

Smith said th[illegible]hite high school has 177 students, and dropping the courses affects about 80 pupils. There are about 73 pupils in the Negro high school, he said.

No Pupils for Ninth

At the start of this term, an 8th grade was added to the Negro high school. Seventh grade pupils went into the 8th grade this year, instead of the 9th grade. Thus there were no pupils to enter the 9th grade.

Smith said examination were held yesterday to promote half of the present 8th graders to the 9th grade, so there will be pupils in all grades through the 12th.

The Negro school has some science equipment, but no physics and chemistry courses, while biology and algebra II are not being taught there this term, Smith said.

Earlier this week, Circuit Judge Leon M. Bazille said here that if the Federal Court should order the white school available to Negroes in the absence of equal Negro facilities, he would shut down the white school until such facilities were available through a bond issue or other means.

Similar views had been expressed here earlier, with the reasoning that, "If we close the white school, then no one can claim the white facilities are better."

Last September, a group of Negro students attempted to register at the white school, contending that while there had been some improvements at their school, facilities were not equal to the white school. They were refused registration in view of Virginia's segregation laws.

Negro leaders then sought the contempt action against King George, and Gloucester County, which is involved in a similar case with a Friday "show cause" deadline.

Restoration Of Subjects Is Due Today

Contempt of court action against the King George County School Board may be dropped if that board today endorses agreements reached yesterday by attorneys in the schools' equalization dilemma.

Restoration to the white school curriculum of courses recently discontinued as an equalization move also may be forthcoming today.

Such were the indications of Horace T. Morrison, attorney for the board, following a conference here yesterday between attorneys in the case and the Federal judge who ordered an equalization of schools' facilities to whites and Negroes in the county.

"We expect to have those courses back on the curriculum by tomorrow night," Morrison said yesterday as he left the chambers of Federal District Judge Sterling Hutcheson.

He said resumption of contempt proceedings, brought by Negro attorneys against the board in the absence of what they deemed "substantial" equalization, was tentatively set for December 8.

"No Need for Hearings"

"But if our school board and our school superintendent do certain things tomorrow," he went on, "there will be no need for these hearings."

He made it plain that restoration of two courses to the white school curriculum came under the heading of the "certain things."

And he said the board and the superintendent of schools, T. Benton Gayle, will be called upon this morning to give attention to the matter of how and when the courses may be restored.

The two courses—chemistry and biology—were among five stricken from the curriculum in the county's only white high school last week in what board members assertedly construed as a technical move to equalize the curriculum with that carried by the county's only Negro school.

Morrison said the board acted on the advice of Circuit Judge Leon M. Bazile, who told the school men they could comply with Judge Hutcheson's order by either raising the Negro courses of study or lowering the white courses to a par with those of the Negro schools.

Morrison, who is also Commonwealth's Attorney of King George, said yesterday that Judge Babile would not be present at the meeting to be called today.

"I'm not going to ask him to be there and I hope he won't be," Marrison said. "I'm trying my case in a Federal court."

Action Protested

Both Morrison and Gayle have said they protested the action of the board in dropping the subjects, three of which were restored to the curriculum Tuesday when Judge Bazile said such a move was permissable on grounds that there were no candidates for instruction in the three subjects—physics, second-year algebra, and geometry—in the Negro schools.

King George parents had protested dropping the courses and contended it would make it impossible for some high school students to enter some colleges. They talked of transferring their children to schools in Fredericksburg.

The issue afforded a common meeting ground for attorneys on both sides of the legal fence. Morrison said he would ask the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals for an order restoring the courses, if other action wasn't taken. And Martin A. Martin, an attorney representing the Negro students who first brought suit in the case, described the board's action as "dastardly."

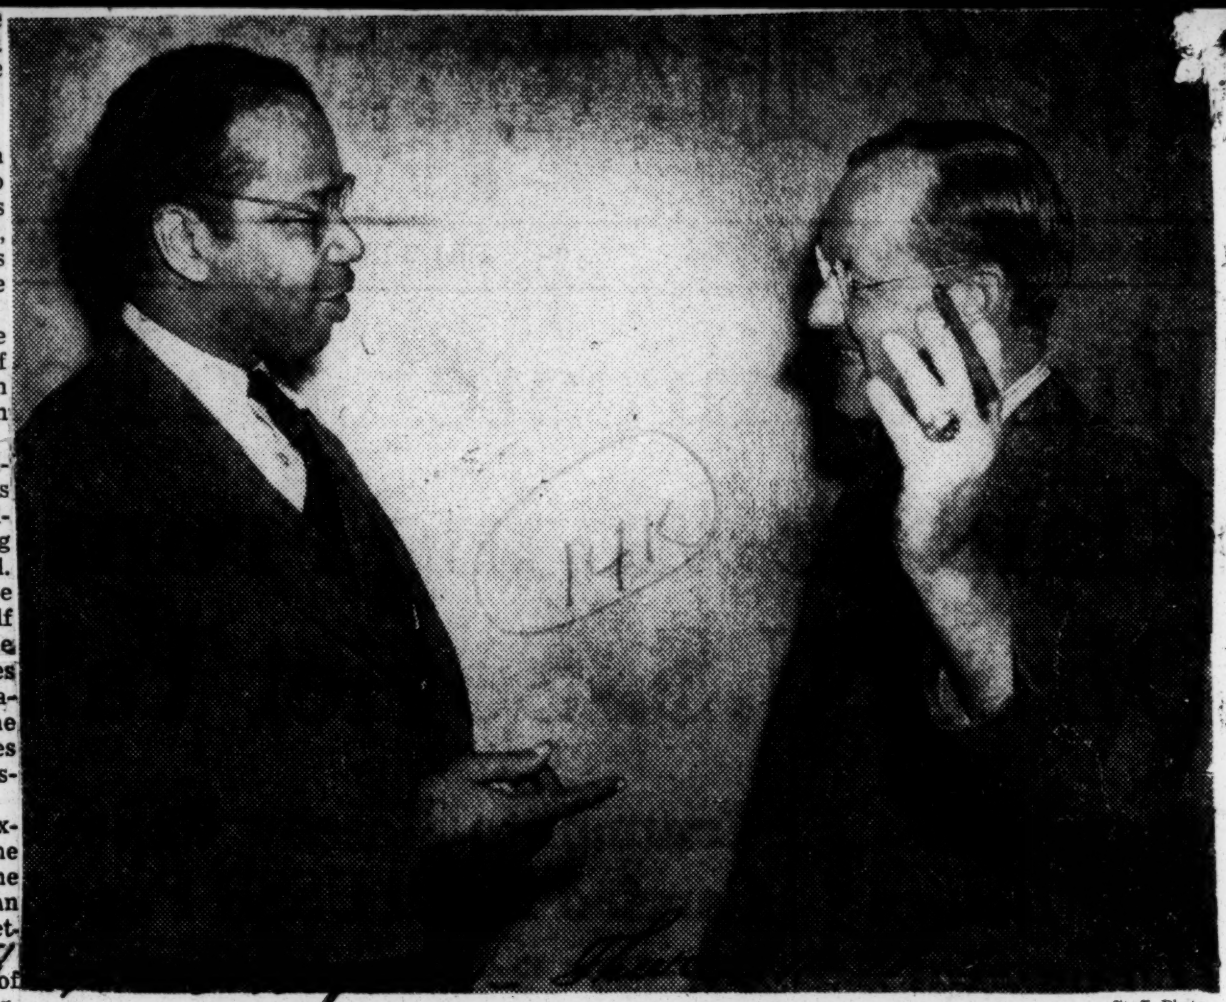
While both sides rained verbal stones upon the school board, the matter was further complicated by a county referendum Saturday on the question of whether to float a bond issue of $150,000, to be earmarked for construction work in Negro schools.

When the bond issue passed, Morrison called anew for restoration of the courses and asked Judge Hutcheson to hear him and Negro attorneys thrash out phases of the case in the judge's chambers yesterday.

Judge Hutcheson previously had adjourned a hearing on the contempt case, brought by the Negro attorneys to back up their petition for equalization, and asked Morrison to file an answer to allegations made by the other attorneys. Judge Hutcheson has not set a date for resumption of the contempt proceedings.

Martin described yesterday's conference as a "satisfactory" one. Attorneys Martin, Oliver W. Hill, and Spottswood Robinson III, nodded agreement.

Robert Pruit, executive secretary of the Virginia Teachers' Association, a Negro group, also attended the conference. He said his organization urged immediate addition of the course.



—Staff Photo

King George School Case Lawyers Find Meeting Ground

Martin A. Martin (left) Talks With Horace T. Morrison

FHA Home Management Supervisors Are Appointed

WASHINGTON, D. C. — (ANP) Five of the eight assistant home management supervisors employed to help Negro farm families who borrow from the Farmers Home Administration in Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia and Mississippi are already on duty and the other three are expected to begin work early in November.

In addition a farm management supervisor, Jesse W. Mason, is being appointed to work with FHA borrowers in Lincoln county, Arkansas. He is expected to report for duty in the near future.

The FHA makes loans for the purchase and operation of farms to families who cannot obtain adequate credit from other sources. Trained supervisors help the borrowers adopt the improved farm and home management practices necessary for better farming and better living.

The farm and home management supervisors are adequately prepared both by training and experience for the work to which they have been assigned.

Alabama—Ernestine M. Tucker. Born in Monroeville, Ala., and graduated from Tuskegee with a BS in home economics in 1946. Appointed Negro home demonstration agent, Hale county, Ala., until December, 1947, when she resigned to work with the Veterans Administration in Greensboro. Her transfer to FHA with headquarters in Montgomery was effective Aug. 30.

Mildred E. Meadows. Native of White Hall, Ala. Graduate of Tuskegee, 1947, with a BS in home economics. From September, 1937 to June, 1939, she was vocational home economics teacher in Monroe, Ga. From June, 1939 until her transfer to the Farmers Home Administration. she was Negro home demonstration agent in Colbert county, Alabama, with headquarters at Tuscumbia.

Arkansas — Jennie B. Marbles. Born in Marianna, Ark. Completed high school work at Philander Smith College, former student of Fisk University and received a BS in home economics from A. M. and N. College, Pine Bluff in 1940. Before joining FHA she held positions as home economics teacher, home economist, and home demonstration agent.

Ruth B. Burns. Born in Carthage, Ark. Graduate of Dunbar High in Little Rock and received BS degree in home economics from Texas College. Taught in elementary school and was home demonstration agent, May, 1946 to October, 1948.

Georgia—R. Juanita Wells, born in Watsonia, Ala. She later moved to Tennessee where she received her elementary and high school training at Chattanooga. Graduate of Tuskegee in 1942 with BS degree in home economics. Miss Wells has done considerable graduate work at Tuskegee and has 13 quarter hours credit toward her master's degree.

Amanda M. Cummings whose appointment became effective Nov. 1, was born at Thomson, Ga. She moved with her family to Augusta, later graduating from Paine College in 1942 with an AB in home economics. She was a home economics teacher and active in church work, 4-H club work, and adult classes in homemaking.

Mississippi — One of the two county home management supervisors for Mississippi is Miss Florence A. McGhee. She was born and reared on a farm in Jefferson county. Miss. A former employee of the Farm Security Administration, she has served as home managment supervisor at Mileston and recently has been store and cotton gin manager of the Mileston Cooperative Association composed of all Negro membership. She is a graduate of Alcorn College in home economics and took post graduate work at Iowa State and Tuskegee.

In addition to the home management supervisors, J. W. Mason, farm management specialist, will work with the agency in Arkansas. His headquarters will probably be in Lincoln county. Mason was born in Pine Bluff, attended Arkansas Baptist College from 1928-32 and Tuskegee 1932-36. He was instructor of vocational agriculture, Fayetteville ;assistant supervisor Farm Security Administration, Sevier county, and county agent in Crittenden county, Marion, 1944-48.

Ocie Lee Smith, special representative in the FHA state office, Little Rock, has been with the agency since 1943.

Illness Keeps Most Teachers Off Their Jobs

The Advertiser
Montgomery Ala.
Fri. 7-23-48

Substitutes Exceed 11 Day In Motngomery, Statistics Show

Substitute teachers in the Montgomery Public Schools exceeded 11 a day through the school year ending June 30, 1948, it is revealed by Derwood L. Taylor, administrative assistant to the superintendent of schools. The total days of absence by regular teachers amounted to 2,149 with 1,953 days of substitute service provided.

The reason for the largest number of teacher absences was personal illness. This cause alone accounted for 1,502 days or 70 per cent of the total number of days which teachers missed from their classroom work. Other causes. with the percentage April, when 141 days were recorded as compared with 98 days in the white teacher group.

It is believed that the percentage of absences by the regular school teachers, while amounting to about two per cent daily in the Montgomery system, compared most favorably with that of absences in other areas of community service, although school officials do not have available any comparable figures.

of days allotted to each, included illness in immediate household, 14 per cent; death in family, 10 per cent; personal business, four per cent; professional duties, two per cent.

The cost of teacher absences totaled $11,621, Taylor stated, this being the amount necessary for the employment of substitute teachers.

There were 68 persons who served as substitute teachers in the Montgomery schools during the past year, Taylor indicated. The greatest number of days taught by a single substitute teacher was 108; the fewest number of days taught by any substitute was two, with the median number at 24 days of service.

The largest number of teacher absences was in the month of February when 317 days of absences were recorded; 205 on the part of white teachers and 112 on the part of Negro teachers. The largest number of Negro absences was in the month of

Judge Denies Gainer Writ

Daily World

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(SNS)—Judge J. Edgar Bowron last Tuesday afternoon denied a peremptory writ asking that Mrs. Ruby Jackson Gainer be placed back on her teaching job in the Jefferson County School System.

His ruling came upon his interpretation of a ruling in which the State Supreme Court reversed his upholding of the dismissal upon the technical point of the board's attorney, Harvey DeRamus failing to make a return to the alternative writ.

Atlanta, Ga.

Judge Bowron's writ denial was in line with the reasoning of Attorney DeRamus, following a hearing on Tuesday morning, that the meaning of the higher court's opinion was that the case had to be tried over and the proper return made.

The Supreme Court in its reversal failed to rule on the merits of the case.

Tues. 4-20-48

Attorneys George Brown and Arthur D. Shores contended that it was too late to make a return in the case and that the effect of the higher court's reversal was re-instatement of Mrs. Gainer.

Daily World

Mrs. Gainer's attorney indicated that they would study Judge Bowron's writ denial and then take one or two courses of action. They might seek a writ of mandamus from the State Supreme Court to compel Judge Bowron to comply with the teacher's attorney's interpretation of the decision. Or they might appeal the ruling.

Atlanta, Ga.

Court Again Hears Union Teacher's Suit To Regain Job

The Defender
Chicago Ill.
4-17-48

BIRMINGHAM — Trial of a suit brought by Ruby Jackson Gainer, a Negro school teacher to force the Jefferson County Board of Education to reinstate her to the position from which she was dismissed last year began in Circuit Judge J. Edgar Bowron's court Thursday.

The teacher charges that her dismissal was brought about by her election as president of a newly formed CIO teachers' union here and not, as the board declared, for "incompetency and insubordination." Judge Bowron last year ruled that the board had acted within its authority. The case was appealed to the state supreme court which reversed it on a technicality without resolving the main issues. The CIO is backing the teacher's suit for reinstatement.

Prof. Smith Scheduled To Face Morals Charges

Atlanta Daily World
Wed. 6-9-48

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(SNS)—
By EMORY O. JACKSON

Prof. John T. Smith, principal of the Warrior School of the Jefferson County School System, who back-tracked in the salary equalization fight, is scheduled to answer sodomy charges before Judge G. C. Boner at 2 p. m. Wednesday June 9. Smith lives at 1523 North 7th Avenue.

The school principal who took down in the equal-pay fight was arrested on April 29 on a warrant sworn out by Booker T. Washington, charging that Smith had unnatural relations with Mr. Washington's son, George Smith posted $500 bond.

But in the warrant, according to court attaches, Smith is charged with "carnal knowledge." A civic leader of Warrior, where Smith teaches said that "Ive heard some thing" but was unaware of the charges, he said.

Three Warrior school teachers in a letter dated March 20 that was published in the April 2 issue of the Birmingam World charged that Prof. Smith influenced them in sending a letter to Dr. John E. Bryan, school superintendent which was read at the salary-parity hearing before Special Master Reid Barnse on March 23 suggesting the teacher's withdraw as petitioners in the suit.

"Misrepresented and misinterpreted statements made by our principal (Prof. John T. Smith) was responsible for our sending a letter to your (Supt. Bryan's) office."

Smith, a former president of the Jefferson County Negro Teachers Association and former treasurer of the local CIO teachers union, was listed among the 14 teachers named by Board Attorney Harvey DeRamus at the March 23 hearing as desiring to take his name off the equal-salary petition. Unlike his co-workers Smith never said publicly that he was going through with the equal-pay fight.

At the close of the 1946-47 school year, there were unconfirmed reports that Smith was in hot water, his job imperiled due to social charges allegedly advanced against him by school patrons. It was said that his services were terminated but restored after an alleged powwow between Smith and school officials.

Subsequently, Smith resigned from the union office, and reportedly hinted broadly in a confidential way to some of his close associates that they call off the equal-salary fight. The high school department of his school was discontinued at the end of the 1946-47 school year.

President of the JNTA when the case was first filed, Smith wrote a letter to Dr. Bryan, which was later published in the Birmingham World asserting that the association did not have anything to do with the case. Smith denied writing the letter until it was reproduced in this newspaper.

Smith is married and has a daughter. His wife, Mrs. Ida Smith teaches at the Leeds School. She wrote one of the letters asking removal of her name from the equal-salary petition. Smith teaches in the evening school of Booker T. Washington Business College and is a graduate of State Teachers College.

High Court Ruling Backs Ala. Teacher

Courier
7-24-48

(From The Courier Birmingham Correspondent)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Another round in her fight for reinstatement as a [illegible] school teacher here was won by Mrs. Ruby Jackson Gainer, fired after she had sought equal salaries for Negro teachers through Federal court action, when the State Supreme Court, Thursday, reversed a lower court ruling which had refused her a writ of mandamus against the Jefferson County School Board.

Ousted from her post by the [illegible] School Board, she sought redress in a Jefferson County Circuit Court asking a writ of mandamus against board to show cause why she should not be reinstated to her position. The decision of the Circuit Court denied her petition.

But Chief Justice Lucien D. Gardner wrote the opinion of the Alabama Supreme Court on Thursday, reversing and remanding the decision of the lower court. Mrs. Gainer had been released from her job June 3, 1947, when the School Board cancelled her contract.

In her appeal from the Circuit Court decision to the State Supreme Court, Mrs. Gainer charged that her contract had been filed later than the allowed time limit set by law. Judge Bowron ordered Jefferson County school officials to both white and Negro teachers.

Mrs. Gainer was then president of the local union of the United States, CIO, and head of the Public Workers' Association, and had merely contended that Mrs. Gainer's contract had been cancelled by a majority vote of the board.

WIDE ATTENTION

She charged that her removal was a violation of her rights under a State law, because the contract cancellation was for personal reasons. She also accused the Federal court case in which she had failed of violating a State law requiring that she had failed to show unjust treatment by the teachers not later than the May of the preceding year. Circuit Judge Bowron on Aug. 5, 1947 had ordered the School Board to reinstate Mrs. Gainer or return to show why she should not be reinstated. The board in

Principal Active In NAACP Is Fired

CAMDEN, Ala.—Because of his activities in organizing a branch of the NAACP in this city, Prof. C. J. Moore, head of the Alberta City School, has been dismissed from his position, according to reports here. Professor Moore was also instrumental in forcing county compliance with minimum salary rulings for teachers in Wilcox County.

Charged with "immorality," Professor Moore was to have had a hearing before the county board of trustees Monday of this week. Charges were preferred by an allegedly "disgruntled" trustee, James Hudson. No particulars were filed by County Supt. W. J. Jones.

While this action is taking place in Camden, Hayes King, NAACP campaign worker in Birmingham, was arrested by police on grounds that his activities appeared to be "communistic" or something like a "policy racket." At first held in jail on charges of vagrancy, attorneys later had the charges against King dropped.

NEGRO PRINCIPAL - - WHITE TEACHERS

The Eagle
Thur 4-22-48
Tulsa, Oklahoma

Readers of a recent Ebony issue were happy to learn that San Francisco's first Negro school principal is a former Tulsan. William Lecoy Cobb has been selected for his second year to head an all-white staff of 18 teachers at the Emerson School. The one-time Tulsan earns $6,500 in his post and is studying for his doctorate at the University of California.

Graduates of Booker Washington, during the time of Cobb, remember him. Concerning Cobb, EBONY says: "The biggest advance was made, when tall, lithe, neatly-tailored William Cobb was named as the city's first Negro school principal. Beginning his second year this month, Cobb has found his administration quietly accepted. "Children of themselves have no racial prejudice," he notes. "Grownups sometimes are disposed to intolerance, and perhaps unconsciously will pass some of it on to the children. Or a child will pick up a word or two in the street and want to try them out to see what reaction he will get.

In such cases Cobb will call the offender before him and gently prod the youngster: "You have called Johnny a bad name. Johnny doesn't like that bad name—he likes to be called Johnny. Johnny will be your friend and do things for you if he likes you. But Johnny won't like you if you call him bad names. Nobody likes bad names." Cobb will never mention anything about racial prejudice to the offender. If more drastic action is called for, his formula calls for ostracizing the offender by ignoring him. "A child can stand being ignored just so long, then he will humble himself to come back into the group and take his place within it."

Happy about his job and very enthused about San Francisco as a city, Cobb feels: "Through education of all, race relations can be improved. The more races know of each other, the fewer are their prejudices."

Tulsans are thankful of Ebony for such a fine coverage on the achievements of one of its ex-citizens. Oftentimes, we read about the wonderful achievements of former Tulsans through national publications. The Oklahoma Eagle extends its congratulations to Principal Cobb.

California

SAN FRANCISCO—Breaking the color bars of the teaching profession here is the feat of Mrs. Josephine Cole, 39, who five years ago became the first colored elementary school teacher here, and this spring was the first to be appointed to teach in the high schools.

A graduate of the University of California where she is working for her master's degree, Mrs. Cole, an English teacher, is a native of San Francisco. She began her career in 1935 when she taught French and American history at St Vincent's Parochial School. Her husband, Audley Cole, was the first colored motorman here.

Proud of her trail-blazing, Mrs. Cole says, "We have to get people affected by prejudice to look at things objectively; the schools have a wonderful opportunity to help solve this problem." She has been assigned to Balboa High School.

English Teacher Hurdles Two Color Bars in San Francisco

14m 1948

General

Attorney Cited For Successful Conduction Of School Suit Case

VIENNA, Va.—Attorney James H. Raby, legal advisor to the Fairfax county branch of the NAACP, was recently given a special statement of graitude by local NAACP members for successfully conducting the case of Mrs. Lottie E. Taylor, vs. the Commonwealth of Virginia.

ATTY. JAMES H. RABY

Another attorney, prominent in similar suits, was previously given credit for the direction of this case. Mr. Raby, however, is the only attorney to argue for Mrs. Taylor before the State Court of Appeals.

TEXT OF CITATION

The text of the citizens' citation to the attorney follows:

We, the officers and members of the Fairfax county branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, do hereby express our thanks and appreciation to Attorney James H. Raby, Alexandria, Va. for his legal aid in the case of Mrs. Lottie E. Taylor vs. the Commonwealth of Virginia, decided by the Supreme Court of Virginia.

Mr. Raby is our legal advisor, and when Mrs. Taylor was arrested for failure to move to the back of a bus when requested to do so by its driver, he came to her aid. He was the original attorney in the case and he was the only attorney who argued the case before the Supreme Court of Appeals at Virginia.

For fear that our citizens do not know who the lawyer was in the case, we make this public display of gratitude. We are pleased with the way Mr. Raby handled the case.

Rev. Milton Sheppard, president
Rev. Oliver Hall, treasurer
[illegible] A. West, secretary

New Jersey Needs Economics Teachers

TRENTON, N. J.—(ANP)—Reports here in educational circles are to the effect that several desirable posts are available in home economics field in the New Jersey school system.

Recently with the adoption of a new state constitution, the color bar was lifted in the schools of New Jersey. Negro teachers and school children have been integrated into the general school system without separation or segregation.

FIRST IN COUNTY SCHOOLS—Mrs. Amelda Sellers of West Elizabeth, Pa., first Negro school teacher appointed by the Allegheny County (Pennsylvania) Board of Education, shown with Frank P. Schomaker, supervising principal of North Versailles Township schools, who recommended her for the position.—Harris Photo.

14m 1948

Georgia

"Laxity in Administration of Negro Schools"

Penalize Two Atlanta Teachers

Pittsburgh Courier

(Special to The Pittsburgh Courier)

ATLANTA, Ga. — In a compromise move last week, Prof. and Mrs. Reuben Taylor, city school teachers, were restored to their duties, but penalized on charges they were absent without leave and without proper authority.

Sat 12-4-48

The hearing for the teachers, held before the Board of Education, demonstrated laxity in the administration of Negro schools and weaknesses on the part of Negro administrators in the light of the board's firmness.

Philadelphia Pa.

The board trial started before a packed group in the board chambers and continued rather warm for more than two hours before a recess was taken. When the recess was over, Deveraux McClatchey, board member, made a motion that depositions be voted on, wherein both defendants wre found guilty, that they suffer loss of pay for the time of suspension since Oct. 15, that Professor Taylor be placed on probation for three years and demoted two steps in the salary scale ($20 monthly) and that Mrs. Taylor be demoted one step in the salary scale ($10 monthly).

The Taylors had absented themselves from the city to attend an affair of honor in Chicago for a Northwestern University professor. They claimed to have gotten excuses from their principals — Professor Taylor from Principal C. L. Gideons of David T. Howard High School and Mrs. Taylor from Principal C. H. Cornell of Washington High School.

The board said the excuses to leave the jobs and city had not been gotten, properly, from the superintendent's office. Defense for one of the defendants said one of the principals' memory was "conveniently bad." The defense also pointed out that it had been the custom of teachers merely to get the permission of their principal to be absent from classes.

Atlanta citizens felt that the board was taking reprisals for the recent parity victory in which Mr. Taylor figured prominently as president of the Gate City Teachers Association. It was believed that the board was out to get Taylor and other leaders. Professor Taylor, however, secured one of the most noted counsel in the section to defend him and pressure was brought from many quarters to prevent him from being a martyr in the salary fight.

Teachers Restored

Atlanta Daily World

Members of the Atlanta Education Board, following extended trial-hearings into charges against Prof. R. M. Taylor Tuesday, voted to restore them to their teaching posts after they had entered guilty pleas. Under the terms of the agreement, Prof. Taylor will lose pay for the time he was under suspension; will be demoted two steps in the so-called Teachers' Tract, carrying with it a loss of $10 per month for each step, and will be placed on a three-year probationary period. Mrs. Taylor will also suffer the loss of pay for the time she was under suspension and will be demoted one step in the pay tract.

Sun 11-28-48

We had hoped that Prof. Taylor would not abandon his fight, since the charges against him and his wife were nothing different from what all other teachers have been doing for years and years at the school. But inasmuch as he has agreed to the compromise, we trust it will be to the best interests of all concerned. In carrying the case that far, we think the Taylors rendered a signal service to other Negro teachers in the system. They could have resigned, as the Board probably hoped they would do, and as many a timid soul would have done. But instead, they chose to make a test case in order that a precedent may be established in the future. We commend their courage.

In a peculiar sense, the trial served to throw light on a number of conditions, symptomatic of deeper evils in the school system. Negro citizens who attended the hearings, were convinced that the schools are suffering from a grave lack of supervision, starting with the Board and extending down to the principals and teachers at the schools. The fact that Mr. Cornell, the Principal of Washington high school, called upon the Board for help some six or eight weeks ago, proves the point.

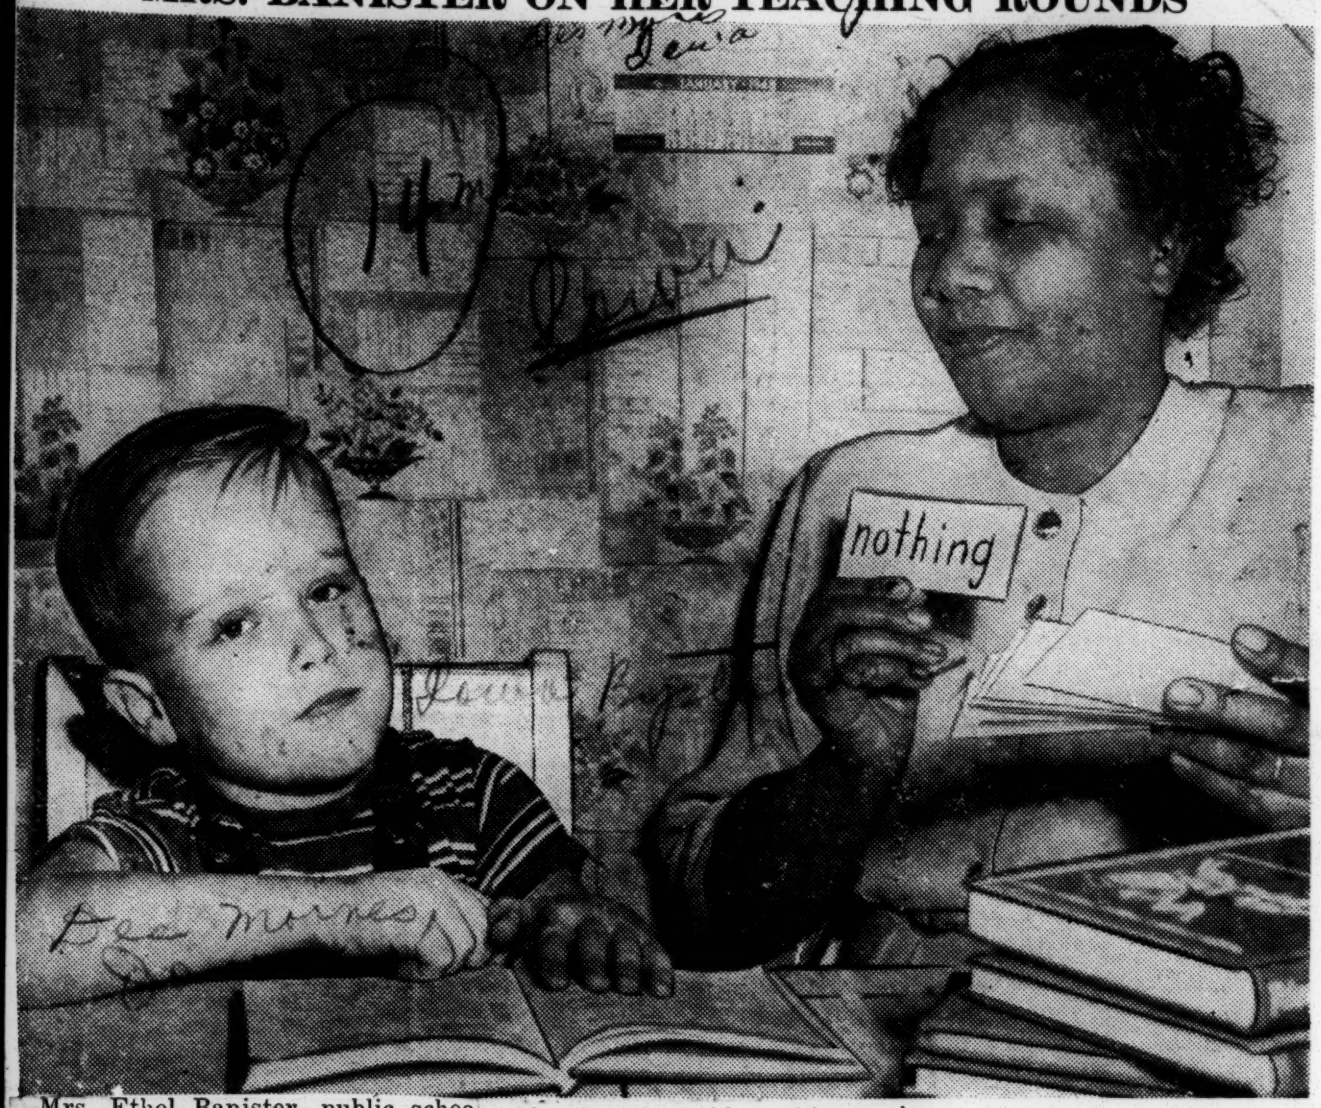
The testimony offered by principals Gideons and Cornell at the trial, showed that they either did not know what practice they follow in dealing with their respective teaching staffs or they lacked the courage and stamina to defend their practice. In all, both principals made bad impressions on the witness stand and left the citizens wondering just what particular function they fill which the teachers could not handle just as well and with less embarrassment to all concerned.

Sun 11-28-48

Finally, it ought to be said that the Board, not only showed a strong determination to take reprisal against the Taylors by dropping them from the system, but showed bad taste in the frequent and unvarying use of the words "Reuben" and "Vera" instead of Prof. or Mrs. Taylor. It is the worst sort of insult to Negro teachers to refer to them by their first names, as so many white people do, even in the presence of the pupils. Respect for human personality is a cardinal principle of education and the members of the Board ought to take the lead.

14m 1948 Iowa

MRS. BANISTER ON HER TEACHING ROUNDS



Mrs. Ethel Banister, public school teacher and one of the seven children now receiving instruction under the new bedside teaching program of the Des Moines public schools.

Her pupil, 8-year-old Jimmy Bennett, who never has been able to attend regular classes because of a spinal ailment since birth, in less than three months of daily instruction with Mrs. Banister has covered the pre-primer, primer, first reader and is now in the second grade reader where he belongs.

As teacher, Mrs. Banister devotes full time to the job and is paid a regular salary. Her day begins at 8:45 a. m. and continues until evening when she has visited six other pupils of various ages and races.

A native of Indianapolis, Ind., Mrs. Banister came to Des Moines last September to join her husband, Arnold C. Banister who had accepted the position of secretary of the Crocker YMCA.

She completed her education at Butler university and Indiana university school of social work. After graduation she held teaching and social work positions in Indiana and Colorado. She was substituting in the elementary grades in Des Moines before receiving her present position.

The omther of a daughter, Prudence, 5, Mrs. Banister is a member of the St. Paul AME church, the YWCA and the NAACP. — (Photo Courtesy of Register).

Suit Against Rapides School Board Set Back

ALEXANDRIA, La.—The mandamus action filed two weeks ago in the Ninth Judicial District court by Mrs. Sallie Fields, Negro public school teacher of this city, against the Rapides School Board, originally set for March 12, was continued to April 6 on request of defense attorneys.

Mrs. Fields, represented by Attorney A. P. Tueaud, asked the court to compel the school board to restore her to her former position as school teacher. In her petition she alleged that she applied for an emergency sick leave in September, 1946; that she remained out of school for one year on advice of her physician.

When she returned for reinstatement she was advised by H. M. Wells, superintendent of Rapides Parish public schools, that the board no longer considered her as a teacher in the parish schools, the petition stated.

A motion for continuance was made in district court by Rep. F. Thompson, district attorney of Rapides parish representing the defendants. District Judge Cleveland Dear continued the case after defense counsel contended that more time was needed to prepare an answer to Mrs. Fields' petition.

N. C. Teacher Voted Outstanding Teacher Of '48 By Fifth-Grade Pupil's Letter

BY GEORGE F. KING

WILMINGTON, N. C. — Among the teachers in the highest bracket of winners in the "Best Teacher" contest for 1948, sponsored by the famous Quiz Kids Program was Mrs. Bertha McLaurin Berrye, a prominent pedagogue residing in Wilmington. She was the recipient of a certificate of honor for being among the outstanding qualified nationwide teachers who were winners in the contest.

Autelia Barnhill, age 11, of Route 2, Burgaw, N. C., an ambitious pupil of Mrs. Berrye, in her well-written letter to the officials of the contest, stated that Mrs. Berrye had helped her most in the corect use of English, and a constructive appreciation of Mrs. Berrye's emphasis on the fundamentals for a wholesome healthy life. This rural girl, who is in the fifth grade in her county school, and secretary and leader of her class, in her letter to the contest officials accentuated the effective work of her teacher, Mrs. Berrye, was doing. This progressive girl was among the 560 students throughout the country, in the group of winners who wrote the best letters on the subject—"The Teacher Who Has Helped Me Most." She was presented a gold Quiz Kid key and a dollar, also was made honorary Quiz Kid.

Three eminent educators selected the winning letters out of a total of 35,000 entries submitted. Heading the contest of judges was Dr. Paul A. Witty, professor of education at Northwestern University. Assisting him in judging the entries were Dr. Wilard Olson, professor of education and director of the Child Research Clinic at the University of Michigan; and Dr. Phillip S. Moore, dean of the Graduate School at Notre Dame Univtrsity.

Mrs. Berrye, who has consistently reached a large number of Afro-American students during her 26 years of teaching in the Southeastern area of North Carolina, is regarded as a potent influence in the teaching profession, and a wholesome factor in every community she has taught.

Carolina Negro teachers better educated, better paid, than whites

RALEIGH, N. C. — North Carolina's 7,407 Negro teachers and principals are, on the whole, better educated and receive higher pay than the state's 18,915 white teachers and principals.

This unusual fact came to light last week after Virginius Dabney, venerable editor of the Richmond, Va., Times-Dispatch, had included the following statement in a speech before the American Society of Newspaper Editors: "Last year North Carolina paid Negro school teachers more on the average than its white teachers. The average salary for the colored teachers was $51 a year more than the white teachers throughout the state because they were better trained. The southern press does not object to this at all."

Clyde A. Erwin, state superintendent of public instruction, was questioned, and it developed that Mr. Dabney was quoting almost verbatim from a paragraph to that effect in the North Carolina Public School Bulletin for October, 1947. According to these latest available statistics, Negro teachers averaged $1,681.51 and white teachers, $1,630.56, during the 1946-47 school year. Broken down into elementary, high school, and principal classifications, the Negro pedagogues led in wages in all classifications except for high school principal, where whites averaged slightly more.

Six thousand, Seven hundred eighty of the Negro teachers have college degrees, while the remainder have either normal school or high school degrees. Among the whites, 14,336 have college degrees.

Figures on the salaries of college teachers were not available for comparison.

Teacher Need Held Acute

This is one in a series of articles concerning the findings and recommendations of the State Education Commission, which will be presented for action to the 1949 General Assembly.

There is an acute shortage of qualified teachers in the white schools of North Carolina, and prospects are for an even worse situation unless some drastic steps are taken in the near future, the State Education Commission told Governor Cherry in a recent report on the public school system.

"No more pressing problem faces the citizens of any state than that of providing properly qualified teachers for the schools," the report said.

The Commission said that the state was making excellent progress in procuring better qualified teachers for the schools for the five years just before the war; but that World War II seriously interrupted the program. For the five years following 1941 there was a steady decline in the qualifications of white teachers employed in the State.

An "A" certificate represents the minimum of training desirable for a teacher. A holder of this certificate is a graduate of a college approved for teacher education and has had professional training for school work. The number of "A" certificates increased from 11,936 in 1937-38 to 15,144 in 1941-42; but in 1946 the number declined to 12,795—a loss of 2,349. There was some gain in 1947-48 for the first time since the war.

In studying the question, "Who replaced those well trained and competent teachers?" The Commission said it found "some alarming facts." To keep schools open, low-standard certificates had to be issued in increasing numbers.

"Particularly distressing," the Commission said, "was the increase in non-standard certificates during the war years. This certificate was issued to any person, certified by a local superintendent of schools as necessary to keep the school in operation without regard to education qualifications. Only five of these were issued to white teachers in 1941-42 but 355 were in force in 1947-48. In some instances persons with no college training whatever found themselves responsible for the education of children they had no basis for understanding and whose educational needs they could not begin to meet."

During its study, the Commission questioned about half of the college sophomores enrolled in North Carolina colleges to find out why more students were not entering the teaching field. Of 1,958 white students replying, only 197 or 10 per cent said that they were planning to teach. The students said repeatedly that the major reason they were not preparing to teach was the low salaries paid. Other reasons mentioned were heavy teaching loads, inadequate equipment and facilities, lack of suitable living conditions, poor working conditions, and the attitude of the people of the community toward teachers.

The average salary suggested by citizens answering a questionnaire was slightly more than $2,400 per year for 10 months of service. Thousands of citizens answered the questionnaire.

To help secure more and better teachers, the Commission has proposed a number of steps. They include: Scholarships to induce capable young people to prepare for teaching; increased salaries ranging from $2,400 to $3,900 for ten months of work; reduced class load to 27 to 30 pupils; 10 days of sick leave per year without loss of pay; improved living and working conditions; and improved training programs at the various institutions in the State.

Among the citizens chosen by the Commission to make the study of instructional personnel were Mozelle Causey, Greensboro, chairman; Dennis H. Cook, Greensboro, vice chairman; Mrs. Margaret McDermott, Winston-Salem, secretary; Elizabeth Black, Salisbury; Mrs. Tracy Council, Boone; A. C. Dawson, Southern Pines; N. L. Dillard, Yanceyville; Susie Faucette, Goldsboro; Dwight W. Fink, Crossnore; J. D. Gault, Charlotte; H. L. Hart, Apex; Cora Lancaster, Washington; J. G. McCracken, Elizabeth City; Mrs. A. R. Munn, Deep Run; and James T. Taylor, Durham.

QUESTIONABLE OUTSIDE WORK FOR TEACHERS SHOULD BE STOPPED IMMEDIATELY

Oklahoma Eagle Thur 9-2-48 14m Tulsa, Okla

BY E. L. GOODWIN

The Oklahoma Eagle has always supported the schools and will continue to do so when the practices of our school system produce the kind of results for which our schools are intended. Yet, we will not hesitate to point out those practices of our teaching personnel and administrators which we feel are not for the best interests of the welfare of our children.

It is our understanding that there is a clause in the teachers' contracts which prohibits outside employment unless it is approved by the board of education. Heretofore, we have not criticized teachers who worked late at nights on outside jobs because of the fact that teachers were then underpaid. However, now since teachers have received salary raises in two consecutive years, the Oklahoma Eagle goes on record as opposing the kind of employment done late at nights by some of our teaching personnel.

To be specific, we feel that teachers who are employed as table waiters during the school year should stop the practice. Several of our teachers have been waiting tables late at nights in some of the country clubs and return to the classrooms the next day with impaired efficiency. Naturally, no teacher can be at his best the next day after working late the night before on such jobs. Classroom situations, unpredictable as they are, demand the best that a teacher has to offer both physically, mentally, and spiritually and it can't be done under such conditions. The same thing applies to those teachers who play in orchestras at night during the school week.

There is but one alternative for those who insist on such outside employment to the detriment of the profession and that is to quit teaching. If such continues, the Oklahoma Eagle will be forced to print the names of those teachers continuing on such jobs and will call the matter to the attention of the board of education.

Thur 9-2-48

It is our contention that there are plenty of other people who can do those jobs and for teachers to take them prevents others from earning a living. Any teacher who resorts to table waiting when he has superior training is degrading the profession not only among Negro teachers but in the sight of their employers and students. Table waiting is a good profession for those who follow it but no good teacher can teach well during the day and wait tables or play in an orchestra at night without impairing his efficiency.

Now that the people have supported all measures designed to improve the efficiency of our schools, they have a right to expect the best results possible. We shall expect the same efficiency of every teacher regardless of his seniority. It is alleged that there are some teachers who are coasting on the job waiting for retirement. Waiting for retirement is no excuse for lying down on the job. The people have the right to expect every teacher to employ the best methods possible in their daily teaching regardless of the length of service and time before retirement.

In short, there should be no excuse for a poor job of teaching in our schools since we are assured that the money will be available for equipment and teaching facilities. The board of education has assured the people that the separate school system of Tulsa will be one of the finest in the United States. We shall expect our schools to be provided with the most modern equipment as is being provided in the white schools of the city. We expect our administrators to request the same kind of equipment that is used in the majority schools and will aid our teachers in doing a good job.

The Oklahoma Eagle will always cooperate with the schools when they are doing a good job and will commend them for it. We believe that we have some of the best teachers in the nation. We will continue to work for the best interests of our schools when they are doing the job designed for them to do. We simply call these matters to the attention of the schools and the public because we believe that now is the time to do it so that a better job can be done by all—including administrators, teachers, parents, and students.

Hires Nine Teachers For Mixed Schools

PORTLAND — The Urban League of this city, which in May reported Portland the most improved in race relations of all cities of the nation, last week announced three additional progressive steps.

Nine Negro teachers were employed at the beginning of this school term and no effort was made to segregate them in areas where there is especially large Negro enrollments. One Negro secretary was employed in the School Administration Office.

The Council of Social Agencies and its 52 member agencies have unanimously accepted a recommendation on intergroup relations calling for complete integration of all agencies on a client, staff and board level.

Edwin C. Berry, a member of the executive committee of the Council of Social Agencies, was re-elected after nomination from the floor with the largest vote cast for a slate of six persons. Berry was eligible for re-election but his name was left off the slate by the nominating committee. When the slate was presented, Berry was quickly added by action of the voting body. The membership on the committee is strategically important in maintaining interracial progress.

14m(1) 1948

Education Faces Gloomy Future, Teachers Told

Birmingham News

New Yorker Paints Somber Picture Of World Conditions

Birmingham, Ala.

BY VIRGINIA VAN DER VEER
News Staff Writer

Alabama teachers closed their 66th convention last night on a somber note of warning that their poorly-paid profession may some day be manned by the "dregs of humanity—not the leaders."

For the few hundred, convention-weary teachers sprinkled around Municipal Auditorium last night, Dean Ernest O. Melby of the education school of New York University painted a dark picture.

He sent teachers homeward with the burden of reversing present trends toward poorer and poorer teachers or "education will die."

* * *

DEAN MELBY, who pulled no punches in his off-the-cuff address, said he hopes the government will step in with financial aid rather than turn education of its youth over to "underpaid, cynical, bitter, disillusioned, frustrated people."

Something must be done, the lean said, about lonely, unmarried eachers who live in rooms with no opportunity to entertain or have home life.

Sat. 3-27-48

"I'm terribly disappointed in what we're doing on teachers' salaries," he told the Alabamians who, until then, had been pleased with their rise to an $1,800 annual average salary.

"In 35 years," he said, "the profession has gone backward, not forward, if you take economic conditions and price levels into account."

The New York educator's address came just before A. E. A. closed the books of its 66th convention by presenting a Birmingham school principal, Raymond D. Hurlbert, of Jackson and Hemphill Schools, as its 1948 president.

* * *

MRS. SAM HOCKING, Decatur teacher, was unopposed for the vice presidency, a post rewarded by tradition for a woman.

Dr. Melby said the whole cause of human freedom is at its most hazardous stage during this Easter season.

He spoke out formally against America's "lack of direction, frequent changes of front, difficulty in making up our mind, our practice of not living up to what we espouse verbally."

Little people of the world the educator said, used to depend on and believe in the United States.

"That is not true anymore," he said. "Nobody knows where America stands, where America is going to stand."

Dr. Melby followed C. B. Gillmore, Grove Hill attorney; Rep. Karl Mundt, South Dakota Republican, and Gov. James E. Folsom in stressing to teachers the futility of another war.

"War solves no problems in the direction of making freedom work," the New Yorker said. "Would we dare permit freedom of speech in other countries if we had them at our feet?

"The problems which confront us tonight would be with us again on the day of victory of a third world war."

Sat 3-27-48

HE ASKED TEACHERS to return home to teach young people the power and glory of democracy in its meaning of freedom for all races, regardless of color or creed.

"We are the only nation left in the world," he said, "with the tradition of freedom and the power to give a large-scale demonstration of how it works."

A 400-voice chorus from Alabama high schools opened the program with Easter selections directed by Dr. Harry Robert Wilson, guest conductor and professor of music at Teachers College, Columbia.

PROF. R. C. JOHNSON, principal of Parker High School, Birmingham, is the new president of the Alabama State Teachers Association. His election came at the closing sessions of the state body, held March 25-26 at the State Teachers College, Montgomery. Prof. Johnson succeeds Prof. McDonald Hughes of Tuscaloosa.

Among the recommendations of the retiring president to receive favorable action by the association

(Alabama)

ALABAMA TEACHERS HIT BLOCKS IN WAY OF EQUITABLE EDUCATION

Pittsburg Courier

Montgomery, Ala.--The Alabama State Teachers association in its sixty-fifth annual session here last week deplored the "racial issues associated with the current proposals for inter-state cooperation, designated as 'regional education" ...and (reaffirmed) its conviction that no steps should be taken on national sanctions set up, to any plan which will be contrary to the evident direction in which our nation is moving in its evolving pattern of equitable and similar educational provisions for all citizens.

The resolution committee was headed by Dr. H. Trenholm, president of Alabama State Teachers College and one of the four college presidents who attended the Southern Governors Conference in Tallahassee, Fla., where the regional universities pact was formulated.

R. C. Johnson, principal of Parker High School, Birmingham, was elected president of the association.

FIVE RESOLUTIONS

Five of the resolutions approved had been recommended by McDonald Hughes of Tuscaloosa, retiring president. The convention modified some of the recommendations and placed under study two not adopted.

Mr. Hughes in a bold, bristling speech, looked coldly toward the "billions to keep communism from spreading but nothing of the kind to keep ignorance from spreading." He lashed out at the revolters against President Truman's civil rights program.

While some of our political leaders are crying "leave us alone" in the South, the South has had eighty-four years to correct the situation which made President Truman's civil rights program necessary but have done too little about it, Mr. Hughes said in substance.

NEW RECOMMENDATIONS

Recommendations adopted were:

An increase in annual membership dues; publication of a quarterly journal; encouragement of all teachers to become qualified voters; a well organized high school athletic association and enactment of the delegate assembly.

His other two recommendations that a full-time executive secretary be employed and that permanent headquarters of the ASTA be set up were taken under study.

Others officers elected were J. T. Williams of Gadsden, vice president; C. T. Smiley of Montgomery, treasurer, and Mrs. Ella E. Gray, member of the executive committee.

Women Attend Dean's Confab

Chicago Meeting Outlaws Bigotry

Nine outstanding Negro women educators were among the 1,500 delegates to a meeting of the Council of Guidance and Personnel Association of the National Association of Deans of Women which was held at the Stevens hotel here in Chicago March 28 to April 1.

The delegates from all sections of the country passed a resolution never again to meet where Negroes cannot be housed and dined on the same basis as whites and attend every session of the groups conference.

Among the nine educators here was Dr. R. Ruth Brett, personnel director of Tuskegee Institute, who arrived from Washington, where she had attended a week-long conferenee of college deans and vocational guidance directors of Negro colleges. A native of Winton, N. C., Dr. Brett is a graduate of Shaw University, Raleigh, attended the University of Chicago and took her doctorate in psychology from Columbia University, New York.

Aids Council

She is the only Negro consultant of the American Council on Education and is a member also of the National Council of Religion in Higher Education.

Other women educators included Hilda A. Davis, dean of women, Talladega; Inez Jenkins, Southern University; Valletta Harper Belle, Virginia State College; Ina M. Bolton, Lincoln University, Mo.; Thelma Preyer Bando, Morgan College; Susie Elliott, dean of women, Howard University; Mrs. Bessie Anderson, Wilberforce State College, and Mamie U. Foster, Fisk University.

Courier-Journal Photo.

CONGRATULATIONS are extended by W. H. Perry, Jr., Louisville, left, who was re-elected secretary-treasurer of the Kentucky Negro Education Association, to Whitney M. Young, Lincoln Ridge, the new president.

New K.N.E.A. President Offers 3-Point Program

The Courier-Journal
Sat 4-17-48

Whitney M. Young, Lincoln Ridge, new president of the Kentucky Negro Education Association, has a three-point program for educational, social, and cultural progress of his people.

Young, director of Lincoln Institute and a Negro educator for 27 years, was announced as new president at the final session of the convention last night at Quinn Chapel A.M.E. Church. He was unopposed in yesterday's election. He succeeds W. O. Nuckolls, Providence.

Asks Unity, Progress, Equality.

Young's program, outlined just before he accepted his new duties, provides for:

1. Full co-operation of all progressive agencies of the state in an effort to build a better state and nation.

2. Progress based on community interests, needs, and opportunities as determined by community clinics.

3. Equal educational opportunities for all persons regardless of race, creed, or color.

Young, who is assistant supervisor of Negro education in Kentucky, said his theory was that "Kentucky has enough for every man's need, not enough for every man's greed."

Officers also chosen without opposition were second vice-president, G. P. Patterson, Georgetown, and secretary-treasurer, W. H. Perry, Jr., Louisville. It was the fifth straight year that Perry was named to the office.

Speaking at a session at Madison Street Junior High School yesterday, Dr. R. B. Atwood, president of Kentucky State College, said:

"Those who are trying to block President Truman's civil-rights program are enemies of democracy just as much as Stalin or Molotov."

The Courier-Journal
Spelling Winner Named.

He urged adoption of a progressive program of democracy here and abroad. With such a program, he said, "our leadership and prestige will grow rapidly through the world. We will stop communism in its tracks—without war."

Sat 4-17-48

Edna Mae Beasley, seventh-grade pupil of Bond-Washington School, Elizabethtown, won the annual spelling bee yesterday. Se was awarded a prize given by The Courier-Journal. Her teacher is Mrs. M. H. Martin. Runnerup was Nancy Jean Cole, of Delafield School, Bowling Green, whose teacher was her mother, Mrs. Clara Cole.

Louisville Ky

White Missouri Teachers Vote to Mix Membership

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—(ANP)—Acting unexpectedly, the Missouri State Teachers Association at its annual session on Nov. 3, unanimously adopted a resolution to admit colored teachers to full membership.

The resolution, submitted by Miss Cora L. Stanford, local teacher and member of the resolutions committee, had been approved by that committee and recommended for passage by the House of Delegates. There was no dissenting vote.

Climax of Joint Action

The action climaxed four years of efforts by a joint committee from the two teachers associations which had been working on problems of mutual interest, looking toward eventual merger of the two bodies.

However, the colored group will not be dissolved immediately, according to Mrs. Pearl S. Collins of St. Louis, executive secretary, but will remain active for several months to wind up its business affairs.

Group 63 Years Old

"The organization is 63 years old," she said, "and we could not cease to exist overnight. One of the final acts of the officers (who will serve during the interim period), will be to prepare a history of the colored association."

Both groups have held their annual conventions at the same time and in the same cities, either in St. Louis or Kansas City. The white teachers met at the Municipal aduitorium while the others held their sessions at colored high school buildings.

They often used the same speakers, thus placing upon them the double burden of having to address each group in different locales.

Held Last Session

Approximately 1000 colored teachers attended their 63rd and last annual session at Lincoln High School, but when they came to the meeting, they were unaware that it would be their last gathering as a separate group.

Before leaving Kansas City, 75 teachers joined the white body.

Interim Officers

Interim officers of the association include:

Miss Kitsy D. Towsend, St. Louis, president; W. Richard Tillmon, Kansas City; and Mrs. Bertha Black Rhods, St. Louis; first and second vice presidents; Miss Davse F. Baker, treasurer; Herman L. Drew, Moberly, auditor; Armstead B. Green, Richmond Heights, statistican; U. S. Donaldson, St. Louis, historian; M. C. Lankford, Jefferson City, editor; and G. D. Brantley, St. Louis, parliamentarian.

M. L. ST. JOHN

14m(1)

What Teachers Have And What They Want

The Constitution
Atlanta, Ga. Wed. 2-18-48

Political observers laughed when Democratic leaders switched the date of the Jackson-Jefferson Day dinner because it conflicted with the date of the Georgia Education Association Convention and the hotels would be filled with teachers instead of political leaders. It obviously was a face-saving device to permit the Democratic dinner to present a speaker more in sympathy with the Southern point of view than Democratic National Chairman Howard McGrath who is all-out for President Truman's Civil Rights program. But politicians would do well to avoid any conflict with the GEA session, anyway—because items of more importance to the welfare of Georgia will be discussed at the teachers' session than at any political dinner of Democrats in the solidly Democratic State of Georgia. The teachers at their convention will discuss how to offer better education for more children, and how to improve the lot of the teacher. They will adopt a program calling for more money from the State government, and they will seek to pledge candidates for Governor and the Legislature to support this educational program.

Claude Purcell, of the State Department of Education, has boiled down the long list of detailed changes in Georgia's "foundation program of education" which are being advocated by teachers in their local GEA conferences. Generally, these changes would provide for longer school terms, more teachers per students, higher-paid and better-qualified teachers, and an equalizing of the local costs of education among the various counties on a basis of their ability-to-pay. As a matter-of-fact, the increased cost of the enlarged program would be borne chiefly by the State instead of the counties. The State would take into the State-pay system a couple of thousand teachers now paid solely by counties. Purcell compares the present educational facilities with the proposed foundation program as follows: Wed. 2-18-48

Better Schools

At present, Georgia has a mandatory seven-months term, with an extension of the term to nine months permissible. Under the proposed program, there would be 180 school days, one week for preplanning and one week for post-evaluation. Fifteen percent of the staff would work 12 months. The Constitution

There are from 20 to 40 children per teacher in the elementary schools now, and from 15 to 35 children per teacher in the high schools. The proposed program would cut this to 20 to 30 elementary students and 15 to 25 high school students per teacher. It also would figure the school population of whites and Negroes separately, in alloting the number of teachers, since the schools are separate.

At present, there are 20,308 State-paid teachers, and 2,429 additional teachers paid by local funds. The new program would have the State provide 23,436 classroom teachers and 700 system superintendents, visiting teachers, instrumental supervisors, and county and regional librarians. Atlanta, Ga. 2-18-48

Better Teachers

Today's teacher with a four-year college degree starts work at $1,692 annually. Under the proposed plan, the professionally trained teacher would start at $2,400. Local systems could continue supplementing the teachers' salaries. The Constitution

Teachers now are paid on a minimum salary schedule of 10 months to all systems. They would be paid on a 12-months basis if they worked 12 months under the new set-up. The new program also would allow $300 per classroom teacher to pay for school plant costs, would put up $200 per classroom teacher toward the current capital outlay, and would put up from $13 to $38 per pupil to pay for pupil transportation. Atlanta, Ga.

At present, the local taxpaying ability is determined by the yield of a five-mill property tax upon the assessed valuations recorded for the territory of each school system. Since some counties assess similar property lower than others, this results in an unequal burden among the local taxpayers. Wed 2-18-48

The new program proposed an economic index to determine what each county would pay. Since the total amount of funds needed from county taxes for school purposes would be $10,000,000, the index would show what percent of the $10,000,000 each county would have to pay.

14m(1) 1948

State (South Carolina)

ASSOCIATION GROWS

Palmetto Teacher Body Near Half-Century Mark

The Record
Columbia, S. C.

The Palmetto Teachers' association, which is meeting in Columbia today, dates back to 1900, and the leaders, looking back over its history, express themselves as well pleased the progress made in the almost half-century of life it has enjoyed. Thurs. 3-25-48

With just a few interested people as members when it was established the organization now has more than 6,000 members.

In 1900 a group of educational leaders of South Carolina, stimulated by the superintendent of schools of Richland county and some other teachers working in a summer institute held at Benedict college, banded themselves together as a state association.

From that point until 1918, it operated under the name of the South Carolina State Teachers' association. Although for 18 years representatives from only a few counties attended the annual meetings, yet invitations were sent yearly either to all organized county associations or to educators in counties where there were no association to attend the regular meetings.

From the very beginning the association had had the counsel, guidance and leadership of a large number of persons, colored and white, prominent in the educational affairs of this state.

The First Leaders 3-25-48

Spurred on by the suggestion of a few white educators, Professor Edward Wallace, then principal of Howard grammar school, Columbia (now Old Howard) and later professor of English at Claflin college at Orangeburg and president of Bennent college at Greensboro, N. C., President Thomas Miller of South Carolina State college at Orangeburg, J. L. Cain, principal of Mayo high school, Darlington, and a few others first sensed the necessity of organizing and of devising plans for the perpetuation of an organization for the promotion of the interest of teachers of South Carolina.

Wallace was the first president of the association. He was followed by Thomas Miller.

The third president was Nathaniel J. Frederick, who later left the teaching field to enter upon a legal career. He was succeeded by Dr. Robert Shaw Wilkinson in 1908. He served for six years. He suggested during his administration that much of the work be placed in the hands of an executive secretary. After his suggestion, I. M. A. Myers was elected secretary. (He is now dean at Allen university here.)

Met At Orangeburg

Myers was elected secretary of the association in 1918 and served until 1928. The Record

The association formerly met at State college at Orangeburg every summer with only a few teachers participating. Later, it was suggested that the meeting place be changed to another city. Thurs

In 1918 there was a complete reorganization of the body, and at the suggestion of Myers, the name was changed to Palmetto State Teachers association. In the reorganization provision was made for the issuance of an annual publication, "The Palmetto State Teachers Bulletin." The bulletin was first published in 1919. 3-25-48

For the first time in the history of the organization (in 1919) more than five times as many people attended and the group met in Columbia. Columbia, S. C.

Former presidents of the Palmetto State Teachers association are: Edward Wallace, Thomas Miller, Nathaniel J. Frederick, Robert Shaw Wilkinson, J. L. Cain, R. W. Mance, C. A. Lawson, A. A. Sims, C. A. Johnson, H. H. Butler, C. V. Bing, G. W. Howard, Gernard A. Anderson, J. P. Burgess, J. T. W. Mims and B. W. Gallman. James T. McCain is the present president.

Negro School Group Names Budget Body

The Record
Columbia, S. C.

By JOSEPH BROWN

The executive committee of the Palmetto State Teachers' Association has given President James T. McCain the power to appoint a five-man budget committee to plan a budget for next year and also to map a long-range program. The committee will work with A. T. Butler, the association's executive secretary. Thurs 3-25-48

This meeting preceded the opening today of the association's annual convention in Columbia.

D. G. Cureton was appointed by the president from the House of Delegates. Others who were appointed to the budget committee by McCain, are: C. V. Bing, chairman, Allendale; B. W. Gallman, Hartsville; C. S. McIver, Summerville, and Gernard A. Anderson of Florence. Cureton is from Spartanburg.

Tonight the second general session begins. Heard then will be Thurgood Marshall, special counsel for the N.A.A.C.P., and Negro educators. The Benedict college choir, along with the Claflin college choir, will sing during these sessions.

The eight members of the executive committee, including two at large, are: Gerard A. Anderson, H. B. Butler, C. S. McIver, Eli J. Davis, H. A. Ashe, Roy Cunningham, S. L. Finley and H. C. Brewer.

Friday morning from 10 to 12 noon and from 2 to 4 p. m. in the afternoon, group discussions will begin at Benedict college and Allen university.

The groups and their chairman will meet where designated as follows: The Record

Primary education — Cora V. Green, chairman, Thelma M. Hargrave, consultant, Allen university auditorium. Columbia, S.C.

Intermediate education—Pauline Carter, chairman, Catherine A. McCollough, consultant, Benedict college auditorium. Thurs.

Secondary school education—Eugene C. Hunt, chairman, Dr. A. G. Mackin, consultant, Lecture room of Allen university library.

Principals' group—J. E. Beck, chairman, Dr. Ambrose Caliver, consultant, Convention Hall annex, Benedict college. 3-25-48

College and higher education—G. E. Nelson, dean of Benedict college chairman, Walter N. Ridley, consultant, Benedict college library.

Agricultural, industrial, and home economics education—Gabe Buckman, chairman, S. B. Simmons, consultant, Reed Hall, Allen university.

County officers of the association—A. T. Butler, chairman, J. Rupert Picott, consultant, Lounging room, Allen university library.

Fine Arts education—Eileen J. Southern, chairman, room 1, Convention Hall, Benedict college.

Health, physical education and recreation—Thomas S. Martin, chairman, Josie Hazel and Lulu B. Sasportas, consultants, Convention Hall annex, Benedict college.

Library science education—Evelyn R. Cuthbert, chairman, Emily A. Copeland, consultant, Benedict college Library.

Rural education — Trudelle W. Wimbush, chairman, Helen A. Whiting consultant, Allen university Temple of music.

Jeanes teacher — Elise Jenkins, chairman and Dr. Kara Jackson, consultant, room 6 of the administration building at Allen university. 3-25-48

CONVENTION OPENS

The Record

Negro Teachers Hear Praise Of Progress

Columbia, S.C.

Dr. J. A. Bacoats, president of Benedict college, hailed the progress of Negro education in Columbia and South Carolina in an address to the opening general session of the Palmetto State Teachers association. The convention of Negro teachers opened today at the Columbia Township auditorium. Thurs

"In the past several years steps have been taken in the direction of equalizing educational opportunities for the two races," he declared, although, he pointed out, a wide differential between facilities for public education of whites and Negroes still exists. 3-25-48

"Most significant among these steps have been the equalizing of salaries of white and Negro teachers for the same preparation and the same service, and just recently the announcement of a large and commodious proposed new high school for Negroes." (The new school, to be located in Kendalltown section of Columbia, will be the C. A. Johnson high school.)

Text Of Address

The following is the text of Dr. Bacoats' address: 3-25-48

"We are very happy to give an expression of welcome to the officials and teachers of the Palmetto State Teachers association in behalf of the institutions of higher learning and the public schools of Columbia. The city of Columbia is a unique place for the meeting of such an organization. Columbia is a unique place for such a meeting for two reasons: First, Columbia is the second largest metropolis of the state and is centrally located and is directly and easily reached from all points in the state by trunk lines of railways and by federal and state highways. Second, Columbia is, beyond a doubt, the educational center of the state of South Carolina.

"The following institutions of higher learning are domiciled in the city of Columbia: South Carolina State university, Columbia College, Columbia Bible college, the Lutheran Theological seminary, Allen university, Benedict college and Harbison Agricultural and Industrial institute, the latter three being institutions of higher learning for Negroes. The aggregate enrolment of the above institutions is 4,879. The total enrolment, including summer schools and extension units, will possibly exceed 10,000. There are employed as teachers and staff members in the above institutions of higher learning 544 persons. The Record

Praise For Columbia

"The city of Columbia also has possibly one among the best public school systems of the state and a public school system that will compare favorably with the best systems of any city or comparable size to Columbia in the South. There are six senior and junior high schools and 11 elementary schools for persons of the white race with enrolments of 7,421 and with 287 teachers. There are a senior high high school, a junior high school and six elementary schools for Negroes with enrolments of 5,495 and with 178 teachers. 3-25-48

"As the above figures will indicate, in the light of the proportion of white and Negro populations, there is a wide differential between public school educational facilities for whites and for Negroes. But we are pleased to say that in the past several years steps have been taken in the direction of equalizing educational opportunities for the two races. Columbia, S.C

Significant Steps

"Most significant among these steps have been the equalizing of salaries of white and Negro teachers for the same preparation and the same service and just recently the announcement of a large and commodious proposed new high school for Negroes. Besides the immediate and specific educational institutions in Columbia, there is the State House with all of the auxiliaries of information and education and then there are the other cultural and educational institutions peculiar to a city like Columbia. We repeat Columbia is a unique place for the meeting of such an organization as the State Teachers association.

"We wish to extend, in behalf of the institutions of higher learning and the public schools of the city of Columbia, a most cordial welcome to the officials and teachers

Progressive Program 3-25-48

"1. Because of the progressive program of the association. I am reliably informed that this organization through the office of the executive secretary has gathered and compiled a fine collection of statistics pertaining to population, educational expenditures, employment opportunities, potential voters and qualified voters of the two races in the state and in the South. not only gathered and compiled statistical data informs and arouses the public conscience as to the inequalities and injustices in educational opportunities and the challenge of the day. The tears from the eyes of loved ones and the Federal Congress weeping world are not yet fully dried and the wounds of millions justly lay claim to a share in the equalization of educational opportunities for the following reasons: This organization has the frame work of the Palmetto State Teachers association for the following reasons: This within itself is a great service and a fine contribution. The collecting of facts and the acquiring of certain information is the first step in intelligently presenting to the public the inequalities and inequities in educational opportunities, this organization has allied itself with other organizations and has concretely implored the statistics but where revealed inequalities and inequities in educational facilities for Negroes. As apostles of education and evangels of the salvation of our social order we welcome you to the city of Columbia because of the critical era in which we live and the challenge of the day. The tears of loved ones and a weeping world are not yet fully dried and the wounds of millions fought and risked their lives in the holocaust of war and carnage of blood are not yet fully healed and yet today the streaming headlines and the screaming radios are whipping public sentiment into the fury of World War III. Alliances are already being formed and war camps are being organized. Some in high positions of authority and statesmanship have predicted that the calamity may fall within the present year. Many remedies are being proposed and tried, but personally I think that the most effectual and possibly the only remedy and saving of our social order and world will come through the proper kind of education and the developing of inner controls and the forming of attitudes of Christian cooperation instead of selfish competition and of peace instead of war. 3-25-48

'Apostle Of Education'

"This job is largely the job of preachers who fill the pulpits of churches, and more largely the job of teachers who teach and mould the youth of today and the men and women of tomorrow. I salute you of this assembly and of this association as representatives of the teachers throughout the world who hold the magic key that will unlock the door to world calamity and annihilation or that will unlock the door of goodwill among men and world security and peace.

Extend Welcome

"The Negro institutions of higher learning and the Negro public schools of Columbia extend a most hearty welcome to the officials and teachers from over the state and nation in attendance of the 30th annual session of the Palmetto State Teachers association. We want that you would feel free and welcome to the services and facilities of our institutions. It will be a pleasure for the teachers and students of our institutions to contribute in any way to the comfort and happiness of your sojourn in our city." The Record

Mayor Frank C. Owens of Columbia welcomed the conventionites today, and others scheduled on the program were Gov. J. Strom Thurmond and State Superintendent of Education Jesse T. Anderson.

"Lack of money with which to operate has kept education down in the state for many years," Mayor Owens said. "Our record of illiteracy is directly traceable to the lack of appropriations. This state has long suffered from low average income. Lack of education and low income go hand in hand.

"To build up our income we must teach our boys and girls and grownups. If they know how to do things they can demand better pay. If they have been taught to think, they can solve their problems better. If they have knowledge of what is beauty, they can enjoy the beautiful," he said. 3-25-48

"Through education will come the solution of our problems. In your hands lies so much of the future of the world. In your hands, in your minds, by your knowledge rests the ability to impart knowledge to others," he said.

"Education is the finest investment I know of. Invest in education!" Columbia, S.C.

Tonight, at a general session, the teachers were to hear Thurgood Marshall, general counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and educators.

The first group discussion was held yesterday morning in the auditorium by the Parent-Teachers association. The meeting opened at 9 o'clock and ran through 3 p. m. in the afternoon.

Short talks were heard by P. M. Gibbs, Thelma Hargrave, supervisor of elementary education in Charleston county, Lulu Sasportas and Josie Hazel.

As a custom every year, the teachers gave their version of a play in the Allen university auditorium. The play was "Blithe Spirit," a Noel Coward production in three acts. A large crowd greeted the teachers in the play and the whole affair was a success.

Tonight in Columbia's Township auditorium, the teachers and their guests will be entertained by a local band. At 4:30 p. m. Friday the second meeting of the house of delegates is slated in the Benedict college library.

Tomorrow morning, voting for officers of the association will begin the day for the teachers, starting at 9 a. m. at Benedict college in the college library and in the Allen university library. Officers to be elected are president, vice president and treasurer.

Running for the president's position are: J. P. Bonds and John F. Potts. Benny A. Gary, Darlington high school principal and James C. Parler, principal of Wilkinson high school in Orangeburg are in the vice president's race. C. V. Bing is unopposed for the renomination of treasurer. James T. McCain, dean of Morris college at Sumter is present president. John Potts, now vice president, is principal of Avery Institute at Charleston.

Voting is expected to last from 9 to 2 p. m. tomorrow afternoon.

Choir To Sing

The Benedict college choir, under the direction of S. B. Turner, will sing at the Columbia Township auditorium before the largest audience this year at 8 p. m. today, at the Negro teachers convention.

The choir traveled all over South Carolina during pre-founder's day at Benedict college and sang over two out-of-town radio stations as well as three of Columbia's stations. The choir has traveled over 500 miles and expects to travel in eastern and northern states soon.

South Carolina talent dominates the vocal team but is assisted by students from different parts of the country.

Members of the choir are:

Mamie Williams, Florence; Lila Rice, Chicago, Ill.; Anna Louise Chandler, Kingstree; Mary Ella Sims, Union; Joseph Lee Coleman, Spartanburg; Sadye M. Morton, Jackson, Miss.; Thomasena L. M. Cheseborough, Eastover; Willie Lucile Herd, Anderson; Gladys E. Williams, Salley; Helen R. Vanderhorst, Mt. Pleasant; Anna L. Phillips, Columbia; Rachel Grier, Due West; Eleanor Dennis, Newberry; Hattie E. Johnson, Honea Path; Azalee I. Taylor, Columbia; Laree Void, Elloree; Wilma E. Alston, Augusta, Ga.; Rosetta Seigler, Greenwood; Thelma Tindall, East Orange, N. J.; Virginia Willis, Greenville; Mamie W. Jowers, Fayetteville, N. C.

Also, Horace Earl Horsley, Columbia; Joseph Lee Coleman, Spartanburg; Frederich W. Rodolph, Charleston; Grady H. Donald, Anderson; Chester Alford, Conway; George W. Jones, Camden; Harry Brown, Jersey City, N. J.; Thomas Deas, Jr., Cheraw; James Walker, Spartanburg; Jeane C. Thomason, Greenville; Harnethia Johnson, Timmonsville; Essie M. Alexander, Spartanburg; Rebecca Clark, Anderson; Ernestine Blakeney, Pageland; James Moultrie, Jr., Washington, D. C.; Harry L. Putman, Laurens; Naasson Sheppard, Newberry; Ernest Wolden, Jr., Oakmont, Pa.; Alfred Earl McEwen, Jackson, Miss.; Charles C. Murray, Russellville; M. Johnson Bobo, Anderson; and John Reigland, Williams.

John F. Potts, Avery Institute principal, presided at the opening session of the House of Delegates meeting held in the Benedict college library this morning.

James T. McCain, president, sent a letter of 16 recommendations to the House. The delegates, however, will turn the matter over to the legislative body of the convention before the recommendations can be accepted.

A. T. Butler, the executive secretary of the Palmetto State Teachers association said action on none will be completed until Saturday morning. In the meantime, the House of Delegates will have their second meeting at 4:30 p. m. tomorrow, again in the Benedict college library.

Potts Elected President As S. C. Teachers End Annual Convention; Back Bus Suit

The Lighthouse Informer
Columbia, S.C. Sun. 4-4-48

John F. Potts, principal of Avery Institute at Charleston and former vice president of the Palmetto State Teachers Association, was elected president of the organization Friday as the 6,000 Negro teachers ended their two-day session. The Lighthouse Informer

James C. Parler, principal of the Wilkinson high school at Orangeburg, was elected vice president and C. V. Bing of Allendale was returned as treasurer of the teachers' organization. Sun

VOTE MORE NAACP FUNDS

The organization went on record as unanimously opposed to the regional college plan proposed by southern states for Negroes and voted an additional $500 fund to the state NAACP conference with which to fight in court for equal and adequate school bus transportation. It had voted a like sum previously and ordered the amount paid immediately. 4-4-48

Numerous addresses were heard during the two day session, those on Thursday emphasizing civil rights and evolution, adult training and challenges from both Gov Thurmond and State Superintendent of Education Jesse T. Anderson. Attorney Franklin Williams of the New York NAACP office, substituting for Thurgood Marshall, Dr. Ridley and Dr. Ambrose Caliver of the U. S. Bureau of Education were principal speakers on the first named subjects. Sun

Dr. W. H. Gray, Jr., president of Florida A. and M. College was keynoter Friday night and dealt with educational inequalities.

Alfred T. Butler, executive secretary said the convention was one of the finest in years, covering numerous subjects and pointing to larger areas of interest. He said that more teachers than ever before were now affiliated with the organization. 4-4-48

S. C. TEACHERS OPPOSE
REGIONAL COLLEGE PLAN

April 29, 1948

COLUMBIA, S.C., April 29.--The Palmetto State Teachers Association meeting here recently went on record as being "strongly opposed to the regional plan of education as proposed by the southern governors as a substitute for graduate and professional training which should be provided by the various states. Instead we strongly favor each state providing graduate and professional training for its citizens within that state."

Press Service of the NAACP
New York, N. Y.
Thurs. 4-29-48

The South Carolina teachers also passed resolutions in support of the reports of the President's Committee on Civil Rights and the Commission on Higher Education both of which recommended the abolition of segregation in education. Thurs 4-29-48

Virginia Teachers Raise $19,901 For New Home

Dr. Foster Releases Report On Funds; New Headquarters Bought

Journal & Guide, Norfolk, Va.
Sat. 11-27-48

PETERSBURG, Va.— A report on funds raised for the new headquarters of the Virginia Teachers Association released here recently by Dr. L. H. Foster, president of Virginia State College and chairman of the Special Building Fund Committee, disclosed that a total of $19,901.80 had been received from all sources by the close of the campaign on Oct. 25.

Dr. Foster, who originated the idea of a permanent home for the state body and drafted plans for the campaign to raise the needed funds, points out that all donations from individuals, groups of teachers and Virginia State College, Virginia Union University, St. Paul's Polytechnic Institute, and Hampton Institute, and various local teachers' associations totaled $19,435.88. The balance of $465.92 came from the $52.50 refund from B. A. Cephas on fire insurance and $413.42 interest received on bank deposits from the beginning of the drive through last October 25. Sat 11-27-48

Texas Teachers Get First Woman Prexy

Chicago Defender
Dec 11 1948

HOUSTON, Texas — Miss Ellie Anna Walls of this city was this week named the first woman president of the state Texas Teachers Association. She is the first female president in more than 64 years.

Chicago SUN

Miss Walls, is an instructor in mathematics at Phyllis Wheatley High School and has made a life work of education and teaching.

She has done graduate study at the University of Mexico.

Norfolk Teachers Fete Four Retired

Pittsburgh Courier
Pittsburgh, Pa. 1-3-48

NORFOLK, Va.—Four retired teachers in this city were honored by the Norfolk Teachers Association at an impressive testimonial last Friday night at the newly renovated Oakleaf Terrace. Honorees were: Miss Florence Reid, Lincoln School; Miss Lenora Wood, Tucker School; Mrs. Sarah Reynolds, West School, and J. W. Baker, Booker T. Washington High School. E. A. Rogers was toastmaster.

Mr. Rogers gave an appropriate greeeting after the blessing was given by Miss Constance Fuller. A letter of commendation from E. S. Brinkley, superintendent of Norfolk schools, was read by Mrs. Lucy Moseley. 1-3-48

PRESENTED CHECKS

P. J. Chesson, formerly principal of Lincoln, made the presentation of a check from the Norfolk Teachers Association to both Miss Reid, whose principal he had been at one time, and to Mrs. Reynolds, whose principal he was upon her retirement. Sat. 1-3-48

Mr. Hicks, president of the NTA, made the presentation to Mr. Baker. Mrs. Fannie Blount, faculty member of Tucker, made the presentation to Miss Wood and also added to the check a gift from the school faculty. Sat.

Mr. Hicks made a talk for the association and Miss Fuller spoke on the significance of the retirement. All stood, formed a circle and sang Christmas carols.

The dinner committee was composed of Mrs. M. M. Dark, chairman; Miss E. M. Holmes and Mr. Rogers.

Alabama.

Surprise Play Marks Equal Pay Hearing

Atlanta Daily World
Atlanta, Ga.

By EMORY O. JACKSON

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — (SNS) —

Fourteen other teachers in addition to the "13" which earlier turned their backs on the salary equalization case were listed by Board Attorney Harvey DeRamus in Federal court Tuesday as wishing to cut loose from the suit after allegedly signing a contract with lawyers to take up their case.

This surprise play came just before noon Tuesday, halfway in the two-and-a-half day off-and on hearing before Special Master Reid Barnes. Attorney DeRamus withdrew his suggestion that the 14 teachers whose names purportedly appeared on letters when Attorney George Brown, representing the teachers indicated that he would check up on them or summon them into court to tell "just what happened to make them want to come off the contract."

The hearing is on the facts in the case where Dr. John E. Bryan, county schools superintendent Lee and the five-member Jefferson County Board of Education (Dr. W. A Berry, president; O. G. Greshman, vice-president; Dr. L. E. Kirby, Attorney Andrew Knight and W. I. Pittman) are charged with "wilfully and knowingly" violating a federal court decree outlawing racial differentials in the salary schedule. The consent decree was issued by the late U. S. Judge T. A. Murphree in 1945. Tues. 3-30-48

TEACHERS LISTED

These teachers whose names Attorney DeRamus read as saying by what purportedly was their signature on letters asking to withdraw from the case are as follows:

John T. Smith (former treasurer of the CIO Teachers Union), of 1523 North 7th Avenue; Mrs. Maggie Hrabrowski, of 48-1st Ct. South; Miss Louise Bennette, of Route 7 Box 399-A and Mrs. Geneva Geeter, all of the five-teacher Warrior School. Mr. Smith is principal of the school.

Miss Irma Tolbert, of 1001 Sixth Avenue North; Mrs. Elzo Martin, P. O. Box 133, Dixaiana; Mrs. Vernar Chambers, of 715-12th Street, Ensley; Mrs. Willie Waters, of Route 1, Box 133, Pinson, all of the four-teacher Bradford School. (Miss Tolbert is principal of the school and also secretary of the Jefferson County Negro Teachers Association).

Mrs. Mabel Buffins, of 108-Tenth Court North, principal of the Red Ore School; John A. Cade, of 1525-Cahaba Street, teacher in the Praco School. (Praco is the school where Mrs. Ruby Jackson Gainer, chief petitioner in the case was working at the time she was dismissed); Mrs. Mattie Ward, of 456-Joseph Street, principal of the Woodward School; Mrs. Lennie Lockhart, auditorium teacher at Brighton School, who lives at 1117-North 8th Avenue; Mrs. Bennie L. Jackson, of 444-Second Street, and former principal of the Overton School and Mrs. Ida Smith, teacher in the Leeds School and wife of Prof. Smith.

BRYAN EXPLAINS

For a total of two days Dr. Bryan was on the witness stand, explaining records, relating how he used the "steps" as an "administrative device", outside of the salary schedule to pay teachers so that "factors" other than race, training and experience could be considered at arriving at the salary to be paid teachers.

Dr. Bryan testified that some of the "factors" rolled into the salary were (1) the rating given by supervisors and principals, (2) accuracy of reports, (3) the accreditment of the college from which the teacher graduated, (4) personality, (5) retardation of pupils and the accomplishments of the teacher.

"Generally, white principals rate white teachers higher than Negro principals rate Negro teachers."

Moving on, Dr. Bryan testified that he used the confidential estimate of teachers turned in by principals as part of the salary rating of teacher. He said that the confidential estimate system was started in 1941.

COLLEGES' RATINGS

He went on to explain the "step" salary-pay system and compare the colleges rating from which white teachers came with those from which Negro teachers came. He cited figures purportedly to show that a larger percentage of white teachers held degrees than Negro teachers. His figures showed that there were 156 Negro teachers from unapproved colleges in 1945-46 and that it rose to 175 in 1946-47.

The board's attorney tried unsuccessfully to get into the record a study purportedly made by E. Paul Jones, promoted from supervisor to director since the litigation began, from which he sought to show that Negro teachers possessed inferior preparation to white teachers.

Dr. Bryan testified that the two Negro supervisors, Mrs. Odessa McKinney and Mr. Jones, along with C. W. Phillips, rated the principals.

The county superintedent was under cross-examination by Attorney Brown all Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday morning. Attorney Brown tried against stiff resistance to get Dr. Bryan to admit that years of experience determined that "step" in which a white teacher was placed.

BROWN'S QUESTION

Attorney Brown asked Dr. Bryan to explain "How in 1946-47 all white teachers advanced in salary by one step except 5 while Negro teachers advanced from .97 to 45.92 as a group." Dr. Bryan explained that the Negro teachers had accepted a plan he offered by which they would be allowed to make from one to three steps if they took work in an approved institution. "Thirty-three Negro teachers from approved college moved 3, 4, 5, steps. How do you explain that, doctor," Attorney Brown querried.

But Dr. Bryan did admit, "Substantially all white teachers are put in the step to conform with their years of experience," questioned the teachers attorney.

"Yes," answered Dr. Bryan. Most times Dr. Bryan gave a lengthy explanation instead of yes or no answers.

Attorney Brown, then went back to the specific case of B. M. Montgomery, principal of Rosedale High School, who hold a master degree from Chicago University, the pattern which apparently Attorney Brown is attempting to show discrimination. Mr. Montgomery, with a master degree from an approved college, and with an unchallenged 22 years of experience was placed in step 10 in 1946-47 while Miss Lucy Page Fuller, a white teacher with a master degree and no years of experience was placed in step 6.

Dr. Bryan, admitting Tuesday a "mistake" must have been made, came back Wednesday to explain that, Supervisors Jones and Phillips had not given Mr. Montgomery a rating of "outstanding" and that his undergraduate work was from Miles, an unapproved college while Miss Fuller's work was done in an approved under-graduate school.

THOMAS KEY WITNESS

Under questioning from the bench, followed up by Attorney Brown, the county superintendent testified that a graduate from Montgomery State Teachers College could get just as good a certificate from the State Board of Education as a graduate from the University of Alabama.

H. O. Thomas, certified public accountant, was the key witness from the teachers. He identified his figures purportedly showing the differentials. Dr. Bryan vigorously denied from the witness stand the accuracy of the figures used by the accountant to show years of teaching experience.

The remaining issue of fact in the case is the actual years of teaching experience of white and Negro teachers in the system. Dr. Bryan was ordered by the master to supply those figures. A hearing on this issue will be set for one day next week, the master hoped.

The case will then go to the master for his finding which he will report back to U. S. Judge Seymour Lynne.

Attorney Arthur D. Shores, assisted Lawyer Brown in handling the case.

Supt Who Fired B'ham Teacher Takes New Post

The Courier
Pittsburgh, Pa.
Sat 8-7-48

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. Dr. John E. Bryan, the Jefferson County School superintendent who fired Mrs. Ruby Jackson Gainer a year ago trying to block the Negro teachers equal-pay suit has resigned to accept the presidency of the Alabama Institute for the Deaf and Blind at Talladego, Ala.

He will receive an annual salary of $7,500 and will go to his new job immediately.

Dr. Bryan, ordered by the Federal Court to remove racial discrimination from the salary system, invented several devices such as a "step system," college accredidation and "merit" ratings trying to circumvent the court's decision.

Mrs. Gainer's dismissal and the compliance case are still in court. The Birmingham Branch of the NAACP has pledged to back up the teachers until complete victory is won in both cases.

27 in Alabama Quit Teachers' Equal Pay Fight

The Courier
Sat 8-7-48

(Special to The Courier)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—As Circuit Judge J. Edgar Bowron prepared this week to hear a peremptory writ asking the reinstatement of Mrs. Ruby Jackson Gainer to her teaching post here, fourteen Jefferson County teachers withdrew as complainants against the county school board in a suit over equal salaries.

The fourteen teachers joined another group of thirteen who, last April, withdrew from the long drawn out battle in Federal Court to secure payment of some $250,000, which they claimed was due Negro teachers here in salary differential following a Federal court decision equalizing the pay of white and Negro teachers in Jefferson County.

GAINER WAS SPEARHEAD

Mrs. Gainer, five times head of the Jefferson County Negro Teachers Association and also president of the CIO Teachers' local union, was the spearhead of that fight and was given a notice of dismissal shortly after the case was filed last year. She was allegedly dismissed for "neglect of duty" and "insubordination." Mrs. Gainer charged that she was fired for "personal and political reasons" growing out of the equal salary litigation.

The Alabama State Supreme Court later ruled that a lower court erred in upholding her dismissal, although ruling on a technical point rather than on the merits of the case. The Supreme Court also refused to reconsider its ruling when requested by the school board to do so. 7-24-48

Mrs. Gainer's attorneys, Arthur D. Shores, George Brown and Crampton Harris, argue that the edict of the Supreme Court meant that Mrs. Gainer was to have her job back. But Harvey DeRamus, counsel for the school board, contends that all the higher court says is to correct the error and retry the case.

TEACHERS UNION CRUSHED

The CIO Teachers' local union has just about been crushed, and its former treasurer, John T. Smith, principal of the five-teacher Warrior School, was among the fourteen who asked that their names be withdrawn from the case. Four principals were included in the new withdrawing group, along with ten teachers.

CLAIM TOO MUCH

Their move was made during a two and a half day hearing against Superintendent of Jefferson County Schools, Dr. John E. Bryan, in the five-member school board before Special Master Reid Barnes, on charges of "wilfully and knowingly" violating a Federal court decree outlawing racial differentials in the salary schedule. Master Barnes will report his findings to Federal Judge Seymour Lynne. The approved or unapproved Bryan said.

graduate work for teachers, plus their years of experience and their ratings by two Negro supervisors, Mrs. Odessa McKinney and E. Paul Jones (recently promoted to director since the litigation began), determined the ratings given teachers and upon which pay scale was based, Dr.

To Spur Equal Pay Fight

Birmingham Plans Day for Teachers

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Churches here will observe "Teachers Defense Day" on Sunday, Sept. 19.

The observance is launched by the Birmingham Branch of the NAACP to raise funds with which to continue in court the 3-year-old salary-parity case. The campaign seeks to raise $1,000 in a whizzing, three-day, week-end drive directed by Emory O. Jackson, editor of the Birmingham World.

Negro teachers in Jefferson (Birmingham) county allege that their board owes them approximately $300,000 in unpaid differential salaries. The case is against resigned School Supt. J. E. Bryan and the Jefferson County Board of Education.

Mrs. Ruby Jackson Gainer, chief petitioner in the case was dismissed by the board. He dismissal was contested, went to the Alabama State Supreme Court, where the lower court was reversed on a technicality. It is due to come up again before Circuit Judge J. Edgar Bowron on Monday, Sept. 19.

Mrs. Gainer Wins Round in Equal Pay Fight

BIRMINGHAM. — Mrs. Ruby Jackson Gaifier, president of the teachers union, United Public Workers, and leader in the fight for equalization of Negro teachers' pay in this county, has marked up one victory in the courts.

The Alabama Supreme Court has just reversed Circuit Court Judge J. G. Bowron's decision that Mrs. Gainer was lawfully dismissed from her teaching job, and stated that she should have been granted a writ of mandamus.

Mrs. Gainer was fired by the Board of Education last spring. Her counsel contended that she was fired for union activity and for her leading role in the contempt of court proceedings now in progress against the Board in Federal Court. The Board is charged with refusing to equalize the pay of Negro teachers in violation of a 1945 court decree.

The Alabama Supreme Court decision opens up a new chance for Mrs. Gainer to win reinstatement. She has had the warm support of the Negro community in her fight, of the teachers, and of scetions of the labor movement.

Court Is Rehearing Negro Teacher Suit

Trial of a suit by a Negro teacher to force the Jefferson County Board of Education to reinstate her to the position from which she was discharged last year, began yesterday afternoon before Circuit Judge J. Edgar Bowron.

Judge Bowron last year ruled the board acted within its authority in dismissing the teacher, Ruby Jackson Gainer, on grounds of "incompetency and insubordination."

The case was then appealed to the State Supreme Court. It was reversed on a technical point without the principal issues of the case being decided.

The teacher charged her dismissal was due to "political reasons."

She was president of a newly-formed union of Negro teachers in Birmingham. The CIO, with which the union was affiliated, participated in the prosecution of the case locally and before the higher court.

Mrs. Ruby Jackson Gainer Wins "Dismissal Case" In Alabama Supreme Court

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — (SNS)— The Alabama Supreme Court Thursday, January 15 reversed and remanded to the Jefferson County Circuit Court the "Gainer Dismissal Case" in which Mrs. Ruby Jackson Gainer was denied a mandamus petition in her suit against the Jefferson County Board of Education.

The Highest Court in Alabama ordered the case back to the Court of Judge J. Edgar Bowron, who ruled Monday, September 8, 1947, that the Board of Education was justified in dismissing the teacher's petiton for re-instatement to her teaching job in the Jefferson County Public School System.

The decision of the Alabama Supreme Court came after Atty. Arthur D. Shores, Atty. George Brown, and Atty. Crampton Harris, argued that the Board of Education hearing was a "sham" and was conducted in a "hostile" atmosphere and violated Alabama's tenure laws.

The lawyers argued that a contract right is a constitutional right which cannot be taken away without due process of the law.

The Board of Education in the hearing against Mrs. Gainer made much of two telegrams allegedly written by the teacher to a board member.

Judge Bowron during the trial of the case over-ruled the basic contention of the lawyers that the board failed to comply with the tenure law.

During the hearing before Judge Bowron, several reports allegedly made by Mrs. Robbe Crawford, Supervisor E. P. Jones, Principal Nona Powell and High School Director C. W. Phillips, were identified.

The County Board of Education dismissed Mrs. Gainer on charges of "Insubornation", "Neglect of Duty and other good and just causes."

14m(4) 1948

2535 NEGRO TEACHERS GIVEN INCREASE IN PAY

Arkansas Average For Past Year Was $371

From The Commercial Appeal
Little Rock Bureau

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 30.—Some 2535 negro school teachers in Arkansas received an average salary increase of $371 per teacher during the 1947-48 fiscal year, State Education Commissioner Ralph Jones said Saturday.

During the same period, Mr. Jones pointed out, 9825 white school teachers received an average salary increase of $345.

"Negro school teachers received a 41.1 per cent increase in salary during the year, while white teachers received a 22.7 per cent increase," he reported.

Mr. Jones said that additional revenue provided under a revision of tax measures by the 1947 Legislature allowed a total of 12,360 Arkansas teachers to receive pay increases during the year. The total increase amount to $4,328,054, of which $3,898,959 came from state funds, while $429,095 was from local revenue.

Class of teachers participating in the increase and the number in each class included: 374 teachers with no college training; 3359 with less than two years college training; 4098 who had over two but less than four years of college training; 4126 who had bachelor's degrees, and 403 who held master's degrees.

Mr. Jones said the salary increase raised the average teacher's salary in Arkansas from $1224 to $1570.

14m(4) 1948

Florida

Tallahassee Public School Teachers on Equal Salary Basis

This is the thirteenth of a series dealing with the various State capitals. Courier correspondents throughout the Nation are showing what efforts are being made to make democracy a reality.

By JOHN A. DIAZ
(Courier Florida Bureau)

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—In spite of many shortcomings, it is doubtful that any of the other Southern States have a capital in which Negroes enjoy more civil liberties in interracial relationship than Tallahassee.

Tallahassee's public school teachers enjoy the distinction of being the highest paid in the entire State, if not in the whole South. Their salaries range from $1,000 to $3,700 a year, which put them in the same salary brackets with the white teachers.

Some Opposition

This phase of race equality in salaries is meeting some opposition from some of the whites and, believe it or not, from some of the Negroes.

The school superintendent has been taken to task for his liberalism and lack of racial discrimination in his administration of school finances. It is believed that the Negroes opposing the high salaries for Negro teachers are prompted by those who think that they should not receive higher salaries than some of the professors at the Florida A. and M. College for Negroes in Tallahassee.

Good Unions

Another fine example of civil liberties widely enjoyed by a large number of Tallahassee Negroes is the fact that in the trades, Negroes are accepted as full-fledged members of the unions, enjoying all the fruits of labor unions' advantages, and working side by side with the white tradesmen.

It is not uncommon to see Negro and white carpenters and brickmasons working together. Moreover, there are several Negro contractors building for whites as well as for Negroes in the capital. Some of these Negro contractors even employ white tradesmen to work for them.

It is common for Negroes to receive contracts from white people for plumbing and other work, as there are several Negro-licensed plumbers and electricians, something rare in a number of other Florida cities and absolutely unknown in Miami.

Railroad shops situated in the capital employ firemen and mechanics helpers. The demand for Negro domestic labor exceeds the supply.

There is one Negro letter carrier in Tallahassee, whose route takes him into the principal white sections. He has been employed by the Government for over forty years.

The records show that there has never been any racial disturbances in regards to labor in the capital.

Fair Housing

Housing conditions are fair, and there is adequate space for the Negroes' expansion. The writer was informed by one of the oldtimers that the Negroes have received FHA loans for building. It is not uncommon for white persons to move next door to Negroes if a house there meets their requirements. There has never been any conflict in regards to Negroes entering areas supposedly belonging to white people.

All of the banks of Tallahassee accept Negroes' deposits most graciously. In fact, their deposits are frequently solicited by the banks.

Big Shortcoming

Unfortunately, there are no recreational facilities for Negroes in the State capital. That is one of its outstanding shortcomings. Another one is the fact that they are not allowed in the downtown theatres. There is only one motion picture house for Negroes.

Hospitals and health facilities are not adequate. There is one sixty-bed hospital at the Florida A. and M. College and a thirty-bed private hospital. Nurses informed the writer that the lack of hospitals for Negroes furnishes a serious problem.

At the Baptist Memorial Hospital for whites there is no provision for Negro patients at all. The capital furnishes some health education for Negroes and employs three visiting nurses but that does not fill the requirements.

The Negro death rate in tuberculosis is three times as high as the whites.

9,000 Negroes

Tallahassee has a population of 18,105 whites and 6,722 Negroes, according to the 1945 census. The 1947 census gives 25,000 whites, with the Negro population unrecorded, but the estimate is 9,000.

For education, Tallahassee possesses an excellent public school system which offers good educational opportunities. There are six Negro elementary schools with enrollments of 1,600; there are three Negro junior high schools including two combined with high schools with total enrollments of 1,410.

The vocational training facilities for Negroes are much inferior to the whites. Whereas for the whites over a dozen courses are offered, the Negroes receive only an accelerated academic and a tailoring course.

Forgotten or Ignored

Many of the educational advantages which the whites have enjoyed in Tallahassee have not always been available to Negroes, in spite of the guarantee of the Florida Constitution of a separate but an impartial provision for white and Negro schools.

That guarantee has often been forgotten or ignored. In fact, in the county in which Tallahassee is situated, the salaries of some Negro teachers are higher than those of some white teachers. However, the school provisions are still inadequate to meet the needs of Negro youth in the public schools.

One Bright Spot

There is one bright spot in the academic picture of the Florida Negro. And it is situated on the beautiful rolling hills overlooking the city of Tallahassee.

It is a standard "Class A" college, rated by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. It is a member of the Association of American Universities and Colleges and the American Council of Education. The college offers courses of study to the A. B. and B. S. degrees, and the M. A. degree in education, which was inaugurated only about a year ago. The work is done through the training afforded in the seven divisions:

Agricultural, Education and Teacher-Training, Home Economics, Liberal Arts and Science, Mechanic Arts, Nurse Training and the graduate division in Education.

1,700 Students

The graduate program, designed especially to meet the needs of Negro school principals, superintendents and teachers in Florida, was inaugurated in the summer of 1945. The college, which is over sixty years old, is a co-educational institution of higher learning with an enrollment of 1,700 students.

It has received six million dollars from the State in recent years. The last four governors, including the present liberal, Gov. Millard F. Caldwell, have maintained most cordial and cooperative race relations with this institution of higher learning.

The protection of the Negro's civil rights in Florida's capital and the implementation of the report of the President's Committee on Civil Rights are receiving the support of a progressive Negro element in the capital.

But there will still remain for a long time the Southern pattern of racial segregation and its accompanying inequalities, which time only can gradually remove.

Rivers Flays Judge Waring In The House

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—(AP)—Representative Rivers (D-SC) told the House of Representatives today "there will be bloodshed" unless Federal Judge Waties Waring of South Carolina is removed.

Representative Dorn (D-SC) has introduced a resolution asking Congress to investigate "the conduct in office" of Waring, federal district judge for Eastern South Carolina.

Rivers said, in addressing the house:

"I am not complaining about his (Waring's) decision permitting Negroes to vote. I think anybody, whether he is a lawyer or not, could see that the federal courts were going to permit the Negroes to vote in South Carolina primaries. The Arkright case (in Texas) was the signal for this. Personally, I have felt for many years that we have had thousands of qualified Negroes in South Carolina who should be permitted to vote in our primaries.

Wants Voting Standards

"However, I didn't feel then and I don't feel now that illiterates, white or black, should be permitted to vote and I have on many occasions advocated an educational requirement for the right to vote... Everybody knows Negroes have always voted in general elections in South Carolina and everywhere else in the nation.

"In interpretation of what a judge considered to be law, whether he is right or wrong, he does not have to go through a metamorphis and become a monster. The law should be interpreted with dignity. The law should be interpreted so that people will have a respect for law. Judge Waring's miserable conduct in issuing orders has been nothing short of star chamber procedure.

"But his clumsy handling of a delicate situation has hurt the cause of the Negro in South Carolina. This is unfortunate and I trust will not long obtain.

"Unless he is removed, there will be bloodshed.

"I prophesy bloodshed because he is now in the process of exacting a pound of flesh from the white people of South Carolina because, through his own actions, he has been ostracized from their society.

"I charge that Waring's decisions are so political he is hopeful for a promotion to the Circuit Court of Appeals if by some curious twist, Light Horse Harry Truman should slip into the White House for another term."

Florida Teachers Get Back Salary

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Duval County's public school teachers received the first of two back salary checks due them on last Friday. In addition to receiving their regular monthly pay they received one-twelfth of annual salaries due most of them for the vacation period of last July.

Tampa Teachers Get Back Pay

TAMPA—Hillsborough county teachers were granted $172,500 today in retroactive increased salaries for the school year. The increase will go to teachers who have four years or more of college training. Under the plan, 1,111 teachers are eligible for the money. The increases range from $150. to $300.

Oklahoma, Texas, Atlanta Cases Pushed

The Lighthouse & Informer

NEW YORK—The NAACP drive for the elimination of segregation in education and equality in teachers' salaries was accelerated by three court decisions handed down this week by federal and state courts.

Columbia S. C.

In Oklahoma City a special three man federal court invalidated the state's laws prohibiting co-education of the races insofar as it prevented admission of a Negro student to the graduate school of the University of Oklahoma.

In Atlanta a federal judge ruled that the Atlanta School Board could not maintain a discriminatory salary scale based on race.

And in Austin, the Supreme Court of Texas refused to grant a writ of error which would have brought before the highest court of the state the now famous Sweatt case challenging the segregation laws of that state.

IRREGULAR COURSE

"These cases illustrate the irregular course of our drive against Jim Crow in education, "Thurgood Marshall, NAACP special counsel, said "In Atlanta decision we won a victory which establishes the right of Negro teachers to salaries equal to those paid white instructors. In Oklahoma, although the court failed to order the university to admit our client, we succeeded in winning a declaratory judgement which, we believe will enable us to hurdle the barrier of constitutionality heretofore raised against us. In the Texas case the court rejected our attempt to test the segregation laws in the highest court of the state. We will, of course, appeal this discision."

THE OKLAHOMA CASE

On September 29 the special three-judge court consisting of United States Circuit J udge Alfred P. Murrah, and District Judges Edgar S. Vaught and Bower Broaddus declared that the statutes of Oklahoma which made it a crime for Negro and white students to attend the same school or to be taught together could not be used to deny admission of G. W. McLaurin to the graduate school of the University of Oklahoma.

Mr. McLaurin, a retired professor of Langston University, Oklahoma, applied for graduate work leading to a doctor of philosophy degree in Januray of this year. He was denied admission solely because of his race and color.

Jun-10-10-48

In August, NAACP lawyers filed an action in the federal court in Oklahoma City seeking a decision by the State of Oklahoma. A preliminary hearing was held on August 28 and the case was taken under advisement by the court. The court, while declaring the law, refused to grant an injunction which would compel the admission of McLaurin, leaving the matter up to the State of Oklahoma. The court retained jurisdiction of the case with full power to act and provided that "either party may apply for further relief consistent with the pleadings in the case."

McLaurin and the NAACP attorneys representing him, Mr. Marshall and Amos Hall of Tulsa, Okla., immediately declared their intention to return to the University of Oklahoma and to insist that McLaurin be admitted immediately. If he is not admitted, further proceedings will be started to enforce the declaration of law issued by the Court and to compel his admission this semester, Mr. Marshall said.

SALARIES EQUALIZED

In a decision handed down at the United States District Court in Atlanta on Sept. 28, Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood ruled that the Atlanta School Board had discriminated against Negro teachers and ordered "a readjustment of salaries" within "a reasonable time."

The decision followed re-argument of the case of Samuel L. Davis and other Atlanta School teachers, ordered last April 30 by Judge Underwood.

Average monthly salaries were listed thus: high school principals white, $340, Negro, 240; elementary school principals, white, $254.15, Negro, $167.53; high school teachers, white, $198.45 Negro, $145.65; elementary school teachers, white, $160,19, Negro $112.38.

TEXAS REJECTS PLEA

The efforts of Heman Marion Sweatt to gain admission to the law school of the University of Texas were rejected by the State Supreme Court, which refused to grant a writ of error on September 29.

Both the trial court and the Circuit Court of Appeals of Texas have denied the NAACP's contention that the segregation laws of Texas are invalid and that the law school set up by Texas for Negro students is unequal. Both courts have refused to order the University of Texas to admit Sweatt to its law school.

NAACP attorneys have indicated that a re-argument of the petition for a writ of error before the Supreme Court of Texas would be sought but that if the writ is denied at that time, the case would then be headed for the United States Supreme Court.

Injunction Issued In Equalization Suit

Atlanta Daily World

RICHMOND, VA.—(NNPA)—The Fourth United States Circuit Court of Appeals last Friday upheld an injunction issued by the Federal District Court here to require the Chesterfield County School Board to equalize the salaries of colored school teachers with those of whites.

In an opinion of less than 100 words, the appellate court declared: "This is an appeal in a suit instituted by colored school teachers against a county school board to enjoin discrimination in pay on the ground of color. The district judge found that the discrimination existed and granted an injunction. The evidence amply supports the findings and the injunction was in proper form . The decree appealed from his affirmed."

Although Chesterfield County school officials claimed that teacher pay had been equalized in accordance with the injunction, they appealed the case to test the validity of the order issued by District Judge Sterling Hutcheson.

The county contended in arguments before the court of appeals in Baltimore in Octbore that ";every teacher is paid what his services are worth, regardless of his color." Attorneys for the colored teachers contended that their clients have consistently been paid less than white solely because of their race.

Jun-10-10-48

Salary Equality for Oklahoma Teachers

THE FEDERAL District Court in Oklahoma City has signed an order against the Oklahoma City school board and county officials prohibiting discrimination in pay scales because of race.

Hereafter Oklahoma City, and eventually all Oklahoma cities, will have to pay teachers of equal experience and educational attainments equal salaries regardless of color.

This is another great victory on the road to complete equality.

It means that hundreds of thousands of dollars will find their way into the pockets of Oklahoma Negro teachers, and to that extent the economic standard of the Negro population will be raised.

It has been a shameful circumstance that doomed Negro teachers to inferior income simply because they were Negroes, and it is heartening that the courts are one by one, in one section after the other, eliminating the wage differential based on so-called race.

The next big battle will be the elimination of inequalities in the physical plants and equipment of the colored and white schools.

Universally throughout the South and other sections of the country where there are racially segregated schools, the white schools are superior to the Negro schools.

This imposes great hardships upon colored pupils and teachers alike.

Overcrowded schools for Negroes are the order of the day everywhere and there are very few Negro schools with equipment equal to that provided for white schools.

This means that even if Negro teachers' salaries are equal to those of teachers, the former are handicapped for lack of proper equipment with which to teach and because of the necessity of teaching larger classes.

It is the Negro pupils who suffer most from this discrimination.

Southern educational officials and politicians may complain that there is not sufficient tax money available to properly equip both white and colored schools, but if they cannot afford the luxury of separate racial educational systems, then they should abolish them.

14m(4) 1948 General

Salaries In 1947-48

It is too early to compile complete report of teachers' salaries for the current year. Incomplete reports, however, are available through the office of N. E. A. in Washington.

In practically all states reporting teachers were given splendid increases as compared with last year. Incomplete reports of average salaries for 1947-48 are as follows:

California, $3,600; Washington, $3,200; Maryland, $3,100; Indiana, $3,000; Arizona, $2,950; Rhode Island, $2,950; Utah, $2,925; Connecticut, $2,900; Michigan, $2,850; New Jersey, $2,800; Nevada, $2,800; Massachusetts, $2,700; Delaware, $2,700; Florida, $2,700; Ohio, $2,700; Oregon, $2,700; New Mexico, $2,600; Pennsylvania, $2,600; Montana, $2,600; Texas, $2,500; Illinois, $2,500, and Louisiana, $2,500. 1-17-48

It is noted that the three Southern states of Florida, Louisiana, and Texas are included in the above list. Alabama, with its average salary of $1,800, is well below these three. While we were going forward during the past year, other states, too, were on the march.—Alabama School Journal.

Race, Religion Sex Not Considered In Implementation

Atlanta, Ga. Fri. 3-26-48

WASHINGTON —(ANP)— In his his annual report of the teaching profession, made public last Monday, Willard E. Givens, executive secretary of the National Education association of the United States, declared that adequate compensation for all professional school employes is obviously the first practical step to be taken in raising the professional status of teaching.

He named inadequate salaries as the important cause of 350,000 qualified teachers leaving the classrooms of the nation during the war years to accept more remunerative positions. Even in normal times, he said, there is a large turnover in teaching personnel. This results in loss of values accruing from experience, and lack of continuity in service.

INCREMENTS Daily World

The NEA advocated a salary schedule that begins at no less than $2,400 annually for the teacher who is a college graduate, and provided for annual increments up to $6,000 or more for teachers of long experience and outstanding ability.

It also recommended that the same salary schedule should be applied to the employment of teachers in the elementary school which applies to the employment of teachers in high school. Atlanta, Ga.

There should be no distinction in salary schedule on the basis of sex, the report declared.

EQUAL PAY Tri

In reply to the question of NEA's position on equalization of salary on the basis of race, the executive secretary referred to the supreme court decision that equal pay should be provided for equal service regardless to race, religion, sex or economic conditions. To implement this decision, he declared that NEA's platform says that race, religion, or sex should not be considered as a basis of position and qualification of jobs.

The report further recommended tsat periodic leave of absence with full or part time should be granted teachers for recognized programs of professional improvements. Fri. 3-26-48

New Light on Teacher Salaries

The Capital City Atlanta, Ga. 3-26-48

On the premise that the usual statistics on education in the several States mean little in terms of measuring the efficiency of schools, Pathfinder magazine has published figures which, incidentally, place Georgia and much of the South in a better light, particularly in respect to teacher salaries.

The magazine contends that undue significance has been given to teachers' salaries in dollar terms. "A State which has high salaries," it declares, "may have a high level of income. Then living costs will be higher, goods and services dearer. The teacher, despite her higher salary, finds her dollar doesn't go as far."

Atlanta Ga.

In short, money is good only for what it will buy. The New York teacher getting $3,500 a year may be far worse off than the rural Georgia teacher getting $1,500.

Pathfinder then proceeds to work out a formula by adding the total of all incomes in the State and dividing by the number of individuals to get the average per capita income. The average teacher salary is adjusted to the per capita income in the State by finding the percent which the State per capita income is of the national per capita income, then dividing the average teacher's salary by that percent.

Based on this formula which, so far as we can determine, is a legitimate adjustment of salaries to prevailing living costs and conditions, a new ranking of States in teacher salaries is produced. California, for instance, which ranks first in actual salaries, falls to fourteenth on an adjusted basis. New York, second in actual salaries, drops to twenty-first.

Georgia, on the other hand, comes up from thirty-ninth in actual salaries to eighteenth in what the salaries will buy. Alabama is raised from thirty-eighth to tenth place, South Carolina from forty-sixth to nineteenth, and Florida from tenth to second.

Florida's actual average teacher salary of $3,000 rises under the adjustment to $3,597. Florida's actual salary, and its adjusted worth, lure hundreds of teachers from Georgia and nearby States every year. Georgia's actual average salary of $1,800 is worth $2,691 after adjustment; Alabama's actual average of $1,900 is worth $3,000, and South Carolina's actual $1,550 is worth $2,636.

Even so, however, the survey showed Georgia and other Southern States ranking far down the line in other "yardsticks," such as teacher qualifications, percent of men teachers, teacher-pupil ratio, percent of high school graduates and current expenses per pupil. In capital outlay per pupil, Georgia and South Carolina are among the lowest, Florida and Tennessee in the top bracket, Mississippi in the second and Alabama in the third.

Jan 12-48

We still have a long way to go.

Better, Equal Teacher Pay Urged by NEA

Atlanta, Ga. 3-21-48

WASHINGTON (ANP)—In his annual report, released last week, Willard E. Givens, secretary, National Education Association, declared that adequate compensation for all professional school employees is obviously "the first practical step to be taken in raising the professional status of teaching."

He blamed inadequate salaries as the major cause of 350,000 qualified teachers leaving the nation's classrooms during the war years to accept more remunerative positions. Even in normal times, he said, there is a large turnover in teaching personnel.

The NEA advocated a beginning salary of $2,400 annually for a teacher with a college degree, and annual increments up to $6,000 or more for teachers of long experience and outstanding ability.

Backs Equal Salary

On the question of the NEA's position on equalization of salary, the executive secretary referred to the Supreme Court decision that equal pay should be provided for equal service regardless of race, religion, sex or economic conditions. This is incorporated in NEA's platform. Fri. 3-26-48

The report said retirement systems should protect teachers in their financially unproductive years and relieve from active duty those who have reached the age when vigor and effectiveness naturally begin to decline. Also, that teachers should be protected by adequate tenure laws from unjust dismissal.

LOW-SALARIED TEACHERS

The Negro Year Book [illegible] declares that from 1939-1940 survey of salary differentials in the Southern States nearly $25,000,000 annually would have to be added to the salaries of Negro teachers to bring them up to the level of salaries received by white teachers; while, if both salaries and teaching loads had been equalized more than $30,000,000 have been required in addition to the amount actually lar Bluff. Each received $37.50 in addition to the amount actually spent for public education in southern states.

VICTORY AT LAST!—With Prof. C. L. Harper, these two members of the original Gate City Teachers Association's committee on equal salaries, launched the fight for equal pay for Negro Atlanta teachers in 1939 and '40. Left, Miss Cora B. Finley. Right, Joel W. Smith. They won that fight last week.

Judge Rules Atlanta Must Pay Both White, Negro Teachers Same

ATLANTA, Sept. 29—(AP)—Atlanta's Negro school teachers have been paid less than white teachers because of racial discrimination, a federal judge held yesterday.

Ruling on a five-year-old suit against the Atlanta school board, Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood said Negro teachers were "entitled to the relief sought."

Judge Underwood said a declaratory judgment and an injunction in accordance with his ruling will be issued.

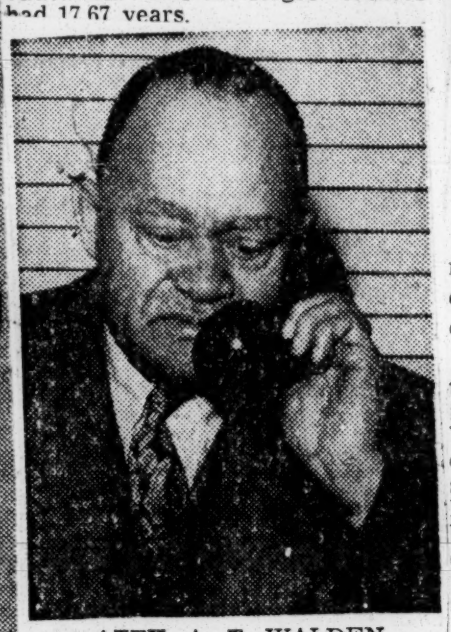
"The court disclaims any power to fix the salaries of the teachers," Judge Underwood said. "That is the right within the province of the defendants. The court only decrees that the salaries may not, when so fixed, be discriminatory of color or race.

School Board Chairman Ed S. Cook declined comment until he could study the opinion and confer with other board members.

The following average monthly salaries were listed:

Classification	White	Negro
High school principals	$340.00	$240.00
Elementary principals	254.15	167.53
High school teachers	198.45	145.65
Elementary teachers	160.19	112.38

The judge said white teachers had an average of 17.85 years of education while the Negro teachers had 17.67 years.



ATTY. A. T. WALDEN
. . . Fired legal guns

PLEASED — Reuben W. Taylor, president of the Gate City Teachers Association during most of the long-time fight for pay equality, was pleased with the results.

Kentucky's Educational Picture Brightens, But Not Enough

More Teachers Still Needed

More teachers, more pupils, and more students enrolled in teachers' colleges—that's the 1948-'49 educational outlook for Kentucky.

Conditions in public schools for the coming year show a decided improvement over last year, John W. Brooker, executive secretary of the Kentucky Educational Association, said yesterday in releasing estimates prepared jointly by the State Department of Education and the K.E.A.

Figures Are Nation-Wide Study.

The estimates, requested annually by the National Education Association, go to make up an estimate of school conditions all over the United States.

Brooker said approximately 18,500 teachers will be employed in the state this year—an increase of 1,086 over last year's total of 17,414. This includes classroom teachers, principals, and supervisors for elementary and secondary schools.

Pupil enrollment in public elementary and secondary schools is expected to jump 10,098 over last year—546,700 this year compared to 536,602 last year.

Recruiting Program Working.

Enrollment in teachers' colleges will be definitely larger than that of the prewar year, 1940-41. This Brooker attributed to the extensive teacher-recruiting program which has been conducted in Kentucky.

While the estimates show decided improvements, Brooker said the preliminary reports still "paint a pretty sorry picture of school conditions." The number of teachers employed on emergency or substandard certificates is expected to drop 1,000, but there still will be 4,200 such teachers, virtually all of them in rural areas.

(Approximately 20 teachers in Louisville public schools have emergency certificates, Board of Education officials said yesterday, and the majority of these teach special subjects, such as art and industrial work.)

Jobs Open In Rural Areas.

The number of vacant or unfilled teaching positions in the state probably will jump to 100 from 75 last year. These, too, are mostly in rural areas and in elementary schools.

However, Brooker pointed out, no pupils will lack regular full-time schooling because of shortage of qualified teachers or school buildings. When a rural school is without a teacher, pupils are accommodated at a neighboring school.

Average salary of classroom teachers, principals, and supervisors will be $1,950, compared to $1,937 last year. This increase of only $13 is due to the salary increases granted by the 1948 General Assembly, Brooker explained. Retroactive only to the 1947-48 school year, the increases were paid out of a special appropriation and averaged $175 per teacher.

By the same token, average salaries of classroom teachers will be an estimated $2 more than last year—$1,866 compared to $1,864.

Figures Are Compared.

A more accurate picture is given by comparing the estimates for this year with salaries of 1946-47, before the increase was granted by the General Assembly. Thus an increase of $401 will go to classroom teachers, who averaged approximately $1,465 in 1946-47, compared to $1,866 for the coming year. The approximate average of classroom teachers, principals, and supervisors in 1946-47 was $1,575, compared to $1,950 for the

An estimated 4,300 teachers coming year—an increase of $375. wil be needed, in addition to the 100 needed for vacant positions, to reduce the teacher load and bring school programs up to prewar effectiveness and efficiency. Four thousand of these are needed in elementary and 300 in secondary schools.

Shortage of school buildings will be very large in rural elementary schools, the report notes, and "some to considerable" in rural and city secondary and city elementary schools.

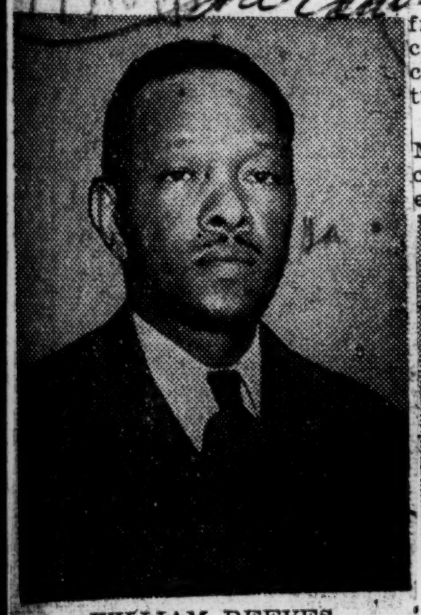
In a letter to Brooker in which he requested the estimates for 1948-1949, Frank W. Hubbard, director of the N.E.A.'s research division, pointed out that for several years "these national estimates have been a major factor in acquainting the people with school conditions. Newspapers, magazines, and radio have responded with mounting interest and concern. State legislators and members of Congress have shown increasing awareness of school needs. We must continue to keep them informed."

The national report should be issued about October 20, Hubbard predicted that on the national level school conditions will probably show improvement over last year's. "But even promising preliminary reports," he added, "do not show that the schools are entirely out of the woods."

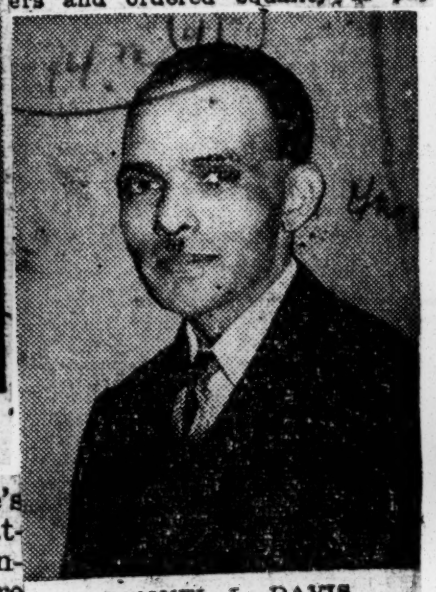
He urged the teaching profession to help "not only to restore prewar levels, but to build new internal strength for the three to five critical years immediately ahead."

Atlanta Teachers 'Stuck by Guns' for Salary Equality

Nine Years Winning Pay Fight



WILLIAM REEVES
... Martyr in battle



SAMUEL L. DAVIS
... Continued the fight

PROF. CHARLES L. HARPER
... Engineered pay fight

PROF. CHARLES L. HARPER

ATLANTA — In Dixie's stubborn equal education battle, yielding county by county, State by State, one more victory was chalked up by the NAACP in winning equal pay for Atlanta's Negro school teachers after a nine-year fight.

Two teachers—William Reeves and Samuel L. Davis—became martyrs in the cause and Reeves lost his job because they dared oppose Dixie whites by filing the first suit in the case, Davis was subjected to bitter pressure and intimidation by Superintendent Ira Jarrell, who launched a personal attack against Davis.

Although the effort was first launched in 1939 by the Gate City Teachers Association under retired Prof. Charles H. Harper, also president of the local NAACP, it actually reached the courts in 1941 when Reeves sued the Atlanta Board of Education. Repercussion was swift and the board removed Reeves from his teacher's post at David T. Howard High School on grounds of physical unfitness.

SUIT DROPPED ONCE

After Mr. Reeves' dismissal, the suit was dropped on technical grounds, but another was quickly brought against the school board on July 2, 1943, this time by Samuel L. Davis, an instructor then at Booker T. Washington High School, who carried the battle from then on. Stalling on technicalities, the school board kept the case from reaching a decision until last week.

At that time, Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood decided the case in favor of the Negro teachers and ordered equality of pay to be perfected within a reasonable time. School board officials are studying the order to decide action as to compliance or appeal to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

OVERCAME "STALLING"

Vigorously prosecuted since November, 1947, when the "stalling" tactics were finally overcome, the NAACP legal battery of Attorneys Thurgood S. Marshall, chief counsel; A. T. Walden, Atlanta; Edward R. Dudley, New York, and Democratic City Councilman Oliver W. Hill of Richmond, Va., finally presented an air-tight case on July 8, 1948. Backed by figures presented by Accountant J. B. Blayton, the judge decided in favor of equal pay.

Backing the Atlanta teachers in their fight was the Committee for Equal Salaries of the Teachers Association. Key figures on that committee with Professor Harper included Miss Cora B. Finley, then principal of the Yonge Street Elementary School and now at Alabama State College, and Joel W. Smith, who resigned from his teaching position at David T. Howard Junior High School in 1943.

SALARY SCALE

Average monthly salaries were listed thus: high school principals: white, $340, Negro, $240; elementary principals: white, $254.15, Negroes, $167.53; high school teachers: white, $198.45; Negro, $145.65; elementary teachers, white, $160.19; Negro, $112.38.

The Courier

Behind every well-fought battle is a person or a group who has rallied the forces, directed the offensive and, most important maintained a spirited will to win and esprit de corps.

Behind the tremendously significant victory of Atlanta (Ga.) school teachers in gaining salary equality after nine years of intensive, resolute engineering by Prof. Charles L. Harper, president of the Atlanta NAACP and executive secretary of the Georgia Teachers and Educational Association.

Professor Harper launched the first step for equal rights in 1939. At that time the Atlanta Board of Education was asked to start closing the gap and eventually equalize the salaries of Negro and white teachers so that court action would not be necessary. But court action was necessary and after nine long years of legal subterfuges, bitter fighting and brilliant maneuvering by a corps of Negro lawyers, a Federal judge ruled in favor of the Negro teachers.

Despite the fact that Professor Harper, at the start of the fight, was principal of Booker T. Washington High School, and received the largest salary of any Negro in the system, he spearheaded the move for equal salaries. For this kind of courage and selflessness, The Courier proudly salutes Prof. Charles L. Harper.

Savannah School Teachers Strike To Pay Demands

SAVANNAH, Ga. — Before a representative group of teachers at the YMCA Friday, President Donnelly of the Chatham County Negro Teachers Association declared that he will not accept "one penny less" than the $600 raise asked by local white teachers.

Before Donnelly could finish his plea for a strong local union to be alert to any pitfalls of the profession at all times, a motion was made and unanimously passed to join local 991 of the American Federation of Teachers.

A resolution endorsing the five-point program of the Chatham County Teachers Association (white) and pledging support to the drive for increased wages was passed by the group.

R. J. Martin, Ballard High School principal and state chairman of the teacher's convention program related how the Macon system passed their recent bond issue. Before it was voted, he said, the citizens received in writing from the board, details of cost and construction of proposed new school building.

As a result the issue was approved. Of the $2,000,00 voted, Negroes were allotted $1,000,000. Construction of a new grammar school is slated for this month and work on a new high school will begin in the fall.

Georgia

The Taylors' Debacle

The dismissal case against Prof. and Mrs. R. M. Taylor, teachers at the David T. Howard and the Booker T. Washington high schools respectively, promises to be the most interesting, if not the most celebrated, in the history of local public education. Here are two teachers, one a graduate of Northwestern University with 17 uninterrupted years of teaching experience in the Atlanta school system to his credit, and the other, his wife, a graduate of historic Atlanta University with 24 years of continuous teaching experience in the Atlanta school system to her credit, both of whom have been summarily dismissed from the system for the crime of being absent from school without having obtained permission from the superintendent. On its face, we repeat, the case offers no parallel in local education history.

Never in the history of the school has it been the practice of the Board to require teachers to pass over the heads of the principals and to first secure permission from the superintendent in order to be away from the school. The regulation set forth in rule 26 of the Board of Education requires only that a teacher, desiring to be absent, should notify his or her principal. The very week when the Taylor's were dismissed for being away two days, another teacher whose name we can furnish, was away from her classes the entire week having done no more than the Taylors did; notified her principal. She is back in school in good standing with the Board. There are 15 or 20 others who this very year, have been away from classes anywhere from a day to a week or more, according to their own testimony. And they are back in school in good standing with the Board.

The Board of Education, it seems to us, is bogging down deeper and deeper in the sea of inconsistency in its inept handling of these simple cases. In its original letter to the Taylors, the superintendent informed them that they were being suspended from the system "for being absent without excuse." That letter of notification was at the home of these teachers when they returned on Monday after their suspension. Now in a frantic effort to justify its blunder, the Board has enlarged the charges to include insurbordination and misconduct.

The case is to be heard next Tuesday afternoon before the Board members. We hope the Taylors will not relinquish a single claim they have upon justice in this case. It is difficult not to interpret this strangely inconsistent ruling as another attempt on the part of the Board to take reprisal against those whom they suspected of having any part in the equal salary suit. An equal blunder was made by the Board in dismissing over 500 students, said to be illegally registered at the Washington high school, only to turn about face and re-admit all of them save about 75 or 80. Atlantans are keenly interested in this case and are determined that the Taylors will not suffer the want of single legal defense in order to secure justice.

Judge Underwood's Ruling

Federal District Judge E. Marvin Underwood has made final disposition in the long-fought Atlanta equal pay suit, in which he has ordered the Atlanta Education Board to begin, in September, 1949, to paying Negro and white teachers equal salaries, based on qualifications and fitness, rather than upon race and color. The decision, of course, is the result of the suit brought by Samuel L. Davis, a teacher at the Booker T. Washington high school and other teachers and principals similarly situated.

It is altogether possible that Board officials will resist the order and therefore, seek to have the courts set it aside. Such an eventuality is already in the making. But there is little liklihood that even the Circuit Court of Appeals will touch the case. Certainly, the United States Supreme Court will have nothing further to do with it, if the Circuit court reviews the case and decides against the Board. Discrimination in the payment of teachers, even if they are all of the same race, would not stand a court test. But where discrimination is practiced by reason of race and color, as has been done for more than a half century throughout the South, it too, must give way to present-day justice and equality. Hence, no matter how long or how many delaying tactics may be employed by local officials Judge Underwood's decision will make it obligatory upon the Atlanta Education Board to begin the equal pay schedule in September, 1949. Failing to comply with this ruling due to delaying tactics, the order, whenever the case is finally disposed of, will become retroactive, provided no change of opinion by Judge Underwood is affected in the process which is not at all likely.

Education Board Appeals Pay Ruling

Faced with the deadline of removing its racial discriminatory pattern in paying Negro teachers, the Atlanta Board of Education Thursday filed an appeal in the U. S. District court here.

The appeal is being made in the Federal court decree wherein U. S. District Court Judge E. Marvin Underwood ruled that the board was guilty of violating the Fourteenth Amendment in a parity suit brought by Samuel L. Davis, Washington High School teacher, and other teachers similarly situated.

In a subsequent decree, Judge Underwood ordered the board to rectify the discrimination in salaries by Sept, 1, 1949.

The date for hearing the appeal has not been set.

LEGENDARY CASE

The struggle of Negro teachers to gain a favorable decision in Federa court appears almost legendary

Their victory was realized after seven long years preliminary litigations, wrangling and stalling, when Judge Underwood ordered the board to open its records for inspection by attorneys for the plaintiffs. The hearing of the case itself lasted a week during which time attorneys for the plaintiffs introduced both specific and general evidence of what was termed discrimination in pay because of race.

The board's defense centered mainly around what was termed an evaluation of intangible and tangible qualities in the rating of teachers. Then, too, attempts to explain the so-called intricate track-step system employed by the board in paying its teachers consumed a greater portion of the hearings.

MISS JARRELL KEY WITNESS

It was Miss Ira Jarrell, Superintendent of Public Schools, who as key witness for the defense, steadfastly and emphatically denied any discrimination in pay because of race. During the court hearing, only she could give explanation of the paying system employed. After a lengthy study of the evidence and records, Judge Underwood ruled:

"In paying the plaintiff and other Negro teachers and principals in the public schools in Atlanta, Georgia, smaller salaries than are paid by said defendants to white teachers are principals with equal qualifications and experience, in so far as such differentials are predicated on race or color, which policy and acts the Court finds are unlawful and unconstitutional and in violation of the protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States."

Facing Deadline, Education Board To Appeal Pay Ruling

On the heels of U. S. District Judge E. Martin Underwood's decree that it equalize the salaries of Negro teachers to that of whites by September of next year, the Atlanta Board of Education has decided to appeal the original ruling wherein the judge found the Board guilty of practicing racial discrimination in paying its teachers.

The suit had been brought by Samuel Davis, Washington high school teacher and other teachers similarly situated. Preliminary litigations held the decision in abeyance for approximately seven years when finally the Board was ordered to open its records to the plaintiffs attorneys, A. T. Walden, O. W. Hill and E. R. Dudley. During the week long trial in November of 1947, attorneys for the plaintiffs produced a preponderance of evidence, both specific and general, with claims of discrimination because of race.

The plaintiff's allegations were steadfastly denied by the board and its key witness, Miss Ira Jarrell, Superintendent of Public schools.

Judge Finds Teachers' Pay Resting On Race And Color

By C. LAMAR WEAVER

In a decree handed down by United District Court Judge E. Marvin Underwood Friday, the Atlanta Board of Education was given until September 1, 1949 to equalize the salaries of Negro teachers to those received by whites.

The decree followed a previous ruling which found the Board guilty of discrimination in paying Negro teachers solely on account of race or color in a suit which had been filed by Samuel L. Davis, Washington high school instructor, and other teachers situated.

Judge Underwood wrote:

"In view of the time required to readjust salaries conformably to this decree and to the personal qualifications of the teachers and principals, respectively, the injunction shall not become operative and in effect until September 1, 1948", adding:

"Let the defendants (the Atlanta Board of Education) pay the costs of court".

The order, reiterating what was emphasized in the original opinion, said:

"In paying the plaintiff and other Negro teachers and principals in the public schools in Atlanta, Georgia, smaller salaries than are paid by said defendants to white teachers and principals with equal qualifications and experience, in so far as such differentials are predicated solely on race or color, which policy and acts the Court finds are unlawful and unconstitutional and in violation of the protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States and of Sections 41 and 43 of Title 8 of the United States Code."

Federal Court rulings favoring such a step.

Recently in Atlanta, Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood ruled that the Atlanta Board of Education discriminated in Negro and white teachers pay and ordered lawyers for Atlanta Negro teachers to confer with the legal staff of the board towards a date when the new pay scale for Negro teachers would go into effect.

Savannah Teachers Seek Parity

SAVANNAH, Ga. — (SNS) — A move for equal pay in the Savannah Public School System was initated Monday when the Chatham County Negro Teachers Association filed a petition before the education board.

The action came Monday when a delegation appeared before the Board of Education.

The organization expressed the sentiment that some friendly way could be found to bring about the equalization of pay and pointed to

Teachers Hail Victory In Pay Suit; Board May Appeal

By C. LAMAR WEAVER

The federal court ruling on equal pay for Atlanta Negro teachers handed down by Judge E. Marvin Underwood Tuesday appears to have caused joyous exultation among the teachers. On the otherhand, it appears to have caused acute consternation among the members of the Atlanta Board of Education.

On Wednesday board members were making plans to discuss the decision with their defending attorneys, J. M. B. Bloodworth and B. D. Murphy. In fact, so stunning was the impact of the decision, Board President Ed S. Cook said he would call an assembly as soon as possible.

One board official speculated that the decision would be appealed.

TEACHERS HAIL VICTORY

Meanwhile, a rejuvinated spirit was manifested among the Negro teachers themselves upon hearing the long-awaited news. After being faced with seven years of wrangling and stalling on preliminary litigations, Defense Attorney A. T. Walden and his special assistants, Edward R. Dudley, of New York, and Oliver W. Hill, of Richmond led them to victory in their fight to gain federal support in outlawing race pay discrimination. Court hearings in the case opened on Nov. 10, 1947 and lasted for one week.

A signal victory was acclaimed by the teachers when the judge scribed in his findings on race pay discrimination: "I find that it is and that plaintiff is entitled to the relief sought for himself and the principals and teachers he represents."

SIGNIFICANT FACTOR

A most significant factor in the case was the comparative study of white and Negro teachers on different levels compiled by J. B. Blayton, Certified Public Accountant, employed by the plaintiffs. Ostensibly, it was largely from these comparative analysis that the wide gulfs in teachers pay were clearly established. Mr. Blayton said his studies showed general race pay discrimination on all levels.

Moreover, the unwavering stand of Samuel L. Davis, Washington High School teacher, as plaintiff for himself and all other teachers similarly situated proved to be the vanguard of the teachers' victory.

Prior to Mr. Davis' acceptance as the key plaintiff in the case, another teacher, William Reeves, formerly of David T. Howard, was defendant in the suit. He was dismissed from his teaching duties in 1948.

"REASONABLE"

In handing his ruling the judge gave the board a "reasonable length of time" with which to equalize the salaries. The term "reasonable" has caused a degree of perplexity among many.

A reliable source in clarifying this point asserted that "reasonable," as interpreted by him, means "anytime the opposing attorneys can agree upon after conferring with their respective clients."

"If no agreement can be reached," the source added, "then the judge must fix the date."

Education Board Votes New Plan For 'Professional' Teacher Ratings

Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.
Sat. 2-21-48

By JOHN COURIC

Georgia teachers must have more than a college degree in the future to be rated professionals by the State Board of Education.

The Board, in session here Friday, voted to require teachers beginning their training after September, 1950, to attend a four-year, Board-approved College of Education to become eligible for a professional teaching certificate.

At the same time, the Board approved the University College of Education as having a suitable teacher training program. No other school has this approval at present.

Graduates failing to meet the new professional standards will receive provisional certificates based on two; three and four years of college work. Teachers failing to meet either provisional or professional requirements because of some technicality will receive temporary certificates.

The Board also voted to revise its present system of certifying teachers now employed in the schools. This policy, to be placed into effect between now and July 1, 1950, calls for professional, provisional and temporary certificates for teachers.

County licenses, the Board announced, will not be allowed next school year. These formerly could be obtained by teachers who had only high school training.

The Board hopes to offer a wide difference in salary between provisional and professional teachers, but this is contingent upon additional financing of the State School System.

Textbook bids were received, but action on these offers were postponed until 10 a. m. next Friday when the Board meets again. Before receiving the bids, the Board refused to add additional books to the list approved by a professional committee.

The Board also instructed State School Superintendent M. D. Collins to write local school authorities advising them against an encyclopedia sales plan calling for aid from school children and officials.

This method—known as the giveaway plan—provides a free set of reference books for a school library in return for a list of parents and the purchase of a certain number of sets by these parents.

The Board discussed, but took no action, on the hiring of teachers as part-time encyclopedia salesmen. Sat 2-21-48

C. S. Hubbard, Director of the Education Department's Textbook Division, said the Board could withdraw its approval of the books of any firm found guilty of this practice.

Teachers' Salary Suit Briefs Must Be In By July 21

Chicago Daily Tribune
Friday
Sat.

ATLANTA, Ga.—The five-year old fight of Atlanta Negro teachers to win equal salaries remains unsettled in Federal court here.

Judge E. Marvin Underwood, Thursday, gave attorneys until July 21, to file briefs, after which he will take the case under advisement.

Charge Bias

The suit, filed by Samuel Davis, and others, charges that the Atlanta Board of Education and the Superintendent of Schools, Miss Ira Jarrell, discriminate in salaries of equally qualified white and Negro teachers. The plaintiff contends that Negro teachers are almost invariably paid a lower scale than whites. 7-31-48

Judge Underwood asked attorneys Thursday afternoon, to present at the next session of court a comparison of the Atlanta schools.

Miss Jarrell had previously testified that salaries were fixed by the school board, regardless of race, according to a teacher's record, and rules and regulations of the board of education.

TO RE-ARGUE TEACHERS' SALARY EQUALITY CASE

May 6, 1948

Press Service of The NAACP
New York, N. Y.
Thurs. 5-6-48

ATLANTA, May 6.-- Re-argument of the case of Samuel L. Davis and other Atlanta school teachers for equalization of salaries has been ordered by Judge E. Marvin Underwood of the United States District Court here.

Judge Underwood's request for additional information followed study of the evidence and arguments presented, in a six-day trial last November, by Edward R. Dudley, Oliver W. Hill and Austin T. Walden, attorneys for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, who filed the suit in behalf of Mr. Davis and other Negro teachers in the Atlanta school system. The teachers asked a pay scale equal to that of similarly qualified white teachers.

Press Service of The NAACP
New York, N. Y.
Thurs. 5-6-48

In his order, filed April 30, the judge asked clarification of classification and personnel data submitted by the attorneys. He also indicated that additional evidence would be accepted when the case is re-opened for argument sometime during the month of July on a date to be agreed upon.

GEORGIA TEACHERS' SALARY CASE TO BE REARGUED JULY 8

July 1, 1948

NAACP New York, N. Y.
Thurs. 7-1-48
14-(4)

ATLANTA, July 1.-- The case of Samuel L. Davis and other Atlanta school teachers for equalization of salaries will be reargued in the United States District Court here on July 8 by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The request of Judge E. Marvin Underwood for additional information followed his study of evidence and arguments presented, in a six-day trial last November, by Edward R. Dudley, Oliver W. Hill and Austin T. Walden, NAACP attorneys. The NAACP filed the suit in behalf of Mr. Davis and other Negro teachers in the Atlanta school system, who are asking for a pay scale equal to that of similarly qualified white teachers.

Judge Underwood has asked for a re-argument in order to clarify certain classifications, personnel data and the placements on the merit system scale which were adapted after the case was filed.

Negro Teachers Win Salary-Equality Suit

The Constitution

Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood yesterday ruled in favor of Atlanta Negro school teachers in their five-year-old suit brought against the Atlanta School Board to rectify alleged salary inequalities caused by racial discrimination.

The Court held that colored teachers had been the victim of "discrimination on account of race or color," and were "entitled to the relief sought."

"The Court disclaims any power to fix the salaries of the teachers," the opinion concluded. "That is the right and within the province of the defendants. The Court only decrees that the salaries may not, when so fixed, be discriminatory of color or race."

Judge Underwood said he would allow the School Board a "reasonable time to permit compliance."

The Court cited as one example of the salary inequalities the schedule which provides a median basic monthly salary of $348 for white high school principals, and a mean salary of $340. For Negro high school principals both the mean and median salary are $240 the opinion stated.

The petition for an injunction against the School Board first was filed by Samuel L. Davis, Negro teacher, "on behalf of himself and others," in 1943. It has been in the Court since, with several hearings on technical points before Judge Underwood. Oliver W. Hill, Negro lawyer who recently was elected to the City Council in Richmond, pleaded the case with A. T. Walden, local Negro lawyer.

In his opinion Judge Underwood analyzed the salary schedules of white and Negro teachers and concluded, "The evidence shows a great differential between the pay of white and Negro teachers in favor of the former and all placements on the schedules uniformly and decidedly more favorable to the white teachers, far beyond what objective qualifications would justify."

Atty. B. D. Murphy, who with J. M. B. Bloodworth represented the School Board, said they had not had time to study the findings in fact and conclusions of law in Judge Underwood's opinion, but "very probably" would appeal the case.

Atlanta Board Gets Reasonable Time To Act

Daily World

Finds Pay Based On Color And Race

Discrimination

A civil action suit, instituted in 940 by Attorneys for William Reeves, a David T. Howard instructor, and continued by Samuel L. Davis, an instructor at the Booker T. Washington high school, ended in a victorious triumph for Negro teachers and principals of Atlanta Tuesday when. Federal District Judge, E. Marvin Underwood, ordered the Atlanta Education Board to set about plans to equilize salaries within a reasonable length of time.

The 16 page decision is the climax of a long and arduous nip and tuck struggle between the Board of Education and petitioners, who sought relief from discrimination for themselves and "all others similarly situated" by reason of their race and color.

"The crucial question in this case," wrote Judge Underwood, "is whether the very substantial differential between the salaries of white teachers and the colored teachers represented by plaintiff is due to discrimination on account of race and color. I find that it is and that plaintiff is entitled to the relief sought for himself and the principals and teachers he represents," the Judge declared.

A declaratory judgment and injunction will be entered, the decision reads, in accordance with these findings:

COLOR RULED OUT

"The court disclaims any power to fix salaries of the teachers. That is the right and within the province of defendants. The court only decrees that the salaries may not, when so fixed, be discriminatory because of color or race.

"The court realizes that a readjustment of salaries will be a difficult task and will require time and patience, so that the injunctive relief granted will be stayed a reasonable time to permit compliance by defendants.

"Counsel, after conference between themselves, may submit an appropriate form of judgment, inserting therein for consideration by the court what they deem to be a reasonable time to allow for the readjustment of salaries, if they can agree thereon," the decision warns.

Determined not to be swayed from its course the Board, following its dismissal of Reeves in 1942, abolished its salary schedule and set up what was referred to as single salary tract, providing first, that a committee from the Board work out new basis for the pay of teachers, and second, that the Board does not concede any discrimination by reason of race and color. The tract was so built and was promptly exposed as a scheme to discriminate even as previous schedules had done.

BLAYTON LAUDED

Davis was placed on the new tract, but received the old pay, although others in the same school were given increases from time to time.

For a while, Davis' attorneys were deadlocked with the suit because the Superintendent refused cooperation by making available the record of teachers, white and Negro, as sought by lawyers. Underwood ruled in favor of the lawyers and the books were opened to Prof. J. B. Blayton, whose findings constituted damaging testimony against the Board's salary schedules. "I find that the Blayton statistics are reasonably correct and present conclusions, which after allowing for considerable margin of error and for reasonable scope in the exercise of a fair discretion, may be properly used in the consideration of whether or not discrimination because of race or color has been shown."

Suspensions Follow Salary Victory; Hold Protest Meet

The Courier

(Special to The Courier)

ATLANTA — Following a wave of resentment by Atlanta citizens over the indefinite suspension by the Board of Education of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Taylor, veteran school teachers, a spirited protest meeting was held here last week-end by local teachers.

Mr. Taylor, president of the Gate City Teachers Association, figured prominently in the recent successful fight for the equalization of salaries for Atlanta's Negro school teachers.

The suspension, according to school superintendent Ira Jarrell, was on the grounds that Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were absent without excuse from the city for three days.

CHARGES DENIED

Both Mr. and Mrs. Taylor have denied this charge and claim that they had notified their principals according to the requirements of the law, and had been excused to make the trip out of the city. Mr. Taylor has been in the Atlanta school system for seventeen years, while Mrs. Taylor has served the schools for twenty-four years.

HEARING GRANTED

A showdown in the case is expected on Nov. 9 when a hearing has been granted Mr. and Mrs. Taylor at the Board of Education's regular monthly meeting.

The keen resentment by the citizens over Mr. Taylor's indefinite suspension and possible dismissal from service was believed due to reports that the Board has been allegedly hostile toward leaders in the Negro teachers' salary equalization fight.

Prior to their suspension, Mr. Taylor was a teacher at the David T. Howard School, while his wife was serving on the faculty of the Washington High School.

CHANGED SCHOOLS

Several years ago, after Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were married, and both were teaching at Washington High School, Mr. Taylor was forced by the board to take a post at another city school.

The action came Monday when Recently in Atlanta, Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood ruled that the Atlanta Board of Education discriminated in Negro and appeared before the organization expressed the that some friendly way white teachers pay and ordered law- found to bring about the yers for Atlanta Negro teachers to on of pay and pointed to confer with the legal staff of the Court ruling favoring board towards a date when the new pay scale for Negro teachers would go into effect.

Savannah Teachers Seek Parity

SAVANNAH, Ga. (SNS) — Sentiment that a move for equal pay in the Savannah Public School system was initiated Monday when the Chatham County Negro Teachers Association filed a petition before the education board.

Louisiana Teachers Close Book On Equal Pay Fight

NEW ORLEANS, La.—The final chapter in the fight of the Louisiana Negro teachers for equalization of salaries was written this week in Alexandria when the State Board of Education sent down the order directing all parishes to put into effect the minimum teachers' salary schedule enacted by the state legislature, ranging up to $3,600 for teachers, regardless of race.

This fight had been led by the Louisiana Colored Teachers Association, the New Orleans Colored Teachers' Association, the New Orleans Federation of Classroom Teachers and the legal fight had been carried on by a New Orleans Negro lawyer, A. P. Tureaud.

New Orleans led in securing equalization of salaries for Negroes. Suits had been filed in several parishes seeking the equalization and the NAACP which had been the chief contender was preparing to wage a fight in every parish in the state.

There is still pending in the courts in New Orleans a suit which seeks equalization of buildings, supplies and curriculum and everything pertaining to schools.

Only recently when a delegation of white citizens visited a meeting of the Orleans Parish School Board and asked that schools formerly used for white students not be turned over to Negroes, Attorney Tureaud, representing the Negro group stated emphatically that the Negroes were interested in new and modern buildings and would not seek old schools.

Win Round In Equal Pay Suit

NEW ORLEANS—In another step toward equalizing the pay of Negro and white school teachers in the South, Federal Judge Herbert W. Christenberry last week ruled unconstitutional the practice of paying Negro teachers less than salaries paid white persons of similar qualifications.

The suit was brought by Eula Mae Lee, teacher in a Negro school in Kenner, Jefferson Parish. It sought declaratory judgement and a n injunction restraining the school boad from paying white teachers more than Negro teachers with the same classification.

Gets Back Pay

Fired Tutor Reinstated

NEW ORLEANS—The order reinstating Miss Eula Mae Lee to her position as teacher in Jefferson Parish Schools was signed in Federal Court here Friday afternoon by U. S. District Judge Herbert W. Christenberry.

Miss Lee, represented by Atty. A. P. Tureaud, sued Jefferson Parish School Board when she was dismissed from her position after she was plaintiff in a suit seeking equal salaries for Negro and white teachers of the parish in 1945.

The parish had agreed to equalize salaries even befor State Legislation ordered equalization in all parishes. Miss Lee will return to her position next September and will receive a year's back pay.

Federal Judge Upholds La. Pay Parity Cases

SHREVEPORT, La. — Federal Judge Ben C. Dawkins has refused to dismiss the suit filed by Carl D. Whitmeer, a teacher at Ruston, to equalize the pay of colored teachers with that of white.

The local school board sought to have the action thrown out of court on the theory that it would be subject to severe penalties for paying salaries in excess of the budget approved by the State Board of Education.

Equal Pay For La. Teachers Seems Assured

GRETNA, La.—(ANP)—Equalization of pay for Negro teachers and whites with the same qualifications was virtually assured here in Jefferson parish last week with a reported agreement between Miss Eula Mae Lee and the Jefferson Parish School board.

This settlement will end the case of Miss Lee against the school board, now in its fifth year, in which she sued for equal pay for Negro and white educators.

She filed suit Dec. 9, 1943, after being fired by the school board for being tardy and wilful neglect of duty. The 24th judicial court with Judge Robert L. Rivarde ruled in her favor June 23, 1944, but the defendants appealed the case eventually to the state supreme court.

Both sides are believed to have reached an agreement out of court now. Miss Lee will get her job back with a salary based on the present level. Details are now being worked out on how Negro teachers' salaries will be ranged.

Equal Pay In Louisiana

The usual stock-in-trade arguments against the granting of equal pay for white and Negro teachers in the South were employed last week in the Louisiana equalization suit. The defendants wanted the case dismissed on the grounds that the suit failed to state a claim; that the state could not be sued without consent, together with other vagaries which lacked the essence of good logic or good ethical consistency.

Federal District Judge Ben Dawkins believed that the evidence showed a strong disposition to measure the teachers on the basis of their race and color and hence overruled the motion to dismiss the petition.

The case involved Carl D. Whitmaer, a teacher in Lincoln high school at Ruston, in which his attorneys allege that he was discriminated against. Whitmaer received a salary of $1,170 per year while a white teacher of similar training received a salary of $1,425 annually.

Salaries paid to white and Negro teachers are manifestly discriminatory. And until recent years, we have never heard or seen a white superintendent or school administrator who would not acknowledge that fact. The salaries have been and are yet discriminatory. And as speedily as these suits are presented before the courts, if properly argued, they will be upheld, since there is no real grounds on which to justify unequal pay for similar work. The Constitution forbids that.

Teacher Returns to Job in La.; Gets Back Salary

WASHINGTON

The five-year self-imposed exile of Mrs. Eula Mae L. Brown, Louisiana school teacher, who, as the first litigant, spearheaded the fight for equalization of salaries in that State, ended Sunday night when she returned to her native New Orleans.

The courageous teacher passed up a tentative post in the District of Columbia school system when advised by the superintendent of Jefferson Parish school board that she had been assigned her old job at Kenner High School, and should report for registration on Sept. 2.

Gets Year's Back Pay

Accompanying the superintendent's notice was a check for $1791 covering a year's back salary, which the Louisiana State Supreme Court ordered the parish to pay her after it issued a directive to the State to equalize teachers' salaries last April.

Mrs. Brown told an AFRO reporter early in August that she would never return to Louisiana. However, her attorney, Alexander P. Teraud, persuaded her to return for "morale building purposes" among other teachers.

Officials of the NAACP have also advised Mrs. Brown that it would be right and proper for her to return.

Job Here Still Good

School officials here, understanding her plight, have promised that if she wasn't satisfied with conditions in Louisiana upon her return there, that they would be willing to give her a teaching post in the District of Columbia.

Mrs. Brown told the AFRO she was happy over her victory.

However, when she looks back over the five years she spent here working as a night club waitress, a soda jerker, a telephone building elevator girl, and foreman of a charwomen's gang, it looks like "one big nightmare."

Back to Old Job

She has been residing at 501 Columbia Rd., N.W., with Mrs. Octavia Stores while her lawyer fought her case through Louisiana courts.

Mrs. Brown is returning to the same position she held back in Sept., 1943, when the parish school board ordered her dismissed for "willful neglect of duty."

In filing for a writ of mandamus, Mr. Teraud contended that the board acted illegally and was punishing the teacher for suing the board for equal salary earlier that year.

Court Upholds Lawyer

On Nov. 30, 1943, Mr. Teraud's contention was upheld by Judge J. Robert Rivarde of the civil court bench, but Mrs. Brown did not return to her job while appeal proceedings were going on.

She left New Orleans because she feared that reprisals threatened against her in several anonymous notes might have been carried out.

HELD ON POSTAL CHARGES

KINSTON, N.C.—Accused of robbing the U.S. mails, John Lowe of Warsaw, last week, was bound over to Federal Court for trial a Wilmington in October.

SMALLER SALARY PRACTICE UPSET

Negro School Teacher Gets U.S. Court Order

The practice of the Jefferson parish school board in paying Negro school teachers and principals smaller salaries than white teachers and principals of the same qualifications is unconstitutional, Federal District Judge Herbert W. Christenberry ruled Saturday.

Judge Christenberry granted a permanent injunction asked by Eula Mae Lee, a Negro teacher in a Kenner school, in a suit filed March 29, 1943. He also issued a declaratory judgment upholding the contentions of the plaintiff that the school board's action is in violation of the 14th Amendment of the United States Constitution.

The opinion stated that the official policy of the defendant, the Jefferson school board, in paying the plaintiff and other Negro teachers and principals smaller salaries "insofar as such discriminations are predicated on race, creed or color are unlawful and unconstitutional."

An injunction was granted "provided that the operative effect of the judgment be postponed until the scholastic year beginning September, 1949, on condition that beginning with the scholastic year of September, 1948, the salaries of all Negro teachers and principals be increased by an amount equal to one half the difference between the present salaries."

In her suit, Eula Mae Lee claimed that she has been teaching 12 years and that she has a bachelor of arts degree from Scotlandville university but that her salary is only $675 a year, whereas white teachers of the same qualifications are paid a minimum of $1370 annually.

Equal Teacher Pay Ordered In Louisiana

New Orleans, July 31 (AP)—A federal district judge today ordered the Jefferson Parish (County) School Board to equalize pay of Negro and white teachers of similar qualifications.

Judge Herbert W. Christenberry granted a permanent injunction asked by Eual Mae Lee, a Negro teacher in a suit filed March 29, 1943.

The judge held unconstitutional the board's practice "insofar as such discriminations are predicted on race, creed or color."

$2,000 Back Pay To La. Teacher

NEW ORLEANS — Mrs. Eula Mae Lee Brown, plaintiff in the equalization of salary suit against the Jefferson Parish School Board which was recently decided in her favor, last week received a check for back pay amounting to $2,200, it was learned from reliable sources.

Mrs. Brown, now in Washington, D. C., has been ordered reinstated to her position by a Federal Court ruling and is expected to return here in the next few weeks to begin the 1948-49 school term.

14m(4) 1948

Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS TEACHER WINS EQUAL PAY SUIT

August 5, 1948

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 5.-- The NAACP's five-year fight for equalization of teachers' salaries in Louisiana was rewarded with victory when Federal District Judge Herbert W. Christenberry ruled unconstitutional the prevailing salary differentials based on race.

Press Service of NAACP
New York. N.Y. Fri. 8-5-48

HIKE IN TEACHER WAGES PROPOSED

The Times-Picayune
New Orleans, La.

Salary Adjustment Suggested by Bourgeois

A proposal to adjust the salary scale of public school teachers in New Orleans "so that they will be somewhat above those prescribed by the state" will be made to the Orleans parish school board next week by Superintendent of Public Schools Lionel J. Bourgeois.

1-29-48

Mr. Bourgeois said Wednesday he would make the suggestion in presenting his new budget to the board. He said he is not at liberty at present "to reveal just what such an adjustment will mean to the individual teacher in actual dollars and cents."

The announcement came on the same day that increased pay for New Orleans public school teachers and increased pensions for many retired school teachers went into effect.

The Times-Picayune

To Get Funds

Mr. Bourgeois said the Orleans parish school board will get $145,000 from the state to pay for the salary increases and $81,000 to pay for increased pensions.

Taken all in all, said the superintendent, "the Orleans parish school board will spend about $5,000,000 a year for salaries of its 1850 school teachers.

As to the actual scale to be followed, he explained, "that has not yet been decided upon and cannot be until the board meets."

Last year the scale for teacher's holding a bachelor's degree ranged from $2050 to $3250 after 11 years. Under the state setup, the scale for teachers with a bachelor's degree must range from $2400 to $3200 after nine years, with a $100 a year increase for each of the nine years.

Last year, the superintendent explained, the scale for teachers holding a master's degree ranged from $2200 to $3400 after 11 years. Under the state scale, teachers holding a master's degree must receive salaries ranging from $2500 to $3600 after 12 years.

Last year the scale for non-degree teacher in New Orleans ranged from $1850 to $3050 after 11 years, said Mr. Bourgeois. Under the new system the same scale "at least" must be maintained.

New Orleans, La.

Pension Hiked

As to retired teachers there are teachers on the retired list who will receive pension increases ranging from 25 cents to $72.50 a month, explained the superintendent.

Tues. 1-27-48

Under the new setup, he said, 89 retired teachers will have their pensions brought up to $100 a month while 65 will get slightly less than $100 a month. The 32 retired teachers, who are getting any increases are already receiving $100 or more a month, the superintendent explained. The amount of each retired teacher's increase, said Mr. Bourgeois, "is based on a very complicated formula."

La. Teachers To Get Equal Pay

Daily World
Atlanta, Ga.

GRETNA, La. -(ANP)- Equalization of pay for Negro teachers and whites with the same qualifications was virtually assured here in Jefferson Parish last week with a reported agreement between Miss Eula Mae Lee and the Jefferson Parish School board.

Tues.

This settlement will and the case of Miss Lee against the school board, now in its fifth year, in which she sued for equal pay for Negro and white educators.

She filed suit Dec. 9, 1943, after being fired by the school board for being tardy and wilful neglect of duty. The 24th judicial court with Judge Robert L. Rivarde ruled in her favor June 23, 1944, but the defendants appealed the case eventually to the state supreme court.

5-18-48

Both sides are believed to have reached an agreement out of court now. Miss Lee will get her job back with a salary based on the present level. Details are now being worked out on how Negro teachers' salaries will be ranged.

Louisiana Teachers To Get Equal Pay

Fri.

GRETNA, La. -(ANP)- Equalization of pay for Negro teachers and whites with the same qualifications was virtually assured here in Jefferson parish last week with a reported agreement between Miss Eula Mae Lee and the Jefferson Parish School board.

This settlement will end the case of Miss Lee against the school board, now in its fifth year, in which she sued for equal pay for Negro and white educators.

She filed suit Dec. 9, 1943, after being fired by the school board for being tardy and wilful neglect of duty. The 24th judicial court with Judge Robert L. Rivarde ruled in her favor June 23, 1944, but the defendants appealed the case eventually to the state supreme court.

Fri. 5-21-48

Both sides are believed to have reached an agreement out of court now. Miss Lee will get her job back with a salary based on the present level. Details are now being worked out on how Negro teachers' salaries will be ranged.

Negro Teachers Win Equal Pay Tilt

The Black Dispatch

NEW ORLEANS. — (ANP) — The fight for equal pay for teachers of all races in Louisiana came to a climax this week when the state board of education sent down an order directing all parishes to give them equal pay to all teachers.

Editorial

The education board order directed the parishes to put into effect the minimum teachers' salary schedule enacted by the state legislature. This scale ranges up to $3,600 for teachers.

This action ended a legal battle led by the Louisiana Colored Teachers association, the New Orleans Colored Teachers association and the New Orleans Federation of Classroom Teachers.

Sat. 8-7-48

A Negro attorney, A. P. Tureaud, foght in the courts, and the NAACP had filed several suits in various parishes seeking equalization of pay. New Orleans was the center of this campaign.

The teachers are still fighting here, however, for equalization in facilities for students of all races. The colored students need better school buildings and supplies as well as an improved curriculum. Tureaud recently told the Orleans Parish School board that Negro citizens wanted new modern buildings, not the abandoned schools of white pupils.

TO FIGHT EQUAL PAY SUITS April 8, 1948

JACKSON, Miss., April 8.--The sum of $25,000 to contest suits filed by Negro teachers for salaries equal to those paid white teachers was voted by the House of Representatives of the Mississippi State Legislature at its recent session. The measure was passed following filing of a complaint by attorneys of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in behalf of Mrs. Gladys Noel Bates of Jackson and other Negro public school teachers seeking pay equal to that of white teachers.

FOR RELEASE - 3/12/48

MISSISSIPPI TEACHERS
SEEK EQUAL SALARIES

JACKSON, Miss., March 12--The Southwide fight for equalization of teachers' salaries was extended to this city with the filing of a suit against the Jackson school officials by Mrs. Gladys Noel Bates, science teacher in the Smith Roberts school here.

Attorneys for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People representing Mrs. Bates filed a complaint in the United States District Court charging that over a long period of years Negro school teachers and principals in the Jackson Separate School District have been paid less salary "than that paid white teachers and principals of equivalent qualifications and experience." The complaint further charged that the annual increases given to Negro teachers and principals is less than that given to white teachers and principals. This discrimination, the lawyers maintained, is in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment.

Fight Negro Teachers

JACKSON, Miss., April 13.—The State Legislature appropriated $25,000 in its recent session to contest suits filed by Negro teachers, it was learned yesterday. The measure was passed following a complaint filed in behalf of Mrs. Gladys Noel Bates, a Negro public school of this city, and others, by attorneys of the NAACP.

White teachers in the state average $90-per-month; Negroes average $55.

The Mississippi suit is the 36th filed by the NAACP since the original case in Maryland in 1936. In addition to Mississippi, suits for equalization of teachers' salaries have been filed in Virginia, Florida, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Tennessee Louisiana, Georgia, Alabama, Arkansas, Illinois, Texas and South Carolina.

The suit brought by Mrs. Bates was filed on March 4 in behalf of herself and of all Negro teachers and principals in Jackson. It followed failure to obtain equal salaries through petition to the local board of trustees. The board, rejecting the petition, declared it was impossible to grant the request for pay raises at this time.

State Superintendent of Education J. M. Tubb expressed the opinion that equalization of salaries was a matter for legislative action. However, the Mississippi House of Representatives, within a week after filing of the suit, sidetracked a teachers' pay scale bill because some legislators protested that passage of the bill would result in equalization of salaries for Negro and white teachers.

Mississippi Legislature Dodges New Type Teacher Pay Bill

JACKSON, Miss., March 10—(AP)—A bill for a teachers' pay scale based on education was sidetracked in the Mississippi House of Representatives yesterday. Some lawmakers protested it would mean equal pay for white and Negro instructors.

The House voted 50 to 46 to send the measure to the judiciary committee for study.

During the debate Rep. Blaine Eaton, of Smith County said the percentage of college graduate teachers is higher in the Negro high school in his county than in any of the white schools.

The bill provides this ratio of payment:

Teachers with M.A. degrees, $24; with B.A. degrees, $20; three years of college, $15; two years, $10; one year, $7, and less than that, $4.

Basic salaries ranging from $2,400 to $400, to be raised or lowered as available funds warrant, were suggested.

Speaker Walter Sillers touched off the debate on the racial issue when he asked one of the authors, Rep. Elmer McCoy, education committee chairman, "can you protect us (under this bill) from Negro school teachers getting the same pay as white teachers through court action?"

Rep. Hugh Critz, of Clay County, warned that if the bill were passed "we may ultimately be forced to do away with our public school system and have only private schools to preserve our way of life."

Rep. Luther Sims, of Lowndes County said if it were passed "some day you will be side by side with your colored brethren in the schools."

Teacher Sues For Equal Salary; In Mississippi's First Case

F-L-A-S-H

JACKSON, MISS. — A seven-foot fiery cross was burned in the Negro section here shortly before midnight Saturday, local residents reported. The cross was erected and fired by six white men who a witness said drove into the section in a pickup tuck. The witness, Mrs. W. W. Bridges, said they were dressed in white but some were uncertain as to the type of clothing they wore....

Chier of Detective Frank Rodgers said Sunday that none of the men who burned the cross had been identified. "It looks like a bit of malicious mischief," he said.

No motive was advanced for the cross-burning. Rodgers said the Ku Klux Klan was not active in Jackson and he felt sure the junket was not a Klan action.

JACKSON, Miss.—Mississippi's first suit seeking equalization of salaries between Negro and white school teachers of equal experience and service was filed in United State District Court here Friday by Mrs. Gladys Noel Bates, a science instructor in the Smith-Robertson school.

An immediate injunction restraining the city school officials from "continuing the discrimination in the matter of salaries" was requested.

Mrs. Bates was represented by Attorneys James A. Burns of Meridian, Miss., Edward R. Dudley and Thurgood Marshall of New York. The latter are members of the legal staff of the National Association for the Advancement fo Colored People.

Asserting that her complaint is on behalf of herself and the Negro principals and other Negro teachers in the city school system, Mrs. Bates named as defendants John C. Batte, president of the Board of Trustees of the Jackson Separate School District; B. B. McClendon, vice president; T. M. Hedderman, Jr., secretary; R. W. Naef, W. R. Newman, Jr., and Supt. Kirby P. Walker.

The suit asserts school officials are discriminating against Negro teachers because of color and race alone, and that the asserted practice is in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Federal Constitution.

Mrs. Bates is a native Mississippian, having been born at McComb, in Pike County. Before joining the city school staff in 1946 she taught at Kosciusko, and did substitute duties here. She is now receiving $1260 for the nine-months term. Mrs. Bates holds a B. A. degree from Tougaloo College, north of here. She also received training at Alcorn State College for Negroes, Jackson State College for Negroes; Southern University, Scotlandville, La.; and West Virginia university.

Mrs. Bates' husband, John M. Bates, is a faculty member of Lanier High school.

Included in the complaint is correspondence between the teacher and President Batte of the school board in which she requested that the asserted practice of salary discrimination be adjusted immediately.

Meanwhile, there is pending in the present legislative session a ill by Representative Elmer McCoy of Prentiss County, chairman of the Education Committee, seeking set up a salary schedule on the basis of training and experience. Negro teachers salaries here are higher than in other section of the state, although they are considerably less than those paid white instructors.

Equal Pay Scale Asked at Jackson

(By The Associated Press)

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 14.—A motion to dismiss an injunction suit brought by a Negro teacher seeking pay equal to white teachers will be argued in federal court here October 12.

The date of the arguments was set by Federal District Judge S. C. Mize.

The suit was filed by Gladys Neal Bates, a teacher at the Smith-Robertson Negro school here, on March 4. It was filed in behalf of herself and other Negro teachers and principals in the public school system.

It alleges that Negro teachers were discriminated against in the matter of salaries, and contends that such discrimination is in violation of the 14th Amendment of the Constitution.

Named as defendants in the suit are Kirby P. Walker, superintendent of public schools, and members of the school board.

On May 5 defendants filed a motion to dismiss.

Gladys Bates Fights For Miss. Teachers

Teachers in Negro schools in the deep South are continuously facing a dilemma. They know they are underpaid. But they also are quite aware of the fact that there may be serious reprisals if they say or do anything about it.

This situation is especially true in the State of Mississippi. But one teacher—Miss Gladys Noel Bates—decided to do something definite about it. Disregarding the possibility of vicious repercussions, Miss Bates, who teaches in a Jackson (Miss.) school, recently filed suit in the Federal District Court to compel the school board to equalize her salary with that of white teachers.

Her petition was based on the simple promise that she was entitled to the same pay on the basis of comparable training and experience.

Similar suits have been filed by teachers in Texas, Alabama, Virginia and other Southern States. But Miss Bates is one of the few who had enough confidence in the justness of her demands to do it in the State of Mississippi.

For her courage as a pioneer in her community in waging a battle for a square deal, this week The Pittsburgh Courier is proud to salute Miss Bates of Jackson, Miss.

Negro School Pay Suit Is Upheld

JACKSON, MISS., Dec. 22—(AP) A federal judge here has refused to dismiss a suit filed the action was revealed today by Gladys Noel Bates, a Negro attorneys, in which District Court on Gov. Fielding L. Wright. They brought with them a copy of a letter, addressed to school board against the Jackson School Board, charging any in- which charges Negro school from Dec. 17 to file an answer. teachers are being discriminated against on a salary basis. The suit was brought in Federal Court here last March by

State Education Board To Enforce Equal School Pay Constitutional Provision

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo, Aug 4—(SPECIAL) The Attorney Ge al of Missouri has given an opinion which places the enforcemer the differential salary law based upon-race or color, pertaining school in the state, in the hands of the State Board of Education.

The new State Constitution of 1945 provides in paragraph 3, sectio 3, of article nine, as follows:

> No school district which permits differences in wages of teachers having the same training and experience because of race or color, shall receive any portion of said revenue or fund.

Several Negro teachers of the state have complained that they have been discriminated against by District or county boards. When the law was brought to the attention of the state board, it called upon the Attorney General for an opinion as to whether the law was self enforcing etc.

The opinion just rendered by the Attorney General will no doubt, clear up the matter, and future violations will bring upon districts or counties the full force of the law.

Higher Salaries Paid Colored N. C. Teachers

RALEIGH, N. C. — (NNPA) — North Carolina has paid higher salaries to colored school teachers than to white teacher ofo rtwo years an audit report of the state's school fund revealed last Saturday.

Colored teachers received an average pay of $1,681 last year according to the adult and white teacher received $1,630—a difference of $51.

The salary is determined solely by each person's qualifications, state, officials explained. The reason colored teachers draw higher average pay is that they have had a higher level of training, the report points out. Colored teachers in this region have been flocking back to the universities in recent years for graduate training, which enables them to obtain a higher rating and pay scale.

North Carolina put salaries paid white and colored teachers on an equal basis years ago, soon after the United State Supreme Court ruled in a Norfolk, Va., case that the salaries must be equalize. The state has since spent $6,000,000 to equalize the pay scales.

One major result of this stop has been a vast widening of education for colored pupils in the state. In 1923 North Carolina had 4,700 colored school children; today it has 40,000. In the same period the enrollment at colored colleges in the state has jumped from fifty-seven to nearly 6,000.

North Carolina was the first of the Southern states to equalize the pay of white and colored school teachers on a statewide basis—the only state, in fact, which did so voluntarily without a suit being brought in the Federal courts by a colored organization.

Disparity In Salary Decreases

Report On Pay For N. C. Teachers Shows Equalization Trend

BY THOMAS L. DABNEY

RALEIGH, N. C.—Recent official reports on salaries paid to white and colored teachers in North Carolina show a definite trend toward equalization in this phase of the state's educational system. Most pronounced is the lessening of the gap in salaries paid to the teachers of the two races in the last eight years.

North Carolina is conducting a thorough study of its entire educational system with a view to making plans for further improvements in educational facilities for both races including salary increases. The report will be submitted to Governor R. Gregg Cherry and the General Assembly which convenes next January.

250 INVOLVED

Around 250 key people in the field of education, white and colored, are participating in the school study and the group's findings will be the basis for recommendations relative to improvements in the school system of the state.

The trend toward equalization in salaries paid to white and colored teachers is shown in statistics published in the May, June and July editions of "State School Facts," the official monthly organ of the State Department of Public Instruction for North Carolina.

PAY HAS INCREASED

The pay of all teachers in North Carolina has steadily increased in recent years due to progress in the entire school system and the higher education of both white and colored teachers in the system today. The total picture also shows that as salaries have increased for all teachers, the increase has been at a slightly greater rate for the colored teachers, thus lessening the gap in pay disparity between the two groups.

The average salary of white elementary teachers in the counties increased from $755.56 in 1929-30 to $1,435.61 in 1945-46. During the same period the increase for colored teachers in the counties in the elementary schools was from $433.54 to $1,477.23, or $41.62 per year more than the salary paid the average white teacher. This was due to the higher educational qualifications of the colored teachers in some instances.

The average salary of colored teachers in county elementary schools increased $1,043.69 from 1929-30 to 1945-46, due to the fact that the salaries of white teachers in 1929-30 were much higher than salaries of colored teachers. In that same period the average salary of the white elementary teachers in the counties increased $680.05.

EQUALIZATION NEAR

This faster increase in the average salary of colored teachers in counties and cities in elementary and secondary schools is the variant which will eventually bring about equalization. In some localities this leveling off process in pay on the basis of training and experience has already been complete.

Increase in average salary for elementary teachers in cities from 1929-30 to 1945-46 was from $1,201.26 to $1,647.24 for whites and from $766.44 to $1,664.06 for colored. There was a differential of $434.82 between the salaries of the two groups in 1929-30, but only $10.18 at the close of the period.

A similar trend toward equalization in salaries of the state's teachers is shown in statistics on salary increases for high school teachers in the counties and cities since 1930-31.

DIFFERENTIALS DROPPED

The average salary of white high school teachers in the counties increased from $1,061.66 in 1930-31 to $1,451.45 in 1945-46. The average salary of colored high school teachers in the counties increased from $702.84 to $1,437.67 during the same years. The disparity in pay dropped from $358.82 to $13.78 between the teachers in 13 years.

CITY TEACHERS

The pay differential between white and colored high school teachers in the cities decreased from $530.54 in 1930-31 to $118.72 in 1945-46. At the beginning of the period the average salary was $1,423.80 for white high school city teachers and $893.26 for colored city high school teachers. In 1945-46 the pay was $1,734.81 for whites and $1,616.09 for colored.

The average salary of elementary principals in the counties in 1934-35 was $1,029.97 for whites and $782.73 for colored. By 1945-46 it had increased to $2,405.48 for whites and $2,163.83 for colored, a difference of $241.65 for colored elementary principals.

From 1934-35 to 1945-46 the pay of city elementary principals increased from $1,158.11 to $2,453.54 for whites and from $930.73 to $2,710.93 for colored. The higher average annual pay for colored principals was due to the higher training of some of the colored elementary principals.

PAY MORE THAN DOUBLED

Statistics for the entire period show that the average pay of white elementary principals have more than doubled and nearly trebled in the case of colored principals in county and city systems. The latter development was due to the much lower salaries of the colored principals in 1934-35.

HIGHER TRAINED TEACHERS

Information published in the three issues of "State School Facts" indicates that one of the factors which has accelerated the rate of increase in the pay of colored teachers is the fact that higher trained teachers are entering the teaching profession in the state.

Teaching still offers the greatest single opportunity for employment for colored college graduates. The picture is different for white college graduates. They have a far different future than the average college graduate. Vocational opportunities for whites mean that many of the best trained among them find more renumerative employment in other fields than teaching because the salaries are better and advancement opportunities are greater.

(See Stories, Pages 1 and 2)

Teachers Salaries Equalized In North Carolina

EQUALIZATION of teachers' salaries is practically an accomplished fact in North Carolina. City and rural teachers are on the same level in their respective brackets. White, Negro, Indian, fare alike. Disparities that existed as late as eight years ago have been almost wiped out. The state average now for teachers in the elementary grades (1-8) is $1,505.07. In 1929-30 the average was $755.56. At that time the state average for Negro elementary teachers was $433.54. In bringing the salaries up and aiming at equalization the State has benefitted the Negro teachers financially on a larger scale than has been true of the white teachers in some instances. This has been true because the salaries of the Negro teachers were lower and had a longer distance to come in the equalization plan.

The lot of the "country teachers" used to be particularly hard. Fifteen years ago there was a difference of $358.82 a year in favor of the white rural teacher. Today the differential is only $13.78. The rise in the cities has been along the same lines, with the differential being gradually removed.

Instructional costs of North Carolina's public schools were $79,000,000 for 1947-48. The State paid $63,400,000 of this amount. The counties and cities paid $9,000,000, and $6,600,000 came from federal sources. Excluding federal aid, the state pays approximately 85 percent of the cost of instruction. The schools are controlled jointly by state, city and county authority. The arrangement is certainly working well for the advancement of education in North Carolina, with the exception of closing the wide gap in the quality of school houses provided the races. Better prepared teachers, better educated children, better future citizens, are already seen in the equalization of teachers' salaries.

The present study of the schools, now in progress, the results of which will be laid before the next state legislature, is expected to bring still greater advancements in public education in the Old North State.

Split In N.C. Teachers Association Seen

By A. A. MORISEY

RALEIGH, N. C.—State-wide protests against the administration of the N. C. Teachers Association seemed to crystalize here last week with the nomination of a slate of officers by a group of educators who met specifically for that purpose, the Journal and Guide was informed.

A spokesman for the group said that the unprecedented action of selecting a slate of officers prior to the annual convention was taken "in order to more nearly satisfy the expressed wishes of the majority of schools, North Carolina teachers."

The group nominated a person for each office to be filled during the balloting for officers to be conducted Friday, March 26.

SPLIT IN ORGANIZATION INDICATED

The selection of another slate of candidates for office in the association indicated a split in the organization which has been rumored throughout the state and is a protest to the association to be held in Raleigh March 25 to 27. The names must nominations previously announced by the nominating committee and published in a story in the Journal and Guide last week.

The nominations of the educators last week which said they were a "representative group" were as follows: for president, W. R. Collins, Smithfield; for vice president, Dr. F. L. Atkins, Winston-Salem; for recording secretary, Mrs. Elwynza D. Daniels, Washington; for treasurer, Dr. Nelson H. Harris, Raleigh; for two vacancies on the executive committee, S. B. T. Easterling, Ellerbe; and Dr. R. P. Daniel, Raleigh.

COMMITTEE NOMINATIONS

The nominations made by the committee appointed by the present administration are: for president, H. V. Brown, Goldsboro; for vice-president, A. H. Anderson, Winston-Salem; and M. D. Williams, Raleigh; for recording secretary, Mrs. Ida H. Duncan, Reidsville, and Mrs. E. D. Daniels of Washington; for treasurer, H. S. Davis, Oxford, and E. M. Barnes Wilson; for two vacancies on the executive committee, Mrs. L. B. Yancey, Henderson; Dr. R. P. Daniel, Raleigh; F. A. Tolliver, Asheville; and H. D. Cooper, Ahoskie.

The only similarity in the two slates indicates that both groups are agreeable towards Mrs. Daniels as recording secretary and Dr. R. P. Daniel as a member of the executive committee.

The "representative group" listed six points on which its candidates declared themselves, some of which doubtless indicate dissatisfaction with present policies of the organization.

These were: (1) Integrating all forces interested in education for the benefit of the child, (2) giving classroom teachers an increasing opportunity to help administer the affairs of the association, (3) redoubling of efforts to organize local units of teachers to the end that they may better serve themselves and their community, (4) leading the organization on the basis of the wishes of the majority rather than the minority, (5) upholding the letter as well as the spirit of the constitution, and (6) breaking up self-perpetuation and machine rule in the association once and for all.

N. C. Teachers Demand New Raise in Salaries

The Courier - Sat. 2-7-46

Fayetteville, N.C.

RALEIGH, N. C.—The North Carolina Teachers Association has sent an urgent letter to Governor R. Gregg Cherry asking him to call a special session of the General Assembly to provide for a raise in teachers' salaries.

The association, which represents nearly 7,000 North Carolina teachers, pointed out the following conditions of their petition:

"Despite the increases granted teachers by the last Legislature, the fact is that the teacher's purchasing power, far from increasing, has actually declined. There is adequate evidence to support the statement that the rising costs of living have more than kept pace with the increase in salary."

'N. C. CAN AFFORD IT'

"The condition of the State's treasury," the letter stated, "warrants such a step. It is a well known fact that the funds necessary to grant a substantial increase to teachers are available."

Two other points cited in the petition were:

"There is still a shortage of good teachers . A substantial increase will do much to alleviate this situation by attracting more and better qualified persons to the profession.

"An investment in better teachers is an investment in the future of North Carolina. It is the school children in the end who have the most at stake. We cannot afford to economize at the expense of future generations of our citizens."

14m(4 1948

Oklahoma

LOCAL TEACHER MAKES BIG FINANCIAL GAIN FOR CITY SCHOOL SYSTEM EMPLOYEES

$30,000 In Added Salaries Received By Negroes

AMOS T. HALL, NAACP, HANDLES LEGAL FIGHT FOR MRS. FREEMAN

By MAL WHITBY

Disparity in salaries of white and Negro teachers in the Oklahoma City public school system is a violation of constitutional rights under the fourteenth amendment, so ruled a final order in the Emma Lee Freeman equal salary suit against the local board of education in United States district court Friday, October 17.

Mrs. Freeman, represented by Atty. Amos T. Hall, the state's NAACP resident attorney, had asked an injunction order to prevent any future board from payment of unequal salaries. However, the court declined issuance of an injunction or declaratory judgement to this effect on grounds of equal payment of salaries to Negro teachers for the first time during the 1947-48 term.

Atty. Hall cited a parallel "equal salary" appeal from the District Court of the federal Eastern District of Arkansas in 1947 in which Atty. Thurgood Marshall petitioned for injunction and declaratory judgement, although the defendant board of education equalized salaries after filing of the suit, as in the local case.

Presiding Judge Edgar S. Vaught appeared impatient with the plaintiff's petition, first calling both sides to his private chamber adjoining the ninth floor federal building courtroom.

As this reporter and the plaintiff, Mrs. Freeman, asked permission to observe the proceedings, Judge Vaught gruffly ordered the proceedings into the courtroom.

Atty. W. A. Lybrand, representing the Oklahoma City board of education, opened the hearing by outlining the board's action last year in paying equal salaries to Negro teachers (for the first time in history) and such compliance constituted good faith determination, over ruling any necessity for issuance of an injunction or declaratory judgement.

Mr. Hall replied in citing the Arkansas appelate decision in favor of Negro plaintiffs, contending that the plaintiff had no assurance of what future policy of the board of education may be . . . that the presiding judge and present board attorney may not hold their present position during some possible recurrence of inequity of salary paid.

However, the presiding judge gruffly replied that much had been accomplished since the original filing of the suit three years ago, bringing $30,000.00 to Negro teachers during the 1947-48 term, and abruptly ordered, "case dismissed."

Mr. Hall was immediately approached by Atty. Lybrand and this reporter asking if he intended filing an appeal. His reply was Yes, in time to gain a hearing in the next session of the circuit court of appeals."

Mr. Lybrand retired to Judge Vaught's private chamber and returned promptly with a request that Mr. Hall agree to filing of a new brief inclusive of the plaintiff's request.

After a lengthy discussion between the attorneys, wording of the final revised brief was agreed upon and the court reporter was called to prepare it for filing.

Teachers Get Equal Pay

Defender

OKLAHOMA City, (NNPA) — For the first time in the history of Oklahoma City schools, salaries of colored teachers for the school year just ending will equal those of teachers in the white schools.

John Prigmore, schools auditor, last Tuesday announced funds are available to pay the colored teachers the full amount of their contracts.

Warrants for 19 per cent of each teacher's annual salary were issued last Wednesday, Prigmore said. The first nine payments on the year's contract, as in past years, were for 9 per cent.

Under a salary schedule in effect here for three years, colored teachers and principals are on an equal wage scale with white teachers and principals. But because the separate schools operate under different tax levies and funds, the school board has never been able to meet the one scale salaries.

Payments to the approximately 120 colored school teachers will total $50,076.80.

Chicago, Ill.

Prigmore said full payment is made possible "by an unusual amount of surplus collections" and by "using every available penny."

Sat. 7-17-48

Ira Williams, school board president, warned it is unlikely contracts can be met in full next year and in succeeding years unless the constitutional amendment authorizing an extra one mill for separate schools is approved by the voters July 6.

School officials anticipated the action will bring an end to the "discrimination" suit filed against the board by Mrs. Emma Lee Freeman, a teacher, and now pending in federal district court.

Mrs. Freeman is attempting to force equal pay for colored and white teachers and principals. The board of county commissioners and the county excise board are co-defendants in the case.

Oklahoma City School Salaries Equalized

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—(ANP)—For the first time in the history of Oklahoma City schools, salaries of colored teachers for the school year just ending will equal those of teachers in the white schools.

John Prigmore, schools auditor, last Tuesday announced funds are available to pay the colored teachers the full amount of their contracts.

Warrants for 19 percent of each teacher's annual salary were issued last Wednesday, Prigmore said. The first nine payments on the year's contract, as in past years were for 9 percent.

Under a salary schedule in effect here for three years, colored teachers and principals are on an equal wage scale with white teachers and principals. Both because the separate schools operate under different tax levies and funds, the school board has never been able to meet the one scale salaries.

Payments to the approximately 120 colored school teachers will total $56,076.80.

SURPLUS NOTED

Prigmore said full payment is made possible "by an unusual amount of surplus collections" and by "using every available penny."

Ira Williams, schoool board president, warned it is unlikely contracts can be net in full next year and in succeding years unless the constitutional amendment authorizing an extra one mill for separate schools is approved by the voters July 6.

School officials anticipated the action will bring an end to the 'discrimination" suit filed against the board by Mrs. Emma Lee Freeman, a teacher and now pending in federal district court.

Mrs. Freeman is attempting to force equal pay for colored and white teachers and principals. The board of county commissioners and the county exercise board are co-defendants in the case.

U.S. Bars Wage Bias, Judge Rules

OKLAHOMA CITY—Judge Edgar S. Vaught of the federal court here last Friday ordered school boards of the state to end all discrimination in the matter of teacher salaries and to pay white and Negro teachers of the same educational attainments the same rate of pay.

The ruling grew out of the suit of Emma Lee Freeman, Douglass high school teacher, who was represented by Atty. Amos T. Hall.

In the ruling, Judge Vaught said:

"It is unlawful under the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States for the defendants, the Oklahoma City school board and county officials, to discriminate as to salary between teachers of the majority schools and teachers of the separate schools solely on account of race."

Walter Lybrand, attorney for the defendants, and Mrs. Freeman's counsel agreed in open court that all questions raised by the suit had been adjusted and that Negro teachers were paid the same as white teachers for the school year which ended last June.

They also revealed that funds have been made available for equal payments in the future to all, without regard to race of color, whose educational attainments are equal.

NEGRO TEACHERS WIN ORDER FOR EQUAL PAY BASIS IN OKLAHOMA

Oklahoma City, Oct. 16 (AP)—Oklahoma Negro school teachers won a federal District court order today assuring them pay scales equal to white instructors.

Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught signed the order, directed at the Oklahoma City school board and county officials, prohibiting discrimination in pay scales solely because of race.

The case was brought by Emme Lee Freeman, Negro teacher at Douglas High school here.

The salary adjustments have been made since the case was filed.

School Teachers Win Equal Pay

Oklahoma City, Okla.—(G)—Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught signed the order last week to assure Negro school teachers of equal pay as the white instructors.

The order was signed against the Oklahoma City School Board and county officials, prohibiting discrimination in pay scales solely because of race.

The case was thrown into court by Emme Lee Freeman, Negro teacher at Douglas High School of this city.

PAY INEQUALITY HIT BY NEGRO TEACHERS

Higher Salaries Given to White Instructors for Same Work Scored at Tuskegee

By GEORGE STREATOR
Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala., Aug. 27 — Teachers of vocational education among Negroes in the South today praised their own folk for community betterment but took exception to higher pay for equal work, when done by white teachers.

In reviewing their debt to the community, they said that the social problems of Harlem and other Northern communities have their roots in the South. General poverty, poor health, and the lack of educational facilities were given as causes of the social lag of many Negro communities in the North.

The teachers' condemnation of equal pay for equal services took place at a private meeting of the National Vocational Teachers Association this morning in connection with the annual convention of the New Farmers of America, an organization representing 26,000 young Southern Negroes of high school age.

Supplements Denied to Negroes

The salary situation was said to exist in several southern communities where local supplements are added to the state salaries. These supplements, the teachers said, are frequently denied to Negroes. Tennessee was most frequently criticized in the discussion.

The delegates praised one of their members, S. C. Anderson of Pender County, N. C., for his work in promoting better housing conditions for Negroes. Mr. Anderson was responsible also for organizing credit unions, which furnished needed capital for the housing improvements, the delegates said.

B. T. Dilworth, Alabama State supervisor for vocational education among white and Negro students, said that progress has been made by both races, and at an equal pace in situations where their advantages were equal. He said that poverty remains the main problem among Southern Negro families.

New Pay Scale For Texas Tutors

Thu. 4-1-48
Atlanta Daily World

DALLAS. — (ANP) — The new Texas teachers pay scale equalizing salaries of colored and white teachers, based on their experience and education, has been released to the Negro teachers of the state.

Salaries under the new system range from $1.332 annually for a teacher with no experience and one year of college to $3.330 yearly for a teacher with a Ph.D. and 12 years teaching experience.

The minimum college training required to teach in an accredited public school in Texas is two year in 1947, three years in 1948, and a bachelor's degree in 1949. Teachers with three years training start out at $198 a month, and those with a bachelor's degree, $223 a month.

Although this scale has been adopted by the state some communities will exceed it and others will go below. The latter will have to establish their inability to pay the "minimum" through processes outlined in the new law.

4-1-48

The Texas Council of Negro organizations said that this law will reduce the differences in salaries to the lowest in Texas history.

New Pay Scale For Teachers

The Gadsden

DALLAS—(ANP)—The new Texas teachers pay scale equalizing salaries of colored and white teachers, based on their experience and education, has been released to the Negro teachers of the State.

Salaries under the new system range from $1,332 annually for a teacher with no experience and one year of college to $3,330 yearly for a teacher with a Ph. D. and twelve years teaching experience.

The minimum college training required to teach in an accredited public school in Texas is two years in 1947, three years in 1948 and a bachelor's degree in 1949. Teachers with three years training start out at $198 a month, and those with a bachelor's degree, $223 a month.

Although this scale has been adopted by the State some communities will exceed it and others will go below. The latter will have to establish their inability to pay the "minimum" through processes outlined in the new law.

Va. County Will Equalize Schools

RICHMOND, Va. — The Gloucester County School Board, ordered by a Federal court to provide equal educational facilities for white and Negro pupils, has instructed its attorneys to drop the board's motion for a new trial of the case.

Surry Boosts Negro School Teacher Pay

Surry, Va., Sept. 3 (AP).—Surry County is taking the first steps toward equalizing white and Negro school facilities, Superintendent M. B. Joyner of Dendron reported today.

The county school board must report progress that has been made in equalization to Judge Sterling Hutcheson of the United States District Court by September 15. Judge Hutcheson recently ruled that discriminatory practices in the county must be abandoned.

While the county has not yet obtained funds to begin a long-range building program, Joyner said, the initial step toward equalization has been made by boosting the Negro teacher pay one-half of the differential between it and the scale for white teachers. The change goes into effect when schools open Thursday.

Judge Hutcheson had given the board two years in which to eliminate the salary differential, specifying that one-half of the discrepancy in salaries must be abolished by the beginning of the 1948-1949 school term. Joyner said that the board has had such a plan under consideration for some time.

The board is also attempting to equalize library and laboratory facilities in the schools, Joyner declared. He estimated that "several hundred dollars' worth of books" has been orodered for Negro school libraries, and that still more will be obtained from other sources.

The Surry School Board met with the Sussex Board today to discuss consolidation of white and Negro schools in the two counties, as proposed by a survey of the State Department of Education.

Joyner said that no decisions have been made.

Chesterfie Teachers

RICHMOND—Teachers in Virginia were reported as being well pleased with the decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals which last week affirmed an injunction issued by the Federal District of Appeals here to require the Chesterfield County School Board to end discrimination in the pay of Negro school teachers.

J. Rupert Picott, executive secretary of the Virginia Teachers Association, official professional organization of the 5,000 teachers in the schools for colored children in Virginia, declared "that this ruling was another achievement in a long series of efforts dating back to 1937 and designed to bring full democracy to education in the Commonwealth."

CASES AID ALL

Said Mr. Picott, "These court cases are expensive and time-consuming. We have been involved one way or another in trying to get equal teacher pay in Chesterfield County since about 1941."

He pointed out that the VTA, local teachers association, citizens and other organizations in fighting discrimination in pay of colored teachers are really working for all members of the profession, white and colored.

"Because of the kind of salary schedule which had been set up, this is particularly true in the Chesterfield case," he said.

Mr. Picott lauded the generous public support given teachers, pupils and parents in these school cases. "We are more and more encouraged about the possibilities of working against educational discrimination in every city and county where it exists," he said.

SCHOOL MAR'MS—Completing a six month probation period with the Seattle, Wash., Board of Education are these six personable instructors who were added to the faculties of the city's non-segregated schools in September. They are, left to right: Mesdames Gladys Carr Branch, Edith Robertson Johnson, Virginia Holmes Galloway, Inex Welch Hall, Wilma Hogan and Thelma Dewitty.—Photo by J. Armstrong.

Teachers' Salaries

Single Salary Schedule Advocated, Experience of West Virginia Cited

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a former teacher and county superintendent of schools in West Virginia, I have always considered that New York's school system was probably the best in the United States. The controversy aired in The Times concerning the single salary schedule gives me reason to think that I may have been in error.

The N.Y. Times
Wed 12-1-48

In 1932 this state adopted the county unit school system. City and township school boards were disbanded and one county board directed the work in all schools in the county. City teachers, who had been getting a much higher rate of pay than those teaching in rural areas and smaller towns, objected greatly to the change at first because the new law provided equal rate of pay for all teachers in the state according to certification and experience.

In West Virginia there is no difference in salary schedules for elementary and high school teachers, for Negro or white, for urban or rural. Every teacher has an equal incentive to improve professionally and to continue at his job in order to earn a higher rate of pay.

With more money being allotted for educational purposes yearly, the rate of pay has now reached a point in West Virginia where any dissatisfaction because of the single salary schedule has disappeared.

That the single salary schedule is eminently proper to both teachers and patrons is a matter that admits of little question for debate.

A first grade teacher should be just as well prepared and as well paid as her sister who is a high school teacher. Many of our leading educators maintain with reason that too little attention is paid to instruction in the more formative years of a child's life when he is in the elementary school. Your high school teacher will tell you that many of her problems are caused by poor preparation in the grades. This is due in part to the better teachers securing secondary school jobs to improve themselves financially in systems where two wage rates are in effect.

The contention that teachers in high schools are more important and are entitled to more pay than other teachers is a fallacy. They are equally important and are entitled to the same rate of pay based on training and experience.

Robert F. Hickman.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 17, 1948.

14n 1948

VITAL PART OF SCHOOL PROGRAM

Tuskegee Stresses Farming

BY A. L. HOLSEY
Public Relations Director,
Tuskegee Institute

From its very beginning, the educational program at Tuskegee Institute has placed emphasis upon agriculture. Necessity as well as the Founder's vision played no small part in appreciation of the value of practical farming.

With only $2,000 with which to begin the work, Booker T. Washington, early in his career as first principal, put boys to work on the small farm in order to produce crops with which to feed the boarding students.

Growth and expansion of Tuskegee's agricultural program have been gradual and it embraces not only scientific methods but also provisions for reaching Negro farmers in nearby areas as an extension project.

The alternate work and school day became the basis of Tuskegee's training. This type of training attracted attention of educators, scholars, magazine writers and many leaders. The late Elbert Hubbard visited the Institute in 1907 and after a day's inspection of the farm and industrial shops wrote in his "A Little Journey to Tuskegee":

"A college that has its students devote one-half their time to actual, useful work is so in line with common sense that we are amazed that the idea had to be put in execution by an ex-slave as a life-saver for his disenfranchised race."

First Appointee

T. M. Campbell, Tuskegee graduate, was selected by Booker T. Washington to become the first appointee in 1906 in a direct-to-the-farmer educational program which had been jointly planned by Dr. Washington and Dr. Seeman A. Knapp and which later became the Agricultural Extension Service.

Writing some 20 years ago of these early experiences, T. M. Campbell said:

"In the early days of the school Dr. Washington and his associate teachers spent much time going into the homes and churches of the farmers who lived around Tuskegee. It was in this way that they were brought face to face with the actual conditions. Dr. Washington also realized early in the history of the school a need for an agricultural department.

"In supplying this need he induced Dr. George W. Carver, our present renowned chemist, to come to Tuskegee and establish a department of agriculture. It was Dr. Carver's custom in the early years to place a few articles in the way of demonstration material in a box which he put in his buggy and, with a student, to leave the Institute Saturday afternoons for trips into the country, where on Sundays he gave demonstrations in canning fruits, making butter and the like."

Before Booker T. Washington died in 1914, 19 graduates of the school had themselves caught the spirit of service and established right here in the South, schools modeled after Tuskegee and geared to meet basic problems of the rural Negro.

Tuskegee's Annual Farmers Conference estiblished 57 years ago was another medium initiated by the founder to reach and help Negro farmers. Many of those who attended the early conferences traveled in wagons, on mule and horse back, in ox-drawn vehicles and started from their homes the day before in order to be here on time.

Travel Changes

That mode of travel was in marked contrast to the many successful farmers who journeyed to the Institute last Wednesday, Jan. 21, to hear Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson tell them "we appreciate the importance of the colored farmer in this country, particularly his contribution to war and post war food production."

From the first Negro agent in 1906, there are now in Alabama 82 such agents including 37 men, 37 women and 8 state and district leaders. A majority of these agents are Tuskegee graduates.

Charles E. Trout, a Tuskegee Institute graduate, and a former County agent located at Tuscaloosa, was lent by the United States Department of Agriculture and the State Department to the Liberian Government as agricultural adviser. After spending 30 months abroad during which time he established 8 new experiment stations, Agent Trout has returned to assume administrative duties with the State Extension office at Tuskegee Institute.

Negroes engaged in Vocational Education teachng also include many Tuskegee graduates. In 1947, of the 39 teachers of Vocational Agriculture, 35 were Tuskegee graduates and of the 48 teachers of Vocational Home Economics, 40 graduated from Tuskegee.

Negro Extension Agents in Alabama have organized county leaders associations in 34 counties with 3886 members; agricultural planning committees in 32 counties with 23,045 farmers enrolled and Home Demonstration clubs in 35 counties with 28,692 farm women members. In 1947 there were in Negro 4-H clubs in Alabama, 16,811 boys and 21,236 girls or a total of 38,047.

Meeting Tomorrow's Needs

The School of Agriculture at Tuskegee Institute has a faculty of 32 and in the winter quarter 1947-1948 had enrolled 425 students in animal science, plant sciences, agricultural education, agricultural economics, chemistry, pre-veterinary medicine and general agriculture. 37 of these are graduate students.

The School of Veterinary Medicine was established in 1945 and is the first school of its kind connected with a Negro institution. A staff of 14 Negro specialists has been assembled by President F. D. Patterson and a new building to house the school is rapidly nearing completion which, with equipment, will represent a cost of over half a million dollars. Gifts from the state of Alabama, general education board and other friendly groups made possible this building.

The school farm, under supervision of the agricultural faculty reports recent significant improvements which include: an artificial lake which will irrigate the 15 acre new garden area; provide a demonstration fish pond and give added protection against fire; reconditioning old saw mill parts into a modern saw mill which is providing from the Institute farm all the lumber necessary for the new Veterinary Medicine building; a new ten acre fruit orchard; installation of a small wood preserving plant which is treating 10,000 posts for new fencing around the farm and construction of over 300,000 feet of terraces to help prevent soil erosion.

Accomplishments

Dr. J. R. Otis, state leader of Negro Extension work among Alabama Negro farmers reports the following activities directed by the Negro Extension Service during 1947:

"The staging of the First Tennessee Valley Fatstock Show at Decatur on May 1, 1947 stimulated increased interest in all phases of extension work on the part of junior, adult, rural and urban people. Fifty-seven fat calves from 6 counties were exhibited and sold at this show; 34 in Selma; 32 in Demopolis; 32 in Tuskegee; 16 in Grove Hill; 255 in Montgomery—total value, $68,000.

"Three dairy shows were held in 1947: one at Decatur in the Tennessee Valley with 56 entries, one at Dadeville in the Piedmont area with 90 entries; and one at Union town in the Black Belt with

Ledger-Enquirer Staff

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE VISITS TUSKEGEE — Dean I. A. Derbigny, (left) representing President F. D. Patterson of Tuskegee Institute, and Trustee Charles A. Barnett, special assistant to the Secretary of Agriculture, greet Secretary Clinton P. Anderson, Tuskegee Jan. 21, when he arrives to address the 57th Annual Farmers conference.

125 entries. These shows stimulated greater interest in dairying which has possibilities as a cash producing enterprise second only to cotton in the Tennessee Valley and second to none in the Piedmont and Black Belt. As a result of continued emphasis on dairying in areas of the state where markets are available, the number of Negro farmers selling milk in the state increased from 4,366 in 1946 to 11,780 in 1947.

"An increased acreage of grazing and hay crops as recommended according to area is evident throughout the state. Many counties in which no alfalfa was growing in 1946, now have successful alfalfa demonstrations in numbers which have stimulated wide interest in this crop for grazing and hay. The alfalfa acreage in 1947 was five times greater than in 1946.

Acreage Increase

"Alabama Negro county agents reported increases in acreage of other grazing and hay crops in 1947 over 1946 as follows:

	1946	1947
Improved permanent pasture	62,624	132,366
Lespedeza sericea	14,158	18,292
Kudzu	21,210	22,054
Grain sorghum	4,045	17,835

"These and other grazing and hay crops, worked into continuous grazing systems from the foundation on which the dairy program and other livestock programs in the state are based.

"In the fall of 1947 farmers in many counties of the state increased their acreage of winter legumes for soil building and to increase crop yield. This increase was made in spite of the fact that no PMA assistance was available for the purchase of seed.

"The most significant increase in crop yields was made in connection with corn. Demonstrations with locally adapted hybird corn that were conducted in most counties of the state in 1947 proved that Alabama corn yields can be more than doubled. Alabama agents reported yields from hybird corn demonstrations of 55 to 95 bushels per acre.

"Increased cooperative effort on the part of farm people in 1947 was shown by the completion of community centers in two counties and the starting of community centers in many other counties in the state. These community centers are designed to provide improved office space for extension agents and other county workers and rest-room and other needed facilities for rural people while in the county seat."

Ledger-Enquirer Staff Photo

CABINET MEMBERS ADMIRES NEEDLE-WORK — Secretary Anderson pauses to inspect specimens of 'fireside industry' displayed in Logan hall at Tuskegee Institute, where he had told an audience of 1,200 Negro farmers, educators, students, and extension workers that Negro farmers in the south should 'mechanize and diversify' for greater profits.

14n 1948

For Export Use

THIS piece is frankly for export. It is written in the hope that it will find a place in the considerations of some non-Southerners who are genuinely anxious over the condition of the Negro in the South.

The Southerner, in this time of Civil Disturbance offensives and jihads, is so resentful of the Civil Rights holy-rollers "who do not understand Southern problems" that he is likely to splutter instead of cite the record.

We have a vast body of Southerners who regard all northerners and easterners as vicious busy-bodies who will not leave the South to work out its oppressive race problem by itself.

There is no debate about the fraud of a great many of these Yankee Pharisees; they are a contemptible and disreputable lot. But we Southerners have got to face the fact that a lot of the do-gooders are well-intentioned and high-minded people who simply are ignorant.

They are genuinely solicitous over the Negro's lot. They honestly believe that the Negro is the victim of an unceasing and systematic program of repression and lynching. Such misled and uninformed people are entitled to reassurance.

As Americans, they have an obvious right to be concerned over what they mistakenly believe is studied and industrious mistreatment of a large element of American citizens. It wouldn't be America if these people were not concerned.

Such people as these can be won over. They are ripe for reason and education in the great racking problem of the Southern states.

These people, brought up in a balmy intellecutal climate of liberal patter and in regions where a person may go weeks without laying eyes on a Negro, earnestly believe they are being their brother's keeper. They are sincerely concerned over the Negro's civil rights and it is proper that they should be. Reassurance is their due.

Two Scourges

WHAT these people must be made to understand if they are to be won over to the South's viewpoint is that the Negro is primarily in need of education and health care. Those are his emergency needs.

They must be made to understand that the white man, with growing help from the colored man, is accomplishing these emergency needs, and at no snail's pace.

There are lags in the Negro's civil rights progress and The Advertiser does not deny it.

But the immediate and fundamental needs of the colored man are being handsomely ministered to. His diseased body is being purged and his ignorance is being dissolved.

The State of Alabama is spending millions yearly to educate the Negro and repair his health standard.

While Southern critics moan over anti-poll tax reforms, Alabama, a poor state, is spending millions to cleanse the colored man's body of tuberculosis and syphilis—the foremost scourges of his race.

Alabama was the first state in the Union to impose compulsory testing of all adults for syphilis and tuberculosis.

That was a great boon to the colored man in Alabama. Through his ignorance and promiscuity, the Negro has had an appalling syphilis rate.

But syphilis is being reduced from major to minor problem by our public health system. Since 1943, 50,000 cases have been treated at state expense in the Birmingham Rapid Treatment Clinic.

Every Negro in Alabama between the ages of 13 and 50 will undergo a compulsory X-ray examination for tuberculosis. The Negro's nasal structure makes him particularly susceptible to T.B.

While the rate of T.B. incidence in whites is 22.3 per 1,000, it is 64.1 per thousand for Negroes.

The emergency nature of this T. B. program is manifest.

'48 Model Simon Legree

WHAT is ironic about the boon of the syphilis and T.B. program is that the man responsible would be regarded as a Simon Legree type in Walter White-Hubert Humphries circles.

He is State Senator Bruce Henderson, a rich Black Belt plantation owner. In looking for a Southern type oppressor of the Negro, The Daily Worker, New York communist newspaper, recently employed Henderson as the archetype.

Senator Henderson is not impressed by the desirability of Negro voting, etc., but he had seen the murderous toll of T.B. and syphilis on the hundreds of Negro field hands employed by him. The result was the state legislation providing the testing and treating.

Henderson's concept of the Negro's potential as a citizen is possibly as short-sighted and awry as that of Thomas Jefferson and Lincoln, but the fact is that he has done more for the advancement and uplift of the Alabama Negro than all the Walter Whites together.

Further, the State Health Department maintains elaborate facilities in which, at state expense, the Negro is treated for all the major diseases and the Negro mother may receive prenatal and post-natal care.

This, of course, is no more than is due the colored man, but it is also due Alabama that all of this be understood. The Health Department can show that it exists more for the colored man than for the white.

$5,000 To $25,000

THE expanded educational effort in behalf of the Negro is not less than spectacular. We freely acknowledge that this is partly due to outside pressure and proddings, but the point is that an ever growing effort is being made. It is being made ungrudgingly and in a mood of enlightened self interest.

Negro teachers are paid the same salaries as white teachers. In Montgomery County, where the population is almost evenly divided, we are fast approaching a 50-50 ratio of spending for white and colored children.

Tuskegee Institute is the measure and symbol of the ever greater effort in behalf of Negro education. As Booker T. Washington himself related, he started this famous school with white contributions—a fact which is cited to suggest that even 66 years ago the white man accepted Negro education needs.

In 1939 this newspaper was elated ranny.

when its plea for a grant of $5,000 in The Negro magazine "Color" was re state funds to this privately endowed cently saying of Tuskegee:

institution was granted by the state "Without doubt Tuskegee is one o legislature. Ten years later this $5,000 the world's greatest laboratories was up to $25,000. training. In addition to the powe

Tuskegee is in the heart of the Black house of trade activities shown o

Belt, domain of what the fanciful north- these pages, the great institution af ter regards as the white man's ty- fords training in aviation, infantile paralysis, public health and a host of other things."

The Advertiser does not mean to suggest that the white man is responsible for this splendid achievement at Tuskegee, but it does point out that the power on white man has lent the helping hand on af- and it would not exist if conditions were such as those fabricated by such repertorial punks as Ray Sprigle in The Pittsburgh Post-Dispatch.

The maximum opportunity is not yet the Negro's, but Alabama is already a place in which a Negro farmer of Lowndes County can send 9 of his 15 children to college.

The Emergency Needs

WE TRUST that this will not be taken to mean that God's in his heaven and all's right with the world. All this is simply a fragmentary suggestion to our sincere critics in other regions that they owe it to us to learn and understand.

In Alabama we have 2,000,000 whites and 1,000,000 Negroes. When Mayor Humphries of Minneapolis arises Cotton Mather like before the National Democratic Convention and screeches that the Negro must be enfranchised tomorrow he is speaking as a man from a state with but 10,000 Negroes. It is this difference between 1,000,000 and 10,000 that must be grasped.

There is considerable that is coming to the Negro, but it is wise and necessary that he work his way and that there be gradualism in his advance as citizen. The least the upcountry do-gooder can do is to set aside a sabbatical day on which he will moan and groan for the Indian's second class citizenship instead of the Negro's.

Too few Negroes are allowed to vote in Alabama at this time In 1944 Gov. Sparks made a secret survey of the number of Negro voters in Alabama. The number was so scant that Sparks, for a long while, was embarrassed to make it public. But enfranchisement of qualified Negroes is proceeding and even the most conservative among our responsible political leaders are open and frequent with assertions that the number will have to be increased.

There are, we concede, other lags. But what must be understood is that the Negro's emergency need is for health care and education. These are urgencies which take precedence over all else. And the response to the urgencies is powerful and handsome.

14n 1948

P.17 Sat. 3-27-48

TOURNEY PROFITS AID WORTHY DRIVES—R. S. Darnaby, secretary-treasurer of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, presents Dr. F. D. Patterson two checks, one for $500 for the George Washington Carver Restoration drive and $100 for the United Negro College Fund. The donations came from profits in the recent Southern Conference basketball tournament.

Birmingham Girl Wins $1,200 Cash Scholarship

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala—Mrytle Verina Turner, 16-year-old January graduate of Parker High School, Birmingham, Ala., was the final winner of the General Gorgas Schorlarship contest sponsored by the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce and administered by the Alabama Acedemy of Science. The prize consisted of a $1200 cash scholarship plus a four year paid tuition to Tuskegee Institute.

Miss Turner was declared winner in Institute Chapel last Wednesday night after final screening of the four contestants who had competed with many others to reach that stage in the state-wide contest.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Turner of Birmingham, native Alabamians, the scholarship winner attended the Washington grade school there before entering Parker High School and has always been interested in scientific experiments and some type of laboratory work. Besides being adept in the tactics of science, Miss Turner likes knitting and makes most of her own clothes. Her favorite sport is basketball and reading is her hobby.

Studies at Pratt

Since graduation from high school in January, the scholarship winner has been doing secretarial work at the Pratt City, Alabama school. This summer she will be preparing to enter Tuskegee Institute in September and will major in chemistry.

The other three finalists each received honorable mention and a $25 Government bond. They were second place. Frankie Lawson, 16-year-old graduating senior, Fairfield Industrial High School, Fairfield, Alabama Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Lawson, Fairfield, Miss Lawson is in biology.

Thomas Alston Mason, graduating senior of the Cobb High School, Anniston, Alabama was the third place winner. He is the 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Mason of Anniston and is interested in both chemistry and mathematics.

The fourth place winner was 15-year-old Anna Louise Ellington, graduating senior of Parker High School, Birmingham. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Ellington, Miss Ellington has the distinction of being the Pepsi-Cola award winner from the State of Alabama for 1948. This consists of a four year scholarship to any school of her choice plus transportation and $25 a month. She also received a gold medal and a scholarship to Alabama State Teachers College from another organization. The fourth place winner of the Gorgas prize has two sisters in college, one at Spelman majoring in mathematics and the other at Oberlin majoring in music.

The four students spent two days at Tuskegee Institute for final screening with expenses and transportation paid by the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce. The contest was open to all seniors in Alabama high schools in cooperation with the National Science Talent Search sponsored by Westinghouse Corporation. Separate contests were held in white and colored schools.

Officials of the General Gorgas Committee were T. H. Martin, Birmingham, president of the Southern Research Institute, honorary chairman; Col Carl B. Fritschie, Tuscaloosa, general chairman; William C. Bowman, Mountevallo, treasurer and Dr. James L. Kassner, Tuscaloosa, secretary. Tuskegee Institute officials in the final screening were Dr. James H. M. Henderson, associate professor of chemistry; Dr. R. W. Brown, Director, Carver Foundation; Louis F. Cason, instructor in chemistry and G. L. Washington, Administrative Assistant who directed the proceedings during the two-day period when the students were here.

ACCOMPLISHMENT EVALUATION THEME OF TUSKEGEE'S ALL-INSTITUTE CONFERENCE

Weekly Advocate

Tuskegee Institute, Alabama—O Friday and Saturday, September 3 and 4, Tuskegee Institute held its eighth All-Institute Conference, centering this year around the theme of "Procedures and Methods of Evaluating Student Accomplishment." Under the leadership of President F. D. Patterson and Dr. I. A. Derbigny, administrative dean and acting president during Dr. Patterson's recent leave of absence for study in California, the conference divided into groups for the discussion of methods evaluating student accomplishment in class room and laboratory, in apprentice practice and interneship, in personnel and extracurricular activities, and in graduate work.

Mobile Ala

Speaking before the whole group Saturday, Dr. Patterson stressed and illuminated the importance of the investigation and analysis undertaken by the Conference. He said, "Our All-Institute Conference, in its consideration of evaluation, gave important recognition to the fact that mechanical criteria do not suffice adequately for the measurement of achievement. Only a degree of genine change in the direction of objectives effectively measures the quality of instruction."

Dr. Patterson went on to discuss teaching methods and their basic concepts as a whole. He outlined the point of view from which teachers could most successfully view their students in saying, "I think a reasonable point of view regarding Tuskegee students to be the following: the student of Tuskegee Institute should be encouraged to regard themselves as normal human beings with the full complement of capabilities that normal human beings possess. They must likewise be encouraged to accept the responsibility which the role of a human being in a democratic society carries, and in so doing, to give full expression to the capabilities they possess."

The All-Institute Conference is an annual event at Tuskegee Institute, heralding the opening of the fall session.

14n 1948

Alma Illery Scholarship

ment club presents a check to Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tus-

Daily Word, Atlanta, Ga.

SCHOLARSHIP — The National kegee, at the February meeting of Achievement club, Inc., establishes presidents of the Pittsburgh area. the Alma Illery scholarship at Tus— (ANP) Th. 3-5-48 kegee institute. Mrs. Mary Clark, first vice president of the Achieve-

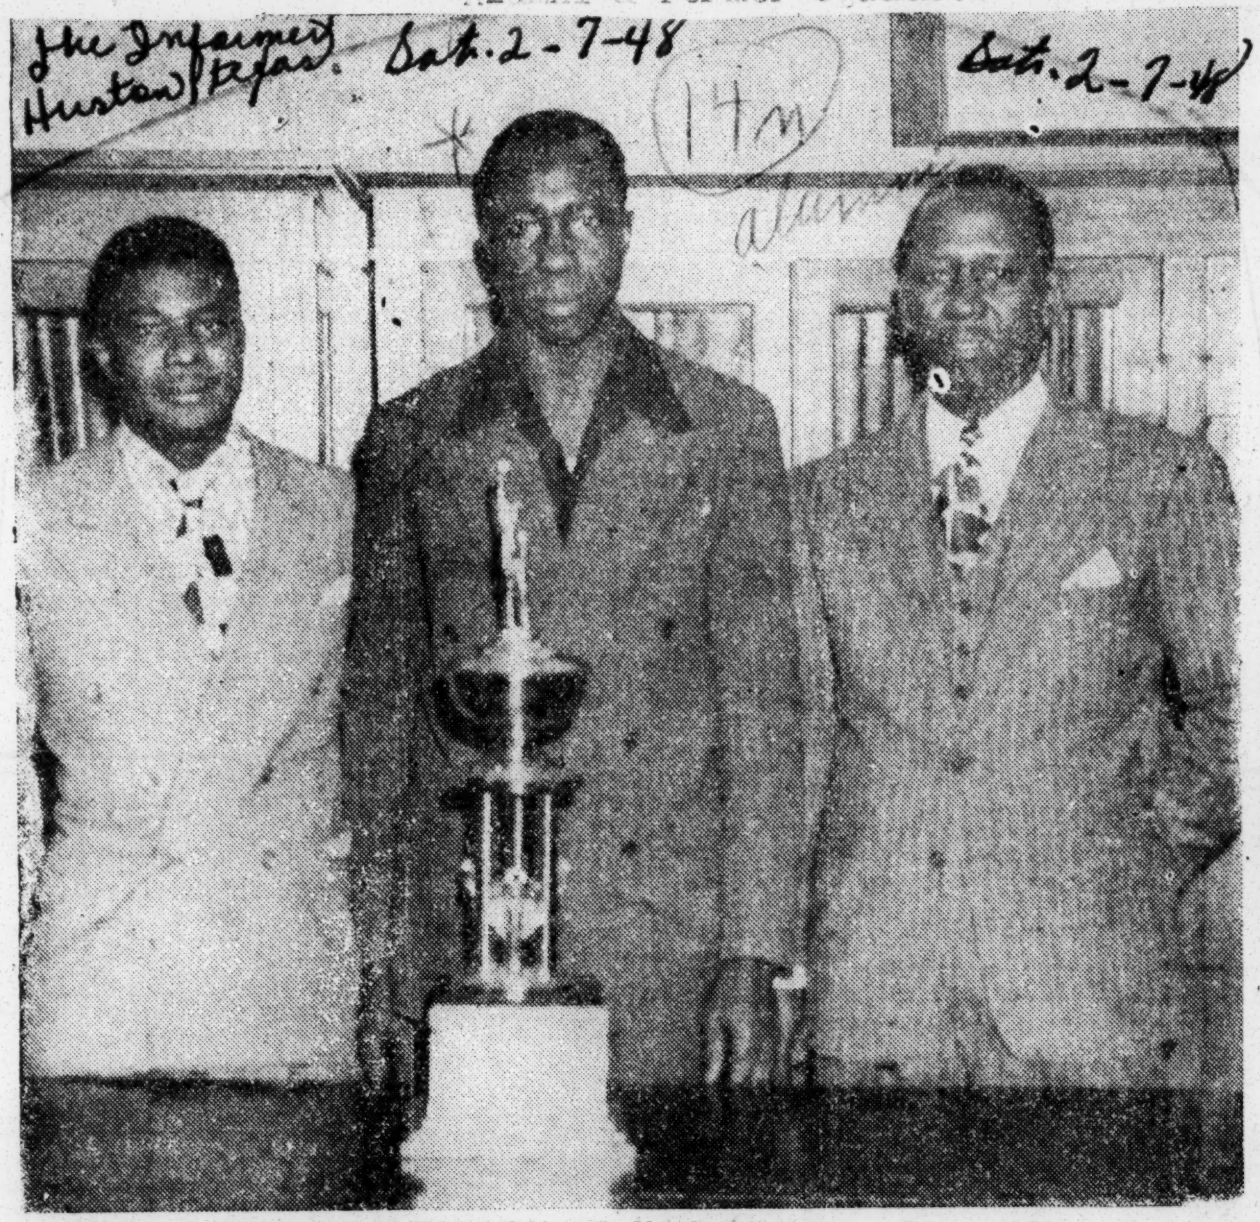
TO JOIN HER HUSBAND— Tuskegee Institute, Ala. — Mrs. Margaret Phillips Harrison, above left the campus this week for Seattle, Washington, from which point she will sail for Yokohama, Japan, to join her husband, Lt. James E. Harrison, who is on duty with the 24th U. S. Infantry. She will be abroad for two years.

Mrs. Harrison is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Phillips of Tuskegee Institute and majored in Home Economics while attending school here.



TROPHY GIVEN IN MEMORY OF VETERAN — The Julius U. Austin trophy, grand prize of the Booker T. Washington third annual basketball tournament, was donated by Mrs. Lillie T. Austin of Houston, Texas in memory of her son, Julius U. Austin, who died in World War II.

Left to right, Assistant Coach, Harvey, Head Coach Stevens and Assistant Principal Norris all of Booker T. Washington.— Photo by Gray.

Chemist To Take Marital Vows

Miss Norma Spaulding, research assistant at the Carver Research Laboratories at Tuskegee Institute, is bethrothed to is annonunced by her parents, Quentin E. Gaillard, veterans advisor in Russell county, Ala., it Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Spaulding. The wedding is scheduled to take place in the late Summer.

Miss Anna Clark Pioneer Nurse, Dies In Sleep

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. —(SNS)— Miss Anna Clark, one of Birmingham's pioneer nurses died in her sleep Friday morning, April 30, at the residence of Mrs. Bessie Johnson, with whom she lived, 809 South, 16th St. Miss Clark was born and reared in New Orleans, La., afterwhich she studied nursing at Tuskegee Institute. For 45 years she nursed two generations of the best families of white people of Birmingham. She was loved and admired for her skill as a nurse and devotion to patients. Until a year and a half ago when ill health forced her into retirement she was happy in going from family to family, nursing the sick.

As a gesture of love and esteem in which she was held by her white friends, just 10 days prior to her death she was given a lovely party by Mrs. Frank Wilson and Mrs Joseph Fox at the latter's home on her lawn. A large cake was presented along with numerous other gifts from friends and a large cash donation from the whole group.

Her funeral was held Tuesday afternoon, May 4th, at 2:00 p. m. from the St. John A. M. E. church with the Rev. H. R. Hughes, pastor delivering the eulogy.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Mary Depew and her husband, Baker Depew of Winter Park, Florida and a host of friends.

Interment was held at Brown's Cemetery with Davenport and Harris in charge.

Serving As Army Hostesses In Kyoto, Japan

Miss Harriet Powe, of 103(Dufossat street, New Orleans La., left, and Miss Estella R Gunter, of 1917 Maypole avenue Chicago, Ill., right, who arrived in Japan from the Philippines on June 16 have been assigned as Army hostesses with the GI Corps at Kyoto. Miss Powe is graduate of Southern Univer- sity, Baton Rogue, La. Miss Gunter is a graduate of Tuske- gee Institute.
(Signal Corps photo)

Tuskegee Graduates Now Water Safety Instructors

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—(SNS)—Johnne M. Valien and Whitney Van Cleve, members of the May graduatng class, Bachelor of Science in Physical Education, Tuskegee Institute, are employed this summer as instructors in the water safety and playground program conducted by the Tuskegee Institute Department of Physical Education and Athletics for the children of the community.

Miss Valien, who holds a Red Cross instructor's certificate in water safety, directs the swimming, while Van Cleve has charge of the physical education activities for the elementary and teen-age groups.

Van Cleve, a native of Kokomo, Indiana, was captain of the 1947 Golden Tiger football team. He was rated as one of Tuskegee's most brilliant fullbacks, and during his football career was placed on several newspaper All-American teams. His college education was interrupted by the War in which he served four years. He landed in Normandy on D-Day and took part in the Battle of the Bulge.

While Miss Valien, in addition to her ability as a swimmer, was a member of the women's varsity basketball and track teams. She was her senior year just completed she was elected to the honor roll at Tuskegee, which marks as one of the Institute's outstanding scholars.

Miss Nicholson, who has not definitely decided on her future plans, has returned to her father's farm near New Boston, Texas, for the summer.

The 18 Negro winners of four-year college scholarships in the 1948 Pepsi-Cola scholarship program were recently announced. One of the outstanding features of this program, which is financed by the Pepsi-Cola Company as a public service, are the awards which are set aside specifically for Negro students of the South's separate school systems.

SCHOLARSHIP GRADUATE.—To Huberta Nicholson of New Boston, Texas, goes the distinction of being the first Pepsi-Cola scholarship holder in the United States to graduate from college. Miss Nicholson received a bachelor of science degree from Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, last Monday, May 10. She has been attending Tuskegee on a four-year scholarship which she received from the Pepsi-Cola scholarship board in 1945, when she graduated from New Boston high school. To date 438 students, of whom 76 are Negro, have been awarded Pepsi-Cola four-year scholarships throughout the United States, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

To Huberta Nicholson of New- dents to ... scholarship which Boston, Texas, goes the distinction has for fo... years paid her full of being the first Pepsi-Cola tuition, all incidental fees, and a scholarship holder in the United $255-a-manth allowance, a total of States Negro for whom to grad- $1,... To date, 438 students, of whom uate from college, Miss Nicholson 76 are Negro, have been awarded received a bachelor of science de- PepsiCola-Four-Year College Scho- gree from Tuskegee Institute in larships throughout the United Tuskegee, Alabama, last Monday, States, Alaska, Hawaii, and Puesr- May 10. to Rico. These boys and grils are attending 157 American colleges.

This outstanding student has Miss Nicholson is the first of this been attending Tuskege on a four- selec... group to complete col- year college scholarship which she lege work. received from the Pepsi-Cola Scholarship Board in 1945 when she graduated from New Boston Colored School. At that time, she was chosen from among 561 of the South's most able Negro stu- Studying under an accelerated program, Miss Nicholson has completed four years' work in three. She has foregon all summer vacations to win her degree with a

York at state hea... Centre street.

Mrs. Roberts is th... on the board and is t... an to have been so h... was named to the p... Thomas E. Dewey to ... cancy created by the ... division of the New York County old Hill, well known ... Republican committee and prom... ent Alpha Kappa Alpha soror... was sworn in as representative at... the New York State Board of So... cial Welfare here by Thomas J... Curran, secretary of state of New...

major in physical education and a minor in the social sciences. In ... large of the 15 member board of... has given some 25 years to ... civic duties in New York ... where she lives in Manhattan and ... has been tremendously active in

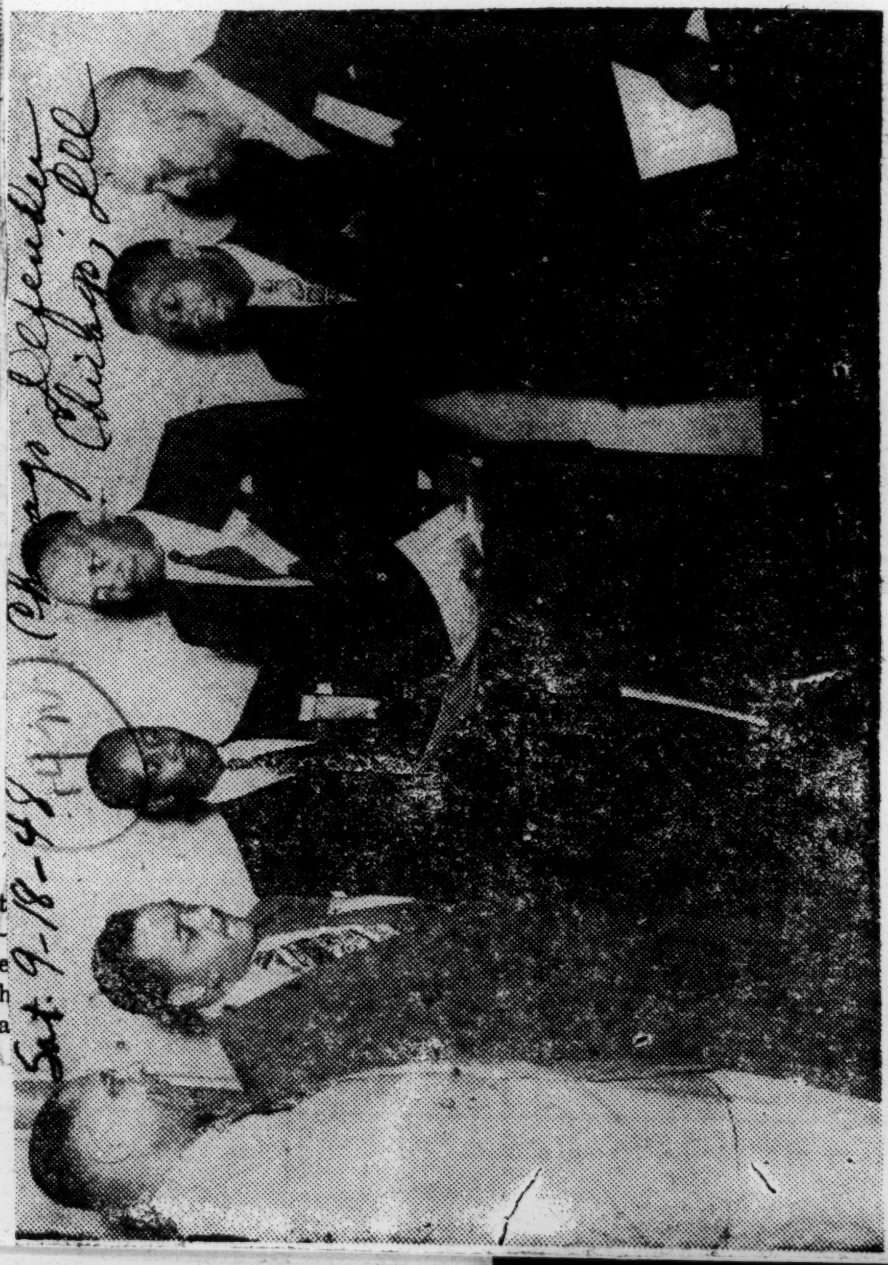
Mrs. Roberts Named To New York Board

By GLADYS P. GRAHAM

NEW YORK — (ANP) — Ruth ...

Surcey-Trammell Vows Read In Fort Smith, Ark.

The marriage of Miss Future Mae Trammell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Trammell, of Fort Smith, Ark., and William Stockton Surcey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Will Surcey, Jacksonville, Fla., was solemnized at 8 p. m. Wednesday, August 25, at the Quinn Chapel A. M. E. church in Fort Smith, with the pastor, Rev. J. B. Shumpert, reading the double-ring ceremony. The couple are shown leaving the church after the ceremony. Both are graduates of Tuskegee institute. The groom is a member of the Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity. They are making their home in Jacksonville, Fla.



TUSKEGEE DIGNITARIES in attendance at the eighth annual conference of the North central region of the Tuskegee General Alumni Association, which met in Cary over the Labor Day weekend, with sessions at the Campbell Friendship House, 2100 Washington st. Reading left to right, Andrew A. Means, local president; Robert P. Morgan, president Tuskegee General Alumni association; Joseph Williams, Regional Director; Claude Barnett, Tuskegee Trustee Board member; Daniel Andrews, Advisory Committee; and Capt. Alvin J. Neely, Executive secretary of the Tuskegee Alumni association.—W. A. Turner photo.

TUSKEGEE MORTGAGE BURNING—Chicago Tuskegee club members celebrate the group's 38th anniversary Sunday by burning the mortgage on their clubhouse at 4909 South Parkway. Principals in the ceremonies were: (l. to r.) seated, Claude A. Barnett, trustee of Tuskegee and one of the club founders; Wilbur J. Hardaway, guest speaker and Indiana FEPC chief; standing, Daniel J. Faulkner, club president; H. O. Abbott, J. T. Farrell, Obbie Crayton, Lulla Jones, the Rev. Frank A. Smith, pastor of Jubilee Temple; Gladys S. Lewis and Theodore T. Greene, vice-chairman of the mortgage liquidation drive.—Defender photo by Rhoden.

Tuskegee Grad Heads Texas U. Arts Staff

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE—James E. Dorsey, a graduate of Tuskegee Institute, class of 1924, has been appointed chairman of the Fine Arts department and professor of Music at Texas State University, Houston.

Dorsey has had extensive training and long experience that eminently qualifies him for his new post. He received his A. B., degree from Lincoln University in 1928.

Ex-Tuskegee Star Leads War Machine

KITZINGEN, Germany—Working among the rolling mountains in Germany's Lower Franconia, two football experts are rapidly building a powerful mixed grid machine, one that is very apt to become the terror of EUGOM's Class B circuit.

Practically hidden in the town of Kitzengen here, this machine, only three weeks old at the time, was sent into combat for the first time, and although still lacking polish, the big steamroller was successful against the Class A 14th Constab Regiment, 12-7.

The staff includes head coach 1st Lt. Lloyd Jones of Lancaster, Ohio, former Tuskegee football and basketball ace and coach of Fort Benning's championship team last year, and assistant coach WOJG Leroy Haynes of Chicago, who won the colored All-American honors while playing for Morehouse College from 1933 through 1936.

Haynes handled the squad through its first three weeks of practice until Jones arrived on the scene from the States just in time to see the opener against Constab.

Herman Holiday, Tuskegee Great, Has German Post

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.— Herman Joe Holiday, Tuskegee Institute's 1937 Negro All-American football star, former local school teacher and UNRRA official, was notified here last week that he had been appointed to a post with the prepatriation commission for the International Refugee Organization. He is scheduled to report to Bad Kissingen, Germany, for assignment in a few weeks.

The son of Mrs. Gussie Holiday, he was a member of the city recreation department's staff from 1937 to 1942. He then became physical education and industrial arts instructor at Crispus Attucks High School here.

In March, 1943, while working as director of the Senate avenue branch Indianapolis Service Men's Center, he was inducted into the Army. He saw overseas service in China, Korea and Japan with the UNRRA as a field emergency shelter specialist.

Tuskegee Seeking Data On 1928 Class

TUSKEGEE, Ala. — Members of the Tuskegee Institute Class of 1928 are urged to send their present address to Capt. R. S. Darnaby, Tuskegee Institute, Ala., who is compiling the class roll. The 20th anniversary reunion of the class of 1928 will be held in April. The Institute is anxious to have on file the complete roll of members of the class with correct home addresses and also to have a large representation return to the campus for the celebration.

JOINS ALCORN'S MUSIC STAFF

—Mrs. Samuel L. Barnes (Sara Owsley-Stivers) Concert Pianist, Composer. Mus. B., Tuskegee Institute; Graduate study, University of Iowa Pupil of Hazel Harrison, Addison Alspachs Five years, member of the Spelman College Music Faculty; Accompanist for the Atlanta University System; Accompanist for Kemper Harreld, Dean of Negro Contemporary Musicians, Violinist, and Director of the Music Department, Atlanta University.

Mrs. Barnes is also a composer, having written many interesting pieces for the piano, voice and songs for small children. Several of her compositions are to be released from the Publishers around the first of the year. She has made many interesting choral arrangements.

At Alcorn College, she is assistant professor of Music-Conductor of the College Choir and trainer of the College Quartet.

TUSKEGEE GRADS EARN ADVANCED DEGREES

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala., Aug 24— Anette LaVerne Mayo, Philadelphia, Penn., who was graduated from Tuskegee Institute with a Bachelor of Science degree in Home Economics in 1944, received her Master of Arts degree in Home Economics from Iowa at the June 1948 Commencement. The subject of her Thesis was "A Study in Women's Clothing from 1910 to 1948."

While at the August 4 Commencement, William Clarence Jackson, Galveston, Texas, a graduate of Tuskegee Institute with a Bachelor Science degree in Education, Class of 1940, received his Master of Arts degree in History.

Mrs Ora Clarke Thomas, Tuskegee Institute's most outstanding graduate, on June 2, was awarded the cultant, American Red Cross, with Doctor of Laws degree at the annual headquarters in Washington, D. C. commencement exercises of Morris Brown College in Atlanta, Georgia.

Jesse D. Thomas, one of Tuskegee Institute's most outstanding graduates, on June 2, was awarded the Doctor of Laws degree at the annual commencement exercises of Morris Brown College in Atlanta, Georgia.

Mrs. Thomas, who has been on the Red Cross staff since 1943, is presently serving as public relations consultant, American Red Cross, with headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Women at Tuskegee Institute," in the April issue of the Journal of Home Economics.

Iowa Student's Article On Food to Be Published

Mrs Ora Clarke Thomas, Tuskegee Institute's most outstanding graduate, on June 2, was awarded the Doctor of Laws degree at the annual commencement exercises of Morris Brown College in Atlanta, Georgia.

Jesse D. Thomas, one of Tuskegee Institute's most outstanding graduates, on June 2, was awarded the Doctor of Laws degree at the annual commencement exercises of Morris Brown College in Atlanta, Georgia.

Mrs. Thomas, who has been on the Red Cross staff since 1943, is presently serving as public relations consultant, American Red Cross, with headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Women at Tuskegee Institute," in the April issue of the Journal of Home Economics.

Iowa Student's Article On Food to Be Published

Gets N. Y. Post

Miss Lewana Hill, the personable and talented daughter of Mrs. Goldia W. Hill, State public health nurse, of East St. Louis and Dr. William E. Hill of St. Louis, left for New York City Saturday where she has accepted a position as staff dietician in the main division of the New York City hospital.

Miss Hill is a graduate of Tuskegee where she received her degree in institutional management. She did her internship work at Freedman's hospital, Washington, D. C. Complimentary for Miss Hill's accomplishments, Mrs. Pearl Green, former chief dietician at Homer Phillips hospital presented the American Dietetic Association pin to her, as a gift before she left. It was one of Mrs. Green's most cherished possessions.

Ex-Wac Accused by School Heads

Charge Child Was in Her Apartment

RESIGNATION ASKED

Tuskegee Graduate Once Taught in Tenn.

WASHINGTON

A Terrell Junior High School temporary teacher, Mrs. Margaret B. Crawford, has been released from the public school system, after being investigated on charges of "conduct unbecoming a teacher."

School officials say Mrs. Crawford is accused of taking a teenage girl to her apartment and keeping her out all night under questionable circumstances.

Mrs. Crawford, a former second lieutenant in the Women's Army Corps, is also said to have kept the girl out without the knowledge of her parents.

Excellent Recommendations

When asked how questionable teachers get into the school system, officials replied that Mrs. Crawford had come to them highly recommended, both from an educational and moral standpoint.

School officials requested Mrs. Crawford's resignation on May 12, after the School Board had sifted the charges. She had been appointed a temporary physical education teacher at Terrell, last November.

She was honorably discharged from the Women's Army Corps as a second lieutenant on Feb. 17, 1946, after having spent three years in the service, which she joined on Sept. 1, 1943.

Mrs. Crawford formerly taught physical education and other subjects at the Allen White High School, Whiteville, Tenn., where she was given an "A" rating as an instructor.

A graduate of Tuskegee Institute, who attended the University of Michigan, the teacher was born in Wichita, Kans., as Margaret Barnes, but now calls Kalamazoo, Mich., her home. She was married in October, 1946.

Tuskegee Club Formed Here

An enthusiastic group of graduates and former students of Tuskegee Institute met Sunday, November 21 in the auditorium of Bodden School of Tailoring to organize a Tuskegee Club. Mrs. Moore, oldest graduate present and Mrs. Wright of the Class of 1905 were among those attending. Miss Casey of the Class of 1908, who acted as chairman, outlined the necessity for such a club and gave assurance that the "Tuskegee Spirit" during the life of Booker T. Washington has been perpetuated by graduates former students and students.

The following temporary officers were elected: I. S. Bodden, president; Richard Carr, vice president; Mrs. Dorothy Womack Smalls, secretary; Mrs. Myrtle J. Fisher, assistant secretary; P. M. Jones, treasurer; Mrs. Doris Bodden, historian; Jesse W. Mason, parliamentorian and Roland W. Gilaer, reporter.

The next meeting of the Tuskegee Club wil be held in the auditorium of the Bodden School of Tailoring on Sunday, December 12 at 4 p m. All graduates and former students are invited to be present. Any information concerning the future activities of the Club may be secured from the secretary, Mrs. Smalls.

Gary Welcomes Tuskegee Grads

GARY, Ind.—This northern Indiana city last week handed over its "keys" and welcomed to the city for a three-day stay large numbers of Tuskegee graduates here for the eighth North Central Regional Conference of the Tuskegee General Alumni association.

Highlight of the affair was dedication of two housing projects, both conceived and constructed by Andrew Means, president of the local Tuskegee club and well known local builder.

Claude Barnett, head of the Associated Negro Press, gave the dedication address for Booker T. Washington Terrace, and F. D. Patterson Homes, both named for Tuskegee presidents.

Friday was registration day with hundreds of delegates arriving from Ohio, Wisconsin, Illinois, Virginia, West Virginia and other parts of Indiana.

Wilbur Hardaway, local realtor and co-director of the Indiana FEPC, gave the welcome address. Slated on a panel discussion of ways to strengthen and expand the alumni association were E. Finch Morris, Philadelphia; John Wilson, Pittsburgh; Daniel J. Faulkner, president of the Chicago Tuskegee club, and George Smith, Cleveland.

Cecile Hoover To Publish Food Article

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—Miss Cecile [illegible], now studying at Iowa State College, will publish an article "A Study of the Food Intake of Fifty College Women at Tuskegee Institute" in the April [illegible] issue of the Journal of Home Economics.

Miss Hoover did exceptionally good work as an undergraduate at Tuskegee institute. On the basis of her high scholarship attainment she was awarded a Swift and Company Fellowship and studied during the summer of 1946 at Iowa State college, Ames, Iowa. She was also the recipient of the George W. Carver Foundation Research Fellowship for study in the Laboratory of the George W. Carver Museum during the school year, 1946-1947.

Miss Hoover was awarded the degree of master of science in Chemistry at the Tuskegee Institute annual summer session in August, 1947. Her work in home economics as an undergraduate provided an excellent background for her article on foods.

Tuskegee Group Names Robert Morgan For Meritorious Citation

GARY—The Gary Tuskegee Almuni Association, which is headed by Andrew A. Means, was host to the eight annual convention of the north central region of the Tuskegee General Alumni Association, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday with headquarters at the Friendship House, 2100 Washington st. The meeting was conducted by the regional director, Joseph W. Williams of Detroit, and Warren Tucker, vice-chairman, of Pittsburgh.

Other Alumni dignitaries who participated in the program included Daniel W. Andrews, Winston Salem, N. C., who is a trustee of Tuskegee; Robert P. Morgan of Cleveland, Ohio, president of the National Alumni Association; Alvin J. Neeley, executive secretary of Tuskegee Institute; and Claude A. Barnett, director of the Associated Negro Press and trustee of Tuskegee Institute. Approximately 150 persons attended the Convention, representing Alumni Chapters from Chicago, Cleveland, and Akron, Ohio; Buffalo, Detroit, Cincinnati, and Milwaukee.

The highlight of the Convention was the Youth Program which was rendered by Junior Tuskegeans Saturday evening, September 4. Young people from Chicago Cleveland, Detroit, Pittsburg and Gary participated and displayed marvelous talent.

Mrs. Naomi Morgan, wife of Robert P. Morgan, was chosen as the "Tuskegee Mother of the Year" of The North Central Region, for her outstanding contributions both as a mother and a civic worker.

Members of The Eastern Region who were present and spoke to the group Sunday afternoon included—Eunice Finch Morris of Philadelphia, Ernest Dimity and P. R. Richter, present chairman f the Carver Seal Committee, both of New York City. The committee on publicity included Addie M. McDonald, Gary, chairman with M[illegible] L. Campbell, Detroit; Irene Sullins, Cleveland; Frank E. Merriwether, Buffalo and Daniel Faulkner, Chicago.

Robert P. Morgan, president of the National Alumni Association, was voted as the 1949 candidate to receive the Citation Award for Meritorious Service. This presentation will take place on the campus at Tuskegee during the commencement exercises in May.

Mae's Louisiana Kitchen headed by Mrs. Mae Bolton served the delegates with meals.

Tuskegee Halts Morris Brown, 18-12 In 10-Innings Slugfest

By JOEL W. SMITH

ATLANTA ,GEORGIA. —(SNS)— The Tuskegee Golden Tigers punched over seven runs in the tenth innning to chalk up a convincing, 18-12 triumph over the Morris Brown Purple Wolverines Friday night, at Herndon Memorial Stadium, behind the superb relief hurling of Austin Grigsby, who replaced Willie Collins in the fourth.

In carving his master-piece Grigsby stopped Morris Brown's attempted rally by retiring three men in the last half of the ninth with the bases loaded, and almost duplicated this feat in the bottom of the 10th when the Purples pushed over a single run.

TUSKEGEE TAKES EARLY LEAD

The Golden Tigers moved ahead early with five runs in the first and three in the third, after which Wade Ramsey, the Morris Brown right-hander settled down and held their big bats in check until the eighth. Sparking the Tigers' attack were Oscar Stanback's homer; triples by Jesse Jones, Edward Moore; a double by Clarence Cole and singles by Johnnie Smith, John Fulgham and James Cole.

After scoring a single run in the first on William Holder's four-bagger to deep center, the Wolverines unleashed a batting attack in the fourth and drove Collins from the mound with a salvo of hits. Ryburn Stephens launched the eight-run rally with a home run and single, together with Holder's second homer; two-baggers by Solomon Bynes and Elmer Mallory; along with singles by Lonnie Brown, Daniel Hawkins and Wade Ramsey.

DEADLOCK SCORE, 11-ALL IN EIGHTH

Tuskegee tallied three runs in the top of the eight on singles by Moore, pinch-hitter William Brown and a double by Grisby, but Morris Brown came back and deadlocked the count, 11-all with two runs in the bottom of the frame on two infield errors and a single by Bynes. In the ninth, Morris Brown loaded the sacks, but were unable to squeeze over a run. Then in the tenth Tuskegee took advantage of erratic hurling and timely hits by Smith, James Cole, Stanback, Clarence Cole and Grigsby to cinch the game.

Sharing battting honors were James Cole of Tuskegee; William Holder, Ryburn Stephens and Solomon Bynes of Morris Brown with three hits each.

SUMMARY

TUSKEGEE	AB	R	H
Smith, 2b	6	1	2
Jesse Jones, cf	6	2	1
Fulgham, 3b	6	1	1
J. Cole, c	6	2	3
Moore, lf	4	3	2
C. Cole, ss	4	4	2
Stanback,lb	5	3	2
J. W. Jones, rf	3	0	0
Brown	1	1	1
Collins, p	3	0	0
Grigsby, p	2	1	2
TOTALS	48	18	16

MORRIS BROWN	AB	R	H
Brown, 2b	5	2	1
Mallory, lf	5	1	1
Holder, ss	6	3	3
R. Stephens, rf	6	2	3
Dinkins, 3b	6	0	1
Hawkins, lb	4	1	2
Craig, cf	5	0	2
Hunter	1	0	0
Bynes, c	6	1	3
Ramsey, p	4	2	1
C. Stephens	1	0	0
Ellison, p	0	0	0
Matthews, p	0	0	0
Lord, p	0	0	0
TOTALS	49	12	17

UMPIRES: B. T. Harvey (Behind the plate); John H. Moore (On the bases.)

Tuskegee Halts Morris Brown, 18-12 In 10-Innings Slugfest

By JOEL W. SMITH

The Tuskegee Golden Tigers punched over seven runs in the tenth innning to chalk up a convincing, 18-12 triumph over the Morris Brown Purple Wolverines, Friday night, at Herndon Memorial Stadium, behind the superb relief hurling of Austin Grigsby, who replaced Willie Collins in the fourth.

In carving his master-piece, Grigsby stopped Morris Brown's attempted rally by retiring three men in the last half of the ninth with the bases loaded, and almost duplicated this feat in the bottom of the 10th when the Purples pushed over a single run.

TUSKEGEE TAKES EARLY LEAD

The Golden Tigers moved ahead early with five runs in the first and three in the third, after which Wade Ramsey, the Morris Brown right-hander settled down and held their big bats in check until the eighth. Sparking the Tigers' attack were Oscar Stanback's homer; triples by Jesse Jones, Edward Moore; a double by Clarence Cole and singles by Johnnie Smith, John Fulgham and James Cole.

After scoring a single run in the first on William Holder's four-bagger to deep center, the Wolverines unleashed a batting attack in the fourth and drove Collins from the mound with a salvo of hits. Ryburn Stephens launched the eight-run rally with a home run and single, together with Holder's second homer; two-baggers by Solomon Bynes and Elmer Mallory; along with singles by Lonnie Brown, Daniel Hawkins and Wade Ramsey.

DEADLOCK SCORE, 11-ALL IN EIGHTH

Tuskegee tallied three runs in the top of the eight on singles by Moore, pinch-hitter William Brown and a double by Grisby, but Morris Brown came back and deadlocked the count, 11-all with two runs in the bottom of the frame on two infield errors and a single by Bynes. In the ninth, Morris Brown loaded the sacks, but were unable to squeeze over a run. Then in the tenth Tuskegee took advantage of erratic hurling and timely hits by Smith, James Cole, Stanback, Clarence Cole and Grigsby to cinch the game.

Sharing battting honors were James Cole of Tuskegee; William Holder, Ryburn Stephens and Solomon Bynes of Morris Brown with three hits each.

SUMMARY

TUSKEGEE	AB	R	H
Smith, 2b	6	1	2
Jesse Jones, cf	6	2	1
Fulgham, 3b	6	1	1
J. Cole, c	6	2	3
Moore, lf	4	3	2
C. Cole, ss	4	4	2
Stanback,lb	5	3	2
J. W. Jones, rf	3	0	0
Brown	1	1	1
Collins, p	3	0	0
Grigsby, p	2	1	2
TOTALS	48	18	16

MORRIS BROWN	AB	R	H
Brown, 2b	5	2	1
Mallory, lf	5	1	1
Holder, ss	6	3	3
R. Stephens, rf	6	2	3
Dinkins, 3b	6	0	1
Hawkins, lb	4	1	2
Craig, cf	5	0	2
Hunter	1	0	0
Bynes, c	6	1	3
Ramsey, p	4	2	1
C. Stephens	1	0	0
Ellison, p	0	0	0
Matthews, p	0	0	0
Lord, p	0	0	0
TOTALS	49	12	17

UMPIRES: B. T. Harvey (Behind the plate); John H. Moore (On the bases.)

Tuskegee Wins Over Wiley 44-36

Daily World Atlanta, Ga.

By U. G. LEE

MARSHALL, Texas—(SNS)—The Tuskegee Tigers continued their successful Southwest Conference treke by downing the Wiley Wildcats in a thriller 44-36. A fine passing game combined with some fancy field goal shooting featuring Brock, Thomas, W. George and Porter was just a little too good for locals. Atlanta, Ga.

Wiley was never out the game but failure to capitalize on their free throw opportunities cost the Wildcats a golden opportunity to turn back the highly touted Alabamans. Tuskegee led at half time 29-22, after twenty minutes of sizzling play that saw the lead shift several times. In the second half the game was slowed down considerable due to the unseasonable Texas weather that caused the new Gym to sweat in such a way that the new asphalt tile floor became too slippery for fast play. Thurs.

For Wiley "legs" Harris was the standout with six field goals and two free throws, while the veteran Bob Syrayhan had a night's record of Four and three, and played a great defensive game before going out on five personals. 2-5-48

Tuskegee Trips Morris Brown, 43-32 In Crucial SIAC Battle

Daily World Atlanta, Ga. Sun. 2-29-48

By JOEL W. SMITH

Smarting a blazing fast-break and controlling both backboards most of the evening, the Tuskegee Institute Golden Tigers defeated the Morris Brown College Purple Wolverines, 43-32 to take a 1-up lead in the bitter battle for the Southern Conference pre-tournament championship race, Friday night, on the New Magnolia Court.

CALVIN JONES SETS PACE FOR TUSKEGEE

The rival quintets turned out in their white togs for the gruelling championship battle, accordingly, the game was delayed long enough to give the Wolverines time to get in their Purple attire. There was no scoring for the first two minutes of play, and after Claude George broke the ice, Calvin Jones went to work and sent the Gold-clad lads out in front, 13-3. 2-29-48

The Big Purples were unable to get going, but with William "Billy" Whyte, Franklin Ayers and Lewis Smith scoring from the free throw lane, cut the margin to 15-11. James Brock sank a field goal to make the score, 17-11. Wilbur George followed with a foul shot and Ayers tallied twice from the foul line for an, 18-13 count. The Golden Tigers were leading, 20-15 at half-time.

WOLVERINES FIND SPARK MOMENTARILY

In the second half, the Purple Wolverines found their spark momentarily, but were unable to keep the pressure on. Wilbur George rolled in a fine shot before the second half was one minute old, "Billy" Whyte tossed in a one-hand set-shot from the corner; and G. B. Hannah dribbled in for a lay-up for a 22-19 count. Wilbur George sank field goal and Whyte followed with another amazing one-hand toss. At this point, Claude George joined his brother Wilbur to run up a 30-23 lead. Daily World

At the five-minute mark, Tuskegee was ahead, 33-25, then Brock put on a one-man show to put the game in the bag. Atlanta, Ga.

Wilbur George and "Billy" Whyte shared scoring honors, racking-up five field goals and three foul shots for 13 ponts. Calvin Jones followed with five field goals and a single foul shot for 11 points.

THE SUMMARY Sun 2-29-48

TUSKEGEE (43)	G	F	TP.
Brock, f	4	1	9
C. George, f	2	3	7
W. George, c	5	3	13
Hardwick, g	0	0	0
Jones, g	5	1	11
Porter	1	1	3
Totals	17	9	43

MORRIS BROWN (32)	G	F	TP.
Whyte, f	5	3	13
Smith, f	1	3	5
Ayers, c	2	4	8
Hannah, g	1	0	2
Bair, g	0	0	0
Williams	1	0	2
Evans	1	0	2
Totals	11	10	32

Daily World 2-29-48

OFFICIALS: B. T. Harvey (Colgate) referee; Butler (Tenn. State) umpire. Atlanta, Ga.

Tuskegee Wins Basketball Crown

LOGAN HALL GYMNASIUM, TUSKEGEE, ALA., March 8.—Tuskegee Institute's high-scoring Golden Tigers, 1948 pre-tournament champions of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, rounded-out a history-making "grand slam," by sinking the South Carolina State College Bulldogs, 65-56, in the finals of the 15th annual basketball tournament, played here Saturday night, before more than 3,000 screaming fans. The Advertiser

The hard-fighting Garnet and Blue Bulldogs gave Tuskegee's array of tested performers a great scare by piling up a sizable lead midway the first half, but when the Gold-clad Tigers found their spark, they passed and shot the Bulldogs dizzy in winning the coveted SIAC Tournament crown for the third time. After rolling to victory in the first annual hardwood cagefest back in 1934, the Golden Tigers came through on top again in 1944. In the thrilling finals battle against South Carolina State, Wilbur George set a torrid pace, and he was flanked by Calvin Jones and his brother, Claude George. Sun. 3-9-48

Morris Brown Downs Florida

In the pulsating consolation finals encounter, the Morris Brown College Purple Wolverines regained their high-powered scoring punch and coasted to a convincing, 50-40 victory, over the Florida A&M College Rattlers, defending SIAC Tournament champions. The Purple-clad Wolverines demonstrated their finesse from the start, but were forced to keep the pressure on all the way to brush off the hustling Rattlers. Montgomery, Ala.

To reach the finals, the Tuskegee Golden Quint inundated the Fisk University Bulldogs, 75-28; rolled over the Morehouse College Maroon Tigers, 71-41; and tripped the Florida Rattlers, 44-28, in a stirring semi-finals battle. The South Carolina State Bulldogs shot their way into the finals by beating the Lane College Dragons, 50-40; and upset the No. 2 seeded Morris Brown Purple Wolverines, 46-40, in the big surprise of the tournament.

Tuskegee 5 Tops Southern

Courier Pittsburgh, Pa.

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—In a fast floor game in Logan Hall here recently, Tuskegee's Golden Quint defeated Southern University, Baton Rouge, La., 62 to 42. The Tigers' victory was clear-cut and decisive. Once, early in the first half the score was tied, but shortly after that the Tuskegee sharp-shooters located the range and continued to fire on the target with successful results. 1-3-48

Shirley Braden turned in a brilliant game for Southern, sinking five field goals and four foul shots for a total of 14 joints. Walter Williams, Charles Flowere, Edward Matthews, Clem Randolph and Jesse Simms contributed a total of 28 points. Sat. 1-3-48

Wilbur George was the leading scorer for the Golden Quint, posting 20 points. Jesse Davis chalked up 13, and James Brock, 11.

Tuskegee Tigers Down Wiley Wildcats, 44-36

The Express Dallas, Texas

By JIMMY PERRY

Wiley Gym: — The first major quint game to be played in the Wiley gymnasium, one of the largest in the nation, was played with a losing Fred Long quint handing over a 44 to 36 game to the Tuskegee golden Tigers, last Wednesday night. Sat. 2-7-48

The Alabamans were sparked by Jerry Brock, lightening like forward and helped by stellar guard Porter who literally swept the cats whiskers away before they could get warmed. At half time the Tigers led Wiley 29-22.

"Long John" Harris, along with Strayhan paced the Wiley pack for the showing it gave. Harris topped his crew with 6 baskets and 2 charity shots, followed by Strayhan's 4 goals and a triple of gift shots.

Under the short training due to other academic disturbances. the Wildcats held up brilliantly besides the well coached Tuskegee quint. Coach Long had no excuses to offer. as none were needed for a fine cat team, under the circumstances.

The box score:

WILEY	G	F	Pf
Peoples, f	2	1	5
Stephens, f	0	1	1
Harris, c	6	2	2
Bennett, c	1	0	1
Carruthers, f	1	1	4
Strayhan, g	4	3	5
Wyatt, g	0	0	2

Sat 2-7-48

'SKEGEE
Brock, f	4	1	4
Davis, f	2	0	2
Geogre, C., f	1	1	4
Jones, c	1	1	1
Thomas, c	3	3	1
George, W., c	4	1	5
Hardwick, g	1	1	4
E. Porter, g	3	0	3

Officials: Washington (P. V.) Williams (Bishop).

Tuskegee Humbles Texas

By Thomas L. Carter, Jr.

TYLER, Texas — The Tuskegee Southwest — humbled Coach J. R. Tigers — on a swing through the Webb's Texas College Steers 69-46 here Thursday night, January 29, on the Texas College gym court. Tuskegee struck early in the contest and were never headed. Gerald Butler, Texas Guard, sank 8 goals from the field and two gratis shots to cop high point honors with 18 points. James Brock led Tuskegee scorers with 15, closely followed by Calvin Jones and Claude George with 13 each.

TEXAS
Malone	0	1	3	1
McLemore	0	1	3	1
Taylor	1	2	5	4
Powell	1	3	3	5
Woolford	1	1	5	3
Butler	8	2	7	18
Smith	1	0	0	2
TUSKEGEE
Brock	6	3	4	15
Davis	4	0	1	8
Mabrie	1	0	0	2
W. George	5	2	1	12
C. George	6	1	4	13
Porter	2	0	2	4
Jones	4	5	3	13
Van Cleve	0	1	4	1
Hardwick	0	1	3	1

Tuskegee Tags Wolfe Benedict By 84-25 Count

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala (SNS)—Tuskegee had little dif culty turning back the Benedic ollege Five in Logan Hall here aturday afternon. The fina core was 84 to 25.

The top point producer for uskegee was J. Davis, who sank 1 field goals and 2 charity hances for a total of24 tallies Vilbur George looped 7 field oals, while Calvin Jones dropped n 6 from the floor and 1 from he foul line, chalking up 14 and 3 points respectively. Other play rs who scored for Tuskegee were . Brock, C. George, E. Thomas N. Thomas, Hardwick, Mabrie and Potter.

Summers led for the losers, posting 8 points. James and Webb shared honors in scoring for Benedict with a total of 5 each. Jackson and Plunkett contributed to the visitors' column of digits. Summers fouled out but he received a generous round of applaus when he went to the side lines for his fine offensive exhibition. Tuskegee led at the half, 41 to 5.

Officials: Ballard (Virginia State), Scott (Morehouse).

SKEGUES MAN-SLAUGHTER CHARGE ON MOREHOUSE; 78—20

It is still the town's talk, on every corner and in almost every public place where the sports-loving fans relax, that the Tuskegee vs Morehouse game in the tournament was a "Mass murder" rather than a basket ball game. The fans in their conversations are asking each other, WHERE WAS MOREHOUSE ON THAT NIGHT. IT SEEMS AC IF THEY WERE JUST THERE IN BODY BUT NOT SOUL.

The Magic City's Morehouse contingent of graduate-tear shedding and loyal friends is headed by the one and only "Morehouse" Catlin who seems so startled over the "Funeral" He says it can't be true That's the spirit and school spirit too, O. J. C. This was the second body blow Mr Catlin received in less than 48 hours. While his high school team was being buried by Rosedale ,just a few miles away and a few hours apart, his "alma tomato" (Mata) Morehouse was being "funeralized" by the Tuskegee Tigers. I can't help it, but I must shed one or two tears for the erst while coach, O. J. C. I realize what degree of "Loyalty pains" he is under-going

Tuskegee Tops Clark Quint 61-39

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala. — (SNS) — Tuskegee's Golden Quint added another victory to the record for the 1947-1948 season by defeating the Panthers of Clark College, Atlanta, Georgia, 61 to 39, Friday night, before one of the largest crowds that has assembled in Logan Hall for a basketball game during the current season.

After erasing the one point advantage obtained by Clark early after the opening of the game, when William Raymond slipped through a charity chance, Tuskegee took the front position and never relinquished the lead although the outcome of the game was never in doubt.

The George brothers, Claude ad Wilbur, lanky Atlanta youths, from the Booker T. Washington High School, were even in scoring for Tuskegee, with 14 points each. Both of these players found the range from far out and they were also able to break into the open for quick scores. James Brock, Thomas Hardwick and Calvin Jones also had an accurate eye for the basket. Brock bagged 10 points; Hardwick and Jones 7 and 6 respectively.

William Raymond was the Clark College high point player with 10 tallies. James Dearo, Paul Sweeney, Robert Phillips, George Gray and Matthew O'Neal also contributed to the Clark markers.Tuskegee was ahead at the intermission, 33 to 26.

Tuskegee Trips Morehouse 66-44

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala. —(SNS)—Wilbur George, playing one of the most brilliant games of his basketball career, sparked his team to a 66 to 44 victory over Morehouse College of Atlanta, Georgia, in Logan Hall here Saturday night. More than 2,500 wildly cheering spectators saw the Tuskegee team rise to the heights to beat back the thrusts of the Maroon Tigers who had been highly rated to overcome the Adamsmen by a good margin in points. George pumped in 32—fourteen field goals and four gift shots. Claude George, Wilbur's brother, scored 11 and Eugene Porter also hooked 11. Both George and Porter sank five field goals and each dropped in a free throw.

Tonight's game sparkled in interest. There was long-range shooting, tip-in shots, close guarding and magician-like passing. Tuskegee also backed up the boards well and took many of the rebounds with precision-like regularity. Coach Adams had 15 men in uniform and used 8 in tonight's triumph.

The Morehouse College high scorer was Henry Warner who hit the hoops for a total of 13 points. Irving Tompkins racked up 10, Calvin Williamson, 9 and Theodore Fleming 5.

The Golden Quintmen simply could not be stopped tonight. Every player was alert and handled the ball efficiently. Calvin Jones left the game late in the second half when the record showed that he had used up his quota of fouls.

THE LINEUPS

TUSKEGEE	(66)	B	F	P
Brock		2	2	6
C. George		5	1	11
Wilbur George		14	4	32
Hardwick		0	0	0
Jones		2	1	5
Porter		5	1	11
Van Cleve		0	1	1
Davis		0	0	0
		28	10	66
MOREHOUSE	(44)	B	F	P
Tompkins		4	2	10
Swain		1	1	3
Williamson		4	1	9
Fleming		1	3	5
Warner		4	5	13
Bell		1	2	4
		15	14	14

OFFICIALS: Ballard and Lt. Jones.

Tuskegee Invites Ten To Tournament

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala., March 4, 1948—According to the official records of the teams of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference in basketball compiled by Cleve L. Abbott, chairman of the Tournament Committee, ten of the following teams will be invited to participate in the Fourteenth Annual Basketball Tourney to be held in Logan Hall at Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, March 4, 5 and 6; Tuskegee Institute, Morris Brown College, Knoxville College, Morehouse College, Alabama State Teachers College, South Carolina State College, Lane College, Florida A. and M. College, Ft. Valley State College, Fisk University, Allen University asd Clark College.

Tuskegee Sinks Alabama State, South Carolina State. Xavier

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala. — (SNS) — Tuskegee's Golden Quint was host to three of the top basketball teams of the Southern Conference during the week and was victorious against each foe.

Monday night a capacity crowd saw the Tigers shoot their way to a 77 to 50 victory over the Alabama State Teachers College Hornets of Montgomery. Even with Hollis, Posey, Spears, Felder and King in the lineup the Hornets were not able to overcome the Tiger attack. Claude George was the leading scorer with 14 to his credit. Eugene Porter racked up 13.

In the game Friday afternoon the Golden Quint best the South Carolina State College cagers, 52 to 38. Wilbur George did not seem to have any difficulty finding the basket. He was most effective in swishing was 12. Other points posted visitors were well distributed. Simms, a local boy, was the most aggressive men in vier lineup.

The Tigers will close their home e with games with Clark and Morehouse College of . Clark will play at the Institute on February 20 and Morehouse will come to the campus for February 21.

It was again the accurate shooting of Wilbur George that kept the Tigers' scores mounting. It was not until late in the last quarter that the Tigers pulled far enough ahead to feel sufficiently secure. With time running close it would have taken a miraculous turn of events for the Crescent City to gain an advantage. James Brock, Claude George, Calvin Jones and Thomas Hardwick also starred in the game.

Joseph Buckhalter led the list of Xavier players in the scoring. His

Saturday afternoon the Tigers took on the Gold Rush team of

Tuskegee Trips Morris Brown, 43-32 In Crucial SIAC Battle

Marion Jackson's.....

Sports News Reel

By JOEL W. SMITH

ATLANTA, Ga.—(SNS) — Smarting a blazing fast-break and controlling both backboards most of the evening, the Tuskegee Institute Golden Tigers defeated the Morris Brown College Purple Wolverines, 43-32 to take a 1-up lead in the bitter battle for the Southern Conference pre-tournament championship race, Friday night, on the New Magnolia Court.

CALVIN JONES SETS PACE FOR TUSKEGEE

The rival quintets turned out in their white togs for the gruelling championship battle, accordingly, the game was delayed long enough to give the Wolverines time to get in their Purple attire. There was no scoring for the first two minutes of play, and after Claude George broke the ice, Calvin Jones went to work and sent the Gold-clad lads out in front, 13-3.

The Big Purples were unable to get going, but with William "Billy" Whyte, Franklin Ayers and Lewis Smith scoring from the free throw lane, cut the margin to 15-11. James Brock sank a field goal to make the score, 17-11. Wilbur George followed with a foul shot and Ayers tallied twice from the foul line for an, 18-13 count. The Golden Tigers were leading, 20-15 at half-time.

WOLVERINES FIND SPARK MOMENTARILY

In the second half the Purple Wolverines found their spark momentarily, but were unable to keep the pressure on. Wilbur George rolled in a fine shot before the second half was one minute old. "Billy" Whyte tossed in a one-hand set-shot from the corner; and G. B. Hannah dribbled in for a lay-up for a 22-19 count. Wilbur George sank field goal and Whyte followed with another amazing one-hand toss. At this point, Claude George joined his brother Wilbur to run up a 30-23 lead.

At the five-minute mark, Tuskegee was ahead, 33-25, then Brock put on a one-man show to put the game in the bag.

Wilbur George and "Billy" Whyte shared scoring honors, racking-up five field goals and three foul shots for 13 ponts. Calvin Jones followed with five field goals and a single foul shot for 11 points.

THE SUMMARY

TUSKEGEE (43)	G	F	TP.
Brock, f	4	1	9
C. George, f	2	3	7
W. George, c	5	3	13
Hardwick, g	0	0	0
Jones, g	5	1	11
Porter	1	1	3
Totals	17	9	43

MORRIS BROWN (32)	G	F	TP.
Whyte, f	5	3	13
Smith, f	1	3	5
Ayers, c	2	4	8
Hannah, g	1	0	2
Bair, g	0	0	0
Williams	1	0	2
Evans	1	0	2
Totals	11	10	32

OFFICIALS: B. T. Harvey (Colgate) referee; Butler (Tenn. State) umpire.

Ky. State Cagers Split With 'Skegee

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—In the second of a two-game series the Kentucky State College quintet of Frankfort defeated the Tuskegee Institute hardwood team 43-32, in a hard-fought game here Monday night. The Kentuckians outscored the Institute players in an exciting game Saturday afternoon to win 62 to 58.

Leonard Cavil of Junction City Kan., was the high scorer, pitching in seven two-pointers which gave him a total of 14. Richard Roberts, a freshman from Muncie, Ind., all-State Hoosier center in 1947, posted 11 points, and Harold Robinson of Madisonville, Ky., dropped in 9.

Coach Adams used ten men in the game. Each player who saw action hit the cords for at least one tally, with James Brock of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Wilbur George of Atlanta, Ga., sharing honors with 6 each. Nathaniel Thomas slipped in 5; Claude George, Calvin Jones and Jesse Davis, 4 each. Jones was sidelined late in the second half, having received his quota of personal fouls.

The score was knotted twice during the first period of play and when the half closed Tuskegee trailed, 17 to 22.

Ky. State (43)	G.	F.	T.
Robinson	3	3	9
Johnson	0	0	0
Wilson	0	3	3
Roberts	3	5	11
Covington	0	0	0
Weston	0	0	0
Perkins	0	0	0
Jackson	3	0	6
Cavil	7	0	14
Totals	16	11	43

Tuskegee (32)	G.	F.	T.
J. Davis	2	0	4
Brock	3	0	6
C. George	2	0	4
Jones	2	0	4
N. Thomas	1	3	5
W. George	3	0	6
Hardwick	0	0	0
Mabrie	0	0	0
Porter	0	1	1
Van Cleve	1	0	2
Totals	14	4	32

Officials: Ballard (Virginia State College), Lieutenant Jones (Twenty-fifth Infantry, U. S. Army), Sawyer (Tuskegee) timekeeper.

The top 10 teams in the SIAC will begin play today in the 15th Annual Basketball Tournament at Tuskegee Institute. The scene of this '48 cage upheaval is Logan Hall on the campus of the famed institution founded by Booker T. Washington. These annual cage tournaments have created a mass of excitement since the inaugural meet was held back in '34. There has been no cessation of excitement color, verve, dash and inspired play since the opening tournament.

Teams competing in the 1948 basketball tournament are Tuskegee Institute, Morris Brown, Florida A. and M., Knoxville, Morehouse, South Carolina State, Fort Valley Alabama State, Lane and Fisk. Missing from this select or inner circle is Benedict, Allen, Xavier, Clark, Alabama A. and M., LeMoyne, and Talladega College. Now, most fans want to know why? The reasons are as follow:

Xavier U played only 5 conference games which weren't enough for a berth since the first 10 teams in the SIAC are traditionally picked on the basis of Conference Standings. Benedict, Allen, Clark and LeMoyne played enough games but were not on the winning side of the ledger enough times to merit an invitation. Alabama A. and M. has no gymnasium and doesn't compete in basketball. Talladega while still a member of the Conference hasn't competed in varsity athletics in several years.

Prime favorite at the 15th Annual Tournament is the fast-breaking Tuskegee Institute Golden Tigers. Hard-pressing the favorite are the Morris Brown Wolverines who can arise to the occasion. Alabama State, Knoxville, Florida A. and M., and Lane will be in there fighting. It will be tough going all the way.

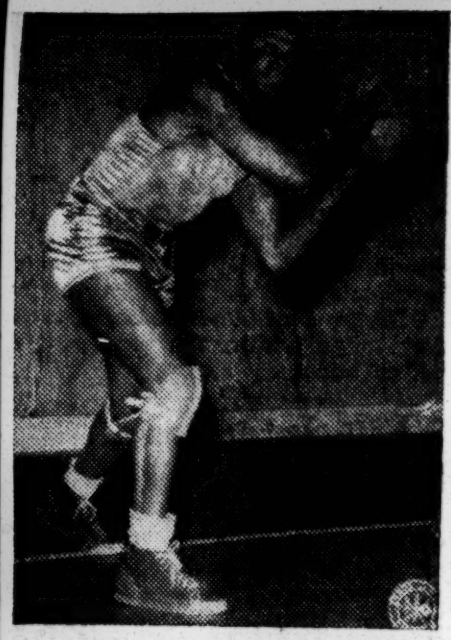
LANDMARKS IN SPORTS

One for the Books Dept.: The Harlem Globetrotters, one of the best pro basketball teams in the USA, was playing the Minneapolis Lakers in Chicago Stadium. In the lineup was George Mikan of the Lakers and Reece "Goose" Tatum of the Globetrotters.

With 90 seconds to play, Tatum was put out on fouls. The score was tied at 59-all and the crowd held its breath as the Globetrotters weaved nearer and nearer the basket. Just before the gun ended the game, the ball was flipped to dead-eye Ermer Robinson, who was in the clear. Ermer didn't miss. Score: Globetrotters 61, Minneapolis 59.

TOPS IN SPORTS

Sportswriters are picking Billy Fox to halt Gus Lesnevich at Madison Square Garden Friday night.. The Philadelphia Sphas halted the Harlem Globetrotters victory string at 102... Philadelphia Eagles will play six games with the Chicago Cardinals opening the schedule in the Annual Inquirer Charities game in Philadelphia, Sept. 10.... San Francisco 49ners have signed Bob Mike, 200-lb tackle from UCLA and Al Alston, end who played with the Clippers in the Coast League.. Jersey Joe Walcott begins training April 1 at Grenloch Park, New Jersey, a stone's throw from his hometown, Camden, N. J... Notre Dame tumbled New York University from the ranks of the unbeaten 64 to 59 Monday night in Madison Square Garden. The Violets had won 18 in a row before being plowed under. ..Clark College winning only 4 games, while dropping 11 conference tilts, failed to get an invitation to the 15th Annual Basketball Tournament at Tuskegee Institute. The 10-team tourney gets underway today.... Lots of women talking about chatter on the sports pages. They watch the sports parade like a hawk watching a chicken.



FORT DIX GUARD—Sergeant Russell Boles, former Clark University (Atlanta, Ga.) athlete is now playing guard on the Fort Dix, New Jersey basketball team. Sergean Boles was a three-letter man at Clark and lives in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. (U. S. Army Photo from Public Information Division)

Athletes Awarded Rosa Malone Prizes

TUSKEGEE, Ala.—Claude C. George, of Atlanta, Georgia, a standout on the Tuskegee Institute, 1947-1948, basketball team, was awarded the Rosa D. Malone cash prize, given annually to the student who makes the best record in athletics for the year. George was graduated with a Bachelor of Science degree in Physical Education at the May Commencement. He will enter Graduate School in September.

The Malone cash prize for a young woman went to Theresa Manuel of Tampa, Fla. She excelled in athletics for the past year, and is a candidate for graduation in the 1949 class. Miss Manuel is a member of the Tuskegee Institute women's championship track and field team and is an Olympic prospect. Her mother is Mrs. Frances Johnson, 822 Robert Street, Apt. 6, Tampa, Florida.

The Malone prizes were established by Mrs. Roda D. Malone of Spokane, Wash. She formerly attended Tuskegee Institute.

Southern Cage Tourney Won By Tuskegee

TUSKEGEE, Ala.—Tuskegee Institute's Golden Tigers won the Southern conference's 15th annual cage tournament by defeating South Carolina State, 65-56. This is Tuskegee's third time to cop tournament honors. The Tigers won in 1934 and again in 1944.

Tuskegee reached the finals by downing Fisk, 75-28; Morehouse, 71-41, and Florida, 44-28, in a semi-final battle.

South Carolina advanced by defeating Florida, 50-40; Lane College, 50-40, and Morris Brown, 46-40.

CHAMPIONSHIP FINALS

TUSKEGEE (65)	B	F	P
Brock, f	4	3	11
C. George, f	4	2	10
W. George, f	5	4	14
Jones, g	4	1	9
Hardwick, g	1	3	5
Roseborough	5	2	12
Davis	0	3	3
Porter	0	1	1
Van Cleve	0	0	0
Thomas	0	0	0
	23	19	65

S. C. STATE (56)	B	F	P
McGhee, f	9	3	21
Blackman, f	2	2	6
Hinds, f	3	1	7
Arrington, g	6	1	13
Harris, g	1	2	4
Hale	1	0	2
Stroman	1	1	3
McCants	0	0	0
Randall	0	0	0
	23	10	56

CONSOLATION FINALS

MORRIS BROWN (50)	B	F	P
Whyte, f	9	0	18
Smith, f	3	0	6
Ayers, c	4	1	9
Hannah, g	3	2	8
Bair, g	2	0	4
Williams	2	1	5
Evans	0	0	0
Parker	0	0	0
Redd	0	0	0
Ross	0	0	0
	23	4	50

FLORIDA (40)	B	F	P
Bostick, f	12	0	24
Jefferson	0	2	2
Fears, c	3	0	6
Williams, g	1	1	3
Hawkins, g	2	0	4
Taylor	0	1	1
Mitchell	0	0	0
Clark	0	0	0
Norwood	0	0	0

18 4 40

FIRST ROUND

Lane def. Fort Valley State College, 44-41
Tuskegee def. Fisk, 75-28

QUARTER FINALS

Morris Brown def. Alabama State, 68-53
S. C. State def. Lane, 50-40
Tuskegee def. Morehouse, 71-41
Florida def. Knoxville, 63-57

SEMI-FINALS

S. C. State def. Morris Brown, 46-40
Tuskegee def. Florida, 44-28

WINS CCAA TOURNEY

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (ANP)—Palmer Memorial institute of Sedalia, N. C., won the first annual Central Carolina Athletic association basketball tournament by defeating Dudley high school of Greensboro, 63-48, at the Winston-Salem Teachers College gymnasium.

Rattlers 39, Tuskegee 0

ORLANDO, Fla. — Going into the lead at the outset, the Florida A. and M. Rattlers whipped up a sound, 39-0 pasting for Tuskegee's Golden Tigers here Saturday.

Florida tallied in every quarter, Curtis setting the pace by going over in the first period from six yards out. After that, the victors counted on a 34-yard pass from Williams to Norman, then the same Norman intercepted a Tuskegee aerial and raced 44 yards to pay dirt. Williams grabbed a toss in the closing minutes and set up the final Florida six-pointer. Following this 36-yard run with the pass, Stephens crashed over from the 12.

Dickerson, Fulgham, Simmons and Sweeney played valiantly for the Tigers but their efforts were not good enough to withstand the Rattler power.

Tuskegee Has Grid Practice

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala., Sept. 4—The Golden Tigers began football practice here this week with 44 candidates reporting to Coach Cleve L. Abbott and his associates. The candidates for the 1948 edition of the Golden Tigers displayed plenty of spirit and zest in their initial workout. But the missing lettermen, especially Whitney Van Cleve, fullback and captain; Charles Gray, halfback; Eugene Porter, end; Clarence Davis, end; Charles Mays, quarterback; Floyd McAfee, tackle; Jesse Bolden, guard; Alex Brown, halfback, and Claude George, end, will be difficult to replace because of their ability and experience.

The work of the Tiger coaching staff is already cut out—finding replacements that will give the balance, vigor and skill that these players possessed. However, material is promising in George Dickerson, of Birmingham, regular halfback who is expected to show all-around ability and become one of Tuskegee's leading aspirants for All-American honors. Frank Simmons of Savannah, Ga., All-American center in 1946, is rapidly returning to his old form. While Haywood Scissum, Attaville, Ala., with his speed and aggressiveness, should develop into a capable end. James McDowell, first string end, of Asheville, N. C., will in all probability improve his sterling defensive play and pass catching ability. Albert Pratt, of Chicago, should develop into one of the top guards in the South this year. Other promising candidates are Early Adkins, Burman Harbor, Charles Cato, Arthur Adams, Henry Hooten, Herman Mabrie, James Beavers, James Swinney, Johnnie Smith, George Scott, Andrew Belle, George Brown, Quinton Singleton, Howard Danzie, Boyd Hall and John Fulgham.

The season will open on September 18 with the 25th U. S. Infantry of Ft. Benning, Ga., at Tuskegee. The Sept. 25 date is open, but on Oct. 2, the Tuskegee Tigers will play the Clark College Panthers at Legion Field in Birmingham. One of Tuskegee's stellar attractions, the Wilberforce State College game will be played in Chicago Sunday afternoon, Oct. 10.

The schedule follows:

Sept. 18—Tuskegee Institute vs. 25th U. S. Infantry at Tuskegee.
Sept. 25—Open.
Oct. 2—Tuskegee Institute vs. Clark College at Birmingham.
Oct. 10—Tuskegee Institute vs. Wilberforce State College at Chicago.
Oct. 16—Tuskegee Institute vs. Hampton Institute at Tuskegee.
Oct. 22—Tuskegee Institute vs. Morehouse College at Columbus (night).
Oct. 30—Tuskegee Institute vs. Xavier University at New Orleans.
Nov. 6—Tuskegee Institute vs. Florida A. & M. College (place to be announced).
Nov. 13—Tuskegee Institute vs. S. C. State College at Tuskegee (Homecoming).
Nov. 25—Tuskegee Institute vs. State Teachers College at Montgomery.

Smith Paces Atlantians At Stadium

By BOB PRUITT

Morehouse college's big Maroon Tigers scratched their way to a 22-14 victory over Tuskegee Institute Golden Tigers last night before a crowd of 13,000 at Memorial Stadium to establish themselves as one of the top Negro football elevens in the South.

Almost even for four quarters, Morehouse scored once more with only two minutes left in the final period to ice the game down at a time when the Alabama team was fighting hard to get an advantage in the annual struggle.

Leading the way to the triumph was Harry Smith, righ half, who scored all three of the touchdowns, two on long runs, 82 and 75 yards respectively, and the final on an 11-yard scamper.

Pacing the last cause of the Golden squad, was George Dickerson who scored both Tuskegee touchdowns. But, besides doing the scoring, he was by far the most outstanding offensive player on the field.

Following the playing of our national anthemn, the Tigers of Morehouse wasted little time in racking up a six-pointer as Harry Smith, taking the kickoff, raced 82 yards for the score. The run was featured by some fancy sidestepping and blocking. Ray Odom's kick was no good and the Atlantians led by a 6-0 score with the game only seconds old.

Odom kicked for Morehouse to start the action again, the boot going to the Golden Tigers' 45 where George Dickerson returned to the 48. But finding the Georgia elevens' line too strong. Tuskegee kicked on the third down.

Here Morehouse started another goal-ward drive, but a fumble by Charlie Cary, recovered by Tuskegee, interupped the threat. But on the first play attempted by Tuskegee, James Sweeney bobbled and the Atlantians recovered.

This time the Maroon Tigers went to the Tuskegee goal, but the line held and the Golden Tigers took over. With the ball on the goal line, Tuskegee attempted to kick on the first play, but John Fulgham's kick was blocked by Fuce of Morehouse and the Maroon Tigers were credited with a safety to make the score read, Morehouse 8, Tuskegee 0. But in the closing minutes of the initial quarter, Tuskegee drove to the Morehouse's goal line, the ball resting on the one-foot line as the period ended.

As the second stanza got underway, and on third down, the Morehouse line held for the remaining two plays and the Maroon team took over on downs.

On the first play, John Pearson booted, and the ball was downed on the Morehouse 43. Here the Golden Tigers went into the air, but after moving the ball to the Atlantians' 35, Dickerson fumbled on a line buck, and Morehouse recovered, but three plays failed to gain enough yards for a first down and the Maroons kicked.

From this point until late in the period, both teams bogged down and most of the play was centered around the midstrip.

Tuskegee started its touchdown drive from its own 15. After a series of plays and three first downs, the Golden Tigers went into the air, and three passes put the ball on the Morehouse one-yard line where Dickerson, in an off tackle Play, went over for the score. Brown's kick was good and it was an 8-7 ball game.

With only seconds left in the game, a Morehouse pass was intercepted by Pratt and the fleet-footed back raced to the goal only to have the ball returned to the 12 where a clipping penalty was imposed, pushing the ball back to the 27. Here again the Golden Tigers went air-minded, and two plays put the ball on the Morehouse seven, but the clock won as time ran out and the half ended with the score still in Morehouse's favor. 8-7.

Following very colorful halftime ceremonies in which bands and cheerleaders from both schools entertained the crowd, the game resumed with Brown kicking for Tuskegee.

Three line plays put the ball on the 50, but here the Morehouse offense bogged down, and they kicked. Tuskegee failed to realize anything from three downs and they in turn booted.

Morehouse went into a 15-7 lead when late in the third period, Jones intercepted Fulgham's pass deep in his own territory, and was dropped on the spot.

75-yard run

Gambrell moved the ball to the 25 with a buck through center, and Smith, on the next play, made his second thrilling run of the game by plunging through center and racing 75 yards for the score. Gambrell's boot split the uprights for the extra point.

Tuskegee made its second touchdown mid-way of the final period. After both teams had held the ball for a series of downs, Tuskegee took over on its own 26 where Morehouse had kicked out of bounds.

Dickerson went over the midstrip on an end-around-end smash, and Sweeney advanced to the Morehouse 40 on a line-buck. Finally with Dickerson and Sweeney alternating in carrying the ball, Tuskegee moved to the three where Dickerson plunged over. Brown's kick was good and the Golden Tigers trailed by one point. 15-14.

Both teams threatened late in the game, being in possession of the ball deep in each other's territory but each time the defensive team buckled down and staved off a score.

But, with two minutes left in the game, Morehouse in possession of the ball started to march down the field, and finally with the ball on the Tuskegee 11-yard line, Smith, slicing through the middle, scampered the remaining distance and wrapped up the ball game by going over standing up for the Atlantians' third score. Gambrell's boot was good and it was 22-14, Morehouse.

The game ended with the Golden Tigers fighting back through the air, with Dickerson snagging a pass and moving to the Morehouse 35 as the gun went off to end the hard-fought tussle.

Play Tuskegee Here Thursday

Hornets Have Dropped Last Four Games By One Touchdown

A heavy downpour of rain prevented the Alabama State Hornets team going through their practice session yesterday, but the boys went inside and held a lengthy signal drill in preparation for their homecoming game with the Tuskegee Tigers here at Cramton Bowl Thursday at 1:30 p.m.

Alumni and friends are already pouring into the city from all sections of the country, including California and tickets are selling fast.

This fine show of support on the part of the Hornet faithfuls has put plenty of determination into the Hornets who are primed to keep the honors here in the Capitol City. The Hornets have suffered four straight setbacks and all were by single touchdown margin.

Particularly outstanding since early in October has been the Hornet line play. Captain Leo Fisher, a senior from Mexico, Missouri, has been a leader at right end on defense, and Curtis Parker, a slim 160-pound six footer from Phenix City, has held down left end well despite his lightness of weight. Parker has been subbing for Archie Shaw, the regular end from Fayette, who has been ailing for several weeks. Archie looks to take his job back on the big day and make up for lost time.

Wilson Sullivan of Walker County has turned out to be 210 pounds of tackling fury as he bids for regular tackle berth. Abraham Jenkins of Charleston, S. C., weighs only 178 but is pressed into action in fireman duty to rest the big boys at tackle. Lawrence Pressley is a nois, 170 pounder at guard who has clung onto his starting position against stiff opposition from larger freshman boys out for the post. He is from Gadsden and is a 3-year man.

Coaches have named no starting line, but it will probably consist of Fisher and Shaw, ends; Mims and Floyd, tackles; Green and L. Pressley, guards; and Craig, center. If the Hornets kick off, Oliver will start for Craig. The entire Hornet team is in excellent physical condition for the battle, and several new tricks cooked up in the rain this week and last are ready for the Abbott-men.

The Tuskegee Tigers team took a week end off last Saturday, but the boys went inside and held a lengthy signal drill in preparation for their homecoming game with the Tuskegee Tigers here at Cramton Bowl Thursday at 1:30 p.m.

Alumni and friends are already pouring into the city from all sections of the country, including California and tickets are selling fast.

This fine show of support on the part of the Hornet faithfuls has put plenty of determination into the Hornets who are primed to keep the honors here in the Capitol City. The Hornets have suffered four straight setbacks and all were by single touchdown margin.

Particularly outstanding since early in October has been the Hornet line play. Captain Leo Fisher, a senior from Mexico, Missouri, has been a leader at right end on defense, and Curtis Parker, a slim 160-pound six footer from Phenix City, has held down left end well despite his lightness of weight. Parker has been subbing for Archie Shaw, the regular end from Fayette, who has been ailing for several weeks. Archie looks to take his job back on the big day and make up for lost time.

Wilson Sullivan of Walker County has turned out to be 210 pounds of tackling fury as he bids for regular tackle berth. Abraham Jenkins of Charleston, S. C., weighs only 178 but is pressed into action in fireman duty to rest the big boys at tackle. Lawrence Pressley is a nois, 170 pounder at guard who has clung onto his starting position against stiff opposition from larger freshman boys out for the post. He is from Gadsden and is a 3-year man.

Coaches have named no starting line, but it will probably consist of Fisher and Shaw, ends; Mims and Floyd, tackles; Green and L. Pressley, guards; and Craig, center. If the Hornets kick off, Oliver will start for Craig. The entire Hornet team is in excellent physical condition for the battle, and several new tricks cooked up in the rain this week and last are ready for the Abbott-men.

The Tuskegee Tigers team took a week end off last Saturday,

Victors Score In 2nd Half

George Dickerson Stars In Tiger Win; 17,000

See Contest

By MAX MOSELEY
Advertiser Sports Editor

Tuskegee's Golden Tigers, sparked by George Dickerson, 180-pound halfback from Birmingham, staged a second half spurt here yesterday to defeat the Alabama State Hornets, 15 to 0, in the 25th renewal of their Cramton Bowl series.

A Thanksgiving Day crowd of some 17,000 spectators saw the Tigers strike for two touchdowns and a safety in the second half of a hard fought pigskin classic.

The Tigers, after being held scoreless in the first half by a determined Hornet aggregation, struck quickly in the third quarter. They took the opening kickoff of the third quarter and drove 88 yards for a touchdown on 12 consecutive plays. It took only four minutes to march the distance while they were piling up three straight first downs. James Swinney crashed over from the two for the score.

In the fourth quarter the Tigers scored the second six-pointer after a 56-yard drive into pay dirt. Dickerson's sensational 57-yard sprint down to the three, where he plunged across on the first play for the score, sparked the second jaunt for the score.

Late in the fourth quarter the Tigers added a safety when Berman Harbor broke through to nail Percy Weatherly behind the goal line.

Alabama State's Hornets displayed most of their offense early in the game. William Bell and Percy Weatherly led the way as the Hornets piled up three first downs in the first quarter.

In the second quarter, State had their first near-scoring opportunity when Horace Ragland made a neat 33-yard run back of one of the Tigers' punts to the State 41. On the next play Ragland threw a pass to Archie Shaw and the speedy State end got to the Tuskegee 34 before he was pulled down by Dickerson. It was a gain of 23 yards. Ragland bucked for five, but King lost six. Ragland made one, then Pressley kicked over the goal line.

Tuskegee's George Dickerson was the individual star of the game. He was assisted by backs, James Swinney, John Fulgham, Albert Pratt and Portcher Taylor. In the line, George Brown, Andrew Belle, James Beavers and Haywood Scissum stood out.

Howard Green, Curtis Parker, William Craig and Archie Shaw led the Hornets line play. In the backfield it was Percy Weatherly leading the way and assisted by William Bell, Horace Ragland, Sam Bolden and Edward Pressley.

Tuskegee—	Pos.	—Ala. State
McDowell	L.E.	Parker
Brown	L.T.	Mims
Marbie	L.G.	Green
Beavers	C.	Craig
Belle	R.G.	L. Pressley
McNeir	R.T.	Floyd
Scissum	R.E.	Fisher
Taylor	Q.	Bell
Swinney	L.H.	Bolden
Dickerson	R.H.	Ragland
Fulgham	F.	E. Pressley

Tuskegee	0	0	6	9	—15
Alabama State	0	0	0	0	— 0

Scoring Touchdowns: Tuskegee—Swinney and Dickerson. Safety—Harbon (tackled P. Weatherly behind goal line). Extra point: Brown (placement).

Substitutions: Tuskegee: Daniels, Davenport, Hardwick, Gordon, Singleton, Harbor, Coles, Patterson, Belle, W. Brown, Pratt, Bibbs, and Danzy. Alabama State—Oliver, Mims, P. Weatherly, J. Parker, Washington, King, E. Weatherly, Wright, Greene, Gayle, Sasser, Cheatham, Shaw, Alexander, Sullivan, Jenkins, Hubbard, Williams, Wilder, Davis, Harris and E. Weatherly.

Game At A Glance

Ala. State		Tuskegee
5	First Downs	16
3	Yds. gained rushing	329
44	Yds. gained passing	65
19	Passes attempted	16
3	Passes completed	5
1	Passes intercepted	4
33.5	Avg. Yds. punts	39.4
71	Yds. ret. all kicks	37
1	Fumbles recovered by	1
25	Yds. lost penalties	85

Tuskegee Bops S. C., 14 To 7

George Dickerson Leads Golden Tigers To Triumph

TUSKEGEE, ALA., Nov. 15.—Tuskegee Institute's Golden Tigers tumbled South Carolina State College from the ranks of unbeaten Southern Conference football teams by defeating the fast charging and hard running Bulldogs, 13 to 6, in the Alumni Bowl here this afternoon, before a record breaking homecoming attendance.

While neither team scored during the initial period, there was plenty of action with the unexpected constantly happening which kept the spectators in a state of excited uncertainty.

The Golden Tigers, playing an exceedingly tight ball game, scored during the second stanza with less than four minutes left to play. John Fulgham punted to the South Carolina 14 and on the next play George Dickerson, fleet Tuskegee halfback from Birmingham, intercepted John Turner's pass and sprinted 25 yards for the touchdown. James Cole, of Savannah, missed the extra point.

In the opening moments of the third quarter, South Carolina State stopped a determined Tuskegee drive on their own 34 and marched 66 yards to tie the score 6-6.

Richard Arrington hit the Tuskegee line for long gains then John Dow pitched a pass to George Price to put the ball on the Golden Tigers 18. Arrington twisted his way across the double stripe on the next play.

Erwin Dawkins recovered a Tuskegee fumble on the Golden Tigers 27. The Bulldogs moved the ball to the Tuskegee 11. Then the Tuskegee line tightened, Arrington dropped back and attempted to break the tie with a field goal but the ball hit the upright and bounced off.

Herman Mabrie recovered a South Carolina State fumble on the Bulldogs' 45. A five-yard penalty against the Golden Tigers moved the ball to the midfield stripe. From this point George Dickerson hit McKinley Lewis with a 30-yard toss, and the Tuskegee end went the rest of the way for the pay off score. Capt. George Brown converted.

Big Downtown Parade Slated By Two Bands This Morning

Montgomery Advertiser

Tigers Have Won 17 Games In 24-Tilt Series; State College Has Copped Only Three

Montgomery Advertiser Nov-11-25-48

By WALTER MOSELEY
Assistant Sports Editor

Two of the nation's perennial Negro Collegiate powerhouses—Tuskegee Institute and Alabama State College—renew a 25-year-old rivalry at Cramton Bowl today in their annual Thanksgiving Day gridiron tussle. Game time is 1:30 p.m.

The series, dating back to 1924, has been a continuous one down through the years. The two teams

HORNETS		TIGERS
Morris Brown	28	Ft. Benning	13
Bethune-Cook.	34	Clark	13
Florida A.&M.	41	Wilberforce	39
Morehouse	0	Hampton	15
Clark	0	Morehouse	22
Fisk	7	Xavier	12
Lane	15	Fla. A. & M.	39
Ala. A. & M.	14	S. C. State	7
Ft. Valley St.	16

have met each year, and of the games played Tuskegee has won 17, State has copped four and three have ended in ties.

However, past records mean nothing when these two rivals collide. They will be evenly matched this season. Neither squad has made an impressive showing in the win column against their 1948 opponents.

Tuskegee has won three, lost four and tied one during this year's grid wars. The Tigers trounced Fort Benning, 26-13; Clark College, 14-13, and South Carolina State, 13-7. They dropped games to Wilberforce, Hampton Institute, Morehouse and Florida A.&M. They battled Xavier University to a 12-12 deadlock.

Alabama State has won only one tilt this season, a 7-0 triumph over Morehouse, the team that beat Tuskegee, 22-14. The Hornets have lost seven and tied one.

A grand parade, featuring the bands of both colleges, is slated for downtown Montgomery this morning at 9:30.

The 100-piece State College band, paced by a group of talented majorettes, will lead the parade. The crack Tuskegee band, under the direction of Capt. Alton A. Davenport and accompanied by twelve crimson and gold-clad majorettes, will be next in line followed by scores of gaily decorated floats.

A high school band from Durham, N. C., which has won nation-wide recognition for its excellent music, will be one of the features which the two schools have collaborated on in bringing to Montgomery to participate in the parade and to add color to the game.

Montgomery Advertiser Nov-11-25-48

The morning parade will start at 9:30. Originating at the capitol it will proceed down Dexter Avenue through Court Square to Montgomery Street thence to Catoma where it terminates. Seen in the parade will be some 25 floats, each designed and built to bring out some theme connected with the history of the Tuskegee-State series, a number of marching units of student organizations, local scout groups as well as visiting scout groups, U. S. Army units, the Elks, and many others. There will be five bands, the bands of the two competing colleges and three visiting bands. Visiting will be Shorty Hall's Winston-Salem band, East Highland School band from Sylacauga, and Lincoln Junior High School band from Birmingham.

Pre-game activities at the Bowl begin at 1 o'clock. Featured will be the visiting bands and the presentation of several members of the first Hornet team to participate in the Tiger-Hornet series. Other visitors presented will be former stars of other years with the Hornets.

PROBABLE STARTING LINEUPS

Ala. State		Tuskegee
Shaw	L.E.	McDowell
Mims	L.T.	Brown (c)
Greene	L.G.	Mabrie
Craig	C.	Beavers
L. Pressley	R.G.	Bell
Floyd	R.T.	McNeir
Fisher (c)	R.E.	Scissum
P. Weatherly	Q.	Fulgham
Bolden	L.H.	Swinney
Ragland	R.H.	Dickerson
Bell	F.	Taylor

Officials: B. T. Harvey (Colgate) referee; H. A. Johnson (Fisk) umpire; F. L. Forbes (Morehouse) Linesman; E. E. Farley (Morehouse) field judge; F. A. Youns (Chicago) side-line clock operator.

Paul Ford Scores 3 Touchdowns

Ala. State 41 - Tuskegee 0 Nov-11-25-48

Montgomery Advertiser Nov-16-48

The 5,000 fans who attended the Tuskegee-Wilberforce game in Comiskey Park here Sunday, were treated to an aerial circus and a devastating ground attack by the Wilberforce Green Wave as it rolled over the Tigers, 39-6.

Chicago Defender Nov 20

It was strictly their day for Paul Ford, Mickey Carter, 150 pound quarterback Billy Shields, his understudy, and Andy Bibbs. Ford scored three of the Green Wave's six touchdowns, one on a pass from Carter for the first tally. Shields scored two and Bibbs one, in the runaway game. Sidney Porter converted three times out of six.

Wilberforce's supremacy was never in doubt from the time the Green Wave rolled down field for 78 yards and a touchdown, the second time they got the ball. Carter connected with five of six passes mixed in with six running plays in the first quarter.

Bibbs circled his own right end in the second period for the second Green Wave tally shortly after Carter had been spilled behind the goal line for a touchback and two points for Tuskegee.

Ford went through his own left tackle, broke through the line, and with only one man running interference, skirted the Tuskegee secondary and went over standing up, in the third period. Again in the period, he went 44 yards off tackle to score.

Tuskegee, grown desperate, took to the air in the final stanza, and finally connected, Johnny Fulgham to Porter in the end zone. The conversion try failed.

Billy Shields, in for Carter, ran over from 35 yards out, two plays after Wilberforce and Tuskegee both had fumbled. Six minutes before the game ended, Shields intercepted a pass intended for Tommy Hardwick, and galloped to the goal. At the gun, Tuskegee was trying desparately to connect by air again.

Touchdowns: Wilberforce, Ford (3), Shields (2), Bibbs. Tuskegee, Porter. Points after touchdown: Parker (3).

Victors Score In 2nd Half

George Dickerson Stars In Tiger Win; 17,000 See Contest

Montgomery Advertiser

By MAX MOSELEY
Advertiser Sports Editor

Tuskegee's Golden Tigers, paced by George Dickerson, 180-pound halfback from Birmingham, staged a second half spurt here yesterday to defeat the Alabama State Hornets, 15 to 7, in the 25th renewal of their Cramton Bowl series.

Ala. State 7 - Tuskegee 15 Nov-11-25-48

A Thanksgiving Day crowd of some 17,000 spectators saw the Tigers strike for two touchdowns and a safety in the second half of a hard fought pigskin classic.

The Tigers, after being held scoreless in the first half by a determined Hornet aggregation, struck quickly in the third quarter. They took the opening kickoff of the third quarter and drove 88 yards for a touchdown on 12 consecutive plays. It took only four minutes to march the distance while they were piling up three straight first downs. James Swinney crashed over from the two for the score.

In the fourth quarter the Tigers scored the second six-pointer after a 56-yard drive into pay

Game At A Glance

Ala. State		Tuskegee
5	First Downs	16
3	Yds. gained rushing	329
44	Yds. gained passing	65
19	Passes attempted	16
3	Passes completed	5
1	Passes intercepted	4
33.5	Avg. Yds. punts	39.4
71	Yds. ret. all kicks	37
1	Fumbles recovered by	1
25	Yds. lost penalties	85

dirt. Dickerson's sensational 57-yard sprint down to the three, where he plunged across on the first play for the score, sparked the second jaunt for the score.

Late in the fourth quarter the Tigers added a safety when Berman Harbor broke through to nail Percy Weatherly behind the goal line.

Nov 11-26-48

Alabama State's Hornets displayed most of their offense early in the game. William Bell and Percy Weatherly led the way as the Hornets piled up three first downs in the first quarter.

In the second quarter, State had their first near-scoring opportunity when Horace Ragland made a neat 33-yard run back of one of the Tigers' punts to the State 41. On the next play Ragland threw a pass to Archie Shaw and the speedy State end got to the Tuskegee 34 before he was pulled down by Dickerson. It was a gain of 23 yards. Ragland bucked for five, but King lost six. Ragland made one, then Pressley kicked over the goal line.

Xavier, Tuskegee In 12-12 Deadlock

Nov 11-26-48

By ERNEST CURRY

NEW ORLEANS — A fighting Xavier Gold Rush marched 77 yards in the final period to score and earn a 12-12 tie with Tuskegee's Golden Tigers in Xavier Stadium here Saturday.

The tieing touchdown came after Tuskegee had driven the ball to within scoring position on the 23-yard line only to lose it on downs. The Gold Rush took over and in two plays moved it to the Tuskegee five. Robert Simms passed to Lloyd Jackson who was chased out of bounds on the 40, then Thornton Drummond swept end for 35 yards and two plays later Kirke Herman plunged over from the two.

Tuskegee scored in the first period when Jim McDowall took in John Fulgham's pass and lateraled to Leroy Porter on the 17 who scored from there. Xavier chalked up a TD in the second period when Wilford Bonner hit the sidelines and shook off several tacklers to race 65 yards for a tally. Early in the third period a punt returned by Tuskegee placed the ball on the Gold Rush's 34 and George Dickerson climaxed a drive from there by going over from the one for the Tigers' second touchdown.

The game was nip and tuck all the way. Tuskegee had to stop two desperate last quarter drives by Xavier turning one back from its own two-yard stripe.

Xavier Holds Tuskegee

Tigers To 12-12 Tie

Tuskegee left half, crashed over from the one after a sustained third period drive. Xavier evened it up with a touchdown when Kirk Herman plunged over his own left guard.

The Gold Rush held the advantage for the remainder of the game, but could not cross the goal again. Tuskegee rolled up 16 first downs to seven for Xavier. The Tigers lost 60 yards on penalties, and the Gold Rush lost 45. Xavier completed four of eight aerials, and Tuskegee completed three of 13.

Dickerson's Pass Gives Tuskegee 13-6 Victory

Nov 11-26-48

Alabama State intercepted John Turner's pass and ran 35 yards for a touchdown in the second period after Cleveland Williams rocked Tuskegee back with his long punting. Robert Simms passed 15 yards from his own 35 to Wilford "Moose" Bonner, who wormed his way down from the 50.

TUSKEGEE, Ala. — Tuskegee's Golden Tigers tumbled ... in the opening moments of the South Carolina State ... ranks of the unbeaten here Saturday, ... homecoming to the tune of 13-6. ... before a record breaking crowd ... in Alumni Bowl.

George Dickerson, fleet Tuske-
George Dickerson of Birmingham, John Dow pitched a pass to George Price to put the ball on the Golden Tigers' 18. Arrington twisted his way across the double stripe on the next play to score.

Erwin Dawkins recovered a Tuskegee fumble on the Golden Tigers 27. The Bulldogs moved the ball to the Tuskegee 11, then the Tuskegee line tightened. Arrington dropped back and attempted to break the tie with a field goal but the ball hit the upright and bounced off.

Herman Mabrie recovered a South Carolina State fumble on the Bulldogs 45. A five-yard penalty against the Golden Tigers moved the ball to the midfield stripe. From this point, George Dickerson hit McKinley Lewis with a 50-yard toss and the Tuskegee end went the reest of the way for the pay off. The play was good for 50 yards. Capt. George Brown converted.

AT CRAMTON BOWL

At the risk of sounding complacent, we reflected yesterday at the State Normal-Tuskegee game that if everybody in the country could see a close-up photograph of Cramton Bowl yesterday there would be less concern over racial matters in the South.

Such a photograph would show that Montgomery, as it has been long doing, more or less turned over the town to the two institutions on Thanksgiving. There was an admirable parade down the way over which Jefferson Davis rode to be inaugurated.

Then the Bowl was filled almost to capacity. The white section was filled beyond capacity and many stood. On the field were players representing Tuskegee Institute, one of the best known colleges in the world, and State Teachers College, which has grown to be the largest such institution in the country.

There were Negro bands with excellent music and precision drills. The spectacle was an arresting and unchallengable evidence of the progress the colored man is making in all directions.

Tuskegee Conquers 25th Infantry Eleven, 26-12

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—(SNS)—Striking suddenly in the second quarter and scoring two touchdowns in the third and one in the final seconds of play, the Tuskegee Institute Golden Tigers subdued a scrappy 25th U. S. Infantry team, 26 to 12, in the Alumni Bowl here this afternoon.

The game started with both teams cautiously testing the defenses of the other. Cautious play kept both teams on even keel during the entire first period, but in the second quarter, George Dickerson, Tiger Back, niftily needled his way through the 25th Infantry line on a 26 yard run, scoring Tuskegee's first touchdown. George Brown added ten extra point.

A few minutes later, the 25th Infantry eleven scored on a well-executed forward pass, Hammond to Knight, for 18 yards, whereupon Knight outdistanced the field on a 43 yard sprint to score. The try for the extra point failed. The first half ended with Tuskegee leading, 7 to 6.

SCORES ON FUMBLE

In the second half, Danzie increased Tuskegee's lead by recovering a 25th Infantry fumble behind the goal line for the Tigers' second touchdown. Brown again added the extra point from placement. Late in the third period Fulgham took a punt on his 42 yard line and raced 50 yards before he was hauled down. Dickerson quickly added the remaining 8 yards for the score. Brown's third attempt for the extra point failed.

Early in the fourth quarter Hammond, after a series of downs went over from the 1 yard line for the 25th Infantry's last touchdown. Wilson's kick was low. In the closing seconds of the fourth quarter Dickerson skirted his own right end for eight yards and a touchdown. Brown failed the second time to add the extra point.

cautiously testing the other's defense. Both remained on an even 0-0 keel through the quarter. But, in the second period, George Dickerson, Tiger back, needled his way through the 25th Infantry's line for 26 yards and pay dirt. George Brown converted.

A few minutes later, the army lads scored on a pass, Hammond to Knight for 18 yards in the air and 43 on the ground. The kick for the extra point went wide.

The score was Tuskegee 7, Army 6, at the half.

In the third period, Danzie increased Tuskegee's lead by recovering an Army fumble behind the goal. Brown converted again. A few minutes later, Fulgham took a punt on his own 42 and raced 50 yards before he was hauled down. Dickerson galloped the remaining eight for six points. Brown's kick was no good.

Early in the fourth quarter, Hammond went over from the Tuskegee one yard line for the second. Dickerson skirted his own right end for eight yards and a score. The kick from placement failed.

Tuskegee Tigers Top Army Eleven, 26-12

TUSKEGEE, Ala. — Striking suddenly in the second quarter and scoring two touchdowns in the third period and another in the final seconds of play, Tuskegee Institute's Golden Tigers subdued the 25th Infantry army team 26-12 in Alumni Bowl, Saturday, September 18.

The game started with each team

'skegee To Battle State Thanksgiving

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., Oct. 28, 1948—When Tuskegee Institute and Alabama State College meet for their annual Thanksgiving Day game in Montgomery Thanksgiving Day, it will be the 25th Anniversary Cramton Bowl game, and plans are underway to make the occasion noteworthy.

Special features will be the downtown street parade with floats led by several bands, school children and marching units. The intermission program being arranged will be elaborate and is expected will capture the interest of the thousands of spectators who will be present.

As usual, the game will draw alumni and friends of Alabama State College and Tuskegee Institute from every section of the country.

Morehouse Maroon Tigers Batter Tuskegee Golden Tigers, 22-14

Harry Smith Romps

82, 75, 11 Yards

To Wreck 'Skegee

BY JOEL W. SMITH

COLUMBUS, Ga., —(SNS)—In one of the most thrilling games of the long rivalry between the two Southern Conference elevens, the Morehouse College Maroon Tigers battered the Tuskegee Institute Golden Tigers, 22-14, Friday night, before 13,000 fans at Memorial Stadium.

The Maroon Tigers jumped out in front on the first play of the game, when Harry Smith, sensational breakaway back from Birmingham, Ala., took the opening kick-off and stepped off 82 yards for a touchdown. The try-for-point after touchdown was wide. Morehouse racked up a safety a few minutes, later when C. Fuce brole through and smeared John Fulgham's attempted punt in the Tuskegee end zone.

TUSKEGEE MARCHES 86 YARDS TO SCORE

Trailing 8-0, the Golden Tigers roared back in the second period and moved the ball to the M'house one-yard line, where Morehouse's fast charging line broke through and nailed Dickerson in his tracks to stop the drive.

Determined to get back in the ball game, the Golden Tigers marched 86 yards to pay dirt in the final five minutes of play in the first period. Spearheading this sustained drive were George Dickerson, also of Birmingham; James Sweeney, of Atlanta; Albert Pratt and Fulgham. Dickerson went over from the one-yard line and Capt. George Brown converted from placement.

FIREWORKS GALORE AT HALF-TIME

The Tuskegee Institute and Morehouse College Bands put on a sparkling show at half time. Highlighting Tuskegee's contribution to the colorful festivities was the presentation of lovely Miss Meadow L. Jackson, "Miss Tuskegee of 1948" and her attendant, Miss Mary Craven. Both of the football queens hails from Fort Worth, Texas. The illuminated Morehouse Band put on a clever exhibition of march formation with the lights out, and touched off fireworks galore.

Late in the third period, Ike Jones intercepted Fulgham's pass on the Morehouse 25, and on the first play from scrimmage, Smith slipped through the Tuskegee line, broke into the open and romped 75 yards for a touchdown James Gambrell added the extra point via placement to put Morehouse ahead, 15-7.

'SKEGEE SCORES AGAIN

Tuskegee capitalized on Worth Christler's short kick, which went out-of-bounds on the Morehouse 33 and needed only seven plays to score. Dickerson cashed-in on the touchdown from the Morehouse two-yard marker and Brown's placement made the score, 15-14, with only six minutes left to play.

Morehouse took the ball on downs on the Tuskegee 39, when the Golden Tigers gambled and failed to kick on fourth down. A 15-yard penalty moved the ball to the Tuskegee 24. Smith and Charles Cary alternated to lug the ball to the Tuskegee 11, and Smith twisted his way across the double-stripes to put the game in the bag. Gambrell's placement was good.

STARTING LINEUPS

M'HOUSE (22)	POS	S'GEE (14)
Foster	LE.	Hardwick
Brown	L.T.	Simmons
Littlejohn	L.G.	Mabrie
Odom (c)	C.	Beavers
Nelson	R.G.	Bell
White	R.T.	Brown (c)
Hyler	R.E.	Scissum
Jones	Q.B	Fulgham
Smith	H.B.	Dickerson
Adams	H.B.	Singleton
Gambrell	F.B.	Pratt

OFFICIALS: G. H. Lennon (Bluefield referee; B. T. Fowlkes (Atlanta Uni.) umpire; J. H. Moore Morris Brown) headlinesman; W. J. Moore (Talladega field judge.

Wilberforce Outclasses Tuskegee

By WILL ROBINSON

CHICAGO — Wilberforce State College routed Tuskegee 39 to 8 in the nineteenth annual football classic between these two schools at Comiskey Park last Sunday afternoon before 5,000 frenzied fans.

It was the worse defeat ever suffered by Coach Cleve Abbott's Golden Tigers in the history of this classic. The victory for Coach Gaston (Country) Lewis' green-clad gridders from Xenia, Ohio, marked the first time they have beaten Tuskegee two years running.

The game had its moment of suspense, but for most of the spectators who made up one of the smallest crowds in the history of the event, it was like a movie thriller. They knew after the first quarter who the winner would be.

This was the ninth decision for Wilberforce in the series. Tuskegee has a record of seven wins four ending in ties. Both teams entered the clash undefeated for the season with the Green Wave romping to its third straight win.

'FORCE GREAT

Wilberforce, off its showing, appears to have one of its best elevens in the history of the college as they ran and passed for six touchdowns. The Buckeyes scored in every quarter and held a 13 to 2 edge at the half before turning on the steam to tally twice in the third and fourth period without drawing another pass.

Mickey Carter, Wilberforce's 150-pound quarterback from Louisville, Ky., set up the first two touchdowns with a fine demonstration of passing from the "T" formation. In the first period he hit Blake White from Detroit, Mich., and Charles Payton from Washington, D. C., both playing the ends, to move the ball down to Tuskegee's 8-yard line, where Andy Bibbs went off tackle to score.

Carter came back after being tackled behind his own goal line for a two-point Tuskegee safety to hit White again with another that moved the ball from his own 25 to the Tigers' 20. Bibbs, who hails from South Bend, Ind., scored again two plays later by going around his own right end for pay-dirt from 15 yards out.

FORD SCORES

Wilberforce scored its third touchdown soon after the half-time intermission ceremonies. Taking the ball from the kick-off, Coach Lewis' fleet-footed back-field of Paul Ford, Edward Tipton and Shields went resting on Wilberful interference, the ball to rack up another six With the ball rest- force's 20, Fulgham and Bibbs alternated carrying the points on the same play that connected with around his own right end for 50 pigskin until they reached mid- in the end zone for yards to score and two minutes field, where Ford broke through later he intercepted a Tuskegee the middle of the line for a 55- In the same period Tuskegee pass 35 yards out and made its only offensive challenge desperation pass yard scoring sprint. He came right of the day. Johnny Fulgham to Leroy Porter got in on the scoring act twice back after Tuskegee relinquished that was good for a 60-yard gain. in the final period.

Hampton's Pirates Sink Tuskegee

TUSKEGEE, Ala. — Flashing a well coordinated ground attack, the Hampton Pirates overcame a 7 to 0 lead in the second half to down Tuskegee 15 to 7 in the Alumni Bowl here Saturday afternoon.

In the first half the two teams battled each other determinedly with neither team scoring during the first quarter. But in the second quarter Tuskegee used an effective passing attack, which netted three first downs and a score when Fulgham passed to Swinney. Brown's conversion was good. The half ended with Tuskegee leading 7 to 0.

Hampton came back in the second half to score two touchdowns with William Christian, the Pirate captain, sparking the attack and scoring both markers. Hampton completed its scoring after having received the extra point because Tuskegee was off side by scoring a safety against the Tigers late in the final period.

The game showed a considerably improved Tuskegee team over that which played Wilberforce a week ago. Both elevens attempted several passes with Tuskegee having considerable edge completing eight out of sixteen attempts, while Hampton completed two out of twelve.

Florida A. & M. Wins, 39 to 0, From 'Skegee

By CALVIN E. ADAMS

ORLANDO, Fla.—Florida's fast-flying gridiron team routed the strong Tuskegee, Maroon and Gold Tigers by the score of 39-0 before 6,500 fans in greater Orlando Stadium Saturday night.

The game marked the Rattlers fourteenth consecutive win and the fifth defeat of the Tigers in as many years.

With the game but three minutes old, the Rattlers set up their first TD with a 6-yard pass from Jim Williams to Brad Mitchell. Olysses Curtis then broke off left tackle and raced 23 yards before being hauled down from behind. Bernard Stephens ripped through center for 15 yards and a first down on the 6. Curtis picked up 3 yards through the line and then scored standing up from the 3-yard stripe. Moe Jefferson converted with Earl Kitchens holding.

The Tigers' line play tightened up after this score and the rest of the first half was scoreless.

The Rattlers opened up in the third canto by moving 64 yards on the ground and through the air for their second tally. On successive line bucks, Rattler backs racked up 40 fast yards. Williams passed to Oscar Norman, Jacksonville freshman, for 13 and he ran the other 11 to score. Jefferson converted.

Abraham Brown, Rattler substitute center, intercepted a Tiger pass on Florida's 39 and it set up the third score. A holding penalty moved the pigskin to the 21. On the next offensive play, Ulysses Harley broke through the line and went all the way. Jefferson missed the extra point.

As the final period opened, Florida took the ball on downs on the Tigers 39 and started goalward. Williams passed to Stephens for 12 yards in rapid succession. Stephens then picked up 9 through the line. Pasper Saunders in two tries at the Tuskegee line accounted for 13 yards and on the third try went over the double stripes to score.

Norman, who proved to be the running star of the game, intercepted a pass thrown by Dickerson on the Tiger 40 and ran it to pay dirt. It was the most beautiful run of the game, as he reversed his field twice behind excellent blocking.

With 59 seconds left in the game, Charles Leonard, sub for Williams, passed to Elman Wilkens for 39 yards. Stephens moved the pellet over from the 4 for the final tally. Jefferson converted for the extra point. Florida made twelve first downs to Tuskegee's seven; gained 204 yards rushing while holding the Tigers to 46. Tuskegee passes accounted for 212 yards while Rattlers made only 110 by the same route.

Tuskegee's Tigers Claw S. C. State

TUSKEGEE, Ala.—In a rugged, thrill-packed struggle, Tuskegee racked up a hard-earned 13-6 victory over South Carolina State before a record-breaking homecoming crowd Saturday.

In knocking the Bulldogs from the unbeaten ranks of the Southern Conference elevens, the Golden Tigers struck through the air in the fourth period to break the 6-6 deadlock.

Tuskegee scored with less than four minutes left to play in the first half when George Dickerson of Birmingham, Ala., intercepted John Turner's pass and raced 25 yards for a touchdown.

After the intermission the Bulldogs launched a sustained drive on the Tuskegee 34 and marched 66 yards for a touchdown. Highlighting the drive were Richard Arrington and William Harris. John Dow tossed a pass to George Price to put the ball on the Tuskegee 18, and Arrington cut back through the middle to score.

South Carolina State threatened in the fourth when Ervin Dawkins recovered a fumble on the Tuskegee 27, and the Bulldogs drove to the Tuskegee 11, where the Golden Tigers tightened. Arrington attempted a field goal but the ball bounced off the upright.

Tuskegee's pay-off aerial came late in the fourth period when McKinley Lewis snagged a 30-yard pass thrown by George Dickerson and traveled 20 yards for the score. Capt. George Brown kicked the extra point.

Rattlers 39, Tuskegee 0

ORLANDO, Fla. — Going into the lead at the outset, the Florida A. and M. Rattlers whipped up a sound 39-0 pasting for Tuskegee's Golden Tigers here Saturday.

Florida tallied in every quarter, Curtis setting the pace by going over in the first period from six yards out. After that, the victors counted on a 34-yard pass from Williams to Norman, then the same Norman intercepted a Tuskegee aerial and raced 44 yards to pay dirt. Williams grabbed a toss in the closing minutes and set up the final Florida six-pointer. Following this 36-yard run with the pass, Stephens crashed over from the 12.

Dickerson, Fulgham, Simmons and Sweeney played valiantly for the Tigers but their efforts were not good enough to withstand the Rattler power.

Tigers In 15-0 Win In Classic

By FAY YOUNG

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — It took Tuskegee Institute's Tigers the entire first half of the 25th anniversary Cramton Bowl Turkey Day game against Alabama State Teachers College Hornets to find out that they had to play some football to win. Then in the third quarter they led 6-0 and in the final period piled up nine points to tee the game, 15-0.

Thanksgiving Day victory gave Tuskegee its 18th victory in the 25 Dixie Classics which have been played in Cramton Bowl. Ala. State has won four and three have ended in ties. Everybody remembers that hectic 26-26 deadlock of 1947 when Ala. State staved off defeat in the closing minute of play and then lost a golden chance for a victory by missing the point after touchdown.

Tuskegee won four games, lost four and tied one for the season's record. Ala. State had a most miserable season. It defeated Morehouse College of Atlanta, 7-0, for the only victory on its 10-game schedule. Clark and State played a scoreless tie and the other eight games were in the loser's column. Yet, Morehouse, which had lost to State triumphed, 22-14 over Tuskegee and Clarked dropped a 14-13 game to the Tigers.

ALWAYS HARD FOUGHT

No matter what the season's record of either team is, the Cramton Bowl game is the most important and the hardest fought. And the fans knowing this, change the hour of their turkey dinner and come out in full force. A crowd of over 15,000, one third of whom were white, stayed on, as the evening's shadows fell on the playing field, until the game was over.

Played to a standstill in the first half, Tuskegee came back in the second part of the game with a detirmination not to be denied. State had made three first downs in the opening period and one more in the second period. Then the local team bogged down and when the game was over had made only six first downs to Tuskegee's 18.

State took to their air 19 times, completed three and had one intercepted. Total yardage gained on passes was 44. Total yardage gained on rushing was 69. Tuskegee gained 211 yards on rushing and 60 yards on passing. Tuskegee tried 17 passes, completed five and had four intercepted.

Tuskegee lost 95 yards on penalties, State, 25. State returned Tuskegee's punts for a 71 yard total. Tuskegee returned State's punts for a 37 yard total. Tuskegee's punts averaged 39.5 yards while State's average 41.5.

TUSKEGEE SCORES

State kicked off to Tuskegee to start the second half and the Tigers were downed on their own 12. In 12 plays, the Tigers had driven 88 yards to score their first touchdown. James Swinney, 180-pound back from Atlanta's Booker T. Washington high, crashing through the middle of State's forward wall from the three. The try for extra point was wide.

In the fourth quarter, George Dickerson, halfback from Birmingham's Parker high got loose and raced 57 yards to the State three from where he went over on the next play. Bill Brown from the Don Thompson high in Tampa, Fla., booted the extra point.

State was still in the game. However, passes failed to click. The score could have been tied. Two touchdowns and two points after would have been given State the victory it yearned for. But late in the fourth period, Berman Harbor from New Orleans, Booker T. high, broke through from his guard position and pinned 155-pound Percy Weatherly from Carver high, Gadsen, Ala., for a safety and whatever hopes that State had to tie or win went by-bye.

MANY STARS

The game had its stars. Plenty on both sides. Albert Pratt, from Chicago's Dunbar Trade school, George Brown, Savannah tackle; Haywood Scissum, Gadsen, Ala. end; Porcher Taylor, Jacksonville, Fla., fullback; James Beavers, 200-pound Birmingham center; Andrew Belle, Enterprise, Ala., guard, all starred for Tuskegee along with Swinney and Dickerson. Pratt plays both in the line and the backfield.

Playing well for Alabama State, there were Percy Weatherly and Eugene Weatherly, both backs and both from Gadsen, Alabama; Edward Pressley and Horace Ragland, both backs and Lawrence Pressley, guard, all from Gadsen, Alabama; Howard Green, 213-pound guard from Gadsen; Curtis Parker, Phenix City, Alabama, guard; William Craig, center from Decatur, Alabama; Archie Shaw, Fayette, Alabama; William Bell and Sam Bolden, two backs from Gadsen.

VETERAN OFFICIALS

B. T. Harvey, who referred the first Cramton Bowl series game back in 1924, was referee. He was serving his 19th year as an official and fifty year in that capacity. E. Harvey is commissioner of the Southern Conference. He is a Colgate football star of yesteryear and served for several years as coach at Morehouse College. Henimmortal, was serving his second straight year as umpire. Frank Forbes, Morehouse director of athletics, was serving his second consecutive year as headlinesman for the second time. Judge for the second consecutive year, Fay Young, field judge from 1937 through 1946, was side-line time-keeper for the second time.

'Skegee Tops Morehouse In Duel Track And Field Meet

Atlanta, Ga. Daily World

The Morehouse spiked shoe brigade went down to a glorious defeat as the Golden-clad thinclads of Tuskegee spiked their brilliance, outscored them 71½ to 53½ and led them on a merry chase at the Tuskegee Alumni Bowl Saturday afternoon. Tues 4-13-48

The Atlantans copped four first place and tied for a fifth while the Golden Tigers broke the tape seven times and tied for an eighth while the Golden Tigers broke the tape seven times and tied for an eighth. Morehouse won four second places. The Tuskegee cindermen relied upon depth in every event as the race was conducted by triangular rules allowing the first four men points.

JOHNSON BEATS GEORGE

Napoleon Johnson, Morehouse sophomore, turned in the afternoon's most brilliant performance in the featured quarter-mile. In triumphing over his perennial rival, John George, "Nap" was clocked at 51.3. Daily World

The nimble "Nap" and George both bolted off to a good start. George took the inside lane and moved out to a good lead. Johnson burned the breeze to come within few paces of hs much-publicized rival. Camping on George's trail, Johnson bided time to the home strech where both stars opened up to full speed. The agile Napoleon made a great effort, put his best foot forward. And it was all over.

Former SIAC champion hurdler, Luther Ware, continued his merry pace by nipping Turnbore in the 200-yard low hurdles in 26.4. The recognized peer of Southern hurdlers, Ware looms as the best bet to win the SIAC timber topping crown.

Theophilus Neal placed third in the hurdles bethind Turnbore of Tuskegee. Since learning the fundamentals of hurdling this season Neal has been doing alright for himself. Atlanta, Ga.

WATKINS WINS "CENTURY"

Freddie Guy lost out in the century because of a faulty start but romped home in the 220 in 23.4.

Another favorite Johnny Floyd tasted defeat for the first time, being edged out of the half mile by Alpheus Mathis. Floyd strained a muscle in the event and did not compete in the mile relay. Tues.

In the field events, Augustus White won the discus affray and Schelley Lipscomb tied with Lilly for first place in the broad jump. Both leapers were marked at 19 ft., 8½ inches. 4-13-48

SUMMARY

100 yd. Dash: 1st, Lewis Watkins (T); 2nd, Frederick Guy (M); 3rd, Carl Fuqua (M); 4th, Andrew Davis (M) and Albert Terry (T) tie.

Time: 10.1 Sec.

1 Mile Run: 1st, John Carroll (T); 2nd, Henry Rice (M); 3rd Jas. Green (M); 4th, Harrell Watts (T).

Time: 4 Minutes 30.2 Seconds

440 yd. Dash: 1st, Napoleon Johnson (M); 2nd, John George (T); 3rd Charles Gray (T); 4th Earl Smartt (T).

Time 51.3 Seconds

220 yd. Dash: 1st, Frederick Guy (M); 2nd, Lewis Watkins (T); 3rd, Carl Fuqua (M); 4th Victor Morris (T).

Time: 23.4 Seconds

880 yd. Run: 1st, Alpheus Mathis (T); 2nd, Johnnie Floyd (M); 3rd, Clarence Davis (T); 4th, Lawrence Wells (T). Tues. 4-13-48

Time: 2 Minutes 5 seconds

2 Mile Run: 1st, John Carroll (T) 2nd, James Turnbore (T); 3rd, Henry Rice (M); 4th, James Green (M). Time: 10 Min. 18.5 Sec.

220 Low Hurdles; 1st, Luther Ware (M); 2nd, James Turnbore (T); 3rd, Theophilus Neal (M).

Time: 26.4 Seconds

Shot Put: 1st, Frank Wade (T) 39'7"; 2nd, August White (M) 37'; 3rd, Schelly Lipscomb (M) 32'9½; 4th, Benjamin Booker (T) 32'5½".

Discus Throw: 1st, Augustus White (M) 111'9"; 2nd, Frank Wade (T) 110'; 3rd, Benjamin Booker (T) 104'3"; 4th, Virden Evans (T) 68'11'.

Broad Jump: 1st (tie) Schelly Lipscomb (M) and J. C. Lilly (T) 19'8½"; 2nd, Edwin Thompson (M) 19'2"; 3rd, Clarence Davis (T) 18' 7½". Daily World Javelin Throw: 1st, James Cathey (T) 155'2"; 2nd, Frank Wade (T) 144'; 3rd, Schelly Lipscomb (M) 137'6"; 4th, Virden Evans (T) 116'3". Atlanta, Ga.

1 Mile Relay: 1st, Tuskegee (Gray Mathis, Davis, George).

2nd, Morehouse (Ware, Thompson, Lipscomb, Johnson).

Team Scores: Tuskegee 71½; Morehouse 53½.

MOREHOUSE INDIVIDUAL SCORERS

White, 8 pts; Guy 8; Lipscomb, 8; Ware, 5; Rice, 5; Johnson, 5; Fuqua 4; Floyd 3; Greene, 3; Neal, 2; Thompson, 2; Davis, ½; Pearson, 0 Stinson, 0; Gaffney, 0.

Records Tumble In Tuskegee Relay

The Advertiser Montgomery Ala. Tues.

TUSKEGEE, ALA.—The fast field of women track and field stars, including several Olympic contenders, competing in the Twentieth Annual Tuskegee Women's Sports Day Championships held here, Friday, in the Alumni Bowl, erased six meet records and tied a world mark.

Rolling up 51 points, Tuskegee's brilliant array of AAU stars retained their crown in the senior division. The gold-clad lassies scored firsts in three of the track events—the 80-meter hurdles, 100-meter run, and the 400-meter relay—and captured two of the jumping and weight events. 4-13-48

Tennessee State College took second place with victories in two track and two field events, to chalk up 25 points. Also scoring points in the meet were Arkansas A. M. and N. College, 19; Grambling College, 19; and Prairie View A&M College, 4.

Last year the Tuskegee Institute High School and Camden Academy thin-clads tied for first place in the junior division with 35 points each, but this year the Tuskegee spikesters scored heavily in the field events to pile up a clean-cut verdict. The Camden girls edged Monroe High, of Albany, Ga., and Booker T. Washington High, of Atlanta, Ga., for second place, with 21 points. The two Georgia high schools had 21 points each. 7-4-48

Coach Nora Smith, of Camden Academy, had the satisfaction of seeing her well-balanced foursome uncover some smooth baton-passing to win the 400-meter relay for the fourth consecutive year, and she also watched with interest her contestant in the 50-meter run become a four-time winner in that event. Tues.

Tuskegee Wins National AAU Women's Track

The Record Columbia, S.C. Mon. 4-26-48

CHICAGO, April

group of girl athletes from Tuskegee Institute returned home to Alabama yesterday as the unquestioned track queens of the nation.

They piled up a 69-point total in eight events to run away with the National AAU women's indoor track title Saturday. Their nearest rivals were the independent Chicago Hurricanes, who came in second with only 39 points.

The Alabama girls chalked up three first places and had a hand in breaking three records.

Nell Jackson of Tuskegee knocked down the first record when she faced through the 200 meter run in 26.5 seconds. But in the finals, Audrey Patterson of Tennessee State bettered her time by one-tenth second.

The old record of 26.8 seconds was set by Annette Rogers in 1933.

Another Tuskegee girl, Theresa Manuel, skimmed the 50 meters hurdles in a record 7.4 seconds, two-tenths seconds under the previous low mark.

Tuskegee Wins Women's Meet

The Post Wed.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 7—(AP)—Stella Walsh, leather-tough track veteran of more than a score of years talked retirement today after out-shining the cream of the nation's women's athletes in yesterday's National Women's A. A. U. Track meet. Birmingham Ala.

The crack Ohio performer gathered 30 points to edge Dorothy Dodson, diminutive star of the Chicago Hurricanes for individual honors. Miss Dodson, who collected 26 points, shared top honors in the 1946 A. A. U. meet with Alice Coachman of Albany State College, Albany, Ga., both had 28 points.

Behind Miss Walsh's brilliant showing was enough track and field talent, however, to give promise of American strength in the Olympics later this month. Wed. 7-7-48

* * *

ALMOST CERTAIN TO MAKE good showings at the Olympic trials July 12 at Providence, R. I., on the basis of events here are Mrs. Frances Kaszubski, of North Olmsted-Westlake At Cleveland, a double-winner, Miss Coachman, Miss Dodson, Mabel Walker, of Tuskegee Institute, Bernice Robinson, of Washington Park, Chicago, and Juanita Watson, of Tuskegee.

Alice Coachman took the high jump with a leap of five feet even, a scant inch better than the jumps of Emma Reed, of Tennessee, State College and Miss Robinson, who tied for second.

In the 50-meter run, Miss Walker turned in a 6.7 to edge Miss Coachman by a step.

Miss Dodson's lone first place came in the javelin throw where she got off a heave of 125 feet 10⅜ inches almost 10 feet better than her nearest rival, Theresa Manuel of Tuskegee. Wed.

Tuskegee's other individual winner was Miss Watson who threw a baseball 218 feet six inches.

With that for a nucleus, along with a victory in the 400-meter hurdles, the Tuskegee lasses piled up 71½ points to walk away with team honors. 7-7-48

Tuskegee Girls Compete In Nat'l AAU Meet

Atlanta Wednesday Tues. 4-20-48

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala. — (SNS) — The Tuskegee Institute girls' track and field team will defend their National A. A. U. Women's Indoor Championship at Stagg Field House the University of Chicago, April 24.

The Tuskegee girls' track and field team has established an enviable record in athletics for girls. Since 1936, the record of these girls has been unsurpassed in the story of women's athletics. In 1936, at Providence, Rhode Island, Tuskegee girls won second place in the National A. A. U. Championships held in conjunction with the final Olympic tryouts for women. In every indoor and outdoor Junior and Senior championship since 1936, except for the 1943 outdoor meet held at Lake wood, Ohio, in which they finished in second place, the Tuskegee girls have outscored their opponents.

Young women who will take part in the Chicago meet are:

Jean Lowe, 200 Relay.
Bessie Hayes, 50 Relay.
Gwendolyn Taylor, 200 Relay.
Evelyn Lawler, High Jump, Broad Jump, Relay.
Elaine Bradford, Shot Basketball hurdles champion. Mary Griggs is Throw.
Theresa Manuel is the National junior 100 meter champion Mable Walker the National Junior 80 meter hurdle champion. junior 50 meter champion and Juanita Watson, the National 100 meter
Mabel Walker, 50 Relay. former National jump champion, holder of champion.
Mary Griggs, 200 Relay. Lilly Purifoy is the National runn- Theresa Manuel, Hurdles—200 Relay
Nell Jackson, 200 Relay.
Lylly Purifoy, Hurdles, Broad Jump, Relay
Juanita Watson, 50 Relay.
Nellie McKee, Shot Put, Basketball Throw

DEFEND NATIONAL A.A.U. CHAMPIONSHIPS—Tuskegee Institute's crack women's track and field team, National A.A.U. indoor and outdoor champions. They will defend their team title and championships in several events at the National meet in Grand Rapids, Mich., this week, and will move on to Providence, R. I., for the finals for the United States Olympic team on July 12.

Tuskegee Olympic Girls Get Help From SIAC

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, ALA., JULY 1948— A contribution of $400 was made by the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference to the United States Olympic Committee and earmarked for women's track and field for expenses in connection with sending the team to London, England, was made known here today by R. S. Darnaby, secreary-treasurer. The athletic association of Tuskegee Institute also made a substantial donation to the committee to help finance the trip of the young women, Darnaby stated.

Three Tuskegee Institute young women who are enrolled in the Department of Physical Education are members of the Olympic team. They are: Theresa Manuel, whose home is in Tampa, Florida; Nell Jackson, of Tuskegee Insitute, and Mable Walker, a native of Camden, Alabama.

Misses Young And Robinson Eye Olympics

Tuskegee Women Again Win AAU National Crown

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — Miss Bernice Robinson, physical education student at George Williams College in Chicago, and Miss Lillian Young, student at Chicago Teachers college, both Chicagoans, qualified for the finals for the United States Women's Olympic team in Providence, R. I. on July 12. The team sails four days later for London.

Miss Robinson, representing Washington Park playground, won the 80-meters hurdles in 21.1 seconds with Lillie Purifoy, Tuskegee ace hurdler, trailing her in second place and Theresa Manuel of Tuskegee in third. This was on Tuesday, July 6, in the National AAU Women's Championships.

Miss Robinson tied Emma Reed of Tennessee State college for second place in the high jump which was won by Alice Coachman, former Tuskegeean and now of Albany, Ga., at 5 feet.

Lillian Young placed second in the broad jump to Miss Stella Walsh, white, Polish-American A. C., of Cleveland. Miss Young represented the Forestville playground. Jean Lowe, Tuskegee, third.

Mary Griggs, Tuskegee, was second to Miss Walsh in the 100-meters Jaunita Watson, Tuskegee, was third.

Mable Walker, Tuskegee, coupped the 50-meter dash in 6.7 seconds. Miss Coachman was second and Mary Hardaway of Tennessee State was third.

Mary Watson, Tuskegee, won the baseball throw with a distance of 281 feet, 6 inches.

Tuskegee's A team won the 400-meters relay in 50.3 seconds. Tennessee State was third and Tuskegee's B team fifth.

Tuskegee won the meet. The Southerners, who won the indoor championship was defending their outdoor title.

Tuskegee's Manuel, Watson, Purifoy, Griggs Love and Walker most likely will be chosen for the U. S. Women's Olympic team along with Lillian Young and Bernice Robinson, both of Chicago. Also sure shots are Alice Coachman, Emma Reed and Pat Patterson among others

Tuskegee moves on to the Olympic finals at Providence, R. I., for July 12 in the Olympic finals.

Tuskegee Girls Win Berths On Olympics Team

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 6—The thin-clads of the Tuskegee women's championship track and field team, took part in the Women's National AAU, Track and Field Championships at Grand Rapids, Michigan, July 6.

The young women contenders will go on from there to Providence, Rhode Island, where they will take part in the final Olympic try-outs, and those who are on their selection by the Olympic successful in these tests and up-Committee, will sail at 4 p.m., July 14, from Pier 61, New York City, on the S.S. America for London, England.

Members of the Tuskegee Institute Women's Track and Field team selected to make the trip include: Theresa Manuel, Tampa, Florida; Juanita Watson, Bessemer, Alabama; Lillie Purifoy, Snow Hill, Alabama; Gwendolyn Taylor, Harrisburgh, Pennsylvania; Doris Hill, Shorter, Alabama; Mabel Walker, Camden, Alabama; Mellie McKee, Bay Minette, Alabama; Mary Griggs, Tuskegee, Alabama; Nell Jackson, Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, and Jean Lowe, Toronto, Canada.

Cleve L. Abbott, director of the department of Physical Education and Athletics at Tuskegee Institute, was in charge of the party, and Mrs. Jessie H. Abbott, the chaperon.

RECORDS BETTERED

Women Olympic Tracksters Selected, Rushed Eastward

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 13—(UP)—Eleven speedy and muscular girls were picked today for the U. S. Olympic women's track and field team and were rushed off to New York to get ready to stail tomorrow.

The talented selectees were the cream of a 74-girl crop which vied here yesterday in final trials that saw two performances better than national A. A. U. records.

Dorothy Dodson of Chicago topped the entire field by qualifying to compete in three events—the discus, the shotput, and the javelin. It was in the latter event that she gave her greatest performances, hurling the spear 140 feet, 4 inches, more than five feet better than the 16-year-old record held by Babe Didrickson Zaharias.

The other mark was bettered by Alice Coachman of Albany, Ga., who cleared 5 feet. 4 3-4 inches in the high jump. Neither mark will stand as a record,, however, because the trials were not considered A. A. U. championship events.

Mrs. Francis Kaszubski of North Olmsted, O., was the only entrant to win two events in the trials. Duplicating her sweep in the A. A. U. championships last week at Grand Rapids, she won the 8-pound shot put with a toss of 38 feet, 8 1-4 inches, and the discus with a heave of 122 feet, 6 1-2 inches.

Others named to the Olympic team were Audrey Patterson of Nashville, Tenn., who finished first in the 200-meters and second in the 100-meters; Mabel Walker of Tuskegee, winner of the 100-meters; Lillian Young of Chicsago, second in the broad jump and third in the 100-meters; Bernice Robinson Chicago, winner of the 80-m hurdles; Emma Reed of Nash Tenn., winner of the broad Theese Manuel of Tuskegee, second in the javelin; Nell Jackson, Tuskegee, second in 200 meters; and Mae Fagg of New York City, third in the 200 meters.

Reception for Tuskegee Team

CHICAGO — (ANP) — Members of the famed Tuskegee institute women's track team, here for the defense of their AAU national championship, were honored with a reception at the Chicago Tuskegee Club house, Saturday, April 24.

Among the track queens attending were Theresa Manuel, Lillie Purifoy, Gwendolyn Taylor and Bessie Hayes and others. Also invited were Roumania Peters, tennis star and physical education instructor, and Coach and Mrs. Cleve Abbott.

Many well-known athletes of past and present from the Chicago area attended the program in honor of the girl thinclads. Fay Young acted as master of ceremonies.

On April 25 the Chicago Tuskegee club held its annual Founder's day program. Robert R. Taylor chairman of the Chicago Housing authority delivered the main address.

Daniel J. Faulkner is president of the Chicago club.

Tuskegee Girls Win Team Trophy in National Meet

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — Tuskegee Institute scored 73½ points to take the women's 1948 AAU national championships and Olympic trials here Tuesday. The Cleveland [illegible] was second with 40 points.

A crowd of more than 3,800 saw the Alabama school win its fifth straight national title and its 10th since 1937, having lost in 1943.

The winners team included Juanita Watson, Lillie Purifoy, Nell Jackson, Mabel Walker, Gwendolyn Taylor, Jean Lowe, Theresa Manuel, Mary Griss, and Mellie McKee.

How They Finished

In the 80-meters hurdles, Miss Bernice Robinson, physical education student of George Williams College, Chicago, clocked 21.1 seconds, to lead Lollie Purifoy and Theresa Manuel of Tuskegee, second and third respectively. Lillian Robinson, Chicago Teachers College student, representing Forestville Playground was second in the broad jump behind Stella Walsh, white Polish-American AC athlete. Third placer was Tuskegee's Jean Lowe.

Mary Griggs, another Tuskegee ace, was behind Miss Walsh in the 100-meters dash. Teammate Juanita Johnson came in third.

Individual Tuskegee winners were Mable Walker, in the 50-meter dash, 6.7 seconds, followed by ex-Tuskegeean Alice Coachman and Tennessee State College's Mary Hardaway; and Mary Watson, in the baseball throw of 281 feet, 6 inches.

Tuskegee's A and B teams were first and third respectively in the 400-meter relay, in 50 seconds, with Tennessee State running second. High scorer of the meet was Miss Walsh with 30 points. Dorothy Dodson, diminutive star of the Chicago Hurricanes, collected 26 points for second place.

Tennessee State fell in fifth place with 27 points; Washington Park was seventh, with 17; Forestville was ninth with eight points. The Chicago Hurricanes had 41 points for third place.

THE SUMMARIES:

FIRST CHAMPION of the meet to be crowned was another Clevelander, Frances Kaszubski, who dethroned Dorothy Dodson, of Chicago, in the shot put. She won with a heave of 40 feet 5⅞ inches.

The first upset came in the 50-meter finals where Mabel Walker, of Tuskegee Institute, nipped Alice Coachman, also of Tuskegee. Miss Coachman had dominated the event for the past seven years.

Miss Walker was clocked in .06.7. She bettered the time of Miss Coachman in the 1947 event by [illegible] of a second.

Miss Kaszubski became the first double winner when she captured the discus throw with a toss of 124 feet 3⅜ inches. Miss Dodson was second.

Tuskegee Flash Plays Havoc

CHICAGO, Ill—(NNPA) — Juanita Watson of Tuskegee Institute last Saturday set a new American dirt-track record of :6.5 for fifty meters in the National AAU Women's indoor track and field meet at the University of Chicago fieldhouse.

The Tuskegee star ran :6.5 not only in the final 50-meter event but in her semi-final heat.

Athletics (Track)

Award of Merit Wins Architect At Ohio State

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala. —The American Society of Landscape Architects has awarded Edward Lawrence Pryce a certificate of merit for excellence in the study of landscape architecture at Ohio State University, Columbus, for the Academic Year, 1947-1948.

Previously, for excellence i. scholarship in landscape architecture, Pryce has been declared the winner for his design of a shopping center. The jury that made the award was composed of landscape architects meeting at Harvard University. Entered in this competition were students in landscape architecture from various sections of the United States.

Before entering Ohio State University, Pryce graduated with honors from Tuskegee Institute in the Class of 1937 with a Bachelor of Science degree in agriculture. At Tuskegee he was a captain in the R. O. T. C., and a member of the Ki-Yi Club and was affiliated with other campus organiations.

At present Pryce is instructor in landscape design at Tuskegee Institute.

Tuskegee's Lillie Purifoy Is Dethroned In Low Hurdle Event was never h... Guida of V... ter of Penn... Ewell, wh... 32.3 for a r... Conwell last... peated, notching a 5.2 performance ... to equal his mark. Norwood "Barney" Ewell was second. Conwell ran for the Jersey City Department of Recreation.

PEARMAN TAKES 1,000

To Reggie Pearman, NYU's sensational middle distance runner went to the John Borican memorial 1,000 yard event in the fast time 2:20.4.

The event, a new one on the meet program, was named for the late John Borican, Virginia State's great runner, who was one of the first to be dethroned as Nancy Cowperthwaite of the German-American A. C. equalled her 1947 time of 7.3 for the distance.

Tuskegee's foursome failed to make the expected showing when the Philadelphia Turners' aggregation, paced by the Nancy McClurken who annexed the dash, set a new meet record of 1:13 in winning.

DILLARD WINS HURDLES

After breezing through the trials of the 50-yard high hurdles, Harrison Dillard of Baldwin-Wallace did the expected by copping the final in 6.4.

Ed Dugger, former Tufts timber topper now representing Dayton (Ohio) was second with William Mitchell of Waripoco A. C. taking the third spot.

With all interest centered on the invitational 50-yard dash, Eddie ... 32.3 for a new meet record, gained ... Conwell last year's winner, ... second straight triumph and ... peated, notching a 5.2 performance ... the trophy ... to equal his mark. Norwood ... "Barney" Ewell was second. Con... well ran for the Jersey City De... partment of Recreation.

PEARMAN TAKES 1,000

To Reggie Pearman, NYU's sensational middle distance runner ... went to the John Borican memo... rial 1,000 yard event in the fast ... time 2:20.4.

The event, a new one on the meet program, was named for the ... late John Borican, Virginia State's ... great runner, who was one of the ... first to be dethroned as Nancy ... Cowperthwaite of the German-... American A. C. equalled her 1947 ... time of 7.3 for the distance.

Tuskegee's foursome failed to ... make the expected showing when ... the Philadelphia Turners' aggre... gation, paced by the Nancy Mc... Clurken who annexed the dash, set ... a new meet record of 1:13 in win... ning.

DILLARD WINS HURDLES

After breezing through the trials ... of the 50-yard high hurdles, Har... rison Dillard of Baldwin-Wallace ... did the expected by copping the ... final in 6.4.

Ed Dugger, former Tufts timber ... topper now representing Dayton ... (Ohio) was second with William

Dillard Tops Toppers While Pearman Wins Borican 1,000-Yarder

By GEORGE LYLE JR.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. —(NNPA) —With Philadelphia's Convention Hall jammed to the rafters, some 689 athletes vied for honors in the fourth annual Inquirer Charities Indoor Track Meet last Friday night and many sepia trackmen starred.

Lillie Purifoy, Tuskegee's broad jump champion who was the winner last year in the women's 50-yard low hurdle event, was the first to be dethroned as Nancy Cowperthwaite of the German-American A. C. equalled her 1947 time of 7.3 for the distance.

Tuskegee's foursome failed to make the expected showing when the Philadelphia Turners' aggregation, paced by the Nancy McClurken who annexed the dash, set a new meet record of 1:13 in winning.

DILLARD WINS HURDLES

After breezing through the trials of the 50-yard high hurdles, Harrison Dillard of Baldwin-Wallace did the expected by copping the final in 6.4.

Ed Dugger, former Tufts timber topper now representing Dayton (Ohio) was second with William

HOWARD TAKES 50

In the co... ard, with H... lida, Harry... Collins, wo... Catholic U... Lincoln ... heat as Sh... trail. Mor... their heat.

In the h... ton, forme... Joshua ... and ... for third ... BOSTON S...

Marcellus ... Cardozo H... a new 50-... combined ... vitation ... day.

Boston, ... lastic titleh... dash meet ...

In his h... meet, mark... Marcellus ... Mundell. ... failed to ... 50-yard sp... ciabella of ... Another ... Johnson. ... the school ... dles.

CARDOZO SLOW

In the high school mile relay, Cardozo of Washington was passed in the last 100 yards by two teams to capture third, Phelps, also of Washington was fourth.

Barney Ewell jumped into the lead at the beginning of the Charlie Paddock Memorial "300" and

Tuskegee Women Topple 2 AAU Indoor Records

CHICAGO — (ANP) — Records are made to be broken and two women athletes from Tuskegee Institute proceed that Saturday at the National Women's AAU indoor track meet in the University of Chicago fieldhouse. The meet, the first national event in which all judges were women, saw Theresa Manual clip a 15-year-old 50-meter hurdles mark by two-tenths of a second, and Juanita Watson, the 50-meter dash record by a 10th of a second.

Miss Manual clocked 7.4 seconds to beat the 7.6 record established -5 years ago. She was hard pressed by Bernice Robinson, 21 year old entry, from Washington park, Chicago, who was closing rapidly at the tape. Miss Wilson did her running in 6.5 seconds, to beat the 6.6 mark established in 1935, both in her semi-final and final trials. She took the lead a few paces from the starting line and was never threatened. Trailing was Lillian Young, Forrestville playground, Chicago.

In the 200 meter run, Audrey Patterson of Tennessee State College eclipsed the American record (titizen's) of :26.8 by clocking :26.4, with Nell Jackson, another Tuskegeean, getting second place. Miss Jackson won the preliminary heat in :26.5, a record which she held only 15 minutes.

Tuskegee's Robinson also took second in the high jump and 4th in the standing broad jump. She was the meet's high point winner scoring 20 points. Mamcy Cowperthwaite, German-American A. C. New York, who took a first in the standing broad jump and third in the 50 meter hurdles. shared second place in total points with Frances Kaszubski of Cleveland.

One of the two defending champions to be dethroned was Lillie Purifoy, Tuskegee's hurdles queen, who came in fourth in her event.

Summaries of the events:

200-Meter dash: Won by Audrey Patterson, Tennessee State; Nell Jackson, second, Jean Lowe, third both of Tuskegee.

50 Meter Hurdles: Won by Theresa Manual, Tuskegee; Bernice Robinson, Washington Park, Chicago; Nancy Cowperthwaite, German-American A. C., New York; third; Lillie Purifoy, Tuskegee, fourth.

50 Meter Dash: Won by Juanita Watson, Tuskegee; Lillian Young, Forrestville playground, Chicago; second; Mable Walker, Tuskegee, third.

400 Meter Relay: Won by Tuskegee (Hayes, Taylor, Watson, Jackson), with Tennessee State, second Running High Jump: Won by Emma Reed, Tennessee State; Miss Robinson, second; Evelyn Lawler, Tuskegee, 4th.

Shot Put: Dorothy Dodson, Chicago Hurricanes, second.

Standing Broad Jump: Won by Miss Cowperthwaite; Mildred Martin Chicago Hurricanes, 2nd Lawler, Tuskegee, third; Robinson, Washington Park, fourth.

Basketball Throw: Manual, Tuskegee, placed 4th.

Tuskegee gals keep their track title in the clear

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala. —Women track and field stars, including several Olympic contenders, competing in the 20th annual Tuskegee Women's Sports Day Championships held here last Friday in the Alumni Bowl, erased six meet records and tied a world mark.

Rolling up 51 points, Tuskegee's roster of AAU stars retained their crown in the senior division. The gold-clad lassies scored firsts in three of the track events—the 80-meter hurdles, 100-meter dash and the 400-meters relay—and captured two of the jumping and weight events.

Tennessee State college took second place with two track and two field firsts, to chalk up 25 points. Also in the running were Arkansas A. M. & N., 19; Grambling, 19; and Prairie View, 4.

Last year, Tuskegee high and Camden Academy tied for first place in the junior division with 35 points each; this year the Tuskegee spikesters scored heavily in the field events to take the title.

In the first event of the afternoon,—the 50-meters—Mary Hardaway, Tennessee State star streaked down the cinderpath in 6.4 seconds to lower the met record of 6.5, set by Lula Hymes in 1933, and tied by Jean Lane (Wilberforce) in 1940. She also tied the world mark, held jointly by Alice Coachman (Tuskegee); and Claire Isicson, (Long Island university).

Theresa Emanuel, Tuskegee's new hurdles sensation, who clipped a 15-year old 50-meters mark by two-tenths of a second in the National Women's AAU Indoor track meet last week-end in the Stagg Field House, the University of Chicago, ran the 80-meters hurdles in 11.9 to better the meet record of 12.7, established by Lillie Purifoy (Tuskegee) in 1946.

Then in the 200-meters run, Audrey Patterson, Tennessee State, who also clipped the American record in the National Women's AAU Meet, was clocked at 25.4 to blot out the old record of 26.0 held by Jean Lane (Wilberforce) since 1940.

Tuskegee's 20th Women's Meet On Friday, April 30

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.— Tuskegee Institute's 1948 indoor National A. A. U. Women's championship track team arrived home safely from Chicago, Monday. The Tuskegeeans won the title in Chicago, Saturday with 60 points.

The champions will be ready Friday to defend their title as champions of the Tuskegee women's track and field championships in the 20th running of this classic in Alumni bowl.

However, against the Tuskegeeans will be teams from Tenn. State, which finished third in the national meet Saturday in Chicago, and Prairie View, Grambling College, Wiley College, Fort Valley State and Florida A. and M.

Theresa Manuel, who established a new national record last Saturday, in the 50-meters hurdles by doing it in 7.4 seconds to break a 15-year-old mark and Juanita Watson, whose 6.6 for the 50-meters dash is a new time, will find themselves up against Tenn. State's Audrey Patterson who won the national 200-meters last Saturday, Reese of Prairie View and other visiting stars.

Tuskegee won last year's meet with 45 points. Prairie View was second with 26½. Tenn. State, third with 17 and the others trailed.

Tuskegee Woman on All-America

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—(AP)— Three feminine stars dominate the 1948 women's All-America track and field team of the Amateur Athletic Union, announced today by AAU headquarters.

They are Audrey Patterson of Tennessee State College, Juanita Watson of Tuskegee Institute and Frances Kaszubski of Cleveland, Ohio. Each was selected for two positions.

The women's AAU All-America team:

50-meter run—Juanita Watson, Tuskegee Institute.
100-meter run—Audrey Patterson, Tennessee State College.
200-meter run—Audrey Patterson.
50-meter hurdles—Theresa Manuel, Tuskegee.
80-meter hurdles — Bernice Robinson, Washington Park, Chicago.
Running high jump—Alice Coachman, Albany (Ga.) State.
Running broad jump—Emma Reed, Tennessee State College.
Standing broad jump—Nancy Cowperthwaite, New York City.
Eight-pound shot put—Frances Kaszubski, Cleveland, Ohio.
Discus throw—Frances Kaszubski.
Javelin throw—Dorothy Dodson, Chicago.
Basketball throw—Stella Gorka, Chicago.
Baseball throw—Juanita Watson.
400-meter relay—Audrey Patterson, Mabel Walker, Tuskegee; Lillian Young, Chicago, and Stella Walsh, Cleveland, Ohio.

Tuskegee Girls Establish Two Track Records

Theresa Manuel, Tuskegee Institute, clipped two-tenths of a second off the American 50-meters indoor hurdles record Saturday, April 24, in the National A. A. U. indoor meet in the University of Chicago fieldhouse when she won that event in 7.4 seconds and Miss Juanita Watson, also of Tuskegee, set a new indoor dirt track record in the 50-meters dash when she essayed the distance in 6.5 seconds to knock off one-tenth of a second from the old time of 6.6 set in 1935.

The Tuskegeeans, successfully defended their national indoor title won in 1946, by amassing 69 ponits to 31 which the Chicago Hurricanes, white, were able to muster. In third place was the four-girl team from Tennessee State with 29.

Forrestville Playground, Chicago, through the efforts of Lillian Young, student at Chicago Teachers College, who finished a close second to Miss Watson in the 50-meters, placed eighth with eight points while the great Bernice Robinson, Washington Park's 5-foot, 10½ inch George Williams College physical education student, won individual honors with 20 points to place her team sixth. Miss Robinson was second to Miss Manuel in the hurdle finals.

Olympic Team Prospects

Coach Cleve Abbott's Tuskegee girls served notice that they will be strong contenders for places on the United States women's Olympic team. The National A. A. U. meet in Grand Rapids, Mich., on July 6, and the Olympic team (for women) finals will be in Providence, R. I., on July 12.

Much credit is due Mel Walker, former Ohio State Big Ten and American record-holding high jumper, who has been coaching Miss Robinson. Both Miss Robinson and Miss Young can not be over-looked in the Olympic team selection.

Neither can Audrey Patterson, Tenn. State's flyer from New Orleans or can Emma Reed, also of Tenn. State, and winner in the high jump in which Miss Robinson was second be passed up. Reed won the high jump event at 4 feet, 11 and 3-8s inches. The two girls were tied but in the jump-off Miss Robinson missed three times and Miss Reed twice. Evelyn Lawler was fourth. Miss Robinson was fourth in the broad jumps.

Mabel Walker, Tuskegee was third in the 50-meters dash.

Audrey Patterson, Tenn. State, won the 200-meters dash in 26.4. Nell Jackson, Tuskegee, was second. Jean Lowe, Tuskegee, was third.

Lillie Purifoy, Tuskegee, former national indoor and outdoor hurdles champion, had to be content with fourth place in the finals.

Take Relay Event

Tuskegee's A team of Mabel Walker, Juanita Watson, Bessie Hayes and Nell Jackson won the 400-meters relay in 51.8. Team B, with the Misses Lawler, Griggs, Manuel and Lowe, was second in the trials after Lawler fell just before passing the baton to Griggs. The finals were between the winners of the first three heats and the two fastest teams finishing second. Tuskegee's B team thus wasn't in the finals.

Gwen Taylor, Tuskegee's little lassie from Harrisburg, Pa., pulled a tendon in her left leg in the dashes and was out of the relays.

Audrey Patterson, "turned on the steam" in the anchor 100-meters in the 400-meters relay to bring Tennessee State's team in second place. She had an eight-yard handicap as she started her turn. Tenn. State's runners were Mary Hardaway, Ella Wilson, Emma Reed and Miss Patterson.

TUSKEGEE TRAINED

"Georgia," says The Atlanta Constitution, "had one athlete in the Olympic games, the track and field events of which have just been concluded at London. That was Alice Coachman, of Albany, a young Negro woman, graduate of Albany State College."

5 feet, 6 1-8 inches and for the 26 gold medals she has won in national track and field events. The New York Herald Tribune points out that the record broken by the Negro girl was one established by the fabulous Babe Didrikson 16 years ago.

The Constitution goes on to congratulate the star got her training at Tuskegee Institute. What has not been brought out is that

Theresa Manual, AAU Hurdles Champ, Leads Cinder Stars

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala. — (SNS) — Tuskegee young women will take part in the Women's National Track and Field Championships of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States at Grand Rapids, Michigan July 6, 1948 and the Women's Final Olympic Track and Field Try-Outs Monday, July 12, 1948 at Providence, Rhode Island.

Theresa Manuel has been nominated by the Olympic Committee to participate in the Olympic trials and will run the 80 Meter Hurdles and 200 Meter Run. She is the daughter of Mrs. Frances Johnson of Tampa, Florida and is enrolled in the School of Physical Education at Tuskegee Institute, Alabama. She is a graduate of Middleton Senior High School of Tampa, Florida.

Theresa is the National AAU Junior 80 Meter Hurdles Champion, a member of the National Junior AAU Champion 400 Meter relay team, and holder of the National AAU Senior 50 Meter Hurdles Championship in which she set a new indoor record at Chicago April 14, 1948 Time 7.4 sec. 400 Meter relay team. Theresa is 22 years of age. Daily World

Others members of the squad are as follows: Atlanta, Ga.

Juanita Watson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Watson of Bessemer, Alabama is a Freshman in the School of Physical Education at Tuskegee Institute, Alabama. She is 18 years of age. Thurs.

At the National AAU Meet she will participate in the 100 Meter Run and on the A relay team. She is the holder of the National AAU 50 Meter indoor run won in 1948 in which she set a new record of 6.5 seconds. 7-1-48

In the Olympic trials she will run the 100 meter.

HURDLES STAR

Lillie Purifoy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Purifoy of Mobile, Alabama. Lillie set a new record in the indoor 50 yard Hurdles at Philadelphia in January 1947. Time 7.3 seconds. She also won the National AAU Running Broad Jump in 1947 at San Antonio, Texas defeating Stella Walsh.

In the Olympic trials she will broad jump and run the 80 Meter Hurdles. She will run on the B relay team, broad jump and run the 80 meter hurdles at the Grand Rapids Meet. She is the former indoor 50 yard Hurdles Champion and outdoor 80 Meter Hurdles Champion.

Gwendolyn Taylor is the 20 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick H. Taylor of Harrisburgh, Pennsylvania and is a sophomore in the School of Physical Education at Tuskegee Institute, Alabama. She is a 1946 graduate of the William Penn High School of Harrisburgh, Pennsylvania and entered Tuskegee Institute, September 1946.

Gwendolyn's spots career was started due to the interest and encouragement of her father. She is the co-record holder of the 50 yard dash of the Middle Atlantic Association the AAU in 6.5 seconds.

Being one of the girls nominated by the Olympic Committee, she will take part in the 100 meter and the 200 meter run. Daily World

Doris Hill is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George of Shorter, Alabama. She is the holder of the Junior High Jump championship won at the Annual Tuskegee Women's Sports Day and will take part in the high jump and hurdles in the National Championship.

OTHER AAU STARS

Mabel Walker is the National AAU Junior 50 meter champion of 1947. She is the daughter of Mrs. Annie Walker of Camden, Alabama and is a Freshman enrolled in the School of Physical Education at Tuskegee Institute.

Mabel will participate in the National Meet and also the Olympic Trials running in the 100 and 200 meters. Atlanta, Ga.

Mellie McKee is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie McKee of Bay Minette, Alabama. She is a sophomore in the School of Physical Education at Tuskegee Institute, Alabama. Thurs. 7-1-48

Mellie will participate in the National Championship in the Shot Put and Discus. She was a place winner in the National AAU Championships in the Shot Put and Discus in 1947 at San Antonio, Texas.

Mary Griggs, 17 year old, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Griggs of Tuskegee, Alabama.

Mary is the holder of the National AAU Junior 100 meter championship, won June, 1947 at San Antonio, Texas. At the National Meet in Grand Rapids, Michigan, she will take part in the 100 meter run and 400 relay and will take part in the 100 and 200 meters in the Olympic Trials.

Nell Jackson is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Brunett L. Jackson of Tuskegee Institute, Alabama. She is enrolled in the School of Physical Education at Tuskegee Institute, Alabama. Thurs.

Nell broke the American (Citizens') record 200 meter run (trials) and will participate in the Olympic Final Try-out running the 200 meter run. 7-1-48

John Carroll, Tuskegee Ace In AAU Trials

Daily World Atlanta, Ga.

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala. —(SNS)—John Carroll, Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, mile and two-mile champion, will represent Tuskegee Institute's track team at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, where he has been entered in the National Track and Field Athletic Union of the United States on July 2 and 3. Thurs.

On July 2, Carroll will run in the 1500 meter junior run and the 5000 meter run. On July 3 he will take part in the senior 1500 meter run which is the semi-final Olympic try-out for this event.

While Carroll is trying to qualiflying for the final Olympic trials to be held July 9 and 10 at Dyche Stadium, Northwestern University, Ecanston, Illinois, his feminine college mates, the thin-clads of the Tuskegee women's championship track and field team, will be taking part in the Women's National A. A. U., Track and Field Championships at Grand Rapids, Mich., July 6. 7-1-48

The young women contenders will go on from there to Providence, Rhode Island, where they will take part in the final Olympic try-outs, and those who are successful in these tests and upon their selection by the Olympic Committee, will sail at 4:00 p.m., July 14, from Pier 61, New York City, on the S. S. America for London, England.

Members of the Tuskegee Institute Women's Track and Field team selected to make the trip include: Theresa Manuel, Tampa, Florida; Juanita Watson, Bessemer, Alabama; Lillie Purifoy, Snow Hill, Alabama; Gwendolyn Taylor, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania; Doris Hill, Shorter, Alabama; Mabel Walker, Camden, Alabama; Mellie McKee, Bay Minette, Alabama; Mary Griggs, Tuskegee, Alabama; Nell Jackson, Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, and Jean Lowe, Toronto, Canada.

Cleve L. Abbott, director of the department of Physical Education and Athletics at Tuskegee Institute, will be in charge of the party.

Mrs. Jessie H. Abbott will be the chaperon.

Tuskegee Duo Are Favorites For Olympics

The News Birmingham, Ala.

BY BILL KING

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 10—(AP)—Eighty of the nation's top ranking women amateur athletes battle here Monday for about 24 places to them on the United States Olympic track team. Thurs.

More than half of them were in Providence tonight with the rest scheduled to arrive tomorrow. Many came directly from the National A. A. U. championships at Grand Rapids, Mich.

A few New England participants will come from their homes Monday. 7-12-48

The veteran Stella Walsh, who scored a triple victory in the broad jump, 100-meter and 200-meter events at Grand Rapids, will not compete here.

* * *

SHE IS INELIGIBLE for Olympic competition because she competed for her native Poland in the 1936 games.

Dorothy Dodson, diminutive luminary of the Chicago Hurricanes who was right behind Stella for top honors at Grand Rapids, leads the parade seeking spots on the Olympic games. Thurs.

Others include Alice Coachman of Albany State College, Albany, Ga.; Mrs. Frances Kaszusski of Cleveland, a double winner of A. A. U. firsts; Mabel Walker of Tuskegee Institute; Bernice Robinson of Washington Park, Chicago, and Juanita Watson, another Tuskegee star.

They plan double workouts tomorrow in the big Brown College Stadium where the tryouts will be held. 7-11-48

The U. S. Olympic committee plans to select a maximum of 24 for the trek to London. They are due to sail Thursday from New York.

* * *

THE THREE PLACE-WINNERS in each event, providing their times and distances are up to exacting Olympic standards, will be named to the squad to make the trip.

There are eight events on the program: 100-meter dash, 200-meter run, 80-meter hurdles, running broad jump, running high jump, eight-pound shotput, javelin throw and discus throw. The News

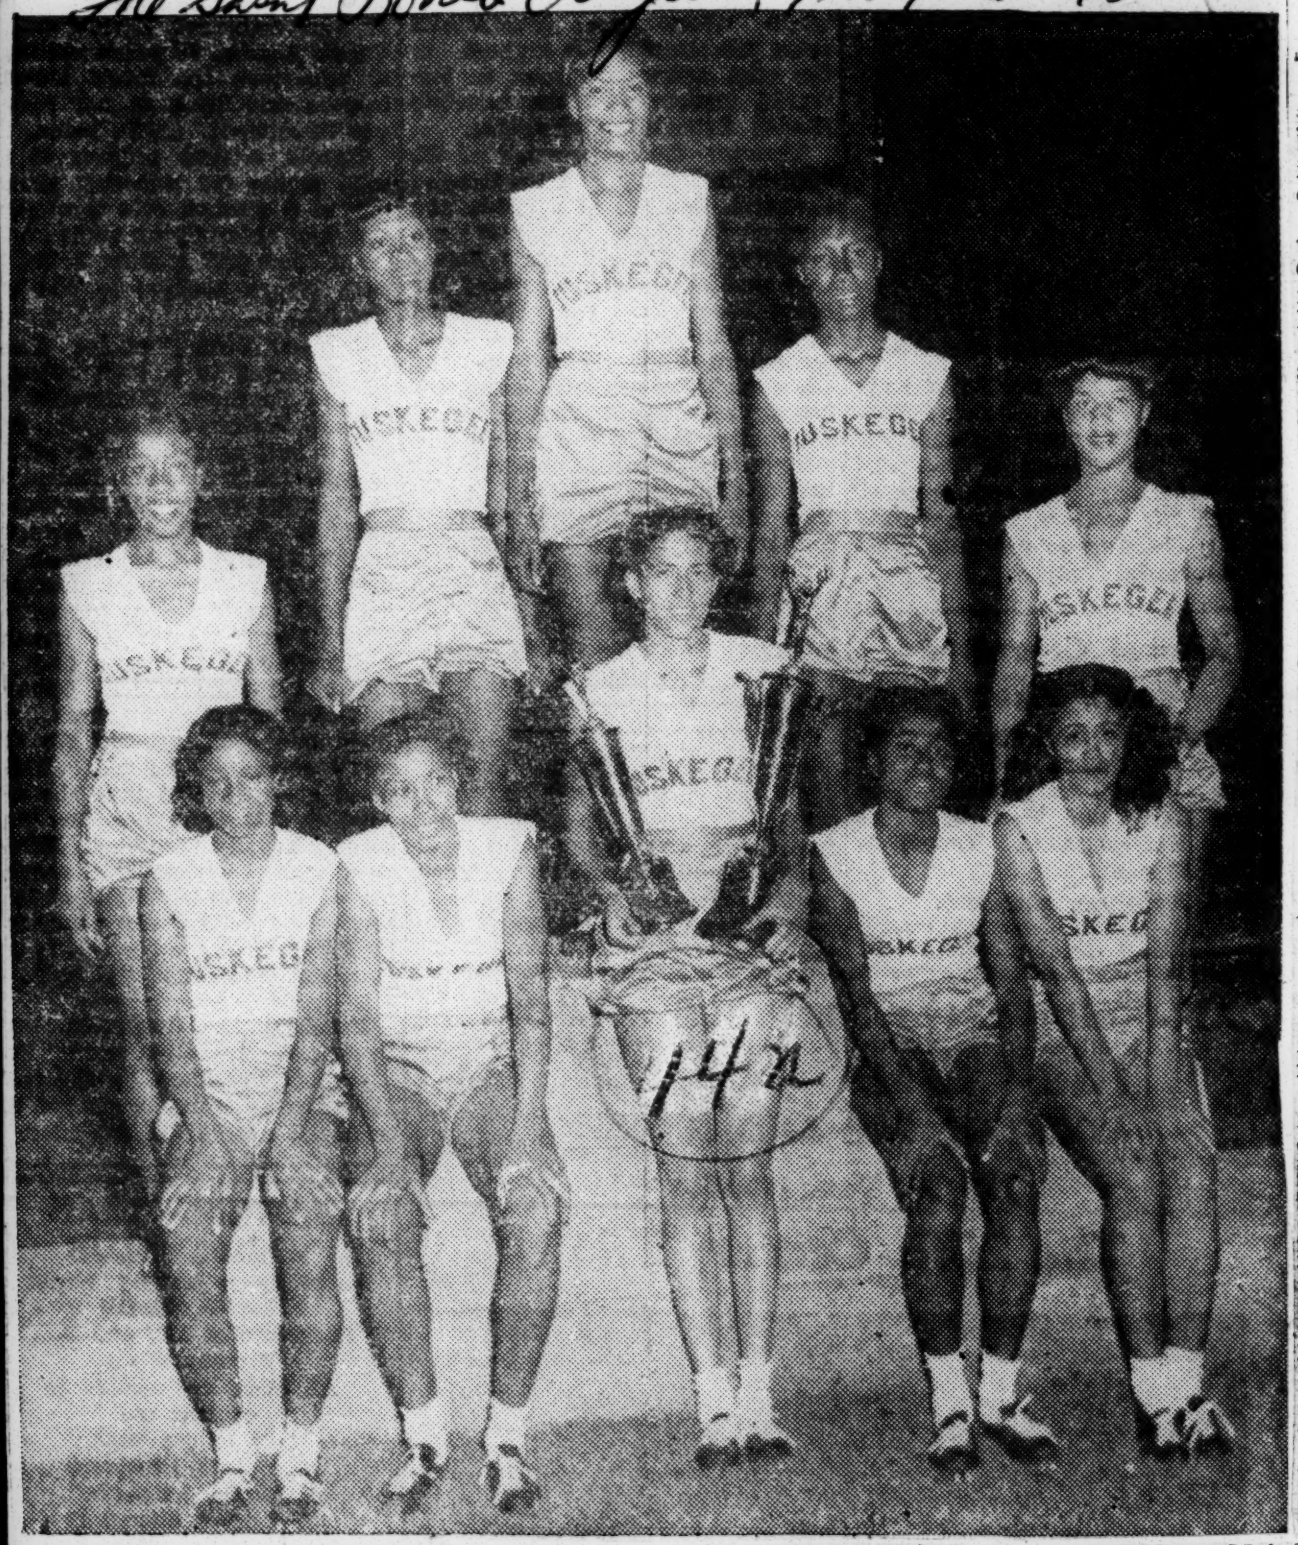
The 200-meter run, running broad jump and shotput are new events to Olympic competition. The other five were standard when the 1936 Olympics were held. Thurs.

Rear Admiral John H. Brown, Jr., a three sports star at Annapolis from 1910 to 1914, will represent Secretary of Defense Forrestal at the meet. Thurs. 7-1-48

Brown, now commanding officer of the Portsmouth, N. H., Navy Yard, will administer the Olympic oath to the contestants.

Reign Supreme In Women's Track And Field Realm

Saint Louis Mo
The Saint Louis Argus, Fri 7-16-48



GRAND RAPIDS, Mich, July 12—Tuskegee Institute's Track and Field team did not have much trouble running away with team honors in the national women's track and field championship at Houseman field last week. They almost doubled the score of their nearest team opponent.

Monday they repeated in Providence, R. I., by having most representatives to qualify for the U. S. Olympic women's team. Those qualifying were Mabel Walker, 100-meters; Theresa Manuel, javelin; Nell Jackson, 200-meters; Alice Coachman, high jump. Others recommended to go with the qualifiers were Lillie Purifoy and Mary Griggs.

The girls are, left to right, bottom row—Juanita Watson, Lillie Purifoy, Nell Jackson, Mabel Walker, Gwendoyln Taylor. Upper row, Jean Lowe, Theresa Manuel, Mary Griss and Mellie McKee. And to the right is another champion, the nation's best woman javelin thrower, Dorothy Dodson of Chicago. She's only 5 feet 2 and 122 pounds but she threw the spear farther than anyone else to win that title handily.

The NEWS On SPORTS

Ohio State News
Sat. 6-5-48

By AMOS H. LYNCH

WOMEN IN THE OLYMPICS: Five months of the Olympic year have passed along and the major part of it has been used in ballyhooing the male prospects for the games which are scheduled in London come August. Little and mostly nothing has been written of the women who will make up the U. S. team entry.

Looking back at the 1936 games we note that only two daughters of color were able to make the U. S. team, Tydie Pickett of Chicago and Louise Stokes of Malden, Mass. Neither were winners in the games at Berlin. Prospects are considerably better this year. In fact, Negro women track and field competitors are almost as abundant as are the males. The U. S. team will be highly representative of a united nation and several ebony hued daughters will doubtlessly add to the states with Olympic victories to their credit.

There are at least a dozen very good Olympic hopefuls, and six of whom victories in the games can possibly be had. Tops among them, in this writer's opinion, is Alice Coachman, now teaching in Georgia, won two national women's titles in 1947. She captured the high jump at 5 ft., 1 in. and was also winner of the 50 meters dash, a distance she covered in 6.8 seconds.

Others of whom great things can be expected are: Juanita Watson, 18-year-old sprinter from Bessemer, Ala.; Lillian Young (no relation to Buddy) of Forrestville playground in Chicago; Tuskegee's Theresa Manuel, a hurdler; Bernice Robinson, Chicago, sprinter; Lillie Purifoy, Tuskegee broad jump star; Mary Hardaway, sprinter from Tennessee State College; Audrey Patterson, 200-mter titilist in 1947, New Orleans; Emma Reed, Vicksburg, Miss. high jumper; Mary Ellen Wilson, sprinter from Evanston, Ill.

Of the sprinters Miss Watson appears to be the best bet. She raced off a new National AAU record in the 100-meter dash last year with a mark of 13.1 seconds. She lowered it to 12.6 seconds in a meet at Tuskegee this spring. She also holds the American indoor dirt track record for the 50-meter dash. The mark, 6.5 seconds, was set in the national indoor meet held at Chicago in April.

6-5-48

Tuskegee's Theresa Manuel is the nation's brightest prospect in the hurdles. She clipped two-tenths of a second off the 50-meter mark at Chicago with a timing of 7.4 seconds.

Lillie Purifoy has the best mark for the broad jump, 17 ft., 6 ins. In the high jump Alice Coachman has the best mark on record, 5 ft., 1 in., which was set last year as she establishsed a new national women's mark for the event. She's been timed at 6.8 seconds in the 50-meter dash.

Miss Coachman may have competition in the high jump from Bernice Robinson, Washington Park playground in Chicago. Miss Robinson tied for the indoor high jump title with a jump of 4 ft., 11 3-8 ins. in April and promises to go even higher this summer.

These are the very good prospects for the U. S. team entry and you'll be hearing and reading more about them after the women's National AAU outdoor championships are held in Grand Rapids, Mich. July 6. Olympic trials for the women will be held in the Brown University Stadium in Providence, R. I. July 12.

There will be from six to eight Negro women on the U S. team when they head for London in August—in the company of such greats as Harrison Dillard, Charles Fonville, Dave Albritton, Mel Patton, Mal Whitfield, Lloyd Duff and Gill Dodds.

Huge Throng Sees Tuskegee Relays Thriller

By FAY YOUNG

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—Theodore Bass of Grambling College, La., won the Robert S. Abbott memorial 440 yard run in the 22nd annual running of the Tuskegee Relays before a large crowd in Alumni Bowl, Saturday afternoon, May 1.

Bass stood off the last 20 yard threat of John George of Tuskegee Institute and finished a full yard in front of the Tuskegee ace. Odel Dinwitty of Langston University was third and Edward Bouie of Morris Brown fourth. Bass' time was :49.1

This is the third time that the permanent trophy for the Robert S. Abbott 440 yard run has gone to Louisiana. In 1942, it was won by Lewis Smith of Prairie View College, Texas. James Bolen, Southern Unversity Scotlandville, La., won it in 1943 and 1946. Sanford of Morehouse College took the trophy to Atlanta in 1944. In 1945 it remained in Tuskegee's trophy room and last year it went to Virginia Union University in Richmnd. Bolen's :48.9 made in 1946 is the best time for the memorial race.

Tuskegeean Cops Mile

The Robert R. Moton memorial mile run went to John Carroll of Tuskegee Institute. Xavier's Oliver Holmes placed second. John Thomas, Morris Brown was third, and Samson Smith of Xavier fourth. The time was 4:33.2.

The Clarence Matthews Memorial 100 yard dash was won byMatthew Clay of Prairie View College. He did a :09.5 race. The relay record is :09.5, established by Mozell Ellerbe in 1938. and has not been equalled in these meets. Second place went to Samuel Bolden, Alabama State College. Joseph Ireland of Southern was third.

The results of other races:

Prairie View Wins

The 880-yard relay won by Prairie View (Boston Grant, Francell Reece, Eural Davis, Matthew Clay;) Xavier (Wendell Belfeld, Eugene Douglass, Herman Detterville, Clayton Clary; Grambling College, (Charles James, Edward Adams, William Warren, Theodore Bass). Time 1:29.

The 120-yard High hurdles won by Fred Faucett, Langston University; Leroy Craig, Tennessee State, second; Marion Jones, Wiley, third. Time :14.4 seconds for a new meet record.

One mile relay won by Langston University (Fred Faucett, Virgil Patterson, Amos Brandford, Fred Dinwitty); Morehouse (Edwin Thompson, Shelly Lipscomb, Nap Johnson, John Floyd); Tuskegee Institute (Charles Gray, Alpheus Mathis, Clarence Davis, John George). Time 3:27.7.

Two mile relay won by Texas College (Oland Rogers, Bennie James, Sylvester Davis, Charles Sheppard); Morehouse (Edwin Thompson, Shelly Lipscomb, Nap Johnson, John Floyd); Tuskegee Institute (John Carroll, Clarence Davis, Alpheus Mathis, Charles Gray). Time 8:06.3.

Shot Put Under 50

Shot put won by Burgess Lawson of Arkansas State; A. Jones of Grambling second; M. Hall of Florida A and M Third. Distance 47 feet 8 inches.

Javelin toss won by Robinson of Xavier; James Cathy of Tuskegee second, Wyatt of Clark third. Distance 153 feet 11½ inches.

High jump won by McCants of South Carolina State; Craig of Tennessee State second; Thomas of Ft. Valley and Bilton of Prairie View tied for third. Height 6 feet 3 inches.

Running broad jump won by E. Davis of Prairie View; J. Ireland of Southern second; Griffin of Langston third. Distance 24 feet 11 5-8 inches.

Pole Vault won by W. Vilhiter of Tuskegee; Frank Turner of Ft. Valley, Carl Bailey of Florida A and M. Ray Harrison of Prairie View tied for second place. Height 11 feet 6 inches.

Hall Wins With Discus

Discus throw won by Manilus Hall of Florida A and M; W Gipson of Prairie View second; A. Jones of Grambling third. Distance 128 feet 8 3-4 inches.

Winners in the junior events were: two mile relay, Booker T. Washington High of Atlanta, 8:45.7; 440-yard relay, Camden Alabama Academy, :45.7; medley relay, Booker T. Washingon, 3:50.5; 880-yard relay, Camden, 1:34.6; one mile relay, Tuskegee Institute High School, 3:35.3.

The junior 100-yard dash was won by Willie McKee, Snow Hill Institute, Ala.; Robert Matthews of Southern University High School, second; Leo Haynes of Camden Academy, third. Time :10 seconds.

Laurels Divided In Relay Championships

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—(SNS)—Eural Davis, celebrated track and field star of Prairie View A. and M. College, Prairie View, Texas, shattered a meet record in the Running Broad Jump, to highlight the 22nd annual running of the Tuskegee Relays Carnival. held Saturday afternoon in the Alumni Bowl.

In capturing the Broad Jump championship for the third straight year, the Prairie View spikester jumped 24 ft. 11-5-8 inches to break the meet record of 23 ft. 4 in., set by Curtis Tucker, of Sam Houston College back in 1929.

Laurels in the relay championships were well divided. The Xavier University "Gold Rush" quartet cop ped the 440 Yard Relay; the Prairie View Panthers out-ran the field in the 880 Yard Relay; the Langston Lions came home first in the One Mile Relay; and the Texas College Steers put on a sensational finish to walk off with the Two Mile Relay.

WASHINGTON, CAMDEN DOMINATE PREP RELAYS

Booker T. Washington High School, of Atlanta, Georgia, and Camden Academy, of Camden, Alabama, dominated the high school relays, after fighting off the crack Tuskegee Institute High Schooi foursome, which was a constant threat in all of the team events. After repeating in their specialty, the Medley Relay, the Washington track men hit the tape first in the Two Mile Relay. Camden's easy-going sprint combination scored "first" in the 440 and the 880 Yard Relays. The Tuskegee High thinclads syept to victory in the One Mile Relay for the second consecutive year.

In addition to his record performance in the Broad Jump, Davis ran a leg in the 880 yard relay, Mat thew Clay, who anchored Prairie View to victory in the relay, ran the "century" in 9.6 to out-pace a fast field.

Willie Wilhite, of Tuskegee, won the pole vault, clearing the bar at 11 feet and 6 inches.

CARROLL WINS MOTON MILE

Also outstanding in the indivi dual events were John Carroll, Tuskegee's great distance runner. who breezed out in front in the classic Moton Mile; Frederick Fau cett, of Langston, who took the 120 Yard High Hurdles and ran a smart leg in the One Mile Relay. Burgess Lawson, of Arkansas A. M. and N., retained his shot put title; Theodore Bass, of Grambling, won the 440 Yard Run.

Other individual winners includ ed Howard McCants, South Carolina State (High Jump); Robinson, of Xavier (Javelin throw); Manilus Hall, Florida A. and M. College (discus throw); and Willie Mc Kee, Snow Hill Institute, who won the High School 100 Yard Dash.

SUMMARIES
COLLEGE RELAYS

440 YARD RELAY—1. Xavier. (Wendell Belfield, Douglas; Herman Deterville, Clayton Clark); 2. Prairie View (Boston Grant Reece, Eural Davis, Davis Matthew Clay); 3. Southern (Y. C. Holmes, Ernest Morgan, Joseph Ireland, Frank Stevens); 4. Florida A. and M. (North Hendon, Harold Cambridge, Curtis Moore, William Rolle). TIME: 42.4

880 YARD RELAY - 1. Prairie View (Boston Grant, Francell Reece, Eural Davis, Mathew Clay); 2. Xavier (Wendell Belfield, Eugene Douglas, Herman Deterville, Clayton Clark); 3. Grambling (Charles James, Edward Adams, William Warren, Theodore Bass); 4. Southern (W. C. Holmes, Ernest Morgan, Joseph Ireland, Frank Stevens). TIME: 1:29.

ONE MILE RELAY - 1. Langston (Frederick Faucett, Virgie Patterson, Amos Bradford, Frederick Dinwiddie); 2. Morehouse (Edwin Thompson, Schelly Lipscomb, Napoleon Johnson, Johnny Floyd); 3. Tuskeegee (Charles Gray, Alpheus Mathis, Clarence Davis, John George); 4. Arkansas A. M. and N. (Clarence Tollett, Ferdie Wiley, Arnold Gillard, Robert Cummings). TIME 3:27.7.

TWO MILE RELAY - 1. Texas College (Oland Rogers, Bennie James, Sylvester Davis, Charles Sheppard); 2. Morehouse (Edwin Thompson, Schelly Lipscomb, Napoleon Johnson, Johnny Floyd); 3. Tuskegee (John W. Carroll, Clarence Davis, Alpheus Mathis, Charles Gray); 4. Xavier (Willie Blackman, Leonard Tureand, Earl Nash, Cleveland Williams). TIME: 8:6.3.

COLLEGE INDIVIDUAL EVENTS

100 YARD DASH - 1. Matthew Clay (Prairie View); 2. Samuel Bolden (Alabama State); 3. Joseph Ireland (Southern) 4. Joseph McKinney (Morris Brown). TIME: 9.6

440 YARD RUN - 1 Theodore Bass (Grambling); 2. John George (Tuskegee); 3. Frederick Dinwiddie (Langston); 4. Edward Bouie (Morris Brown). TIME: 49.1

120 YARD HIGH HURDLES - 1. Frederick Faucett (Langston); 2. Leroy Craig (Tennessee State); 3. Marion Jones (Wiley); 4. George Conner (Xavier). TIME 14.4

MOTON MILE - 1. John Carroll (Tuskegee); 2. Oliver Holmes (Xavier); 3. John Thomas (Morris Brown); 4. Sampson Smith (Xavier). TIME: 4:33.2

RUNNING BROAD JUHP - 1. Eural Davis (Prairie View); 24 ft. 11 5-8 in.; 2. Joseph Ireland (Southern); 23 ft. 7 3-4 in.; 3. Griffin (Langston) 23 ft. 7 in.; Stinson (Morehouse); 22 ft. 6½ in. DISTANCE: 24 ft., 11 5-8 in.

DISCUS THROW - 1. Manilus Hall (Florida A and M), 128 ft. 8 3-4 in.; 2. Willie Gipson (Prairie View), 124 ft. 4½ in.; 3. Jones (Grambling), 121 ft. 2½ in.; 4. Burgess Lawson (Arkansas A. M. and M.), 120 ft in. DISTANCE: 128 ft. 8 3-4 in.

JAVELIN THROW - 1. Robinson (Xavier), 153 ft. 11½ in.; 2. James Cathey (Tuskegee), 150 ft. 11½ in.; 3. Wyatt (Clark) 150 ft. 1½ in.; 4. Manilus Hall (Florida A and M), 146 ft.; ½ in. DISTANCE: 153 ft. 11½ in.

HIGH JUMP - 1. Howard McCants (South Carolina State), 6. ft. 3 in.; 2. Leroy Craig (Tennessee State), 6 ft. 2 in.; 3. Thomas (Fort Valley State), 6 ft.; and Dilton (Prairie View) 6 ft.; 4. Samuel Mitchum (Xavier), 5 ft. 10 in. HEIGHT: 6 ft., 4 in.

SHOT PUT - 1. Burgess Lawson (Arkansas A. M. and N.), 47 ft. 6 in.; Jones (Grambling), 44 ft. 1½ in.; 3. Manilus Hall (Florida A and M), 42 ft. 4 in.; 4. Gipson (Prairie View), 41 ft. 6½ in. DISTANCE: 47 ft. 6 in.

POLE VAULT - 1. Willie Wilhite (Tuskegee), 11 ft. 6 in.; Three-way tie for second place: Frank Turner (Fort Valley State); Carl Bailey (Florida); Ray Harrison (Prairie View), 11 ft. HEIGHT: 1 ft., 6 in.

HIGH SCHOOL EVENTS

440 YARD RELAY - 1. Camden Academy (Paul Washington, Frank Walker, David Scott, Lee Hayes); 2. Tuskegee (Fred Reid, Clarence Crawford, Willie Scott, William Anderson); 3. Booker Washington, Atlanta (H. B. Emanuel, Harold Turner; Wallace Turner, Myer Nolan); 4. Howard, Atlanta (Horace Humphrey Silas Lackey, Edward Crowder, Bennie Foster). TIME: 45.7

MEDLEY RELAY - 1. Booker Washington, Atlanta (Worth Christler, Wallace Turner, Myer Nolan, Norman Reddick); 2. Tuskegee (Robert Hunter(Fred Reed Willie Scott, Cornelius Polk); 3. Howard, Atlanta (John Showers, Horace Humphrey Bennie Foster, James Pace); 4. St. Peter, Pine Bluff, Ark., (Theopria James, Herbert Blood, Sidney Morris, Ivory Frankmy (Paul Washington, Frank Walker, lin). TIME: 3:50.5

880 YARD RELAY - 1. Camden Academy (David Scott, Leo Hayes); 2. Tuskegee (Clarence Crawford, William Anderson, Willie Scott, Fred Reed); 3. Alabama State (William Meadows, Isaac Watson, Johnny Jones, James Hall); 4. Southern (Leroy Sims, Douglas, Theodore Morgan, Henry Porter). TIME: 1:34.6

ONE MILE RELAY - 1. Tuskegee (Theodore Polk, Cornelius Polk, Charles Miller, Robert Hunter); Washington, Atlanta (Wallace Turner, Norman Reddick, John Andrews, Worth Christler); 3 Howard, Atlanta (Jesse Fortson, Charles Brooks, John Showers, James Pace). TIME 3:35.3

TWO-MILE RELAY—Booker Washington, Atlanta (Norris Farmer, Rudolph Smith, Norman Reddick, Worth Christler); 2. Tuskegee (Theodore Polk, Charles Miller, Cornelius Polk, Robert Hunter); 3. Howard, Atlanta (Charles Brooks, Carlton Burley, Richard White, James Pace); 4. Southern Demonstration (Walter Ford, Leroy Sims, Labeux Nolan, Henry Porter). TIME: 8:45.7

100 YARD DASH - 1. Willie McKee (Snow Hill); 2 Robert Matthews (Southern); 3. Leo Hayes (Camden); 4. Robert Cook (Southern). TIME: 10.0

Davis Clips Jump Mark at Tuskegee

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—Eural Davis, track and field star of Prairie View A. and M. College, shattered a meet record in the running broad jump, to highlight the 22nd annual running of the Tuskegee Relays Carnivaly, Saturday at the Alumni Bowl.

In capturing the broad jump for the third straight year, the Prairie View spikester jumped 24 feet 11⅝ inches to break the meet record of 23 feet 4 inches, set by Curtis Tucker, of Sam Houston College in 1929.

Laurels in the relay championships were well divided. The Xavier University quartet copped the 440-yard relay; Prairie View out ran the field in the 880-yard relay; Langston came home first in the one-mile relay, and Texas College put on a sensational finish to walk off with the two-mile relay.

Booker T. Washington High School, of Atlanta, Ga., and Camden Academy, of Camden, Ala., dominated the high school relays, after fighting the crack Tuskegee Institute High School foursome, which was a constant threat in all of the team events.

In addition to his record performance in the broad jump, Davis ran a leg in the 880-yard relay, and Matthew Clay, who anchored Prairie View to victory in the relay, won the century in 9.6.

440-Yard Run To Feature 22nd Annual 'Skege Relay Carnival On Sat., May 1

BY FAY YOUNG

TUSKEGEE, Ala.—Marion "Jap" Jones, Wiley College's ironman from Marshall, Texas; John George, Tuskegee Institute's high scoring basketball star, and Clayton Clark of Xavier University in New Orleans, are the outstanding quartermilers who will face Fred Long, veteran Wiley coach and starter, in the 22nd running of the Tuskegee relay carnival here in Alumni Bowl on Saturday, May 1.

These runners, as well as those from Morehouse, Morris Brown, Florida A. and M. Prairie View State Teachers College of Hemstead, Texas; Texas State University of Houston; Bishop College of Marshall, Texas; Southern University of Scotlandville, La.; Texas College of Taylor, Texas; Langston University of Oklahoma, Grambling College of Louisiana, Tenn. State of Nashville; Alabama State Teachers College of Montgomery; Fort Valley State of Georgia, Aransas State College of Pine Bluff, Ark., and ROBERT S. ABBOTT Memorial 440-yard run.

Carroll has done a 49 seconds quarter this spring while Clark has a 48 seconds 440 to his credit. Last year's ROBERT S. ABBOTT Memorial run was won by Lewis Smith of Virginia Union in 50 seconds.

Topping the list of those entered in the Robert R. Moten Memorial mile run L. D. Sheppard, star end on Texas College eleven who runs that event in 4:19. But Sheppard will have to extend himself because Tuskegee's John Carroll, fresh out of the army after three years service overseas, has been timed in 4:20 without being pushed.

Fast Century Men

Wendell Belfield who won the Clarence Mathews Memorial 100-yard dash last year in 9.9 seconds (the same time as Bill Mathis of the University of Illinois made at the Penn relays a week earlier) will be back with the Xavier team. Belfield did a 9.6 two weeks ago in the San Jacinto relays in Marshall, Texas.

Belfield's teammate, Clayton Clark, whom Coach Priestley may hold out of the century, has been timed in 9.6. Priestley may decide to save Clark for the ABBOTT 440 and the relay events.

That Xavier is feared by most of the coaches was shown by their expressions when the Xavier 440-yard, 880-yard, one-mile and two-mile relay teams worked out here Thursday.

Prairie View's Van Murphy, winner of the P. V. two-mile event, is out to take the distance race but will find himself up against a field of good performers from all of the Southwestern and Southern conference colleges.

Texans After 2-Mile Relay

Texas College two-mile relay team of James, Rogers, Davis and Sheppard which did a 11:34 in the Prairie View relays and the Southern University 880-yard team of Holmes, Ireland, Stevens and Morgan with a 1:34.8 are strong contenders in that event.

Marion "Jap" Jones is Wiley's best bet in the 120-high hurdles. He won the event last year in 15.4 seconds.

Prairie View's 440-yard relay team of Grant, Reese, Davis and Clay will be up against Southern, Wiley, Texas College, Xavier (with Belfield and Clark) Morehouse with Freddie Guy, a 9.8 man in the century running anchor; Tuskegee, Texas State and Florida.

Henry Pennyman, Arkansas State's weightman, returns for the discus toss which he won last year with a toss of 127 feet, 4 inches.

Eural Davis, Prairie View, winner of the broad jump with shotput with 22 feet, 7 and 1-8 inches, returns for that event and the relays.

Large Entry List

The largest number of schools and the largest number of entries are competing in this year's meet.

A preview of some of the Negro stars who will be in the National A. A. U. senior meet in Milwaukee on July 2 and 3, the winners of the first six places going into the final trials for the United States Olympic team in Dyche Stadium, Evanston, Ill., later in the month, will be seen in Saturday's meet.

Fred Long, veteran Wiley College coach, is starter. B. T. Harvey of Morehouse College is referee.

Huge Throng Sees Tuskegee Relays Thriller

By FAY YOUNG

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—Theodore Bass of Grambling College, La., won the Robert S. Abbott memorial 440 yard run in the 22nd annual running of the Tuskegee Relays before a large crowd in Alumni Bowl, Saturday afternoon, May 1.

Bass stood off the last 20 yard threat of John George of Tuskegee Institute and finished a full yard in front of the Tuskegee ace. Odel Dinwitty of Langston University was third and Edward Bouie of Morris Brown fourth. Bass' time was :49.1.

This is the third time that the permanent trophy for the Robert S. Abbott 440 yard run has gone to Louisiana. In 1942, it was won by Lewis Smith of Prairie View College, Texas. James Bolen, Southern Unversity Scotlandville, La., won it in 1943 and 1946. Sanford of Morehouse College took the trophy to Atlanta in 1944. In 1945 it remained in Tuskegee's trophy room and last year it went to Virginia Union University in Richmnd. Bolen's :48.9 made in 1946 is the best time for the memorial race.

Tuskegeean Cops Mile

The Robert R. Moton memorial mile run went to John Carroll of Tuskegee Institute. Xavier's Oliver Holmes placed second. John Thomas, Morris Brown was third, and Samson Smith of Xavier fourth. The time was 4:33.2.

The Clarence Matthews Memoria 100 yard dash was won byMatthew Clay of Prairie View College. He did a :09.5 race. The relay record is :09.5, established by Mozell Ellerbe in 1938. and has not been equalled in these meets. Second place went to Samuel Bolden, Alabama State College. Joseph Ireland of Southern was third.

The results of other races:

Prairie View Wins

The 880-yard relay won by Prairie View (Boston Grant, Francell Reece, Eural Davis, Matthew Clay;) Xavier (Wendell Belfeld, Eugene Douglass, Herman Detterville, Clayton Clary; Grambling College, (Charles James, Edward Adams, William Warren, Theodore Bass). Time 1:29.

The 120-yard High hurdles won by Fred Faucett, Langston University; Leroy Craig, Tennessee State, second; Marion Jones, Wiley, third. Time :14.4 seconds for a new meet record.

One mile relay won by Langston University (Fred Faucett, Virgil Patterson, Amos Brandford, Fred Dinwitty); Morehouse (Edwin Thompson, Shelly Lipscomb, Nap Johnson, John Floyd); Tuskegee Institute (Charles Gray, Alpheus Mathis, Clarence Davis, John George). Time 3:27.7.

Two mile relay won by Texas College (Oland Rogers, Bennie James, Sylvester Davis, Charles Sheppard); Morehouse (Edwin Thompson, Shelly Lipscomb, Nap Johnson, John Floyd); Tuskegee Institute (John Carroll, Clarence Davis, Alpheus Mathis, Charles Gray). Time 8:06.3.

Shot Put Under 50

Shot put won by Burgess Lawson of Arkansas State; A. Jones of Grambling second; M. Hall of Florida A and M Third. Distance 47 feet 8 inches.

Javelin toss won by Robinson of Xavier; James Cathy of Tuskegee second. Wyatt of Clark third. Distance 153 feet 11½ inches.

High jump won by McCants of South Carolina State; Craig of Tennessee State second; Thomas of Ft Valley and Bilton of Prairie View tied for third. Height 6 feet 3 inches.

Running broad jump won by E. Davis of Prairie View; J. Ireland of Southern second; Griffin of Langston third. Distance 24 feet 11 5-8 inches.

Pole Vault won by W. Vilhiter of Tuskegee; Frank Turner of Ft Valley, Carl Bailey of Florida A and M. Ray Harrison of Prairie View tied for second place. Height 11 feet 6 inches.

Hall Wins With Discus

Discus throw won by Manilus Hall of Florida A and M; W Gipson of Prairie View second; A. Jones of Grambling third. Distance 128 feet 8 3-4 inches.

Winners in the junior events were: two mile relay, Booker T. Washington High of Atlanta, 8:45.7; 440-yard relay, Camden Alabama Academy, :45.7; medley relay, Booker T. Washingon, 3:50.5; 880-yard relay, Camden, 1:34.6; one mile relay, Tuskegee Institute High School, 3:35.3.

The junior 100-yard dash was won by Willie McKee, Snow Hill Institute, Ala.; Robert Matthews of Southern University High School second; Leo Haynes of Camden Academy, third. Time :10 seconds

DEFEND NATIONAL A.A.U. CHAMPIONSHIPS—Tuskegee Institute's crack women's track and field team, National A.A.U. indoor and outdoor champions. They will defend their team title and championships in several events at the National meet in Grand Rapids, Mich., this week, and will move on to Providence, R. I., for the finals for the United States Olympic team on July 12.

TUSKEGEE MEN AND WOMEN SEEK OLYMPIC TEAM PLACES

TUSKEGEE, Ala.—John Carroll, Southern Collegiate Athletic Conference mile and two-mile champion, left Tuskegee Institute Wednesday for Milwaukee, Wis., where he will participate in the national track and field championship contests Friday and Saturday.

Friday he will enter the 1,500-meter junior and the 5,000-meter races. Saturday he will enter the senior 1,500-meter contest which will be a semi-final tryout for this event.

Carroll is trying to qualify for the final Olympic trials, which will be held July 9 and 10 at Dyche Stadium, Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.

Tuskegee will send its women's track and field team to the women's national AAU track and field championship contests in Grand Rapids, Mich., July 6.

The young women contenders will go on from there to Providence, R. I., where they will take part in the final Olympic tryouts, and those who are successful in these tests and upon their selection by the Olympic committee, will sail at 4 p.m., July 14, from Pier 61, New York City, on the SS America for London, England.

Members of the Tuskegee Institute women's track and field team selected to make the trip include: Theresa Manuel, Tampa, Fla.; Juanita Watson, Bessemer; Lillie Purifoy, Snow Hill; Gweldolyn Taylor, Harrisburgh, Pa.; Doris Hill, Shorter; Mabel Walker, Camden; Mellie McKee, Bay Minette; Mary Griggs, Tuskegee; Nell Jackson, Tuskegee Institute, and Jean Lowe, Toronto, Canada.

Cleve L. Abbott, director of the department of physical education and athletics at Tuskegee Institute, will be in charge of the party.

Mrs. Jessie H. Abbott will be the chaperone.

Tuskegee Girls Establish Two Track Records

Theresa Manuel, Tuskegee Institute, clipped two-tenths of a second off the American 50-meters indoor hurdles record Saturday, April 24, in the National A. A. U. indoor meet in the University of Chicago fieldhouse when she won that event in 7.4 seconds and Miss Juanita Watson, also of Tuskegee, set a new indoor dirt track record in the 50-meters dash when she essayed the distance in 6.5 seconds to knock off one-tenth of a second from the old time of 6.6 set in 1935.

The Tuskegeeans, successfully defended their national indoor title won in 1946, by amassing 69 ponits to 31 which the Chicago Hurricanes, white, were able to muster. In third place was the four-girl team from Tennessee State with 29.

Forrestville Playground, Chicago, through the efforts of Lillian Young, student at Chicago Teachers College, who finished a close second to Miss Watson in the 50-meters, placed eighth with eight points while the great Bernice Robinson, Washington Park's 5-foot, 10½ inch George Williams College physical education student, won individual honors with 20 points to place her team sixth. Miss Robinson was second to Miss Manuel in the hurdle finals.

Olympic Team Prospects

Coach Cleve Abbott's Tuskegee girls served notice that they will be strong contenders for places on the United States women's Olympic team. The National A. A. U. meet in Grand Rapids, Mich., on July 6, and the Olympic team (for women) finals will be in Providence, R. I., on July 12.

Much credit is due Mel Walker, former Ohio State Big Ten and American record-holding high jumper, who has been coaching Miss Robinson. Both Miss Robinson and Miss Young can not be over-looked in the Olympic team selection.

Neither can Audrey Patterson, Tenn. State's flyer from New Orleans or can Emma Reed, also of Tenn. State, and winner in the high jump in which Miss Robinson was second be passed up. Reed won the high jump event at 4 feet, 11 and 3-8s inches. The two girls were tied but in the jump-off Miss Robinson missed three times and Miss Reed twice. Evelyn Lawler was fourth. Miss Robinson was fourth in the broad jumps.

Mabel Walker, Tuskegee was third in the 50-meters dash.

Audrey Patterson, Tenn. State, won the 200-meters dash in 26.4. Nell Jackson, Tuskegee, was second. Jean Lowe, Tuskegee, was third.

Lillie Purifoy, Tuskegee, former national indoor and outdoor hurdles champion, had to be content with fourth place in the finals.

Take Relay Event

Tuskegee's A team of Mabel Walker, Juanita Watson, Bessie Hayes and Nell Jackson won the 400-meters relay in 51.8. Team B, with the Misses Lawler, Griggs, Manuel and Lowe, was second in the trials after Lawler fell just before passing the baton to Griggs. The finals were between the winners of the first three heats and the two fastest teams finishing second. Tuskegee's B team thus wasn't in the finals.

Gwen Taylor, Tuskegee's little lassie from Harrisburg, Pa., pulled a tendon in her left leg in the dashes and was out of the relays.

Audrey Patterson, "turned on the steam" in the anchor 100-meters in the 400-meters relay to bring Tennessee State's team in second place. She had an eight-yard handicap as she started her turn. Tenn. State's runners were Mary Hardaway, Ella Wilson, Emma Reed and Miss Patterson.

Tigers In 15-0 Win In Classic

By FAY YOUNG

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — It took Tuskegee Institute's Tigers the entire first half of the 25th anniversary Cramton Bowl Turkey Day game against Alabama State Teachers College Hornets to find out that they had to play some football to win. Then in the third quarter they led 6-0 and in the final period piled up nine points to ice the game, 15-0.

Thanksgiving Day victory gave Tuskegee its 18th victory in the 25 Dixie Classics which have been played in Cramton Bowl, Ala. State has won four and three have ended in ties. Everybody remembers that hectic 26-26 deadlock of 1947 when Ala. State staved off defeat in the closing minute of play and then lost a golden chance for a victory by missing the point after touchdown.

Tuskegee won four games, lost four and tied one for the season's record. Ala. State had a most miserable season. It defeated Morehouse College of Atlanta, 7-0, for the only victory on its 10-game schedule. Clark and State played a scoreless tie and the other eight games were in the loser's column. Yet, Morehouse, which had lost to State triumphed, 22-14 over Tuskegee and Clarked dropped a 14-13 game to the Tigers.

ALWAYS HARD FOUGHT

No matter what the season's record of either team is, the Cramton Bowl game is the most important and the hardest fought. And the fans knowing this, change the hour of their turkey dinner and come out in full force. A crowd of over 15,000, one third of whom were white, stayed on, as the evening's shadows fell on the playing field, until the game was over.

Played to a standstill in the first half, Tuskegee came back in the second part of the game with a detirmination not to be denied. State had made three first downs in the opening period and one more in the second period. Then the local team bogged down and when the game was over had made only six first downs to Tuskegee's 18.

State took to their air 19 times, completed three and had one intercepted. Total yardage gained on passes was 44. Total yardage gained on rushing was 69. Tuskegee gained 211 yards on rushing and 60 yards on passing. Tuskegee tried 17 passes, completed five and had four intercepted.

Tuskegee lost 95 yards on penalties, State, 25. State returned Tuskegee's punts for a 71 yard total. Tuskegee returned State's punts for a 37 yard total. Tuskegee's punts averaged 39.5 yards while St[illegible]'s average 41.5.

TUSKEGEE SCORES

State kicked off to Tuskegee to start the second half and the Tigers were downed on their own 12. In 12 plays, the Tigers had driven 88 yards to score their first touchdown. James Swinney, 180-pound back from Atlanta's Booker T. Washington high, crashing through the middle of State's forward wall from the three. The try for extra point was wide.

In the fourth quarter, George Dickerson, halfback from Birmingham's Parker high got loose and raced 57 yards to the State three from where he went over on the next play. Bill Brown from the Don Thompson high in Tampa, Fla., booted the extra point.

State was still in the game. However, passes failed to click. The score could have been tied. Two touchdowns and two points after would have been given State the victory it yearned for. But late in the fourth period, Berman Harbor from New Orleans, Booker T. high, broke through from his guard position and pinned 155-pound Percy Weatherly from Carver high, Gadsen, Ala., for a safety and whatever hopes that State had to tie or win went by-bye.

MANY STARS

The game had its stars. Plenty on both sides. Albert Pratt, from Chicago's Dunbar Trade school, George Brown, Savannah tackle; Haywood Scissum, Gadsen, Ala., end; Porcher Taylor, Jacksonville, Fla., fullback; James Beavers, 200-pound Birmingham center; Andrew Belle, Enterprise, Ala., guard, all starred for Tuskegee along with Swinney and Dickerson. Pratt plays both in the line and the backfield.

Playing well for Alabama State, there were Percy Weatherly and Eugene Weatherly, both backs and both from Gadsen, Alabama; Edward Pressley and Horace Ragland, both backs and Lawrence Pressley, guard, all from Gadsen, Alabama; Howard Green, 213-pound guard from Gadsen; Curtis Parker, Phenix City, Alabama, guard; William Craig, center from Decatur, Alabama; Archie Shaw, Fayette, Alabama; William Bell and Sam Bolden, two backs from Gadsen.

WOMEN'S INDOOR TRACK MEET SET FOR SATURDAY

Chicago Tribune P. 4 Thurs. 5-22-48

200 Meter Run Holds Olympic Interest

The National A.A.U. women's indoor track meet will be held at the University of Chicago fieldhouse, 56th st. and University av., Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Organizations which have filed entries are: German American A.C. of New York City; Tennessee State college; J.T. Dempsey Hurricanes of Chicago; North Olmsted-Westlake Athletic club (Ohio); Tuskegee institute of Alabama; a team representing the recreation of the board of ed-Square; Washington park; Forestville playground and Gary playground of Chicago.

Olympic Event on Program

Seventeen entries have been filed for the 50 meter run, including Mabel Walker of Tuskegee, Juanita Watson of Tuskegee, winner of the 100 meter outdoors, and Lillian Young of Forestville playground.

Of the 10 entries in the light pound shotput, five are from the Dempsey Hurricanes, with Dorothy Dodson, defending champion, heading the list. Her closest rival is Frances Kaszubski, runnerup in the outdoor championships.

Outstanding among the 12 entered in the high jump are Emma Reed of Tennessee State college, runnerup outdoors; Bernice Robinson of Washington park, Jean Walraven, Rebecca Oprea, and Helen L. Leich of the North Olmsted-Westlake A.C. Lillie Purifoy, Nancy Cowperthwaite and Lillian Young, first three place winners in the outdoor meet last summer, together with 10 others makeup the field in the standing broad jump.

Special interest will center in the 200 meter run, one of the events on the Olympic program. The field is made up of Tennessee State college, second place winner in the outdoor meet; Josephine Wilkowski of Chicago Hurricanes; Eileen Lessick, Chicago bureau of recreation, and four from Tuskegee institute: Nell Jackson and Gwendolyn Taylor, third and fourth place winners outdoors; Mary Griggs, junior outdoor 100 meter champion, and Jean Lowe.

In the 50 meter hurdles, a close contest is expected between Nancy Cowperthwaite of the German American A.C., outdoor champion, and Lillie Purifoy of Tuskegee institute, indoor champion. Other entries in this event are: Loretta M. Blaul and Eleanor Millheiser of the German American A.C., Eunice Wilson and Mildred Martin of the Chicago Hurricanes; Theresa Manuel of Tuskegee, Mary E. Wilson of Tennessee State college, Bernice Robinson of Washington park, and Jean Walraven of the North Olmsted-Westlake A.C.

Girls Track and Field Team Leaves For Chicago

Tuskegee Institute, Ala. — The Tuskegee Institute girls' track and field team left the Institute Wednesday morning, April 21, to defend their National A. A. U., Women's Indoor Championship at Stagg Field House, the University of Chicago, April 24th.

The Tuskegee girls' track and field team has established an enviable record in athletics for girls. Since 1936, the record of these girls has been unsurpassed in the story of women's athletics. In 1936 at Providence, Rhode Island, Tuskegee girls won second place in the National A. A. U. Championships held in conjunction with the final Olympic tryouts for women. Every indoor and outdoor Junior and Senior championship since 1936, except for the 1943 outdoor meet held at Lakewood, Ohio, in which they finished in second place, the Tuskegee girls have outscored their oponents.

Young women who will take part in the Chicago meet are:

Jean Lowe, 200 Relay

Bessie Hayes, 50 Relay

Gwendolyn Taylor, 200 Relay.

Evelyn Lawler, High Jump, Broad Jump, Relay

Mabel Walker, 50 Relay

Mary Griggs, 200 Relay

Theresa Manuel, Hurdles—200 Relay

Nell Jackson, 200 Relay

Lylly Purifoy, Hurdlers, Broad Jump, Relay

Juanita Watson, 50 Relay

Nellie McKee, Shot Put, Basketball Throw

Elaine Bradford, Shot, Basketball Throw

Theresa Manuel is the National Junior 80 meter hurtle champion. Lilly Purifoy is the National running broad jump champion, holder of the world's indoor record in the 50-yard hurdles at 7.3 second, set at Philadelphia in January, 1947, and former National indoor and outdoor hurdles champion. Mary Griggs is the National junior 100 meter champion, Mabel Walker the National junior 50 meter champion, and Juanita Watson, the National 100 meter champion.

Tuskegee Girls Win Own Meet; Tenn. State Second

By FAY YOUNG

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala. —Tuskegee Institute's National AAU Indoor and Outdoor Champ-ionshop Track Team successfully defended its Tuskegee Women's Meet title in Alumni Bowl here Friday April 30, by piling up 51 points.

It was the 20th running of the Tuskegee Women's Track and Field Championships.

Tennessee State was second with 25 points. Arkansas State College lassies from Pine Bluff, Ark., and Grambling College of Louisiana were tied for third place with 19 points each and Prairie View State Teachers College of Hempstead, Texas, was a poor fourth with four.

Juanita Watson, Tuskegee's national 50 meters champion led Cleo Reese of Prairie View to the tape in the 100 meters event and won in :12.6 seconds. Evelyn Lawler of Tuskegee was third. Jean Lowe of Tuskegee was fourth.

New Meet Record

Theresa Manuel set a new meet record as the Tuskegeean skipped over the barriers in the 80 meters hurdles in :11.9 seconds. The old record was :12.7 and was made by Lillie Purifoy in 1946. Jewel Johnson of Tuskegee was second. They were the only contestants as the other qualifiers were scratched.

Tennessee State's Mary Hardaway equaled the world's record of :06.4 seconds in the 50 meters dash. Bettie Wallace of Grambling College was second. Lillie Purifoy placed third and Bessie Hayes of Tuskegee was fourth. The world record had been equaled by Alice Coachman of Tuskegee in the Tuskegeee Women's Meet of 1944.

Audrey "Mickey" Patterson, Tennessee State's National Indoor 200 Meters Champion sprinted to victory at that distance in :25.4 for a new meet record, breaking the :26 flat time set by Jean Lane of Wilberforce in 1940. Nell Jackson of Tuskegee, Christine Patterson of Grambling and Hilda Halley of Arkansas State finished in that order.

Tuskegee Takes Relays

The Tuskegee quartet of Bessie Hayes, Jean Lowe, Juanita Watson, and Nell Jackson ran a :49.6 seconds 400 meters relay. The perfect baton passing of the Tigerettes brought them victory. Tennessee State's Mary Hardaway, Mary Wilson, Emma Reed, Audrey Patterson finished second. Grambling was third and Arkansas State fourth. Emma Reed of Tennessee State won the high jump with a leap of four feet 10 inches. F. O. Roberson of Grambling was second. Evelyn Lawler of Tuskegee placed third and Priscilla Washington of Arkansas State was fourth.

Elaine Bradford of Tuskegee won the shot put with a heave of 24 feet 1½ inches. Priscilla Washington of Arkansas State was second. Geneva Broomfield of the same school was third, and Mellie McKee of Tuskegee was fourth.

90 Foot Toss

Lorraine Pledger's toss of 90 feet 4½ inches won the discus throw. Priscilla Washington of Arkansas State was second, and Christine Harry of Grambling third.

Mary Hardaway of Tennessee State won the running broad jump with 15 feet 11¼ inches. Lillie Purifoy, who holds the national AAU championship was second and Mary Wilson of Tennessee State was third. Evelyn Lawler of Tuskegee was fourth. The javelin throw championship was won by Mellie McKee of Tuskegee. Her distance was 84 feet 5½ inches. F. O. Roberson of Grambling was second. C. Wooten of Grambling was third, and C. Love of Prairie View, fourth.

Juanita Watson's 209 foot throw in the baseball throw event was good for first place. Loraine Pledger of Arkansas State was second. In the third place was F. O. Roberson of Grambling and in fourth, Theresa Manuel of Tuskegee.

Tuskegee Juniors Win

Tuskegee Institute High School won the junior championships with 37 points. Camden, Alabama Academy was second with 21. Monroe High of Albany, Ga., and Booker T. Washington of Atlanta tied for third place with 19 each.

Other schools finished in the order named: Charlton-Pollard High of Beaumont, Texas, 8; David T. Howard of Atlanta, and Snow Hill Institute High of Snow Hill, Ala., trailed with 7 points each.

The Tuskegee high school girls walked off with the baseball throw, 50 meters hurdles, javelin throw, shot put, and high jump. The five foot leap of Doris Hill of Tuskegee was better than the mark of Emma Reed, Tennessee State's victor in the college event.

Tuskegee failed to dominate the sprints and the relays in the junior events as in the previous years.

Tuskegee Institute Wins Women's AAU

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 7 —(AP)— Stella Walsh, leather-tough track veteran of more than a score of years, talked retirement today after out-shining the cream of the nations women's athletes in yesterday's national women's AAU track meet.

"I'll probably retire from track this summer or fall," said the lanky star of the Polish Woman's AC Cleveland, after a rousing triple-victory performance that was good for firsts in the broad jump, the 100-meter and the 200-meter runs.

Miss Walsh, who is ineligible for Olympic competition because she competed for her native Poland in the 1936 games, said she would turn her attention to golf.

The crack Ohio performer gathered 30 points to edge Dorothy Dodson, diminutive star of the Chicago Hurricanes for individual honors.

Miss Dodson, who collecteed 26 points, shared top honors in the 1946 AAU meet with Alice Coachman of Albany State College, Albany, Ga., both had 28 points.

Behind Miss Walsh's brilliant showing was enough track and field talent, however, to give promise of American strength in the Olympics later this month.

Almost certain to make good showings at the Olympic trials July 12 at Providence, RI., on the basis of events here are Mrs. Frances Kaszubski, of North Olmsted-Westlake AC Cleveland, a double-winner, Miss Coachman, Miss Dodson, Mabel Walker of Tuskeegee Institute, Bernice Robinson, of Washington Park, Chicago, and Juanita Watson, of Tuskegee.

In the 50-meter run, Mabel Walker turned in a 6.7 to edge Alice Coachman by a step.

Miss Dodson's lone first place came in the javelin throw where she got off a heave of 125 feet 10 2-8 inches almost 10 feet better than her nearest rival, Theressa Manuel of Tuskegee.

Tuskegee's other individual winner was Juanita Watson who threw a baseball 218 feet six inches.

With that for a nucleus, along with a victory in the 400-meter hurdles, the Tuskegee squad piled up 71 1-2 points to walk away with team honors.

Their closest competitor was the speedy outfit from North Olmstead-Westlake AC Cleveland 44 1-2 points and the Chicago Hurricanes, 41 points.

Davis Clips Jump Mark at Tuskegee

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.— Eural Davis, track and field star of Prairie View A. and M. College, shattered a meet record in the running broad jump, to highlight the 22nd annual running of the Tuskegee Relays Carnivaly, Saturday, at the Alumni Bowl.

In capturing the broad jump for the third straight year, the Prairie View spikester jumped 24 feet 11⅝ inches to break the meet record of 23 feet 4 inches, set by Curtis Tucker, of Sam Houston College in 1929.

Laurels in the relay championships were well divided. The Xavier University quartet copped the 440-yard relay; Prairie View out ran the field in the 880-yard relay; Langston came home first in the one-mile relay, and Texas College put on a sensational finish to walk off with the two-mile relay.

Booker T. Wins

Booker T. Washington High School, of Atlanta, Ga., and Camden Academy, of Camden, Ala., dominated the high school relays, after fighting the crack Tuskegee Institute High School foursome, which was a constant threat in all of the team events.

In addition to his record performance in the broad jump, Davis ran a leg in the 880-yard relay, and Matthew Clay, who anchored Prairie View to victory in the relay, won the century in 9.6.

Need Of The Day — More Women Athletes

By EDWIN B. HENDERSON
For the NNPA News Service

WASHINGTON, D. C.—It is about time something was done to increase sports among women and girls. Except for tennis and some golfers here and there, little is going on in the participating line. In some cities there are a few softball and basketball teams.

The fear of exploitation and the fear of injury to the health of growing girls has caused some of the physical education philosophers to decry competition contests for girls. Yet, around the Nation, white girls and women especially trained in various sports are in the amateur and professional field.

In track and field, the girls from Tuskegee have made remarkable records. Since 1937 when the Tuskegee feminines came north to Trenton, N. J., the Tuskegee girls have won ten championships out of eleven staged since that date. Only in 1943 did the girls from Booker T. Washington's School fail to cop a national title. That year they bowed to the Powerful Cleveland, Ohio, Polish Olympic Club led by the then incomparable Stella Walsh.

1947 MEET

Tuskegee girls won their last national track and field title in June, 1947, at San Antonio, Tex., one year after their ebony and tan brother Americans won the premier events in the national track and field championships for men in the same stadium. At San Antonio, colored sisters tested their growing liberality of Southerners. White girls from San Antonio, Phoenix, Ariz; Uvalde, Tex.; Mississippi towns, and St. Louis, competed with the white and colored girls from Chicago, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Columbus, and Toronto, Canada.

Tuskegee girls won in 1937 at Trenton, in 1938 at Maugatuck, in 1939 at Waterbury, in 1940 at Ocean City, in 1941 at Atlantic City, 1944 at Harrisburg, 1945 at Harrisburg, 1946 in Buffalo, and 1947 at San Antonio. In addition to outdoor track and field events, the Tuskegee girls have also won indoor meets at Atlantic City in 1941, in Buffalo in 1945, and in Cleveland in 1946.

These girls have made a specialty of track and field under the tutelege of Coach Cleve Abbott of Tuskegee and Mrs. Amelia Roberts, director of athletics for girls. Because of his outstanding work with the girls of Tuskegee, as well as his proficiency in athletics for men, Mr. Abbott is the only colored member of an Olympic Committee.

TUSKEGEE-PIONEER

Tuskegee has been a pioneer in this work, as in others, and has done a remarkable job for women and the race. In the field of women's athletics, white women have starred in amateur and professional sports, especially in golf, tennis, swimming, wrestling, bowling, skating, shooting, and some of the team sports.

Tuskegee has set a challenge for our women athletic coaches. Let's not be too squeamish about exploring athletics as an outlet for our girls. I doubt that any of the Tuskegee-trained girls have been the worse for wear as wives and mothers.

Tuskegee Team Cops Women's AAU Title

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (ANP)—Lured by the prospects of being well represented on the U. S. Women's Olympic team, Tuskegee institute had a stellar day here last week in defense of its outdoor National AAU Women's championship title. With most of its star athletes figuring in the first three positions, Tuskegee amassed a total of 71½ points, leading its nearest competitor, North Olmsted-Westlake AC, Cleveland, by 27 points.

In the 80-meters hurdles, Miss Bernice Robinson, physical education student of George Williams college, Chicago, clocked 21.1 seconds to lead Lollie Purifoy and Theresa Manuel, both of Tuskegee, second and third respectively. Lillian Robinson, Chicago Teacher's college student, representing Forestville playground was second in the broad jump behind Stella Walsh, white Polish-American AC athlete. Third placer was Tuskegee's Jean Lowe.

Mary Griggs, another Tuskegeean, was behind Miss Walsh in the 100-meters dash. Teammate Juanita Johnson came in third.

Individual Tuskegee winners were Mable Walker, in the 50-meter dash, 6.7 seconds, followed by ex-Tuskegeean Alice Coachman and Tennessee State college's Mary Hardaway; and Mary Watson, in the baseball throw of 281 feet, 6 inches. Tuskegee's A and B teams were first and third respectively in the 400-meters relay, time of 50.3 seconds, with Tennessee State running second. High scorer of the meet was Miss Walsh with 30 points. Dorothy Dodson, diminuitive star of the Chicago Hurricanes, collected 26 points for second place.

Tennessee State fell in fifth place with 27 points; Washington Park was seventh, with 17; Forestville was ninth with eight points. The Chicago Hurricanes had 41 points for third place.

Tuskegee Athletes Try For World Olympics

TUSGEGEE INSTITUTE, ALA., June 30, 1948—John Carroll Southern Inter-collegiate Athletic Conference, Mile and two-Mile champion, left Tuskegee Institute campus Wednesday morning for Milwaukee, Wisconsin, where he entered in the National Track and Field Championship of the Amateur Atehletic Union of the United States on July 2 and 3.

On July 2, Carroll ran in the 1500 meter junior run and the 1500 meter junior run and the part in the senior 1500 meter run which is the semi-final Olympic try out for this event.

While Carroll was trying to qualify for the final Olympic trials held July 9 and 10 at Dyche Stadium, Northwestern University, Evanston Illinois, his feminine college mates, the thin-clads of the Tuskegee women's championship track and field team, were taking part in the Women's National A. A. U., Track and Field Championships at Grand Rapids, Michigan, July 6.

The young women contenders will go on from there to Providence, Rhode Island, where they will take part in the final Olympic try-outs, and those who are successful in these tests and upon their selection by the Olympic Committee, will sail at 4 p. m. July 14, from Pier 61, New York City, on the S. S. Tmerica for London England.

Members of the Tuskegee Institute Womer's rack and Field Team selected to make the trip include: Theresa Manuel, Tampa, Florida; Juanita Watson, Bessemer, Alabama; Lillie Purifoy, Snow Hill, Alabama; Gwendolyn Taylor, Shorter, Alabama; Mabel Walker, Camden, Alabama; Mellie McGhee, Bay Minnette, Alabama; Mary Griggs, Tuskegee, Alabama; Nell Jackson, Tuskegee Institute, Alabama and Jean Lowe, Toronto, Canada.

Cleve L. Abbott, director of the department of Physical Education and Atheletics at Tuskegee Institute, will be in charge of the party.

Mrs. Jessie H. Abbott will be the chaperon.

Tuskegee's 20th Women's Meet On Friday, April 30

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—Tuskegee Institute's 1948 Indoor National A. A. U. Women's championship track team arrived home safely from Chicago, Monday. The Tuskegeeans won the title in Chicago, Saturday with 60 points.

The champions will be ready Friday to defend their title as champions of the Tuskegee women's track and field championships in the 20th running of this classic in Alumni bowl.

However, against the Tuskegeeans will be teams from Tenn. State, which finished third in the national meet Saturday in Chicago, and Prairie View, Grambling College, Wiley College, Fort Valley State and Florida A. and M.

Theresa Manuel, who established a new national record last Saturday, in the 50-meters hurdles by doing it in 7.4 seconds to break a 15-year-old mark and Juanita Watson, whose 6.6 for the 50-meters dash is a new time, will find themselves up against Tenn. State's Audrey Patterson who won the national 200-meters last Saturday, Reese of Prairie View and other visiting stars.

Tuskegee won last year's meet with 45 points. Prairie View was second with 26½. Tenn. State, third with 17 and the others trailed.

OLYMPIC TEAM PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR THESE FOUR—With the United States Women's Olympic team finals coming up in Providence, R. I., on July 12, and the team sailing a few days later, this quartet has hopes on being a member of that group which will sail for London. Left to right are Bernice Robinson, representing Washington Park, Chicago, who finished second in the 50-meters hurdles in the National A. A. U. women's meet held on April 24, in Chicago, second in the high jump and fourth in the broad jump to become high-point winner with 20; Nell Jackson, Tuskegee institute of Alabama, who finished second in the 200-meters finals and anchored Tuskegee's national championship 400-meters relay team; Audrey "Mickey" Patterson, Tennessee State College, winner of the 200-meters dash final and who anchored her team to second place in the 400-meters relay, and Lillian Young, Forrestville Playground, Chicago, speedster, who was second to Jaunita Watson of Tuskegee in the 50-meters final.—Photo by Gilbert Brown.

Tuskegee's Women Try Out For London Olympic Sessions

TUSKEGEE, Ala.—Tuskegee young women were to take part in the Women's National Track and Field Championships of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States at Grand Rapids, Mich., July 6, and the Women's final Olympic track and field tryouts Monday, July 12, at Providence, R. I.

Theresa Manuel, who has been nominated by the Olympic committee to participate in the Olympic trials and will run the 80-meter hurdles and 200 meter run. She is the daughter of Mrs. Frances Johnson of Tampa, Fla., and is enrolled in the school of physical education at Tuskegee.

Theresa is the National A. A. U. junior 80 meter hurdles champion, a member of the National Junior A. A. U. champion 400 meter relay team, and holder of the National A. A. U. senior 50 meter hurdles championship. She will participate in the 80 meter hurdles and run the third leg on the 400 meter A relay team. Theresa is 22 years of age.

Juanita Watson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Watson of Bessemer, Ala., is a freshman in the school of physical education at Tuskegee. She is 18 years of age.

At the National A. A. U. Meet, she will participate in the 100 meter run and on the A relay team. She is the holder of the National A. A. U. 100 meter run, and the National A. A. U. 50 meter indoor run. In the Olympic trials she will run the 100 meter.

Lillie Purifoy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Purifoy of Mobile, Ala. Lillie set a new record in the indoor 50 yard hurdles at Philadelphia in January 1947. She also won the National A. A. U. running broad jump in 1947.

In the Olympic trials, she will broad jump and run the 80 meter hurdles. She will run on the B relay team, broad jump and run the 80 meter hurdles at the Grand Rapids meet. She is the former indoor 50 yard hurdles champion and outdoor 80 meter hurdles champion.

Gwendolyn Taylor is the 20-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick H. Taylor of Harrisburg, Pa., and is a sophomore in the school of physical education. She is a 1946 graduate of the William Penn High School of Harrisburg, Pa., and entered Tuskegee, September 1946.

Gwendolyn's sports career was started due to the interest and encouragement of her father. She is the co-record holder of the 50 yard dash of the Middle Atlantic Association the A. A. U. in 6.5 seconds.

Being one of the girls nominated by the Olympic committee, she will take part in the 100 meter and the 200 meter run.

Doris Hil, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George of Shorter, Ala. She is the holder of the junior high jump championship and will take part in the high jump and hurdles in the National championship.

Mabel Walker the National A. A. U. junior 50 meter champion of 1947. She is the daughter of Mrs. Annie Walker of Camden, Ala., and is a freshman enrolled in the school of physical education.

Mabel will participate in the National meet and also the Olympic trials running in the 100 and 200 meters.

Mellie McKee is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie McKee of Bay Minette, Ala. She is a sophomore in the school of physical education.

Mellie will participate in the National championship in the shot put and discus. She was a place winner in the National A. A. U. championships in the Shot Put and Discus in 1947 at San Antonio, Texas.

Mary Griggs, 17-years-old, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Griggs of Tuskegee, Ala.

Mary is the holder of the National A. A. U. junior 100 meter championship. At the National meet in Grand Rapids, she will take part in the 100 meter run and 400 relay and will take part in the 100 and 200 meters in the Olympic trials.

Nell Jackson is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Burnett L. Jackson of Tuskegee Institute, Ala. She is enrolled in the school of physical education.

Nell broke the American (Citizens') record 200 meter run (trials) and will participate in the Olympic final try-out running the 200 meter run.

MISS WALSH GAINS 3 A. A. U. CROWNS

Stars in National Track Meet —2 Titles to Mrs. Kaszubski —Tuskegee Team Repeats

New York Times

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 6 (AP)—Miss Stella Walsh, the Polish-born Cleveland girl who has been winning women's track events over parts of two decades, did it again tonight as she captured three titles in the annual women's A. A. U. national track and field championships.

Pressed only in the 100-meter dash, Miss Walsh easily outdistanced the field in her favorite specialty, the 200-meter sprint, and won the running broad jump with a leap in the preliminaries which stood up throughout the final.

Sharing individual honors with Miss Walsh, whose thirty first-place points topped the field, was Mrs. Frances Kaszubski, Cleveland housewife representing the North Olmsted-Westlake A. C. of Cleveland.

Mrs. Kaszubski, who defended her discus title successfully, also dethroned Miss Dorothy Dodson of the Chicago Hurricanes to capture the 8-pound shot-put crown, and score 20 individual points.

For Miss Dodson, who lost her shot-put honors but successfully defended her javelin title, there was consolation in piling up a total of 26 individual points to place second behind Miss Walsh in that department.

Tuskegee Institute of Tuskegee, Ala., easily retained its team championship with a total of 71½ points.

Miss Walsh's three gold medals tonight brought to thirty-five the number she has won in national A. A. U. competition.

The only major upset came in the 50-meter dash when Tuskegee Institute's brilliant veteran performer, Miss Alice Coachman, lost the title she had defended successfully for the last seven years.

A team-mate, Miss Mabel Walker, won it in 6.7 seconds, bettering Miss Coachman's 1947 mark by a tenth of a second.

The nearest approach to a new A. A. U. record was the victory of Miss Bernice Robinson of Washington Park, Chicago, in the 80-meter hurdles. Miss Robinson won easily in 12.1 seconds, a tenth of a second off the A. A. U. mark set jointly by Miss Mildred Didrikson, now Mrs. George Zaharias, and Miss Anne O'Brien in 1932.

Runner-up to Tuskegee for team honors with 44½ points was the North Olmsted-Westlake A. C. of Cleveland. The Hurricanes of Chicago were third with 41.

Miss Walsh's Polish Women's A. C., also of Cleveland, finished fourth with 32 points and the German-American A. C. of New York was fifth with 29.

Other team totals:

Tennessee State College, Nashville, Tenn., 27; New York Police Athletic League, 18; Albany State College, Albany, Ga., 18; Washington Park, Chicago, 17; Philadelphia Turners, Philadelphia, 10; Forestville Playgrounds, Chicago, 9; City of Glendale, Calif., 4.

Look Out London, Here They Come

'Skegee Women Cop Laurels In Trials

The Journal & Guide

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—(ANP) —Lured by the prospects of being well represented on the U. S. Women's Olympic team, Tuskegee Institute had a stellar day here last week in defense of its outdoor National AAU Women's championship tilt. With most of its star athletes figuring in the first three positions, Tuskegee amassed a total of 71½ points, leading its nearest competitor, North Olmsted-Westlake AC, Cleveland, by 27 points.

In the 80-meters hurdles, Miss Bernice Robinson, George Williams College, Chicago, clocked 21.1 seconds to lead Lillie Purifoy and Theresa Manuel, both of Tuskegee, second and third respectively. Lillian Robinson, Chicago Teachers College, was second in the broad jump behind Stella Walsh, white Polish-American-American AC athlete. Third placer was Tuskegee's Jean Lowe.

Mary Griggs, Tuskegee, was behind Miss Walsh in the 100-meters dash. Teammate Juanita Johnson came in third.

TAKE TITLES

Individual Tuskegee winners were Mable Walker, in the 50-meter dash, 6.7 seconds, followed by ex-Tuskegeean Alice Coachman and Tennessee State College's Mary Hardaway; and Mary Watson, in the baseball throw of 281 feet, 6 inches.

Tuskegee's A and B teams were first and third respectively in the 400-meters relay, time of 50.3 seconds, with Tennessee State running second. High score of the meet was Miss Walsh with 30 points. Dorothy Dodson, diminuitive star of the Chicago Hurricanes, collected 28 points for second place.

Tennessee State fell in fifth place with 27 points; Washington Park was seventh, with 17; Forestville was ninth with eight points. The Chicago Hurricanes had 41 points for third place.

TUSKEGEE, Ala.—The Tuskegee Institute women's championship track and field team defended their title in the women's national AAU track and field championships at Grand Rapids, Mich., Tuesday.

The young women contenders will go on from there to Providence, R.I., where they will take part in the final Olympic tryouts, on July 12, and those who are successful in these tests and upon selection by the Olympic Committee, will sail at 4 p.m., July 14, from Pier 61, New York City, on the S.S. America for London, Eng.

Abbott in Charge

Members of the Tuskegee women's track and field team on the trip include Theresa Manual, Tampa, Fla.; Juanita Watson, Bessemer, Ala.; Lillie Purifoy, Snow Hill, Ala.; Gwendolyn Taylor, Harrisburg, Pa.; Doris Hill, Shorter, Ala.; Mabel Walker, Camden, Ala.; Mellie McKee, Bay Minette, Ala.; Mary Griggs, Tuskegee; Nell Jackson, Tuskegee, and Jean Lowe, Toronto, Can.

Cleve L. Abbott, director of the Department of Physical Education and Athletics at Tuskegee, will be in charge of the party. Mrs. Jessie H. Abbott will be the chaperon.

Tuskegee Girls Eye Olympics

Tuskegee's Track Champions Set for Olympic Tryouts

Left to right are Gwendolyn Taylor, Theresa Manuel and Juanita Watson, three of the championship Tuskegee team which will seek Olympic team berths. Tiss Taylor, 20, is co-holder of the Middle Atlantic AAU 50-yard dash record of 6.5 seconds; Miss Manuel is national AAU junior 80-meter hurdle champion and national AAU senior 50-meter hurdle titlist; Miss Watson, 18, is national AAU 100-meter and indoor 50-meter champion. In the Olympic tryouts, Miss Watson will run in the 100 meters while Miss Manuel will compete in the 80-meter hurdles and run the third leg on the 400 meters relay team. Miss Taylor will seek honors in the 100- and 200-meter runs.

Tuskegee Girls Win Team Trophy in National Meet

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — Tuskegee Institute scored 73½ points to take the women's 1948 AAU national championships and Olympic trials here Tuesday. The Cleveland-Olmstead-Westlake A.C. was second with 40 points.

A crowd of more than 3,800 saw the Alabama school win its fifth straight national title and its 10th since 1937, having lost in 1943.

The winners team included Juanita Watson, Lillie Purifoy, Nell Jackson, Mabel Walker, Gwendolyn Taylor, Jean Lowe, Theresa Manuel, Mary Griss, and Mellie McKee.

How They Finished

In the 80-meters hurdles, Miss Bernice Robinson, physical education student of George Williams College, Chicago, clocked 21.1 seconds to lead Lollie Purifoy and Theresa Manuel, both of Tuskegee, second and third respectively. Lillian Robinson, Chicago Teachers College student, representing Forestville Playground was second in the broad jump behind Stella Walsh, white Polish-American AC athlete. Third placer was Tuskegee's Jean Lowe.

Mary Griggs, another Tuskegeean, was behind Miss Walsh in the 100-meters dash. Teammate Juanita Johnson came in third.

Individual Tuskegee winners were Mable Walker, in the 50-meter dash, 6.7 seconds, followed by ex-Tuskegeean Alice Coachman and Tennessee State College's Mary Hardaway; and Mary Watson, in the baseball throw of 261 feet, 6 inches.

Tuskegee's A and B teams were first and third respectively in the 400-meters relay, time of 50.3 seconds, with Tennessee State running second. High scorer of the meet was Miss Walsh with 30 points. Dorothy Dodson, diminutive star of the Chicago Hurricanes, collected 26 points for second place.

Tennessee State fell in fifth place with 27 points; Washington Park was seventh, with 17; Forestville was ninth with eight points. The Chicago Hurricanes had 41 points for third place.

Trio Tuskegee Women Make Olympic Team

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 13—(AP)—After reporting the results of the U. S. Olympic women's final track and field tryouts, Mrs. Catherine D. Meyer, of Maplewood, N. J., chairwoman of that group's committee, today found herself limited to an 11-girl team for the nine feminine events on the international game's program.

Olympic berths already have been awarded to the following:

Audrey Patterson, Nashville, Tenn., 100 and 200-meter runs; Nell Jackson, Tuskegee Institute, 200-meter run; Bernice Robinson, Chicago, 80-meter hurdles and high jump; Theresa Manuel, Tuskegee Insttiute, 80-meter hurdles and javelin; Mable Walker, Tuskegee Institute, 100-meter run.

Alice Coachman, Albany, Ga., high jump; Emma Read, Nashville, Tenn., broad and high jumps; Mrs. Frances Kaszubski, Cleveland, discus and shot put; Mrs. Dorothy Dodson, Mundelein, Ill., discus, shot put and javelin; Lillian Young, Chicago, 100-meter run; Mae Faggs, New York, 200-meter run.

The seven additional athletes to be recommended for appointment are Bessie Leich and Jean Walraven, North Olmsted, Ohio; Ramona Harris, New York; Lillie Purifoy and Mary Griggs, Tuskegee Institute; Eleanor Millheiser, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Pauline Ruppeldt, of Philadelphia.

* * *

WHEN OFFICIALS ENDED the competition because of darkness, Miss Coachman was about to attempt to get over the Olympic high jump record height of 5 feet 5¼ inches, but she did manage to win that event by leaping 5 feet 4¾ inches, an inch and a half higher than the present national A. A. U. record made back in 1933.

The small and sweltering group of spectators received an unofficial thrill when Tuskegee's Misses Walker, Griggs, Jackson and Manuel clipped 3.6 seconds off the American mark for the half-mile medley relay by running 1:54 flat against a quarter representing the New York police Athletic League.

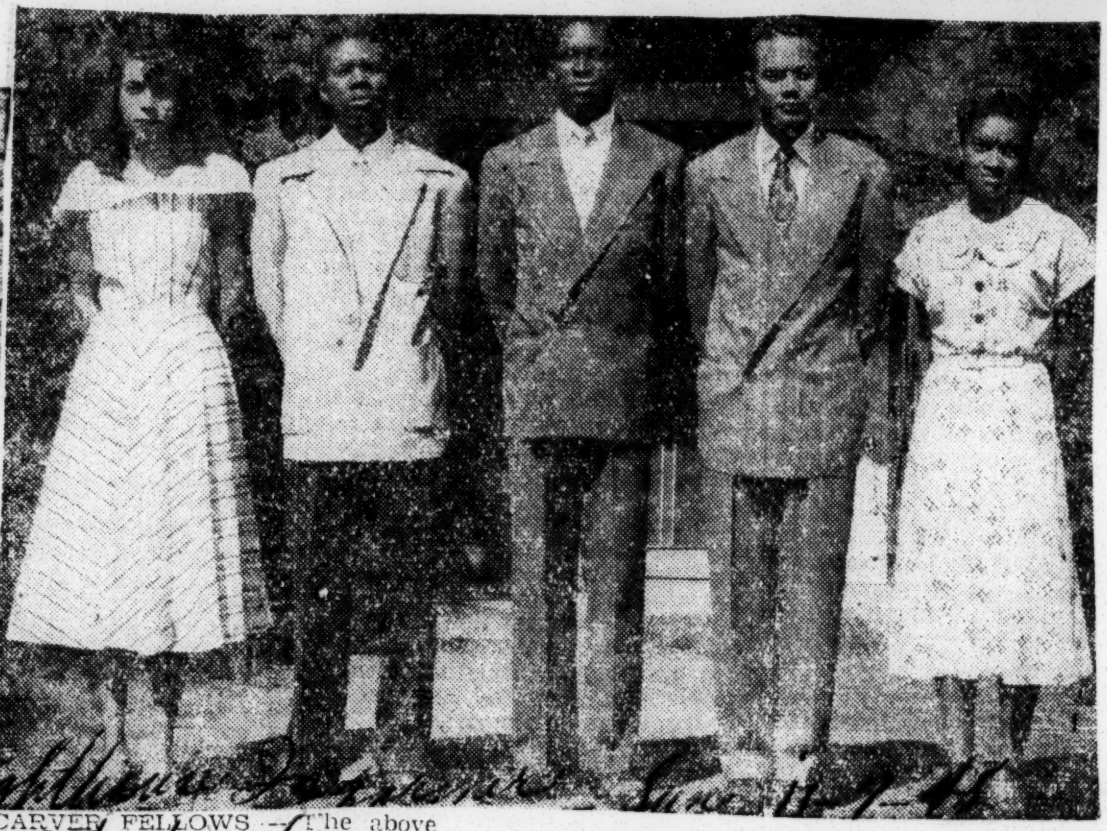
The old mark had been set by a New York Central Railroad A. A. quartet in 1929.

Carver Foundation

Carver Research Fellows Get Degrees At Tuskegee

Journal Guide - Sat 9-11-48

Included among the 70 persons to receive the master of science degree from Tuskegee Institute this summer were four graduate fellows and assistants who had studied under grants made by the George Washington Carver foundation. These are (left to right, front row): Mrs. Gladys Williams-Royal, of Dallas; Miss Norma A. Spaulding of Cape May, C. H., N. J.; Miss Julia M. Martin of Malvern, Pa. Back row: Carl C. Gordon of Albany, Ga.; Harold W. Lucien of New Orleans, and Fred R. West of Baltimore. Mrs. Williams-Royal and Mr. Gordon received fellowship awards through the department of agriculture of Tuskegee and did the required research in the laboratories of the Carver foundation. This is but the realization of one of the dreams of George Washington Carver, for one of the main objectives of the Carver foundation, as envisioned by him, is to train young people in the techniques of research to the end that the problems of agriculture and industry may be met. Dr. Carver provided for this in establishing the Carver foundation, and each year the number of fellowships granted to young people has been increased as funds permit.



Atlanta Daily World - Sun 9-12-48

CARVER FELLOWS — The above [illegible] institute have been awarded research fellowships by the George Washington Carver foundation. They are from left to right:

Miss Irene Edwards, Tuskegee Institute, Ala., graduate of Tuskegee; Wiley W. Tolson, Langston, Okla., graduate of Wiley college; Clarence W. R. Wade, Charlotte, N. C., graduate of Johnson C. Smith university; Leonard Seraile, New Orleans, Dillard university, and Miss Annette E. Steward, Charles Town, W. Va., Storer college. (ANP)

OPENING ENDOWMENT DRIVE FOR CARVER FOUNDATION

Mrs. Julian B. Thomas, widow of the founder of the organization, presenting the first seals to Basil O'Connor, president of the American Red Cross. The others in the photo are Frank P. Chisholm, field agent for Tuskegee; Augustus Simms, vice president of the Seal Committee, Mrs. Sadie M. Anderson, treasurer; Percival R. Ricketts, president; Mrs. Nellie G. Marshall, J. Henry Smith, executive secretary of the foundation, and Mrs. Frank P. Chisholm.

The first sheet of 1948 Carver seals for the $2,000,000 endowment fund campaign of the George Washington Carver Foundation was presented last week to Basil O'Connor, president of the American Red Cross, it was announced yesterday.

Mr. O'Connor accepted the seals at a brief ceremony in his office, 270 Broadway, from Mrs. Julian B. Thomas, widow of the founder of the Carver Seal Committee, inc., a non-profit organization. Others attending the presentation included Percival R. Ricketts, committee president; Augustus Simms, vice president; and Frank P. Chisholm, field agent of Tuskegee Institute in Alabama.

The sale of the seals is to raise money for the foundation, which is "dedicated to the progress of humanity through the application of science to the problems of agriculture and industry." The organization was founded by the late Dr. George Washington Carver, after forty-seven years of experimenting in chemical research at Tuskegee.

In 1945 Mr. Thomas, a former student of Dr. Carver, organized a committee to assist the foundation financially. The group was incorporated in 1946 in New York.

Last year the corporation presented to the foundation a check for $2,500.

Carver Foundation Board Head Named

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Feb. 14 — Thomas D. Russell, president of the Russell Manufacturing Company Alexander City, has been elected chairman of the board of trustees of the George Washington Carver Foundation.

R. H. Powell, Jr., Tuskegee attorney, was elected trustee at a meeting here this week.

Dr. Russell W. Brown, foundation director, reported some recent substantial gifts for the fund to restore the Carver Museum as well as other gifts for the $2,000,000 endowment fund to strengthen and expand the research program.

Others attending the meeting of the board of trustees were: Dr. R. C. Newton, vice president of Swift & Co.; Dr. C. H. Werkman, head, department of bacteriology at Iowa State College; Haygood Paterson, commissioner of agriculture, State of Alabama; D. L. Metcalf, of the Metcalf stores, Columbus, Georgia; L. A. Potts, dean, School of Agriculture, Tuskegee Institute; L. H. Foster, Jr., treasurer, Tuskegee Institute; Dr. C. T. Mason, director of research, Carver Foundation, and J. Henry Smith, secretary of the Carver Foundation.

Carver Foundation Seeks Additional Student Aides, Fellowships Lead To Master Of Science

TUSKEGEE, ALA. — College graduates, with a major in chemistry, are being sought by the George Washington Carver Foundation to serve as graduate assistants and fellows. Each year, the Carver Foundation makes it possible for students, who show promise of research ability, to pursue work at Tuskegee Institute toward the Master of Science degree in chemistry. Announcements of these fellowships and assistentships for the 1948-49 school year are currently being sent to the various colleges throughout the country.

A limited number of Graduate Research Assistantships and Graduate Research Fellowships are available with stipends of $1,000 each. It is required that half the time of the assistant or fellow be devoted to supervised research and the other half to graduate study leading to the degree of Master of Science in chemistry.

The Assistantships and Fellowships are available to students who have received the Bachelor's degree from an accredited college with a major in chemistry; who have high scholastic records, and who show promise of researc ability. No competitive examination is required for entranre.

Application blanks are available from the science department of each accredited Negro college, or may be obtained by writing directly to the Director of the Carver Foundation. Applications should be sent, in duplicate, to the Registrar at Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, and must be received not later than July 1, 1948, for the 1948-49 school year.

This program is in keeping with the ideals of the Foundation as envisoned by the late Dr. George Washington Carver, its founder. To date, over $30,000 has been used in training young people in research. Those who have graduated are now lucratively employed, and more requests are received for the employment of its research trainees than the Carver Foundation can fill.

Tuskegee Offers Carver Foundation Fellowships

TUSKEGEE (ANP)—Graduate research assistantships and fellowships amounting to $1,000 each are now available to students who wish to pursue work at the George Washington Carver foundation for the school year 1948-1949 according to information received from Dr. R. W. Brown, director. This is a part of the program envisioned by the late Dr. Carver to assist young people in their training to do research work.

The assistantships and fellowships are available to students who have received the bachelor's degree from an accredited college with a major in chemistry; who have received high scholastic records and who show promise of research ability. No examination is required for entrance.

It is required of students with the Carver foundation to devote half of their time to supervised research and the other half to graduate study leading to the degree of master of science in chemistry.

July 1 has been set as a deadline for applicants to write for these scholarships and fellowships.

Carver Developed, 'Save Wheat' Bread

TUSKEGEE — (ANP) — At the request of President F. D. Patterson of uskegee institute, scientists of the Carver Research foundation and nutritionists of the school of home economics and the department of commercial dietetics have reviewed and are testing the flour-saving bread-making recipes of the late George Washington Carver, which were so effectively useful during the wheat shortage of World War 1.

It is the mashed sweet potato—fresh or canned - which does the plaid -hitting for a third less flour in these recipes. Bread and biscuits, made the Carver way, not only save flour but the color suggestion and hint of sweetness from the potato, provide a finished product, attractive in appearance, and with a delightful different taste sensation.

RESEARCH ASSISTANTS OF CARVER FOUNDATION GRADUATE INCLUDED AMONG THE 10 persons to receive master of science degree from Tuskegee institute this summer were four graduate fellows and assistant who had studied under grants made by the George Washington Carver foundation. These are (left to right, front row): Mrs. Gladys Williams-Royal of Dallas, a graduate of Dilliard university; Miss Norma A. Spaulding of Cape Moy, C. H., N. J., a graduate of North Carolina college; Miss Julia M. Martin of Malvern, Pa., a graduate of Tuskegee institute:

Back row: Carl C. Gordon of Albany, Ga., a graduate of Hampton institute; Harold W. Lucien of New Orleans, a graduate of Dillard university, and Fred R. West of Baltimore, graduate of Hampton. Mrs. Williams-Royal and Mr. Gordon received fellowship awards through the department of agriculture of Tuskegee and did the required research in the laboratories of the Carver foundation.

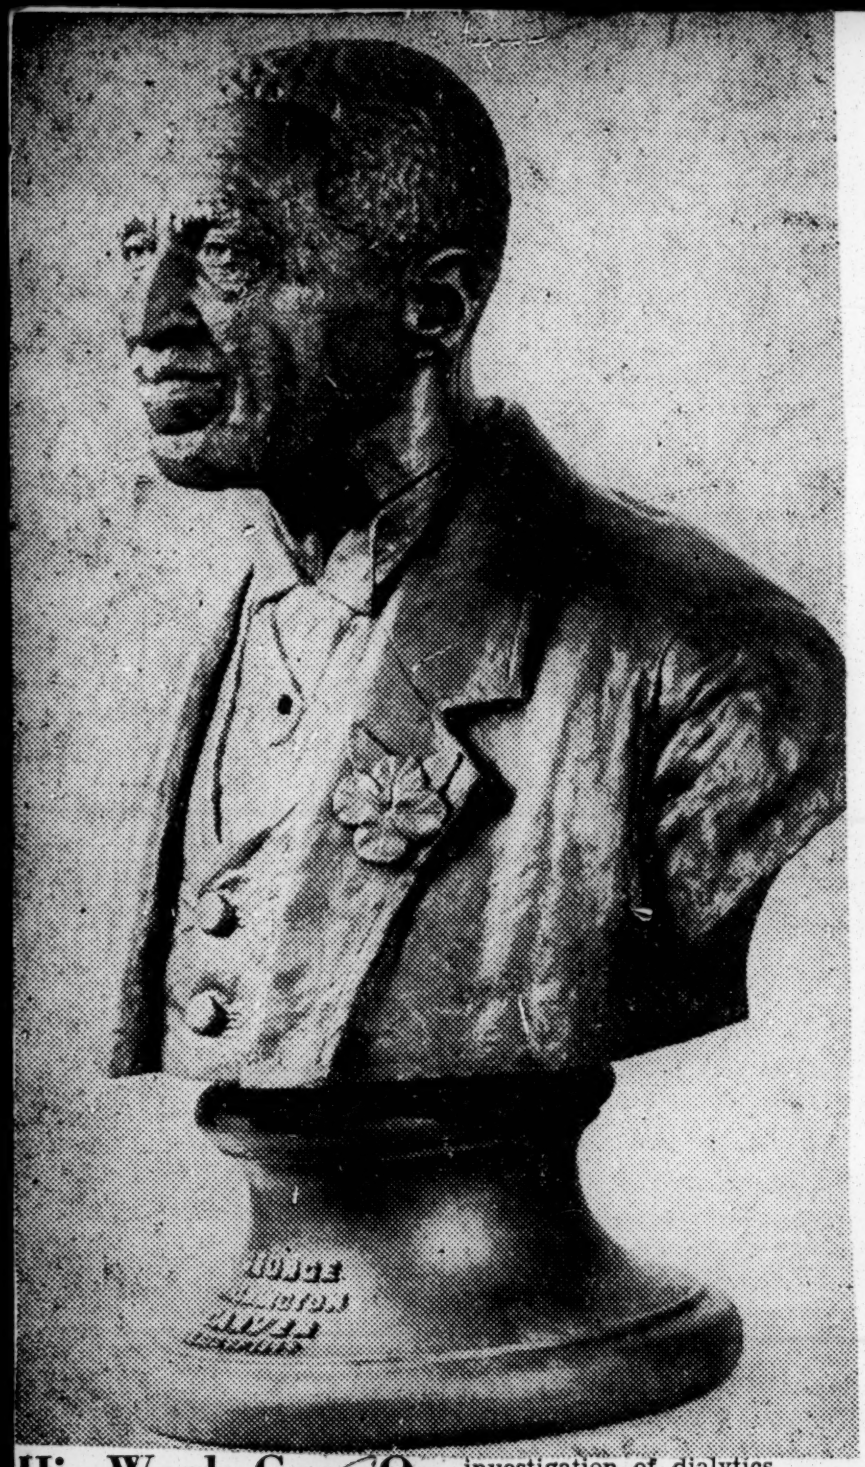
This is but the realization of one of the dreams of George Washington Carver, for one of the main objectives of the Carver foundation as envisioned by him, is to train young people in the techniques of research to the end that the problems of agriculture and industry may be met. Dr. Carver provided for this in establishing the Carver foundation, and each year the number of fellowships granted to young people has been increased as funds permit. From two who worked with Dr. Carver in 1940 shortly after the foundation was started, the number just ended. New grants have already been made to cover new graduate has grown to 11 during the year fellows and assistants who will enter Tuskegee in the fall. (ANP).

Carver Foundation Worker Chemical Society Speaker

ST. LOUIS — (ANP)— Featured at the recent meeting of the American Chemical society held at St. Louis was a technical paper presented by Harold W. Lucien, graduate research fellow of the Carver foundation. Co-author of the paper with Mr. Lucien was Dr. Clarence T. Mason, director of research of the foundation. Those meeting in St. Louis included the outstanding chemists and scientists from all over the nation.

The wrok done at the foundation from which the paper was written has been sponsored there for two years by the Research corporation of New York City. Funds from the Research Corporation are used to maintain a graduate research fellowship for this fundamental work.

Mr. Lucien, a graduate of Dillard University, received the master of science degree from Tuskegee institute in August, 1948. He has recently been appointed to the faculty of his alma mater, Dillard university in New Orleans.



His Work Goes On

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., Oct. 30, 1948—According to an announcement by the Director, the George Washington Carver Foundation is the recipient of three new research grants which create three new fellowships for students working for the Master of Scienc degree.

One of the grants is sponsored by the Corn Products Refining Company for the study of carbohydrates. A second comes from the Continental Can Company for research into the morphological and biochemical characteristics of organisms from flat, sour tomato juice. The third is from an anonymous source, for the investigation of dialytics.

These projects will be under the general direction of Dr. Clarence T. Mason, Director of Research, who will also be project director for two. The work for the Continental Can Company will be under the joint direction of Dr. C. M. Ford and Dr. R. W. Brown, both of whom are outstanding bacteriologists.

The Carver Foundation was established at Tuskegee Institute by the late Dr. George Washington Carver prior to his death. Since the fire in 1947 which destroyed the laboratories, temporary headquarters have been set up and research has continued despite handicaps. At the present time, the Foundation is campaigning to raise a building fund of $250,600 for a new laboratory and an endowment fund of $2,000,000.

Carver Foundation Fellowships Ready

TUSKEGEE—(ANP)— Graduate research assistantships and fellowships amounting to $1,000 each are now available to students who wish to pursue work at the George Washington Carver Foundation for the school year 1948-49, according to information received from Dr. R. W. Brown, director. This is a part of the program envisioned by the late Dr. Carver to assist young people in their training to do research work.

CARVER FOUNDATION GETS NEW RESEARCH GRANTS

TUSKEGEE—(ANP)—According to an announcement by the director, the George Washington Carver foundation is the recipient of three new research grants which create three new fellowships for students for the master of science degree.

One of the grants is sponsored by the Corn Products Refining company for the study of carbohydrates. A second comes from the Continental Can company for research into the morphological and biochemical characteristics of organisms isolated from flat, sour tomato juice. The third is from an anonymous source, for the investigation of dialytics.

These projects will be under the joint direction of Dr. C. M. Ford and Dr. R. W. Brown, both of whom are outstanding bacteriologists.

The Carver foundation was established at Tuskegee by the late Dr. George Washington Carver prior to his death. Since the fire in 1947 which destroyed the laboratories, temporary headquarters have been set up and research has continued despite handicaps. At the present time, the foundation is campaigning to raise a building fund of $20,600 for a new laboratory and an endowment fund of $2,000,000.

CARVER FOUNDATION RECEIVES A NEW RESEARCH GRANTS

TUSKEGEE (ANP) — According to an announcement by the director, the George Washington Carver foundation is the recipient of three new research grants which create three new fellowships for students working for the master of science degree.

One of the grants is sponsored by the Corn Products Refining company for the study of carbohydrates. A second comes from the Continental Can company for research into the morphological and biochemical characteristics of organisms isolated from flat, sour tomato juice. The third is from an anonymous source, for the investigation of dialytics.

These projects will be under the general direction of Dr. Clarence T. Mason, director of research also Dr. C. M. Ford and Dr. R. W. Brown, both of whom are outstanding bacteriologists.

The Carver foundation was established at Tuskegee by the late Dr. George Washington Carver prior to his death. Since the fire in 1947 which destroyed the labortories, temporary headquarters have been set up and research has continued despite handicaps. At the present time, the foundation is campaigning to raise a building fund of $200,600 for a new labortory and an endowment fund of $2,000,000.

CIO Leader Tells Negroes To Fight

TUSKEGEE, ALA.— (AP) —Although the Negro race has progressed in the past 80 years, a Negro labor leader said Saturday, "we are not yet sure of our own liberty."

Willard Saxby Townsend, of Chicago, president of the United Transport Service Employes (CIO), made this statement in an address before Tuskegee's graduating class.

"Although we can point to outstanding achievements and phenominal advances over the last 80-odd years," he said, "realism forces us to admit that today black America still occupies a precarious position."

Townsend said that to get full citizenship Negroes must continue their fight against any kind of segregation based on "race, creed, color or national origin."

"Economically," he said, "the war advanced the principle of equal opportunity and fair employment practices in government and in industry. This resulted in an improvement of the employment and economic conditions of countless Negroes.

"We can point to Fair Employment Practice laws in six states and a greater possibility of this principle being translated into federal law and in the not too far distant future."

favorable to the Negro's struggle for full citizenship.

"Economically," he commented, "the war advanced the principle of equal opportunity and fair employment practices in government and in industry. This resulted in an improvement of the employment and economic conditions of countless Negroes.

"We can point to fair employment practice laws in six states and a greater possibility of this principle being translated into federal law in the not too distant future."

Townsend reminded that to realize full citizenship, Negroes must continue their fight against any kind of segregation based on "race, creed color or national origin."

Yesterday's baccalaureate address was delivered by the Rt. Rev. Frederick G. Hochwalt, director of the department of education, National Catholic Welfare Conference, Wash-

400 'Skegee Graduates Hear Willard Townsend

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—"Tuskegee is more than an educational institution. Tuskegee represents a way of living and a philosophy that has contributed much to the advancement of our country, economically, socially, scientifically and intellectually," said Williard S. Townsend, president, United Transport Service Employes, Chicago, in addressing the members of the graduating class here Monday afternoon.

"Built by constructive imagination, devotion and hard work of Booker T. Washington and his worthy successors, Dr. Moton and Dr. Patterson, the Tuskegee idea permeates every nook and corner of the United States," continued the speaker.

Townsend has been associated with labor since 1937, and has been international president of the United Transport Service Employes since 1940.

UTILIZE SKILLS

The speaker reminded the large commencement audience that "in carrying out this responsibility to strengthen the right to equality of opportunity, we must continue our struggle to eliminate from American life segregation based on race, creed, color or national origin." He said: "This struggle must be intensified on two fronts. We must convince America that a man's right to an equal chance to utilize his skills and knowledge is essential."

At the conclusion of Mr. Townsend's address, certificates were awarded to and degrees were conferred upon more than 400 members of the graduating class by Dr. I. A. Derbigny, acting president.

The Master of Science degree in Agriculture was awarded to Ozie L. Adams, El Dorado, Ark., and to Charles B. Spencer, Nashville, Tenn. Mrs. Marie B. Williamson, Tuskegee Institue, Ala., was awarded the Master of Science degree in education. Alumni citations for distinguished service were presented to Daniel W. Andrews, Winston-Salem, N. C., and Andrew A. Means, Gary, Ind.

PRE-COMMENCEMENT ACTIVITIES

Pre-commencement activities began at Tuskegee Institute when Beta Tau Upsilon Chapter of the Alpha Kappa Mu Honor Society held public exercises in the institute chapel to honor more than 100 students who had excelled in scholarship. Dr. William H. Pipes, Tuskegee, '35, president of Alcorn College, Alcorn, Miss., delivered the principal address. Friday evening the graduating class of 1948 presented to Tuskegee Institute and surrounding communities a set of cathedral chimes.

ington, D. C., urged the graduates to "court the art of meditation, think through the problems of our times and act wisely and with dispatch."

Negro Labor Leader Says His Race Still In Precarious Place

TUSKEGEE, Ala., May 11—(AP)—A Negro labor leader acknowledged gains made by his race in the past 30 years, but said "Black America still occupies a precarious position."

The speaker was Wilard Saxby Townsend, of Chicago, president of the United Transport Service Employes, CIO. He was addressing this year's Tuskegee Institute graduates yesterday.

"Although we can point to outstanding achievements and phenomenal advances over the last 80-odd years," he said, "realism forces us to admit that today Black America still occupies a precarious position.

"We are not yet sure that the bodies of our sons will not again be deecrated for a liiberty we do not enjoy."

Townsend said the last war overturned many old ways of doing things, bringing about conditions

Tuskegee Hears Catholic Leader

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—In the baccalaureate address delivered in the Institute Chapel, Sunday, May 9, the Right Rev. Frederick G. Hochwalt, director, Department of Education, National Catholic Welfare Conference, Wash-

Tuskegee Grads Hear Lab. Leader Townsend

TUSKEGEE—(ANP) —"Tuskegee is more than an educational institution. Tuskegee represents a way of living and a philosophy that has contributed much to the advancement of our country, economically, socially, scientifically and intellectually," said Willard Saxby Townsend, president, United Transport Service employees, Chicago, in addressing the members of the graduating class here Monday afternoon.

"Built by constructive imagination, devotion and hard work of Booker T. Washington and his worthy successors, Dr. Moton and Dr. Patterson, the Tuskegee idea permeates every nook and corner of the United States," continued the speaker.

Townsend, who recently went to the far east as a member of the World Federation of Trade unions to study labor conditions in the countries of Japan, China, Korea, the Philippines and the Malaya states, is a native of Cincinanti and was an officer in the United States army during World War I. He attended the University of Toronto and also a student at the Royal College of Science in Toronto, receiving a degree in chemistry. He has been associated with labor since 1937, and has been UTSEA international president since 1940.

ADVANCEMENT CITED

Pointing out the advancement which has been made by the race in the past 60 years the labor leader said: "Although we can point to will not again be desecrated for a nary after election day. The service outstanding achievements and phe- liberty we do not enjoy. of democracy must be something nomenal advances over the last 60 "The recent war overturned old more than lip service."

odd years, realism forces us to ways of doing things. The compul- "It is a living thing—a human admit that today Black America sions attendant thereto forced a thing—compounded of brains and still occupies a precarious position considerable degree of accelation, muscles and heart and souls. The We are not yet sure of our own in the main, favorable to our strug- service of democracy is the birth- liberty, or that the democratic na- gle for full citizenship. Economical- right of every citizen, the white and tions are concerned about us, lowly, the war advanced the principle the colored; the Protestant, the yet sure that the bodies of our sons of equal opportunity and fair em- Catholic, the Jew; the sons and daughters of every country in the

ATTENDED CONFAB ON HOSPITALIZED CHILDREN—Left to right: Miss Clara B. Goode, school principal; Mrs. Louise B. Trigg, medical social worker, and Mrs. Ruth Booker Ballard, occupational therapist, members of the staff of the Tuskegee Institute Infantile Paralysis Center who attended a conference on "Education on Hospitalized Children" in Atlantic City, sponsored by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.—ANP Photo.

CO-AUTHOR—Dr. Alonzo J. Davis, professor of psychology at Tuskegee, is co-author of "The Encyclopedia of Vocational Guidance," edited by Oscar J. Kaplan.

Sorority Elects Tuskegean

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.--News has been received here of the unanimous election of Mrs. Laura C. Buck, Labor Coordinator at the Institute, to the position of Anti-Basileus of the Phi Delta Kappa national sorority at the 24th annual conclave held in Wilmington, Del. Mrs. Oliva S. Henry, Supreme Basileus, Philadelphia, presided.

Among the several outstanding achievements reported during the year was the sum of $12,000 which the sorority raised and contributed to the Infantile Paralysis Fund at Tuskegee Institute.

Recently Upsilon chapter of the Phi Delta Kappa sorority presented a typewriter to the Infantile Paralysis Unit of the John A. Andrew Memorial hospital. The presentation was made in the name of the national body by Mrs. Laura C. Buck, Basileus of the local chapter.

YOUR HISTORY

By J. A. ROGERS — ILLUSTRATIONS BY A. SAMUEL MILAI

Dates Back Beyond the Cotton Fields in the South Back Thousands of Years Before Christ

pyright, 1948, by The Pittsburgh Courier Publishing Company . . . Reproduction Expressly Forbidden

Pittsburgh Courier Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE PARKHURST GUZMAN

Sat. 6-12-48

ONE OF AMERICA'S MOST COMPETENT RESEARCH SCHOLARS... DIRECTOR, DEPT. OF RESEARCH AND RECORDS, TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE.. SPECIALIZES IN NEGRO HISTORY AND RACE RELATIONS... ASSISTED THE LATE DOCTOR MONROE WORK WITH NEGRO YEAR BOOK FROM 1912 TO 1938 AND THE MONUMENTAL AND INVALUABLE BIBLIOGRAPHY OF THE NEGRO IN AFRICA AND AMERICA... EDITOR 1947 NEGRO YEAR BOOK .. GRADUATE, HOWARD UNIV.; MASTER OF ARTS, COLUMBIA UNIV... TAUGHT HISTORY AT NEW ORLEANS COLLEGE AND ALABAMA STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE .. FORMER DEAN OF WOMEN TUSKEGEE .. MEMBER AMERICAN TEACHERS ASSN.....

Sat. 6-12-48

Engagement Announced At Buffet Dinner

Pittsburgh Courier

At a buffet dinner at their 421 Talbot Avenue home Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Spencer announced the engagement of their daughter, Rosa Lee Spencer, to Lieut. Warren G. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Smith of Philadelphia, Pa.

Miss Spencer has just returned from a tour of duty with the American Red Cross in Gifu, Yokohama and Tokyo, Japan. Prior to this assignment, she was employed at Tuskegee Institute in Alabama as Counselor to Students. For two years she worked with the Cook County Bureau of Public Welfare in Chicago as a social worker, and is a member of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority.

Lt. Smith, who is yet in Japan serving with the Twenty-fourth Infantry Regiment, is a graduate of Lincoln University in Pennsylvania. After graduation he spent two years in the School of Theology. Upon his return to the States in April, he will enroll in Medical School for the fall.

IN ATTENDANCE

Guest present at the buffet dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gailman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Page, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cruse, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Walters, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Poindexter, Mr. and Mrs. James Walters, Mrs. Grace Veeny, Miss Winifred Quash, Miss Bernice Johnson, Miss Rachael Johnson, James Wills, Charles Franklin, Melvin Fawcett, George Johnson, Isaac Wade, Mrs. Eloise Hopson and Mrs. Addie S. Williams.

After completion of the meal, Miss Spencer exhibited many beautiful gifts which she brought back from Japan, the most beautiful of which were a twenty-three piece tea set of gold china and a twenty-three piece demi-tasse set of gold China secured while there.

The wedding date is set for June.

ROSA LEE SPENCER

First Woman

Tuskegee Institute, July 6 — Rev. Carleton W. Lee, acting chaplain of Tuskeegee Institute has returned to the campus from the recent meeting of the General Council of Congregational-Christian Churches, which was held at Oberlin College, Ohio.

Rev. Lee, who was a very active worker at the conference reports two eventful occurances which high-lighted the sessions. The first of these significant occurences Rev. Lee stated, "was the elevation of the first woman Miss Helen Kenyon, a native of Brooklyn, New York, as moderator of the General Council of Congregational-Christian Churches. The second was an overwhelming majority vote of the more than 1100 delegates representing more than a million and a half members, favoring the Basis of Union with the Evangelical and Reformed Church".

Rev. Lee also stated that the Basis of Union had already been approved at the last meeting of the General Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed Church The Oberlin action, therefore makes it possible for representatives of the two communions to proceed toward the consummation of union.

The Tuskegee chaplain pointed out that when union has been fully achieved the new Protestant body will be known as the United Church of Christ. It is the expectation that other Protestant groups will find it possible to become a part of this group.

"The union of the Congregational-Christian Churches with the Evangelical and Reformed Church will represent four denominational traditions, each of which is respectively represented in the present names of the denominations," Rev. Lee said.

Tom Campbell Goes To Tuskegee

Weekly Review

"He walked day and night through rain and snow in as bitterly cold a winter as has been recorded in the South. He chopped wood to earn enough to keep him alive, until his fingers froze to the axe handle and could not be straightened for weeks. His feet have never recovered from tramping the wintery roads. At last, reduced almost to a skeleton, he reached Tuskegee.

The Principal's application of the techniques of science to transform agriculture and thus lift the Negro to the good life enthralled Tom Campbell. He became lyrical in advocacy of the efficient plow, the right rotation of seeds in appropriate soil at the best season, the economic miracle of paying off mortgages by breeding the best hogs, chickens, and cows; as well as the equally astonishing miracles of health to be worked through rightly dug and boarded latrines, whitewash and soap, open windows and the balanced diet won by industry and skill from one's own vegetable garden and chicken run. He saw the rural Negro minister as a potential ally to be won over from his prevalent suspicious hostility toward science to co-operation with Tuskegee in its fight against the debt and disease, ignorance and immorality of the Deep South. So it, came about that when Booker Washington, in one of the supremely creative initiatives of his life, yoked Tuskegee with the State government in taking the movable school to the Negro farmer, the inevitable choice for its faculty leadership was Thomas Monroe Campbell. So a first-class leader was shaped by Booker T. Washington's achievement out of an ignorant, callow but eager youth, whose background would, apart from Tuskegee and its founder, have held him in a slough of economic and mental despond to the end of his days.

Two vital points must be held in mind as we look at leaders like Tom Campbell. First, on his arrival at Tuskegee, Campbell would have been rejected as hopeless by every academic test normally applied; but Secondly, in the fight for equality of opportunity, as created by Booker T. Washington, know that a youth who will achieve victory only in so far as he had pressed forward through such both leaders and rank and file possess the skilled capacity and the purgatory of suffering hardship was the first-class leader was Tom disciplined character resulting from such training."

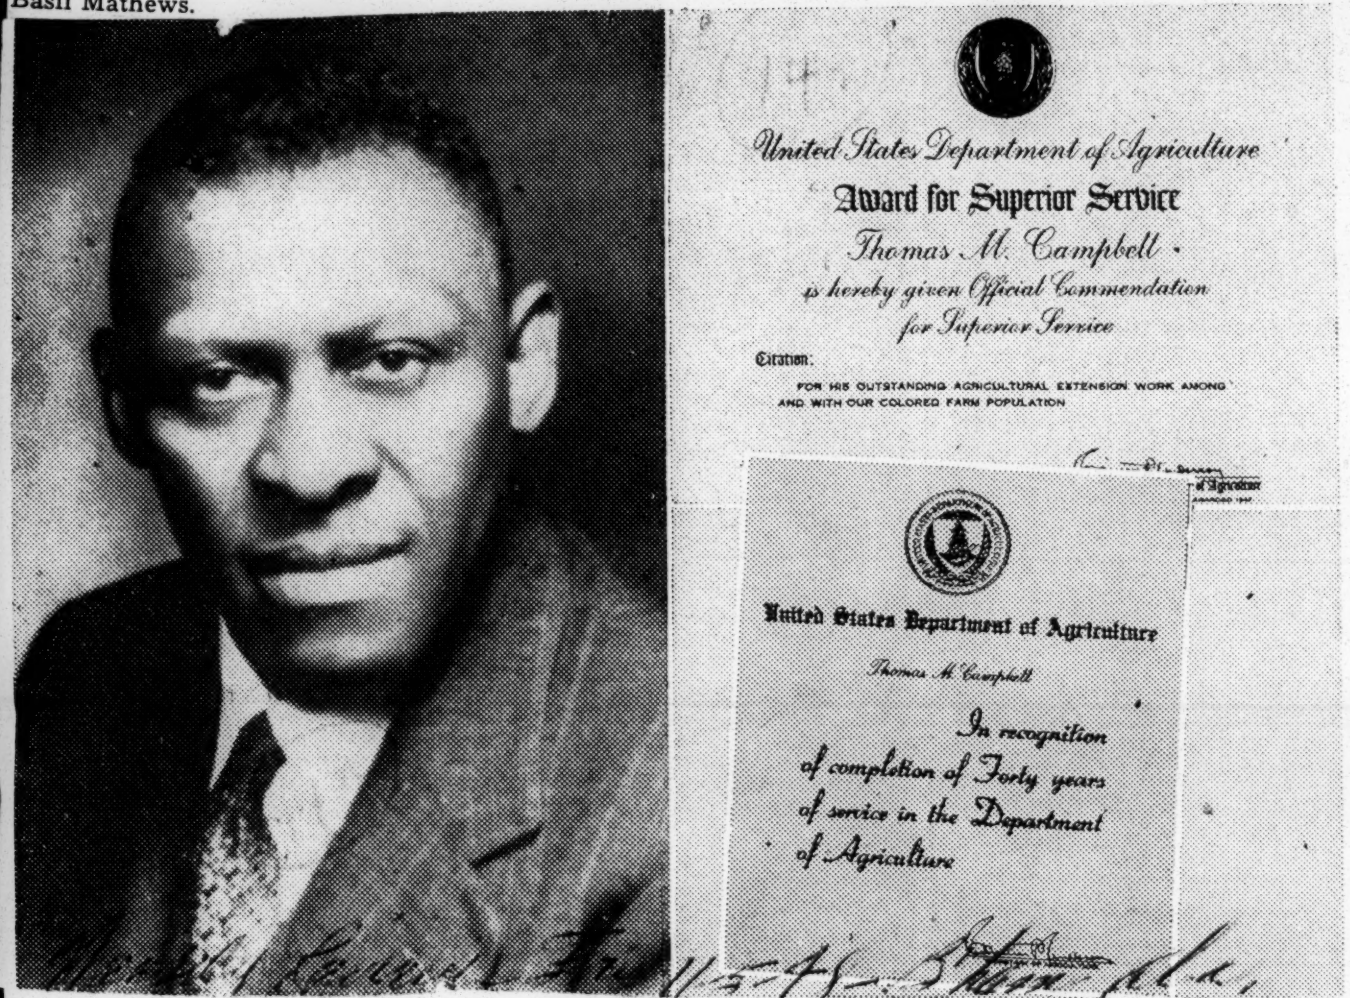
From—Booker T. Washington, by Basil Mathews.



United States Department of Agriculture

Award for Superior Service

Thomas M. Campbell

is hereby given Official Commendation for Superior Service

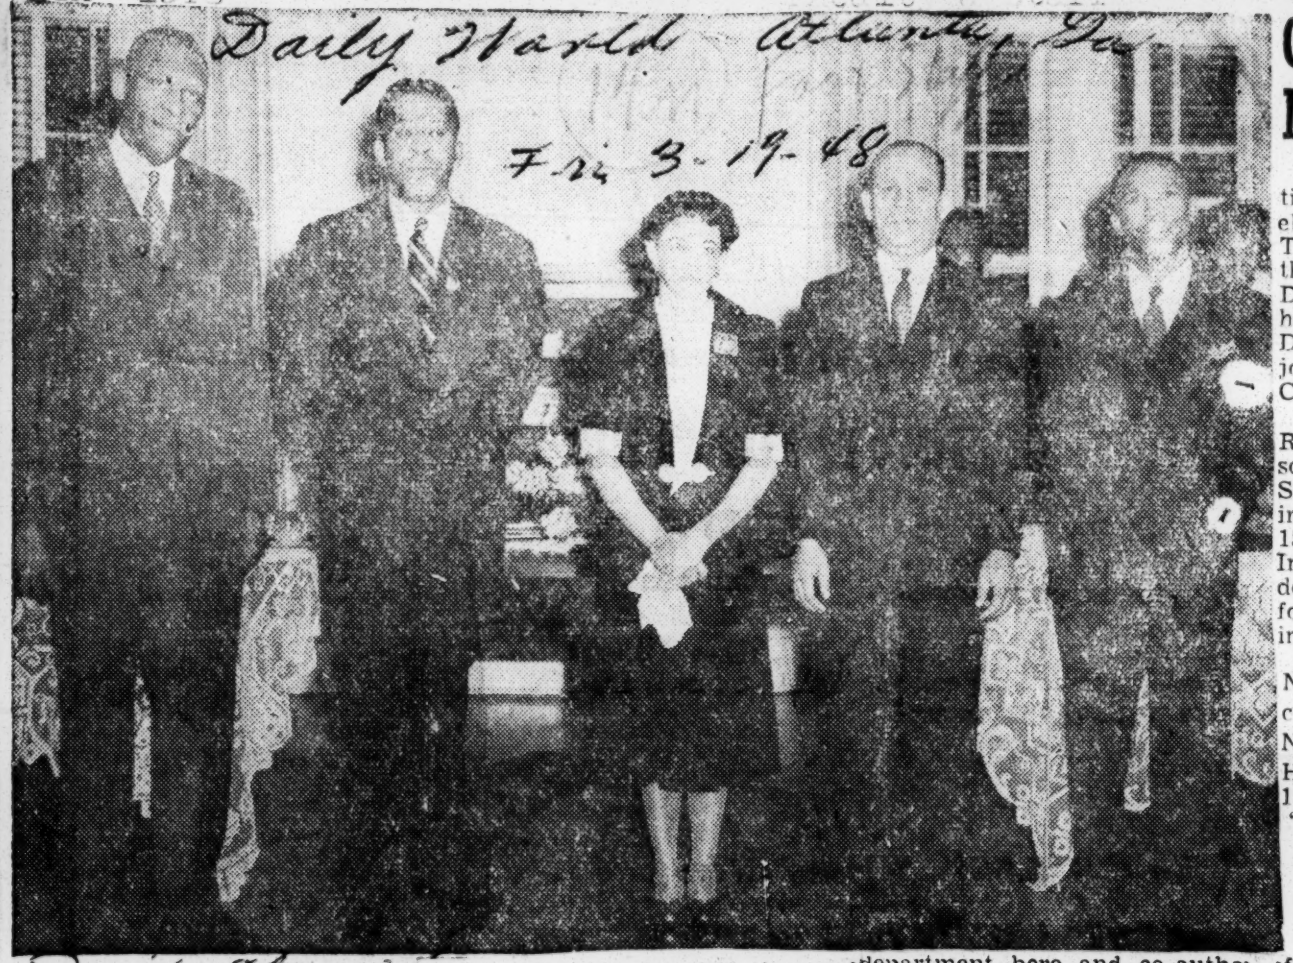
Citation:

FOR HIS OUTSTANDING AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION WORK AMONG AND WITH OUR COLORED FARM POPULATION

United States Department of Agriculture

Thomas M. Campbell

In recognition of completion of Forty years of service in the Department of Agriculture



TUSKEGEE AUTHORS OF BOOKS IN '47 HONORED AT SPECIAL PROGRAM—At a special program held in Institute chapel, Tuskegee faculty members who are authors of books published in 1947 were honored. Presided over by President F. D. Patterson, the program featured short comments on the books and their authors by Dr. Deborah C. Partridge, assistant professor of education; Dean Charles G. Gomillion of the school of education, Dr. Alonzo J. Davis, associate professor of psychology; Mrs. Laura R. Daly, home demonstration agent; T. W. Jones, acting director of the school of mechanical industries, and Dr. Price P. Barker of the Veterans Administration hospital.

Left to right are T. M. Campbell, agricultural field agent, whose book, "The Movable School Goes to the Negro Farmer," was published in London in an abridged edition last year: Dr. Oliver Cromwell Cox, associate professor of sociology and economics and head of the social science division whose book, "Caste, Class and Race,' was the winner of the 1947 Doubleday Doran award of $2,600; Mrs. Jessie Parkust Guzman, director of records and research and editor of the "Negro Year Book for 1947"; Dr. I. A. Derbigny, dean of administration and author of "General Education in the Negro college" and Dr. Joseph E. Fuller, head of the department of mathematics and author of "Mathematics For Students of General Education."

Gomillion To Study At Ohio State University

TUSKEGEE — (ANP) — Dean Charles G. Gomillion of the school of education, Tuskegee Institute, will leave the campus on March 28 for Columbus, Ohio, where he will do advanced study at the Ohio State university during the spring and possibly the summer quarters to return to the campus on Sept 1st.

Mr. Gomillion will do work toward the doctorate degree with special emphasis on educational sociology. A graduate of Paine College, Mr. Gomillion studied at Fisk University and Northwestern University before attending Ohio State in 1943. He has been dean of Tuskege's school of education since 1945.

Assuming duties as acting dean of the scohol will be Dr. Alonzo J. Davis, professor in the psychology department here and co-author of the Encyclopedia of Vocational Guidance, just off press.

Gammon Gets New President

Dr. Harry V. Richardson, a native of Jacksonville, Fla., has been elected President of the Gammon Theological Seminary in Atlanta, the Board of Trustees announced. Dr. Richardson, who will assume his new duties Sept. 1, succeeds Dr. J. W. Haywood, who has joined the staff of the Methodist Commission on World Peace.

After graduating from Western Reserve University Dr. Richardson attended Harvard Divinity School, where he ranked second in his graduating class. He served 15 years as chaplain at Tuskegee Institute, and during this time he developed an extensive program for training Negro rural ministers in Alabama.

The success of his work among Negro rural pastors caused officials of Drew University, Madison, N. J., to invite him to study there. He received his Ph. D. degree in 1945. He is the author of a book, "Dark Glory."

Gammon Gets New President

Dr. Harry V. Richardson, a native of Jacksonville, Fla., has been elected President of the Gammon Theological Seminary in Atlanta, the Board of Trustees announced. Dr. Richardson, who will assume his new duties Sept. 1, succeeds Dr. J. W. Haywood, who has joined the staff of the Methodist Commission on World Peace.

After graduating from Western Reserve University Dr. Richardson attended Harvard Divinity School, where he ranked second in his graduating class. He served 15 years as chaplain at Tuskegee Institute, and during this time he developed an extensive program for training Negro rural ministers in Alabama.

The success of his work among Negro rural pastors caused officials of Drew University, Madison, N. J., to invite him to study there. He received his Ph. D. degree in 1945. He is the author of a book, "Dark Glory."

Four Denominations To Be Combined In Uniting of Churches

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala., July 2—Rev. Carleton W. Lee, acting chaplain of Tuskegee Institute, has returned to the campus from the recent meeting of the General Council of Congregational-Christian Churches, which was held at Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio.

Rev. Lee also stated that a Basis of Union had already been approved at the last meeting of the General Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed Church. The Oberlin action, therefore makes it possible for representatives of the two communions to proceed toward the consumation of union.

The Tuskegee chaplain pointed out that when union has been fully achieved, the new Protestant body will be known as the United Church of Christ. It is the expectation that other Protestant groups will find it possible to become a part of this group.

"The union of the Congregational-Christian Churches with the Evangelical and Reformed Church will represent four denominational traditions, each of which is respectively represented in the present names of the denominations," Rev. Lee said.

'Skeegee Mentor Receives Red Cross Award

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—(SNS)—The Natonal Headquarters of the American Red Cross has awarded Ross C. Owen, of Tuskegee Institute, a certificate of appreciation and a five year volunteer service medal in recognition of his splendid services rendered as a volunteer instructor in the Red Cross Water Safety Campaign.

Ross Owen, who coaches swimming and track, and who also serves as the backfield coach of the Golden Tiger football team at Tuskegee Institute, has for a number of years given freely and generously of his time to the Red Cross Swimming Program.

At the present time Owen is on leave of absence and is enrolled at New York University, New York City, studying for the doctorate in Physical Education.

He is expected to return to Tuskegee Institute from his advance study on or about September 1.

Pryce Gets Merit Excellence Award

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.,—The American Society of Landscape Architects has awarded Edward Lawrence Pryce a certificate of merit for excellence in the study of landscape architecture at Ohio State University, Columbus, for the Academic Year, 1947-1948.

Previously, for excellence in scholarship in landscape architecture, Pryce had been declared the winner for his design of a shopping center. The jury that made the award was composed of landscape architects meeting at Harvard University. Entered in this competition were students in landscape architecture from various sections of the United States.

Before entering Ohio State University, Pryce graduated with honors from Tuskegee Institute in the Class of 1937 with a Bachelor of Science degree in agriculture. At Tuskegee he was a captain in the R. O. T. C., and a member of the Ki-Yi Club and was affiliated with other campus organizations

At present Pryce is instructor in landscape design at Tuskegee Institute.

Encyclopedia's Co-Author

Dr. Alonzo J. Davis, professor of psychology at Tuskegee Institute, is co-author of "The Encyclopedia of Vocational Guidance" edited by Oscar J. Kaplan, a section on Negro Americans in Minnesota.

The encyclopedia, a two volume set just off press, gives a comprehensive insight on the problems involving and the circumstances surrounding all phases of vocational guidance. Dr. Davis writes which he discusses current practices, employment and problems, opportunities for exploratory experiences, nature of instructional materials, administration of the program, student phylosophy, etc. The psychologist received the Ph. D. degree from the University of

Tuskegee Honors Authors on Faculty

Each of these faculty members at Tuskegee Institute published a book in 1947. They were honored recently at a special program held in the campus chapel. From left to right they are: T. M. Campbell, author of "The Movable School Goes to the Negro Farmer," which was published in an abridged edition in London; Dr. Oliver C. Cox, whose "Caste, Class, and Race" won the 1947 Doubleday Doran Award; Mrs. Jessie P. Guzman, editor of "The Negro Yearbook"; Dr. I. A. Derbigny, author of "General Education in the Negro College," and Dr. Joseph E. Fuller, who wrote "Mathematics for Students in General Education." Dr. Harry V. Richardson, chaplain at Tuskegee, whose picture is not included, is the author of "Dark Glory" and co-author of "The Christian Way in Race Relations."

AUTHOR—Dr. Joseph Fuller, mathematics professor at Tuskegee Institute, is the author of a textbook, "Mathematics for Students of General Education," which has just been released by Edward Brothers of Ann Arbor, Mich.

Mr. Holsey Answers Our Mr. Graves

To the Editor:

About two weeks ago, your Washington correspondent, Lem Graves, in commenting upon his visit to the Virgin Islands, in the form of an open letter to Judge Hastie, expressed apprehension that if the Virgin Islands were opened extensively to tourists, the natives would be reduced to bellhops and waiters.

If along with the erection of modern hotels, prejudiced management was employed to operate them, we would whole-heartedly agree with Mr. Graves.

On the other hand, Mr. Graves' letter suggested the possibilities of a wonderful opportunity for qualified Negroes to operate such resort hotels as he so vividly described. Here in the States are many Negroes who have distinguished themselves as chefs and headwaiters. Under the leadership of an experienced manager, such capable and experienced men could be recruited to round out a competent and efficient staff.

Fred R. Brown, chef at Hotel Roanoke, has recently been certificated as "Master Chef of Virginia." O. J. Duffin, supervising chef for the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, works very closely with the Tuskegee commercial dietetics course.

The current issue of Service magazine contains an article entitled "Two Headwaiters of Distinction," in which success stories are told of Headwaiters Blake Trammell of the Hotel Goldman in Fort Smith, Ark., and Richard Sooden of the Hotel Peabody in

Capt. Davenport Resumes 'skegee Bandmaster Post

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala. Sept. 24—The Tuskegee Institute Band whose influence in building a spirited morale in support of the Golden Tigers, will again this year be under the direction of Capt. Alton A. Davenport. Capt. Davenport, who served in World War II, was a leader of the 34th Army Service Forces Band at Fort Benning, Georgia. The ensemble won many commendations for the high character of its music, and in recognition of his leadership ability, Capt. Davenport received a citation from his commanding officer.

After his graduation from Tuskegee Institute in the Class of 1937, Capt. Davenport was connected with musical organizations in Birmingham and in New York.

ALABAMA FARM SPECIALIST TO SURVEY COLLEGES

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Dr. Jesse R. Otis, Alabama state head of Negro agricultural extension work since 1944, arrived here this week to begin a four-month study of Negro land-grant colleges and associated institutions to explore opportunities for using these schools in research projects under the Research and Marketing Act.

Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan said Dr. Otis has been loaned to his Department for the survey, which he expects will make it possible for him to allocate research projects to Negro institutions. He has not been able to assign them any projects up to now, he said, because of lack of information about their facilities.

Dr. Otis holds a Ph.D. degree in agricultural economics from Cornell.

Harvard University Library Cataloger

Mrs. Hiawatha Morrow Smith, who finished her course in library science in 1943, is a cataloger in the Widemer Library of Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass. A graduate of Lane College, Jackson, Tenn., Mrs. Smith was previously employed as an assistant in the reference department of the library at Tuskegee Institute.

JULIUS FLOOD NAMED URBAN LEAGUE ADVISOR

TUSKEGEE, Ala.—J. Julius Flood, personnel director of Tuskegee Institute, has been added to the Vocational Guidance Advisory Committee of the National Urban League, he was informed here last week.

Pedagog Is Co-Author Of Encyclopedia

Dr. Alonzo J. Davis, professor of psychology at Tuskegee Institute, is co-author of "The Encyclopedia of Vocational Guidance" edited by Oscar J. Kaplan. Dr. Davis writes a section on Negro-Americans in which he discusses current practices, employment and problems, opportunities for exploratory experiences, nature of instructional materials, administration of the program, student philosophy, etc.

WILLIAM L. DAWSON

Dawson Directs N.Y. State School Music Association

Won Wide Acclaim With Tuskegee Choir In '32 Appearance

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—An event of unusual interest to music lovers everywhere is scheduled by the New York State School Music Association when William L. Dawson, famed director of the Tuskegee Institute Choir, will direct a choir of music directors at the annual convention of that organization in Rochester, New York, on Saturday evening, December 4th at the Eastman School of Music.

The choir, composed of a selected group of men and women who are music directors in the schools of New York State, will begin rehearsals after Mr. Dawson appears on the scene in advance of the scheduled concert.

SIGNIFICANT HONOR

The honor that has come to Tuskegee Choir, of 100 voices, is one of the celebrated musical organizations in America. It was signally honored when it was engaged to sing at the opening of Radio City, New York, in 1932. The instantaneous success which the choir attained on this occasion resulted in the group being retained for five weeks at the New York State School Music Association to be held at the Sherry Radio City Music Hall.

Mr. Dawson is not only outstanding conductor, but he is also a distinguished composer. His Negro Symphony was played by the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, Leopold Stokowski conducting, and it was hailed as a significant contribution from an American composer.

While in Rochester Mr. Dawson

14n 1948

Farmers Conference

The News Birmingham Ala
TO VISIT STATE — Secretary Sat. Clinton P. Anderson 1-10-48

Tuskegee Farm Speaker Anderson

The News
TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala., Jan. 10—Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson will deliver the principal address at the 56th annual Farmers Conference here Jan. 21. Birmingham, Ala.

In making the announcement, President F. D. Patterson stated that the secretary's address will climax a week's intensive short course for farmers, farmers' wives, rural ministers and other leaders in rural communities in which the conference theme, "Ways of Increasing Farm Income for Better Rural Living" will be discussed and enlivened with appropriate demonstrations. Sat. 1-10-48

Successful farmers from several adjoining states selected by extension workers and vocational agriculture teachers will exhibit, with products and illustrations, the farming practices and unusual methods which have helped them to increase their incomes.

During Farm and Home Week which begins next Wednesday, emphasis, said Agricultural Director L. A. Potts, will be placed on improved rural housing. By actual practice, instruction will be given in farm home planning, making concrete blocks from native materials, home construction and making and repairing furniture.

President Jacob L. Reddix, Jackson College, Jackson, Miss., will be guest speaker at the annual banquet for farmers Tuesday evening, Jan. 20, in Tompkins Hall.

Secretary Anderson's address will be heard during the program in Logan Hall which begins at 2 p.m. on Wednesday the 21st, and loud speakers will be provided to accommodate the overflow audience.

Anderson To Speak At Tuskegee Jan. 21

Birmingham News Ala 1-10-48 Sat

TUSKEGEE, ALA., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson is scheduled to deliver the principal address at the 56th annual Farmers' Conference here Jan. 21, Tuskegee Institute President F. D. Patterson announced Friday. Ala

Patterson said the address would climax a week-long short course for farmers, farmers' wives, rural ministers and other leaders in rural communities. The conference theme will be "Ways of Increasing Farm Income For Better Rural Living."

Increase Income For Better Living Theme Of Meeting

The News Birmingham Ala Sun. 1-18-48

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Jan. 17—Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson will address the Tuskegee Negro farmers conference here Wednesday.

Agricultural leaders of the state, both white and Negro, will attend the conference, as will a large group of successful Negro farmers from five Southern states.

Progress of the Negro farmer during the 56 years since the conference was founded by Booker T. Washington will be reviewed.

In 1906, the first Negro county agent, T. M. Campbell, was appointed as a result of cooperative efforts between Washington and Dr. Seaman A. Knapp. Now, according to J. R. Otis, Negro extension leader, there are in Alabama 82 Negro agents consisting of eight state and district leaders, 37 county agents and 37 home demonstration agents. Sun. 1-18-48

Since the modest beginning of the vocational educational program under the Smith-Hughes act passed in 1917, this work among Negroes has grown until in 1947 there were, according to Arthur Floyd, state teacher-trainer, 39 Negro vocational agriculture teachers and 48 teachers of vocational home economics. Most of these workers serve in the rural communities and are contributing towards the progress of Negro farmers and the improvement of farm living.

Through 38,047 Negro 4-H Club boys and girls and 4,000 NFA and NHA boys and girls, the extension and vocational programs are preparing tomorrow's farmers for opportunities offered on Alabama's yielding and versatile acres. Each generation, therefore, has the benefit of pyramiding experiences and continuous schooling in the most approved scientific farm practices.

Each year groups of Negro agricultural workers and selected farmers visit the Alabama experiment stations and in group meetings held in various parts of the state, hear discussions and see demonstrations by Auburn's trained and experienced specialists.

* * *

INCENTIVES STIMULATED by this type of leadership and the potent influence of the Tuskegee farmers conference have encouraged farm ownership among Negroes in the state and enabled those engaged in farm operations to contribute towards Alabama's economic progress. The News

According to recent census figures, of the 67,230 Alabama farms operated by non-white farmers in 1945, 18,382 were owned farms valued at $29,663,000. Dallas County led in 1945 with 4,127 non-white farm operators. Wilcox, Perry, Macon, Sumter, Hall and Greene Counties followed with more than 2,000 each. Birmingham Ala

* * * Ala

THE "BIG DAY" WHEN Secretary Anderson speaks will be preceded by the annual Farm and and Home Week which is a short course for farm people and rural ministers. The Farm and Home Week opened last Wednesday with an enrollment of 105 and from the 14th through the 20th these farm people are following a strict classroom schedule conducted by specialists in the Tuskegee Institute schools of agriculture, home economics and mechanical industries.

The men are actually building a low cash cost house modeled after the Rush York home recently completed. They are making the blocks and will, under expert guidance, follow each basic step from planning to construction. The women will be instructed in beautifying home interiors with special emphasis on making and repairing furniture. Sun. 1-18-48

* * *

THE FORENOON SESSION, beginning at 10 a.m., will follow the pattern established by Booker T. Washington a half century ago when discussions were of the "experience meeting" type: the modern version being "case histories." The theme, "Ways of Increasing Farm Income for Better Living," will be presented by dirt farmers who will describe with exhibits and plain, undressed stories how they have increased incomes. Such typical Alabama farmers will include Bob Binion, of Epes, who started beef cattle production in 1941. That year he sold 20 head and in 1947, 129 head. Essex Johnson, of Wetumpka, started with dairy cattle in 1943, sold 800 gallons of milk that year and 3,200 gallons in 1947. W. O. Jones, of Daphne, produced 350 bushels of sweet potatoes in 1942 and 3,400 bushels in 1947. Arthur Kirser, of Gasport, sold 800 pounds of pork in 1943 and 4,500 pounds in 1947. Sun.

Wallace Orr, of Hartselle, will tell how, with modern farm practices, he realized progressive increases in cotton yields: 375 pounds per acre in 1945, 510 pounds in 1946 and 655 pounds in 1947. With equally satisfying results, Willie E. Brown, of Goodwater, will tell how he has developed a permanent and temporary pasture system of lespedeza, kudzu, white Dutch clover and Dallas grass. 1-18-48

An old-fashioned Southern barbecue will fill the intermission between the morning and afternoon sessions. The News

President F. D. Patterson announces that a loud speaker system will be provided at Logan Hall in order that those unable to find seats inside may hear the address by Secretary Anderson.

Farm Mechanization Labeled Path To South's Prosperity

The Advertiser Montgomery Ala

By REX THOMAS

TUSKEGEE, ALA., Jan 21.—(AP)—Secretary of agriculture Anderson outlined Wednesday a four-point agricultural program highlighted by mechanization and industrialization which he said will mean greater prosperity for Negroes as well as white farmers in the South.

Speaking at the closing session of a five state Negro farm conference, Anderson urged greater emphasis on:

Mechanized operation of both large and small farms; continued research, not only in seeking new outlets for cotton but also aimed at developing livestock and dairying as major industries; increased home ownership to replace the preponderance of tenancy and sharecropping and to absorb a labor surplus brought about by mechanization, and, the creation of more industries in the South, particularly those in rural communities.

Most of the secretary's address was devoted to mechanization, which he said "will come, and when it does it cannot be isolated."

The future of cotton, in fact, is dependent on it, he said, because "whether American cotton can hold its foreign markets against foreign cotton and its domestic markets against the synthetic fibers depends upon its price and its quality, and price depends, in part, on the cost of production." Montgomery Ala

Use of tractors, mechanical cotton pickers and other power devices has lowered the cost of production, Anderson explained, to a marked degree.

Larger, Fewer Farms

The effect of mechanization, he continued, will be to encourage larger but fewer farms. Some farms will "disappear altogether as separate operating units."

To meet that condition, Anderson said, increased industrialization of the South will be necessary to take up a surplus of labor no longer required for agricultural reemployment.

The secretary plugged again, as he had done in Congress two years ago, for federal legislation to help provide industrial training for rural workers.

Although he advocated dairy and livestock farming for diversified use of land. Anderson said their full development still must await successful completion of scientific research to find breeds of cattle suited to the South. 1-22-48

Extremes of heat and humidity are the principal handicaps now, he explained, but experiments are being conducted on cattle from India in an effort to combine their resistance to heat, drought and pests with the dairy qualities of American animals.

Similar tests are underway for the improvement of beef cattle, hogs and sheep, he added.

Of home ownership, the cabinet member said the nation's future agriculture policy should be a program of diversified farming aimed at "ownership or stable tenure for all capable tenants and croppers who are potentially able to make a good living on the farm."

Progress has been made, he said, as evidence by the fact that the number of rural Negro homeowners has increased some 13,000 since before World War II.

Concluding, Anederson asserted

Food Show

Chefs 'Put on the Dog' At Tuskegee Food Show

24 Pittsburgh Courier

Pittsburgh Pa.

By ALBON L. HOLSEY/

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE—Representatives of the National Restaurant Association and the American Hotel Association, outstanding Negro chefs and headwaiters and more than thirty exhibitors joined in making the third annual Tuskegee Food Show and Nutrition Institute the largest attended and most colorful of these annual events.

Negro chefs and headwaiters from leading railroads and popular hotels, under the leadership of Chef O. J. Duffin of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, staged demonstrations which included preparation on the stage of southern fried chicken and corn fritters, smoked turkey a la king, Carver peanut soup, and water cress biscuits.

E. W. Ramsey, director of the Institute's Department of Commercial Dietetics, and a "team" of his advanced students made and served lemon and strawberry chiffon pie.

Sat. 6-29-48

VISITING CHEFS

Visiting chefs and headwaiters, aside from Mr. Duffin, included: Chester Board and Charles Ross, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad; Vernon P. Johnson, Charles F. Massie and Paul Tillman, Illinois Central Railroad; Albert D. Sayles and Edward Qualles, Missouri-Kansas-Texas Lines; Charles Taylor, New York Central Railroad; Horace Moran, Hotel Monson, St. Augustine, Fla.; Blake Trammell, Hotel Goldman, Fort Smith, Ark.; John Harrison, Mills Restaurant, Cincinnati, Ohio, and Mrs. Georgia Meade, Blue Herrion Night Club, St. Augustine, Fla.

PUBLIC MEETING

Andrew S. Seiler, Boston caterer and director of the National Restaurant Association, presided at the public meeting Friday evening in Trade "A" Assembly Room.

A surprise feature of the meeting was the presentation of 14-year-old Hattie Gant of Wilcox County, Ala., who produced a grand champion Angus in the Alabama Negro 4-H Club Calf Show recently held in Montgomery. This calf, she told the audience, cost her $80, and feed costs brought the total expense to $169. The final selling price during the auction was $1.20 per pound, and her profit was $860.

Sat. 5-29-48

GROUP ORGANIZED

The visiting chefs and headwaiters took time out from their busy program to complete the organization of the Booker T. Washington Culinary Association, which was set up as a temporary organization during the 1947 Food Show. The purpose of the organization is to stimulate interest in standards of service and professional growth, to devise methods of encouraging young men and women to enter one of the many training schools for hotel, restaurant and institutional work; to publicize the work of outstanding Negro chefs and headwaiters and to glorify the culinary profession.

14n 1948

DR HUGH I. KERR
TUSKEGEE FOUDR'S
DAY SPEAKER

The Weekly Review

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE ALA. April 3, 1948—Dr. Hugh Thompson Kerr prominent Pittsburgh Clergyman, author and lecturer will be the Founder's Day speaker here Sunday, April 11, it was announced through the office of President F. D. Patterson. Birmingham, Ala.

Dr. Kerr's distinguished activities include service as president of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education; Moderator, General Assembly of the Presbyterian church; Trustee of the University of Pittsburgh, and among his books are "The Challenge of Jesus," "Preaching in the Early Church," "Faith and Life," and "Children's Story Sermons." Sat. 4-3-48

The line of marcr for the Founder's Day exercises will leave Carnegie Music Hall at 1:30 Sunday afternoon and the exercises will begin in the Chapel at 2:00 O'clock.

Booker T. Washington Paid Honor by Dewey

Atlanta Daily World

ALBANY, N. Y., April 4—(AP)—Gov. Dewey paid tribute Sunday to Booker T. Washington.

Noting that Monday is the anniversary of the Negro leader's birth, Dewey declared in a statement:

"Much of the progress of Negroes in our free society today is due to one of the finest members of their own race, Booker T. Washington." Mon. 4-5-48

Dr. Carver's Memory Honored At Tuskegee

The Birmingham Age-Herald

TUSKEGEE, Ala., April 12—(AP)—The memory of George Washington Carver, famed Negro educator and founder of Tuskegee Institute, was honored here yesterday.

The 32nd Founder's Day address was delivered by Dr. Hugh Thompson Kerr, chairman of the Alliance of Reform Churches, Pittsburgh. He spoke from the institute's chapel.

"From this platform," the clergyman said, "has gone forth a philosophy of life so simple and so mature that it has become the driving force in all interracial thinking. From this platform the lowly and the great have spoken. And from this institution, under the leadership of Booker T. Washington, has gone forth in the men and women who have been trained here a stream of influence which has brought hope and refreshment to the whole nation."

The Negro institution was founded by Washington in 1881.

ETW UNDEFEATED SAYS
DR. KERR

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, ALA. April 1948—"To read again the story of the life of Booker T. Washington is to come in touch with a rare spirit. He was undefeated. His life was a triumph of faith. He believed in himself, in God and his fellowmen." stated Dr. Hugh Thompson Kerr, Chairman, Alliance of Reformed Churches, Pittsburgh, Penn. when he spoke at Tuskegee Institute Sunday at exercise commemorating the life of service of the distinguished Tuskegee educator.

Birmingham, Ala.

In speaking of the Founder's effort to apply dignity to labor, Dr. Kerr said: "At a time when many people thought it beneath the dignity of an educated men to toil with his hands, he put forth the mandate 'everybory has to work and from that simple standard grew the multiple industries which characterize Tuskegee today."

Sat 4-3-48

"If it were a question of scholarship or character," he continued, Dr. Washington would have cast his vote in the scales for character. Character has no dealings with racial difference. It transcends distinction, and unites in a unbreakable bond, young ad old, rich and poor, black and white."

Founder's Day At Tuskegee Institute

Montgomery Advertiser

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—Founder's Day activities were held here April 11, preceded by Trustee Day exercises April 10. The activities included special exercises at the institute chapel, with an address by Dr. Hugh Thompson Kerr chairman of the Alliance of Reformed Churches, Pittsburgh, Pa.

A wreath was placed on Dr Washington's grave by the Montgomery Tuskegee club at 3:30 p. m. April 11, followed by a band concert on White Hall lawn. Vesper services were held in the chapel at 7 p. m.

Other activities included a special review of students marching to chapel and special dinners in the faculty cafeteria.

James Besteda, tailor of Mobile, Ala., gave an address at the alumni program in the chapel, during the reunion of the class of 1928, April 10, at 6 p. m. Camilla Williams, soprano, gave a recital in the chapel at 8 p. m.

Other activities of Trustee's Day were the trustees meeting in Peabody Room, Dorothy Hall; a tour of the campus by trustees, and the meeting of the Southern Regional Association of the general alumni.

DR HUGH I. KERR
TUSKEGEE FOUDR'S
DAY SPEAKER

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, ALA April 3, 1948—Dr. Hugh Thompson Kerr prominent Pittsburgh Clergyman, author and lecturer, will be the Founder's Day speaker here Sunday, April 11, it was announced through the office of President F. D. Patterson.

Sat 4-3-48

Birmingham, Ala.

Dr. Kerr's distinguished activities include service as president of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education; Moderator, General Assembly of the Presbyterian church; Trustee of the University of Pittsburgh, and among his books are "The Challenge of Jesus," "Preaching in the Early Church," "Faith and Life," and "Children's Story Sermons."

The line of marcr for the Founder's Day exercises will leave Carnegie Music Hall at 1:30 Sunday afternoon and the exercises will begin in the Chapel at 2:00 O'clock.

Tuskegee Advised to Do Something

The Afro-American

UN Official Says It Lives on Booker T.

Baltimore, Md.
Sat. 5-8-48

By JAMES L. HICKS

NEW YORK (NNPA) — The Tuskegee Institute Alumni Association of New York sat in stony silence at the St. Mark Methodist Church here last Sunday as an African-born official of the United Nations denounced their school for teaching college students to be cooks and stewards and called on them to "quit preaching Booker T. Washington to the world."

The blasts were leveled by Dr. Ernest Kalibala, area specialist in the department of trusteeships of the United Nations, who was guest speaker of the Tuskegee Alumnis Association at its annual Founder's Day Program here in honor of Booker T. Washington.

Sat. 5-8-48

Mrs. Ophelia W. Pearson, dean of the School of Home Economics at Tuskegee, sat on the platform behind Dr. Kalibala as he ripped into Tuskegee. About 95% of his audience were Tuskegee graduates.

Dr. Kalibala explained that he felt that Booker T. Washington was a great man, but he said the time has come for colored people to add something to the work already started by Mr. Washington rather than make a symbol of him by going around preaching about what he accomplished.

Not for College Fund Either

Dr. Kalibala told his audience that if they would measure what they have added to the work of Mr. Washington they would find that it is very little.

And he declared, the United Negro College Fund started by Tuskegee is not a step of progress. "What is $1,400,00 to more than 30,000 students?" he asked.

He charged that the money raised by the College Fund will not aid in advancement but will only serve to "maintain the status quo." He chided his audience that a Rockfeller was associated with the movement that was asking for a mere million dollars for the needs of more than 30,000. He said Tuskegee alone could use that much on improvements.

Turning his attention from Tuskegee to the race generally, Dr. Kalibala said the colored population of this nation is at a stalemate.

People, he declared, graduate too late from college and are therefore too old when they get married. They only want one child—or none—he asserted, and three of every five marriages end in the divorce courts.

Sat. 5-8-48

Too Much Living in Past

He said, like Tuskegee, many colored people go around living in the past, boasting of what some colored man accomplished years ago. They are not prepared to meet the challenge of the times themselves, he declared.

Stating that he bears witness to this every day, Dr. Kalibala said Haiti, Liberia and none of the other countries of the darker races have men in the United Nations who are qualified to compete against others they find there. "There you have black men reciting what Egypt has done," he declared.

He scored colored people in New York City, declaring that they can show very little in the way of accomplishments "except possibly the largest dance hall in town—and they do not own that."

Knows Whereof He Speaks

Dr. Kalibala said he would defend Booker T. Washington as a great man wherever he heard him attacked. He disclosed that he had once attended Tuskegee Institute himself but left the school because of what he considered an inadequate cirricula in English and went to Harvard where he remained to receive his doctorate.

When he finished his denunciation of Tuskegee he apologized to those in the audience whom he might have offended.

Listening to the speech was Marion E. Jones, who at one time was the office boy of Booker Washington. He said he thought the speech was "all right."

Jan 1948 — [illegible] 1

'Self-help' home built for $1,000

Tuskegee, Ala. (AP)--With $250 in cash, a $750 loan and a willingness to work, a Negro farmer near here has swapped his shabby home for a two-bedroom bungalow as up-to-date as a modern city dwelling.

He built it himself in the first practical application of Tuskegee Institute's "low cash cost home" program, an experiment made possible by an abundance of native materials and free labor of relatives and friends.

The idea has worked well for farmer Rush York, and Tuskegee Institute President F.D. Patterson, who conceived it, says the project can go a long way toward ridding the South of its poverty-born shacks.

Low cash outlay

The most important feature, says Dr. Patterson, is that it doesn't require a large cash investment. That would be prohibitive for low-income families.

York, under supervision of Tuskegee officials, built his concrete block home with sand, rock and gravel from a Creek bed. Homemade wooden forms fashioned the building blocks.

His wife and high school daughter helped with the construction, and students from the college chipped in during their spare time to carry out the cooperative intent of Patterson's housing program. But neighbors could do it just as well, and that's the basis on which other "self-help" homes will be built.

Lived in a shack

The York family was chosen for the experiment because of the respect they had won in the community and because they had saved $250 out of their meager farm income. As far back as York can remember, he had always lived in a decaying unpainted wooden cabin.

Dr. Patterson had the York house in mind and thousands of others like it throughout the South when he set to work on a program to replace them with clean, weather-proof dwellings. By using native materials available without cost, and taking advantage of a community willingness to work together, he figured a four-room house could be built for only $1,000. Installation of plumbing and toilet facilities ran the cost to $1,300, but the college paid the difference, Patterson said, to keep its bargain with York. The house is comfortably furnished inside--another college project--and is equipped with electricity and running water, power-pumped from a well.

Industrialist Speaks At Tuskegee Institute

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Jan. 17—Erwin Lehman, vice president in charge of industrial relations, West Point Manufacturing Company, West Point, Ga., spoke before the faculty and student body of Tuskegee Institute this week on "History of American Industry." He analyzed the philosophy, operation and achievements of the American economic system.

Mr. Lehman presented to the college, as a gift of Associated Industries of Alabama, a first edition of a two-volume economic treatise, "The American Individual Enterprise System."

Associated Industries of Alabama is conducting a program of better understanding with the colleges of the state so that the students will have a wider knowledge of the opportunities industry offers in the way of employment.

A series of educational plant visitations will be conducted by Alabama industry in cooperation with colleges to give the students the latest methods of production and expert guidance to those who show an interest in a particular phase of plant operation.

Tuskegee President Cites Gains Made At School In 1947

Tuskegee Institute, Alabama—In the 1947 Annual Report of the President of Tuskegee Institute, Dr. Frederick D. Patterson announced that among the strides forward made by Tuskegee in the year 1947 was the opening of the new School of Veterinary Med. In the same year the Department of Military Science was added to the regular curriculum, making it possible for man students to enroll in the Infantry R. O T C or the Air R O T C as cadets to receive training leading to an Army commission.

Dr. Patterson outlined Tuskegee's program as follows: "Tuskegee Institute's program of education for the days of the Founder has been directed to the needs of the Negro people. The development of a substantial middle class has been a prime objective. This it has sought to accomplish either through preparation of teachers who would instruct in vocational areas of the trades, agriculture, home economics and rural education, or through preparation of those who would operate farms, businesses of their own involving these occupational areas, or who would seek skilled employment in connection therewith. Such an objective is as sound today as in the beginning, not only with regard to the Negro people, but any people facing similar economic and social problems."

With a student body of more than 2500, Tuskegee Institute is contributing to furthering this program on a wide scale. It is also contributing to the educational level of the nation and the economic welfare of the Southern region by its sponsorship of such programs as material and child health training for rural mothers, low cash cost rural housing, hot school lunches and the improvement of elementary and secondary educational standards. The Nurse Training School, which has recently formed affiliations with half a dozen excellent hospitals in various cities of the country to allow complete and specialized training for the young women students, and the growing Infantile Paralysis Center are examples of the Institution's contribution to a different but equally important phase of education.

Dr. Patterson, noting that the School of Mechanical Industries is attracting the highest percentage of veteran enrollment at the present time, pointed out that on-the job training in the building trades, hitherto lacking, was previded in 1947 by the construction of the new School of Veterinary Medicine buildings. This gave the students in the building trades courses extensive practical experience in keeping with the Tuskegee "Interneship" plan.

In the immediate future, the President foresees a continued full enrollment, which makes more imperative than even the extension of dormitory capacity. Shortage of dormitory rooms has reached an acute stage, and plans are made to start building during the next academic year.

Honor 5 Graduates During Alumni Day Activities Saturday

Five Iowa State College graduates were honored for their accomplishments in their chosen fields at Alumni Day, Saturday.

Alumni Merit Awards were presented to Paul S. Clapp, New York City, vice-president of Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation; Dr. Lyle David Goodhue, Bartlesville, Okla., Phillips Petroleum chemist; Mrs. Helen Kelleher, Winterset, president of the Iowa Polled Hereford Association in 1944 and now a farm operator; Dr. Frederick Douglas Patterson, Tuskegee Institute, Ala., president of Tuskegee Institute, and Lyle Watts, chief of the United States Forest Service.

The presentations were made by Francis V. Roy, '04, former official of the Fairbanks-Morse Company. The awards were inaugurated in 1932 and are conferred upon outstanding alumni who have made meritorious contributions to mankind in their fields of endeavor.

African Photographer

A recent visitor to Tuskegee Institute was Milton Abiodum Macauley of Lagos, Nigeria, West Africa, who has been studying photography in New York City. Mr. Macauley was educated at Kings College in Lagos, studied photography in London and was graduated from the School of Modern Photography in New York. In connection with his study in advanced portraiture at the latter school of the Brooklyn Museum.

Tuskegee President Studying at Stanford

PALO ALTO, Calif.—(ANP)—Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, arrived here this week to spend six months in study and research at Leland Stanford University.

graduate work in any course at Tuskegee, except medicine and law. The legislature, during the Sparks' administration, made an appropriation of $25,000 to cover out-of-state scholarships for Negroes in law and medicine.

The 1947 legislature passed the regular annual appropriation of $10,000, as we have been doing since Tuskegee was first chartered. Then I introduced bills appropriating $150,000 and $65,000, making a total of $225,000.

When you recall that it requires a two-thirds vote of the House and Senate to pass an appropriation bill to an educational institution not owned by the state, you will see that this legislature is very friendly to Negro education.

I remember how worried I was when my Tuskegee bills, having cleared the House, went on the Senate calendar during the log-jam of bills caused by the filibuster on the tractor gas bill and road bond issue. Finally, my friends on both sides, held up the filibuster long enough to pass the Tuskegee bills.

They were the last bills to clear the Senate. And while the senators were an-

Tell It To Old Grandma

Letters to the editor must carry complete name and street address of the writer, though pen names may be used at the editor's discretion. Letters of less than 200 words are given preference. All letters may be cut.

Not $25,000—But $225,000 For Tuskegee

EDITOR, THE ADVERTISER: For nearly half a century I have been a subscriber to The Advertiser, and have been a regular and consistent reader of the editorial page.

Being away from home last week, I missed your splendid editorial, "For Export Use."

I have since read this editorial, and want to compliment you on same. It is fine, and should be read by every person north of the Mason & Dixon Line. If you had made a little research before writing, you could have made out a still stronger case for the Southerner.

The purpose of this letter is to put you right about the Tuskegee appropriation. I am told that Senator Allen has already written you about this, but as I did not see his letter, and since I was the author and sponsor of this legislation, I want to give you this information.

In writing about the 1939 appropriation to Tuskegee, you say, quote, "Ten years later this $5,000 was up to $225,000, over $200,000 more than your figures. And $225,000 for an educational institution is pretty good money even in these inflated times.

The greater part of this appropriation is for graduate work in agriculture, veterinary medicine, engineering, etc. A Negro graduate in Alabama can now take post-gry and filibustering to keep any additional legislation from being passed before final adjournment, they graciously held a truce long enough to pass the Tuskegee Institute appropriation bills.

I understand that one of the trade schools to be built soon, under the bill sponsored by George Wallace in the last legislature, is to be for Negro youth.

We are providing for Negro education, Negro health and Negro welfare in Alabama, comparable to any state in the union.

As one of the banners carried by the Negro pickets at the Wallace speaking in Birmingham stated, "The Negro has made more progress in 100 years than the Russian people have in 1,000 years."

JOHN H. PINSON
House of Representatives.
Geiger, Ala.

* * * *

SUCH SPEECHES

Editor, The Advertiser:

The most pathetic political speech I ever listened to was made last Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m., by Henry A. Wallace. The tone and manner was truly penitent of his transgression upon the South. He at last fully realizes the South is capable of taking care of itself and that he was treading upon "hallowed" land, a land consecrated to the laws of Almighty God. Though toward the conclusion he did muster up enough courage to make a last fling to try to convince us that he was the Savior of the South from ignorance, Wall Street, and the two hoodlums, which he inferred, Dewey and Truman.

He is a sad "bird" and will go back from where he came with the knowledge that there is one spot on this earth that will not condone anything pertaining to communism. If Truman and Dewey come South, this same spirit of the South will permeate their very beings and they will go back with the same conviction that the South can no longer be "isolated" but intends to take a seat at the head of the nation.

When you pick up a paper and read such speeches as made by Senators Hill and Sparkman, William Primm, A. A. Carmichael and a few editors scattered about, you just stop and wonder. Their rantings and name calling, "bums, thugs, revolutionaries" are typical of their actions toward this great States' Rights movement over the country.

This is the "giant conspiracy," conspiring toward a peaceful, united nation. These men intend to vote for "the New Dealer," (the one who deals out laws to suit himself not the people), not the Democrat (Gov. Thurmond), for whom their forefathers would undoubtedly vote. These men are getting desperate and are unknowingly seeking the fate of Wallace.

Mr. Hill, the South will nevermore be "isolated" as you seem to think. She is putting up a glorious fight and more power to the great sons of the South in whom we have the greatets faith to follow the principles dictated by a clear conscience.

MRS. J. T. WALTERS
Montgomery.

President of Alcorn Speaks At Tuskegee

Journal & Guide
Norfolk Va. 5-22-48

TUSKEGEE, Ala. — Dr. William H. Pipes, president of Alcorn College and a Tuskegee alumnus, delivered the Annual Scholarship Night Address Tuesday in the Tuskegee Institute Chapel. 5-22-48

Highlight of the occasion came when Dean I. A. Derbigny, acting president of Tuskegee, introduced Dr. Pipes and awarded him the certificate of membership in the Beta Tau Upsilon (Booker T. Washington) chapter of Alpha Kappa Nu. Membership is restricted to those who maintain for their entire college work a minimum average of 2. 3.)

Dean Derbigny stated that the Tuskegee chapter had voted unanimously to make President Pipes a member in view of the fact that: (1) his scholastic record at Tuskegee, before the founding of Alpha Kappa Mu, during his four college years had been straight A's and (2) he had been successful since leaving Tuskegee: M. A., Atlanta University; Ph. D., University of Michigan, and now the successful president of a major college.

5-22-48

Dr. Pipes took as his subject "Self Realization." He declared that, as the record shows men and women of high scholarship attainment become our leaders, for good or for bad. He admonished the students to take lessons from Christ, Booker Washington, and Carver—who possessed humility and self confidence—and become leaders for the good of humanity.

Tuskegee's Hotel Training Lauded

World
Atlanta Ga.

TUSKEGEE —(ANP)— Southern Hotel Journal, spokesman for the hotel industry in the south, in an editorial entitled "Training for Negroes who Deserve It," praises Tuskegee's pioneering program in preparing Negroes for top jobs in hotel cookery and service. The editorial follows: wed 9-1-48

"It isn't the fellow with the most ability, but the fellow with the most financial means who gets to college, usually. That has always been a problem in American education. It's been a problem in hotel schools. A school like Cornell gets some top-drawer minds and some bottom-drawer minds, but when its students go out into hotels, they are Cornell men. The school gets more than its measure of credit for their successes and their failures. 9-1-48

"The same has been true with regard to that great Negro college, Tuskegee institute. Negroes who have completed its courses in commercial dietetics and who have gone into hotels, have been Tuskegee men and women. Tuskegee has received a disproportionate share of credit or blame for every thing the Negroes did after they left the premises of the college. It has not been taken into consideration that Tuskegee students are no more equal than the rest of us in character and ability, and all the school can do is the best job possible with what it gets. What Tuskegee would like (and other schools would like is to attract more top-notch students. It has been suggested recently that here are means of realizing this this wish in greater degree.

"The proposal (and I haven't the faintest idea who first made it) is

Science Institute Held at Tuskegee

Pittsburgh Courier
5-22-48

TUSKEGEE — (ANP) — The fifth annual conference of the National Institute of Science, composed of the nation's top colored men of science, including teachers in 30 colleges, was held at Tuskegee Institute, here, last week.

One hundred and thirty members and nearly 100 other interested visitors attended the meeting, which was held in Armstrong Hall during which 30 papers were read in the fields of biology, chemistry, mathematics, physics and science education.

A committee on co-operative research was established which included Dr. S. M. Nabrit, Atlanta U.; Dr. R. S. Brown, Tuskegee; Dr. C. M. Hill, Tennessee State College; Dr. Lawson, Fisk University and Dr. George Spaulding, Morgan State College.

Eagleson, Tulane Officers

Two Howard University professors were named officers of the institute for the 1948-1949 term. They were H. V. Eagleson, elected president, and V. J. Tulane, chosen as a vice president.

Other officers include R. W. Brown of Tuskegee and H. C. Boggs of Morris Brown, vice presidents; and Dr. H. V. Crouch of Tennessee State, executive secretary-treasurer. The institute will be held at Virginia State College, Petersburg, next year.

IVA GI AT FORT MEADE

FORT MEADE, Md. — Sgt. Erskin Underwood of Iva, S.C., has been assigned to the 35th Mechanized Cavalry Squadron here.

SCHOLARSHIP ESTABLISHED

The National Achievement Club, Inc., establishes the Alma Illery scholarship at Tuskege Institute. Mrs. Mary Clark, first vice president of the National Achievement Club, presents a check to Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee, at the February meeting of presidents of the Pittsburgh area.—(ANP)

Pittsburgh Courier
Seattle Wash.
wed. 6-9-48

Tuskegee Vet Building Ready

TUSKEGEE (ANP) — The new building for the Tuskegee School of Veterinary medicine is scheduled to be occupied when the fall term begins in September. In making the announcement, Dean T. S. Williams explained that changes in the requirements for admission to all veterinary medicine schools of the country are being made.

The change was initiated at a recent meeting of the American Veterinary Medicine Association. Beginning in the fall of 1949 applicants must present a total of not less than two years of pre-professional college credits.

Credit Needs

This will be 90 quarter credits or 60 semester credits which must have been completed with at least a "C" average in a recognized college or university. Up to and including the fall of 1948, one year of pre professional training will be accepted.

"Applications and transcrips for entrance to the school," said Dr. Williams, "must be received by June 15.

Tuskegee Veterinary School Offers Full Four-Year Course

Montgomery Advertiser Jan 6 1948

By ATTICUS MULLIN

TUSKEGEE, ALA., Nov. 5.—Open house was held in the new $1,000,000 veterinary building on the campus of the Tuskegee Institute, Friday, and visitors were amazed at the facilities provided Negro students for the study of veterinary medicine. At the present time, 144 students are taking the ful four-year course leading to a degree and within another year it is expected that at least 200 will be provided for.

The equipment is the very last word and there will not be another Negro institution in the United States with equal facilities and very few white schools can ever approach the Tuskegee school in the modernity of the facilities by which veterinary medicine is taught.

Dr. Fred B. Patterson introduced Haygood Paterson, Alabama's commissioner of agriculture, for a two-minute talk, and Mr. Paterson congratulated the institution on the opportunity it is offering Negroes to learn the science of veterinary medicine. He regards the school as the greatest aid to animal husbandry that Alabama has seen in a long time. He told his hearers that animal husbandry is the very foundation of successful agriculture.

Dr. Patterson spoke briefly and said the school was the fulfillment of a longtime dream. The State of Alabama takes care of the annual operating expenses of the institution.

In Operation

Large numbers of visitors went through the building during the day and most of them openly expressed their amazement at the facilities for study and actual experiment. Visitors saw the clinic for large animals with diagnosis and treatment in progress all day. The obstetrical clinic was in operation all day as was the small animal clinic, the clinical diagnostic laboratory, the pharmacy department, the pathology laboratory, the post mortem laboratory and other facilities. There will be a free clinic each Saturday from 1 to 4 in the afternoon. A great many sick animals were brought in Friday.

The physical plant comprises five buildings with a total of 755,392 cubic feet. The total value of the physical plant including equipment would be in excess of one million dallors.

Students Help

These physical facilities would not have been possible were it not for the fact that about 90 per cent of the construction was done by Tuskegee Institute students. This construction by students includes all types of building construction, carpentry, masonry, plumbing, electrical, painting, plastering, and installation of equipment. The physical plant at the present stage of construction consists of four complete buildings and one which will be completed within a year. The basic phase of construction is concrete block, which was manufactured at Tuskegee Institute, with brick veneer.

The initial development of the school of veterinary medicine was made possible by grants from the general education board and National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The school of veterinary medicine at Tuskegee Institute began its operation in the Fall of 1945 and is now in its fourth year of operation with a full complement of four classes of students.

Vet Administrator Visitor at Skegee

Pittsburgh Courier Sat 12-4-48

TUSKEGEE, Ala.—Here for an official inspection of the Tuskegee Veterans Hospital, Gen. Carl R. Gray Jr. completed a day's busy program with a brief visit to Tuskegee Institute.

Greeted upon his arrival at Veterans Hospital by Dr. T. T. Tildon, hospital manager, the administrator spent seven hours inspecting buildings and wards.

General Gray and his party were served dinner with ninety-five members of the VA hospital staff composed of physicians, dentists and top supervisors of the various medical and administrative activities.

1,248 VETS ENROLLED

President F. D. Patterson met General Gray at the campus entrance.

The institute choir, William L. Dawson, director, sang, and Robert L. Owens III, Arcadia, Fla., a senior in the school of education, and a veteran, in word of welcome, made an earnest plea for world peace and reported that 1,248 veterans are enrolled at Tuskegee Institute.

"The program of education of the veterans administration," said General Gray in his chapel address, "is an investment in America's future." The General stated "that 2,800,000 veterans enrolled in colleges and universities are serious in purpose," and that they are increasing the number of educated persons in our population since a large proportion of service men could not have otherwise afforded college training.

General Gray's party included J. M. Slaton, deputy administrator, Veterans Administration Regional Office, Atlanta; Dr. Frank M. Brewer, branch medical director, Regional Office, Atlanta, and A. W. Wolfolk, information services, Veterans Administration Service, Washington, D. C.

Tuskegee Elects Chicagoan Trustee

Pittsburgh Courier Sat 11-27-48

TUSKEGEE — (ANP) — Election of Sherman J. Sexton, prominent Chicago business executive, as a trustee of Tuskegee Institute was announced this week by Dr. F. D. Patterson, president.

Mr. Sexton, who is president of John Sexton and Company, nationally operating wholesale grocery distributors, is also a trustee of De Paul University in Chicago.

In addition, he is Illinois State chairman of the American Cancer Society fund raising campaign, and a member of the board of governors of the National American Wholesale Grocers Association. He served for years as president of the Chicago Convention Bureau.

Sexton's latest honor comes to him partly in recognition of his work in encouraging agricultural training for Negroes, particularly through his experimental projects at his Sea View Farms estate in Nantucket Island Mass., of which a Tuskegee graduate is local manager.

Pittsburgh Pa. Sat 11-27-48

In making the announcement, President Patterson referred to Mr. Sexton's first visit to Tuskegee in 1946 for the annual food show and nutrition institute and added that "since that visit Mr. Sexton and John Sexton and Company have manifested continued interest in Tuskegee's programs.

We are fortunate to have a man of his experience and qualifications to join our board of trustees."

Tuskegee Veterinary School Has Open House

Courier Pittsburgh Wed 12-8-48 P. 16

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala. Nov. 9.—Open House of the School of Veterinary Medicine held here last week brought to the campus white and Negro farmers, Alabama State officials and representatives from Southern Negro colleges.

The several hundred farmers from Macon and nearby counties, many of whom brought animals to take advantage of the "free examination and diagnosis" features of the day's program, came to inspect the facilities and to witness the demonstrations and treatments in the obstetrical and large and small animal clinics.

As the long line of farmers passed through the Clinical, Diagnostic, Pathology, Anatomy and Post Mortem Laboratories, the specimens and charts aroused their curiosity and caused them to ask many questions.

"We have seen our animals with spells like you explain, but didn't know what was the cause or how to treat them," said one Macon County farmer as he listened attentively to the explanations of Eldridge A. Shay of Lafayette, Louisiana, Junior in Veterinary Medicine. "This place is a God-send for us farmers," said another who overheard the comments.

Fifty young men in flowing white coats bearing the veterinary school's insignia — future veterinarians — acted as receptionists, guides and demonstrators. Howard Seuter, Nashville, Tenn., and John W. Montgomery Galveston, Tex., juniors, conducted demonstrations in the Obstetrical Clinic under the direction of Dr. Earl H. Brown, Jr., assistant instructor in obstetrics.

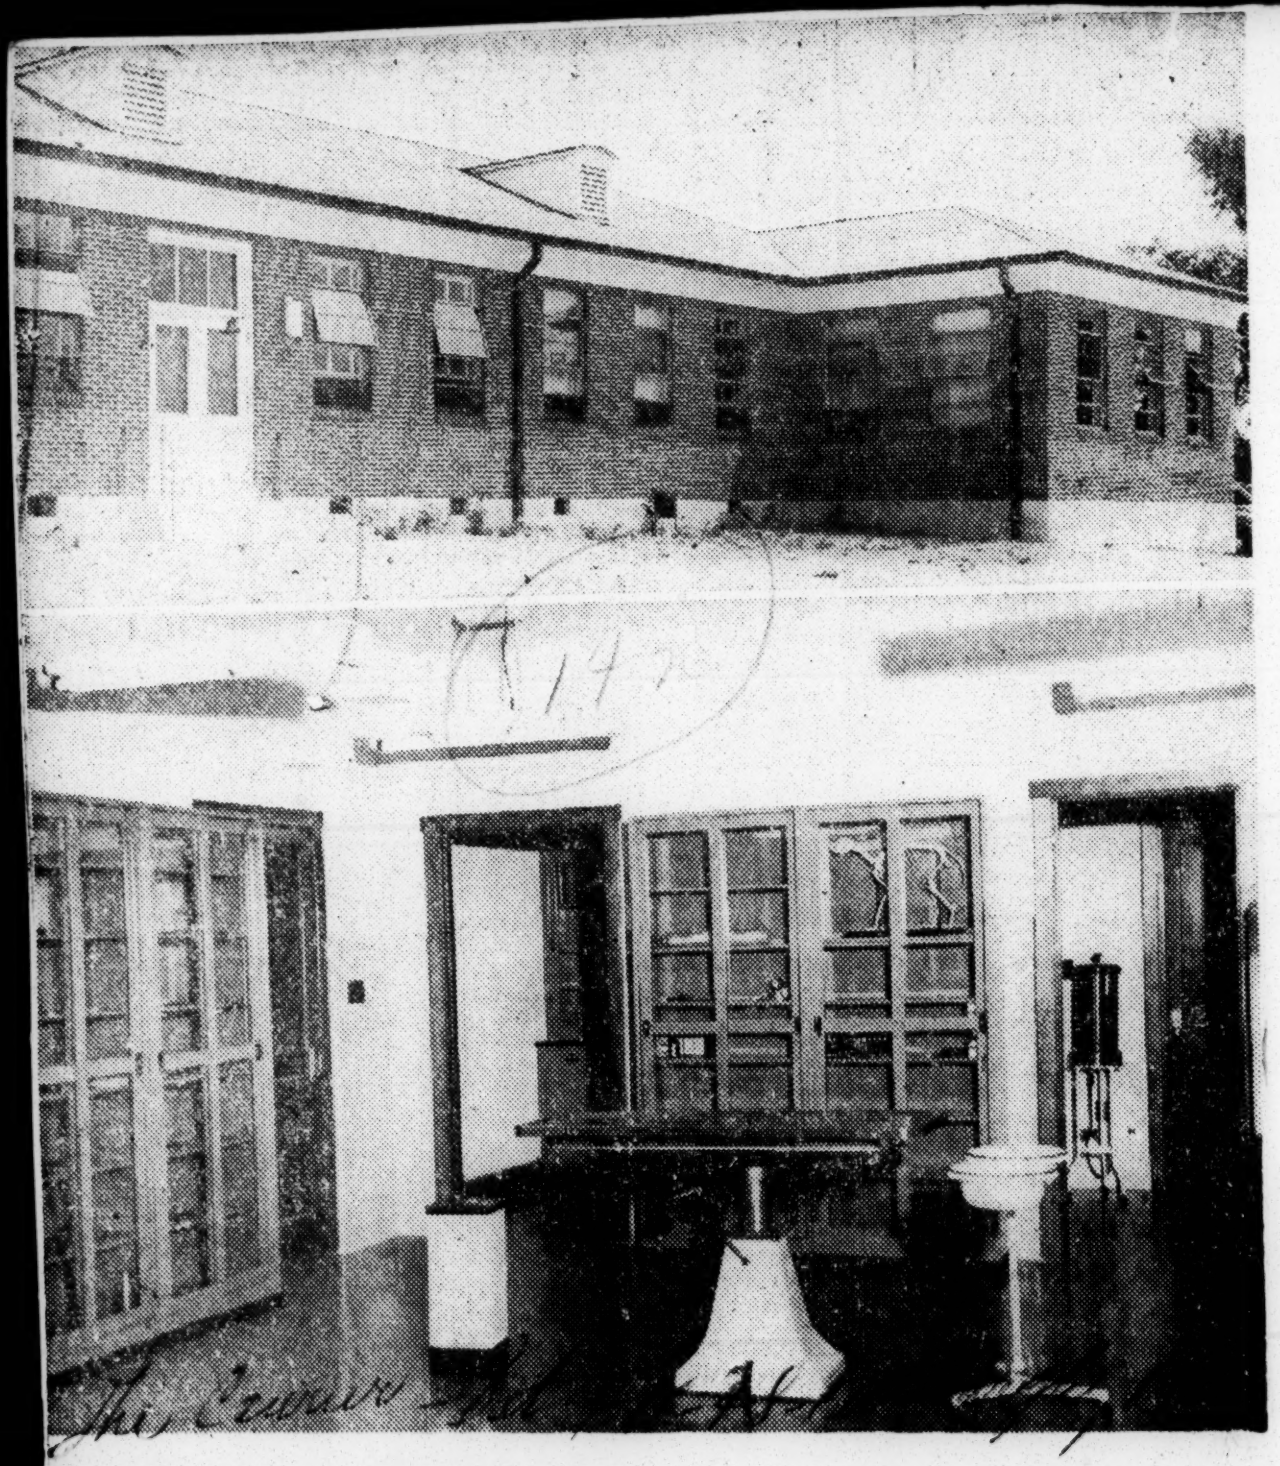
In addition to the Negro farmers, many white farmers, including W. A. Clement, one of Macon County's largest cattle growers, were present. State officials and educators among whom were Haygood Paterson, Alabama chairman of Agriculture and Industry; State Extension Director P. O. Davis and his administrative assistant, Earl Williams; Dean R. S. Suggs of Auburn's School of Veterinary Medicine; Dr. A. R. Meadows, State Superintendent of Education, and Macon County Superintendent of Education, B. L. Balch, attended. Representatives from Alcorn College, Alcorn, Miss.; Alabama A. and M. College, Normal Alabama; Florida A. and M. College at Tallahassee, and Snow Hill Institute, Snow Hill, Alabama were also registered.

"The total value of the physical plant and equipment of the School of Veterinary Medicine when completed will exceed a million dollars," said President F. D. Patterson in welcoming the visitors, "and it represents the culmination of a long cherished dream for Tuskegee Institute to make a larger contribution to the South's rapidly growing livestock industry and to prepare more qualified veterinarians to help supply the increasing demand."

The buildings, which are constructed mainly with student labor, represent grants from the General Education Board and the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Annual operating expenses are supplied by the State of Alabama.

Dr. T. S. Williams, Kansas State College and Iowa State College, is Dean of the School and his staff includes:

E. E. Alexander, Temple University, Pharmacology; Walter C. Bowie, Kansas State College, Physiology; George W. Cooper, Colorado State College, Veterinary Medicine and Clinics; Lloyd B. Mobley, Kansas State College, Veterinary Anatomy and Histology; Thomas G. Perry, Kansas State College, Veterinary Medicine and Surgery; Walter S. Poston, University of California, Clinical Assistant; Edward G. Trigg, Ohio State University, Veterinary Hygiene and Bacteriology; Raymond C. Williams, Kansas State College, Veterinary Anatomy and Histology, and Earl Brown, Jr., Kansas State College, Obstetrics.



TUSKEGEE LEADS IN VETERINARY MEDICINE—Taking the lead among Southern colleges in veterinary medicine, Tuskegee Institute recently moved its veterinary department into the first of four buildings being erected for this purpose at a cost of $1,500,000. It will eventually be the largest physical veterinary training plant in the South. Shown above is one outside wing of clinical building and the interior of the clinic which is the small-animal operating room.—Polk Photos.

TRAINING

Tuskegee Institute, Ala. — July 14 ,1948 — The Public Relations program at Tuskegee Institute has been stepped up as a result of a two-weeks course in supervisory training and management for supervisors and department heads currently conducted by Philmore D. Glover, St. Louis District Manager of Universal Life Insurance Company, home office in Memphis.

So intensely interested are the class discussions that the 93 enrollees who supervise group activities of the 750 faculty members and hired workers, registered 98% attendance. Techniques in managerial practices and human relations are stressed by Glover in a carefully planned course in instructional procedure.

A native of Silver City, N.C., Mr. Glover received his Bachelor of Science degree in Industrial Arts at A. and T. College, Greensboro, North Carolina. World War II brought him an unusual opportunity to acquire specialized training and experience in personnel problems. His basic training in supervisory methods was received at Chanute Field in Illinois, and actual experience extended at the Tuskegee Army Air Base, where he served as instructor in aircraft mechanics, Training Administrator, and Assistant to the Personnel Officer.

Prior to joining the Universal Life Insurance Company administrative staff Mr. Glover had terminated his war-time service at Lockbourne Air Base in Columbus, Ohio, as Personnel Officer, Training Administrator, and Secretary of the Board of Civil Service Examiners. This training course, under the leadership of Mr. Glover, is a demonstration of how Negroes who, fortunately received specialized training for war service may in peace time utilize their newly acquired qualifications to help institutions, organizations and enterprises apply scientific methods in developing sound personnel and management programs.

MISS SELMA BURKE VISITS TUSKEGEE

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala. —Miss Selma Burke, who has achieved fame in the field of sculpture visited Tuskegee Institute this week and appeared as a guest speaker in the Institute Chapel Wednesday evening.

TUSKEGEE REPORTS GAINS IN LAST YEAR

Enrollment of 2,648 at Institute Mostly Men, Dr. Patterson Tells Trustees Here

Reporting an enrollment of 2,648 students, most of whom are men, Dr. Frederick D. Patterson, president, Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Ala., told the institute's board of trustees at the annual meeting here yesterday that the presence of the GIs in the student body gave the school "campus maturity and seriousness of purpose."

Reviewing the progress of the school during the year ended in June, Dr. Patterson told those at the meeting in the Chase National Bank, 18 Pine Street, that the changeover from a preponderance of women students during the war years had "restored the usual balance of two males to one female in our enrollment." He said this was consistent with the technical and vocational work the school is equipped to give.

The student body represented thirty states and the District of Columbia, with Alabama sending the largest number, 1,037, Dr. Patterson said.

The problem of housing male students was increased this year by turning over to women another large dormitory, with the result that 500 men were placed in approved Macon County homes, he said. The construction of Army barracks eased the situation slightly.

The traditional blue uniform for Tuskegee men students has been endangered by the high cost of materials, the president reported. The military character of the Institute might be preserved, he said, by the addition of a Senior Reserve Officers Training Corps unit, with branches in aviation and infantry, both popular services with the Tuskegee men.

Tuskegee Institute obtained last year membership in the American Hereford Association and registered its 1947 crop of Hereford calves, Dr. Patterson disclosed. The Department of Agriculture students fenced in nine miles of school farm land and sawed 137,500 feet of timber valued at $8,250. The department also constructed a farm lake with a capacity of 5,000,000 gallons of water.

The School of Nursing has been improved through financial aid from the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, he said, and an effort will be made to obtain field training for Negro nurses in the Birmingham-Hillman Hospital.

Trade school building construction students last year completed six faculty housing units with concrete blocks reducing costs of construction.

Dr. Patterson reported the reorganization of the George Washington Carver Foundation, whose building was destroyed by fire last year. Thomas Russell of Alexander City, Ala., has accepted the chairmanship of the board of the foundation.

During his absence on leave in Stanford University, Dr. Patterson said the school was managed by Dr. I. A. Derbigny, dean of the college. Basil O'Connor, New York, is president of the Tuskegee board of trustees.

From Dr. Patterson

The other day, the columnist visited Tuskegee Institute to attend open house at the new $1,000,000 veterinary medicine building and laboratories. The visit was interesting and the inspection of the building and facilities was amazing and instructive. Regarding a story which appeared in the Advertiser about the open house, Dr. Fred D. Patterson, President of Tuskegee Institute writes:

"Many thanks for your visit to the open house of the School of Veterinary Medicine and for your excellent story in the Montgomery Advertiser on Saturday morning giving this effort a splendid boost. We deeply appreciate this and we are sure that it will help Tuskegee Institute as it attempts to render service to Negro youth and to the livestock industry of Alabama."

HON. ALBON L. HOLSEY

Tuskegee Veterinary School Offers Full Four-Year Course

By ATTICUS MULLIN

TUSKEGEE, ALA., Nov. 5.—Open house was held in the new $1,000,000 veterinary building on the campus of the Tuskegee Institute, Friday, and visitors were amazed at the facilities provided for the study of veterinary medicine. At the present time, 144 students are taking the full four-year course leading to a degree and within another year it is expected that at least 200 will be provided for.

The equipment is the very last word and there will not be another Negro institution in the United States with equal facilities and very few white schools can ever approach the Tuskegee school in the modernity of the facilities by which veterinary medicine is taught.

Dr. Fred B. Patterson introduced Haygood Paterson, Alabama's commissioner of agriculture, for a two-minute talk, and Mr. Paterson congratulated the institution on the opportunity it is offering Negroes to learn the latest aid to animal husbandry that Alabama has seen in a long time. He told his hearers that animal husbandry is the very foundation of successful agriculture.

Dr. Patterson spoke briefly and said the school was the fulfillment of a longtime dream. The State of Alabama takes care of the annual operating expenses of the institution.

In Operation

Large numbers of visitors went through the building during the day and most of them openly amazement at the equipment. The clinic for study and actual experiment. Visitors saw the clinic in progress all day. The obstetrical clinic was in operation all day as was the small animal clinic, the clinical diagnostic laboratory, the pharmacy department, the pathology laboratory, the post mortem laboratory, and other facilities. There will be a free clinic each Saturday from 1 to 4 in the afternoon.

A great many sick animals were brought in Friday.

The physical plant comprises five buildings with a total of 755,392 cubic feet. The total value of the physical plant including equipment would be in excess of one million dollars.

Students Help

These physical facilities would not have been possible were it not for the fact that about 90 per cent of the stories [illegible] Up. The [illegible] der [illegible]

Mr. Albert L. Murray of the Division of General Studies has been awarded the Masters degree in English by Columbia University.

Dr. Charles M. Ford of the Agricultural Faculty has received the Ph.D. degree in Bacteriology from the University of Wisconsin.

A half million dollar consolidated rural school building erected in Culpepper, Virginia, has been named The George Washington Carver School and will serve students of inspirational from four counties. The new building was dedicated on October 23.

Other Comments about Tuskegee

Newsletter from the President, containing messages of congratulations from President F. D. Patterson and [illegible]

A. Whiting, a former faculty member and now serving with the Georgia State Department of Education, is author of a book of people past and present

Tuskegee Industry Exposition Brings Work Before Public

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—The Second Annual Industrial Exposition which opened at Tuskegee Institute for a two-day showing closed Saturday. The Exposition which is designed to present a series of exhibits to acquaint the students of Tuskegee Institute, the Tuskegee community and guests with some of the newer industrial developments, was under the direction of T. W. Jones, Dean, School of Mechanical Industries.

Dean Jones pointed out that a further objective of the Exposition is to stimulate the activities of the School of Mechanical Industries and to present its program to the general public.

Exhibits and active demonstrations included printing, tailoring, carpentry, building construction, brick masonry, welding, auto mechanics, photo- engraving, electricity, ceramics, shoe making and repairing, aero mechanics and mechanical drawing. Commercial companies dealing in various mechanical productions also exhibited the latest instruments of varying construction.

A special conference session was held Friday morning in Trades A Auditorium and was presided over by Thomas H. McCormick, head of the department of physics. In the discussion, "Establishing a Small Business," Ira S. Bodden, Director, Bodden and Company, School of Designing and Tailoring Technology, Memphis, Tenn., and Daniel W. Andrews, Tuskegee Alumni Trustee, plumbing contractor, Winston-Salem, N. C., were the principal speakers. Two movies entitled, "Let's Make Concrete," and "Building With Concrete Masonry," were shown Friday morning.

An Appeal From The Head Of Tuskegee Inst.

Editor, Journal and Guide:—For many years, friends in all sections of the country have donated funds and discarded clothing for distribution by Tuskegee Institute for needy familiese. This year, we are making our appeal for funds to meet a very acute situation now existing among the needy families which have heretofore been served by us, at Christmas time, through the generosity of friends.

Health workers on our staff keep in constant touch with conditions in Macon and adjacent counties and report many instances where a brief period of hospitalization would enable a hard-working but afflicted parent to ward off more serious illness and resume full-time labors as the family bread winner.

The seriousness of the situation is accentuated by a lack of public funds for the hospitalization of indigent families. Alabama, unfortunately, makes no such provision in its welfare program.

Through the interest and generosity of our friends, it is hoped that we may be able to offer to some of the more deserving of these individuals an opportunity for medical care and attention as a 1948 Christmas gift.

The John A. Andrew Hospital, located on our campus, normally serves an area within an approximate radius of forty miles from the institute, and is the only such institution in a densely populated section where more than 50,000 rural Negroes reside.

Our Christmas gift plan will not only bring relief and joy where a need is indicated, but will contribute towards the economic development of the community through the improved health of the population. Checks may be made payable to Tuskegee Institute and marked 'For the Christmas Hospitalization Fund'.

F. D. PATTERSON
President, Tuskegee Institute
Tuskegee, Ala.

Tuskegee Emphasizes "Learn By Doing"

TUSKEGEE — (ANP) — The "learn by doing" method runs neck and neck with textbook theory at the Tuskegee institute school of mechanical industries, according to a survey made recently. Headed by Dean T. W. Jones, the school offers courses leading to the bachelor of commercial industries degree, and also "non-collegiate" courses in 19 indusstrial phases.

The practical side of industry is through internships. The school selects students who maintain a certain scholastic average and send them out to industries for "on-the-job-training." They are rated while on the job by the firm giving the training and are paid for what employers think they are worth.

The chief complaint of Dean Jones is that not many southern industries ask for internes, thus making the program more expensive. The student has to make long trips between the school and the place where he is serving as an interne.

Courses offered, designed to keep up with the swing toward mechanization of agriculture and the increasing use of technicians in industry, include aero and auto mechanics, architecture, building construction, carpentry, electricity, machine shop, welding, masonry, painting, plumbing, printing, radio, sheet metal, shoe repairing, tailoring, cabinet making, photo engraving, engineering and industrial education. Degrees are given in architecture, auto mechanics, building construction, electricity, painting, radio and tailoring. The other courses, of two-year's duration lead to a diploma.

Christmas Gifts Of Medical Care Aim Of Negroes

TUSKEGEE, ALA., Nov. 24—(AP)—A new fund-raising plan to provide hospitalization and medical care as Christmas gifts for rural Negro families was announced here today.

It is Tuskegee Institute's Christmas Hospitalization Fund. Public contributions are invited and will be used to help put indigent Negroes in shape to work for themselves.

"That's the best Christmas present a needy person could get," said Dr. F. D. Patterson, Tuskegee president. "Many chronic illnesses can be cured with surgical care and hospitalization."

He explained that no public funds are available for cases of run-of-the-mill illnesses which keep people from working.

Patterson said the John A. Andrew Hospital on the Tuskegee campus normally serves a rural population of more than 50,000 in a radius of about 40 miles.

"The hospital could do a much better job of helping rural families back on their feet if more money were available," he said. "That's where the fund would go to work."

The president stressed, however, that offerings of clothes and food which have been invited in former years are still encouraged.

'Skegee Veterinary School Is Welcome Boon to Farmers

TUSKEGEE, Ala.—"Open House" of the School of Veterinary Medicine held here last week brought to the Tuskegee campus Negro and white farmers, Alabama State officials and representatives from Southern Negro colleges.

The several hundred farmers from Macon and nearby counties, many of whom brought animals to take advantage of the "free examination and diagnosis," came to inspect the facilities and to witness the demonstrations and treatments in the obstetrical and large and small animal clinics.

A long line of farmers passed through the clinical, diagnostic, pathology, anatomy and post mortem laboratories.

FARMER HAIL AID

"We have seen our anmials with sick spells like you explain, but didn't know what was the cause or how to treat them," said one Macon County farmer. "This place is a God-send for us farmers."

"The total value of the physical plant and equipment of the school of veterinary medicine when completed will exceed a million dollars," said President F. D. Patterson, "and it represents the culmination of a long cherished dream for Tuskegee Institute to make a larger contribution to the South's rapidly growing livestock industry and to prepare more qualified veterinarians to help supply the increasing demand."

The buildings, constructed mainly with student labor, represent grants from the General Education Board and the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Annual operating expenses are supplied by the State of Alabama.

FACULTY MEMBERS

Dr. T. S. Williams is dean of the school. His staff includes:

E. E. Alexander, Temple University; Walter C. Bowie, Kansas State College; George W. Cooper, Colorado State College; Lloyd B. Mobley, Kansas State College; Thomas G. Perry, Kansas State College; Walter S. Poston, Universityof California; Edward G. Trigg, Ohio State University; Raymond C. Williams, Kansas State College, and Earl Brown Jr., Kansas State College.

TUSKEGEE NAMES CHICAGOAN

TUSKEGEE, (ANP) — Election of Sherman E. Sexton, Chicago business executive, as a trustee of Tuskegee Institute was announced this week by Dr. F. D. Patterson, president.

Psychiatrists Holding Clinics At Tuskegee

TUSKEGEE, Ala. — (ANP) — Leading psychiatrists from all over the nation will conduct a clinic at Tuskegee Institute for the remainder of the year in a special class on mental diseases.

This class, which began Sept. 19 and ends Dec. 10, is sponsored by the Tuskegee Veterans Administration Hospital. The hospital manager, Dr. T. T. Tildon, invited the various psychiatrists to lecture in this class.

These discussions, he announced, are designed to help junior physicians and prospective residents in psychiatry in Tuskegee.

Among the mental disease experts to participate in this program are:

LIST OF EXPERTS

Dr. James G. Galbraith, Birmingham psychiatrist; Dr. Paul V. Lemkau, director, mental hygiene study, John Hopkins University; Dr. Lother B. Kalonowsky, research associate in psychiatry, Columbia University.

Dr. James S. New, psychiatrist, Augusta, Ga.; Dr. Milton H. Erickson, chief, department of research, Arizona State Hospital, and Dr. Oliver C. Cox, sociology professor, Tuskegee.

14n 1p-R

Tuskegee Institute Gets 'Living Hotel Library'

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Feb. 14—"A Living Hotel Library" has been awarded Tuskeegee Institute here by the Dahl Publishing Company, of Stamford, Conn.

The library was presented as a memorial to its founder, J. O. Dahl. The collection of books numbers about 85. They contain information on all phases of hotel business, as well as information on menu making, catering, quantity recipes, purchasing, stewarding, housekeeping, etc.

Fifteen other colleges, which offer hotel courses, have been presented with similar gifts.

Daily World Atlanta, Ga. Fri. 3-19-48

Daily World

New Homemakers Institute Holds Meeting At Tuskegee Institute

TUSKEGEE, POLIO WORKERS ATTEND CONFERENCE ON THE HOSPITALIZED CHILD — Miss Clara B. Goode, school principal; Mrs. Louise B. Trigg, medical social worker and Mrs. Ruth Booker Ballard, occupational therapist, three members of the staff of the Tuskegee Infantile Paralysis center, who attended a conference on, "Education on Hospitalized Children," in Atlantic City, sponsorel by the National Foundation for Infantile paralysis. Atlanta, Ga

Mrs. Trigg, who is well known in medical social work, participated in the program by discussing: "Intergration of Vocational and Industrial Training with the Educational Program." Fri. 3-19-48

This conference was held in conjunction with the 74th Annual convention of the American Association of School Administrators which met in Atlantic City during this same period.—(ANP) Fri. 3-19-48

Tues. Ages New York, N.Y. Sat. 6-26-48

When the Alabama Association of the New Homemakers of America recently held their state meeting at Tuskegee Institute, an important feature was the presentatin of a check for $1000 to the infantile paralysis center as a gift from the national NHA. The money will be used to purchase equipment for the class room unit of the center which is a part of their rehabilitation program.

Left to right are Mrs. Carrie J. Hale, R. N.; Dr. John W. Chenault, director of the infantile paralysis center; Helen Moore, retiring president of the Alabama association presenting the check to Dr. Chenault and Mrs Bettye Steele Turner an adviser to the girls. The group gave a similar contribution to the infantile paralysis center last year. Sat 6-26-48

Phi Delta Kappa Polio Drive Netted $12,000; $100 to NAACP

The Afro-American Baltimore, Md.

WILMINGTON, Del.—Phi Delta Kappa Sorority raised $12,000 in its 1947 drive to aid the infantile paralysis fund at Tuskegee Institute, reports made at the twenty-fourth conclave, here, last week, showed. Sat. 1-3-48

The sorority also contributed $100 to be given to the NAACP to aid in the fight for equalization of teachers' salaries, and will give a similar sum to the National Council of Negro Women, this year. Baltimore, Md.

Despite the heavy snowfall along the Atlantic Coast Line, more than 200 national officers, delegates and members of the sorority were present when the conclave officially opened Saturday morning. The sessions were held in the Walnut Street Christian Association Building, with Mrs. Olivia S. Henry of Philadelphia, supreme basileus, presiding.

An executive session and Yule snack for the executive body, sponsored by Miss Ann Brown of the Center, was held on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Daisey Simms, 817 Clayton St.

Officers, delegates and sorors attending the conclave were:

FLORIDA

Jacksonville: M. L. Carter, Elizabeth Myers.
Miami: Bertie Baldwin.

ALABAMA

Tuskegee Laura C. Buck.
Birmingham: Helen S. Brown, Leila E. Butler, Larnie Williams.
Mobile: Lillian Wilson.

NEW JERSEY

Atlantic City Maude W. McLeof, Elizabeth Hunt.
Bridgeboro: Edna H. Tillery.
Camden: Rachel C. McNeil, Ardelia Moore, Lillian Washington, Alma Turner, Thelma Powell, Viola Rhinehart, Helen Henderson, Bertie Baldwin, Aline S. Walker, Sadye Taylor, Frances Jenkins, Nina Kenny, Gwen Brown.
Philadelphia: Leona Davis, Olivia S. Henry, Ella Mae Smith, Emma Major, Francena Potter, Edith C. Free Cordelia McCants, Eva Smith, Mayola Senior, Lillian Goings.
Trenton Thelma Williams, Sara B. Harris, Gertrude Bisserup.
Jersey City: Gladys C. Nunery, Thelma Powell. Julian Barnes.
Woodbury: Bertha V. Waples.

TENNESSEE

Nashville Hellyn B. Johns, Erma H. Parker.

PENNSYLVANIA

West Chester: Meriam B. Harris, Aline Washington, Alma Powell, Viola Rhinehart, Helen Henderson, Bertie Baldwin, Aline S. Walker, Sadye Taylor, Frances Jenkins, Nina Kenny, Gwen Brown. 1-3-48
Philadelphia: Leona Davis, Olivia S. Henry, Ella Mae Smith, Emma Major, Francena Potter, Edith C. Free Cordelia McCants, Eva Smith, Mayola Senior, Lillian Goings.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Washington: Helen S. Henderson, Aline S. Walker, Sadye Taylor, Francena Potter, Ruby Duffey, Effie Browne, Mattie S. Shipper, Kathryn Thomas, Ethel Hawkins, Gladys Watson, Bernice House, Iris Brown, Minnie Bell, Marian Bluitt.

VIRGINIA

Richmond: Sarah Huggins, Nannie Mae Brown, Sarah Whitehead, Miriam S. Bell, Nannie W. Brown.

MISSOURI

St. Louis: Selma Green.

OHIO

Youngstown: Mary Lovett.
Cincinnati Rose Craig, Alice Coleman, Anna Davidson.

MARYLAND

Baltimore: Zula Watkins, Alice Fauntleroy, Ruth Hopkins, Mary Frances Murphy, Mattie Connor, Theresa McIver.
Annapolis: Rachel C. Smith, Mary Lothian: Alice E. Holt.

ILLINOIS

Chicago Alma Turner, Thelma Hunt, Elizabeth Gaskins, Valaria Rinehart, Grace Boulden.

MICHIGAN

Detroit: Bernice Taylor, Portia Jones, Mayla Senior, Bernice Hoagland.

WEST VIRGINIA

Bluefield: Virginia Cooley, Florence

Kimbrough.

DELAWARE

Wilmington: Eva G. Smith, Rosa Peaco, Evelyn Carter, Beatrice Wright.

NEW YORK

New York City: Alberta Person.

INDIANA

Indianapolis Dolores N. Jones.

SORORITY MAKES GIFT TO INFANTILE PARALYSIS UNIT — The Upsilon chapter of Phi Delta Kappa sorority recently presented [illegible] royal typewriter to the infantile paralysis unit of the John A. Andrew Memorial hospital at Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, as a gift from the national sorority and the local chapter. The typewriter was given to the occupational therapy department which is under the supervision of Mrs. Lonis C. Ballard. It will be used as a means of muscle re-education and as a part of the re-vocational training of the patients.

Pictured after the presentation are, left to right: Dr. John W. Chenault, director of the infantile paralysis unit of the hospital Mrs. L. E. Carter, principal of the Lewis Adams school, Tuskegee, and a member of the sorority; Mrs. Laura C. Buck, labor coordinator at Tuskegee and basileus of Upsilon chapter, and Alphonso Reed, seated, an infantile paralysis patient.

First Line Fighters

Physicians receive training through funds made available to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis by the March of Dimes, January 15-30. Five of the six Negro physicians now studying under National Foundation grants are shown above. They are, left to right: Dr. Alonzo S. Yerby, studying at Howard University; Dr. Thomas Campbell, Jr., at City Hospital, Cleveland, Ohio; Dr. Margaret M. Lawrence, at Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons; Dr. Oliver W. Crawford at Children's Memorial Hospital and Provident Hospital, Chicago, Ill.; and Dr. Colbert S. Davis, the University of Iowa. Not shown is Dr. Robert D. Nesbitt, the University of Illinois.

WHEN THE THIRTIETH annual meeting of the John A. Andrew Clinical Society was recently held at Tuskegee Institute, more than 200 dentists and physicians attended. Five days were spent at the John A. Andrew Hospital and many examinations and operations took place. In addition, open discussions were held in the auditorium where technical papers were read. Here, the Dental section of the Society is assembled. Fifth from left is Dr. E. W. Taggert, president of the National Dental Association, Birmingham; seventh from left, Dr. L. M. Mitchell, president- elect of the Dental Section, John A. Andrew Clinical Society, and eighth from left Dr. William D. Giles, Chicago, current president of the Dental Section.

Specialists At Big Confab

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—Under the direction of Dr. Clarence S. Janifer, Newark, New Jersey, the 30th annual meeting of the John A. Andrew Clinical Society closed one of its most successful clinical sessions here last week. Particularly gratifying was public response to the out-patient department. The number of patients admitted to this department exceeded any in recent years.

Highlight of the meeting was a public address by Dr. Charles R. Drew, professor of surgery, Howard University, who spoke on "The Present Status of Negro Medical Care," in Institute Chapel Wednesday night. "A basic principle of our thinking and continuing hope is that the cure of our patients and medical care and training will not be on the basis of race or economic status," stated Dr. Drew. "Health problems," he continued, "are not solely those of the Negro, nor for the medical men to solve, it is a social-economic problem as well. To solve it we must all join in the effort."

In jointing out the examples of health problems suffered by this minority group, Dr. Drew said that the infant mortality rate is almost double that of whites; the Negro loses more time from work and suffers more from dietary diseases and is unable to pay for adequate hospital care; the life expectancy for the average Negro is ten years less than for whites.

Reveals Shortage

As evidence that there are too few Negroes in the health field, Dr. Drew revealed that there are 4,000 Negro physicians for more than 13,000,000 Negroes. Dr. Drew also delivered a lecture before the scientific session of the Society on "Appendicitis in Negroes."

Among the many outstanding doctors who participated in the clinic were Dr. Philip M. Stimson, associate professor of pediatrics, Cornell Medical School, New York; Dr. N. O. Calloway, assistant professor of internal medicine, University of Illinois, Chicago; Dr. Matthew Walker, professor of surgery, Meharry Medical College, Nashville; Dr. Roscoe Giles, Surgeon, Provident Hospital, Chicago; Dr. Moses Jones, department of opthalmology, University of Chicago and Dr. Charles Sherwin, professor of surgery, St. Louis University. The Radio-active researches being conducted at Meharry Mdical College was discussed by Drs. Harold W. West and W. A. Anderson of that school.

Dr. Giles Speaks

Dr. William D. Giles, whose term expired this year as president of the dental section of the Society, spoke to the clinical group. In his address he stated that "The program of the dentist was replete with lecturers and essays by younger men. This trend is particularly gratifying, the future is in our hands." He placed emphasis on the fact that during sidered the larger participation in their meetings the dentists conportant. The Dental section's presihospital obligations as being imdent for the ensuing year is Dr. L. M. Mitchell, Austin, Texas; secretary-treasurer, Dr. Frank Clark, Opelika, Alabama, and Dr. J. A. Jackson, Charlottesville, Virginia, who is also secretary-treasurer of the National Dental Association, was elected president-elect for the next year.

A new feature of the clinic this year was the "Food Clinic" which was set up under the direction of a National Infantile Paralysis representative. It was so well attended that serious consideration has been given to making it a regular feature of the Annual Clinic.

An important factor in aiding the successful operation of the clinic was the cooperation extended by Meharry Medical College in permitting the services of a group of its seniors. They were P. C. Lipsett, Gladstone Hodge, Wallace Marine, Emmett C. Conrad, Milford Blackford, C. E. Nicols, E. C. Casey, H. D. Holden, Evan C. Moore and J. B. Ortiz.

Dr. W. A. Young, St. Louis, Mo., is president of the John A. Andrew Clinic for this year.

COURSES OFFERED AT TUSKEGEE

Last week we gave a brief history of Tuskegee Institute, and made a slight beginning with the description of its courses. Let us go still further with our description of the courses.

We said Home Economics is another name for Domestic Science. Lest some be so foolish as to despise Home Economics, let us hasten to shock you with what this course, which leads to the degree of Bachelor of Science, consists in. These are some of the subjects studied for the B.Sc. degree in Home Economics: English, Biology, Health and Home Nursing, Mathematics, Art, Foods, Physical Education, History, Chemistry, Psychology, Education, Home Physics.

The School of Education is organised with a view to training different types of teachers. In the language to which we are all used, it is a Normal School whose course leads to the Bachelor of Science in Education.

The major subject in the B.Sc. (Education) course is, of course, Education. Other subjects are Art, Economics, English, Geography, History, Mathematics, Physical and Social Sciences. Similar subjects to these, with Physical Education as the major subject, and such additional subjects as Bacteriology and Advanced Anatomy, constitute the course in Physical Education which culminates in the degree of B.Sc. (Physical Education).

Nothing Strange

"School of Mechanical Industries" is not only a mouthful but sounds strange in South African ears. There is nothing strange about it except that Tuskegee Institute dignifies and glorifies industrial education more than we do in this country, and as much as we idealise and idolise academic education which does not involve the vigorous use of the hand and the wearing of an overall.

Every time I think of this prejudice among my people against industrial education, and the extravagant fanaticism with which they worship "bookish" education, I feel like using my sjambok on the whole lot of them. "I feel like," I say. I am not far from actually doing it.

(To be concluded next week)

"SJAMBOK" ON:

Tuskegee College And Agriculture

This is my last talk on Tuskegee, and I cannot end better than by referring to Agriculture, which is not only the backbone of any country, but something on which this great school puts "Himalayan weight" of emphasis.

We have already seen the work of the Tuskegee School of Agriculture. We saw that, apart from Agriculture as such, there is in that school a course in Agricultural Education whose purpose is "to prepare students as teachers of vocational agriculture in secondary schools."

Tuskegee aims at uplifting the whole race, and at making agriculture not merely a school subject but something whose influence and information invades and pervades the rural community outside.

To preach the gospel of agriculture to everybody, the School of Agriculture runs a students' branch of the New Farmers' Association of Alabama, an Agricultural Club, and what is known as the Senator Morril Club whose purpose is to encourage the discussion of problems in agriculture.

The School also publishes agricultural periodicals. Here are their names: "The Agricultural News," "Vocational News Letter," and "Agricultural Echo." I like the last name, don't you?

Wait a bit, don't put away your paper; we have not finished. For one day every December there is held at Tuskegee Institute what is known as "The Tuskegee Negro Conference," an organisation of Negro farmers, educators and others. The agenda of this conference has, among its items, problems of agriculture, e.g. Marketing of crops, etc., sharing of experiences and discoveries, reports on conditions in local communities and what is being done to improve those conditions.

Tuskegee also renders what is known as "Agricultural Extension Service." This service does not only extend to the different parts of the State of Alabama, but to the neighbouring States of Georgia, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma and Texas.

To the rural people of these states it carries practical and simple instruction and information on farming and homemaking.

This service organises Farm and Home Demonstration Work, runs the 4—H Club for rural boys and girls who each year go to Tuskegee for a ten days' short course in subjects which are of greater use on the farm and in the home.

The School of Agricuture has reinforced the annual Tuskegee conference by starting and running what is known as the "Booker T. Washington Agricultural School on Wheels." This is a van run by a man, a woman and a nurse who go out to preach the gospel of agricuture, home economics, and health to the communities around.

Scientific Facts

Tuskegee has also a Department of Agricultural Research whose scientific facts are given out by letters, personal consultation, visits to farms, plantations, factories and other business enterprises, lectures, newspapers and bulletins.

The late Dr. George W. Carver, D.Sc., who was assisted by Messrs. A. W. Curtis, B.Sc., R. B. Stewart B.Sc., and J. W. Williams, B.Sc.—all Negroes please—was head of this department.

Are you not inspired? Will you assist "Sjambok" to establish another Tuskegee in South Africa for Africans? WE NEED A TUSKEGEE.

"SJAMBOK" ON:

Mokitimi And Tuskegee

The Bantu World

"Mr. Mokitimi will you give a few more impressions on Agriculture at Tuskegee," implored my friend.

"I certainly will, listen now.

"The State Department of Agriculture, in recognition of the great services rendered by Booker Washington in the interest of farming has established a centre for its extension work in Tuskegee itself. This is a scheme somewhat resembling our Agricultural Demonstrators' Scheme."

"Which of the two, the Tuskegee and ours, is better?" My friend interrupted.

Specialist Training.

Johannesburg South Af.

Mr. Mokitimi warmly and emphatically replied: "The Tuskegee scheme is much better than ours and is run much more efficiently in that they get men of sound educational background as well as specialist training."

Sat. 5-29-48

Mr. Mokitimi digressed a little in order to make this critical observation: "One always wonders how we hope to make much headway here when the material from which we get our demonstrators has very little education. Sat. 5-29-48

"How such people are expected to combat the conservatism of the people and to maintain their position as leaders of thought in the agricultural world puzzles me." (It puzzles "Sjambok" too. Does it also puzzle the Government")

Mr. Mokitimi also pointed out that this Extension Scheme was under Dr. Ottis, " a very able man indeed." and that the chief Field Agent was Mr. Thomas M. Campbell both of whom are Negroes.

"Can you tell me anything more about Dr. Carver's work," asked my intellectually hungry friend. "The Agricultural Department I have just described is the one in which Dr. Carver laboured," replied Mr. Mokitimi who could not resist being lifted up by the inspiration which invaded him, and made him utter the following with obvious fervour:

Holy Ground.

"To walk around the Tuskegee farms, to see the soil from which Carver made his famous paints, to pass over the plants and flowers in which he saw so much and from which he extracted so much, to see the peanut fields all "ready unto harvest" was like walking on and inspecting holy ground. The place seemed changed with the very spirit of patient enquiry and humble search after truth."

Search After Truth.

Mr. Mokitimi added, "That is what gave to Tuskegee, an atmosphere of enquiry and humble search after truth."

He said he also visited the museum erected in Carver's honour in which he found displayed all the works of this great Negro scientist: paintings thrift articles, crotchet work etc, and ended by exclaiming. "The man veritably gave 'every flying minute something to keep in store.' His is the greatest spirit of work and service that I have ever seen."

Mr. Mokitimi discovered from the Tuskegee hospital staff that "Uncle John" with his herbs "is still a force to reckon with" even among "our brethren 'neath the Western sky."

"Where are Booker Washington and Carver buried?" my friend asked. "In the chapel yard." Mr. Mokitimi replied. "As I stood by those graves," Mr. Mokitimi feelingly added, "I thought deeply and thanked God for their lives."

Rev. Mokitimi's Visit To U. S. A.

"This is my last talk on Tuskegee," I said on May 15. I meant what I said, but, on exactly the same day, a dear friend of mine handed me the fruits of his interview with the "Rev. Seth M. Mokitimi of Healdtown Institution, who visited Tuskegee Institute in July, 1947.

I am far too generous to devour these fruits alone. Here they are, share them with me.

"Have you been reading "Sjambok's" articles on Tuskegee in "The Bantu World"? My friend asked Mr. Mokitimi and in the same breath, added, "by the way you visited Tuskegee last year?"

"It had always been a dream of mine, should I ever set my foot on the United States soil, to visit Tuskegee," Mr. Mokitimi replied.

Dream Realised.

"No African who has read 'Up From Slavery', 'My Larger Education', etc., would have any but that ambition. One of the names conjured up by the very mention of Tuskegee is that of Dr. George Washington Carver, 'The peanut wizard'.

"Tuskegee is a place of unique Negro achievement. So when it became plain that my trip to Canada would make me touch the 'States' I saw the possibility of realising my dream."

"City of Superlatives"

"Then how did you manage to get there?" my friend enthusiastically asked. Mr. Mokitimi said it was while he was exploiting New York, that "City of Superlatives", with no money to enable him to visit Tuskegee, which was about 1,000 miles away from where he was, that Miss Margaret Wrong, whose lamented death has been reported in this organ, obtained for him a travel bursary from the Phelps-Stokes Foundation The Bantu World

In this way he was able to leave New York on Monday, July 21, 1947, for Tuskegee, "the home of the peanut miracles."

Mr. Mokitimi arrived at Tuskegee on July 22 at noon. "Tuskegee stands elevated among the hills and overlooking the entire plain around," he said, and added that as far as one could see, one saw Negro farms and Negro allotments. Johannesburg. So. Afr

"How big is Tusgekee Institute?" my friend asked.

Mr. Mokitimi's eyes almost left their sockets behind when he almost breathlessly said, "I found the Institute much larger than I had thought." Sat. 5-29-48

5,000 Students.

"It has a student population of about 5,000. Its buildings would grace the campus of any university. One sees there the farsightedness of Booker Washington. I was amazed at the size of their Dining Hall."

Mr. Mokitimi said he was, shortly after his arrival, taken to the President's office where he was received by his Secretary who is in charge of what is, in 'real American' style called "Department of External Relations." The Secretary talked to him about the development of a flourishing academic section preparing students for degrees and the teaching profession. Sat. 5-29-48

Industrial Department.

"How large is the Industrial Department of the Institute?" asked my friend. "The school has about 1,000 students in the Industrial Department, taking Agriculture, Shoemaking, Carpentry, Tinsmithing, Tailoring and Engineering. The latest and most popular addition is the aviation school. All these are supervised and run by Negroes," was Mr. Mokitimi's visibly enthusiastic reply. Bantu world.

In reply to the request for further information on Agriculture, Mr. Mikitimi mentioned the centre for Extension Agricultural work established by the State Department of Agriculture in Tuskegee. "This was the department in which Dr. George Washington Carver laboured," he said.

Mr. Mokitimi pointed out that Tuskegee had its own hospital, and East of the Institute was a Negro ex-servicemen hospital called the Veteran Hospital. Both these hospitals are run by Negro doctors and nurses. We shall continue these impressions next week.

"SJAMBOK" ON:

REV. MOKITIMI'S IMPRESSIONS

Did you visit any Negroe farms around Tuskegee?" my friend asked Mr. Mokitimi who replied, "Oh yes, I did, and the Land Trust system by which Negroes are allowed small farms, first as tenants, and finally paying for them as they can, till they own them, attracted me."

Mr. Mokitimi also stated that by means of competitions and other schemes young Negroes were encouraged to take an active interest in farming. The State was actually fostering a land settlement scheme.

"Regular broadcast talks are made," continued Mr. Mokitimi, "informative of progress being made in each country, and giving helpful lectures to the farmers. I listened to one such broadcast made from Tuskegee Chapel, and accompanied by the Chapel Choir of choice voices and accomplished performance. They were singing Negro Spirituals, the most popular in this series being, 'I want to be ready,' symbolic of the people's readiness to advance."

Spiritual Tone

"Can you tell me a little more about the Tuskegee Chapel, Moruti?" my friend asked.

"In fact, I wish to tell you more than you ask, that is, I wish to end my impressions by referring to the whole spiritual tone of Tuskegee Institute which, by the way, is undenominational," said Mr. Mokitimi who actually stood up at this juncture.

"In the very heart of Tuskegee stands the Chapel, crucifix in shape, and 'beautiful for situation.' It is capable of holding 6,000 worshippers. This is the centre of the College religious life. The Chaplain of the Institution—by the way the Veteran Hospital has five full-time chaplains—is Dr. Harry E. Richardson, a brilliant young Negro minister, as humble as Carver, who has been specially trained for work among rural people, and who is the head of the Tuskegee School for training rural ministers, which has been established through the aid of the Phelps-Stokes Foundation."

Part of People's Life

"This is an interesting theological school," my friend remarked. "The object of the scheme," Mr. Mokitimi continued, "is to make the Church part of the people's life and use their every day life in helping the soul to reach out to its God. 'So shall no part of day or night from sacredness be free.' If you want to have an insight into Dr. Richardson's vision, read his wonderful book 'Dark Glory,' much spoken of in international missionary circles.

"Did you preach at Tuskegee?" my friend curiously asked.

"The most impressive moment of my interesting and crowded days was the worship at the Chapel on Sunday July 27, at 11 a.m." Mr. Mokitimi replied with obvious feeling.

"I had the honour of preaching at that service to a Negro congregation of from 3,000 to 4,000. The sight was moving, the worship reverent and inspiring. The singing led by a fine choir was uplifting."

Moving Experience

"Just before the sermon, the whole congregation stood up to sing the Negro Spiritual, "Give me that ol' time religion," rendered as only Negroes can.

"It was a moving experience capable of melting the hardest heart. He would be a cold preacher indeed who would not speak with divine fervour the certainties of God in such a service.

"This service formed a fitting close to a memorable visit, and its influence abides with me to this day."

"Even to-morrow," Moruti!

COURSES OFFERED AT TUSKEGEE

I have not finished with Tuskegee Institute and its work. Let us go into the School of Agriculture. This is a well-staffed school whose candidates are prepared for B.Sc. in Agriculture. During the four years of the course the student traverses an extensive field. Apart from such subjects as Farm Management, Horticulture, Soil, Animal Husbandry, Entomology, Bacteriology and Agricultural Engineering, a candidate for the B.Sc. degree in Agriculture has to study English, Veterinary Science, Biology, Chemistry, Economics, Rural Sociology, Rural Psychology, the Farm Family, Rural Leadership and Public Problems in Agriculture. This is a fine course which I would sooner have than many other courses.

In this school there is the department of Agricultural Education which prepares students as teachers of vocational agriculture. Farm Practice, Agricultural Education are the major subjects of this course which also includes Agricultural Journalism.

School of Nurses

While you are still transfigured by the inspiration from the School of Agriculture, which shows you that you have no right to despise the soil, let us walk over to the School for Nurses.

The John A. Andrew Memorial Hospital at Tuskegee staffed with Negro doctors and nurses, is the training instituton for nurses. It should interest you to know that this hospital was given by a white woman to Tuskegee as a memorial to her grandfather, John Albion Andrew, who was governor of Massachusetts about 80 years ago. The white woman was Mrs. C. E. Mason.

"Sjambok" is not a nurse and does not know what African nurses are taught in our hospitals.

Here are some of the subjects the Tuskegee nurses study: Microbiology, Chemistry, Pharmacology and Therapentics, Pathology, Psychology, English, Ethics and Psychiatry. These big-named subjects are taken in addition to what I think the nurses the world over have to know, such as diseases, anatomy and physiology.

When the long Summer holidays come, Tuskegee Institute, as well as many other Americal colleges, holds a summer vacation session giving instruction in courses for teachers in serivces. These teachers come to this school for refresher courses, to obtain qualifying certificates, to study new and progressive methods of teaching, and to prepare for degrees. All branches of learning are supplied by the Summer school.

It will startle the Africans to learn that during the war from which we have just emerged, Tuskegee Institute was a centre for Vocational Flight Training or Aeroplane driving. There is also military training at the Institute.

If you are not impressed with the work of the Tuskegee Institute, I do not know what will succeed in impressing you. Next week, I shall round off my talks on this great Negro College.

Under "mechanical industries" Tuskegee has what are known as "commercial industries" leading to the B.Sc. degree. Here they are: Architecture, Automobile, or, as we call it, motor Mechanics, Building contracting, Electricity, Heating and Ventilating, Interior Decorating, Printing and Tailoring.

"Vocational Trades" is another section of Mechanical Industries which includes Carpentry, Masonry, Painting, Plumbing and Steamfitting, Shoe Repairing and Leather Work.

TUSKEGEE GROUP GATHERING DATA ON DR. CARVER

Evening Press
Carthage, Missouri

A delegation from Tuskegee Institute researching into the life of Dr. George Washington Carver, noted colored scientist who was born in Newton county, was in Carthage today interviewing persons who might have knowledge of his early life in Southwest Missouri. Evening Press

They include J. Henry Smith, executive secretary of the George Washington Carver Foundation, Mrs. J. P. Guzeman, editor of the Negro Year Book at Tuskegee Institute and head of the department of records and research, and Mrs. B. B. Walcott of the institute's department of public relations and executive secretary of the Tuskegee Institute chapter of the American Red Cross.

The group desires any information whatever bearing on the early life of Dr. Carver to piece out such data as is available and while here also checked into the conditions that prevailed in this section of Missouri during and immediately after the civil war. Carthage, Missouri

This afternoon the delegation planned to go to Neosho to investigate probate court records there, if available, to search for any data pertaining to the subject of the Carver family or the slaves they owned.

Dr. Carver was born in slavery near Diamond Grove, the exact date of his birth not known. It is generally listed as 1864 but is believed to have been a few years earlier. He attended school in Neosho for a time after the war, and worked his way through college, receiving a master of science degree in 1892 from Iowa State college. He worked there as a botanist until 1896 when he went to Tuskegee Institute in Alabama where he remained the rest of his life, gaining world-wide fame as a chemurgist and agricultural experimenter. 5-25-48 Tues.

4 SEEK DATA ON LIFE OF GEORGE W. CARVER

5-28-48 Carthage, Missouri
Press

Seneca, Mo., May 27.—Four instructors of the Tuskegee Institute for Negroes, located at Tuskegee, Ala., were in Seneca today searching for information on the life of George Washington Carver, famous Negro scientist who lived in this vicinity at one time. The group, headed by J. Henry Smith, executive secretary of the Carver Foundation, left for Peoria, Okla., 10 miles northwest of Seneca, when they learned from old timers here that a member of the white family, which reared the scientist, was still living at Peoria. Press 5-28-48

Carver Survey Group Returns

Daily World
Atlanta, Ga.

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE (SNS)—After having covered nearly 6,000 miles in parts of nine states, the Tuskegee Institute group which made the survey into the early life of the late Dr. George W. Carver, has returned. This survey is being sponsored through Department of Records and Research in order to make as complete as possible the Tuskegee records on the life and activities of Dr. Carver, covering particularly those years prior to his coming to Tuskegee. This group included Mrs. Jessie Parkhurst Guzman, Director of the Department of Records and Research and Editor of the Negro Year Book; Mrs. B. B. Walcott, Executive Secretary of the Tuskegee Institute Chapter of the American Red Cross and member of the Department of Public Relation, and J. Henry Smith, Executive Secretary of the George W. Carver Foundation. Mrs. Walcott has written several articles on the life of Dr. Carver. 7-26-48

The itinerary included many places in Missouri, Kansas, and Iowa where Dr. Carver lived, worked and attended school, as well as the old Carver Plantation near Diamond, Missouri, where the Tuskegee scientist was born and where he spent much of his childhood. The survey included, among other things, an interview with teachers, classmates, schoolmates, friends and neighbors of Dr. Carver in each of the several places where he lived and attended school; interviews with benefactors or their descendants of the various tpersons in the above states, who had befriended George Washington Carver when he was struggling for an education. In addition, the party visited Highland College at Highland, Kansas, where Dr. Carver was refused admission prior to entering Simpson College.

As a result of the survey much new and pertinent data regarding the early life of Dr. Carver has been obtained and many historic papers and various types of momentoes collected which will be placed in the new Carver Museum now being rebuilt after the recent fire.

When assembled and published, this information will be splendid source material for students and others interested in research on the life and works of George Washington Carver. Daily World

Survey Group Gathers More Data On Carver

Journal & Guide
Norfolk, Va.

TUSKEGEE, Ala.—After having covered nearly 6,000 miles in parts of nine states, the Tuskegee Institute group which made the survey into the early life of the late Dr. George Washington Carver, has returned. 7-31-48

This survey is being sponsored by the Department of Records and Research in order to make as complete as possible the Tuskegee records on the life and activities of Dr. Carver, covering particularly those years prior to his coming to Tuskegee. 7-31-48

This group included Mrs. Jessie Parkhurst Gunzman, director of the Department of Records and Research and editor of the Negro Year Brook; Mrs. B. B. Walcott, executive secretary of the Tuskegee Institute chapter of the American Red Cross and member of the department of public relations, and J. Henry Smith, executive secretary of the George Washington Carver Foundation. Mrs. Walcott has written several articles on the life of Dr. Carver.

The itinerary included many places in Missouri, Kansas and Iowa where Dr. Carver lived, worked and attended school, as well as the old Carver plantation near Diamond, Mo., where the Tuskegee scientist was born and where he spent much of his childhood.

In addition, the party visited Highland College at Highland, Kan., where Dr. Carver was refused admission prior to entering Simpson College.

As a result of the survey much new and pertinent data regarding the early life of Dr. Carver has been obtained and many historic papers and various types of momentoes collected which will be placed in the new Carver Museum now being rebuilt after the recent fire.

When assembled and published, this information will be splendid source material for students and others interested in research on the life and works of George Washington Carver.

Seeking Information

Florida Tattler

Tuskegee Institute, Ala.—The George Washington Carver Foundation, through its executive secretary, J. Henry Smith, is seeking information on the early life of Tuskegee Institute's famed agricultural chemist.

Recently, in company with Jessie Parkhurst Guzman, Director, Department of Records and Research at Tuskegee Institute, and Bessie B. Walcott, Executive Secretary of the Tuskegee Institute Red Cross Chapter and a member of the Institute's Bureau of Public Relations, visited Ness City and Ness County, Kansas, in search of pertinent facts about Carver who once lived in that county.

Several persons, including O. L. Lennen, George Borthwick, Lee Maranville, Claude Miller, Miss Retta Pearce and Roy Bollinger, who possessed information abou the distinguished scientist, were interviewed. They gave valuable assistance to the Tuskegee group. Sat. 6-26-48

The early homestead, owned by Carver in 1886, was located with the aid of aerial photographs made b ythe Agricultural Adjustment Administration some years ago.

The Tuskegee group talked at length with George Borthwick and O. L. Lennen, two men who had many dealings with Carver when he was a young man living in that section.

Tuskegee Institute Red Cross Chapter and a member of the Institute's bureau of public relations, visited Ness City and Ness County, in search of pertinent facts about Carver who once lived in that County.

Several persons, including O. L. Lennen, George Borthwick, Lee Maranville, Claude Miller, Miss Retta Pearce and Roy Boilinger, who possessed information about the distinguished scientist, were interviewed. They gave valuable assistance to the Tuskegee group.

Jacksonville Fla.

Tuskegee Group Seeks Facts of Carver's Youth

The Courier
Sat. 7-3-48
Pittsburgh, Pa.

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—The George Washington Carver Foundation, hrough its executive secretary, J. Henry Smith, is seeking information on the early life of Tuskegee Institute's famed agricultural chemist.

Recently, in company with Jessie Parkhurst Guzman, director, department of records and research at Tuskegee, and Bessie B. Walcott, executive secretary of the

Tuskegee Research Group Collects Data On Dr. G. W. Carver

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., July 21, 1948.—After having covered nearly 6,000 miles in parts of nine states, the Tuskegee Institute group which made the survey into the early life of the late Dr. George Washington Carver, has returned. This survey is being sponsored through the Department of Records and Research in order to make as complete as possible the Tuskegee records on the life and activities of Dr. Carver, covering particularly those years prior to his coming to Tuskegee. This group included Mrs. Jessie Parkhurst Guzman, Director of the Department of Records and Research and Editor of the Negro Year Book; Mrs. B. B. Walcott, Executive Secretary of the Tuskegee Institute Chapter of the American Red Cross and member of the Department of Public Relations; and J. Henry Smith, Executive Secretary of the George Washington Carver Foundation. Mrs. Walcott has written several articles on the life of Dr. Carver.

14n 1948

Rural Life

Bishop College, Marshall, Tex., and Tuskegee Institute will cooperate in the promotion of a southwide program of rural life emphasis among Negroes. The plan of cooperation contemplates the expansion of Bishop's Sabine Farms rural life project to become the center of operation for the Southwest. Tuskegee will serve the Deep South and Southeast.

Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee, was in Marshall Friday to discuss plans for the joint program.

14n 1948

Soliciting of Funds Trial

City Warned False Soliciting In Vogue Here

Caution Is Advised In Contributions After Two Arrested

A. G. Gaston, president of the National Negro Business League, warned today that a "real racket" is developing here in which "irresponsible" Negroes falsely solicit funds for Negro educational institutions.

Gaston's warning, in a letter to The News, followed the arrest yesterday of two Negroes, who admitted to police they had solicited money for Tuskegee Institute for two years and kept it.

J. Anthony Brown, 53, of 6466 First Avenue, South, and T. J. Marigno, 38, of 2310 Third Avenue, Irondale, are charged with endorsing checks themselves and keeping the cash.

Released on $1,800 bond, they will be tried in County Court.

* * *

GASTON WROTE The News:

"We feel that this type of misrepresentation is harmful both to the white firms that appear to be such easy prey to the imposters, and make contributions willingly to this type of misrepresentation, and also to the Negro institutions which they propose to represent."

He said the National Negro Business League hopes to arrange with city authorities and with civic organizations to have solicitors passed upon by reputable Negro citizens of the community.

He said a number of white individuals and firms contributed to a solicitor who said he represented Tuskegee.

"Unless we stop this situation," Gaston said, "I fear our city will become a haven for professional racketeers."

City detectives pointed out that residents and business men should guard against unauthorized solicitors by asking to see their permits from the Police Department.

Birmingham News

Tuskegee Officials Warn Against Solicitors

TUSKEGEE, Ala., May 21—A warning that unauthorized persons have attempted to solicit funds for Tuskegee Institute was made today by F. D. Patterson, college president.

In a letter to chambers of commerce, better business bureaus and city officials, college authorities pointed out that recently two men were arrested in Birmingham on charges of soliciting and receiving money to be used for restoring the Carver Museum and laboratories destroyed by fire last year.

Tuskegee Institute's efforts to raise money now are directed on only three lines: (1) Mail campaigns for special needs with the request that the funds be mailed direct to Tuskegee Institute; (2) participation in the United Negro College Fund, Inc., a joint effort of 32 Negro colleges, and (3) direct personal solicitation in the New England area only by two fully accredited field representatives.

Dr. Richardson Talks To Summer Assembly At 'Skegee

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—(SNS)— "Church-School Relationships" was the subject of Dr. Harry V. Richardson's address to the second Summer School assembly group in Logan Hall Wednesday. Dr. Richardson, former Tuskegee Chaplain, gave practical examples of workable relationships between teachers, community peoples and church pastors and urged his listeners to look beyond the poorly built country school and its inadequately trained teachers the poorly equipped country churches and see things as they might be with better circumstances. He pointed out the good which could be derived from understanding of rural problems plus an effort to better the conditions.

In introducing the speaker, Dean I. A. Derbigny slated that Dr. Richardson had accepted an invitation to become president of Gammon Theological Seminary, Atlanta, Ga. He has served for many years as Chaplain of Tuskegee Institute.

Wednesday, June 22, the Midweek assembly service speaker will be Dr. Robert D. Reid, Tuskegee Associate Professor of History who will speak on Negro Teachers Salaries.

Tuskegee's 'Florida Club' Has Annual Summer Ball

TUSKEGEE, Ala. — Tuskegee Instiute's Florida Club held its annual summer [illegible] Friday night. Officers are Mrs. Willie Lee Brown, president; Maurice H. Barnett, vice president; Mrs. Elsie Anderson, secretary; Mrs. Fannie Maldeb, assistant secretary; A. D. Harris, business manager; James Green, assistant business manager; and Martin L. Ferguson, publicity chairman. The club is composed entirely of Floridians.

Tuskegee Grads Hear Fort Valley Prexy

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—SNS)—"Our colleges and our secondary schools have before them a much bigger task than the mere teaching of science, mathematics or the language arts," said President C. V. Troup of Fort Valley State College in delivering the commencement address to the Tuskegee Summer School graduates at exercise held in the Institute Chapel Friday night.

"Negro youth in America," continued the Georgia educator, "must be taught those techniques for survival which will enable them, in spite of handicaps, to find the fullest possible expression for their God-given talents." Four survvial techniques were listed by the speaker: "Young people must be ond class citizenship and the intaught to be dissatisfied with secdignities which characterize it. Aggressiveness in terms of "a willingness to take a determined stand for that which one regards as right" was advanced as a second technique.

The third technique listed is the encouragement of self--confidence among young people. "He who believes that he cannot attain certain heights because of his racial identity will never reach them," he said.

Tactfulness, especially in certain sections of our country is the most valuable technique for survival, said Dr. Troup, in listing the fourth technique. "An under-privileged people must be a tactful people We must be careful not to offend, but at the same time we must subtly get over to the other fellow that which we feel he should understand. And the final technique "is a keen sense of when, where and how to talk."

Marion P. Armstrong, Education, Columbus, Georgia, was announced as the highest honor student. The high honor student was Essie C. Shepard, Education, Mobile, Alabama. The honor students were Eloise Anderson, Education, Tampa, Florida; Odette C. Baker, Education, Tuskegee Institute, Alabama; Susie G. Clark, Education, Opelika, Alabama; Irene O. Edwards, Agriculture, Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, and Grace G. Lycurgus, Education, Green Grove Springs, Florida.

MASTER OF SCIENCE AWARDS

Chemistry: Walter Carl Gordon, Albany, Georgia; Harold W. Lucien, New Orleans, Louisiana; Julia M. Martin, Malvern, Pennsylvania; Gladys M. Royal, Urbana, Ohio; Norma A. Spaulding, Cape, May New Jersey, and Fred R. West, Baltimore, Maryland.

Education: Mary J. Payne, Fairfield, Alabama. Agriculture: Eddie Brown, Whiteville, North Carolina, Wilbert T. Thompson, Cleveland, and Edward W. Williams, Albany, Georgia.

DEGREES CONFERRED

J. Julius Flood, Personnel Director and Acting Dean of Men, presented the Deans of the various Schools and Departments, who in turn presented the candidates for graduation. Dr. I. A. Derbigny, Acting President, awarded the certificates and diplomas and conferred the degrees. He was assisted by Mrs. Antionette N. Cohen, Registrar.

Among those receiving the Bachelor of Science degree was Capt Cecil W. White, United States Army, Selma, Alabama. Captain White has been relieved of duty and assignment with the Military Department at Tuskegee Institute and is awaiting orders to sail for Germany. Captain White saw service overseas during World War II He was wounded in action and wears several decorations.

PRESENTATION

Richard J. Carr, Commercial Industries, Houston, Texas, President of the Summer School Graduating Class, presented the class's donation of $75.00 to the United Negro College Fund, which was accepted by Dr. Derbigny.

Special music for the commencement exercises was furnished by the Summer School Choir. Mrs Alberta L. Simms, of the Department of Music, presided at the organ.

Summer School Graduates at Tuskegee Hear Dr. Troup

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—Techniques for survival, as well as academic subjects must be taught in our colleges and secondary schools, Dr. C. V. Troup, president of Fort Valley State College, told the summer school graduates here last week.

There techniques were listed as:

1. Aggressiveness in terms of "a willingness to take a determined stand for what one regards as right."

2. Self confidence. "He who believes he cannot attain certain heights because of his racial identity will never reach them," the speaker asserted.

3. Tactfulness and a keen sense of when, where and how to talk were listed as the other necessary techniques.

List of Graduates

Marion P. Armstrong, Columbus Ga., was announced as the highest honor student. The high honor student was Essie C. Shepard, Mobile, Ala.

The honor students were:

Eloise Anderson, Tampa, Fla.; Odette C. Baker, Tuskegee Institute; Susie G. Clark, Opelika, Ala.; Irene O. Edwards, Tuskegee Institute; and Grace G. Lycurgus, Education, Green Grove Springs, Fla.

Master of Science Awards

Chemistry: Walter Carl Gordon, Albany, Ga.; Harold W. Lucien, New Orleans; Julia M. Martin, Malvern, Pa.; Gladys M. Royal, Urbana, O.; Norma A. Spaulding, Cape, May, N.J.; and Fred R. West, Baltimore.

Education: Mary J. Payne, Fairfield, Ala.; Agriculture: Eddie Brown, Whiteville, N.C.; Wilbert T. Thompson, Cleveland, Tenn., and Edward W. Williams, Albany, Ga.

J. Julius Flood, personnel director and acting dean of men, presented the deans of the various schools and departments, who in turn presented the candidates for graduation. Dr. I. A. Derbigny, acting president, awarded the certificates and diplomas and conferred the degrees. He was assisted by Mrs. Antionette N. Cohen, registrar.

Among those receiving the bachelor of science degree was Capt. Cecil W. White, Selma, Ala. Captain White has been relieved of duty and assignment with the Military Department at Tuskegee Institute and is awaiting orders to sail for Germany.

Presentation

Richard J. Carr, Commercial Industries, Houston, Tex., president of the Summer School graduating class, presented the class's donation of $75.00 to the United Negro College Fund, which was accepted by Dr. Derbigny.

Special music for the commencement exercises was furnished by the Summer School Choir. Mrs. Alberta L. Simms, of the Department of Music, presided at the organ.

Daily World
Lafayette, La

SUMMER WORKSHOP DIRECTOR —Dr. Kara Vaughn Jackson, part-time National Jeanes Teacher for the Southern Educational Foundation of Washington, D. C., and Student Personnel Director at Grambling College, will serve as director of the Tuskegee-Grambling Graduate Workshop for Jeanes supervisors and principals at the institution this summer. (Moss Photo).

Tuskegee - Grambling Workshop Progresses

Daily World
Fri. 7-16-48

GRAMBLING, La.—The Tuskegee-rambling Graduate Workshop, for supervisors, prospective supervisors, principals and teachers, directed by Dr. Kara Vaughn Jackson and Miss Bessie E. Dickerson, entered its third week Monday with 45 students representing five states participating.

7-16-48 Daily World
Atlanta, Ga. 7-16-48

Dr. Jane Ellen McAllister, originator of the Workshop idea at Grambling College in 1936 and consultant for subsequent sessions, made a brief visit to the campus at the end of the second week to serve as resource leader on a number of topics prior to leaving for Prague, Czechoslovakia where she will serve as Child Care Specialist with UNESCO.

A census taken of the group at the opening of the session revealed that curriculum planning ranked first among major problems on which participants wanted assistance. In an effort to alleviate this problem special attention was given to "Planning the School Program." Discussions were led by Dean E. L. Cole on "Techniques of Group Planning" along with demonstrations on group dynamics. Resource leaders for these various discussions were Dr. Alonzo Davis, professor of Psychology and acting dean of the School of Education, Tuskegee Institute, Dr. Jackson, Miss Dickerson and Mrs. Alice Blalock.

Atlanta Daily World 7-16-48

To facilitate orientation activities service committees were appointed with both permanent and rotating memberships. These committees compile reference lists, conduct and evaluate tours, help plan the work for each day, keep records of all activities and edit the Telecaster, informative weekly Workshop news letter.

Juvenie delinquenc child growth and development, school-community relationship, consolidation of schools, adult education and school-community health, are some of the other problms attacked during the first two weeks of the session.

14n 1948

Trustees

Gets High British Honor For Humanitarian Work

Basil O'Connor

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1 (U.P.)— One of the highest honors of the British Government has been conferred upon Basil O'Connor, president of the American Red Cross, it was announced today.

At the direction of King George VI, Mr. O'Connor has been designated an associate knight of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, in recognition of his "humanitarian work of great proportions."

The order originated during the crusades of the eleventh century. It is conferred on persons who have done outstanding work in hospital or ambulance service.

Booker T. Washington's Idea

I note another effort to give Negro youths a vocational training in this city. I hope the good people behind this move will succeed.

At the close of the last century a lean, lanky, beardless young man from Alabama came hereabout preaching to the youths to learn farming, dressmaking, cooking, carpentry, plumbing, bricklaying and all the other skilled trades. His reception by his own people was a cool one. However, our own Henry Watterson, editor of The Courier-Journal, read of his efforts and placed his seal of approval on him by calling him the Moses of the Negro race. His brilliant editorials were about Booker T. Washington, and Booker Washington became a national figure and his new teaching was taken as a godsend to the youth of America.

Well, the whites did something about it in Louisville. Coleman du Pont gave Louisville the du Pont Manual Training School for white boys, but the Negro educators and preachers and other leaders of the Negro race were still not interested. Years later, the University of Louisville decided to give a college course to colored boys and girls, and from personal contact with Professor John L. Patterson, then dean of the University of Louisville, I knew he favored a school where colored youths could learn electrical engineering, draftsmanship, and other skilled trades that their condition in life gave them a chance to succeed in. Well, his hope was shattered by leaders of the Negro race when they objected to anything but a college of higher education.

A few years later Theo Ahrens decided to give a trade school and anyone that really knew the heart of him knew he meant to do at least something for the Negro youths also. But at this late date the Negro was still not interested. The only effort really made was by Atwood Wilson of our Central High School, and it is a source of pleasure to him to display each year the handwork of his pupils.

I trust I will at last see a real opportunity given the Negro youth to train his hands as well as his heart.

FRANK R. WILLIS.

Louisville.

Fairfield Schools Prepare Students, Vets For Job Of Making Own Living

BY DANNY DANENBERG
News Staff Writer

They are doing big things in vocational education in the Fairfield public school system.

Both young students and battle-scarred veterans are learning to use "their hands and their heads" to earn a good living.

Coordinator of both the school and veterans' vocational training program is William R. McKinnon.

His average day is early in the morning until late at night.

"I like to be on the job and see what goes on," he explains. "The Fairfield Board of Education has one of the best vocational training programs here of the entire state."

Mr. McKinnon now has the assistance of several persons including Robert Brown, who does most of the purchasing.

Also Miss Dorothy Thompson, who has charge of a group of students. Her students study in Fairfield Senior High School half a day and then work in Fairfield stores and other places half a day.

EVERY COOPERATION and support is given the vocational training program by G. V. Nunn, superintendent of Fairfield public schools.

"The Fairfield Board of Education," Mr. Nunn says, "seeks to give each student the training for which he is best fitted. A career planning course has been added to Fairfield High School for this purpose."

"The vocational training, under supervision of the State Department of Trades and Industrial Education, is a large and integral part of this program."

He added the Fairfield Board of Education hopes to expand its vocational training program later. Two modern, new buildings are now under construction, one for white trainees and the other for Negroes.

"We have long realized," Superintendent Nunn says, "only a small percentage of students go to college, that many who begin working do not have the proper training for their particular type of work. It is this class of students that we now are attempting to train properly for their life's work."

SUPERINTENDENT NUNN said the Fairfield board, in authorizing the two new vocational training shops for veterans, felt the veterans deserved the best vocational training possible.

"And that's what we are trying to give it to them," he said.

Vocational training courses in the white Fairfield schools for students and veterans include radio, television, auto mechanics, machine shop, electrical trades, salesmanship, merchandising, business office economics training, and others.

At the Fairfield Negro Industrial High School, operated by E. J. Oliver, principal courses are offered in auto mechanics, dry cleaning and pressing, shoe repair, cosmetology, upholstery work, sewing and salesmanship, tailoring, home economics and management and other courses.

Many students, white and Negroes, veterans and non-veterans, now holding good jobs in Birmingham district industries and businesses received their initial training in Fairfield schools.

All of them are a credit to the foresight of the Fairfield Board of Education, the supervision of Mr. McKinnon and the support of Superintendent G. V. Nunn, a former colonel in World War II.

Alonzo Locke Memorial Institute, Inc., Announces Expansion Program With Mrs. Locke Endorsing Project

Substantial expansion within less than a year of operation is the outstanding record of the Alonzo Locke Memorial Institute, Inc., the Mid-South's and Memphis's only Hotel Service School for the training of Negro waiters and other hotel service workers.

Yesterday (Monday) morning, during a special ceremony involving the students of the school, school officials, and Mrs. Alonzo Locke, widow of the famed Peabody headwaiter in whose memory the institution was named, the project was launched.

Mrs. Locke expressed elation over the announcement that the occasion marked the start of construction for a four-story addition to the school's physical plant at 517 South Main near Central Station.

Contrary to a previous view which was widely accepted in the city following the original announcement Saturday, the four-story addition's upper floors will not be used as a Negro hotel.

Mr. James R. Tucker, vice-president and treasurer of the organization stated that what is intended to be emphasized is the fact that the institution is expanding its facilities for the training of Negro waiters and other hotel services employes, and is not establishing a Negro hotel.

Contract for the construction work has been let to W. A. Whitsitt Construction Co., and the first spadeful of earth was turned at 9 a. m. yesterday morning by Mrs. Locke.

The Alonzo Locke Memorial Institute, Inc., is a school which trains young Negro men and women for hotel work, such as jobs as waiters. With more than 200 students enrolled and more seeking entrance, the school's present two-story building at 517 South Main was crowded. So, the Institute bought the adjacent 25x145 foot lot to the south and will build the four-story connecting building on it. First floor and basement will be used by the school. Construction will cost about $70,000, thus making the Alonzo Locke Memorial Institute, Inc., one of the finest and largest institutions of its kind in the nation.

Officials of the Institute, all white include: Messrs. Robert L. Woodard, president, James R. Tucker, vice-president, Phillip T. Fitzpatrick, vice-president, Mrs. Ellen Fitizpatrick, secretary and treasurer, and Mr. John G. Clark, director of the Institute.

Enrolless may complete the hotel training course in from eight months to a year. Most of the Institute's student personnel consists of veterans of World War II.

Many of those who have completed the course are now employes of various leading local hotels. Some have gone to other localities to following the work in which they were trained at the Alonzo Locke Memorial Institute Incorporated.

The President of the Institute, Mr. Woodard, is also president of the Woodard School of Photography Incorporated, an nstitution for the training of Photographers, located at the corner of Second and Union, upstairs. Another official of the Woodard School of Photography is Mr. Tucker, vice-president and general manager. The School of Photography trains white students.

Artist in Human Relations

"If you don't behave," Chicago teachers used to warn Negro pupils, "I'll send you to Dunbar." Ramshackle Dunbar Trade School on Chicago's South Side was little better than a reform school. Nobody preened himself on winning a Dunbar diploma, or stood much chance of landing a job with one. Then Clifford J. Campbell came along.

Cliff Campbell was a young Negro from Washington, D.C., a onetime Pullman porter and redcap, whom the depression had sidetracked from architecture into schoolteaching. In 1942, when war industries were begging for skilled workers, the Chicago school board looked around for a man who could perk up down-in-the-

as substandard, gathered a white and Negro faculty of 74 to help him build a bigger & better high school. He set up 23 tough vocational courses, begged or borrowed $2,000,000 worth of machines and equipment. School enrollment has jumped from 125 pupils to 1,650 (400 of them Negro war veterans).

Last month, after six years on the job, Campbell promptly fired all 16 teachers

43-year-old Cliff Campbell was picked by the U.S. Office of Education's magazine School Life as the answer to a big question: "What Are Good Teachers Like?" And last week, as Dunbar was closing down for a month's summer vacation, 105 of its 118 graduates paid Director Campbell a tribute he liked even better: they got good jobs.

Installed as Dunbar's new director, Phillips High School, where Campbell was dean of boys, gave him a resounding recommendation: "An artist in human relations."

Skills First. Chicago School Superintendent Herold C. Hunt, who thinks Campbell and Dunbar are "amazing," has promised them a new building within three years. Meanwhile overcrowded Dunbar, built to handle only 375 students, makes do with a Hooverville of temporary wooden buildings—and three shifts. Cliff Campbell is the first to arrive every day (by 7:30 a.m.) and the last to leave (after 10 p.m.). Offered better-paying jobs in their trades or at other schools, many of Campbell's teachers have refused.

Harold Trudeau

DUNBAR'S CAMPBELL
What are good teachers like?

Because most of Dunbar's students come from low-income homes and many have to leave before graduation, Campbell concentrates on teaching every boy & girl some employable skill in the first half year. In the auto-shop course, a boy learns to grease a car; in the dressmaking course, a girl learns to cut dress parts. Students who stay become skilled craftsmen: some of Dunbar's sheet-metal graduates make $125 a week. Mar. 8-9-48

Arts Later. Campbell insists that his students also take academic courses (English, math, science, social studies), encourages them to try music and art. He was pleased as punch last year when an aircraft student won the state oratory contest. Knowing that factory doors don't open so wide to Negroes, Campbell drills his students on writing letters of application and taking job tests, makes them conscious of neatness, work habits and "personality." Best measure of his success: Dunbar now takes only the top 15% of its applicants.

VOCATIONAL SCHOOL IS PROPOSED

St. Louis Post-Dispatch Mar. 31-48

Held Up In The Mo. Senate

JEFFERSON CITY, March 31 — A motion that sought to force consideration of the Negro vocational school bill was defeated in the Senate last Thursday.

Proponents of a House bill now pending in a Senate committee providing for establishment of a Negro vocational school in southeast Mo., sought to block action on a bill for a state vocational school until the Senate Committee reported out the Negro school bill. The bill has been in the Senate committee since early in the 1947 session. Mar. 31-48

The House debated for nearly an hour over a motion by Representative J. S. Wallace of Scott county, sponsor of the Negro school bill, to hold up t Senate's state school bill until the body acted on Wallace's bill.

The State Measure calling for a million dollar vocational School on the site of Camp Crowder was reconsidered and passed Tuesday. The b[illegible] for the $400,000 Negro School [illegible]ed on."

The clash over the bills resulted in a number of complaints in the house over the Senate practice of holding up many House bills. Representative Wm. Massingale has an FEPC measure pending and Representative E. Claybourne Bush an anti-segregated school bill awaiting consideration. Both apparently may die without coming out of committee.

SITES FOR NEGRO COLLEGE STUDIED

(Special to The Times-Picayune)

Jackson, Miss., Dec. 1.—A subcommittee of the state building commission today inspected 12 sites for location of a $300,000 Negro vocational college in the Mississippi Delta for study commission session December 8.

The locations studied by the subcommittee, composed of House Speaker Walter Sillers, of the Mississippi House, and State Sen. John T. Kyle, were in Tutwiler, Itta Bena and Indianola.

Mr. Sillers stated that he did not feel the commission could make a final selection of a site at the December meeting until a brief on each location had been studied by the whole body.

The appropriation for the first Negro Vocational college in the state had been made by the 1946 Legislature, and the site designated for the Greenwood Army Air Base in Carroll county.

Objections by the county had halted proceeding with the plan. The 1948 Legislature reappropriated the funds and specified that the college could be located at any point in the Delta.

A.P. Apologizes For Racial Slur

The Criterion 4
Los Angeles Calif.

Ted R. Smits, general sports editor of the Associated Press in a letter addressed to G. William McKinney, executive secretary of the Los Angeles branch of the NAACP, apologized for use of the term "mammy" in a story released by them referring to Joe Louis' mother. The letter follows:

"Dear Mr. McKinney:

You are correct, of course, in saying that we should not have referred to Joe Louis' mother as his "mammy" in the Detroit story mentioned in your December 15 letter. We try consistently to avoid use of terms which carry racial connotations and I am chagrined that this one got into our news report apparently unnoticed by editors along the line. Jan 3 - 1948

I am confident, however, that no disrespect was meant—and, frankly, I doubt that few readers would gather any such impression from the story. "Mammy" is a word usually associated with a Negro, it is true, but it also is a term of affection and, as such, is pretty thoroughly ingrained in our language.

In the same spirit of candor, I cannot agree that the 'general content of the article was one of degradation.' It was an interesting story of a mother's reaction and, contrary to being degrading, it seems to me to exemplify a spirit of facing realities that is entirely praiseworthy. 1 - 3 - 48

It does not seem to me that any useful purpose would be served by a 'public apology, such as you suggest. We have found by experience that this would only emphasize what was, at worst, a thoughtless usage of a word, and magnify the incident out of all proportion.

Education Board May Select Site Of Trade School Today

The Birmingham News

Selection of a site for the construction of one of four trade schools to be built in Alabama will be the principal business to come before the State Board of Education when it meets here this morning at 9:30.

Also to be considered, according to Dr. Austin R. Meadows, State superintendent of education, are bond issues for Troy, Livingston and Montgomery State Teachers Colleges. The college here is for Negroes. 5-14-48

The trade schools were authorized in an act passed by the 1947 legislature, which provided that one would be built each year for four years. No more than one such school is to be located in a Congressional District. 5-14-48

$750,000 Allocated

The act authorizing the schools appropriated $750,000 for each school, $675,000 to be used for construction and $75,000 for maintenance and operation.

Dr. Meadows said it was not clear whether the operation and maintenance fund of $75,000 is a continuing appropriation or whether it is for just one year for each school.

Since the first school will not be completed until next year, the education superintendent continued, that point can be cleared up at the 1949 session of the legislature.

Although only one trade school can be built each year, Dr. Meadows said he would recommend locations for two at today's session of the board. He declined to comment on what his recommendations would be.

He did say, however, that at least 17 communities have put in bids for the schools. He listed them as Brewton, Camden, Clanton, Clayton, Greensboro, Jasper, Lanett, Linden, Mobile, Montgomery, Dothan (Napier Field), Russellville, Seale, Troy, Tuscaloosa, Guin, and Huntsville.

At present the only trade school in Alabama operated by the State is at Gadsden.

Members of the State Board of Education are: 5-14-48

Governor Folsom, chairman; C. M. A. Rogers, Mobile; Roy Nolen, Jr., Montgomery; H. J. Upshaw, Eufaula; Harry M. Ayers, Anniston; Joe Starnes, Guntersville; Handy Ellis, Columbiana; State Senator Rankin Fite, Hamilton; State Rep. John M. Snodgrass, Scottsboro, and Donald Comer, Birmingham. 5-14-48

Trade School Locations

Birmingham News

The State Board of Education has acted wisely in deciding to establish in the Birmingham area a trade school for Negroes. This decision reflects the board's understanding of the purpose of the trades school program to provide training for the areas and the people where the needs and opportunities are greatest. Mon. 5-31-48

The board had applications from 18 cities for the four trade schools authorized at the last session of the Legislature. It selected only two sites, however. The first school will be built near Dothan for white students. The second will be in the Birmingham area for Negroes. Birmingham, Ala.

There were some shortsighted objections by one or two members of the board to authorizing a state trades school for Negroes at this time. The state already has one trades school, at Gadsden. With a second one for white students at Dothan, the third one should be for Negroes since Negroes, by the 1940 census, constitute 34.6 per cent, or a little better than one-third, of the state's population. It should be obvious, too, what the U. S. Supreme Court would do should it ever be called upon to rule on a complaint that Alabama was providing training in skills for white students but not for Negroes.

Birmingham was a wise choice for the Negro training school site because of the concentration in this area of Negroes who might desire to acquire skills in the building trades and as mechanics and sheet metal workers. Birmingham, as well as the rest of the state, should profit greatly by having an augmented supply of trained and intelligent craftsmen. 5-24-48

140 1948 Carver Vocational School

Carver Vocational School Inauguration This Week

Daily World Atlanta, Ga

BY C. LAMAR WEAVER

(See Pictures on Page 2)

The celebrated pronouncement expounded by Booker T. Washington at the Atlanta Exposition a half century ago will be publicly inaugurated this week when Carver Vocational school opens its portals for inspection. Daily World

At this exposition, in 1895, the immortal educator set forth his educational theory—if one must toil, he should be taught to toil skillfully. Atlanta, Ga.

And so—for Atlanta Negroes—the stage has been set. Sun. 2-29-48

OPENS MARCH 8

School Principal James H. Bohannon stated that the school will open officially on March 8. Training will be limited to veterans and adults until the September school term. He added that open house will be held beginning Tuesday afternoon extending through Saturday noon. Visiting hours will be from 8:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., he said.

The site of the institution, named in honor of the renown Tuskegee chemist, is the former location of Clark college, off McDonough boulevard. Daily World

Nestled in the serenity of bypassed woodlands, the scenic beauty of the institution's buildings and grounds is crowned by the buttressed architectural landmark, Leete Hall. This august edifice is, in itself, a rare museum piece in the realm of architecture.

It was but a few months ago that Leete Hall and the other buildings drowsed in neglect and forgetfulness since the "Panther" changed his lair. Atlanta Ga.

They were subsequently purchased by the city and county boards of education for joint operation of vocational training. Workmen were given the combined tasks of restoring an antiquity and remodeling the run down edifices.

MODERN MIRACLE

Results of their efforts could be termed a modern miracle, for they have ingeniously blended the old with the new. Sun. 2-29-48

While the exteriors of the buildings have been vivified, the interiors have been subjected to extensive modern renovations.

In Leete Hall, which will serve as a main current for activities, a modern fire sprinkling system has been installed in conformity with the city's new buildingcode: fluorescent lighting in many of the classrooms has replaced inadequate lighting facilities of former years; cement stairways now climb the stories once made accessible by rickety wooden staircases; sunken flooring has been razed and replaced and the dingy, besmirched walls and ceilings now glisten with paint anew....A general transformation has taken place.

The varied equipment installed for training purposes is brand new.

THE PROGRAM

A variegated program for trades and industries has been proposed. Facilities for such include:

A model modern beauty shoppe equipped with booths, vanities, basins, hair dryers and other necessary facilities to accommodate 20 trainees; a tailoring shop displaying expensive working tables and latest machinery; a classroom for trade sewing equipped with electric sewing machines; a shoe repair shop awating installation of the latest Lander model; and a sparkling new cafeteria purported to accommodate 175 diners.

The cafeteria is equipped with steam tables, a super frigidaire, store room and—the pecked husband's dream—an automatic dishwasher. A classroom for chefs and cooks is located adjacent to the cafeteria. Daily World

Another building houses an auto mechanic-paint shop. Its heating is electricaly circulated. Paint and gas fumes will be blown from the shop by a specially installed unit.

A two story dwelling house has been set aside and completely furnished for domestic service training. Courses to be offered in distributive education include salesmanship, restaurant management and retail sales. Atlanta Ga.

IN "DREAMVILLE"

"This is Dreamville," the principal said as we ascended the third floor of Leete Hall. His remarks of warm regard met hearty approval by your reporter as he marveled at five glistening enamel coated kitchen units complete to respective frigidaires and dinettes.

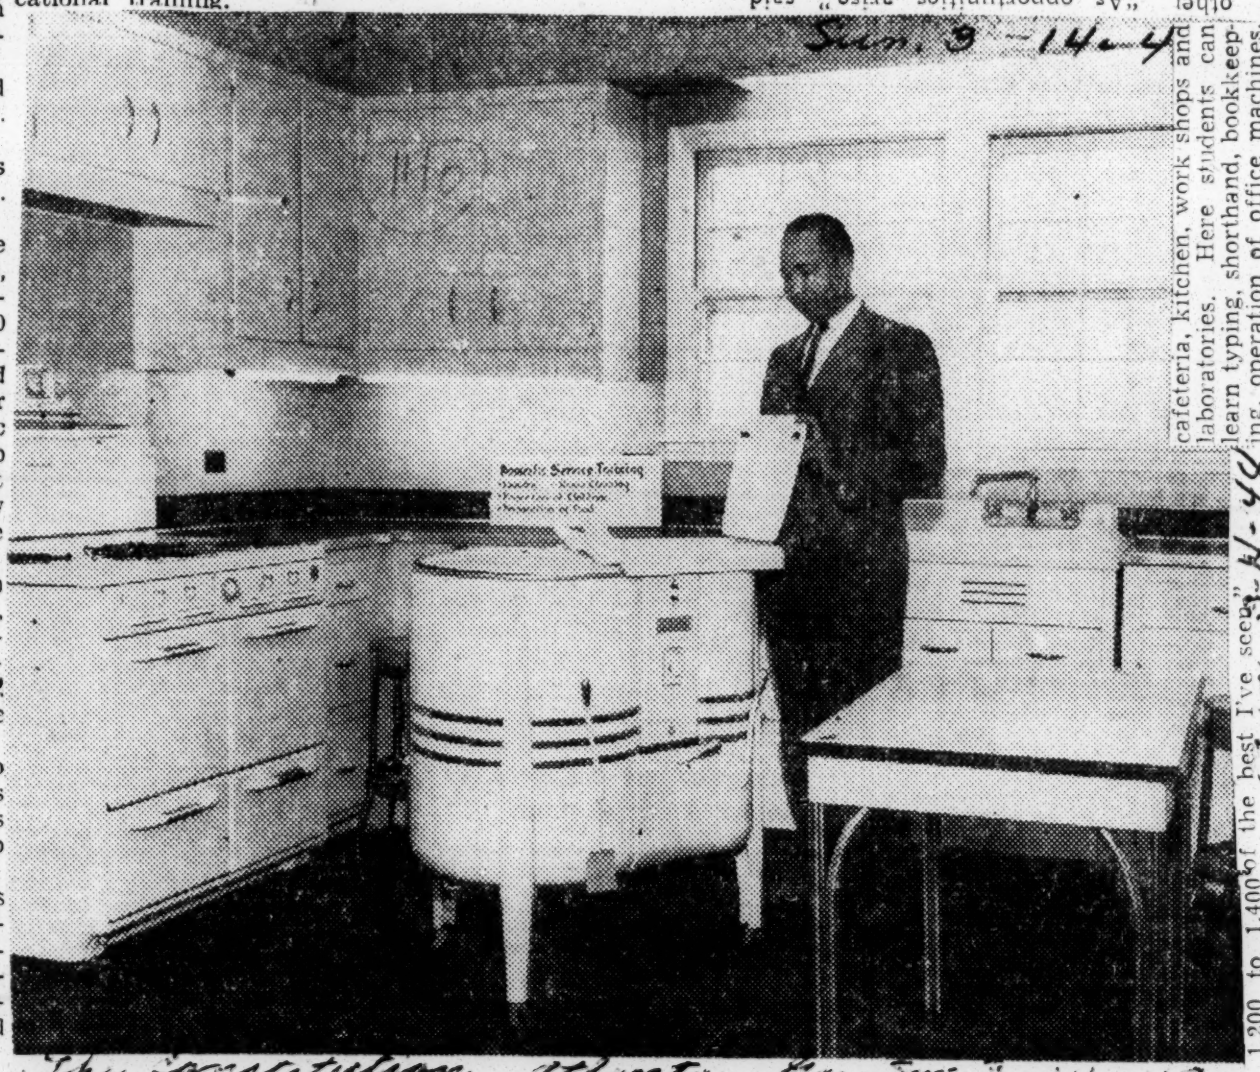
Other courses to be offered include: Home economic sewing, practical nursing, commercial dietetics; stenographic, secretarial and general clerical courses; bookbinding, English, business English, mathematics, business mathematics, science; drafting, blue print reading, elementary economics and general contribution training.

New toilet facilities have been installed throughout the institution and lockers and showers have been provided for the auto-maching paint shop. Sun. 2-29-48

The lofty dignity of Crogman Chapel has been enhanced by a general repaint job.

Like the enchanted tale of the Sleeping Beauty, the buildings and grounds of Carver Vocational School slumbered. Today, however, they have awaken and taken on a new life, new aspects and an outlook for a promising future in vocational training.

"As opportunities arise," said Bohannon, "we will expand and offer an even wider variety of courses. I am very enthusiastic about the future of the school, and I am confident the Negroes of Atlanta will take advantage of the excellent training now offered them." Atlanta Ga.



DOMESTIC SERVICE TRAINING CENTER—A completely equipped kitchen at the Carver Vocational School will be used in training Negroes, domestic work. Besides food preparation, the domestic service course will include laundry, house-cleaning, and care of children. James Bohannon, Principal, who examines a washing machine, is a graduate of Lincoln University, a former teacher at Washington High here.

The Constitution Atlanta, Ga Sun 3-14-48

RESTAURANT MANAGEMENT, AUTO MECHANICS

G. W. Carver School Will Teach Everything From 'Soup to Nuts'

By KATHERINE BARNWELL

Atlanta's new George Washington Carver Vocational School, which will open in two weeks at 9 Gammon Ave., S. W., will teach Negroes in this area everything from restaurant management to auto mechanics. Sun 3-14-48

The Negro girl who wants to become a beautician . . . the Negro boy who wishes to study bookkeeping . . . the maid who wants to become proficient at cooking, sewing, practical nursing or commercial dietetics—all will receive competent instruction at the Carver Vocational School.

"Atlanta will have one of the finest vocational schools for Negroes in the country," declared P. E. Babcock, Executive Director of Vocational Education Service here.

Babcock explained the buildings will enable from 1,200 to 1,400 Negroes to receive training in a day's period. More than 350 veterans already said. "Negro veterans for better jobs." A second unit is the auto mechanics building, which houses have been "completely renovated" and equipped by Clark College. The Carver Vocational School, is three classrooms and six shops for the School. More than $300,000 has been spent by Atlanta, James Bohannon, a 28-year-old Washington enough education and Fulton County—which will former teacher at graduate of University—but operate the institution jointly—to High School and a remodel the buildings and equip Lincoln University in Pennsylvania, has been named Principal. them with all necessary laboratory The Carver V facilities. The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Sun 3-14-48

Enrollment capacity will be about 800 students at one session—but part-time and night classes many other vocational schools, comprised of the The largest of the units includes school plant established here "one 20 classrooms, plus an auditorium, pair, painting and spraying, lubri

Carver Vocational School Inauguration This Week

BY C. LAMAR WEAVER

(See Pictures on Page 2)

The celebrated pronouncement expounded by Booker T. Washington at the Atlanta Exposition a half century ago will be publicly inaugurated this week when Carver Vocational school opens its portals for inspection.

At this exposition, in 1895, the immortal educator set forth his educational theory—if one must toil, he should be taught to toil skillfully.

And so—for Atlanta Negroes—the stage has been set.

OPENS MARCH 8

School Principal James H. Bohannon stated that the school will open officially on March 8. Training will be limited to veterans and adults until the September school term. He added that open house will be held beginning Tuesday afternoon extending through Saturday noon. Visiting hours will be from 8:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., he said.

The site of the institution, named in honor of the renown Tuskegee chemist, is the former location of Clark college, off McDonough boulevard.

Nestled in the serenity of bypassed woodlands, the scenic beauty of the institution's buildings and grounds is crowned by the buttressed architectural landmark, Leete Hall. This august edifice is, in itself, a rare museum piece in the realm of architecture.

It was but a few months ago that Leete Hall and the other buildings drowsed in neglect and forgetfulness since the "Panther" changed his lair.

They were subsequently purchased by the city and county boards of education for joint operation of vocational training. Workmen were given the combined tasks of restoring an antiquity and remodeling the run down edifices.

MODERN MIRACLE

Results of their efforts could be termed a modern miracle, for they have ingeniously blended the old with the new.

While the exteriors of the buildings have been vivified, the interiors have been subjected to extensive modern renovations.

In Leete Hall, which will serve as a main current for activities, a modern fire sprinkling system has been installed in conformity with the city's new buildingcode: fluorescent lighting in many of the classrooms has replaced inadequate lighting facilities of former years; cement stairways now climb the stories once made accessible by rickety wooden staircases; sunken flooring has been razed and replaced and the dingy, besmirched walls and ceilings now glisten with paint anew....A general transformation has taken place.

The varied equipment installed for training purposes is brand new.

THE PROGRAM

A variegated program for trades and industries has been proposed. Facilities for such include:

A model modern beauty shoppe equipped with booths, vanities, basins, hair dryers and other necessary facilities to accommodate 20 trainees; a tailoring shop displaying expensive working tables and latest machinery; a classroom for trade sewing equipped with electric sewing machines; a shoe repair shop awating installation of the latest Lander model; and a sparkling new cafeteria purported to accommodate 175 diners.

The cafeteria is equipped with steam tables, a super frigidaire, store room and—the pecked husband's dream—an automatic dishwasher. A classroom for chefs and cooks is located adjacent to the cafeteria.

Another building houses an auto mechanic-paint shop. Its heating is electricaly circulated. Paint and gas fumes will be blown from the shop by a specially installed unit.

A two story dwelling house has been set aside and completely furnished for domestic service training. Courses to be offered in distributive education include salesmanship, restaurant management and retail sales.

IN "DREAMVILLE"

"This is Dreamville," the principal said as we ascended the third floor of Leete Hall. His remarks of warm regard met hearty approval by your reporter as he marveled at five glistening enamel coated kitchen units complete to respective frigidaires and dinettes.

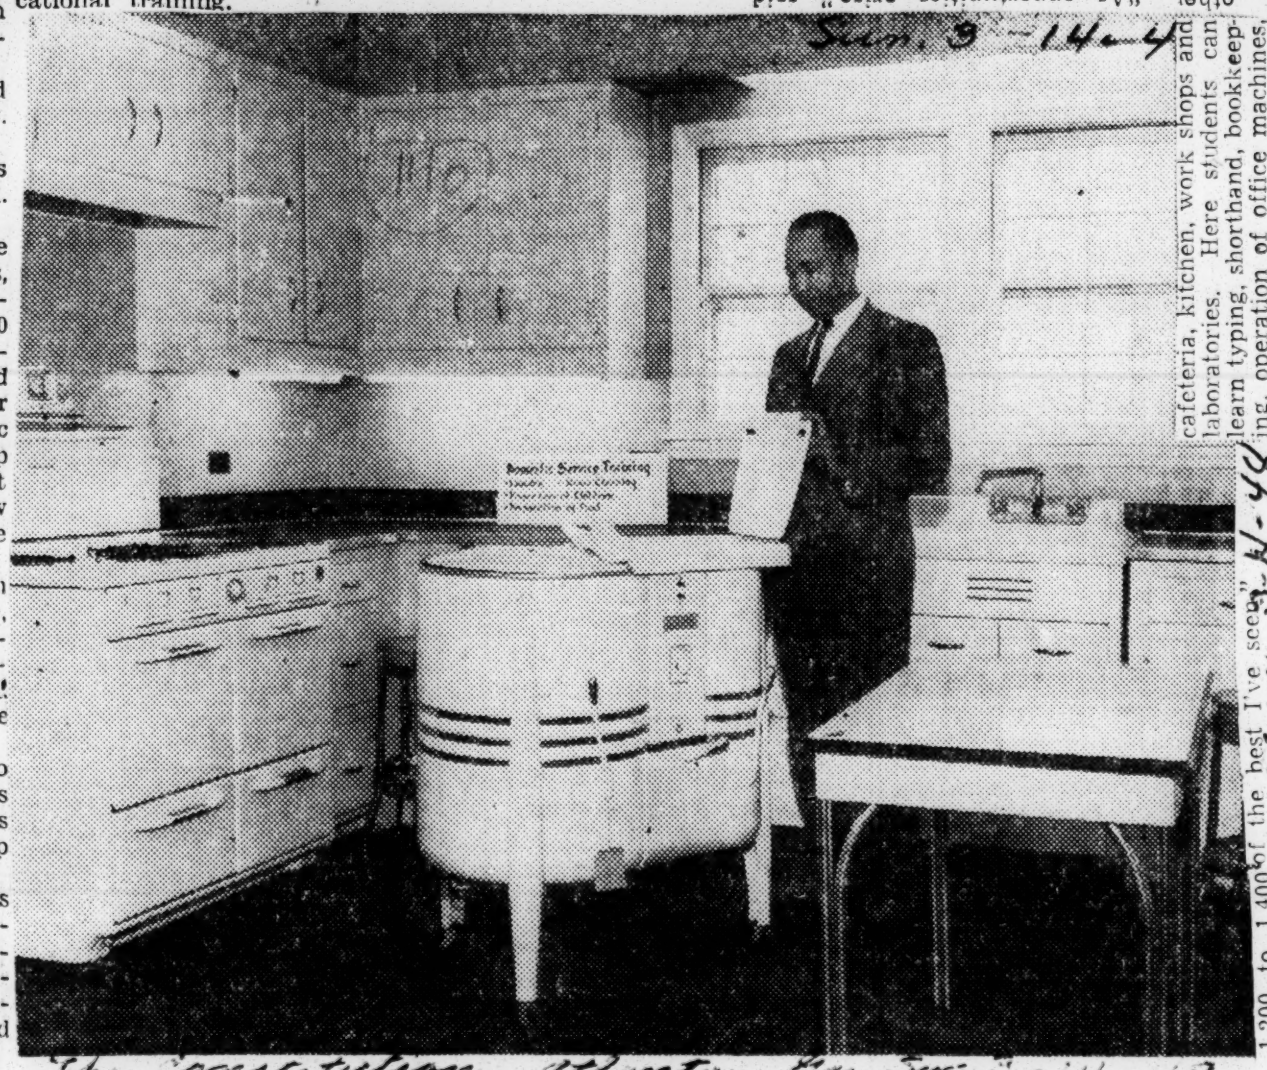
Other courses to be offered include: Home economic sewing, practical nursing, commercial dietetics; stenographic, secretarial and general clerical courses; bookbinding, English, business English, mathematics, business mathematics, science; drafting, blue print reading, elementary economics and general contribution training.

New toilet facilities have been installed throughout the institution and lockers and showers have been provided for the auto-maching paint shop.

The lofty dignity of Crogman Chapel has been enhanced by a general repaint job.

Like the enchanted tale of the Sleeping Beauty, the buildings and grounds of Carver Vocational School slumbered. Today, however, they have awaken and taken on a new life, new aspects and an outlook for a promising future in vocational training.

"As opportunities arise," said Bohannon, "we will expand and offer an even wider variety of courses. I am very enthusiastic about the future of the school, and I am confident the Negroes of Atlanta will take advantage of the excellent training now offered them."



DOMESTIC SERVICE TRAINING CENTER—A completely equipped kitchen at the Carver Vocational School will be used in training Negroes domestic work. Besides food preparation, the domestic service course will include laundry, house-cleaning, and care of children. James Bohannon, Principal, who examines a washing machine, is a graduate of Lincoln University, a former teacher at Washington High here.

RESTAURANT MANAGEMENT, AUTO MECHANICS

G. W. Carver School Will Teach Everything From 'Soup to Nuts'

By KATHERINE BARNWELL

Atlanta's new George Washington Carver Vocational School, which will open in two weeks at 9 Gammon Ave., S. W., will teach Negroes in this area everything from restaurant management to auto mechanics.

The Negro girl who wants to become a beautician . . . the Negro boy who wishes to study bookkeeping . . . the maid who wants to become proficient at cooking, sewing, practical nursing or commercial dietetics—all will receive competent instruction at the Carver Vocational School.

"Atlanta will have one of the finest vocational schools for Negroes in the country," declared P. E. Babcock, Executive Director of Vocational Education Service here.

Babcock explained the buildings will enable from 1,200 to 1,400 Negroes to receive training in a once occupied by Clark College, day's period. "Atlanta needed a have been "completely renovated" needed vocational training," he said. "Negro veterans in particular for the School. More than 350 veterans already have registered at the school. 000 has been spent by Atlanta James Bohannon, a 28-year-old and Fulton County—which will former teacher at Washington operate the institution jointly—to High School and a graduate of remodel the buildings and equip Lincoln University in Pennsylthem with all necessary laboratory vania, has been named Principal. facilities. Bohannon, who has visited

Enrollment capacity will be many other vocational schools, about 800 students at one session—both white and Negro, called the but part-time and night classes school plant established here "one MACHINES FOR TAILORING INSTRUCTION—P. E. Babcock, right, Executive Director of Vocational Education Service in Atlanta, and James Bohannon, Principal of the Carver Vocational School, examine some of the school's equipment for instruction in tailoring. The new vocational school also will train Negroes in such trades as shoe repairing, auto mechanics, beauty culture, restaurant management and domestic service.

Jan 3 - 12 - 48

CARVER VOCATIONAL SCHOOL FOR NEGROES—This red brick building and two other units at 9 Gammon Ave., S. W., formerly occupied by Clark College, have been completely renovated and equipped for Atlanta's new George Washington Carver Vocational School.

Million Dollar Vocational School Opens In Atlanta

ATLANTA, Ga. — (NNPA) — Civic and business leaders inspected on Tuesday, March 2, the George Washington Carver Vocational Training School for colored students, which had its formal opening last Monday, and described it as a "milestone toward a solution of equality of opportunity, physical facilities and high-grade instruction." The new institution is valued at $1,000,000.

The school is equipped with the most modern facilities. Open house was held the remainder of last week.

George P. Whitman, president of the Fulton county board of education, praised the mutual understanding of racial groups and the Atlanta and Fulton boards of education in working harmoniously to establish the institution, a companion of the Smith-Hughes Vocational Training School for white students.

ANOTHER MILESTONE

"This school is another milestone towards the ideal," Whitman said. "It augers well for the future of our community. It is a challenge to continue to build toward the ideal of a community life."

Mr. Whitman also praised Frank Neely, president of Rich's Inc., and one of the originators of the co-operative effort.

P. E. Babcock, director of vocational education for the Atlanta school system, presided as toastmaster at a luncheon preceding the inspection.

The school is located on a 60-acre tract which formerly housed Clark University. There are five newly renovated buildings.

BOARDS PRAISED

Miss Ira Jarrell, city school superintendent, praised the cooperation of the two boards of education and the State Department of Education in making the $1,000,000 institution available for the training program. The two boards have expended approximately $300,000 on the purchase, renovation and equipment program.

Paul West, Fulton school superintendent, predicted a great future for the school.

Among others who spoke were Ed. S. Cook, president of the Atlanta board; Mayor William B. Hartsfield, Dr. M. D. Collins, state school superintendent, and Dr. M. D. Mobley, state director of vocational education.

James Bohannan, principal expressed appreciation for the facilities which have been provided through the cooperative efforts of the two school systems. 3-13-48

WILL ACCOMMODATE 659

Mr. Bohannan said present facilities will accommodate 659 students and expansions already are being planned.

Courses offered include business education, trades and industries, vocational homemaking, distributive education, and related work. A graduate of the school will have the equivalent of a high school education and will have special training in the vocation he selects.

Faculty and students of Washington High School prepared and served lunch.

DUNBAR SCHOOL IN 6 YEARS HAS A PLACE IN SUN

Famed in U.S. as City's 'Tuskegee Institute'

The Dunbar Trade and Vocational school, opened by the board of education only six years ago, has captured the imagination of educators and aroused such enthusiasm that its fame is now international and it is widely known in this country as "Chicago's Tuskegee institute."

Comparison of a school so young with one of the best known Negro colleges in the country might be a source of satisfaction to some school men, but Clifford J. Campbell, director at Dunbar, says there is little parallel between the two.

While Tuskegee works with men and women of college age, Dunbar deals with pupils of high school age. At Tuskegee the emphasis is on agriculture, homemaking, and sciences, but at Dunbar pupils are taught highly competitive trades and are expected to hold a job on the same basis as any worker. A former department head at the famous southern university, after a recent tour of the Chicago school, said "Dunbar is Tuskegee brought up to date, and brought north."

Learn "To Get Along"

Toward the end that Dunbar graduates may get and hold a job, the advice of its teachers to pupils is, "Do the job, do it right, and get along." The last bit of counsel, a teacher explained, points the pupil toward obeying work rules, not being quarrelsome or indifferent, and making himself agreeable to his employer and fellow workers.

Dunbar differs from most schools even in the trade and vocational field, in that it attempts to give a rudimentary knowledge of some occupation in the pupil's first half year of school. Then, if economic circumstances force his withdrawal from classes, he is able to do something, however small, that may enable him to get a job. A boy enrolled in auto shop courses might learn how to grease a car and do a few other jobs around a filling station. A girl enrolled in dressmaking learns how to make certain stitches, or cut certain parts of an ensemble, so she is not wholly unskilled if she has to quit school.

Well Rounded Education

A curriculum that includes three years of English, a year of United States history, mathematics, general science, and civics insures all Dunbar graduates of entrance to engineering or technical schools if they want to enroll and have the funds. Every pupil gets three hours a day of shop work, in the subject he elects as a specialty, after his freshman year.

The wide range of vocational training includes aviation and auto mechanics, beauty culture, commercial art, commercial cooking, dressmaking, shoe rebuilding, printing, tailoring, welding, wood work, murals, electricity and radio foundry and forge, machine shop millinery, office practice, sheet metal, plastering, plumbing, brick masonry, painting and decorating, and carpentry.

Pupils who do not adjust to trade and vocational training or who might continue to college in professional or academic fields are transferred to academic high schools before they spend too long a period in vocational classes.

2,600 Pupils Today

Dunbar has grown from 125 pupils in 1942 to 1,600 today, with another 1,000 in night classes. It was a lower vocational center in the public school system when Philip L. McNamee, assistant superintendent of schools, was handed the job of making it into a trade school.

McNamee called in Campbell, who had been dean of boys at Wendell Phillips High school, and gave him a free hand in selecting the faculty. The faculty remained handpicked until this year, when some vacancies were filled by teachers whose classes in other schools had been closed.

Dunbar's fame has been achieved in the face of physical discouragement. Athletic competition has flourished, tho virtually no facilities are available. A great part of the training is still carried on in old portable buildings which, as they were eliminated in other sections of the city, were grabbed off for Dunbar. A new building planned for Dunbar was a war time casualty, but a new three story addition was opened a few months ago.

It Wins Tributes

Dunbar is the kind of a school that board of education members visit first after they are appointed. Of nearly 400 schools in the system, it was the first visited by William B. Traynor, board president. Supt. Herold C. Hunt described it as "an outstanding example of the job that can be done by teachers who have a real enthusiasm for their work and are unwilling to be held back by a lack of ideal conditions."

The attitude at Dunbar, he said, is one that should prevail at all public schools.

Jersey School Drops Name Color Label

TRENTON, N. J. — (ANP)— The word "colored" has been deleted from the title of the Manual Training and Industrial School for Colored Youth" located at Bordentown. The change was made by the state board of education of New Jersey in keeping with a provision in the new state constitution outlawing segregation in public schools because of race, color, religion, ancestry or national origin.

The move is interpreted as the first step toward the integration of the school system and has been hailed by Negro leaders as "a step in the right direction." Criticism has been pointed at the "antiquated" curriculum and the "incompetent" faculty appointed largely "through family connections, politics and friendship."

Dr. Lewis K. McMillan, an outstanding educator, has described the Bordentown school as "a disgraceful, fourth-rate colored industrial school on the free soil of New Jersey," and "another one of the frightfully large number of monuments to money-madness by Negro educators.